TALK INDEMNITY FOR PRISONERS OF BANDIT GANG

Washington Dispatches Show Approaching Agreement Concerning Payment by China to Captives

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Dispatches received in Washington indicate that the diplomatic corps in Peking is approaching an agreement as to indemnity to be asked of the Chinese government in behalf of the 37 persons captured by Chinese bandits May 6. A figure suggested in the course of the discussion of indemnity in Peking was that each of the persons captured be paid $500 for each of the first three days of captivity and $100 a day for the remaining period.

The foreigners captured by the bandits included eight Americans, several of whom were held until June 13 when general release was effected on an agreement between the bandit leaders and the Chinese government. On the basis of the suggested indemnity payments, those who were not released June 13 would receive approximately $5,000.

Information as to the progress of the indemnity negotiations was available today at the state department, nor was there any definite word to indicate that the figures given above had been finally agreed on and formally accepted by the Chinese government. It is recalled, however, that the Chinese government already has made known its willingness to pay indemnity on any basis which the representatives of the foreign powers decide is fair.

New Mexican Editor is Found Guilty on Seven Counts; Given Year in Jail

LAS VEGAS, N. M., July 13 (AP)—Carl C. Magee, Albuquerque editor, was found guilty of contempt on seven counts in Judge D. J. Leahy's court here today. Four citations had been issued against Magee on the day he denied his responsibility of contempt, one of them containing three counts; one of them two counts and the others one count each. Magee was sentenced to 90 days in jail on each of the four citations, a total of 360 days, and ordered to pay a fine of $1.00 on each count, a total of $7.

Citation is Served

No sooner had court convened for the afternoon session than Magee was served with another contempt citation based upon the editorial in his paper of July 8, in which he referred to his experiences in court and to which state's attorneys took exception. The citation is returnable July 21.

During the noon recess the defense saw an article in the Albuquerque Herald, said to have been written by H. B. Henning, who is here covering the Magee trial, and which attorneys for Magee had not been contemplating.

Standie Next Step

Tonight Magee was arranging himself and laughing with political friends here concerning his next step in the case. It has been estimated that frequently that an appeal to Governor Hinkle for a pardon will be made at an early date, and Magee has agitated a special session of the state legislature to be convened as a court of investigation, having as its object the impeachment of Judge Leahy.

MINING TOWNS OF IDAHO ARE HIT BY FIRES

Thousands of Miners Turn to Fighting Raging Flames Sweeping up West Slope of the Bitter Roots

WALLACE, Idaho, July 13 (AP)—Damage fixed by county officials as $1,500,000 has been done by a fire that sprang up this afternoon in a residence district in the town of Mackay, and, fanned by a breeze that was blowing from the Burke canyon for three-quarters of a mile, destroyed the town of Mackay and the business district of Burke, a neighboring town.

This evening 1,200 persons, it was estimated, had been rendered homeless, the outer workings of the Hecla mine had been destroyed, and it appeared impossible to save the outer workings of the Hercules mine, the largest silver producer in the west.

SPOKANE, Wash., July 13 (AP)—The mining towns of Burke and Mackay, east of Walling, Idaho, are reported destroyed by a fire sweeping up the western slope of the Bitter Root mountains. Wire communication with the Burke district is down. Fear is felt for the lives of tourists on the Yellowstone trail highway, which is believed from meagre reports to be in the path of the flames.

With the business section of Burke completely gone and a large portion of the residence section burning, fire-fighting efforts centered at 4:30 p. m. about district west of canyon above Burke, where the large hotel of the Hercules Mining company, together with the miners' recreation center, was threatened.

Thousands Homeless

A thousand persons are reported homeless in the two towns. Mackay was destroyed. The business section of Burke, the largest hotel of the Hercules Mining company, together with the miners' recreation center, was threatened.

Attempts to block the fire by dynamiting homes, business houses and mine structures proved futile because of the wind.

It was reported that all the exterior workings of the Hecla mine of the world, also the Hercules mine, were blasted. The outer workings were burned. The Bunker Hill-Sullivan mine, said to be the largest silver-lead mine in the world, the Hercules mine, of comparable importance, are in the district. They were protected by divisions of the canyon, however, and were not immediately threatened.

Two hundred school children took refuge in the Catholic church at Mackay when the wind first swept the flames through the town. When flames fell over the top the fast spread of the fire the children were forced to flee the church, as it started to burn above their heads. The children were under the care of priest who maintained discipline. None was hurt.

AND WE TALK ABOUT STABILIZING THE FARM INDUSTRY BY LEGISLATION!

HELP IS NEEDED FOR FARMING IN WEST STATES

Report of Government Bureau Shows Agricultural and Mining Employees Are Much in Demand

DENVER, July 13, (AP)—The monthly report of the United States service Department of Labor issued here shows industrial employment slightly increased with strong demand for agricultural workers, building craftsmen and metal miners.

Summary Given

A summary of the different states, as issued by the service, follows:

Idaho: General: Shortage of agricultural labor noted in the Boise and southeastern agricultural districts of the state, and also a shortage in the building trades, which report an acute shortage of bricklayers and plasterers; this shortage is interfering considerably with building, which, in spite of it, continues active. Lumber companies, operating in northern part of state, are in need of approximately 2,000 lumbermen in woods and mills one month ago, have succeeded in securing workers at rates and camps to meet any immediate future demands. General road building and highway construction progressing with sufficient forces. Considerable apprehension is felt over prospects for securing sufficient farm labor for harvest a definite shortage being predicted for July when harvest begins. It is feared that this shortage may continue to include fruit harvest later on. Railroad repair shops operating with practically normal forces considerable railway track work continues.

Boise: Increased demands for workers in vicinity have resulted in a considerable shortage of common labor for ranch and construction work. Employment is sufficient to absorb any local temporarily released workers. All industrial plants, including sawmills operating steadily.

Pocatello: Employment situation satisfactory and with exception of plasterers local supply of labor sufficient. Building activity consists of numerous dwellings and ten business houses, and is of active approximately 1,000 workers. Conditions are actual construction work will shortly commence on the $9,000,000 American Falls Dam irrigation and power project nearby.

Montana is Exception

Montana: General: Recent influx of labor into the state has materially changed the labor situation in the last four weeks. Labor in many instances is practically balanced by the jobs available. Farm and ranches need approximately 225 workers; smelters 150 workers; railroad 250 track laborers. A considerable surplus of transient unskilled labor exists. Metal mining increasingly active in all districts and a shortage of 1,000 skilled metal (copper) miners is noted in the Butte district. Oil industry and natural gas projects operating to capacity.

Utah: General: Outlook concerning industrial and employment situation good, with the demand for labor in all lines greater than supply, and practically all industrial plants operating full time. Canning factories opened and running overtime. Copper mining exceedingly active and mines, running with increased forces. Highway construction active and work on several federal aid project nearing completion.

Employment Improves

COLORADO: General: Industrial and employment conditions in general continue on a steady and prosperous basis, especially noted in metal mining, agriculture and manufacturing and have resulted in shortages of labor in these industries in active. Increased acreage in agricultural crops and vegetables, and sufficient moisture, there are exceptionally strong demands for agricultural workers—in fact a shortage of several hundred field workers exists, and wheat harvest near at hand will require additional farm hands. Coal mining continues on a part time basis, majority of the mines operating but two or three days per week.

Miners Needed

Nevada: General: A gradual upward trend in employment is noted and is due to increased metal mining principally copper, building, highway construction, agriculture and railroad improvements. A considerable labor shortage is predicted during harvest season. Experienced metal miners are in strong demand, particularly by copper projects in the Ely and Gold Hill districts. Plaster and Borax companies in southern part of state are employing additional workers, due to greater demands for their products in Southern California.

Wyoming: General: Continued and slightly increased activity in all lines of employment, with exception of coal mining. The large construction program of oil storage tanks (steel) and pipelines rapidly progressing in the oil field districts. Strong demand for workers in oil fields and at the refineries, with local supply available. Building continues exceptionally active in the larger unity centers resulting Another $3,000,000 will be spent in the outer harbor. Shallow water will be filled in and three large slips dredged and wharves built to accommodate 13 liners.

WINNER IN BIG SCRAP SEEKING ADDED HONORS

Conqueror of Willard Figures in Talk Concerning Championship Tilt; May Fight Negro Battler First

NEW YORK, July 13, (AP)—Louis Angel Firpo, tireless battler of the Argentine, who added ponderous and aged Jess Willard to his victims last night before a record crowd at Boyle's Thirty Acres, today was looking for more pugilistic worlds to conquer.

A series of conferences, however, during the day failed to bring any nearer his prospective match with Jack Dempsey, and indications pointed out to the probability that Firpo, admittedly still lacking in the finer points of ring science, would have one or two testing matches before he gets a shot at the title.

As a matter of fact, Firpo in the course of a long talk with Tex Rickard this afternoon at Madison Square Garden, expressed a desire to fight Harry Wells, New Orleans negro, who has stood out as a title challenger for more than a year, before meeting Dempsey. The sombre South African, however, expressed no interest in the conflict in which he crushed the comeback hopes of the former champion last night, laconically added that he was ready to fight anybody, any time, any place.

Rickard also conferred at some length with Jack Kearns, Dempsey's pilot, but said that he had no definite match in sight right now, although he hopes to put on another heavy-weight show, either as a further elimination or for the title, around Labor day at Boyle's Thirty Acres.

Firpo Under Contract

Rickard has Firpo under an iron-clad contract for a title match with Dempsey, but under its terms a bout with the champion may be arranged any time before March 1924, or later, if the agreement is extended. Rickard must obtain Dempsey's and Kearns' signatures before binding the fight, but the latter said today the champion would be ready to face Firpo whenever satisfactory terms were offered. The promoter admitted incidentally that he had practically abandoned all idea of staging a championship match between Dempsey and Firpo in the latter's native city, Buenos Aires.

"I think we have the best site for that match right on the river," the promoter said. "There is a possibility that next winter I may have Firpo return to his country for a match or so but the logical place for the big show is right here."

May Fight Wells

Rickard, as well as other New York promoters, including those having boxing concessions at the Polo grounds and Yankee stadium, are likely to bid for a Willard-Firpo match. Firpo's contract with Rickard does not prevent him from accepting offers for matches with fighters other than Dempsey.

Despite the apparent majority opinion among newspaper critics that neither Firpo nor Willard showed to exceptional advantage in their struggle of seven and a fraction rounds, Rickard declared tonight both fighters looked good in his judgment.

Paid admission to the Willard-Firpo fight totaled 75,712, official check by revenue men at Jersey City revealed late today, but Rickard stuck to his last night's statement that the entire crowd numbered at least 100,000.

Many See Fight Free

The difference of about 25,000 between the paid attendance and Rickard's figure was accounted for by the promoter and chiefly by the fact that gate keepers were unable to hold back the storm of thousands at the last minute.

Besides these "gate crashers," he said there were thousands of policemen, firemen, ushers and other officials whose presence did not register in the box office.

Total receipts amounted to $429,970, of which, with the deduction of the federal tax, was reduced to $300,887. Willard's share of the net receipts was 30 per cent, amounting to $117,000, while Firpo's share, 22 per cent, was $85,000. These figures tallied closely with last night's gauge of the "gate."

It developed that both Firpo and Willard went into the battle handicapped by mistakes left a day due to training mishaps. This was pointed to by both fighters in explanation of their apparent inability to do much damage with their left jabs and hooks.

OPEN DOOR IS FAVORED PLAN IN NEAR EAST

American Continues Effort for Equal Opportunity for all Nations; Problem Remedy Sought

LAUSANNE, July 13 (AP)—Joseph O. Grow, representative of the United States, continued throughout today his efforts to have the Near East treaty conform to the principles of the open door, and equal opportunity for all nations. He interviewed Ismet Pasha, the Turkish spokesman, and the chiefs of the other delegations. A general effort is being made to rescue the Near East conference from what admittedly is an exceedingly serious situation. The treaty, they object to the optional rights for British and French companies stipulated in the draft of the protocol on concessions, as inimical to Turkish sovereignty and liable to jeopardize Turkey's economic future. The American representatives want the rights eliminated or modified in accordance with the American views.

The Turkish petroleum company's concession, over which there has been some difference of opinion, chiefly affects the Mosul oil fields. The question of the sovereignty of Mosul which England claims is part of her mandated Iraq territory, has been left by the treaty to private negotiations between the British and Turkish governments, but not reached within nine months the question will be submitted to the league of nations. The United States, claiming the Turkish petroleum concession invalid, has negotiated in vain for three years to secure arbitration of the question, and, pending solution, objects to any alleged rights of the company being ratified by the Lausanne treaty. Under the conference stood with a disagreement between the allies and the Turks both on concessions and the question of withdrawal of allied warships from Turkish waters.

Bushnell is a son of former Governor A. A. Bushnell of Ohio.

They are said to have admitted extorting $10,000 from Bushnell last November.

While here primarily to sound out middle western sentiment toward a Smith boom, it is known that the Tammany Hall chief is ready to insist that the name of the New York governor be placed before the national convention next year. The attitude of leaders from the middle west is expected to be developed at the conference during the week-end.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST WOMAN

Prosecution Claims to Have Sufficient Evidence Against Oesterreich's Widow

LOS ANGELES, July 13 (AP)—Mrs. Walburg Oesterreich, widow of Fred Oesterreich, wealthy clothes manufacturer, who was shot to death in his home here about midnight, August 22, 1922, was in the county jail tonight awaiting a preliminary hearing July 25, on a charge of murder. Mrs. Oesterreich was arrested late yesterday and booked at the city jail on suspicion of murder, but the formal complaint was not issued until after a conference today between representatives of the police detective bureau and the district attorney's office.

At the conclusion of the conference, it was announced that abundant evidence had been produced connecting Mrs. Oesterreich with the killing. After the complaint was served upon her at the city jail, she was arraigned before Justice Clarence LaFollette in the Los Angeles town court and ordered held without bail pending her preliminary examination. The woman has refused to discuss the case since her arrest.

Question Witnesses

Detectives tonight planned to question several additional witnesses who were believed to have important information bearing on the behavior of Mrs. Oesterreich immediately after the shooting. Two witnesses who gave their pistols to dispose of a few days after the shooting have furnished most of the evidence on which she was arrested last night. According to the police, who found the pistols in question were 25 calibre, the same calibre as four empty shells found on the floor of the room where Oesterreich was shot. At the time of the slaying the police were inclined to accept Mrs. Oesterreich's account of the shooting, which was that her husband had been killed by burglars who looked her in an upstairs closet. This closet was locked on the outside when neighbors and police arrived, but detectives suspect she would not have been impossible for Mrs. Oesterreich to have caused the lock on this particular door to snap shut with the key on the outside.

Mr. and Mrs. Oesterreich came to Los Angeles in 1918 from Milwaukee, where Mr. Oesterreich was a manufacturer of aprons. After their arrival he established a factory here. He left his widow an estate said to consist of approximately $237,000 in real and personal property.

Although the police declined to make public the names of the persons who were said to be the authors of Mrs. Oesterreich's alleged disposal of the pistols, the Los Angeles Times will state tomorrow they were J. E. Farber, a faith healer, and Ray Klum, a motion picture producer.

Would Move Sealed Stores of Liquor

Interest in Diplomatic Centers in Proposal of Lord Birkenhead

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Unusual interest was evidenced in diplomatic circles here today in a telegram quoting in part a communication to the London Times, signed by Lord Birkenhead, former lord high chancellor of England, strongly urging that the British government accept Secretary Hughes' proposal for a treaty agreement which would permit the movement of sealed liquor stores in American territorial waters and the search and seizure of suspected run running craft up to the 12 mile limit. While comment on Lord Birkenhead's argument was withheld when the message was referred to the state department officials, it was obvious that they viewed it with great interest.

Civic Workers and Officials of Utah University Plan to Inaugurate Move to Prevent Delinquency

SALT LAKE, July 13 (AP)—Installation of a child behavior clinic at the University of Utah here in the curing of mental and physical defects of children and to furnish instructions for teachers and social workers is proposed by civic workers and department officials of the school of education at the university. Professor Milton Bennion, head of the department of education, declared that such a clinic would serve to prevent childhood delinquency and would aid in bettering conditions for children of the state. He added that the clinic could be used for training teachers and welfare workers who are sent out in the state to handle children.

This was the final scene in the touching tribute paid by the city today to Lieutenant Roth.

The Screen

PICTURE WITHOUT A HERO

Can you imagine a motion picture without a hero—or a Chevy? "Vanity Fair" has none. You may remember that Thackeray's own subtitle for the book was "A novel without a hero." Hugo Bullin gave a literal transcript of the value in his screen adaptation. This does not mean, however, that the men in the pictures are lacking in heroic potentialities. With Harrison Ford and Earle Foxe in the cast this could hardly be the case. Whether you love Becky Sharp, interpreted by Mabel Ballin, or frown upon George Osborne, Rowland Crawley or the faithful Dobbin, will depend entirely upon your own individuality. No choice will be forced upon you. "Vanity Fair" will be the attraction at the Idaho theatre for two days, beginning Monday.

CARAVAN LEADER CALLS FOR MONEY FROM STATE

W. D. Scott Asserts Claim to $439.03 for Expenses of Bringing Idaho's Trucks Across Country

BOISE.—Formal claim against the state for $439.03 was asserted by W. D. Scott, leader of the "modern caravan" from Brooklyn to Roseworth, Idaho, in a letter received by Governor Moore. Scott says the money was promised him for expenses incurred in bringing three state trucks across the country, and if he does not get it an application, he will use every "fair and upright" means within his command to get it. Scott originally promised his claim in the amount of $1100.

The caravan of Brooklynties arrived in September, 1921, to make their homes on the Roseworth project southwest of Butte. Few remained on the project any length of time, and within the past two or three weeks the last of the 28 families who made the trip across in the country in an automobile to make their home in Idaho, left the tract.

CROP CONDITION SETS NEW MARK

Prospects for Bounteous Harvest Best in Five Years, Canal Manager Declares

"Condition of all crops in the Twin Falls country is better than in many previous seasons at this time since I have been here," J. C. Wheelon, general manager of the Twin Falls Canal company, declared Friday upon his return from the vicinity of Bull-Hill...

Diversification Helps

"Diversification of crops and the increasing practice of applying irrigation water on the basis of 'crop period' rather than on 'second feet' are a boon to this region," Mr. Wheelon asserted. "Assuming that every farmer of this area of 220,000 acres were producing the same crop, all requiring a full head of water at the same time, it is very doubtful whether either the water supply or the distribution system would be adequate for the demand," Mr. Wheelon explained.

Resignation Declined

In reply to a question, Mr. Wheelon stated that he had declined the question of his resignation as general manager to the canal company directors at a meeting last March. "I felt that it might be to the best interests of all concerned if I were to get away for a while," Mr. Wheelon said. "The directors took the matter under consideration and some time later advised me that they were unable and, as a unit, unwilling to name a successor to my position. I agreed then," Mr. Wheelon added, "that I would remain here as general manager as long as the stockholders expressed by their choice of directors at their annual elections, their confidence in the present administration of the office."

MINING TOWNS

canyon east from Wallace, the center of the Coeur d'Alene silver-lead mining district, Burke and Nace were little more than collections of frame store buildings and miners' boarding houses built around the big wooden structures which housed the machinery for a number of big ore producing companies.

One woman was seriously injured while moving furniture from her home. This was the only casualty reported tonight.

Miners at work in the Hecla and Hercules mines had moved from shafts of the outer works when the shafts were swept away by the flames and it was believed that none of them was entrapped. Besides the mining properties, among the most valuable of the buildings taken by the fire, the structures burned including the Tiger hotel, Burke, the boarding house of the Hecla mine, the Idaho Wholesale company's general store, the Burke Drug company and the Canyon Drug company, the A. Berglund clothing store, food restaurants, a motion picture theater, the Northern Pacific and the Oregon-Washington railroad and Navigation company depots and some seven or eight hotels.

Furniture Burned

It was in these latter structures that many of those now homeless lived. Frantic efforts were made by the miners and their families in removing some of their household goods, but they could not work rapidly enough to save much from the flames. First reports were that the fire, like the disastrous conflagration which visited Wallace in 1910, had been started by a forest fire, but it was quite well established tonight that it originated by a chimney fire in a dwelling house in Macca.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 13 (AP)—Plans for the reception of President Harding of the United States when he visits this city July 26 were considered complete tonight with the reception of word that Colonel E. J. Chambers, gentleman usher of the Black Rod, had left Ottawa to assume charge.

An address of welcome on behalf of Canada by Premier W. L. Mackenzie King has been handsomely embodied. It is to be read to President Harding by J. H. King, minister of public works. On arrival of President Harding's party a reception will be given in a military and naval setting. A huge popular lunch will follow.

As the transport Henderson, bearing the presidential party, approaches the city, it will be welcomed by members of the Royal Canadian air force. A detachment of Royal Canadian mounted police will escort the eminent visitor to Stanley park, the city's principal recreation tract, where the official greeting will be expressed.

Lundin Acquitted on Fraud Charges

Noted Figure in Illinois Politics is Freed of Conspiracy by Chicago Jury

CHICAGO, July 13 (AP)—While a surging crowd of court room spectators staged a noisy demonstration, Fred Lundin, picturesque figure in Illinois politics, was acquitted by a jury today of conspiracy to defraud Chicago schools of nearly $1,000,000. With the former congressman and political associate of former Mayor William Hale Thompson, were acquitted 15 co-defendants, including Edwin S. Davis, former president of the school board under the Thompson administration, and Albert S. Everingham, former vice president of the board. The jury which had been hearing the case since June 4, rendered its verdict after deliberating a little more than four and one-half hours. Despite warnings from the bench, there was an subdued cheer as the first verdict of not guilty was read, but died quickly under the glare of Judge Charles A. McDonald.

TOO MUCH WHEAT

Not long ago the world was hungry for wheat, and eagerly absorbed all that America had to offer...

There is a hold-over of two hundred million bushels of last year's wheat in this country...

A situation like this naturally remedies itself eventually. Farmers, after losing on any crop for two or three years, plant less of it...

"We had suffered much—enjoyed much—in the making of this picture, and yet we were only imitators of the acknowledged heroes of the West."

There is considerable justice in this plea. The public undoubtedly takes too much for granted the risks run by the makers of moving pictures in their lavish attempts at realism.

Nevertheless, they remain imitators. The "acknowledged heroes" who preceded them in mountains and plains had no comfortable homes to return to when work "on location" was over...

CLEVER TRICK SAVED LIFE

Presence of Mind and Command of Mimicry of Various Value to English Woman.

An English lady, traveling alone in South Africa, once offended a Kaffir chief, and only her wonderful presence of mind saved her from paying for it with her life.

After four hours unbroken journey she had ordered a bait for the mules. Her driver, a faithful Kaffir boy, begged her not to stop. She insisted, however, and it was while they were enjoying the cool afternoon air that she caught sight of stealthy figures among the scrub of the hill over which they had just come.

Capture and death were in store for her, for against six armed men she had only her revolver and a lad of seventeen.

She racked her brain for a way of escape, and in a flash she thought of a trick she had once read of. The hill literally swarmed with lions on account of the abundance of game about these parts...

From out the bush, from east, south and west, came the growling call of the males, and, shouting instructions to the boy, she flew back to the cart.

In record time the mules were harnessed, and they dashed off, away to the north, at top speed. Fortunately the wind-blame from the north, and the lions, baffled in their search for their prey, made no attempt to pursue them.

Instead, they turned their attention to the Kaffirs who were caught like rats in a trap and it is doubtful if one of them escaped a terrible fate.

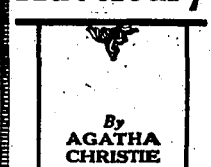

Royal Jewels Found. Montenegro royal jewels and valuable documents of state—buried when the late King Nicholas fled for his life—were dug from a garden in Cetinje recently. The royal cache, six feet under ground, contained four cases of priceless gems and several boxes of state documents...

They were rather triumphant in their attitude toward her, this group of eight men, who were being led together. She, by the way, is a very capable business woman, and she ignored all their threats at her spinster state, until one of the women, in a feline way, said: "Oh, well, Mary, if you haven't a wedding ring, you have four lovely diamonds. Shall we have them concealed?"

"Oh, you'll have to judge of that for me," Mary laughed back. "Since four of you married the men who presented them to me, you're more capable than I am of determining whether they shall be called consolations or rewards."

Speedometer Flashes Danger Light. An important automobile accessory, described and illustrated in Popular Mechanics Magazine is designed to reduce the hazards of speeding by flashing a signal light on the dial board as soon as it exceeds an predetermined speed limit. The instrument may also be adjusted to flash at a speed slightly under the desired limit, and then to cut out the ignition automatically when the limit is reached.

CHAPTER XIV

In Downing Street.

The prime minister tapped the desk in front of him with nervous fingers. His face was worn and harassed. He took up his conversation with Mr. Carter at the point it had broken off.

"I don't understand," he said. "Do you really mean that things are not so desperate after all?"

"So this lad seems to think."

"Let's have a look at his letter again."

Mr. Carter handed it over. It was written in a sprawling boyish hand.

"Dear Mr. Carter: 'I think I know who the real Jane Finn is, and I've got an idea where the papers are. That's just a guess, of course, but I've a sort of feeling I'll turn out right. Anyhow, I enclose it in a sealed envelope for what it's worth. I'm going to ask you not to open it until the very last moment, midnight on the 28th, in fact. I've figured it out that those things of Tuppence's are a plant too, and she's no more drowned than I am. The way I reason is this: as a last chance they'll let Jane Finn escape in the hope that she's been shamming this memory stunt, and that once she thinks her free will get away to the cache. Of course it's an awful risk for them to take, because she knows all about them—but they're pretty desperate to get hold of that treaty. But if they know that the papers have been recovered by us, neither of those two girls will be worth anything as a purchase. I must try and get hold of Tuppence before Jane escapes."

"I want a repeat of that telegram that was sent to Tuppence at the Ritz. Sir James Peel Edgerston said you would be able to manage that for me."

"One last thing," he said. "I've got a house. I've got it out that those things of Tuppence's are a plant too, and she's no more drowned than I am. the French girl, Annette, who saved his life. "What? "Exactly. The discovery was a providential one. Of course, from the moment that the girl in Manchester was proved to be a plant everything was altered. Young Beresford saw that his himself, without my having told him. But he felt he couldn't trust his judgment on the subject of Miss Cowley. That brought us back to the telegram."

"Yes? "I advised him to apply to you for a copy of the original wire. It had occurred to me as probable that, after Miss Cowley flung it on the floor, certain words might have been erased or altered with the express intention of setting searchers on a false trail."

Carter nodded. He took a sheet from his pocket, and read aloud: "Come at once, Astley Prior, Gatehouse. Rent, great developments—TOMMY."

"Very simple," said Sir James, "and very ingenious. Just a few words to alter, and the thing was done. And the one important clue they overlooked."

"What was that? "The page-boy's statement that Miss Cowley drove to Charing Cross. They were so sure of themselves that they took it for granted he had made a mistake."

"At Gatehouse, Beresford is now?" "Oh, I know who he was," said Sir James easily. "I can't prove it yet—but 'Well? "Carter shrugged his shoulders. "I couldn't get much. Young fellow about thirty-five—poorly dressed—face very badly disfigured. He was never identified."

"The man fancy that the two matters are connected in some way? "Somehow I do. It may be wrong of course."

"The other two asked no questions. They had an instinct that it would be mere waste of breath."

"What I don't understand," said the prime minister suddenly, "is how that photograph came to be in Mr. Hereshelmmer's drawer? "Perhaps it never left it," suggested the lawyer gently.

"Two days later Julius Hereshelmmer returned from Manchester. A note recovered by us, neither of those two girls will be worth anything as a purchase. I must try and get hold of Tuppence before Jane escapes."

were running riot. Newspapers were getting agitated. Sensational hints of a labor coup d'etat were freely reported. The government said nothing. "New and was departed."

"Tommy felt that thanks to Mr. Carter, he understood the position fairly accurately. With the fatal document in the hands of Mr. Brown, public opinion would swing to the side of the labor extremists and revolutionists."

Falling that, the battle was an even chance in the government's hands. The army and police force behind them might win—but at a cost of great suffering. But Tommy nourished another and a preposterous dream. With Mr. Brown unmasked and captured he believed, rightly or wrongly, that the whole organization would be annihilated in an instantaneously. That strange permeating influence of the unseen chief held it together.

"This is a one-man show," said Tommy to himself. "The thing to do is to get hold of the man."

That evening he and Albert once more entered the grounds of Astley Prior. Tommy's ambition was somehow or other to gain admission to the house itself. As they approached cautiously, Tommy gave a sudden gasp.

On the second floor window some one flung between the window and the light in the room from a silhouette on the blind. It was one Tommy would have recognized anywhere! Tuppence was in that house!

He clutched Albert by the shoulder. "Stay here! When I begin to sing, watch that window!"

Tommy stepped hastily to a position on the main drive, and began in a deep roar, coupled with an unsteady gait, the following ditty:

I am a Soldier, I am a Soldier by a Jolly British Soldier; You can see that I'm a Soldier by my...

It had been a favorite on the gramophone in Tuppence's hospital days. He did not doubt but that she would recognize it and draw her own conclusions.

Presently an unimpeachable butler, accompanied by an equally unimpeachable footman, came from the front door. The butler remonstrated with Tommy. Tommy continued to sing, addressing the butler affectionately as "dear old whiskers." The footman took him by one arm, the butler by the other. They ran him down the drive, and neatly out of the gate. It was a very perfect decorum. Anyone would have sworn that the butler was a real butler, the footman a real footman—only, as it happened, the butler was Whittington!

Tommy retired to the inn and waited for Albert, who came at last that wayward and sad appearance.

"Well?" cried Tommy eagerly. "It's all right. While they were a-running of you out the window opened, and something was chucked out. He handed a scrap of paper to Tommy. "It was wrapped round a letter-weight."

On the paper were scrawled three words: "Tomorrow—same time."

"Good egg!" cried Tommy. "We're getting going!"

Tommy retired for the night in a state of some elation. He had elaborated a careful plan for the following morning. He was, however, a little nervous, his calm was rather shaken.

He was told that some one was demanding him in the bar. The applicant proved to be a rude-looking carter well coated with mud.

"Well, my good fellow, what is it?" asked Tommy.

"Might there be for you, sir?" the carter held out a very dirty folded note, on the outside of which was written: "Take this to the gentleman at the inn near Astley Prior. He will give you ten shillings."

The handwriting was Tuppence's. Tommy appreciated her quick-wittedness, and he was glad to see her staying at the inn under an assumed name. He unfastened it.

"Dear Tommy: "I knew it was you last night. Don't go this evening. You'll be lying in wait for you. They're taking us away this morning. I heard something about Wates—Holmes, I think. I'll drop this on the road if I get a chance. Annette told me how you'd escaped. Buck up."

"Yours, "TWOPEPNOE."

Tommy raised a shout for Albert. "Pack my bag! We're off!"

"Yes, sir." The boots of Albert could be heard rapping upstairs.

Behind did that mean that after all—Tommy was puzzled. The boots of Albert continued to be active on the floor above.

Suddenly a second shout came from below. "Albert! I'm a d—d fool! Unpack that bag!"

"Yes, sir."

Tommy smoothed the note thoughtfully. "Yes, a d—d fool," he said softly. "But so's some one else! And at last I know who it is!"

BOLT IN STORM HITS KIMBERLY DISTRICT HOMES

Lightning Strikes in Kitchen at S. M. Burkhalter Residence; Tears Board Off Side of J. D. Glenn Dwelling

Two farm houses on the highway east of Kimberly were struck by lightning during a brief thunderstorm in that vicinity Saturday afternoon.

In the home of S. M. Burkhalter, one and one-half miles west of Kimberly, the lightning bolt entered the kitchen through the roof.

At about the same time the home of J. D. Glenn, less than a half mile east of the Burkhalter home, was struck by lightning and several boards torn off the side of the house.

Lightning during the storm struck the power lines, causing a momentary break in the current between Kimberly and Hansen. Three transformers on the circuit were burned out.

Heavy rain accompanied the storm and so many trees were blown down that Chautauque tent at Hutton, and interrupted a performance in progress at the time. Some fields of grain also are reported to have been laid flat by the force of the rainfall.

The thunderstorm apparently was confined to the vicinity of Kimberly and Hansen. Reports to the power company offices here tell of no other damage elsewhere.

County Wins Suit on Hospital Water

Court Rules City Must Not Serve Other Consumers to Institution's Injury

Twin Falls county won its suit in district court here Friday to compel the city of Twin Falls to furnish adequate water supply to the county-general hospital.

Justice W. A. Babcock issued an order making permanent the injunction obtained by the county against the city at the conclusion of a hearing in which testimony and arguments were offered by the county, city and Twin Falls Natorium company.

The injunction restrains the city from serving other consumers from this main to the detriment and injury of the hospital.

Application for an injunction to restrain the city from serving others to the detriment of the natorium company, made verbally by its attorney, Homer C. Mills, was denied by the court.

County Shows Injury. Counsel for the county introduced testimony of O. E. Cantlon of the present board of county commissioners.

Parish and T. E. Moore of the former board of commissioners, and Miss Selma Johnson, superintendent of the hospital, showed that the water main in question was built at the county's expense to serve the hospital; that other users were being served from the main without the obligation which the county must fulfill and one that it is not unwilling to fulfill, and it brings order to a situation in which there has been too much confusion.

The result of the suit is not unsatisfactory from the standpoint of the county, according to City Attorney A. J. Myers, who with Mayor Shad L. Reddin, presented the city's case at the hearing. The court's decision, Mr. Myers said, makes clear the obligation which the city must fulfill and one that it is not unwilling to fulfill, and it brings order to a situation in which there has been too much confusion.

Sues Directors of Defunct Buhl Bank

Idaho Finance Commission Holds Officials in Iowa Liable for Losses

In an effort to recover from J. W. Huiward and O. C. Griffin of Vinton, Iowa, directors of the defunct Citizens' State bank, a total of $38,215.18, suit will be instituted in United States district court for the Cedar Rapids division, Iowa, by E. W. Porter, Idaho commissioner of finance, in charge of the assets and affairs of the Buhl bank.

The complaint in the case will be taken to Iowa by Frank L. Stephens, of the firm of Houtz, Stephen and North, representing the state commissioner, who will leave here Saturday morning for that purpose. Porter is acting on the theory that the directors are liable for payment of certain claims against the bank because of their exercise of independent duty. Griffin, it is alleged, has never been in Idaho, and neither of the accused officials, it is asserted, has properly exercised his duty as a director of the bank.

Claim is made against the directors for payment of $38,215.18 as the amount of their respective independent duty. Griffin, it is alleged, has never been in Idaho, and neither of the accused officials, it is asserted, has properly exercised his duty as a director of the bank. LAD'S TROUBLES MULTIPLY

Either Carter, Awaiting Trial on One Charge is Picked up for Alleged Violation of Speed Limit

Trial in the case of Elmer Carter, aged 23, charged by the prosecuting attorney with failure to contribute to the maintenance of a minor child, was continued Friday because of the inability of Probate Judge O. P. Duval, who is confined to his home by an attack of rheumatism, to hear the case. Carter, according to the complaint filed in the case, is the father of the child in question, although not married to the mother. Elmer Carter was not taken in custody but was released upon his own recognizance when he appeared voluntarily in court to inquire into charges filed against him. Trouble kept coming Carter's way Friday when he was arrested by Traffic Officer Quigley on a charge of exceeding the speed limits. At his request hearing on the speeding charge was set for Thursday next, and in default of $200 bail required by Police Magistrate E. D. Davis, who also is Carter's attorney, he was held in custody in the city jail. Bail was furnished Friday evening by Carter's parents.

Boys in Shoshone Basin Camp to Share Alike in Pleasure and Discipline

Donald McLean, head of the camping department of the newly organized district Scout council, announced that the Scouts of four Twin Falls troops will leave for their training school for Scouts at the Shoshone basin camp. An invitation has been extended to Scouts of all the other cities of the council, and it is expected they will participate in the training school for Scouts at the Shoshone basin camp. Camp board for the ten days will be five dollars per Scout.

Transportation and other expenses will be met by the Twin Falls Scout organization. A competent cook will be employed, although each Scout will be given opportunity to practice camp cooking in camp. Menus will be open for a few moments after each noon and evening meal, where the Scouts may purchase not more than ten cents worth of candy or other articles. The camp will be allowed to camp, and Scouts will not be allowed to bring extra provisions, etc., as the plan is to have everyone in camp share alike. F. Douglas Hawley, Scout executive, states that there will be over 200,000 Scouts in organized camps in America this summer, many of the camps having been held in California in the past. Many of the county and district councils will have Scouts from six to a dozen or more communities mingling together in camp. The main object of the law in camp there is to bring about a better feeling between the boys of various communities. Camping has become a scientific training school in the study of the problems of life, and is giving hundreds of thousands of boys a better understanding and respect for nature and each other.

SEARCH FOR OIL IS PROMISING

Operator in Goose Creek Encounters Hard Rock Believed Top of Dome

At a depth of 650 feet in a well he putting down in the vicinity of Oakley for the Goose Creek Oil and Development company, composed of Pennsylvania investors, who are interested in the exploration of that field, D. P. Carpenter has encountered a hard sandstone formation which he regards as a probable dome under which oil will be found.

So hard is the formation that a 1000-pound bit used in the drilling operations was broken, and was brought here to the Lawrence shop to be repaired. Mr. Carpenter believes the broken bit is the first of the work and returning Friday morning to resume work on the bore. Mr. Carpenter's optimism over the prospects for discovery of oil in the well is shared, he said, pretty generally by residents of the Oakley district as well as by persons who are familiar with oil development operations who visited the scene of activity. In the vicinity of the well on which work is now in progress, Mr. Carpenter says that a well was drilled to a depth of 2200 feet, encountering a sandstone flow at that depth, which, he says, would have held back any oil that might be beneath it. The log of the first well is said to be an exceptionally favorable one.

On Conservative Basis. Mr. Carpenter is now prepared to sink the second well to a greater depth than that of the first, and has money on the ground for the purpose. Operations are being conducted as economically as possible, only two men being employed in the work which was begun this spring. The drilling so far, Mr. Carpenter says candidly, is pretty largely exploratory, but the indications are such as to give rise to bright hopes on the part of experienced oil men—and Mr. Carpenter, like his father before him, has made oil development his life work and that of the first years of the most important fields of this country.

Wheat Growers of Mid-West Hard Hit

C. N. Beatty, Whose Lambs Topped St. Joseph Market, Discusses Conditions

Wheat growers of the Missouri river valley are heavy losers this year as a result of low prices and deficient yields, according to C. N. Beatty, who returned here from a tour of inspection in the West received the top prices on the market for seven carloads of lambs. Other woolgrowers of this district, who shipped their lambs at the same time, topped the market at Omaha. Alternating floods and drought, together with the depredations of insect pests, have cut the average yield of wheat in the Missouri river valley to between six and eight bushels per acre, Mr. Beatty said. In some instances growers are cutting their crops with mowers and taking it up for threshing. Corn crop conditions throughout this region are rather more favorable but spotted, Mr. Beatty said. Cold, wet spring weather has necessitated several plantings, in some instances several times. Fat hogs are coming on the market in record breaking volume. In one day, Mr. Beatty said, $5,000 hogs were received at Chicago, while the total for all the principal market centers of the region for the day was more than 100,000. Receipts at Omaha that day were the largest in 10 years. The market dropped 40 cents under the avalanche of shipping. Growers are marketing their hogs and taking their losses, because hogs are ready for market and the growers can better afford to sacrifice them now than to continue feeding them 85-cent corn, Mr. Beatty said.

Arrival of Idaho lambs in numbers on the markets which they topped, caused a decline of about 50 in the price to Mr. Beatty and other producers themselves as being well satisfied with the results. Others who shipped from here at the same time included was Lincoln, William Noh and White brothers.

IDENTIFICATION SOUGHT. Assistance of the sheriff's office here has been enlisted in an effort to identify a boy found murdered in a field near St. Joseph, Mo., June 27, and those who were traveling with him. Circulars received here bear the lad's picture and the following description: Age, 10 to 12 years; height, 47 to 50 inches; height 5 feet 7 1/2 inches; light complexion; face freckled; blue eyes, light hair; scar on first joint of left thumb; scars on four inches long on right elbow; wore blue lamp suit; tan trousers underneath. He was seen in Niles in company with strangers.

Auto Topics Short Circuits A short circuit not only means diminished power but is a probable cause of fire. Perret out a "short" as soon as you have any reason to suspect one. It pays in lower battery upkeep, increased power, and may save your car from total loss by fire. There are other common causes of fire, some of which cannot be easily detected.
