Coal Strike Looms As Wage Parley Deadlocks

Operators Refuse Miners' Demands

Adjourned Conference Scheduled in Hope of Averting Walkout September 1

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 26 (AP)—An ultimatum demanding establishment of the closed shop and the checkoff through the anthracite industry, with a strike on September 1 as the penalty for rejection, was flung into the joint wage negotiations conference today by the miners and refused pointblank by the operators.

All that prevented the immediate collapse of negotiations after the miners declared there was the more use in conferring, was their concession to the operators' petition for a truce and another session tomorrow in order that both sides might sleep on the question and someone might have a change of heart.

At the end of a session at the Hotel Ambassador, devoted wholly to a discussion of the miners' demand for complete recognition of the union, including general inauguration of the closed shop and the checkoff system of collecting dues from the payroll, John Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, introduced a resolution, seconded by J. J. Golden, president of the district number 9, which read:

Resolved: That the principle of complete recognition and the checkoff, as expressed in demand number 1, is adopted. The four union delegates voted "yes"; the four operators voted "no."

GUNBOAT'S FIRE STOPS BLOCKADE

United States Battleship Replies to Rattle of Shots from Chinese Troops

HANKOW, China, July 27 (AP)—The speedy action of the United States gunboat Monocacy recently in replying to the fire of a Chinese force on the shore of the Yangtze river has effectively defeated an attempt of the South China troops to establish a blockade of the river below Chang-King, thus cutting off the foreign community from communication with the outside.

The Chinese troops, it is said, fearing further reprisals on the part of foreign gunboats, have definitely given up their blockade plans.

Commander Phelps of the Yangtze patrol, in his official report, stated that on July 17 General Chao Hai Chang, who was guarding the banks of the river pursuant to orders from General Wu Fei Fu, the Loyang war lord, and enemy of Sun Yat Sen, revolted and joined the enemy.

The Phelps report states that "the attack on the American flag was unjustified and unprovoked."

HARDING GIVEN BIG RECEPTION BY CANADIANS

Spirit of Warmest Friendliness Prevails when Throngs Greet President on Appearance in Dominion City

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 26 (AP)—History was made today in Vancouver. An American president for the first time stepped on Canadian soil and spoke to a Canadian audience.

Though not desiring to make comparisons, Vancouver newspapermen, accustomed to gauging the degree of enthusiasm with which distinguished visitors, declared the greeting given Mr. Harding was at least equal in its warmth to that accorded to the former president of the United States.

The president of the precinct party, also unhesitant to make comparisons, did not hesitate to say that no American city had given the chief executive of the republic a more cordial and generous reception than was accorded him today in this Canadian city.

Continuous Welcomes The manifestations of welcome were continuous, beginning this morning when the naval transport Henderson, bearing the president and his party home from Alaska, arrived in Vancouver and received from the British light cruiser Outlaw a salute of 21 guns, and continuing until 9:30 tonight when, after a state dinner given by the governors of the Dominion and of the province of British Columbia, Mr. Harding returned to the Henderson for the night.

"You are not only our neighbor, but a very good neighbor," he told his hosts at Stanley park.

RICKARD SEARCHES FOR SITE FOR TITLE MATCH

With Arrangements Closed for Dempsey-Fringo Clash General Belief Favors Use of Polo Grounds

NEW YORK, July 26 (AP)—The world's heavyweight championship match between Jack Dempsey, title holder, and Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine challenger, has been made, its place and date remained unsettled tonight.

No Thought of Trouble. "When an object lesson of peace is shown today by our two countries to all the world," he exclaimed at another point in the same address. "No grim faced fortifications may be on our frontiers, no air force, no battleships patrol our dividing waters, no stealthy spies lurk in our tranquil border hamlets. Only a scrap of paper, recording hardly more than the simple understanding of safeguarded lives and properties on the Great Lakes and only humble mile posts mark the inviolable boundary line of thousands of miles through farms and forest."

"Our protection is our fraternity; our armor is our faith; the tie that binds more firmly year by year, is ever-increasing acquaintance through interchange of citizens; and the compact is not of perishable parchment, but of fair and honest dealing with one another, shall continue for all time."

The friendly and neighborly feeling was reciprocated at every opportunity by the officials of the Dominion, municipal and state governments as well as by the people themselves. Premier MacKenzie King, unable to attend the Vancouver part of the series of public works, Dr. J. H. King, here to welcome the American chief executive, and also a message of greeting in which he said: "The sentiment of the profound gratification and pleasure that I, on behalf of the government and the people of Canada, extend to you on the occasion of your visit to the Dominion."

Dundee Takes Featherweight Title From French Battler

Crigue Loses Crown Held For Two Months

American Floors Opponent in Opening Rounds; Frenchman Shows Courage

POLO GROUNDS, New York, July 26 (AP)—The featherweight championship of the world, in French hands for less than two months, came back to the United States tonight when Johnny Dundee, grizzled Italian-American veteran, battered his way to victory over Eugene Crigue, gallant ex-patriot, in a grueling 14-round struggle that was never in doubt from start to finish.

Dundee, rising to the greatest heights of his long and embattled career, won decisively all the way, but only in the face of a game and courageous stand that will go down among the most thrilling in prize-fighting history. The judges' decision crowning Dundee as the new title holder was drowned in a wild outburst of cheering, but in the little Frenchman was accorded an ovation that rang out above even that for the victor.

Crigue's was a hopeless battle from the first round. Floored for a count of nine hardly before the initial bell had sounded he somehow managed to weather the storm only to be knocked down twice, once for a count of seven and again for nine seconds in the second round.

Only the heart of a fighter, the instinct of a courageous ringman, enabled Crigue to stand up under that withering fire. He had held his breath of ground in the dark days of Verdun and in the squared circle tonight he held his ground to the end. The jaw that had stopped a German bullet in the front line trenches proved equal to the hardest of human fists could bring to bear upon it. He went down to defeat battling to the finish.

Dundee, in achieving the ambition of a long career, fought a cool, masterful battle. He displayed everything but a knockout punch, and it was perhaps more the ability of the Frenchman to absorb punishment than Dundee's failure to apply it that made it possible for the bout to go the limit.

ORPHEUM Today and Saturday Heroes of the Street Wesley Barry in 'A Good Scout' Created for laughing purposes EXTRA! Friday and Saturday evenings EXTRA!

a wide right, but was too wide with his next ally. Dundee pounced on the champion's kidneys and they clinched and slashed over three stiff lefts. Crigue poked his stiff left to Johnny's head. The pace had slowed, but still Crigue could not solve his opponent. He was warned for hitting on the breakaway. Dundee began chopping uppercuts when the gong sounded.

ROUND TWO—Crigue came out a bit unsteady and fell into a clinch. He held a left to Dundee and the challenger leaned back and swung a hard left to the head in the wildest upsurge, hooking hard lefts to the head, but the Frenchman stood his ground and sent back two lefts. Dundee sent Crigue to the floor for a count of seven. The Frenchman came up and Dundee went at his man and Dundee spilled him with another and Crigue took the count of nine. Dundee laid back for a knockout, punishing Crigue severely. Although he was left after left and clinching when his blows failed to land. They were sparring lightly in the center when the round ended.

ROUND THREE—Crigue looked good enough as he sat in his corner listening to the counsel of his handlers. Dundee punched his body in the first attack and then landed a left. Dundee repeated with his left and forced his right solidly. Crigue came in for more, punching wildly with his left, but always advancing. Dundee was much too fast for the Frenchman, easily evading his futile attack, and punching accurately with both hands. Dundee fell back to his old trick of bouncing off the ropes, but it netted him nothing except laughs from the crowd. Dundee repeated his trick twice, this time to good advantage, sending a left into the Frenchman's ribs. He started the trick again when the bell ended the round.

ROUND FOUR—Crigue started the attack, but he was short or over and a series of clinches resulted. Dundee was a little slower and they sparred. The challenger dodged a half dozen leads and left jabs as he kept on the defensive. Then Dundee started bounding off the ropes, advancing across the ring. Crigue struck at the flying target but it was no use. They were in a slight clinch when the bell rang.

Dundee Draws Blood ROUND FIVE—Crigue spat up blood while his handlers worked feverishly. Dundee wasn't fanned. Johnny landed a half dozen lefts and they fell into a wrestling clinch. Crigue landed no landing both hands to the jaw in a clinch. Dundee was falling against the ropes and bounding out when Crigue stood by with glassy eyes. All he could do was to wave his hands at the striking opponent. Crigue missed a wide uppercut after Dundee was short with lefts. Dundee had slowed down and they sparred quietly when the bell rang.

ROUND SIX—They came together fighting, Crigue taking the lead. Dundee landed top to toe and his left had the better of it. Dundee was hustled by Crigue's maneuvering and occasionally he slipped over that pop-gun left. They exchanged punches, but there was not much to choose from Crigue was getting the better of the fist-fighting. They were sparring at the gong.

ROUND EIGHT—Dundee landed a left and right and Crigue hooked a right to the jaw. Dundee resumed his jumping antics, whipping his left to the head on his feet. Crigue sent right fists to the body in a clinch. Dundee began to lay back. Crigue was groggy, blood spouting from his mouth and spattering both fighters. Dundee pounded him severely.

Crigue in Bad Shape ROUND NINE—Crigue was in probably as bad condition as he could be, but Dundee seemed fresh. With marvelous grit Crigue continued stepping in, though his legs were so wobbly he could hardly stand. The Frenchman vainly shot out his left, but he was very tired. Dundee's repeating lefts tapped him a half dozen times and he clinched. Dundee now came in with both fists, tearing away, but still Crigue walked on, striking wildly and ineffectively covering up. They fought toe to toe in a slashing body exchange and Dundee as he walked to his stool, was plainly perplexed.

ROUND TEN—Crigue sent a left to the face in return for a left to the stomach. Crigue was leaning with his left but it was invariably wide and he fell into Dundee's arms. Dundee pounded his head with both hands in a neutral corner. The crowd cheered Crigue as he resumed his undaunted advance, but his blows were wobbly feeble. He nearly fell over the challenger when he swung a hard right and Dundee swayed back to measure him, but they clinched.

Dundee Lands at Will ROUND ELEVEN—Crigue was wide with a left but he walked a stiff left to the head and jabbed with it three times. Dundee, who was less affected now, went grimly to his work, retreating now and hammering again.

He landed both hands to the jaw in a clinch. Dundee was falling against the ropes and bounding out when Crigue stood by with glassy eyes. All he could do was to wave his hands at the striking opponent. Crigue missed a wide uppercut after Dundee was short with lefts. Dundee had slowed down and they sparred quietly when the bell rang.

ROUND TWELVE—Crigue tried to smile with his shattered jaw. Crigue still was leading, but Dundee was getting in the blows, lefty lefts. Dundee rocked the champion with two tired attack that would batter down a post but Crigue, wobbling on his feet stood his ground. Crigue weathered that storm and lowered his head for another advance. The action slowed for a minute, then Dundee placed both hands again, hitting Crigue on every vulnerable spot, but the Frenchman smiled derisively and tried to put over an uppercut. The crowd was on its feet in a tempestuous roar as Crigue gave another smile, going to his corner at the bell.

ROUND THIRTEEN—They clinched. Dundee began his attack earnestly, but Crigue fought back and Dundee clinched. Crigue backed Dundee into a neutral corner but had difficulty keeping his blows high. Dundee staggered him with a right cross, but Crigue advanced again, heaving a great right. The Frenchman ducked a wide left and was wild with two more. Dundee planted his feet and ploughed with his left, but he kept waiting and Crigue was leading another advance when the gong ended the round.

ROUND FOURTEEN—They sparred at long range and danced about before Dundee hit over two lefts that forced a clinch. Crigue caught Dundee first on the forehead but he didn't care, but Crigue could not break an egg now. He did not refrain from the attack and was mixing with his adversary when the bell rang. This was the slowest round yet.

ROUND FIFTEEN—Crigue nodded

his head negatively to a friend at the ringside showing he knew he was hopeless. Dundee came from his corner very determined, but they clinched three times. Crigue was trying hard for a knockout, as was Dundee. The challenger got in another two-fisted attack to the head, and Crigue sighed again before he clinched. They sparred a minute, exchanged at arms length and then clinched before Dundee began his next foray. He swung both hands to the head with all he had and Crigue could not hold his gloves against his face but he had strength enough in his legs to walk in again. Dundee then thugged the Frenchman's body and Crigue danced away. Dundee pounded his head unmercifully with both hands as he was whaling away when the bell rang.

HARDING GIVEN (Continued From Page One.) Dominion of Canada a very warm welcome and most cordial greetings. "For more than a century the people of the great neighboring republic of the United States and of Canada has enjoyed a period of undisturbed harmony and concord, unique and unprecedented in the history of nations. Your visit, marking as it does the first with which our country has been honored by a president of the United States during his term of office, comes with particular appropriateness at this time as affording us an opportunity of demonstrating to the American people through their illustrious president, our desire that these happy relations shall continue." The city of Vancouver was profusely decorated with British, Canadian and American flags, in honor of the visit of the presidential party and the military display, consisting of British naval and army units, two companies of Canadian Royal Mounted police, and other units, was greater than has greeted the president anywhere on his present trip. The downtown section of Vancouver was jammed from curb to curb building lines during the passing of the parade which inaugurated the president's visit, and even out in the residential sections people lined the streets four and five deep. Mr. Harding, in addition to participating in the parade, making two addresses and attending the state dinner and an afternoon reception, got 18 holes of golf, the first time he had played in a month. He was a member of a foursome at the Shaughnessy Golf club consisting of Minister King, Frank Peters, western Manager of the Canadian Pacific railroad, and Chief Justice MacDonald of British Columbia.

TWO YEARS IN PRISON GIVEN FATHER GRACE

Catholic Priest at Liberty on Bonds Pending Appeal from Conviction of Forging Liquor Shipping Permit

DENVER, July 26 (AP)—Father Walter A. Grace, a Catholic priest, who was sentenced in federal court this afternoon to serve two years in the United States penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, was at liberty tonight on $5000 bond pending an appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals. He was convicted by a jury yesterday on charges of forging an application for a government permit to ship liquor into Colorado.

Father Grace was sentenced to serve two years on each of two counts, the sentences to run concurrently after Judge J. Foster Snymer had denied motions for a new trial and for an arrest of judgment. A period of 60 days was granted for filing the appeal.

Shows No Emotion.

The former pastor of the shrine of Saint Anne at Arvada, a Denver suburb, betrayed no emotion as he faced the court to receive his sentence. He made no plea for judicial leniency, but immediately upon pronouncement of the sentence, defense counsel objected to the sentence.

Complimenting attorneys on the conduct of the case, Judge Snymer said: "The court can hardly believe that a man in the position and standing of Father Grace would do what he has been convicted of doing. However, this jury has found him guilty and this court can but accept that verdict and provide punishment."

The jury yesterday reached its verdict of guilty after only 10 minutes' deliberation. "Shocking," was the priest's comment on the verdict, but outwardly he manifested nothing of the shock he confessed.

Slept Soundly.

Father Grace was the first prisoner sent to the county jail where he was detained last night and declared that he had slept soundly. He is the only one of the plain fare apportioned to him at breakfast and received several visitors before being escorted to the United States marshal's office, preparatory to his appearance before the court this afternoon.

The Rev. J. Henry Thien, bishop of Denver, would make no statement as to whether the conviction of a father to his sons," said Bishop Thien. "I know of nothing that I can say or that I ought to say."

RUHR FRONTIER OPEN TO TRAVEL

Thousands Pass Back and Forth as Closure Order Is Lifted by France

DUESSELDORF, July 26 (AP)—The frontier between the Ruhr and the rest of Germany, after being closed to ordinary travelers since July 1, was again opened at midnight last night. Thousands of Germans passed back and forth; many of them had kept away from the frontier since when the closure order was put on by the Ruhr authorities.

The frontier was first closed by the French as a penalty for the bombing of a train at Duisburg and applied only to private travelers. It was to have continued until July 16. Just before the expiration of this period, however, an incident occurred near Westofen, a member of a French patrol being kidnapped by German security police, aided by other Germans who were suspected of attempting to evade the French customs officers. The Rhineland high commission, as a penalty, extended closure until July 26. The unusual number of crossings during the last few days that the occupation authorities contemplated again closing the frontier, but thus far there are no indications that such a measure is being considered.

Satisfactory Love Affair.

When I was about eight years old I went to the city to visit my aunt. There I met my first love. He took me to movies and to the skating rink. When I was about to leave the city I told my lover about it, and I expected he'd be at the station to say good-bye. Instead he was waiting for me to come out of the house. A group of boys were with him, and they all yelled, "Aw, look who's going to the country." This made me angry. Ten years passed. I again visited in the city. Again I met my lover. Not many days passed when he proposed—Exchange.

Discussion, Conquers Error.

The great enemy of knowledge is not error, but inertia. All that we want is discussion, and then we are sure to do well, no matter what our blunders may be. One error conflicts with another, each destroys its opponent, and truth is evolved.—Buckley.

WHEAT COLLAPSE HITS HARD BLOW

Outlook Disheartening in the Northwest and West; Affects Rural Economy

CHICAGO, July 26 (AP)—The collapse of the wheat market has overclouded more promising aspects of the rural economic situation and made the outlook darker than is justified. H. W. Moorhouse, research director of the American Farm Bureau Federation, indicated today in a monthly report issued by his department.

"The fact that as a whole and for products in general, the present situation is not discouraging compared with last year," the report stated, "but for those sections in the north and northwest, which rely more on wheat, the outlook is disheartening. The preliminary reports to this department before the close of the marketing year gross income from farm sales will be about 100 to 200 million dollars more than the previous year.

"Unfavorable wheat statistics have been unlooked in a deluge, almost obliterating more encouraging developments and carrying the price lower than seems necessary.

Nerve Timing.

A curious instance of the care and minuteness with which the human body is now studied, in the effort better to understand its powers and functions, is furnished by a paper read at a meeting of the Royal Society in London on "The Rapidity of the Nervous Impulse in Tall and Short Individuals." Even the difference in time required for a "nerve telegram" to traverse the bodies of different persons is regarded as a matter of scientific importance. A series of observations has shown that the length of the nerves does affect the velocity with which an impulse passes between the brain and the extremities and consequently that more time is needed if the path is long than if it is short. It follows that a short man should feel a step on his corner quicker than a tall one, but the difference is so slight that the offender has no better chance of escape in one case than in the other.—New York Herald.

Clay Tramping.

In the manufacture of glass, the clay for the pots in which the ingredients are melted must be tramped by human feet. No mechanical means has been found entirely satisfactory in producing the proper consistency. As might be imagined, this is tiresome work for the trampler, and he often suffers greatly from sore feet as a result of this kind of work.

FOLEY FAILED TO PROFIT BY GIFT OF CASH

Former Sheriff, Witness in Bankruptcy Hearing, Borrowed Fortunes to Keep Becketters in Business

NEW YORK, July 26 (AP)—The philosophy of an east side politician, whose pocketbook was the common property of his friends was expounded today by former Sheriff "Pop" Foley, veteran Tammany leader, testifying at a hearing in bankruptcy involving the defunct becketting firm of E. M. Fellel and company.

"I have been a damned fool all my life, sir," said the ex-sheriff in trying to explain to Referee Harold P. Coffin why he had loaned members of the shabby firm $15,000 of his own money and $137,500 belonging to Charles A. Stoneham, part owner of the Giant, just before the brokerage house failed for $4,000,000 a year ago.

Our Nation's Capital.

Washington has become the headquarters of more national organizations and associations than any other city in the country. A recent compilation, admittedly incomplete, lists almost 300. A few of these organizations have erected fine buildings that contribute materially to the beauty of the city. Among these are the American Red Cross, the Daughters of the Revolution, the National Academy of Science and the American Federation of Labor. One of these feature buildings will be the new home of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The Scottish Rite temple on Sixteenth street, and the proposed new office on the old site of the old one on which the Masons will spend millions, illustrative of what fraternal orders also are doing to enhance the attractions of Washington.

Thirty-five motor cars, with an average of four persons to the car, were counted Friday evening at Twin Falls tourist park. Naturally the greatest number of cars came from neighboring states, but there were also cars from South Carolina, Texas, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota.

These visitors are very anxious to learn something about this section, and the park keeper has his hands full. It is up to the citizens to supply the demand.

AN AMERICAN ADMIRAL

The recent death of Rear Admiral Sigbee, captain of the Maine at the time that battleship was blown up, brings to public attention a man whose career was varied and successful and whose life was interesting as well as full of service.

Admiral Sigbee was a writer, a deep sea explorer, an inventor, a cartoonist, and an illustrator as well as an active naval officer. He left Annapolis just in time to serve in the Civil War. He served at different times in naval squadrons in the West Gulf, the North Atlantic and Aleutic waters.

Interest in the United States navy too often centers in the ships themselves and the public loses sight of the interesting lives of the men who run the ships.

CONSIDER THE HEN

A well bred and well cared for dairy cow has been known to produce four times her weight in milk in the course of a year, and it is a record in which all cattle may well take satisfaction.

But the state of Washington is boasting of a White Leghorn hen which laid no less than 335 eggs within 303 days. The cow must look to her laurels.

The cow had no vacation in the twelve month period. The hen took a month off, a day at a time, but the fact renders her performance no less creditable. Certainly she deserved the occasional respite, if only that she might ease a throat worried by char-teristic boasting of her accomplishments. Three hundred and thirty-five eggs a year mean more than $5.00 at the average price to the producer reported by the Washington poultrymen's association. Under the circumstances, it is hard to blame any hen for cackling, concealed though it may seem.

The dairy cow and the corn-fed hog are all right, and deserving of praise and consideration as friends of man, but the hen counts, too. We have seen arguments to men who did lose for their country.

IMPORTS

The last 12 months have witnessed the nation's heaviest buying in Europe. For the first time in our history, imports from Europe have reached an aggregate of $1,100,000,000. Of this huge amount, Great Britain furnished more than one-third.

This would not seem to occasion pessimism on the part of European financial prophets. To some extent it does, however, for the reason that while the amount we have bought in Europe has been greater than ever before, the European percentage of our total world trade has gone, not up, but down. The $1,100,000,000 represents but 42.6 per cent of our total imports from the world at large, and while the amount is the largest in our history, the percentage is the lowest.

The great war did not wreck civilization, however closely it may have come to it, but it did bring a readjustment of world power and world commerce which will prove more and more important and apparent as the years pass. The Aegean, the Mediterranean and the Atlantic have been centers for civilization. The growing volume of our imports from South America, Africa, Asia and Australasia seem to indicate that the Pacific is to have its chance.

CAREER OF CRIME ENDS AT MOUND IN CEMETERY

Sheriff Traces Trail of Alleged Bad Man to Grave, After Approaching His Youthful Companion

SPOKANE, July 26 (AP)—Four years of searching for W. J. Clink, alleged bad man of this city, apparently have ended at his grave in Greenwood cemetery, near here. In 1914 Clink got into trouble on a cattle-stealing case and was sent to the reformatory. Five years later, it is said, he told a 17-year-old boy that it was "easy" to get away with store robbery, and the two successfully held up the stores of Hans Nordhorst and of C. Ryan. They were on horseback, masquerading in the uniforms of American soldiers.

Sheriff Clarence Long then began his search. Clink's young companion was captured and given a five-year reform school sentence, following a battle in which Clink was shot in the foot. For four years Clink's trail was lost, being picked up again only last week when the sheriff received a mysterious phone call which resulted in his tracing Clink's body to a grave here. Clink was declared to have died at Tomahawk, Wis., on July 3, and the remains, it was stated, had been shipped to his relatives here under an assumed name.

Heavy Snowfalls. At some places in the Sierra Nevada and the Cascade mountains from 30 to 40 feet of snow falls during the winter months. At Summit, Cal., which has an elevation of about 7,000 feet, there has been recorded 60 feet of snow in a single season and about 25 feet in a single month.

Fortier assented. "This final paragraph—do you believe your Chicago friend tried to murder Philbrick?" A cloud troubled her clear eyes. "No, No—that is impossible, incredible! Philbrick doubtless believes it, but I cannot. There must be some other explanation which we don't know." "Very well, now, Miss Lavergne, this mention of a dam and pumps—" "Oh, that is the important thing!" cried the girl swiftly. "You see, we've been in the city for a week or more, and haven't returned for another week. Uncle David has been getting his franchise from Baton Rouge—" "The lips of Fortier twitched. "Not so fast, please! What franchiser?" She laughed at her own impetuosity, although the shadow lingered in her clear eyes. "It gives Uncle David the right to dam the bayou behind the island, in order to form some kind of electric power. Now, something I overheard my uncle say in the hotel yesterday gave me the idea that this will hurt our plantation, and that he doesn't care. An arm of the bayou overflows our rice fields; they must have a lot of water, you see. If he dams the bayou—" "He wouldn't be allowed to cut off your water," said Fortier. "We can't stop it," she said. "I remember now that Philbrick has hinted to me about it. Perhaps he was trying to keep me from suspecting the truth—oh, I feel so helpless! But we shall have to put in pumps and machinery. I have always thought that we were quite rich—and I really now, after I have been to the bank, that we are not." "You see," she added naively, "I have never bothered with business. I have just been a silly, useless spender of money. Now, I hope, I have wakened to something better! And I do know that just before he died, my father made some rice contracts. Philbrick has not said much about it, so today I got some information at the bank. They said they could not advise me, and sent me to you—or to the other, Mr. Fortier. They gave me an outline of the contracts—I have it here."

Jack Fortier frowned. "Miss Lavergne," he said, "I am interested in this matter. None the less, I hesitate to step in. If the bank sent you to Mr. Fortier, it was because they knew him to be well versed in certain kinds of law. For your own sake—" "For my own sake," and the girl flashed him a smile. "I ask not skills, but honesty. Uncle David's hands reach very far, I assure you! If he were to discover that I have retained a lawyer, he would probably try to buy you off or else—" "By all means, come into the open and let me discover it, then," said Fortier. "Now about those rice contracts—did the bank give you any notes on them? Do you know who holds the contracts?" "I don't know. Yes, here is a memorandum which the bank furnished me—rather judiciously, I must say; perhaps it will help you. Now, Mr. Fortier, I must be gone—I do not want my uncle to suspect anything. This is, until I am certain of my own suspicions. Here is a check for five hundred dollars—no, I insist! And I may stop in tomorrow and clear up whatever we have forgotten or overlooked today." Fortier tapped the check in his fingers, frowning slightly. "Let us say the day after tomorrow, Miss Lavergne—at any hour, I must run up to Baton Rouge tonight. The member from Opelousas is a very good friend of mine, and he can furnish me some information regarding your uncle. Also, that franchiser." "Very well. And thank you!" Fortier bowed over her hand gravely. There was in him a touch of rural courtesy which is too often lacking to city life. "Thank you, Miss Lavergne. The opportunity to be of service to you is, I assure you, its own best reward. And I trust that when you return I may have some news for you." Aline Lavergne departed. A little later, the typist tapped on the door of the private office, and entered. She found Fortier sitting in his chair, looking from the window, lost in abstraction. A smile touched her lips. "Is there anything further today, Mr. Fortier?" He glanced up, and flashed her a responsive smile. "No, Miss Smith. I am glad to say that the office will remain open for a while yet." "Oh, I am glad, too—for your sake," she answered.

Compelling Motives. Perhaps the most compelling motive which prompts a man to work is the realized need of providing for himself and family. The foresighted man is not content to live a hand-to-mouth existence and carefully lays his plans to build up a reserve that will give him income enough to live in comfort and happiness in old age. worked hard getting this fact marshaled in order. When he had finished, he was appalled by the results. Shortly after luncheon, on the day appointed, Aline Lavergne entered the office as he received her and made ready to impart what he had gathered. Fortier's face gave no indication of the hopelessness which he felt. Just the contrary, in fact. The thought of Macarty, and what was being done to this girl, brought steel into his blue eyes and anger into his heart. "And what have you learned, Mr. Fortier?" she asked, her calm eyes searching him. "Enough, I'm afraid. It appears that your father made extremely unwise contracts. Financially very favorable, they bound him to unfortunate fate and anger in his heart. Due to mismanagement, he was responsible. The sole person to judge of the mismanagement, was the other party to the contract. No business man would have signed such a paper, but your father was a gentleman, not a business man." "And—does my uncle hold those contracts?" "I don't know. They still have two years to run. I could discover nothing about them. Do you know whether your father's crop was sold to your uncle?" "Yes! Philbrick mentioned it several times. The price was very good and—" Fortier's mouth hardened. "Then there is no doubt of it. Macarty holds the contracts. I presume he shall and that Philbrick was foolish to break them, since they bound the estate and not the living planter. You see, they put the estate absolutely in the power of Macarty. If the crop fails, he alone is the judge—he may declare that the failure is the fault of Philbrick, and then collect his damages." "But that is unjust!" exclaimed Aline, her eyes widening. "Exactly. The law makes no pretensions to justice, Miss Lavergne. The Code Napoleon sets a standard of law, to infringe which is wrong. A contract is a sacred thing. Your father signed a contract, which must be adhered to. Now, let us proceed." "Here is a map of Latouche parish, showing your property," Fortier spread out the map before the girl. "Under the name of the Cypremont Power company, your uncle obtained a franchise giving him large theoretical powers down there. But, provided he dams the bayou and erects a power plant, to whom will it give service?" Aline glanced up. "Why, nobody. We're twenty miles from Latouche, and there's no other town—" (To Be Continued.)
