MOB OF 2000 LAYS SEIGE TO SAVANNAH JAIL

One Killed and Several Wounded in Clash With Military and Police Before Would-be Lynchers Disperse

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 10 (AP)—At 2:30 o'clock this morning the mob of more than 2000 persons which for more than two hours had threatened the city jail in an effort to lynch Walter Lee, negro, held for assaulting a white woman, had dispersed after one man was killed and a number wounded in a clash with the military and police. At that time the authorities were in control and no further trouble was expected.

O. Claude Parker, Jr., the dead man, was shot in the stomach and died a few minutes later in a hospital. The mob, estimated at more than 2000 persons, formed shortly before midnight and increased in number. The military was called to preserve order. Sheriff Merritt Dixon told the mob that the jail would be defended against any attempt at storming it. At 1:30 o'clock, shortly after the military assumed control, a threatening section of the crowd was first upon.

At 2 o'clock with 150 military supporting the full city police force, and with firemen on every street to deluge any approaching mob, there was every indication that the spirit of the mob was broken. The police and military men were arresting numbers of the mob and marching them to the police station.

Crowd Stands Under Drenching.

Sheriff Dixon's address did not quiet the crowd. While there was no rush toward the jail, it was evident that there was no intention of dispersing. Sheriff Dixon then gave an order which resulted in a half dozen streams of water being sent into the crowd by the city firemen.

Instead of fleeing from the water the crowd immediately began throwing bricks at the firemen. In the battle that ensued a fireman from the dark knicker the sheriff's pistol from his hand.

At 12:30, when two shots had been heard within a block of the jail and Mayor S. E. Bowers had left the scene and had failed to quiet the clamoring crowd, a call was sent out for military aid and at 1:30 a detachment of state militia arrived. Major A. Russell Moore reached the jail and took positions.

Gunsmen Rush Crowd.

When the machine gun men rushed the crowd in push it took one man on the front line down and another and he was quickly taken in charge and sent to the police station.

Chief of Police Hendry was struck in the stomach with his rifle but the extent of his injuries has not been determined.

Lieutenant I. C. Hinkle, Jr., of battery C, national guard, was struck in the face with a brick and disabled.

Public Lieutenant Sherrod, who fired the shot, was also disabled.

Growers Hear Packer's Advice to Use Wheat to Fatten Livestock

CHICAGO, June 10 (AP)—Turn one-fourth of the wheat crop to fattening the livestock on farms and the farmers' annual loss will be turned to profit commensurate with the work of producing the necessities of life, E. E. Wilson, president of Armour and Co., declared tonight before the banquet of the National Wheat conference, called by governors and representatives of various phases of the wheat growing and marketing industry.

Mr. White spoke on the problem of eliminating from the country the annual surplus of wheat, which has been the bane of the farmer's life, he said. The carry-over was in the neighborhood of 10,000,000 bushels this year, and we are now within a month of the new harvest. "Feed more wheat" might not be a bad slogan for the farmers of many localities, he suggested.

RUM RUNNERS ROUT OFFICERS IN GUN BATTLE

Federal Authorities Plan Campaign to Enforce Dry Law Flouted in Sensational Long Island Escapes

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP)—Federal prohibition enforcement authorities, electrified by two of the wildest bootlegging stories that have reached their ears tonight, began planning a campaign to mop up Long Island which is disclosed has been adopted as the newest scene of operations of rummers playing to and from the offshore rum fleet.

Factions Fight for Whiskey

The other story, vouchered for by the police, was the story of a battle at Baldwin between two contending factions of bootleggers for possession of rum from eight duty-free trucks from the rum fleet in which the police, acting as armed mediators, captured the liquor and four men.

The fight at Greenport last night, according to Sheriff Biggs, was the culmination of two days of skirmishing which started when an unidentified vessel slipped into Greenport early Sunday morning and unloaded her liquid cargo on to waiting trucks. The sheriff advised of the landing—but too late to get men on the spot—sent his deputies out to find some traces of the liquor. It remained for Sidney Smith, a citizen, however, to discover the cache and he paid for it by the loss of an ear, which was shot off as he stood before the house in which it had been stored.

HARDING READY FOR DEPARTURE

President to Set Out Shortly After Noon on Trip Across Country to Alaska

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—President Harding will leave Washington shortly after noon tomorrow on the longest trip of his administration—a trip that will take him across the continent, to Alaska, then Canada, along the Pacific coast to the Panama zone and Porto Rico, and will keep him away from the capital for at least two months.

The last territory of Alaska, never before visited by a president, is Mr. Harding's goal. Long before he was even mentioned for the presidency he came and toured the Yukon and since entering the White House he has had the dream of being able to visit the territory and study at first hand the country, the great areas therein so great a number.

The itinerary that the president has prepared provides for 14 formal addresses on the Pacific coast, Washington, where he will board a vessel for Alaska, and for five speeches on the Pacific coast on his return from the territory.

Two Idaho Addresses.

The first presidential address will be made in St. Paul, Minn., Tuesday. The other addresses to be made enroute to the Pacific coast will be made in the following cities in the order named: Kansas City, Mo.; Hutchinson, Kan.; Denver, Colo.; Salt Lake, Utah; Portland and Idaho Falls, Idaho; Butte and Helena, Mont.; Spokane, Wash.; McCallum and Portland, Ore., and Tacoma, Wash.

After his visit to Astoria, the president will speak at Vancouver, B. C.; Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego, which will mark the port of embarkation for the water trip through the Panama canal to Porto Rico and thence to New York.

MOLTEN FLOOD CREEPS TOWARD DOOMED TOWN

Lava Torrent From Mount Etna at Outskirts of Linguaglossa; Earthquakes Shake Down Houses

ROME, June 10 (AP)—Premier Mussolini will proceed to Catania after his return from his Pisa-Genoa visit, according to the Giornale di Italia.

Premier Orlando will also go to the Mount Etna area.

CATANIA, Italy, June 10 (AP)—The great lava torrent from Mount Etna bearing in its flow great masses of earth and volcanic stones has already reached the houses on the outskirts of the town of Linguaglossa. Green fields, orange groves and vineyards have been swallowed up and for acres around the small hamlet of Linguaglossa have been taken down by the frequent earth shocks and the lava is directly in the line of lava and is thought to be doomed to destruction. The molten stream is traveling about 40 yards an hour, and unless some miracle happens, Linguaglossa will go under during the night. Confronting it is a lava bed 800 yards wide and nearly 300 feet deep.

Clearing Doomed Town.

The work of clearing the threatened town is being carried out with the greatest haste and admirable organization. Discipline is necessary to induce the terrified inhabitants to abandon their beloved homes, but their removal is carried out with sympathy and kindness. Appliances are being used for the first time to watch the progress of the eruption, and special signaling stations have been established at various intervals. Giving confidence to the people in the fact that they are being protected, Special units of the Red Cross, with all supplies and blankets, are being used for the homeless wanderers and provide food and shelter for them.

Six Now Carrots.

A new stream of lava on the western side of Etna menaces the Garro junction of the railway. According to leading volcanologists six new craters have opened, only two of which, however, are of first importance. In these craters are being ejected in regular spurts, amid vast clouds of fumes and ashes, forming two streams of liquid death, one of which is rolling down the mountain side. The other flows in the great Sicario pass, but threatening no inhabited points, though causing immense damage to the vineyards and nut plantations, which constituted the

ALLEGED KILLER POSES AS WOMAN

Fred Thompson, of "Double Nature" Held For Murder of Tesmer in Holdup

CHICAGO, June 10 (AP)—Fred Thompson, who for several hours following his arrest today as the "smiling" woman named who shot and killed Richard C. Tesmer, during a holdup at whether he was a man or woman tonight was declared to be a man after a medical examination.

Thompson, posing as the wife of Frank Carick, was arrested in the Carick apartment, dressed to fit the part of Carick's wife which role he is said to have assumed for 14 years, was later taken before Tesmer's widow and then identified as the person who shot her husband.

At the request of Mrs. Tesmer, Thompson still dressed in his female attire, was ordered to "say a few words" and then smile. Then Mrs. Tesmer, police say, cried that Thompson was the one who shot her husband and that her smile was identical with that of the person who shot her husband and the name of the holdup. "God gave me a double nature" Thompson is reported to have told police under questioning. "When I was 18 years old I was chased out of my home by my father. I am 32 now. Fourteen years ago I was married to Frank Carick at Brown-Point. During these years I appeared as singer in a North side cabaret."

INDICATES WAY TO TERMINATE LABOR TROUBLE

Rotarians Hear New York Man Stress Value of Friendship in Betterment of Industrial Relationships

ST. LOUIS, June 19 (AP)—If employers would spend half as much time cultivating the friendship, respect and good will of labor as the 40 fighting labor organizations there would not be a labor problem, Sherman Rogers of New York, today told the delegates to the fourteenth annual convention of Rotary International here.

"We waste too much time talking about the labor agitator," the speaker said. "He can only be recognized as the logical friend of the worker when the management has refused to extend its friendship."

"I was in the Seattle shipyards working as a helper in 1917 when Charles M. Schwab made his tour of the American shipbuilding institutions. We'd heard he was a labor lover."

"The first incident the great steel man looked us over it was apparent to every man in the bunch that Mr. Schwab really liked him. He stepped on that platform Charles M. Schwab, autocrat, millionaire magnate. He stopped off that platform, 30 minutes later friend Charles. In that short 30 minutes he had destroyed the hatred that agitators had been building for 15 years."

World Built on Ideals.

"The world is built on ideals. Labor wants to be square. If labor follows the wrong leader it is not because they want to misunderstand but because the right leader has been asleep at the switch and hasn't given the men a chance to understand him."

"There are three sides to every question—your side, the other fellow's and the right side. I don't believe there was ever a question in either modern or ancient history where either side to the dispute was 100 per cent right."

"Ninety-five per cent of men, whether they wear broadcloth or overalls, want to play the square game. Lack of contact means lack of understanding."

"The employer has spent a lot of time selling his honesty, his fairness and personality to the banker, the wholesaler, the retailer and the public. How much has he spent trying to sell that same personality, honesty and fairness to his workmen? Solving a labor trouble is not a mysterious affair. It is simply a proposition of using common sense."

Burke Picks Hole in Dempsey's Defense

Pittsburgh Boxer Uses Gibbons Favorite Blow as Champion Tears In

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 19 (AP)—A heavy rain storm of abiding duration forced Jack Dempsey, who at last is suffering from a slight cold, to work out today in the old dance pavilion, converted into an indoor gymnasium at his camp. Dempsey wore his usual run over the hills. The champion indulged in a workout equivalent to ten rounds, boxing six rounds with a trio of sparring partners before running back through the rain to his living quarters for a change of clothes, a wash and a brisk rub down.

Critics agreed that Jack Burke, the Pittsburgh light heavyweight, discovered one weakness in Dempsey's defense which makes him an easy target for one of Tom Gibbons' favorite punches, a ripping left hook to the stomach. Burke's Dempsey sold in the pit of the stomach as he came tearing in close. The St. Paul challenger, who is much faster than Burke and a more accurate fighter, uses this blow with a right cross, very effectively looking it to the body after a feint to the head.

Dempsey opened up his workout with two rounds of whaling away at the light bag and two rounds of shadow boxing, before facing Billy Wells, the British welterweight, for a five-round boxing. Wells, fast and elusive, was badly shaken up a couple of times, and failed to hit Dempsey as cleanly as he has done in previous bouts.

While boxing George Godfrey, the 225 pound negro, Dempsey appeared to lean more to perfecting a defense rather than showing any offensive. Godfrey found it almost impossible to connect with a clean punch because Dempsey held a and pulled to keep him off balance.

In close quarters Dempsey protected himself from the negro's onslaught by feinting Godfrey's arms and wrestling him in the clinches.

The champion was lost this afternoon to a party of railroad executives who visited the camp after luncheon and remained until after the workout. The party included Charles Gallaway, vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad; W. P. Kennedy, vice president of the Great Northern; H. C. Allen, vice president of the Pittsburgh steel company; Edward Smith, a New York banker; and James A. Murray, assistant to the president of the Baltimore and Ohio.

Gibbons Gets Rough in Practice Rounds

Challenger Sends Sparring Mates Bloody and Badly Winded From Ring

SHELBY, Mont., June 19 (AP)—While Shelby was shivering in another chilly downpour that lasted throughout the day, Tom Gibbons' attention was divided in the most strenuous workout he has had since he began training for his title bout here with Jack Dempsey July 1.

In the Green Light, a spacious, rambling structure of rough hewn pine boards, a dance hall reminiscent of those early days of the west, the challenger faced three sparring partners in a strenuous hour's workout equivalent to a fast 15-round bout.

Expanded strain coach "Jazz" orchestra ushered in the afternoon session for nearly 200 spectators, who watched the challenger work. The challenger sent Herman's opponent with a left straight left that jabbed in and out with bewildering rapidity and accuracy. Frequently he landed in a right cross and dug into Herman's lower ribs with a twisting, right smash.

Gibbons was more savage with his sparring mates today than he has been heretofore and at the end of the hour they were bleeding profusely or badly winded. He was going at top speed despite the handling of the uncertain footing because of a rain-soaked floor.

LEONARD WILL DEFEND TITLE AGAINST TENDLER

Lightweight Champion and Challenger Sign Contract For Bout at New York Yankee Stadium

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—Tony Leonard, lightweight champion, tonight signed a contract to defend his title in a 15-round bout with Lou Tandler, challenger, at the Yankee stadium on August 1, 1923. The contract was signed at the Waldorf Astoria hotel, where the two fighters met with the news agent, Edward A. Walsh, who has obtained the preliminary details of the agreement.

Financial terms, it was understood, called for the champion to receive 57 1/2 per cent of the gate receipts, and the challenger to receive 42 1/2 per cent. Club officials estimated that the 15-round bout would attract a gate of $200,000, and on this basis Leonard would receive $116,000 for the defense of his crown, and Tandler $84,000.

Tandler and Walsh have been fighting their way for a long time. They fought a 12-round bout at the Waldorf Astoria on May 23, in which the champion was credited with a narrow margin of victory, although the Philadelphia fan had him on the verge of a knockout in the eighth round.

VILLA SIGNS CONTRACT FOR BOUT WITH GENARO

Philippine Conqueror of Jimmy Wilde. Former Flyweight Champion, Ready to Defend Crown

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—Plans already are under way, according to Tom O'Rourke, Philo Genaro's matchmaker, for another world's flyweight title bout, bringing together the Villa, the new champion, who toppled Jimmy Wilde from the throne last night, and Frankie Genaro of New York, who won the American 112-pound crown from the Philippine last March. Villa has signed a contract for the match, which O'Rourke plans to stage about September 1.

Though still weak and brained from the terrific punishment he absorbed in losing his title to Villa, Wilde was declared today by physicians to be in danger from his injuries. Propped in bed in his Jersey City quarters, the lithe Welshman, who was hailed by critics as one of the greatest fighters of all time, was able to receive a few of his close friends.

Wilde's left eye was closed, his right eye nearly so, and besides a gash on his cheek, a cut four inches long on his chin testified to the force with which he plunged in the canvas with Villa's knockout blow in the seventh round.

Revised figures today on the championship bout announced by promoters placed the paid attendance at 23,000 and receipts at $94,500, considerably below the totals of 40,000 for the crowd and $160,000 for the receipts, as estimated last night. On the basis of the new figures, Wilde's share, 37 1/2 per cent, was about $35,000 and Villa's 12 1/2 per cent amounted to $12,000.

UNORGANIZED CHINA

China is all in confusion again, with two civil wars going on at once, on top of her bandit troubles, and no accidental mind can make head, or tail of the situation.

All of which emphasizes once more the foolishness of any present fear of the "yellow peril," at least as far as China is concerned. What does it matter that there are four hundred million people there, if those four hundred million will not work together for any purpose and are wholly unable to function politically or militarily as a nation?

Japan, though small, is infinitely greater, because the Japanese are organized. They may conceivably organize the Chinese some time, and wield them for a single purpose, though it is doubtful whether any other race can do for the Chinese what they cannot do for themselves. Japan might go to pieces in the effort.

Nothing much is accomplished anywhere, in this modern world, without organization. Western nations all know that, as far as they are concerned severally. As a group, they have it still to learn.

FLYING MAP-MAKERS

Any one looking for something new in the way of occupation might try being a commercial aviator. One of the things the commercial aviator does is to make maps, as army fliers did during the war.

Such a map has recently been completed for San Francisco. It is believed to be the largest aero-map ever made. It measures ten feet by eight and is a composite of one hundred and seventy-three exposures and four hundred and seventy-six prints. All the sections of the map were taken from an elevation of about three miles. It required nine months in the making.

The area covered is about seventy square miles, including all of the city, part of San Francisco bay, the Golden Gate and a bit of the Pacific ocean. It is said that every important building and landmark in the city is clearly distinguishable.

What can be done for the city can be done equally well for stretches of unexplored land, for mountain or desert country. In wild places it is far simpler and less expensive to make such maps than to make a laborious ground survey. It is often more accurate as well.

BABIES AT CHURCH

The First Christian Church at Pine Bluff, Arkansas, wants mothers to bring their babies to church. But it doesn't want the babies in the auditorium. It has devised a novel way of letting the mothers take part in the church service undisturbed and yet keep in touch with their babies.

The infants are installed in a nursery adjacent to the main auditorium, and there is an electric signal system, by which to communicate with the mothers. There is a cabinet in the auditorium, facing the congregation, with a separate number for every baby and an electric light behind that number. When any particular mother is needed in the nursery, her signal flashes up and she can go and look after her offspring.

It sounds extremely modern and efficient. But it also sounds as if those electric lights might distract the attention of the worshippers just as much as a baby crying in a pew.

See Farm as it is. I love fame no more, and am ashamed of myself that I ever did love it. I have seen too often how it is misused for other than good purpose.—Gabrielle D'Annunzio.

RELINQUISHMENT TO BE ACCEPTED

Federal Land Office Takes Steps to Straighten Tangle and Issue Patents

Expression of willingness on the part of Commissioner Spary of the general land office to accept relinquishment immediately of lands excluded from the Salmon river irrigation project paves the way for issuance by the federal government of patents to such lands to persons owning the relinquishment.

The lands in this relinquishment, Mr. Davis' letters say, "were the lands which were excluded from the Salmon river project because of deficient water supply. The state has not issued some time ago by the state. Attached to this is a statement of the status of the claims of various entrymen on these lands. The Secret Adversary

CHAPTER IV

The House in Boho. Whittington and his companion were walking at a good pace. Tommy started in pursuit at once, and was in time to see them turn the corner of the street. His vigorous strides soon enabled him to gain upon them, and by the time he, in his turn, reached the corner the distance between them was sensibly lessened.

Their course was a zigzag one designed to bring them as quickly as possible to Oxford street. When at length they turned into it, proceeding in an easterly direction, Tommy slightly increased his pace. Little by little he gained upon them.

Just before the Bond Street tube station they crossed the road. Tommy, unperceived, fallfully at their heels, and entered the big Lyons'. There they went up to the first floor, and sat at a small table in the window. It was late, and the place was thinning out. Tommy took a seat at the table next to them, sitting directly behind Whittington in case of recognition. On the other hand, he had a full view of the second man and studied him attentively. He was fair, with a weak, unpleasant face, and Tommy put him down as being either a Russian or a Pole. He was probably about fifty years of age, his shoulders cringed a little as he talked, and his eyes, small and crafty, shifted uneasily.

Whittington ordered a substantial lunch for himself and his companion; then, as the waitress withdrew, he moved his chair a little closer to the table and to talk earnestly in a low voice. The other man joined in. Listen as he would, Tommy could only catch a word here and there; but the gist of it seemed to be some directions or orders which the big man was impressing on his companion, and with which the latter seemed from time to time to disagree. Whittington addressed the other as Boris.

Tommy caught the word "Ireland" several times, also "organizer." He of Jane Finn there was no mention. Suddenly, in a lull in the clatter of the room, he got one phrase entire. Whittington was speaking. "Ah, but you don't know Flossie. She's a marvel. An archbishop would swear she was his own mother. She gets the voice right every time, and that's really the principal thing."

Tommy did not hear Boris' reply, but in response to it Whittington said something that sounded like: "Of course—only in an emergency..." Then he lost the thread again. But presently the phrases became distinct again whether because the other two had inauspiciously raised their voices, or because Tommy's ears were getting more attuned, he could not tell. But two words certainly had a most stimulating effect upon the listener. They were uttered by Boris and they were: "Mr. Brown." Whittington seemed to reembrace with him, but he merely laughed. "Why not, my friend? It is a name most respectable—most common. Did he not choose it for that reason? Ah, I should like to meet him—Mr. Brown."

"There was a steely ring in Whittington's words, as he called: "And do you know? You may have met him already."

"Bah!" retorted the other. "That is children's talk—a fable for the police. Do you know what I say to myself sometimes? That he is a fable invented by the Inner Ring, a bog to frighten us with. It might be so."

"And it might not."

"I wonder... or is it indeed true that he is with us and amongst us, so, he keeps his secret well. And that is a good one, for I do not know. We look at each other—one of us is Mr. Brown—which? He commands—but also he serves. Among us—in the midst of us. And no one knows which he is..."

With an effort the Russian shook off the mystery of his fancy. He looked at his watch. "Yes," said Whittington. "We might as well go."

He called the waitress and asked for his bill. Tommy did likewise, and a few moments later was following the two men down the stairs.

Outside Whittington took a taxi, and directed the driver to go to Waterloo. Taxis were plentiful here, and before Whittington's had driven off another was drawing up to the curb in obedience to Tommy's peremptory demand.

"Follow that other taxi," directed the young man. "Don't lose it!" The elderly chauffeur showed no interest. He merely grunted and jerked down his flag. The drive was uneventful. Tommy's taxi came to rest at the departure platform just before the entrance to the station. He had him at the booking office. He took a first-class single ticket to Bournemouth. Tommy did the same.

As he entered, Boris remarked glancing at the clock: "You are early. You have nearly half an hour."

Boris' words had aroused a new train of thought in Tommy's mind. Clearly Whittington was making the journey alone, while the other remained in London. Therefore he was late, with a clock on his wrist, he could follow both of them unless—Like Boris, he glanced up at the clock, and then to the announcement board of the trains. The Bournemouth train left at 3:30. It was now ten past Whittington and Boris were walking together, talking, and he was giving one doubtful look at them, then hurried into an adjacent telephone box. He dared not waste time in trying to get hold of Tuppence. In all probability she was still in the neighborhood of South Audley mansions. But there remained another ally. He rang up the telephone for Julius Hershelmer. There was a click and a buzz. "Oh, it only the young American was in his room! There was another click, and then "Hello" in unmistakable accents came over the wire.

"That you, Hershelmer? Be-fored speaking, I'm at Waterloo. I've followed Whittington and another man here. No time to explain. Whittington's off to Bournemouth by the 3:30. "Can you get there by then?" "Sure. I'll hustle."

The telephone ring off. Tommy put back the receiver with a sigh of relief. He felt instinctively that the American would arrive in time. Whittington and Boris were still where he had left them. If Boris remained to see his friend off, all was well. Then Tommy fished his pocket thoughtfully. In spite of the carte blanche assured to him, he had not yet acquired the habit of going about with any considerable sum of money on him. The taking of the first-class ticket to Bournemouth had left him with only a few shillings in his pocket. It was to be hoped that Julius would arrive better provided.

In the meantime, the minutes were creeping by. Supposing Julius did not get there in time, Tommy felt cold. Listen as he would, Tommy could only catch a word here and there; but the gist of it seemed to be some directions or orders which the big man was impressing on his companion, and with which the latter seemed from time to time to disagree. Whittington addressed the other as Boris.

Tommy caught the word "Ireland" several times, also "organizer." He of Jane Finn there was no mention. Suddenly, in a lull in the clatter of the room, he got one phrase entire. "I'm onto them. Which of the two is my bird?" "Not any money by you?" Julius shook his head, and Tommy's face fell. "I guess I haven't more than three or four hundred dollars with me at the moment," explained the American.

"Oh, Lord, you millionaires! You don't talk the same language! Climb aboard the lugger. Here's your ticket. Whittington's your man."

"Me for Whittington!" said Julius darkly. The train was just starting as he swung himself aboard. "So long, Tommy! The train slid out of the station."

Tommy drew a deep breath. The man Boris was coming along the platform toward him. Tommy allowed him to pass and then followed him at a judicious distance.

OPTOMETRIST

Located at Boise, Idaho, in 1901. I moved my office to Twin Falls in 1912, and ten years later returned to Boise. But that was before the railroad was assured to Wells, Nevada. The outlook for a greater Twin Falls is better than it ever has been before. I want to be here for the good times coming and expect to relocate my office here. I did the optical work in Twin Falls before anyone else located here and I expect to be here with the rest of you. I have done work for hundreds of people in this vicinity and I will give a FREE EXAMINATION for any of my old patients. I have always given what I call a "live and let live" price, but people often say, "Why can't you make glasses as cheap as they do in the large city?" Well, I can, and I will. There are people who are past middle life, whose eyes are normal and only need a plain magnifying glass, and who, years ago, could go to a drug store and "pick out" a pair of glasses from stock. Drug stores don't keep them in stock now, but I will carry some first quality lenses already ground and put in frames, and I will help them "pick out" a pair, and the price will be reasonable, too. I will arrive Friday, June 21. I will stop at the Perrine Hotel for a few days and hope soon to find a suitable location for an office. The people of Twin Falls have known me for 11 years, so don't let anyone tell you I won't give you the very best service—and it will be at reasonable prices, too. I fit glasses correctly and attend each case one year. Don't neglect your eyes.
