WIFE SUSPECTED IN MURDER CASE

Mrs. Walburg Oesterreich is Held in Los Angeles Jail to Face Charge

LOS ANGELES, July 12 (AP)—Mrs. Walburg Oesterreich, whose wealthy husband, Frederick Oesterreich, formerly a cloths manufacturer of Milwaukee, Wis., was shot to death in their residence in a fashionable district of Los Angeles more than a year ago, was placed in the city jail late today on suspicion of his murder, according to Captain of Detectives George Home.

The first suspicion came after the police had received information that Mrs. Oesterreich had disposed of two automatic pistols of the same caliber as that with which her husband had been slain and after she had been questioned for five hours, during which she is said to have screamed denials of police accusations until her voice became hoarse.

Both boxers received a gale of cheers as Joe Humphreys, veteran announcer, informed the crowd that the Kansas weighed 245 pounds and the man from Argentina 214. Harry Lewis of Newark, who tipped the scales at 195, then was introduced as referee.

None of the official text had arrived before Premier Poincare left his office for the day, but sufficient of the press summary came to permit a number of high authorities to examine the general principles of the address. # RAIL STRIKERS DEFENDANTS IN COURT'S ORDER

Shopmen's Walkout of 1922 is Rehearsed Following Granting of Sweeping Decree of Injunction

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Four hundred thousand employes and officers of the railway shop crafts unions who went on strike in 1922 in protest against a United States railroad labor board decision, today were permanently restrained from interference in any way with the operation of railroads. The injunction is regarded as the most sweeping in American history.

The final decree, which makes permanent a temporary injunction granted by the federal government October 5, 1922, on application by Attorney General Daugherty was entered by Judge James H. Wilkerson in federal court today.

The defendant unions which comprise the railway employes department of the American Federation of Labor, were given 60 days to begin an appeal.

In entering the decree, Judge Wilkerson said that the evidence in the case showed "beyond doubt that it was part of the purpose of those engaged in this combination to carry on the strike by assaults and acts of violence."

Violence Cited.

He then cited numerous acts of violence during the strike and noted that damage to roads during the strike, according to the evidence, was more than $20,000,000.

Referring to the contention of the unions that the temporary injunction was an interference with free speech, Judge Wilkerson declared it a "mistake" to characterize any of the acts of the defendants as peaceful.

The labor board decision which resulted in calling the shop crafts strike July 1, 1922, ordered a wage cut effective that date. For two months leaders of the unions maintained that the strike was being called for each day while railroad heads asserted that the striking men were being replaced without serious interference of the service. Differences, however, sought injunctions restraining interference with the service, and alleged that workers who had replaced the striking men were being interfered with.

Then on September 1, 1922, two months after the calling of the strike Attorney General Daugherty appeared unexpectedly in federal court in Chicago and sought the injunction which was made final in today's decree.

In support of his position, the attorney general declared that the strike was accompanied by violence. The granting of the injunction was opposed by representatives of the shop crafts, but a temporary injunction was granted October 5, 1922.

Agreement Reached.

In the meantime, however, the striking men returned to work on 31 major railroads of the country on the basis of what was known as the Baltimore agreement, an accord which was reached during September, 1922, between representatives of the striking men and representatives of the 31 roads. Under this agreement, the men accepted the wage cut ordered by the labor board and left the question of seniority, which developed into the main point of disagreement, to arbitration. Other roads also came to terms from time to time with representatives of the striking men, but the strike was never officially called off.

The government prepared its case for hearing to make the injunction of October 5 final but just previous to the opening of the hearing, counsel for the shop crafts unions withdrew and the hearing was conducted without opposition by the defense. Seven hundred and twenty-four witnesses testified and the record of the case contains 4000 pages.

LOS ANGELES POLICE TO ENFORCE AUTO BREAKS LAW

LOS ANGELES, July 12 (AP)—Motorists who plan to drive through Los Angeles have been warned not to become alarmed if one or more policemen suddenly appear ahead in the road shouting "halt," because the officers probably do not intend to make an arrest. They may be members of the "auto brake" testing squad, which the police department plans soon to form, and they will only want to test the brakes of the car.

If the brakes are in good condition the policeman will allow to proceed, but if they are working improperly the policeman will drive the car to a shop where the brake will either be adjusted or repaired, the cost of which will be borne by the owner of the car. The squad, which will have other traffic duties including enforcing both pedestrian and automobile drivers, will be modeled after one now successfully operated in New York.

HEAVY DAMAGE DONE BY EXPLOSION OF AMMONIA

Two Persons Severely Burned and Damage of About $500,000 Caused by Fire in Sausage Casing Plant

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Two persons were severely burned, 50 women workers were driven to the street and damage estimated at $500,000 was done today when fire originating from an explosion of ammonia plex in the plant of Wolf Sauer and Heiler, sausage casing manufacturers, swept the two upper floors of the six-story brick building housing the plant.

Ammonia-stricken workers, mostly negroes, were knocked down by the force of the explosion and there was a wild rush for elevators and fire escapes. Officials of the company estimated the total damage by fire and water at $500,000.

GERMAN MONEY SEIZED

DUESSELDORF, July 12 (AP)—Sixty billion marks, consigned from Berlin to private individuals in the Cologne area, were seized by the French today at Vohwinkel. The shipment arrived without declaration, and an investigation is proceeding in an effort to discover for whom it was intended.

Pitcher Plants

The pitcher plants, are for the most part found in bogs. The leaves of all of these, while varying in details of structure, are pitcherlike in shape and modified for the purpose of attracting, catching and digesting crawling or flying insects and a few other animals. Insects, spiders, and the like, are attracted to these plants partly by the brilliant colors of their pitchers and partly by the nectar drops exuded by the honey glands. They move to the lid where the secretion along the outer margin is abundant. From here they step upon the inner surface of the lid and slip the honey on the conducting surface. Upon reaching this surface they waver and slip off and fall into the water detentive region. They find exit impossible on account of the downward projecting hairs. They drown in the water and their bodies are digested by a juice secreted by the glands lining the lower portion of the pitcher cavity.

Running insects such as cockroaches and ants are the principal prey of pitcher plants, but flies and wasps are also caught. A drowned rat was found in one specimen of Nepenthes.—Exchange.

FIRPO WINS BY KNOCKOUT FROM FORMER CHAMP

Terrific Attack on the Jaw Puts Willard Out in Eighth; Johnson Takes McAuliffe's Measure in First

member of Firpo's training camp, and Tom Roper, of Chicago, struggled to a draw, in the opinion of most critics, in a eight-round bout, the first preliminary. Bright opened a cut over Roper's eye in the third round but he was wild and an easy target for Roper's jab. Bright weighed 200 and Roper 180.

Tox Eiskard, promoter of the Willard-Firpo bout, announced during a preliminary that more than 100,000 persons were massed on Boyle's "City Acres" to witness the fray. These figures would make the attendance the largest on record for a pugilistic encounter to date. The greatest previous crowd was 82,000 for the Dempsey-Carpenter match.

Herman Loss
Cliff Kramer of San Francisco outboxed and outgassed "Tiny" Jim Horman of Omaha, in a slashing eight-rounder, the second preliminary. He earned the victory, critics agreed, as the result of a sensation in the closing rounds, having Herman close to a knockout in the sixth.

A six-round bout, the third preliminary, between George West of London and Charles Mackay of Jersey City was stopped in the fourth round to save West from further punishment. Both weighed 160.

The Fight by Rounds
Round One—Firpo came from his corner with a characteristic rush. Willard blocked his right and jabbed with a lead. Firpo landed a light blow to the body. He drove his right again to Willard's ribs. Firpo forced Jess to the ropes and cuffed the big fellow about the head at close quarters. Blood trickled from a cut on Willard's left ear. Jess drove home a right to the side of the head and the bell sounded.

Round Two—Jess carried the fight to Firpo but missed a right uppercut. Firpo landed one in the ribs but was shot with a right. The big Kansas blocked Firpo's attempts to attack his body. Willard's left showed sparkling defensive tactics, blocking Firpo's powerful rights. They were sparing as the round ended.

Round Three—Willard jabbed Firpo about the head at close quarters. The Argentine forced Willard back into a corner with a body attack. Willard's long left stopped Firpo's short as he tried to bore in. Willard seemed content to employ defensive tactics, blocking Firpo's powerful rights. They were sparing as the round ended.

Round Four—Willard jarred Firpo with left to the missed right swing but inflicted no damage. Willard caught Firpo with an uppercut coming in. Firpo bounced from the ropes, landing the shot to the chest. He gummelled Willard about the arena at close quarters and Jess only smiled. Willard was wild with a right and absorbed further punishment about the head. Firpo rained in with both fists landing heavily. Jess rallied and drove Firpo to a corner as the bell rang.

Round Five—Willard sent Firpo's head back with a straight left. He took a hard right to the jaw as they clinched. Firpo was short with his right. They clinched repeatedly as Firpo was blocked in his attempts to reach Willard. The Argentine showed wide sympathies obviously with the big American chorused "Hurrah Jess" as the bell rang.

Work at Long Range
Round Six—Firpo shot in his right to the neck. Willard covered up as he was short with his left. They jabbed lightly at long range as Firpo circled his opponent in search of an opening. Firpo drove rights and lefts to the jaw but failed to shake big Jess. Willard's left stopped Firpo's short. The Argentine's aim was bad with his left but he shot in a right to the body as the gong ended the round.

Round Seven—Willard shot in a hard right that sent Firpo to the ropes. He employed the rabbit punch to the back of Firpo's head in a clinch. Willard shot home twice to the jaw. Firpo's right cut under his right eye. Willard took several blows to the head as the round ended.

South American Wins
Round Eight—Willard came out of his corner to take the aggressive. He landed two left jabs to Firpo's jaw. The latter clinched twice apparently tiring under the relentless pace he had set. But as he came away from Willard he suddenly launched a whirlwind drive to both head and body. Pressing his advantage as Willard dropped, from a jolting right, Firpo rained a volley of rights and lefts to the giant former champion's head. Willard tried to ward off Firpo's drive but his defensive tactics were ineffective. A powerful right straight to the chin sent big Jess sailing back to the ropes. Dazed and groggy he dropped slowly to one knee. He shook his head much as a big mastiff might, as the referee tolled the count. He tried to sit at right angles but not lift his big bulk to his feet. He was lifted to his corner in a daze.

ELECTRICIANS BEAT BANKERS

Hullihan's Wire Nippers Take League Championship from Money Grabbers 5 to 4

Jimmie Hullihan's Electricians won the Twilight league championship Thursday evening, winning a hard fought game, 5 to 4, from the Bankers. It was one of the best games of the season, both teams playing glib edge ball, errors being few and far between.

"Slim" Lyons did the twirling for the Bankers and did a nice job, poor head work in the outfield spelling defeat for him, when the wire nippers made four runs on four hits, two of which should have been caught by the outfielders.

Art Hanak tried to pitch the second game this week for the Electricians and got away in neat style until the fifth, when he lost the location of the plate, and gave way to Laval Zarnan, who stopped further damage.

The first two innings went off in a hurry, neither team being able to get a runner across.

In the third the Bankers sneaked one over, when Lyons singled and moved around to third on two passes, scoring when Putzier failed to get Hanak's throw of Jarvis' roller.

The Electricians did their heavy work the fourth, four hits, one a two-bagger to right by Hanak, and an error counting four markers.

The money jugglers made another in the fifth when Kieffner stroked a double into a triple, and scored on a fielder's choice.

Hullihan's crew made its last run in the sixth. An error by Kieffner, and a two-base hit to left by Webster, decided the work.

The Bankers rang the bell in the sixth when Hanak went wild and passed two men, and allowing Kieffner to hit safely.

Jake Yochem featured with the willow, smashing out three hits out of four trips to the bat.

Fix accepted eight chances at second without an error.

POCATELLO HAS A SNAPPY TEAM

Reports from Invaders Camp Show Railroad City with One of the Best Teams in the State

Pocatello will bring one of the strongest teams in the state when the railroad city ball club tangles with the locals at Athletic park Sunday afternoon, according to Manager Slingerland of the invaders.

Starting behind the bat Slingerland has Dickard, first string catcher for Notre Dame last year. Ross Phillips is slated to do the twirling, with Treasurer, an old time Utah leaguer, at the initial station. Treasurer was one of the best hitters in the Utah State league in 1922, and according to reports is going fine this season.

At second there is Hill, said to be one of the best keystone suckers in the business. Jackson of Pocatello high, is at short, with Pettit taking care of the rollers that stride down to dirt base.

Feldstedt, remembered here last year with the Pocatello high school team, is the lad who hit the ball so hard, it is at short, with Pettit taking care of the rollers that stride down to dirt base.

Roubidoux is in center field, while Frost will take the high ones that drift to right field.

Rupp, an extra pitcher, is also making the trip.

The Pocatello has an enviable record this far this season, having won nine straight games, lost the tenth, and then won the next three.

Even those reports haven't put a damper on the locals, as they are set on a team composed of home players, and will leave nothing untended to gain their point.

The team will practice this evening at 8 o'clock, with White as first, Scilly on second, Kieffner at short, Watson at third, the Twin Falls team will present the best infield that has ever represented the town, that is, a team composed of home players.

In the outfield there is Ostrander, Rile and Hullihan, a trio that will be hard to beat.

Hammer and Don Linville will essay to do the twirling on Sunday, although the management is on the lookout for another good chucker.

Sunday's game will start at 3 o'clock.

JAPS CAN LEASE LANDS

Billing of Los Angeles Judge Permits Rental of Property for Other Than Commercial Purposes

LOS ANGELES, July 12. (AP)—The right of a Japanese to lease land in California for other than commercial purposes was upheld in a decision handed down by Judge Leslie R. Hewitt, of the Los Angeles county superior court.

The ruling was made in the case of the state of California against T. Tagami, Iseaco, and Raymond D. Sepulveda, owners of a tract of land near Fort McArthur, at Los Angeles harbor.

The state instituted proceedings against Tagami and Sepulveda, some time ago, alleging that the latter's lease to the former of land for the establishment of a sanitarium for Japanese, violated the California alien land law.

The state sought to force Tagami to vacate the lease, which was valued at $10,000.

"Everything points to an enormous crop and grain will have to be piled outside if it comes in a rush," he said. "Weather conditions have been ideal."

WARM WEATHER FAVORS CROPS

Moderate Temperatures and Plenty of Sunshine Make for Rapid Growing Conditions

Moderate temperatures, plenty of sunshine and only scattered thunder-showers is Idaho's weather record for the week ending Tuesday—a week that was highly favorable for rapid advance of all farm crops—according to a summary issued by Clinton E. Norquest, Boise, meteorologist for the government weather bureau.

Wheat and barley are well headed and beginning to ripen in southwestern Idaho. In fact, the report says, some of the early maturing fields are ready for harvest. Second crop alfalfa is coming along rapidly. Potatoes, corn, potatoes, sugar beets, cannerly peas, beans—all made satisfactory progress and, so far as reports indicate, no crop is suffering from drought or weather or insect depredations.

Wheat harvest got under way during the week in north Idaho. Cherry harvest was completed in the Lewiston region and apple and pear harvesters were preparing for the fall crop. Potatoes and truck crops were reported generally good in the south east, but considerable disease was showing up in some fields in Bonneville county.

Notes From the Field
Barley, Cassia County: Good week, stacking hay all week; heavy demand for water.
Buhl, Twin Falls County: Moderate weather very beneficial to all crops, belated haying is advancing rapidly.
Twin Falls, Twin Falls County: A good growing week; nearly all hay in stack; wheat and barley excellent; feed cut; corn, beans, and potatoes potatoes advancing fast; cherries ripe.
Rupert, Blaine County: We have had a week of very hot weather, and where the moisture is sufficient corn is making rapid growth; apples, peaches must be hurried to carry the heavy loads of fruit; harvesting of first crop alfalfa is going on rapidly; best and grain crops are coming on in fine shape; vegetables of all kinds are looking fine.

HARDING LAYS RETURN PLANS

Will Travel on U. S. Transport Henderson; Address at New York Probable

ABOARD U. S. HENDERSON with President Harding, July 12, 1923—President Harding will make the trip from San Diego, Cal., to New York via the Panama Colon and Rio Rico on the marine transport Henderson instead of on the shipping board steamer President Harrison and American Legion.
Detailed arrangements for the use of the Henderson were concluded today and announcement was made that the schedule for the return provided for the arrival of the presidential party at New York, August 27. It was considered likely that the president would deliver an address there before proceeding to Washington.
The Henderson today continued on her course across the Alaska coast en route to Seward where she was due to arrive shortly after noon tomorrow. After a short stay there, the party will go aboard a special train and start over the Alaska railroad for Anchorage and Fairbanks.
The chief executive was still undecided today whether to make the three-day trip from Fairbanks over the Richardson and the Alaskan coast the Cooper River and Northwestern railroad to Cordova or to return over the Alaska railroad to Seward and then take the Henderson to Cordova, though weather experts in the state of Alaska did not put in its appearance and the entire day's sailing was over a comparatively smooth sea.

WILL QUARANTINE IDAHO AGAINST BERRY BUSHES

BOISE, July 12, 1923—A rigid quarantine against the importation into Idaho of black currant bushes will be inaugurated soon by State Commissioner of Agriculture Mark Means, it is announced upon the advice of a special committee for the eradication of the white pine blister rust.
The quarantine also will apply to other currants and gooseberry plants. The committee, in its report, states that if the rust became firmly established in Idaho it would be necessary to destroy currant and gooseberry bushes over a wide area. The blister rust recently was discovered near Moscow, Idaho.
The state agricultural authorities have been authorized, through the legislature, to destroy approximately 1,000 black currant bushes in northern Idaho, and pay their owners for them, to prevent the spreading of the blister rust to the nineteen billions of feet of white pine standing in that section of the state. The white pine in Idaho has a stumpage value of $100,000,000.

END OF WARS IS HOPE OF JUDGE

Speaker at Annual Banquet at Women's Club Convention Urges Treaty

PORTLAND, Ore., July 12, 1923—The annual convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, here tonight.
Judge Allen, whose address was delivered at the annual banquet, said that the treaty he proposed should declare that hostilities between the signatories was outlawed.
"We have certain laws about war, but none against war," he said. "There are laws as to how war should be made, but they do not forbid war. Even as the ancient code declared 'thou shalt not kill,' so surely must the modern code declare 'thou shalt not war.'"
Judge Allen's topic was "the supreme challenge," and this, she said, was an appeal to women to exert their influence for the maintenance of ethical standards in national affairs and in business.

National uniform marriage and divorce laws were recommended by the convention in the adoption of resolutions. Devotional singing that congress enact such legislation.
"I do not expect there will be much discussion," said Mary Stewart of Washington, D. C., chairman of the legislative committee, as she introduced her resolution. "A marriage and divorce do not concern this body very much."

Asks Fair Trial of Transportation Act

Consolidation of Railroads is Big Question, Says Engineer at Annual Convention

CHICAGO, July 12, 1923—Give the transportation act a fair trial, and it will in time show its real worth, declared Edwin F. Wendt, construction engineer, Washington, in an address at the annual convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers here.
"Mr. Wendt said that valuation of the consolidation of properties engaged in the service of the public."
"The consolidation of railroads into a limited number of large systems is vitally related to the valuation," said Mr. Wendt. "The interstate commerce commission has held hearings in various parts of the country and this fact indicates that a careful consideration is being made of the important question of consolidation. It has not been determined how many consolidated systems will be finally approved, but public discussion has centered on twenty."
"Where properties are managed efficiently and economically in the public service, it would not seem to be desirable to force them into consolidation merely for the purpose of dividing roads into twenty systems. The subject of consolidation is so great and involves so many considerations that the public interest requires its most careful and extended consideration."

Counts Combined in Contempt Case

Defense Credited with Gaining Point in Proceedings Involving Editor

LAS VEGAS, N. M., July 12, 1923—The case of O. E. Magee, Albuquerque editor, charged with contempt of court, will be decided by District Judge J. J. Leahy here soon after court convenes tomorrow morning. This was decided upon late today when both the prosecution and the defense announced that they rested.
The defense felt that it had scored a point in its advantage when it prevailed upon the prosecution to agree that all the four counts alleging contempt that have been filed against the editor be combined.
The present trial has been upon one count only. Under the new agreement it pointed out, no remaining contempt charges will be hanging over Magee, because of his alleged contemptuous editorials in his paper, the Albuquerque Tribune.
It was agreed also that two charges against former Supreme Court Justice

R. A. Hanna, who is chief counsel for Magee, would be consolidated. One has been set for hearing tomorrow and the other on July 20. During the progress of the trial Hanna was cited for direct contempt by Judge Leahy and this has not been disposed of.

MORE EVIDENCE

Gradually but surely evidence accumulates that the Short Line will begin construction of the Walls-Rogerson line this fall.

There is no reasonable ground for supposing for a minute that there will be more than the necessary time consumed in the investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission...

This is a time for optimistic words and a confident outlook. The new road is going to spell salvation for many a worthy man and not one of us will be benefited materially in more or less degree...

A person interested in traffic safety wants to know why people walking along a highway do not walk on the left instead of the right side.

Some people do walk on the left, because they have figured out for themselves that it is the safest way.

They are away from the dangerous side of the road, and they only have to watch vehicle traffic in one direction, and the easiest direction at that.

It might be a good thing to have this innovation sanctioned in general traffic rules.

FIREPROOF EXPERIMENTING

A new building under construction in Chicago has several unique features. One is the elevator. From the lift reaches the fifth floor, its bottom automatically collapses precipitating its load 60 feet to an especially prepared bed of extra thick re-enforced concrete.

It sounds like the dream-boys of a madman. It is only an experiment building being added to the Underwriters' Laboratory for the testing of fireproof materials and construction.

In spite of its perfectly sane and reasonable purpose, it suggests possibilities for ambitious comedy stars and scenario writers.

(Continued.) "Thank you, Miss Finn." It was Sir James who spoke. "I hope we have not tired you?"

"Oh, that's all right. My head aches a little, but otherwise I feel fine." Julius stepped forward and took her hand again.

"So long, Cousin Jane. I'm going to get busy after those papers, but I'll be back in two shakes of a dog's tail, and I'll tote you up to London and give you the time of your young life before we go back to the States!

"I don't know. I've got the wind up somehow. Keep fancying there's someone following us." The path was now running along the side of the cliff, parallel to the sea.

"That's it!—for sure." Tommy looked at the rock with a kind of agonized passion. "D—n it!" he cried. "It's impossible! Five years! Think of it! Sirs-nesting boys, picnic parties, thousands of people passing! It can't be there! It's a hundred to one against its being there! It's against all reason!"

"Just hows what an almighty fool a man can make of himself. One look at the girl in the flesh, and I was cured!"

Feeling more tongue-tied than ever, Tommy ejaculated "Oh!" again. "No disapproval to Jane, mind you," continued the other. "She's a real nice girl, and some fellow will fall in love with her right away."

"I thought her a very good-looking girl," said Tommy, finding his tongue. "Sure she is. But she's not like her photo one bit. At least I suppose she is in a way—must be—because I recognized her right off. If I'd seen her in a crowd I'd have said 'There's a girl whose face I know' right away without any hesitation. But there was something about that photo—"

At Holyhead, after consultation with the aid of a road map, they were fairly well agreed as to direction, so were able to hire a taxi without more ado and drive out on the road leading to Treadur bay. They instructed the man to go slowly, and watched narrowly to see if he was to miss the path.

"I don't know. I've got the wind up somehow. Keep fancying there's someone following us." The path was now running along the side of the cliff, parallel to the sea.

"That's it!—for sure." Tommy looked at the rock with a kind of agonized passion. "D—n it!" he cried. "It's impossible! Five years! Think of it! Sirs-nesting boys, picnic parties, thousands of people passing! It can't be there! It's a hundred to one against its being there! It's against all reason!"

"Just hows what an almighty fool a man can make of himself. One look at the girl in the flesh, and I was cured!"

you'd think those stitches would have rotted. They look just as good as now."

He Thrust His Hand into the Crevice.

They cut them carefully and ripped away the oakleaf. Inside was a small folded sheet of paper. With trembling fingers they unfolded it. The sheet was blank!

"I've got it! Sympathetic ink!" "You think so?" "I'm trying anyhow. Heat usually does the trick. Get some sticks. We'll make a fire."

removed the papers, then— No, by Jove, that won't wash! They'd have been published at once."

"Sure they would! No, someone's got ahead of us today by an hour or so. But how they did it, I don't know. It's no good arguing about how it was done. The game's up. We've failed. There's only one thing for me to do."

"What's that?" "Get back to London as soon as possible. Mr. Carter must be warned. It's our matter here now before the blow falls."

"I've come to report, sir. I've failed badly." "Carter eyed him sharply. 'You mean that the treatise—' 'Is in the hands of Mr. Brown, sir.' 'Well,' said Mr. Carter after a minute or two, 'we mustn't sag at the knees, I suppose. We must do what we can.'"

"I blame myself. I have been blaming myself ever since I heard this other news." "Something in his tone attracted Tommy's attention. A new fear gripped at his heart.

"Is there—something more, sir?" "I'm afraid so," said Mr. Carter gravely. He stretched out his hand to a sheet on the table.

"Tuppence?" faltered Tommy. "Read for yourself the words danced before his eyes. The description of a green toque, a coat with a handkerchief in the pocket marked 'P. L. C.' He looked an agonized question at Mr. Carter. The latter replied to it: 'Washed up on the Yorkshire coast—near Ebury. I'm afraid it looks very much like you play.'"

"My G—d!" gasped Tommy. "Tuppence! Those devils—I'll never rest till I've got even with them! I'll hunt them down!"

"I'm taking up your time, sir," he said with an effort. "There's no need for you to blame yourself. I dare say we were a couple of young fools to take on such a job. You warned us all right. But I wish to God I'd been the one to get it in the neck. Good-by, sir."

Back at the Ritz, Tommy packed up his few belongings mechanically. His thoughts flew away. He was still bewildered by the introduction of tragedy into his cheerless commonplace existence. What fun they had had together, he and Tuppence! And now—oh, he couldn't believe it—it couldn't be true! Tuppence—dead!

He brought him a note, a few kind words of sympathy from Paul Edgerton, who had read the news in the paper. (There had been a large headline: EK-Y. A. D. FEARED DROWNED.) The letter ended with the offer of a post on a launch in the Argentine, where Sir James had considerable interests.

"Kind old beggar," muttered Tommy, as he flung it aside. "The door opened, and Julius burst in with his usual violence. He held an open newspaper in his hand.

"Get out! You don't really care, do you? You asked her to marry me!" "Oh, get out! You don't really care, do you? You asked her to marry me!"

"Well, I'm darned!" said Julius. "Little Tuppence. She sure was the pluckiest little girl—"

"But suddenly something seemed to strike at Tommy's brain. He rose to his feet. "Oh, get out! You don't really care, do you? You asked her to marry me!"

"Oh, Get Out! You Don't Really Care, Do You?"

"Oh, Get Out! You Don't Really Care, Do You?"

"All right, son," he said quietly. "I'm going. I don't blame you any for what you've been saying. It's mighty lucky if I'm not blasted for it. I've been the most mighty blasted fellow I ever was. I don't blame you any for what you've been saying. It's mighty lucky if I'm not blasted for it. I've been the most mighty blasted fellow I ever was."

"I don't care a d—n where you're going," growled Tommy.

As the door closed behind Julius, he returned to his suitcase.

Where was he going? He hadn't the faintest idea. Beyond a fixed determination to get even with Mr. Brown he had no plans. He re-read Sir James' letter, and shook his head. Tuppence must be avenged. Still, it was kind of the old fellow.

"Easier said than done, I suppose." He went across to the writing table. With the usual perversity of bedroom stationery, there were innumerable envelopes and no paper. He rang. No one came. Tommy fumed at the delay. Then he remembered that there was a good supply of letters in the room.

"The American had announced his immediate departure, there would be no fear of running up against him. Besides, he wouldn't mind if he did. He was beginning to be rather ashamed of the things he had said.

But the room was deserted. Tommy walked across to the writing table, and opened the envelope. It was a photograph of the French girl writing table in Julius Herbolzheimer's attic!

ORIGINAL HOME OF VENDETTA

Family Feuds Began in Corsica, but the People Are No Longer Proud of the Fact.

Corsicans will doubtless welcome the death of the famous bandit Romanetti, but will resent the publicity that it brings them. They dislike having their island famous for its bandits and vendettas, instead of its beauties and its Bonaparte family.

The idea of bandits and blood feuds is as inseparably connected with the name "Corsica" as are bull fights with Spain. The only retribution is the fact that the Corsicans and Spaniards, like most other Europeans, look upon vendettas as a people's right of cowboys and Indians who travel around maddly in flivvers or on horseback and whose favorite amusement is shooting up the town. Instead of living in houses, we are supposed to inhabit monstrous buildings to which the French have given the picturesque name, "skyscrapers."

Now, Corsica once earned its reputation as a land of feuds and bandits. It was the original home of the vendetta, or family feud, and it once was infested with many bandits. So, also, however, were parts of the United States once infested by Indians and roamed over by cowboys armed with six-shooters. But the Corsica of today is inhabited by a race of agriculturists, who raise fruits and olives and make excellent, very heavy wines, which, as a rule, are too delicate to export. Their habits are peaceable and they are a law-abiding folk, who spend a good deal of their spare time playing a game of cards that much resembles poker.

The bandit Romanetti met his death in a manner worthy of his predecessors; but it does not follow for this reason that a revival of banditry has been averted. In the Western village justify the belief in Corsica that the Americans have reverted to the ways of the early frontier and that it is dangerous to go about unarmed—New York Tribune.

Ancient Graves-Found. An important discovery to archeologists has been made almost within the boundaries of Glasgow. No fewer than twelve different burials, all within a small area of ground, were disclosed, some protected by tombs built of massive stones. Each grave had its brightly ornate pottery, some decorated by geometrical incised lines, and at times with work in relief. The pottery, some of which, it is thought, belongs to the late Stone or Neolithic age, about two thousand to two thousand five hundred years before Christ, was arranged in a line through the different sections of the Bronze age until the termination of that age about seven hundred years before Christ. Among the items of personal property of the prehistoric people who were buried there are several tools of flint and other stone, a fine necklace of beads and a bronze ring, decorated with remains of its leather sheath.

The Completed Village. Sipping in a small town, a traveling man said to a prospective customer: "It has been 20 years since I was here last. Many buildings gone up since then."

"No," replied the resident, "none that I know of." "Any new railroads or street cars?" "No."

"Planning any improvements?" "Well," said the traveling man. "I've been all over this country, and this is the first town I have seen that is what you might call actually finished."
