RESERVOIR DAM HOLDS FLOOD BACK

Oklahoma City Goes to Troubled Sleep With Understanding That Whistle's Blast Will Warn of Deluge

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 13, (AP)—With an unprecedented rush of water pounding at the city reservoir, ten miles west of here, Oklahoma City was prepared tonight for the worst flood in the history of the city.

Reservoir dam, across the Canadian river valley, which every spring impounds the city's water supply for the year, resembled a giant waterfall. Although water was sweeping over the top of the concrete structure the dam was said to be in no danger.

Oklahoma City will be warned by a fire whistle about the reservoir break, it was announced at the mayor's office.

TULSA SURVEYS DAMAGE

TULSA, Okla., June 13, (AP)—With a fall of nearly a foot in the Arkansas river here tonight, attention was turned to the probable amount of damage caused. A conservative estimate is $1,000,000.

The river stage at 7 o'clock this morning was the highest reached, 19.8 feet. At 7 o'clock tonight, it was 19.5.

OREGON CATERPILLARS TAKE NEW OBJECTIVE

Invading Insect Army Sends Forces From Corvallis Into Eugene Sector; Spares Fruit Trees

CORVALLIS, Ore., June 13, (AP)—The caterpillar army which for several days has occupied the section around Corvallis sent its forces into the Eugene sector, 40 miles away today but whether the incursion was carried out by a detached flying column or by units of the main body has not been determined tonight.

The invaders took over a ten-acre grove of ash trees near Eugene, confiscated all the leaves for their company department, and went on in search of further loot. Fruit trees and other vegetation apparently have been placed in the category of neutrals by the pests and no attempt was made to molest them.

The Yaplina branch train was on time for the first time since the caterpillars began swarming over the rails of that line a week ago. Rain and an attack with oil carried out yesterday by railroad men, seem to have demoralized the invaders in that region.

In Pocatello the president will be met by the American Legion post, which will not be possible without honor, while he is in the gate city.

After the public meeting the president's party will proceed to Pocatello.

Idaho Projects Figure in Federal Irrigation Investigation Program

WASHINGTON, June 13 (AP)—The program of the interior department for irrigation investigation during the fiscal year of 1924 has been announced by Secretary Work today as comprising projects in 11 western states. They include the following:

Idaho—Completion of the Dubois project and investigation of the Snake river district.

Utah—Investigation of the basin tributary to Great Salt Lake, involving the use of the waters of Bear, Weber and Provo rivers and Utah lake; also projects in Price and Grand Canyons.

Washington—Additional investigation of the Yakima valley.

Oregon—Examination of the Warm Springs and adjacent projects.

POWER PROJECTS ON LIST

SALT LAKE, June 13 (AP)—Investigation of the Dubois irrigation project in Idaho will be pushed to completion and, at the request of many settlers, a study will be made to determine the feasibility of harnessing numerous rapids in Snake river, for the purpose of pumping water onto adjacent lands, the secretary of the interior stated today, referring to a special dispatch to the Tribune. The Black Canyon project, near Boise, also will receive further attention, the dispatch said.

SUGAR MAKERS ADOPT SLOGAN

Upbuilding of Domestic Industry Declared Best Method of Holding Price Down

COLORADO SPRINGS, June 12 (AP)—Adopting the slogan "American sugar is the answer," the United States Sugar Manufacturers' association, representing the domestic beet sugar industry of this country, closed its annual convention here tonight by declaring that the American consumer is the most interested party in the battle now raging between the Wall street refining interests and the hinterland.

Accuses Cuban Refiners

The association, declaring that the Cuban refining interests have been responsible for the propaganda to stir up trouble between beet factories and farmers, child labor charges and the movement for a reduction in the tariff, said that the beet sugar industry needs no vindication "for it today is the main factor in keeping down sugar prices." "The time has come," declared one of the speakers, "to place the responsibility for high price where it belongs. We intend to make our position plain, so that right minded people will be able to see the sense of dependence upon a foreign country for a household necessity should not be tolerated. The only way to accomplish this is to demand that the beet sugar industry until such time that it dominates the American market and puts an end to the periodic sugar gouge by producers and their agents at home—producers, dealers and speculators—protegeable to the laws enacted to protect the consumer from extortion."

Involves Farmers

"Representing, as we do, one hundred thousand of the domestic sugar producing states of America, we feel that their interests and ours demand that the public be advised of the situation."

That the consumer can expect the greatest permanent relief from high sugar prices through a development of the sugar producing lands of the United States, as suggested by President Harding and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, was the declaration of Stephen E. Lovett of Salt Lake, who was elected president of the association at today's meeting.

AGREEMENT REACHED IN RUSS-BRITISH DISPUTE

Russians Yield Many Points While Britain Gives Pledge Not to Assist Soviets' Foes

LONDON, June 13 (AP)—A brief note from the British government delivered to Leonid Krassin, the Russian soviet representative in London, today ended the long correspondence beginning with Lord Curzon's ultimatum, and terminates the dispute between Great Britain and Russia, which at one time seriously threatened a rupture of the trade agreement between the two countries.

That this has been avoided is considered largely due to M. Krassin's diplomatic tact.

Russia yielded on many points, including withdrawal of the offensive Weinstein notes, granting compensation to the seized Greek and the Harbin, and Davison cases, permitting fishing rights within the 12 mile limit. On the question of soviet propaganda compensation had been agreed in letter and spirit.

The wording of the note shows that Russia has agreed "in the normal course of diplomatic movements" to transfer from Tientsin, Afghanistan, to another post its representative, Lieutenant Raslopolnik, against whom according to the note, "the main charges have been made," and to withdraw Shamiantskiy at Töhran, which otherwise the propaganda agreement in letter and spirit.

The note further gives the important undertaking that Great Britain and her dominions, colonies and protectorates, shall not assist in any hostile designs against the soviet government or the republic which it may establish, which may be entertained by Russian emigres.

NEW YORK DRY LAW REPEAL

DROPS TEXAS LAW REPEAL AUSTIN, Texas, June 13 (AP)—The Texas senate practically repudiated the action of the house of representatives in its stand against the New York prohibition repeal law today when it adopted a resolution declaring that legislatures of the various states have the right to pass such laws as they deem proper, without being subject to condemnation of the Texas lawmaking body. Vote on the resolution was 14 to 11, and followed a heated debate on the prohibition question.

MAINE TOWN IS WIPED OUT BY FLAMES

Men of Destroyed Village Carry Women and Children to Safety Across Stream; Woods on Fire for 25 Miles

BANGOR, Maine, June 13 (AP)—The woods along the line of the Ashland branch of the Bangor and Arundel railroad in Arundel county were ablaze tonight from Masards to Smyrna mills, a distance of 25 miles, and hundreds of small settlements in that district were fleeing from their homes.

Masards, a town of more than 1000 population, was in danger. Graywood, a village of 200 persons, was destroyed last night, 250 quickly did the flames; descend upon the little community that the inhabitants had barely time to escape. Men carried women and children on their backs across the St. Croix stream, and later a special train took the refugees out of the danger zone. Relief trains were ordered to stand by tonight to rescue villagers who might be forced to flee from any settlement along the line.

Men were fighting fires in Washburn, Wade, South Wade, Cromwell and Perham throughout the day. No houses were burned in those villages.

HEAT KILLS STOWAWAYS

Five Out of Nine Unregistered Passengers on Freight Train From Havana Found Dead Near Boilers

MARCO'S HOOK, Penn., June 13 (AP)—The sugar freighter Santa Theresa, brought in a tragic story when it dropped anchor off Delaware immigration station here today. During the voyage from Havana five stowaways died of heat and coal asphyxiation in the bunkers of the vessel. Four stowaways were rescued and today were taken to the immigration station.

When the Santa Theresa sailed from Cuba Friday the five men craved into the bunkers next to the boilers. When the ship had been at sea two days stowaways noticed a peculiar odor. When they shoved away the door they found the first of the stowaways.

They kept on until they reached the other side of the hullhead, next to the boilers, where they stumbled over one of the dead men. Then they found the other four lying close together. Their dead heat overcome by coal gas and asphyxiated to death by the heat.

China's President Is Held Prisoner on Special Train

CABINET TO ASSUME CHINA'S GOVERNMENT ABANDONED BY CHIEF

PEKING, June 13, (AP)—What was left of the headless Chinese government held a session this afternoon. The gathering was attended by the members of the cabinet, who will endeavor to function in the absence of a president. Vice president and premier will somebody be chosen to fill the vacant executive post.

The cabinet, headed by its premier, Chang Shao-Tsong, handed its resignations on late to President Li Yuan-Hung sometime ago, but the president refused to accept them. Later Premier Chang refused to join Tien Tsin and refused to resign. He is still in the capital, but followed him with the threat of armed action by the military, ringing in his ears.

Despite the political chaos the capital is quiet and a feeling of relief from the tension of the past few days is in evidence as the menace of rioting diminishes.

BANDITS CLAIM HEAVY TRIBUTE

Thousands of Dollars a Month Declared Collected by Brigands of China

SHANGHAI, June 13 (AP)—Thousands of dollars a month are paid as tribute to the outlaws of the mountainous areas of China, according to the police here, who have been conducting an investigation of the recent Shanghai train hold-up and kidnaping outrage.

Many merchants and traders dealing in the interior, it is said, are forced to pay systematic tribute to the brigands to insure safe conduct of their merchandise through certain districts. The bandits are declared to maintain regular organizations, including staffs of agents and collectors in the cities.

Torture Proves Profitable

Properly the brigands intercept shipments going to the interior, and confiscate the merchandise and terrify the merchants. A favorite method of the outlaws to force the victims to disgorge their money and valuables is to hold burning paper under their noses. Few tortured traders resist. This is

TROOPS CORNER EXECUTIVE ON RUNAWAY TRIP

Chihli Governor Detains Fleeing Government Head to Prevent His Gaining Haven of Manchurian War Lord

TIENTSIN, June 14, (AP)—Li Yuan-Hung, president of the Chinese republic, is being held a prisoner of war by special troops in the central railway station here, at an early hour this morning, following his flight from the capital at Peking yesterday. The train was surrounded by troops acting under the direct orders of Wang Cheng-Ping, governor of Chihli province.

The troops allowed American Consul Jay C. Huston to enter the station but would not permit him to board President Li's train to prevent the executive. The British consul was forcibly prevented from approaching the train. The president is being held in a cell, which he has possession of the government seals which he carried with him in his flight from the capital.

Government Seals at Stake

Officials declare they will not permit President Li to proceed to his residence in the British concession until the missing seals are recovered. It is said they fear the executive may attempt to seek refuge in Mukden in territory ruled by General Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord.

The disappearance of the governmental seals apparently was not discovered until the president's special train had left Peking following the threat of General Yu Hsiang to enter the capital with his troops unless Li vacates his office. The authorities at Tien Tsin were notified immediately and ordered to hold the president's train upon its arrival.

President Meets Defiance

President Li, when informed that his train had been surrounded by troops, demanded that he be permitted to proceed to his residence. The officials then ordered him to give up the missing seals. He declined having these and Governor Wang ordered the troops to remain on guard.

Mrs. Li Missing

While a futile search was made of the train for the missing seals, it was discovered that President Li's wife was not present. It is believed by some that she left the train in Peking, made her way to the official residence of Li and later proceeded to the French hospital in the legation quarter. A special train is being dispatched from Tien Tsin to Peking to bring Mrs. Li here in the hope that the seals may be recovered.

ATMOSPHERE AT PARLEY CLEARS

Prospects for Agreements Between Allies and Turks Seem to be Improving

LAUSANNE, June 13, (AP)—Allied representatives late tonight said that the talks and the talks seemed to be an agreement, both on the question of Ottoman debt and concessions.

With regard to the debt, the allies anticipated that Ismet Pasha would be satisfied with moratorium, Turkey to reach an agreement with the bond holders specifying the amount of annual interest charges. In the matter of concessions, Ismet will be asked to write a detailed letter to concession holders, affording protection to their interests and rearranging arbitration for the disputed conditions of redemption and prolongation of contract.

The French insist on the maintenance of the Samsun-Sivas contract as valid, but apparently stand ready to make arrangements with the Turkish government or the Chester company so as to avoid any conflict.

This program as outlined by the experts, must be submitted to the plenipotentiaries.

Gibbons Varies Day by Chasing Gophers

Challenger Shows Improvement in Breathing and Speed in Hot Sparring Bout

SHELBY, Mont., June 13 (AP)—Chasing gophers over Mountain buttes and prairies was part of Tommy Gibbons' training regime today for his Dempsey battle July 4.

The challenger brought back four furry denizens of the wilds as a memento of his trip and also picked off one jackrabbit and a snake on the hunting expedition.

For the first time in her life Mrs. Gibbons saw her husband in a workout this evening. Seated against the stockade, which surrounds the training camp, she watched Tommy pumell four sparring partners in eight grueling rounds.

Meanwhile, little Tom and Jack, their two youngsters, clamber around the edge of the arena and eagerly watched their daddy work.

Gibbons, breathing easily and displaying more agility in ducking, dodging and side stepping than he has at any time heretofore, gave his partners a vertiginous afternoon. Twice Gibbons apologized when he jolted them with

EMPLOYMENT STILL UP

In spite of a moderate slump in business activities, the job outlook continues good. Big industrial plants in many cities are employing more men than ever before.

When the slump, slight as it was,
 came in April, a good many people thought the peak of good times had passed and the peak of employment with it. But since that time there has been a rally in most lines, and in the larger plants May set a new record. In one city an increase of nearly 2 per cent was noted on May 1 over the reports of April 1, and June is holding on.

This is the kind of news the country wants to hear. It indicates that the nervousness perceptible in the early stages of the business recovery is passing. Producer and consumer are settling down to a steadier confidence that the good times are genuine.

If producing and buying can be kept on a sane basis, the confidence
 will be amply justified, and there seems little reason why the good times
 should not last for a good while.

TOO MANY RETAILERS

Roger Babson, speaking to the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, says there are one million, five hundred thousand retailers in the United States today, of whom one hundred thousand are doing a profitable business and four hundred thousand more are doing a fair business, while the remaining million are barely struggling along. A large part of the million are operating at an actual loss. The rest are merely getting day wages, and poor wages at that.

It is evident that a losing retailer is an economic loss to himself and the community which supports him.
 As matters stand, it would be better for everybody if several hundred thousand people who are not doing enough business, or not doing business well enough, to make a proper living, were
 to engage in some other line of work, as mechanics, farmers, etc. Thus they might make more money and become a constructive part of the economic system.

Many economists recommend this very thing. Mr. Babson, however, seems to think there are not necessarily too many retailers—that the remedy may lie in showing the failure how to do their work more efficiently and perform greater service.
 This, he says, is the biggest task
 facing American business men today.

Keener competition may solve the problem in time. The present tendency is toward larger retail stores,
 and with increased size and efficiency
 there is usually a lowering of price,
 driving out inefficient competitors
 and giving the public the benefit.

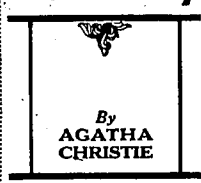

"GOOD LUCK"

A poor woman named Mrs. Ford, working in an English mill, has won thirty-two thousand pounds, about one hundred fifty thousand dollars, playing the races. Her sweepstakes ticket cost her only a few cents. She is the support of a large family.

It is fine for her—perhaps. Nobody knows what good or ill money will do to people unused to it. It takes rare wisdom and self-restraint in anyone not to stoop to foolish indulgence and suffer a weakening of character
 on coming into possession of an unearned fortune. It is especially so when the fortune comes from gambling. Though Mrs. Ford and her family are envied by a whole nation, they might be better off without the money.

In its effect on others, that "good luck" cannot but be lamentable.
 Thousands of foolish people, all their lives will gamble their stender savings in the hope of making a big winning, just because Mrs. Ford did.
 Every such stroke of luck is a deadly blow to thrift, character and progress.

The Secret Adversary

 CHRISTIE

A middle-aged clerk got down from a high stool at a desk near the window and came toward her inquiringly.
 "I have an appointment with Mr.
 Whittington," said Tuppence.

"Will you come this way, please?"
 He crossed to a partition door with "Private" on it, knocked, then opened the door and stood aside to let her pass in.

Mr. Whittington was seated behind a large desk covered with papers.
 Tuppence felt her rivalry in judgment confirmed. There was something wrong about Mr. Whittington. The combination of his sleek prosperity
 and his shifty eye was not attractive.

He looked up and nodded.
 "So you're turned up, all right?
 That's good. Sit down, will you?"
 Tuppence sat meekly with downcast eyes whilst Mr. Whittington sorted and rustled amongst his papers.
 Finally he pushed them away, and leaned over the desk.

"Now, my dear young lady, let us
 come to business." His large face brightened into a smile. "You want work? Well, I have work to offer you. What should you say now to $500 down, and all expenses paid?"
 Mr. Whittington leaned back in his chair and thrust his thumbs into the armpits of his waistcoat.

Tuppence eyed him warily.
 "And the nature of the work?" she demanded.

"Nominal—purely nominal. A pleasure trip, that is all."
 "Where to?"

"To Whittington, said again.
 "Paris?"

"Oh!" said Tuppence thoughtfully.
 To herself she said: "Of course, if father heard that he would have a fit!
 But somehow I don't see Mr. Whittington in the role of the gay develop."

"Yes," continued Whittington.
 "What could be more delightful? To put the clock back a few years—
 very few, I am sure—and re-enter one of those charming pensionnats de Jeunes Filles with which Paris
 abounds."

Tuppence interrupted him.
 "A pensionnat?"

"Exactly. Madame Colomble's in the Avenue de Neuilly."
 Tuppence knew the name well.
 Nothing could have been more select.
 She had had several American friends
 there. She was more than ever puzzled.

"You want me to go to Madame Co-lomble's? For how long?"

"That depends. Possibly three months."
 "And that is all? There are no other conditions?"

"None whatever. By the way, you are English, are you not?"

"Yes."
 "Yet you speak with a slight American accent?"

"My great pal in hospital was a little American girl. I dare say I picked it up from her. I can soon get out of it again."

"On the contrary, it might be simpler for you to pass as an American.
 Details about your past life in England might be more difficult to sustain.
 Yes, I think that would be decidedly better. Then—"

"One moment, Mr. Whittington!
 You seem to be taking my consent for granted."

Whittington looked surprised.
 "Surely you are not thinking of refusing? I can assure you that Madame Colomble's is a most high-class and orthodox establishment. And the terms are most liberal!"

"Exactly," said Tuppence. "That's just it. The terms are almost too liberal, Mr. Whittington. I cannot see any way in which I can be worth that amount of money to you."

"No?" said Whittington softly.
 "Well, I will tell you. I could doubtless obtain someone else for very much less. What I am willing to pay for is a young lady with sufficient intelligence and presence of mind to sustain her part well, and also one who will have sufficient discretion not to ask too many questions."

 Tuppence smiled a little. She felt that Whittington had scored.

"There's another thing. So far there has been no mention of Mr. Beresford. Where does he come in?"

"Mr. Beresford?"
 "You saw us together yesterday."

"Ah, yes. But I'm afraid we shan't require his services."
 "Then it's off?" Tuppence rose.

"It's both or neither. Sorry—but that how it is. Good morning, Mr. Whittington."

"Wait a minute. Let us see if something can't be managed. Sit down again, Miss—" He paused interogatively.

Tuppence's conscience gave her a passing twinge as she remembered the archdeacon. She seized hurriedly on the first name that came into her head.

"Jane Finn," she said hastily; and their raised open-mouthed at the effect of those two simple words.

All the geniality had faded out of Whittington's face. It was purple with rage, and the veins stood out on his forehead. And behind it all there lurked a sort of incredulous dismay.
 He leaned forward and hissed savagely:

"So that's your little game, is it?"
 Tuppence, though utterly taken aback, nevertheless kept her head.
 She had not the faintest comprehension of his meaning, but she was naturally quick-witted and felt it imperative to "keep her end up," as she phrased it.

Whittington went on:
 "Been playing with me, have you,
 all the time, like a cat and mouse?
 Knew all the time what I wanted you for, but kept my count. It is that it, eh?" He was cooling down. The red color was ebbing out of his face.
 He eyed her keenly. "Who's been blabbing? Rita?"

Tuppence shook her head. She was doubtful as to how long she could sustain the illusion, but she realized
 the importance of not dragging an unknown Rita into it.

"No," she replied with perfect
 truth. "Rita knows nothing about me."
 "How much do you know?" he shot out.

"Very little indeed," answered Tuppence, and was pleased to note that Whittington's uneasiness was augmented instead of allayed.

"Anyway," he snarled, "you knew enough to come in here and plump
 out that name."

"It isn't my own name," Tuppence
 pointed out.

"It's likely, isn't it, that there would be two girls with a name like that?
 Quit fooling! How much do you know?
 And how much do you want?"

The last five words took Tuppence's fancy mightily, especially after a meager breakfast and a supper of buns the night before. "She sat up and smiled with the air of one who has the situation thoroughly well in hand."

"My dear Mr. Whittington," she said, "let us by all means lay our cards upon the table. And pray do not be so angry. You heard me say yesterday that I proposed to live by my wits. It seems to me that I have now proved I have some wits to live by! I admit I have knowledge of a certain name, but perhaps my knowledge ends there."

"As I said once before," said Whittington angrily, "quit fooling, and come to the point. You can't play the innocent with me. You know a great deal more than you're willing to admit."

Tuppence paused a moment to admire her own ingenuity, and then said
 softly:

"I shouldn't like to contradict you,
 Mr. Whittington."

"So we come to the usual question—
 how much?"

Tuppence was in a dilemma. So far she had fooled Whittington with complete success, but to mention a palpably impossible sum might awaken his suspicions. An idea flashed across her brain.

"Suppose we say a little something down, and a fuller discussion of the matter later?"

Whittington gave her an ugly glance.
 "Blackmail, eh?"

Tuppence smiled sweetly.
 "Oh, no! Shall we say payment of services in advance?"

Whittington granted.

"You're about the limit, that's what you are," he growled, with a sort of unwilling admiration. "You took me in all right. Thought you were quite a meek little kid with just enough brains for my purpose. All the same, someone's been talking. You say it isn't Rita. Was it—? Oh, come in."

The clerk followed his discreet knock into the room, and laid a paper
 at his master's elbow.
 "Telephone message just come for you, sir."

Whittington snatched it up and read it. A frown gathered on his brow.

"That'll do, Brown. You can go."
 The clerk withdrew. Whittington turned to Tuppence.

"Come tomorrow at the same time.
 I'm busy now. Here's fifty to go on with."

He rapidly sorted out some notes,
 and pushed them across the table to Tuppence.

The girl counted the notes, secured
 them in her handbag, and rose.

"Good morning, Mr. Whittington," she said politely. "At least, an revoir, I should say."

"Exactly. An revoir, my clever and charming young lady."
 Tuppence sped lightly down the stairs. A wild elation possessed her.

"Let's give Tommy a surprise!"
 murmured Tuppence, and halted a taxi.

The cab drew up outside the tube station. Tommy was just within the entrance. His eyes opened to their fullest extent as he hurried forward to assist Tuppence to alight. She smiled at him affectionately, and remarked in a slightly affected voice:

"Pity the thing, will you, old bean?"

Whittington Snatched It and Read It

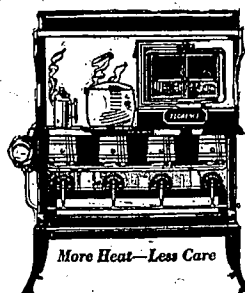

I've got nothing smaller than a five-pound note!"

 Oil Stoves and Ranges

SOME motorists may be wealthy enough to afford the use of unknown oils of uncertain quality, but no one has enough money to keep his car in good running order
 on that kind of "lubrication."

Polarine is well known. Its reputation for reliability and uniform superiority is established. It is always the same high-quality oil wherever obtained. You cannot expect proper lubrication if you buy one sort of oil this time and some other kind the next. Use Polarine regularly. The grade which long years of experience have proved to be the best for your car is shown by the Polarine Lubrication Chart.

THE CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY
