FORM PLANS TO ADVANCE GRAIN PRICE

Buying Campaign Started at Omaha; Farm Bureau Head Seeks to Withdraw 200,000, 000 Bushels from Market

OMAHA, July 20 (AP)—More than eighty of Omaha's business men, including bankers, manufacturers, merchants, professional men and farmer representatives, met in an organization meeting here today and adopted a program which is intended to enlist the aid of every housewife in America. The new slogan given sanction is "Buy a barrel of flour." This byword was added to that of "buy a thousand bushels of wheat," with the idea of helping grain growers get obtain higher prices for wheat.

That the plan is a step in the right direction to remedy the farmers' ills was further asserted in a statement issued by Charles S. Barrett, national president of the farmers' union, who discussed the subject with the business men here.

"The movement is excellent and if the business men will take some of the wheat off the market and keep it off until the proper time comes to put it on," the union president declared, "the plan will be a great success and will tide the farmer over." Mr. Barrett, however, warned that the farmer will have to solve his own problem in the end and be aided by lower freight rates.

CHICAGO, July 20 (AP)—A plan to withdraw 200,000,000 bushels of wheat from the market and store it on farms until prices advance, was announced today by O. E. Bradford, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The farm bureau plan provides for financing the project under the new intermediate credit act, by which Mr. Bradford estimated $300,000,000 could be made available to lend to farmers for storing their surpluses. President Bradford estimated that $100,000,000 would be ample to store 200,000,000 bushels of wheat and thereby remove it from the wheat a dollar market.

President Bradford declared that farm wheat bins under the intermediate credit act, might be designated as government bonded warehouses for which bonded warehouse receipts could be issued against wheat stored on the farm. In this manner, he asserted, the grower would be enabled to borrow through the intermediate credit system up to three-fourths of the market value of his wheat with the warehouse receipts as collateral enabling him at the same time to hold his wheat until prices advance and it became advisable to sell.

Bureaus to Assist.

The farm bureau federation, President Bradford said, expected to advance its plan through its 46 state farm bureaus including 1,300,000 members in cooperation with the commodity marketing associations and the country banks. The Wichita, Kansas, intermediate credit bank, he declared is already advancing $100,000 a day to

KLAN OBJECTS TO PUBLICITY

Haggood Articles in Magazine Hit Tender Spot in Plans of Secret Organization

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP)—Asserting that the International Magazine company, Inc., publishers of Heart's Magazine, printed a series of articles by Norman Haggood which were based on records unlawfully taken from the office of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in Atlanta, the Klan today asked the federal district court to stop publication of further klan articles and to order the return of the papers.

According to the complaint, the papers were taken from the office by Rhodes McPhall, a clerk, who through Samuel N. Castleton of Atlanta and Louis B. Olavis, sold them to the International company for $3,000.

The purpose of the purchase, it asserted, was to discredit the klan with the public and to discourage prospective members.

Birth of Babe on Ship Precipitates Amusing Situation

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP)—A six days old baby, whose mother and father are Polish and whose ancestors for generations back have lived in Poland, was detained at Ellis island today because it was born on the Lapland, a British ship, and the British quota is filled. According to authorities the baby, because it was born on the Lapland, is as British as Tommy Atkins, despite its ancestry and the fact that its last name is Przygo.

The mother, Mrs. Sophia Przygo, will wait at Ellis island with her two other children to see if some special dispensation cannot be arranged.

Then she will go to Clifton Heights, Pa., to join her husband.

CYCLE PLANE IS NEW AIR DEVICE

Inventor Claims Foot-Powered Machine May Rival Motor-Driven Aircraft

DAYTON, O., July 20 (AP)—Air flight by foot power in a device called a cycle plane, the latest invention in aeronautics, was demonstrated at McCook field here Thursday when Lieutenant W. F. Gerhardt, aeronautical engineer at the field, flew a distance of 20 feet under the cycling power of the operator.

Gerhardt terms his contrivance a "scientific curiosity" on which he has been working for six months. The machine, according to Gerhardt, is not a government development, but belongs solely to him.

While the flights were not for a great length of time and were not sensational, the inventor claims that the principles involved in his machine can be successfully incorporated in a machine which will be capable of great heights and speed.

Flow Short Distance

The "cycle plane" in its longest flight flew about 20 feet at a distance of three inches above the ground, which the inventor declared was sufficient proof of the principles involved.

Operation of the "cycle plane" is by means of a chain and pedal arrangement somewhat similar to that of a bicycle. As soon as the machine

INVESTIGATION OF PROHIBITION BODY IS URGED

Grand Jury Indicts Anti-Saloon League Official; Anderson Alleges Plot to Put Wet Governor in White House

NEW YORK, June 20 (AP)—William H. Anderson, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, today was indicted on several counts, and the grand jury which returned the indictments recommended legislative investigation of the league since Mr. Anderson took its helm in 1914.

Three indictments, two charging grand larceny in the first degree and one forgery in the third degree, were handed down today. Assistant District Attorney Peckra announced, the jury also had voted two indictments charging extortion and that these would be filed Wednesday.

Mr. Anderson, on hand when the indictments were handed down, pleaded not guilty before his counsel, former Governor Charles S. Whitman, could speak. After the dry indictments had been released on $5,000 bail, he issued through his publicity department, a long statement which began:

"I shall wear a medal of honor and a service badge for my indictment for political purposes by the most corrupt and powerful wet political organization in the world as part of the Tammany conspiracy to put the nullification governor of New York state in the White House in defiance of the conscience and character of the nation."

The first grand larceny indictment charged that Mr. Anderson feloniously obtained $4578 from the league in March of 1921.

The second grand larceny indictment alleged he feloniously obtained $1750 on February 3, 1921.

The forgery indictment set forth that he had falsely ordered $5400 to be entered in the league's books in March, 1921, as the hotel and traveling expenses of G. Bernard Phillips, a collector for the league.

Grand jury investigation of Mr. Anderson's handling of the league funds was pressed after he had steadfastly refused to be more specific concerning the expenditure of $24,700 than to state that it had been used "for publicity purposes."

"The additional grand jury of the

Disappearance of "Phoenix" Upsets Earl's Honeymoon

CHICAGO, July 20 (AP)—Three has ever been a crowd, and "Phoenix," prize German police dog of the Earl of Northesk, apparently realized this. As a result the Earl, married last night, amid much publicity, to Miss Jessica Brown, former chorus girl, spent the first day of his honeymoon hunting for his dog.

The earl, his bride and the dog started for a walk today. The moment they left their hotel Phoenix broke his leash and dashed up Lake Shore drive, the earl in hot pursuit. Phoenix, snatched by injured vanity, soon outstripped his Scotch master. Three policemen spent three hours touring the north-western coast in a search for the dog, while the earl and his bride in another automobile made a personal hunt. Phoenix had not been found tonight.

Collision Splinters Wheel of One Machine While Heavier Automobile Gets Off with Crumpled Fender

None of the occupants of either car suffered any injury. Responsibility for the accident was not determined.

Judge Sinclair announced that each side would be allowed three and a half hours to present its case to the jury and arguments began immediately thereafter.

CAN MAKE CIDER WITHOUT PERMIT

Government Allows Manufacture, But Alcoholic Fermentation Is Tabooed

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—Manufacture of cider and other non-intoxicating fruit juices is authorized without the formality of applying for a permit under regulations issued today by Commissioner Blair of the internal revenue board, but persons who make them must add preservatives to prevent "alcoholic fermentation." Fruit juices may not be lawfully used, the regulations stipulated, for beverage purposes after becoming intoxicating.

Under a ruling superseded by the present regulations, the manufacture of fruit juices having not been held responsible for any natural action of the liquid.

The new regulations define "preserved sweet cider" as that in which alcoholic fermentation has been prevented by the addition of "acid" in the proportion of not less than four to four and one-half ounces to each barrel of fifty gallons or by immediate sterilization. The presence of four per cent of acetic acid will be considered as changing the cider to authentic vinegar.

With regard to the home manufacture of non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices the regulations say "Any person may manufacture cider and fruit juices for use exclusively in his home without obtaining permit or giving bond. Such manufacture need not be done at the home of the producer, but such person may take his apples or other fruits to a custom or commercial mill and have the juice expressed and removed to his home, but such removal must be accomplished immediately after the juice is expressed.

"If the non-intoxicating cider or fruit juice so manufactured is intended for beverage use, it must, if intended for other than immediate consumption, be so preserved and put up as to prevent further alcohol fermentation. The processes by which fruit and vegetable materials are prepared for winter use are familiar to most housewives and it is expected that the same care will be exercised in sterilizing and bottling cider, grape juice, etc., as is done in the case of the other preserving operations mentioned so that such juices will not when consumed for beverage purposes be found to have fermented or fermented so as to become intoxicating."

Prohibit Dried Fruits

The use of "dried fruits, dandelions, rhubarb, etc., for the production of the fruit juice" covered in the regulations is specifically prohibited. Provision is made, however, for the issuance of a permit to the head of a family intending to produce in any one year not to exceed 200 gallons of fruit juice, other than cider, any part of which may ferment so as to contain as much as one-half of one per cent of alcohol by volume." Such householders is required to apply to the internal revenue bureau for the regular formal permit "at least five days before commencing operations."

Warning is given that any persons selling unpreserved sweet cider, even though it is not intoxicating at the time of sale, to be consumed after an illegal alcoholic content has developed, "is guilty of violating that section of the prohibition law which deals with the sale of alcoholic beverages."

Once Noted Outlaw Leader Felled by Bullets from Ambuscade; Troops Seek Assassins; Government Probes

EL PASO, Texas, July 20 (AP)—Three members of the band of bandits responsible for the death of General Francisco Villa, his secretary, Miguel Trillo, and two bodyguards were captured late today by a detachment of federal soldiers under command of General E. Martinez, a short distance from Parral, according to information received at Juarez military headquarters tonight.

MEXICO CITY, July 20 (AP)—General Francisco Villa, one-time bandit leader, and his chief of staff, Colonel Miguel Trillo, and three members of Villa's escort were assassinated in an ambuscade early this morning on the outskirts of Parral, in the state of Chihuahua.

About half a dozen men comprised the band of assassins. They fired on Villa and his men from a house they were passing and are reported to have escaped from the scene.

Villa was driving an automobile on the way to Guanajuato. As soon as the news of the assassination reached here officers were sent to search the countryside adjacent to the ambuscade in an endeavor to round up the guilty persons. The body of Villa is lying in the city hall at Parral, where thousands of persons have viewed it. President Obregon has ordered an investigation into the assassination.

Major General Eugenio Martinez at Chihuahua City has sent to General Francisco Serrano, secretary of war, an official report he received from Colonel J. Felix Lara, commander of the garrison at Parral, in connection with the killing of the former noted rebel leader. The report follows:

Five Killed.

"Villa, Trillo and three members of their escort were killed shortly before 10 o'clock this morning with precision, while Villa and his companions were driving an automobile, which Villa personally was piloting toward Guanajuato, a suburb of this city. The shots were fired by six or seven men posted in a house on the roadway.

"I immediately ordered an investigation in cooperation with the civil authorities. I have learned that these, armed with 30-30 rifles, fled from the house on horseback in the direction of Santa Clara through the hills.

"General Martinez reported that military detachments had left Jimenez and Villa to handle on the trail of the murderers. He added that he personally was leaving for Parral.

The report of Colonel Lara seems to indicate that earlier unofficial reports of Villa having been killed by his own followers were without foundation. Likewise it disposed of one report that the shooting occurred while Villa was leaving a train.

Had Many Enemies.

Villa had many enemies, and probably hundreds of men have sworn to take his life. He had no enemy as bitter, according to his friends, as Francisco Herrera.

Herrera hated Villa not without cause. Villa is claimed to have practically exterminated the Herrera family, at one time prominent in the military and political circles of Mexico.

Villa in 1914, had two generals who

SOUTH IDAHO'S OIL PROSPECTS ARE MINIMIZED

Slender Hope for Success of Prospecting Operations Is Seen by Federal and State Geologists

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, July 21.—A discussion of the possibilities of securing a commercial supply of petroleum or natural gas in south western and central Idaho is contained in a preliminary report of a reconnaissance conducted by the United States geological survey in co-operation with the Idaho bureau of mines and geology. The investigation was made by John P. Burwilda, and the report is issued by the state bureau.

The area examined comprises that part of southwestern Idaho known as the Snake river valley and includes many of the tributary valleys from a point 15 miles northwest of Weiser on the west to Raft river and Goose creek valleys in south central Idaho.

Regretfully Unfavorable.

"The outcome of this investigation," says Dr. Burwilda's report, "is regretfully an unfavorable judgment regarding the possibility of securing a commercial supply of petroleum or natural gas in the part of southwestern and south central Idaho examined. Although structures occur which would presumably be satisfactory, the sedimentary formations are practically all of non-marine origin, and although it is conceivable that fresh water formations might originate petroleum, the absence of authentic cases in which they have done so, and the lack of true oil seeps in the region under examination, reduce to rather slender proportions the hope for success in oil and gas prospecting in these areas."

Copies of the report may be had upon application to the secretary of the Idaho bureau of mines and geology, Moscow, Idaho.

An excerpt from the report says: Mountain Home-Gooding-Twin Falls. The vast area of relatively flat country extending eastward from Boise, including the Mountain Home, King Hill, Gooding and Pheehone districts, and the large area south of the river usually referred to as the Twin Falls country, do not appear to include extensive exposures of sedimentary rocks. Sections seen in the walls of the canyon through which the Snake river flows indicate that these regions are underlain with lavas mainly. The thickness of the lavas is not known to the writer, but so far as he is aware these large areas exhibit none of the favorable indications ordinarily expected in promising oil territory.

Goose Creek. Goose creek lies about 35 miles southeast of Twin Falls. Before conversation into a reservoir the creek drained northward through a north-south depression underlain, according to A. M. Piper, by a basement of cretaceous or early tertiary granite intruded into a thick series of metamorphosed sedimentary rocks. The tertiary rocks comprise an underlying series of stratified sediments, a basal massive rhyolite, a later series of stratified beds consisting chiefly of volcanic ash and intercalated and capping sheets of rhyolite, and in a few places a capping of still later basalt.

Some drilling for oil has been done in the Goose creek basin, but prospects of finding oil in commercially quantities at any depth are not believed to be favorable. The paleozoic rocks are extensively faulted and crushed and have no semblance of a structure favorable for the accumulation of petroleum. Moreover, they have been intruded by granite more recent than petroleum could have originated in them or migrated into them. The conditions in the tertiary rocks are also unfavorable. These rocks consist largely of volcanic debris stratified in fresh water, whereas all known occurrences of petroleum are from fossiliferous beds deposited in salt water. The structure of the tertiary rocks is also unfavorable for the accumulation of oil because any folds that the rocks may have contained have been broken by normal faulting.

Raft River. This area lies about 15 miles east of the Goose creek area, and like it is a north-south valley between similarly trending ranges. It is drained by Raft river, which like Goose creek, flows northward to the Snake. The area of particular interest examined lies between Almo and Yost, the latter being a postoffice in Utah near the Idaho line. The valley, several miles wide, contains quite a thick section of tertiary strata of the same general type as those exposed on Goose creek, and largely of volcanic origin. The beds have been warped somewhat, and apparently have been cut by a fault along the east side of the valley in which another fault was observed near the west side of the valley. It is probable that the valley is essentially a graben or slice of the earth's crust several miles wide which has dropped down between faults along its margins.

At the time of visit, H. E. Wilkinson of Boise and his associates were actively drilling near the middle of the valley. This well was carried down

ABOVE is shown the Russian peasant, Vassily Terentovich Petrov, who cheerfully admitted, in Moscow, that he maintained a regular schedule of at least two murders a week for more than two years. His Russian nickname is "Ivroschik Komarov," meaning Mosquito Cabman.

Lo a reported depth of 500 feet but no petroleum was encountered. The structure of some parts of this valley is unfavorable and it also lacks the type of marine rock which is ordinarily regarded as essential as a source of petroleum. The strata are largely volcanic ash and could scarcely be expected to generate crude oil. Older limestones occur in the range to the east, and it might be considered that they pass under the tertiary strata and act as a source of petroleum. The strata are considerably metamorphosed and it is quite unlikely that they still retain petroleum, even if they ever held it. One is forced to confess that the conditions are unfavorable for expecting a producing oil well in Raft river valley.

BANKERS FINISH FINAL BUSINESS

Election of Officers and Selection of Meeting Place Mark Closing of Convention

CLEVELAND, O., July 20 (AP)—An address by former Secretary of Agriculture E. T. Meredith of Des Moines, Iowa, the election of officers and the selection of Baltimore for the 1924 convention were the high spots of the closing sessions of the twenty-first annual convention of the American Institute of Banking here today. The convention ended with an informal dance tonight.

As was predicted, Clarence E. Chancey of Minneapolis was elected president and Edwin V. Krick of San Francisco vice president. Both were nominated without opposition.

Mr. Meredith spoke on agriculture, and its relation to other interests. He also referred to the recent Minnesota election which has been touched on by several other convention speakers, attributing its result to lack of attention on the part of the public to problems of the farmer.

Farmers Not Radical

"I do not believe the farmers of Minnesota are any more radical than the farmers of Ohio," Mr. Morrill said. "They have the same ideals, tastes and ambitions and they took this means of showing their displeasure of present high production costs and low returns for their crops."

The bankers were urged to study agriculture and to have a greater interest in farmers.

"Bankers and business men generally are not aware of the efforts being made to increase production of crops and livestock through scientific means and to lessen the loss through war waged against insects

Must Fight Crop Pests

"They do not always consider what it means to the nation and to finance in particular to save $200,000,000 by protecting the cotton crop against boll weevil. But the government is working along these lines and I hope that the appropriation for such funds will be increased."

Besides electing a president and vice president, the bankers chose the following executive committee members for three-year terms: William Folek, New York; Ralph D. Spaulding, Chicago; W. J. Evans, Dallas, Texas; George S. F. Bartlett, of Boston.

Bees Never Sting Some People.

Jack Beater asks this question in Adventure Magazine. He says:

"I never had much fear of bees even as a kid. One Fourth of July when I was about fourteen, I experimented with several bee hives and some cannon crackers. The operation is simple. Slip up to the hive and insert the cannon crackers in the main entrance, light, and run like —. Only I forgot to run. Well, the bees came out of the hive all right and I believe, they stung every one within a half-mile but me. Why?"

"Another time I was raking a hayfield with a two-horse rake, one of those wide affairs. The rake raked up a nice-sized nest of ground bees. The field was fenced and the gate was barely wide enough for a team to pass through. The team passed through all right, but the hayrake and I didn't. No air, we stopped real sudden like. The horses were a mass of bees and I was very well covered myself. There were bees on my neck so thick I had to claw them off. But not one stung me. Why?"

Limit of Dissatisfaction.

The troops had been marching through a sea of mud for hours, when at last they were lined up for inspection before a general.

In the evolution a young cavalryman who had recently enlisted was thrown from his horse into the mire from which he emerged in a dreadful state, though uninjured except in his feelings.

The general himself, who had witnessed the incident, rode up, and, preserving his gravity with some effort, inquired of the trooper if he had suffered any hurt from the fall.

"No," was the disgusted reply. "But if I ever love a country again, you can kick me!"

Classified advertising is the cheapest you can buy—measured by the profits it may bring you.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, one of the leading and most reliable newspapers of America, recently conducted an unique experiment.

With a view to getting at the facts and with no effort to spare expense, The New York Times carried forward a scientific investigation designed to settle once and for all the question as to which class of newspaper, morning or evening, was most widely circulated and read.

The result was interesting although not unexpected.

The investigation showed that 57 per cent of newspaper readers read seven Morning Newspapers, while 42 per cent of readers read 10 Evening Newspapers.

Had but seven evening newspapers been used instead of 10, the percentage of readers of morning newspapers over those of evening papers would of course have been correspondingly greater.

THERE are only about one-third as many Morning Newspapers in the United States as there are Evening Newspapers, yet the position of each in its field is invariably of commanding importance.

Probably there are as many readers of one class of publication as the other, the country over, but because of the fact that the evening class outnumber the morning class two to one, the latter has always led.

The result of the investigation, as before stated, was interesting but not unexpected.

THE truth of the conclusions reached is borne out in the newspaper situation in every State in the Union.

IMPOSSIBLE TO RESUME TRIP, MAUGHAN SAYS

Further Mechanical Trouble Discovered in Airplane, Precluding All Chance of Continuing on Long Flight

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., July 20 (AP)—Further flight in the airplane piloted by Russell E. Maughan, army aviator, until he was forced down here yesterday on the fourth leg of his proposed ocean-to-ocean daylight flight, is impossible in its present condition and to repair the motor would require an indefinite period, Lieutenant Maughan announced here tonight.

An investigation by mechanics at the air mail field here where Lieutenant Maughan landed because of leaking oil revealed that the plane would not leave the ground, it was announced. It previously had been planned by the army flier to make a test flight in the plane, if possible, late today.

Reporting the condition of the machine to the army air service officers at Washington, Lieutenant Maughan declared in his report that the investigation showed that not only was the oil cooler leaking when he was forced to abandon the flight, but that water was flowing freely from the cylinders and was mixing with the oil.

Cockpit Flooded
More than an inch and a half of the fluid had flown into the cockpit beneath his seat when he turned the plane around 20 miles east of Rock Springs and headed back toward the air mail field here. Lieutenant Maughan pointed out that either the water leak or the oil leak would have been sufficient to cause him to be forced down had he continued the flight.

Expert mechanics who investigated the plane reported that Lieutenant Maughan succeeded in reaching Rock Springs with the plane in the condition that it is.

Asserting his belief that the army flier could not have flown more than a mile further in his flight without having been forced to land, O. E. Stutzman of McCook field told the Associated Press that the plane was in "a terrible condition," and to repair its motor might require several months.

Water Leaked
In his report to the air service at Washington, Lieutenant Maughan, who was advised today that he should return to McCook field for instructions, asserted that just before the termination of the flight he was losing a quart of water minutely, while the oil was pouring out at a rate of about two gallons an hour.

The aviator expects to be in Rock Springs for several days, possibly a week, awaiting the decision of Washington officials to send either a new motor to be installed in the plane or have him return to McCook field by other means.

Lieutenant Maughan said tonight he was surprised to read newspaper accounts that he was "sick" or "nearly semi-conscious" as the result of oil fumes when he landed at Cheyenne, Wyo., yesterday. "That is the first I know about that," said the lieutenant smilingly after glancing at a newspaper.

The aviator explained that it had been his pre-arranged policy to lie down and rest at each of the intermediate terminals established for the flight while his mechanical troubles or did repair work on the plane.

Was Second Attempt
After making his landing at Rock Springs yesterday the lieutenant asserted he asked his mechanics for their views on whether the flight could be resumed, and when they backed up his judgment, believing the plane was hopelessly out of commission for the present, he definitely abandoned the flight, the second he attempted within 10 days.

Lieutenant Maughan reiterated tonight that he was prepared at any time authority is given to make another attempt to fly across the continent in a day.

WHITE SOX LOSE SPIRITED RALLY TO TAIL ENDERS WINS FOR GIANTS

Red Sox Take Close One from Chicago; Macken Pound Brown Hurlers; Indians Lose

CHICAGO, July 20 (AP)—Bill Piercy settled down after an untidy start and held Chicago afloat in the pinches while his mates bunched hits off Ted Blankenship and tied Chicago's early lead in today's game with Boston. Boston won in the eighth, 5 to 4, when Flanagan doubled off Leverage, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Reichel's sacrifice fly.

ST. LOUIS, July 20 (AP)—Pounding four St. Louis pitchers had Philadelphia defeated the Browns today, 9 to 6. Extra base hitting featured the contest. Williams, who has been out of the lineup with an injured foot, returned today and hit a home run with none on base in the fifth inning. Miller duplicated the feat in the sixth.

last bunched 15 hits off Ruether and Schreiber today, defeating Brooklyn, 11 to 4, and making the series stand two to one in favor of the Reds. Ruether had poor support. Rixey kept the locals' hits well scattered until the ninth when the Dodgers bunched four singles with a pass and an error, three runs. Caveny hit a homer, with two on in the seventh, when the Reds scored six runs.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20 (AP)—Mitchell won a hurling duel with Kaufmann today, giving Philadelphia a 1 to 0 victory over Chicago. With two out in the ninth and a runner on third, Hoke hit the wall in the right field for a single that won the game. Mitchell allowed but five hits and fanned five batsmen.

PHIBATES LOSE TO BEAVES.
BOSTON, July 20 (AP)—Genevick's piping, aside from home run driven by Geoch and Russell, with one on base each time, was good enough to enable Boston to defeat Pittsburgh today, 8 to 5. Traynor failed to hit safely after 21 consecutive games.

Moving Day in Northern Virginia.
Among the volunteers who fought in the first battle of Bull Run was John A. Logan, then a member of congress from Illinois and later a major general and a senator from Illinois. As soon as General Logan saw that there was going to be some actual fighting near Washington he left the capital, got hold of a musket and walked all the way to Bull Run. There he joined Colonel Richardson's regiment and though he was in ordinary dress stood his ground as valiantly as anyone—and longer than most. In the end, however, there was nothing for him to do except to join the retreat. He found himself back in Washington the next morning.

Going up to the capitol, he was soon surrounded by a score or two of congressmen to whom he was describing incidents of the battle and of the rout. "Who told you about all this?" asked one congressman who had come up too late to hear the beginning of Logan's story.

"Why, I was there myself," was the reply.

"You were there?" exclaimed the congressman. "Why, were the cars running out that way?"

"No," said Logan with a grim smile. "The cars were not running, but everything else in my vicinity was."—Youth's Companion.

IDAHO FALLS TO MIX WITH LOCALS

Snappy Contest Looked For when Easterners Invade Twin Falls on Sunday

The best workout of the season is the way the Twin Falls players put last evening's practice preparatory to Sunday's game with Idaho Falls. Every member of the team was out and the way the infield worked bodes ill for the visitors.

Idaho Falls will come here Sunday with the firm expectation of annexing the game, as they are confident that they have the better team. If Idaho Falls has a better club than the locals boast, then the fans will see a game worth going miles to see.

In all probability Don Linville will occupy the hilltop Sunday, with Harry Hite behind the bat. This will be Harry's first attempt this season behind the plate, but the fans remember his work of two years ago and feel confident that he will repeat in Sunday's clash.

In health the visitors also have one of the best backstops in the business, and with both teams going at top speed

JOHNSON SAYS PEOPLE MUST TAKE CONTROL

United States: Will "Go to Pieces" Unless Voters Take the Reins, Victor in Senatorial Election Declares

KIMBALL, Minn., July 20.—"Unless the people get control of the government through the farmer-labor party, or other similar organizations this country will go to pieces," declared Magnus Johnson, United States senator-elect from Minnesota, in an address here tonight.

It was not Governor Pears who was beaten in the recent election, he contended, but the republican party was such.

Regarding statements published in newspapers attacking his education, he said he "had more education now than Henry Ford."

growers under this plan, with prospects for applications totaling a daily peak of $2,000,000, the money being loaned at 5 1/2 per cent.

The withdrawal of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat from the markets and locking it up under government seal in farm warehouses, President Bradford said, will have an immediate effect on prices.

"When wheat sells for one dollar a bushel is a national tragedy in America," his statement said. "It is tragedy not only to the farmer who grows the wheat at all, but also to the consumer, the business man and the laborer, who must ultimately depend on that farmer's wheat dollar for their continued happiness and prosperity."

The American Farm Bureau Federation believes that cooperative marketing is the ultimate solution to the national wheat crisis. It is now at work on a national cooperative grain marketing policy, being formulated under instructions from our members. Under this plan the growers of the nation will, in effect, place their grain in a common pool and will merchandise it in an orderly way over the consumption period, instead of dumping it on an already overloaded market during the four months following harvest. Cooperative marketing of wheat unquestionably will solve the price problem to the benefit of both producer and consumer.

The plan, except in a few sections, is not ready to function as yet, he said, adding that the new intermediary credit law was in effect, however, and urging the secretary of agriculture to designate warehouses on farms as government bonded storage places. He allowed the farmer to market his wheat in orderly manner and still be provided with sufficient capital to carry on his business.

Has Gift of Silence.

The moss-grown statement about women having the last word and the frequent allusions to their love of conversation come in for serious consideration when the record of Miss Reba Hurn is considered. This young woman was elected from the Seattle district to the Washington state senate, and, with the session over, she has adhered rigidly to her resolution not to deliver a single speech during her first term in the body.

She has, however, been extremely busy on several committees and has earned the reputation of being one of the most useful legislators in her state. So splendid an impression did she make on her associates that at the close of the session they present her with a platinum and diamond pin, which seems to indicate that in Washington at least silence is something else besides golden.

In Seattle Miss Hurn has the reputation of being a capable and successful lawyer.—New York Herald.

His astonishment was supreme when, instead of crashing into a cooling pond, he splashed through five panes of greenhouse glass and settled on some cucumber plants underneath. He resumed his flight more frightened than hurt.

VILLA MEETS DEATH

Whether ex-President Woodrow Wilson, who now lives in Washington, has bought this old Virginia homestead, located near Fairfax, Va., his native state, remains a mystery. The mansion, about 10 miles from Washington, has been the property of A. C. Edmondson, and whether he has bought it for Wilson to confirm the report, which grows daily. The house and 250 acres of land are valued at $125,000.

Melchor, who was former mayor of Juarez, was killed mysteriously on the border. Circumstances were suspicious and friends of the Herrera family blamed Villa. This was in the latter part of 1914.

Melchor's father, Jose de Luz Herrera, and a younger Herrera were killed in a graveyard in Parral on Easter morning in 1915, and executed. Villa was blamed for this.

Francisco was the only male member of the prominent family left and swore revenge, it is said. Only last year Villa revoked protection of the federal government from Herrera and his followers. Herrera is a government official at Gomez Palacio, Durango, not far from Parral.

The government, local officials say, will question the possibility of Herrera's friends taking up the old feud for him.

It has been said often on the border that Villa has asserted that Mexico must not and would not have another president from Sonora. He is now a general in the army, and it is believed that he is planning to return to Sonora to shed light on the killings.

Francisco ("Pauchito") Villa, guerrilla chieftain and bandit leader in Mexico for more than 10 years, declared that he had ended his career of outlawry in August, 1920, when, at the head of 900 followers, the remnant of what had once been an army of 35,000 men, he entered San Pedro, Coahuila, and amid the cheers of the populace, announced the intention of himself and men of accepting amnesty and settling down as farmers.

A few weeks earlier, Villa had surrendered to federal forces at Sabinas. He then declared his adherence to Provisional President de la Huerta and General Alvaro Obregon. Later elected president to succeed Carranza. Before capitulating, Villa demanded and was granted by the Mexican government, one year's pay and a small farm for each of his men, a grant equal to $2,000,000 gold.

One of the most notable escapades of Villa was his raid on Columbus, N. M., on March 6, 1916, in which he and his followers killed 17 Americans. It resulted in a punitive American military expedition under General Pershing crossing the border and maintaining "hot" relations with the people which lasted more than nine months and cost the United States government, according to a war department estimate, nearly $100,000,000.

Killed Americans. In a battle at Parral, American troops were ambushed and a number killed. On March 31, however, the bandit's followers were defeated at Guerrero. The American were successful in a number of other skirmishes and penetrated so far south in Mexico as to meet the constitutionalist troops of Carranza, who, ostensibly, were also in pursuit of the renegade Mexican leader.

Villa, wounded, but always eluding his pursuers, lived in a Chihuahuas mountain cave for five weeks. It was located in the center of a perpendicular cliff which rose 150 feet from a brook on the level plain below and from this point Villa said he often watched the American troops. Many times he was seen to smile. "The American army's withdrawal from Mexico Villa renewed his deprecations. On April 4, 1916, he was indicted for first degree murder at Deming, N. M., on account of the Columbus raid.

"They call me a bandit and the worst man in Mexico," declared Villa when he was welcomed to San Pedro, Coahuila, "but I would preserve our nationality. I surrendered because further fighting in Mexico meant intervention by the United States. It is time for peace." In a manifesto he praised the good faith, honor and patriotism of Provisional President de la Huerta, and declared it was his purpose to show the Mexican nation that he and his men could "build as well as destroy."

The former bandit went with his family from San Pedro to Las Niveas, Durango, to "settle down" on his farm there and shortly after wrote to de la Huerta for school books and supplies. Villa was said to have been deeply affected by the death of a daughter in San Antonio, Texas, a month after his surrender. Sixteen of his men, who were among a number captured by Pershing and convicted of various offenses were pardoned by the governor of New Mexico in November 1920.

The first real tragedy in Villa's life occurred when General Felipe Angeles was executed as a revolutionary by Carranza troops in 1916. Villa admired Angeles, not only as a patriot and soldier, but regarded him almost as a father. He wept bitterly when he received word that Angeles had been shot. He threatened reprisals and later aided in the overthrow of the Carranza regime.

Villa's real name was Doroteo Orango. He was born in 1868 of poor parents in the little mining town of Las Niveas. As a youth he followed the trade of butcher until the death of his father and then he and his mother and sister went to western Chihuahua. There he became a cowboy. Many stories have been told as to how he became an outlaw, but the one most generally accepted is that it was because he killed a captain in one of President Diaz's regiments. Diaz then placed a price on his head. It was at this time that he changed his name to Villa. He organized a band of outlaws and became a terror to the rich land owners and mining men of northern Chihuahua. He was robbing and sharing the spoils with his followers and the impoverished peasants.

Became Leader. When the Madrovo revolution against Diaz occurred in 1910, Villa became a military leader in that movement. At Mexico there was a revolt by Victoriano Huerta. He was condemned to death by a military court for insubordination. Madrovo saved his life. Villa later escaped and fled across the Texas border.

Huerta became dictator after Madrovo's assassination in 1915, and when Carranza revolted against Huerta in Coahuila Villa re-entered Mexico to fight for Carranza and organize a campaign against the man who had imprisoned him. He was flocked to his standard and he is said to have gathered an army of 35,000 men.

Villa's first great victory against the Huerta troops was at Ojinaga. After the battle 4000 men and eight generals of the Mexican army took refuge in the United States and were interned. In other fights, including San Pedro, de las Colonias, Parral and Terreon, Villa was also triumphant. Then came an estrangement between Carranza and Huerta when the latter made his triumphant entry into Mexico City, following the retirement of Huerta, the bandit leader declared war upon the new president. Villa had been one of the independent chiefs who had made and formulated the plan of Guadalupe, which made Carranza first chief of the constitutionalist forces.

Occupied Mexico City.

With Emilio Zapata, another bandit chieftain opposed to Huerta, Villa made common cause. The two occupied Mexico City with their troops, forcing Carranza's retirement to Vera Cruz. General Alvaro Obregon, later successor to de la Huerta to the presidency, and loyal to Carranza, led an army out to meet them. At Colima Trujano and Cihua he defeated the Villa-Zapata forces. In this battle, Obregon lost an arm and Villa lost his prestige as a commander. The Villa and Zapata forces were dispersed. One division followed another and Villa retreated to the mountains to Sonora where he joined with the Yaqui chief, Juan Urbabejo.

Influence Waned. In the years that followed, and up to the time of the Columbus, N. M., raid, Villa's influence as a military leader steadily waned. Defections from Villa's ranks continued, many of his generals leaving him and accepting the amnesty of the Carranza government. Villa sent his wife across the border, and with only a few hundred men resumed the bandit raids for which in earlier years he had been notorious.

Then came the overthrow of the Carranza regime. The rise of the de la Huerta provisional government and the election of Obregon, Obregon had proved Villa's master in the field. On May 27, 1920, three federal forces started out to capture Villa and the following July, as 8000 men were closing in on him, he agreed to an armistice and surrendered to General Enrique Marquez at Sabinas, practically on his own terms.

Rite of Old Superstition. Ceremony consisted of dropping melted wax into water and diving by the forms the wax assumed in cooling. It is a very old rite, but it was only introduced into Europe in the Seventeenth century; yet the primitive mind still subsisting in man at once seized upon the tea-grounds as a means of foretelling the future, as that same mind had seized upon the melted wax thousands of years before.

The Gentle Art. All anglers are gentlemen, regardless of their business calling, appearance, personality or companionship. When a man—fisherman or no fisherman—develops into an angler he must first become gentle in order to be of the gentle art.—From "The Dated Angler and the Brook Trout" by Charles Bradford.

The "Roaring Forties." The term, the "Roaring Forties," in nautical parlance, denotes a stormy region of the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans, lying between 40 degrees and 60 degrees south latitude. It is characterized by analogy to a rough part of the Atlantic ocean lying between 40 degrees and 50 degrees north latitude.

A HOPEFUL EDUCATOR

A retiring school superintendent in a middle western town closes his forty-four years of service as an educator with expressions of hope for American education.

"I see improved attitudes in the public, in the teachers, in the students and in the homes," he says. "I have seen a revolution in the field of education, and I am sure the tendencies now are most hopeful."

"Too many trials, too much superficial skimming with too little real education, wrong educational ideals and wrong methods, are among the criticisms that are frequently hurled at schools in this country today. It is therefore well to consider this reasons given by an experienced educator for believing that there is more good than bad in present-day education.

"We are making education more scientific because we are seeking cause, defining purposes, adapting means to ends, measuring results, making inferences from statistics and establishing research centers. There is a constant re-definition of education. Perpetual readjustment spells progress."

Teaching is again being recognized as a real profession. The public is showing more willingness to increase educational budgets and to take an interest in the making of budgets.

"This educator does not boast perfection of schools. He simply points out that they are meeting many of the needs of humanity and will continue to meet them if present tendencies are developed.

"LAW-NOT WAR" The ninth anniversary of the outbreak of the World War is approaching. Citios in thirty-six states, all over the country, are planning to make their observance of the day a plea for the ending of all war. Their slogan is "Law-Not War."

Joining in such observances are organizations advocating specific programs such as the Permanent Court of International Justice and the League of Nations offer, and also other groups interested only in the substitution of law for war, by whatever means may be found workable and suitable.

Eighteen other nations will hold simultaneous demonstrations against war.

Easy Life Draws College Students Away From Concentration on Study

Too little sleep, too much play, not enough study, too much leisure; fast eating and diversified thinking are factors that "divert" students and are responsible for the "delinquent groups" found in every university, according to a report made public by Professor Delton Thomas Howard of Northwestern university.

In Northwestern alone, out of 1,635 students in the college of liberal arts, Professor Howard has found a "delinquent group" of 265 composed of 169 men and 96 women. In other words, he points out, 16 out of every 100 students do not "pass." But delinquency does not necessarily imply lack of intelligence, the professor found.

"Intelligence High" "No result of our study," the Northwestern professor writes, "is more significant and interesting than the discovery that the average delinquent group is quite as high as that of the general student body."

Students found to be delinquent are not on probation at Northwestern and have to "make good" or be dropped from the roster.

"The probationers," the investigator reports, "devote more time, as a whole, by their own confessions, to athletics, social activities, outside work, leisure, than do the freshmen; meals, classes and studies."

WORLD'S SPEEDIEST TRAIN AVERAGES 61 MILES AN HOUR

LONDON, July 20 (AP)—The fastest train in the world is now running between London and Swindon, a distance of 77 1/4 miles, which it covers in 75 minutes, traveling at the rate of 61.8 miles an hour.

This is one of five trains announced in the summer schedules of the English railroads, that will make better than a mile a minute on regular runs. The longest run is between London and Bath, 100 7/8 miles, which is made at the rate of 61.1 miles an hour.

Another feature of the summer train schedules is that daily passenger trains are run between London and all the important cities and summer resorts in England, which are designed to allow the worker to live at the seaside and continue to work in London.

LONDON HAS 176,423 PET DOGS

LONDON, July 20 (AP)—Dog licenses in London added 69,192 pounds to the municipal exchequer during the last year. There were 176,423 licenses taken out.

When Anarchist Welcomed King. Ivan Gorgonovitch, the man whose anarchistic writings and utterances had stirred up millions of persons against royalty and the divine right theory and who was credited with having sown the first seeds of the Russian revolution, met the king face to face and smiled a cheery though surprised welcome. Gradually the smile broadened into a grin and finally he laughed outright.

Ivan Gorgonovitch's companions looked on with mixed emotions showing on their fierce countenances. Two of them frowned their disapproval; two of them frowned their disapproval; two expressed incredulity and a fourth expressed amusement in a blaspheinous utterance. But Ivan Gorgonovitch, the terrible anarchist, paid no heed to them. His whole attention was given to the king. There was adoration in his eyes.

Ivan Gorgonovitch had just filed a royal flush and there were eighty-five American dollars in the pot.—L. E. Birdsell in Judge.

Husbands and Husbands. The office boy, whose wages went either for pie or for picture for the evening parade along Illinois street, was always facing financial problems. The Saturday pay envelope had come and gone, and late Saturday, because certain creditors had to be satisfied, he was attempting to borrow a dime with which to buy his afternoon allowance of pie. The office force, however, was unresponsive, allied against him, in fact, having learned from experience the difficulty attending the collection of repayments.

"Wife! don't you stop borrowing money!" one of the men in the office inquired. "Don't you know that repeated borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry?"

"That don't mean nothing to me," he replied. "I'm not married!"—Indianapolis News.

AMERICAN ENGINEER HELD BY BANDITS

ABOVE is a photograph of E. A. Newman, a Chicago engineer, who is held by Mexican bandits for a $15,000 ransom. His family has appealed to the State Department for immediate action, the bandits having threatened to kill him at once unless the money was paid. The American government demanded of Mexico that it secure his immediate release.

Old Southern Hospitality. In 1852 my father left Bavaria for America. "Go south," was the recommendation. Acting on this suggestion, he went to Oglethorpe, Ga. Through acquaintances he made a connection with two brothers, Kaufman, who piloted the peddler's trade. They owned a peddler's wagon, with which they dispensed through the several counties of the state an assortment of dry goods and what were known as Yankee notions.

It was not like the peddling of today. Because of slavery there were on the large plantations often more colored people than there were whites living in the nearby villages. The itinerant merchant, therefore, filled a real want, and his vocation was looked upon as quite dignified. Provided only, therefore, that the peddler proved himself an honorable, upright man who conscientiously treated his customers with fairness and made no misrepresentations regarding his wares, he was treated as an honored guest by the plantation owners—certainly a spirit of true democracy.—Oscar S. Straus, in the Outlook.

Uninjured. The toughest customer in Bloody Gulch had been buried from an automobile into a ditch and lay unconscious for a couple of hours. He came to life to find the face of a friend bending anxiously over him.

"Are you hurt, old man?" gasped the friend. "Not a bit," replied the hard guy, "only a little spill. But say, Bill, will you help me pull this bone back into my sleeve?"—American Legion Weekly.

ALL LAY IN DRESSING HABIT

Mystery That for a Long Time Disturbed Willitt Finally Solved Purely by Accident. It took Willitt several months to figure out just why he was late at the office—some mornings and punctual other mornings. He could see no apparent reason for it. He was the man in a thousand who didn't try any monkey-business with his alarm clock. He ate a routine breakfast at the same table in the same restaurant every morning. He shaved every morning, and by long practice had reduced the strokes to the minimum.

But the fact remained, for all his automatic behavior. It might be any where between 9 and 9:10 when he reached the office. Then Willitt discovered, more or less by accident, the secret of it all, deep in his subconscious mind. In all came to him one morning when he started to put his shoes on. He had begun to get into the habit of putting the left shoe on first, that ever since he had been putting on his own shoes he had been doing the same thing without once being aware of it. It was only when he allowed something to interfere with this established habit that he even dimly realized that there was a habit at all.

He began to look at his clothes more closely. He watched himself as he dressed and caught himself going instinctively for the left sleeve of his shirt first, for the left stocking first, for the left piece of his overcoat first. The devil of it is now that even though Willitt has discovered how 99 per cent of people save time for themselves in dressing by habit, he has found it impossible for himself to save time in the future by becoming self-conscious about it. He tries to counteract the thought of future tardiness at the office by the realization that he has hit on a great scientific truth. But as far as his business career is concerned he sometimes wishes that he had never started this self-analysis.

Karat Diamond. A karat, usually spelled carat, is a unit of weight for precious stones, equal to 200 milligrams or 0.066 Troy grains. The value of a karat varies greatly according to the quality and size of the stone. Some diamonds are valued as highly as $1,000 a carat, while ordinary good diamonds are worth $300 to $500 a carat.

Makes Tire-Inflation Easy. An extremely handy device for inflating a tire, is in the form of a small drum that is filled with a gas, harmless to rubber, and sufficient in quantity to inflate a tire to 65 pounds pressure, without jacking, in a few seconds.

FASHION'S DEMANDS CUT FUR SUPPLY

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—Fashion's decree that women shall wear furs the year around has aroused great apprehension among naturalists, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society, whose officials believe that some of the animals that are disappearing today may soon be in the class of the auk and the dodo.

"It is only by educating the American public to the need for protection for these animals," the bulletin says, "that we will be able to preserve one of the country's most valuable assets for the enjoyment and profit of future generations."

EARLY MORNING GAMBLERS

MOSCOW, July 20 (AP)—When the crupiers and dealers of the all night gambling houses of Moscow are tired and heavy-eyed, which is about seven o'clock every morning, there come gaily into their rooms groups of fresh and wifely men, but up from a good night's sleep. They are alert and brisk, and they play against the fatigued and weary professionals. What is more, they almost always win. They call themselves the "Seven o'Clock Dalais."

RUM RUNNERS ATTACK INADVERTENT VISITORS

MEXICO CITY, July 20 (AP)—Fantastic tales told of the operations of American rum runners along the coast of Lower California reached a climax recently with the publication of delayed advices from Rosario telling of the unhappy fate of 17 Mexican fishermen who fell into the hands of American smugglers.

The little Mexican fishing smack Mendocera, is related, swept by a heavy storm from its fishing grounds, sought refuge under the lee of the island of Sacramento, in Vizcaino bay. Instead of a refuge, the storm-tossed fishermen were greeted, upon landing, with a volley from the rifles of a score of American smugglers, and six of them were wounded. Attempting to seek refuge in the brush, they were halted by a storm of bullets from a hidden machine gun. Then, after they had been placed aboard their craft and told to forget what had happened, an unsuccessful attempt was made to sink their boat with shots from a piece of artillery mounted on one of the island's rocky hills.

According to the Mariner's skipper, Fabricio Mendoza, the smugglers have built a small village on the shore of one of the coves that indent the island, and stores of liquor worth a fortune were piled in makeshift warehouses near by.

AMERICA SEEN IN POSITION OF PEACE KEEPER

Spokesman for New Republic of China Pleads from Chautauqua Platform for Friendly Support of New Order

TODAY'S PROGRAM 2:30 p. m.—Concert, Charles Mitchell Mixer's orchestral quartet.

American can and will prevent destruction of the world's peace by the rising tide of an awakened orient. Dr. Ng Poo Chew, spokesman for the new republic of China, declared in his concluding remarks of his lecture on "China and the Future Peace of the Pacific," delivered Friday evening before an audience that was most completely filled by the big Chautauqua tent at the corner of Second street and Fifth avenue east.

Dr. Chew traced the rapid rise of the new order in China, ascribing large credit to the work of western missionaries for the awakening of the ancient empire and illustrating his narrative with a wealth of entertaining incidents.

China's Only Friend

Americans stand today alone as the China's only friend among all the nations of mankind. Dr. Chew declared. He referred to the restoration of China by the American government of $14,000,000 of the indemnity collected following the Boxer rebellion, and found deep significance in the decision of the Chinese government to use this fund for the education of Chinese students in the United States.

Blessing or Curse

The new China, Dr. Chew declared, may be either a blessing or a curse to the rest of the world. It depended, he said, largely upon the attitude of the western world, which China would prove to be. China, he said, is a smashing force, and a very real European nation, and the orient has learned that the white man is only a mortal being. If China adopts the theory that might makes right and develops its resources among a population of 450,000,000 to build up military power, then, Dr. Chew said, we fear for the peace of the world, and the yellow peril will become a reality.

Other possible dangers to civilization of the western world through misdirection of the energies of the awakened orient.

Dr. Chew pointed out, might result from military alliances between China and a revived Britain or between China and Japan. China feels that she has been wronged by the world powers. Dr. Chew said, but China will respond in kind to the treatment she receives in the future at the hands of other nations. If that treatment is one of humanity and peace, then China will bring a blessing, and if it is one of ruthless force, then she will be a devastating curse.

Little Miss Wins Audience

Dr. Chew's lecture was preceded by an entertaining recital by little Alice Louise Shrode, who also opened the afternoon program. Miss Alice captivated her audience as well by her winning personality as by her talent when she whistled, sang and read with exquisite skill and art. Mrs. Shrode, who has been the child's teacher, acted as accompanist to her small daughter.

Mrs. Evelyn M. McCuskey, in a musical lecture-demonstration, discussed before the afternoon audience stories and emotions expressed by composers in real music.

Financial Success Attained

In an opening statement, Mrs. Burton E. Morse, vice president of the Twin Falls Chautauqua association, announced that she expects from the sale of Chautauqua tickets up to Friday afternoon totaled $2175. That the contract for the present course called for payment of $1925, leaving a balance of $250 to be divided fifty-fifty between the local organization and the Elison-White system.

The association's show, Mrs. Morse announced, will be held as the nucleus of a fund to be used ultimately for a supervised playground in Twin Falls.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sunday school picnic for the members of the Sunday school of the First Christian church will be held Sunday immediately following the school session, leaving the church at 11 o'clock and going by motor to Bevermore grove near Filer. The picnic will be in the form of a basket dinner.

Favorable Report On Road Indicated

Message to Representative Smith Says Action on Rogerson-Wells Line Imminent

A favorable decision has been reached by the interstate commerce commission on the application of the Oregon Short Line for certificate of convenience and necessity, covering construction of the Rogerson-Wells road, and that the certificate will be issued within a day or two, is indicated by a telegram received Friday by Representative Addison T. GRENZ LOSES FIGHT FOR LIBERATION UNDER WRIT

Court Declines to Release Burinary Suspect for Alleged Insufficiency of Procedure, But Fines $10

Fred Grenz, held in answer to a burglary charge, was denied his freedom by Judge Babcock in district court Friday, denied release from jail on a writ of habeas corpus, but was promised his liberty under $1000 bail as soon as satisfactory bond should be provided. Grenz was released following his removal to a recognizance case of C. A. North as his attorney, to seek bond.

In argument for the release of Grenz on the writ it was asserted that the bench warrant against his arrest immediately upon his release from an Oregon jail where he served a term for burglary of turkeys, was technically insufficient, and that Grenz, since his arrest July 11, had not been given opportunity to provide bail. J. W. Taylor, prosecuting attorney, resisted efforts to release Grenz on the writ.

Judgment was pronounced by Judge Babcock in the case of Seth A. Cosler, convicted of illegal possession of a bottle of liquor found in his possession when he was arrested here July 4. The court imposed a 30-day jail term and a fine of $100.
