SECOND SHOCK CAUSES HEAVY MARKET SALES

Death of President Causes Expected Liquidation of Stocks; Confidence Expressed in New Official

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 (AP)—Heavy liquidation of stocks, the seemingly inevitable result of the death of a president or any other great change in the political or financial structure of the country or the world, took place in today's market. The decline, however, was an orderly one, due to the large volume of orders placed in the market by powerful financial interests who took this means of expressing their confidence in the new administration and the country's sound business condition.

President Harding's death was the second shock that the financial community had received this week, the first being Premier Balfour's speech setting forth that there was no hope of an early agreement between Great Britain and France on German reparations. The two events, together with the fact that the trend of security prices has been downward for the last four months attracted unusual attention this morning to the stock market.

Weak Opening. Opening prices showed reactions of one to two points as the heavy action of selling orders coming from timid investors and professional speculators for the decline were pressed on the market. These offerings were easily absorbed but not until after a few issues had extended their losses to three or four points. Further efforts to depress prices were met by strong support, especially in United States Steel common and other pivotal stocks.

In the second instance, the motorized street flusher and a car driven by Miss Norma Cryder, a girl of 16, crashed Saturday evening at the intersection of Second street and Third avenue.

Widow Expresses Desire to Have Funeral Conform to that of President McKinley

OGDEN, Utah, Aug. 4 (AP)—Thousands of Utahns were gathered here tonight from all parts of the state to pay their last respects to their departed president—Warren G. Harding. The funeral train arrived shortly after 9 o'clock.

Governor Charles E. Mabey and other state officials came from Salt Lake and the Utah wreath was placed about the casket here. Brigadier General T. G. Alexander arrived in a special train with 100 enlisted men of the United States army, and acted as a guard of honor during the stop of the train.

The same people of Ogden that on the morning of June 29 welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Harding to Utah with cheers, music and flowers tonight stood in silent reverence. They sorrowed for the passing of one and they sympathized with the other in her grief.

There were no cheers and no music tonight, but there were flowers. The train passed here but a few minutes and then continued on its way, passing between here and Cheyenne over the same route traveled June 23 and 24. It is due to reach Cheyenne at 1:15 p. m. tomorrow.

CAPITAL WAITS IN SORROW FOR FUNERAL TRAIN

Washington Goes Ahead with Details for Ceremonies; Coolidge Announces Friday as Day of Mourning

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 (AP)—The national capital in sorrow and mourning symbolic of that of the nation, went forward today with the preparations to receive and pay fitting tribute to the dead president.

A state funeral, to be marked by a solemn dignity and simplicity, was arranged for by President Coolidge and the chief officers of the government who devoted themselves untiringly to the preparation of ceremonies that will fittingly express the grief and reverence of the American people.

President Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft, members of the cabinet and of congress and others high in government councils will participate in the ceremonies. At the suggestion of Mr. Coolidge, Woodrow Wilson was invited to take part, but after a conference between Lieutenant Colonel Sherrill, aide to the chief executive, and Rear Admiral Grayson, Mr. Wilson's physician, it was announced that because of the condition of his health the former president regretted he would not be able to attend.

Upon its arrival here from San Francisco Tuesday the funeral train will be met by Mr. Coolidge and other ranking officials, who will accompany the body to the White House behind the escort of a squadron of cavalry and a battalion of field artillery. It then will lie in the East room until Wednesday. Whether there will be private addresses at the White House will depend upon the wishes of Mrs. Harding. Wednesday morning the body will be escorted to the capitol and on to the White House for funeral services. It will lie in state until 8 p. m. Monday and then will start on the last journey to Marion, where on Friday it will find a resting place in the soil of Ohio.

REPORT PLACES WESTERN CROPS IN FAIR STATUS

Conditions of Ranges and Livestock Favorable; Grain Harvesting Begun; Spuds Late in Colorado

The condition of growing crops, ranges and livestock is generally favorable with the prospect for yields above average throughout the Rocky mountain region, according to the semi-annual report of the United States division of crop and livestock estimates. Harvesting of winter grains is well under way but yields are light in many sections due to the unfavorable fall and winter. Some shortage of farm labor is reported in Wyoming and Colorado.

Winter grains are rapidly being harvested throughout Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and Nevada. Winter wheat yields will be light in Colorado and Wyoming and a light yield is reported in New Mexico, where the harvest is completed. The prospects for spring wheat are generally good in all the states both on irrigated and dry land. Some complaint that the grain is not ripening well on dry land and in some sections of Utah, and that is causing some damage in Colorado.

Corn in Good Shape.

The condition of corn and grain sorghums is good in Colorado and, although some fields are not in good condition, is now being made. The corn crop is late on dry farms in New Mexico and in the eastern section much of the crop is badly damaged by the corn borers, grain sorghums look well, but are commencing to need rain. The planting of grain sorghums is making but slow progress in Arizona. Corn is late in Wyoming but has improved rapidly with the weather.

Potatoes are late in Wyoming and Colorado, but are not making rapid growth. Late plantings generally in better condition than early and the dry land crop is looking well. The sugar beet crop is in good condition in Utah, Wyoming and Colorado, and in the present favorable growing conditions continue a good yield may be expected.

Rains Beneficial.

Recent rains have improved pastures and ranges in New Mexico and Arizona. Ranges are good to excellent in Colorado and Wyoming. Rain is greatly needed in the mountain and parts of western counties of Utah. Showers greatly benefited ranges in southern Nevada. All classes of livestock are doing well throughout the entire Rocky mountain region and are in better condition than last year. The second crop of alfalfa is growing well throughout the corn belt, and good yields of wild hay are indicated.

Cotton Improving.

The irrigated cotton crop is looking well in New Mexico, but some damage both from heavy rains and draught is reported on the dry land area. Cotton is maintaining its favorable condition in Arizona. The shipment of cantaloupes is about over in Arizona; market shipments are being made from Donna Ana county, New Mexico, and will probably amount to from 500 to 600 cars. Broom corn is in fair condition in New Mexico, but the crop in Torrance county where 45 per cent of the crop is grown, has been badly damaged by draught; apples are in good condition, but blight is, damaging pear. Although some hail damage is reported, cabings, onions, lettuce and cantaloupes are generally in good condition in Colorado; an excellent sherry crop is reported and apples are above average.

LANDIS RULES AGAINST JAP MARITAL CONTRACT

Holds that Marriage Arranged by Parents in Orient is Not Valid Here; Girl is Defendant

AUBURN Cal., Aug. 4 (AP)—A contract of marriage made by the parents in Japan, while the parties to the contract were residents of the United States, although valid under the laws of Japan, is not enforceable here, according to a decision rendered by the superior court here today by Judge J. D. Landis in an action brought by Yuzuru Yukiwawa, an American citizen, against Takekoshi Yukiwawa, the plaintiff, 28 years old, testified that she was born in California and had never been out of the state. When she was 16, she testified her father had the father of her Japanese husband in Japan, and the parents then entered into a contract of marriage for their children, according to the laws of Japan. When she was 18, she told the court that she believed she was the wife of the defendant, and went to live with him. She testified that seven days she testified, having been informed that the marriage was not legal in the United States. She brought suit to have the marriage annulled or declared void.

In his opinion, Judge Landis ruled that the marriage contract must have been solemnized in the United States in order to constitute a valid marriage. He found that the contract had not been solemnized either here or in Japan, and held it to be void.

DEFUNCT BURLEY BANK DISTRIBUTES $75,000

Payment of 10 Per Cent Is Distributed Among 1200 to 1300 Depositors; First Since Closing

Seventy-five thousand dollars was distributed to Burley people last week by T. W. Warner, liquidating agent for the state banking department handling the affairs of the defunct Commercial State bank of Burley. The checks were mailed at the first of the week to between 1200 and 1300 depositors of the defunct bank and ranged from a few cents to a little over $3000 for the highest check.

This payment to the depositors is the first that has been made since the bank closed its doors some two years ago, and represents 10 per cent of the deposits of the closed bank belonging to depositors whose accounts were unprotested. Whether there will be any further dividends paid to the depositors remains to be seen, and will depend on collections that are yet to be made.

This 10 per cent dividend is the first and only one to date that has ever been made to any of the defunct banks that closed their doors in Burley a couple of years ago.

Explains Reasons for Predicting Crisis in Farming Situation Expected Next Fall

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Aug. 4. (Special to The News)—Roger W. Babson issued the following statement today regarding the crop situation. Mr. Babson is not as bearish regarding the immediate condition of the farmer as are many of his contemporaries, but he does feel that the farming situation will reach a crisis this fall.

"Twenty years ago the great new item of the farming industry, commerce and business in general was the monthly report of the crop situation. For days before these crop reports were issued, bankers, manufacturers and merchants would speculate on their probable figures. For days after these crop reports were issued, newspapers would have editorials and comments thereon. I well remember when the telegraph lines and the ticker service would be held up pending the issue of the monthly crop report in Washington. Such an interest, however, no longer exists. Crop reports are now issued without much comment. There is little or no suspense and speculation. Whether we have become hardened to the situation or whether more important things have come into our lives, only the future can tell.

Crops Important.

"Crops, however, are still a very important factor for the basis of American prosperity. Unless the farmer is prosperous, the nation cannot be prosperous. Nearly a third of our population is dependent upon the crops for its income, especially on such crops as wheat and corn. If these farmers cannot make money, they cannot buy goods. The farmers supply the greatest selling power of the country. When the farmer loses money, the buying power of the country is seriously curtailed. This is one of the great reasons for the bearish attitude taken today by financiers. The farming centers are depressed. It is possible, of course, that conditions during the next few months may entirely change the situation for the better. The only point I desire to make is that the farmer has reached a very critical period and the next few months will determine whether a year of effort will give him a profit or a loss. A bushel of grain must bring in exchange—that is, in other goods—a much as it brought in previous times before this country can have real prosperity.

Production Increased.

"At the close of the war America was raising the grain for itself and a large part of Europe. Since the war Europe has avoided large areas and has correspondingly increased production of grain. Other countries, such as Canada, the Argentine and Australia, owing to cheaper labor costs, are competing keenly with American farmers and are under selling American grain in Liverpool, the wheat market of the world. As a result, the American farmer is facing a bumper crop and at the same time carrying over about one hundred million bushels from last year's crop. As it is very difficult to interest the consumption of wheat through any advertising or other propaganda, this puts our American farmer in a very critical situation. Hence, during the next few months the crop reports not only of this country, but the other great countries, should be studied very carefully. The American farmer should not yet give up hope. As stated something may happen in this or some other country, which will entirely change the situation one way or the other. One thing, however, we all should keep in mind, that unless the farmer is prosperous the rest of us cannot be prosperous. Hence, it is up to all of us to help the farming situation in every practical way.

Places Responsibility.

"The agricultural situation is largely responsible for the drop in the Robertson chart from its high point of 11 per cent above normal in March to 4 per cent below normal where it stands at the present time. The truth is that the farmers are greatly curtailing their buying and this is being reflected throughout all industries. When the farmer stops buying from the retailer, the retailer stops buying from the jobber, the jobber stops buying from the manufacturer and the manufacturer shuts down his plant. It is easy to tell them that they must suffer with the rest, but the fact is that the farmers are suffering more than the rest. Moreover, the action of the stock markets and commodity markets today is largely due to this suffering of the farmers."

REVELATIONS OF MR. CONOCO

—the most contented motorist in six states!

"A little knowledge—"

IS a dangerous thing—especially when the average man like myself picks up a few fancy words and phrases about gasoline.

"For instance, 'high gravity' sounded good until I sat down to figure it out—and then I learned that the specific gravity of gasoline, alone, didn't indicate any quicker starts, snappier pick-up, greater power or more miles per gallon. In fact, I was just a little ashamed to think I'd ever taken the matter seriously—or a lot of similar terms, for that matter.

"Two things brought me to the Conoco habit—first, the assurance of dependable and uniform gasoline, due to the rigid specifications and improved processes under which it is produced, and second, the plain peace-of-mind fact that wherever I traveled in these mountain states I didn't have to look far for the CONOCO sign."

Large Delegation Here Ready to Help Heroes in Game with Twin Falls, This Afternoon
 Emmett's baseball team arrived in town last evening at 9 o'clock and with them came 20 cars of wild and rabid fans, who made the 180 mile trip to see their heroes in action against the Twin Falls lads.
 Pete Papworth kept his word and came back on the noon train Saturday, and looks fit as a fiddle. Pete says that he is ready to pitch the game of his life, and he will be given the opportunity this afternoon at Athletic park, as Emmett is set on winning the game and is going to make things as miserable as possible for the home club.
 Charles Bench, pitcher de luxe for the Emmett team, is also in fine shape, and today's game will no doubt turn into one of the closest of the year.
 Twin Falls has been having an easy time since starting independent ball this season, but it is the opinion of the fans who have seen the Emmett club that Twin Falls will be fortunate indeed to win from the invaders.
 Be that as it may, Pete Papworth is going to pitch for all he is worth, so hoosters of the local team need not worry about the enemy taking a runaway game.

Turn Hogs into Corn Fields

Corn is the most important crop in the United States, both in acreage and in value. The quantity of yield is greatly influenced by the quality of the seed planted, says the United States Department of Agriculture. A practical way to decrease the cost of harvesting the crop if it is to be fed to hogs is to let the hogs do the harvesting or "hogging down" by turning them into the fields in the fall.

Mrs. E. R. Williams and daughter Miss Lesley Williams, returned on Monday from a visit to the coast. They took in the big cities from Philadelphia to Niagara Falls and went as far east as Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ostrander began housekeeping in their new home at the northwest end of main street on Monday. They have one of the most comfortable and nicely furnished homes in the city and are very comfortably situated.

Roberts and Oughton have been awarded the contract for the cement blocks and rock work on the Hotel Perlin annex. They will manufacture the blocks and also do the masonry.

E. J. Wightman of York, Neb., is spending a week visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Green and family. This is Mr. Wightman's first visit to Twin Falls, although he has had land on the north side for some time. Mr. Wightman has interests in several banking houses in Nebraska.

"Twin Falls, the liveliest town on the map between here and Portland, and E. Blumker of the O. K. candy kitchen, when he returned from a ten days' business trip to that city Tuesday afternoon. All the time he was engaged in his water works company concerning conditions here, and he interested several of his friends in Twin Falls and they will undoubtedly come here to locate this fall.

Al Jones, who was in this week from his farm at the foot of the hills south of town, reports that the water is drilling in well for the Norton estate at Goat springs, has struck a good flow of water at a depth of 400 feet. The water now flows freely from the top of the well, but Mr. Jones expects to get a little stronger flow by going a little deeper. Tests show the water has a temperature of 123 degrees, being so hot that it is uncomfortable to handle.

The city council has given the Twin Falls Water Works company until August 17, to decide what it shall do toward furnishing the city with better water. Paul S. A. Biekel, consulting engineer in water works company, stated that the company would be willing to extend its mains to the high line canal and put in a filter bed system, provided it was assured this would be satisfactory. The council requested the officials of the water works company to meet the city officials on Monday morning, August 13, when a definite action on the water question will be taken.

representatives of the grand lodge, and there also will be small groups from other fraternal organizations. As the funeral cortege moves from the White House, ten thousand Washington school children will lay down a carpet of flowers for the casket bearing the casket and a children's chorus, recruited from the city's playgrounds, will sing the favorite hymns of Mr. Harding. Pennsylvania avenue will be roped off from the White House to the capitol and cleared of all traffic. Cordons of police will line the broad thoroughfare, where it is estimated that more than 100,000 will gather to view the procession.

After the simple services in the rotunda have been concluded, the public will be admitted for a last view of the dead, they will march in from the east entrance four abreast, but, reaching the pier, the line will separate, passing two abreast to either side. There will be a guard of honor at the center and the lines will be kept in continuous motion.

Basing their estimates on similar events in the past, the police have reckoned that the funeral cortege will view the body from 10:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. will exceed 100,000.

When the doors have been closed the body will be taken to the union station by military escort and placed aboard the train. President Coolidge and many other government officers will accompany it to Marion, Va. There Mr. Coolidge is expected to accompany a committee will accompany the funeral party to Ohio. This decision was reached tentatively today at conferences at the capitol, participated in by a number of senate and house leaders.

Other executive orders signed by the chief executive provide that there shall be no official entertainments until next December 1, and that formal calls of organizations, or of officials in a body at the White House will be deferred until after September 3, the end of the 30-day period of national mourning. During those 30 days, flags on federal buildings throughout the country, on naval ships and at navy stations, and army posts will remain at half-mast.

Bulers Send Condolences

Steadily throughout the day messages of condolence to Mr. Harding continued to pour into the White House and the state department. Those received at the state department came from all parts of the world and included cablegrams from King Albert of Belgium and Baron Kato, premier of Japan.

President Coolidge today put his shoulder under the burden of government and made ready to carry on along the pathway pointed out by President Harding. His second day as president was occupied with a long succession of official conferences in which he gained an initial grasp of his duties and responsibilities and made final plans for the state funeral of his predecessor. He signed the name of Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, for the time to a proclamation announcing the passing of Mr. Harding and calling on the nation to observe next Friday as a day of mourning and prayer.

Discuss State Affairs

Affairs of state were taken up with several cabinet members, under-secretaries and others, and those who called at the executive offices in the Willard hotel were Secretary Hughes, Postmaster General New, Secretary Dushy, the two secretaries of war, treasury and labor, Director Lusk of the budget bureau, and Director Hines of the veterans' bureau. The condition of the various federal agencies was discussed in connection with the problems of the early future. Announcements of policy were withheld by the president, nor would he indicate tonight whether he had in mind an extra session of congress. "Everything stands as it is," he said to newspaper correspondents.

Rivers Under London.

There are several small rivers under modern London. The Ems, the main part of which now is inclosed in a sewer, formerly flowed through south London from Brixton Hill, emptying itself in the Thames. It is on record that Queen Elizabeth once rowed up this little river when she visited Sir Walter Raleigh at Brixton.

UTAH PAYS TRIBUTE

Utah pays tribute to the memory of President Harding by the placing of a wreath on his casket during his funeral trip. He had visited their settlements in southern Utah, he had celebrated their achievements in Menasha, Ore., and he had visited what he liked to call "the nation's last frontier," in Alaska.

Persons who gathered at every point of the train through eastern California, Nevada, and to the west in western Utah, saw a picture through the windows of the rear car, the first glimpse of which caused many of them to turn away with a sickening look.

Recalled Sites for Unknown. The body of the nation's dead leader passed through the country much as the funeral procession of the Unknown Soldier passed through the streets of Washington from the capitol to Arlington.

Atmosphere of Mourning. The funeral train is in every sense all that the name implies. It is silent, dully so. The atmosphere of happy and contented faces that filled the coaches on the trip west, is gone, strangely missing in the conduct of those who are making the journey home.

Every two hours a detail of four men representing the army, navy, and marine corps, pass through the coaches from their car ahead to relieve as many of their comrades on duty as they can in the car where the coffin rests.

Miss Ruth Powdley, the nurse who has attended Mrs. Harding during his illness, and Mrs. Charles E. Sawyer, wife of Brigadier General Sawyer, the late president's personal physician, were the chief companions.

which ended in the death at that time of her husband.

The feeding of those with Mrs. Harding was that of anxiety and determination to be prepared and ready to minimize any possible occasion.

This statement soon after it was made was illustrated by a striking way by an act of thoughtfulness on her part. The secret service officer assigned to Mrs. Harding was called into her compartment by Miss Forrester. There he was told personally by Mrs. Harding to take a box of candy to the "news-papper man."

The picture which passed before the eyes of those waiting was that of a slow moving train, the last car of which was a motor car, and the guards, the latter standing at "parade rest," with eyes cast down, focused on the center of their chests.

Mrs. Harding again tonight retired early. During the day she had remained in her room less than 30 feet from where rested the coffin containing the body of her husband.

The services at Marion, by request of Mrs. Harding, will be as simple as possible. There will be no military funeral. The body will be buried in her home town as a citizen of that town.

Cavalry on Duty. CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug 4 (AP)—When the Harding funeral train arrives in Cheyenne Sunday noon it will be met by a squadron from the Thirtieth Cavalry at Fort D. A. Russell.

CHICAGO, Aug 4 (AP)—While the nation's train of sorrow bearing the body of President Harding sped eastward from the Golden Gate, the central train tonight has completed its tribute to the dead executive when the funeral party reaches the mid-continent tomorrow.

Over the Chicago and Northwestern the funeral train will be preceded by a pilot train running 15 minutes in advance of the funeral party, while the main train will be kept clear as the main train is expected to be permitted to pass, and all westbound freight will be required to stop as the pilot train passes and await the passage of the funeral train.

WHERE THE FAULT LIES

The activities of the "wobblies" may or may not constitute a menace to the Government. Because of the fact that these activities are now, in the sense that they constitute unusual happenings of a kind with which newspapers are compelled to deal, a greatly exaggerated idea of both their strength and their numbers has been built up in the public mind.

From time immemorial there has been a class of people who won't work and who are determined, so far as possible, that no one else shall work either. All they ask of life is a few clothes, enough to eat and a place to sleep. They like the kind of activity which consists in obstructing the orderly course of commerce and society.

In numbers they constitute less than one-tenth part of one per cent of the population of this country, yet by concentrating these numbers they have always been enabled to make a good deal of noise and the newspapers have done the rest. They are good advertisers and first-class press agents, but their performances are never equal to their promises, and only in scattered instances have their activities ever made more than a ripple on the surface of things as they are.

As to the political significance of the movement of which they are the militant head and front, there is none, other than that placed in their hands by a weak electorate which, by failure to perform its own duty, gives to the radical movement a place in politics out of all proportion to the numerical strength of its followers.

Only fifty-five to sixty-five per cent of the registered vote in a majority of all the States is actually represented in the ballot boxes, which means that from thirty-five to forty-five per cent of the average every-day, common sense, sane and intelligent people fall utterly, year after year, to take any part whatever in this principal among all duties of citizenship.

Nearly half of the registered voters of the United States are perfectly willing to "let George do it" when it comes to voicing either protest or commendation with respect to the affairs of government in state and national elections.

Now the radical knows better than this—he never fails to play his full part. No radical vote but what finds its way to the voting booth, trust him for that.

The wobbly represents the radical wing of the comparatively small but intensively active element among our population who are unwilling to believe that a sane, orderly application of the principles upon which this Republic was founded is other than an evil thing.

Under the terms of our Constitution the people get just about the kind of government they ask for. In order to get good government the good government group, not sixty per cent of him but all of him, must ask for it.

Sidi Spreckles a Turkish Princess

Princess Sued Chakir, mrs.

In 1915, after his first wife had divorced him, the late John D. Spreckles, Jr., of San Francisco, member of the fabulously wealthy sugar family, married Sidi Wirt, a Kansas ranch girl. He was killed in 1921 in an automobile accident, while his second wife's divorce suit was pending. Now comes word that Sidi Wirt Spreckles has married Prince Sued Chakir, head of one of the richest and most influential families in Turkey, with a wonderful palace overlooking the Bosphorus, in Constantinople.

the vote the average man need have no fear as to the growing influence of the radical. In proportion to the actual voting population of the country there wouldn't be enough of him to make a whisper.

SENATORS SEEING EUROPE

It is said that more than one-fourth of the United States senators have gone abroad this summer. This is a cheering thought.

This country in its "splendid isolation" had allowed itself to become almost entirely detached from European affairs before the war. Goods were bought and sold, countries visited, but as to the social and political situations in the rest of the world, Americans as a whole were as densely ignorant as of the conditions in Egypt in the days of King Tut.

The war threw us into a strange element. We applauded and choked and finally got so we could keep going, but as to the general principles of how to conduct ourselves comfortably in relation to it, we are still far from well-informed.

Having so large a number of members of the senate go to see for themselves the state of European countries at the present time will help to a great extent to clear up the general confusion. Each one will see with the eyes and mind he takes with him, and not with those of the people he visits. Nevertheless, if each one has something to contribute, the total experience acquired must be valuable.

Adding to this the knowledge of facts and consciousness of atmosphere acquired by the many ordinary citizens who have spent some time in Europe during the present year, American public opinion in regard to European matters cannot but take a turn towards greater intelligence.

Getting His Bearings.

One day three of my girl friends and I were out walking. After we had gone a short distance we decided to go to one of the neighbors to visit. We had just started in that direction when along came a big car with only the driver in. He stopped and said: "Are you going north?" "Yes," I replied, as I put my foot on the running board. "Thanks," he said. "I thought I was going the wrong way," and with that the car dashed off, leaving me standing there embarrassed, and my friends were laughing.—Chicago Tribune.

Exchanging Students.

A prominent American woman is making it possible for six British students to enter universities in the United States every year. She has founded scholarships at Princeton, Harvard and Yale for students at Oxford and Cambridge. It is to be hoped that the time soon will come when it will be possible to arrange exchange of students with all enlightened nations of the world.—Woodlands Independent.

Save Woodlands.

Organization of local chapters of the Motorist League for Countrywide Preservation throughout the United States is progressing rapidly, automobile owners and civic clubs generally having endorsed the league's creed that motorists owe to themselves, their families and the nation the care and preservation of woods, hills and countryside.

Advertisement for John Solomon, Incognito, by H. Bedford-Jones. Includes a small illustration of a man's face.

"You're devilish cool about it!" said Wrexham doubtfully. Philbrick smiled. "Why not? There's no rush. Five minutes' start is quite enough—they can't trace me at night, you know. Will you send a wire for me, tomorrow or next day? One of the boys will be glad to take you up to town."

He stood gazing around the dim room as though unable to comprehend it. Thrusting the telegram into his pocket, he went to the center table. There he took a cigar from the open box, bit off the end, and returned to the desk. He dropped into the chair before it, and held the candle to his cigar. Then he leaned back and surveyed the room again. A struggle was in his face.

"This is a rum go, a rum go!" he exclaimed roughly. "Fancy this, now! What did old Hvarson say to this, eh! What did any one say who knew me?" Presently he rose again and went back to the fireplace. He stood there, his feet planted wide apart, and stared hard at the enlarged photograph of the girl on the mantel. It gazed down at him from wide gray eyes, crystal-clear. The struggle deepened in his face. His brows drew down as he looked at the picture.

"It wouldn't do me a great deal of good to 'fancy things,'" he cogitated aloud. "D—n him, I believe he did! Told him too much about myself, that's what I did. Well, young lady, your property is in the hands of a cured bad rascal, and that's the truth! Nothing to say about it, have you? But it's a d—d news—confound it, don't look at me that way! I didn't mean to swear in front of you!"

"Now, ma'am, do you suppose that if I was to stick on this here job, that little matter back in the coral sea would be forgiven me? Do you, ma'am?" He stood motionless, his head slightly cocked, staring up at the picture. Suddenly, as though some inner answer had come to him, his lips parted in a wide smile. Through his beard flashed strong, even teeth like white ivory.

"Well, Miss Alline, it's a bargain!" he cried out exultantly. "Dammé if ever I thought I'd look into eyes on earth—like yours! Eyes of an angel, that's what. I'm a rotten fool and no mistake—but I'll do it. I expect it'll come to no good end, neither. If this isn't a bad crowd we're up against, I don't know one! But it'll be a rum go to be fightin' for something decent, won't it?"

He laughed again, and bowed to the photograph. "I'll do it, ma'am, and thank you for the chance!"

ACCEPTED OXFORD AS MODEL

Architecture of New Paris University is to Be That of Famous English College.

Architects' plans and illustrations are now published in the French press of the new Paris university buildings on the site of the dismantled fortifications and away from the crowded center. It has been interesting to learn that the architect for the first block has abandoned the conventional French style and gone to Oxford for his models, remarks the Manchester Guardian.

A writer in L'Illustration curiously described the architecture as "Anglo-Hollandic." But it is a matter of fact the design bears a great resemblance to the new Breznoese buildings. The ground plan reveals ample space that is to be devoted to gardens—though we are not told whether an attempt is to be made to rival Oxford's carefully tended lawns—and playing fields. In the latter respect, however, it is carefully marked off for "football," "rugby" and "baseball."

Students at English universities—and especially at the older universities—may feel a little envious when they learn the cost of living in this new Paris settlement. The price of a well-equipped room, one of whose luxuries will be that "hot and cold running water," which the French now appear to think so indispensable in every well-regulated establishment, will be 90 francs a month, and the maximum price for dinner or lunch will be 3 francs each meal, and so on. An are to find homes in the hotels.

M. Emile Deutsche de la Meurthe, the generous donor of the first block, has stipulated that out of the 350 for whom rooms are to be found in the first instance, 100 must be women. Among foreign countries who have already consented to establish hotels for their students on the new site are Canada and Argentina. Some of the French papers say that the University of Oxford has been asked to take a hand in the scheme.

Cleaning Leather. Leather pieces that are not badly marred will clean nicely with almond oil on the cloths. Portraits that are exposed may be wiped very carefully with a damp cloth, then with a fine cloth with a wee bit of almond oil. They should be wiped carefully with soft, clean cloths. The wiping must be done quickly and very lightly. Sometimes just a damp cloth will be sufficient. A dry brush and soft cloth are all that it is safe to use in cleaning fine, gilt frames unless they need doing over badly, in which case an old-fashioned rubeby is as follows: Use flour of soft water, then a little of a pint and a half of soft water. In this boll two chopped onions until soft, then strain and cool the liquid. When cold, use it to go over the frame with a camel's hair brush, and when the frame dries it will look like new.

Cure for Insomnia. If you cannot sleep eat a fat-sliced raw onion sprinkled with a little salt just before you go to bed at night. A slice of bread and butter tastes well with it while a sprinkling of lemon juice makes it more palatable to some people. This is also an excellent tonic for a mucky complexion.

HOLT IN NOVEL ROLE. A "gentleman of leisure" in a hurry to catch a train, you'll find him going to shoot a couple of dollars in a dice game in the riotous. Thus we see Jack Holt in his new Paramount picture, "A Gentleman of Leisure," coming to the Idaho theater next Monday. Starting in London, the story, a delightful comedy romance, crosses the seas to America where the romantic of the scene is a young girl who is Miss Holt's leading woman; the supporting cast is unusually capable. Joseph Henabry was the director.

Mysterious Youth Seeks Another Job

Jack Smith, Reputed Millionaire, Mows Weeds and Wrestles with Oil Can

Jack Smith, young reputed multimillionaire, who is in Twin Falls in search of romance and adventures, has been a very busy person the last two days. Jack arrived here three days ago and registered at the Rogers hotel, where he still is stopping. He advertised for a job and then the fun started. Young Smith is posing here as a common ordinary worker and a dandy of his friends. His arrival and story have caused quite a sensation and a topic of conversation to Twin Falls and vicinity. He has been called a press agent, an advertising expert and a joker. Others say that he needed a job and used the methods he has to get one. All kinds of rumors are in circulation concerning him.

Young Jack Smith just smiles when a new story is brought to his attention. He does not comment upon them one way or the other, but they seem to amuse him immensely. Calm and smiling he goes about his business of finding a job as if it were the only thing in the world that amounted to anything. Early Friday morning Jack answered a call from the water works and was sent out to mow. Jack took the scythe that was offered him and fell to work mowing the grass and weeds. "Perception rolled down his face but he did not stop and mowed the job he was asked. He collected cents with a smile and returned to his hotel to await further developments.

SALMON TRACT SETTLERS URGE DISTRICT PLAN

Petitioners Launch New Movement for Acquisition of Project's Dam and Irrigation System Through District

Formation of the Salmon River Irrigation district to acquire the Salmon River Canal company, the dam and irrigation system of the Salmon River project, is the goal of a movement that came to public attention Saturday when a petition instituting proceedings to the county for the expense of an election of the board of county commissioners. The petition bore signatures of 115 settlers, representing, according to the petitioners, 50 per cent of the acreage within the project.

Put Up Bond. With the petition there was offered a $500 bond which was approved by J. D. Barnhart, chairman of the board. The purpose of the bond is to indemnify the county for the expense of an election in case the proposal for formation of the district fails when presented to a vote of the settlers. The bond was signed by R. A. Carter, J. E. Robinson, J. B. Langford, Frank Caudie, Beryl Kunkel and C. L. McFarland, as principals, and by Alex McPherson and C. A. Robinson as sureties.

Hearing Date Set. As the first step in the proceedings the commissioners issued an order fixing August 25 as the time for hearing protests or objections to the proposal. For this purpose the board will convene at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the day designated.

The new movement toward formation of an irrigation district is the second in the history of the Salmon River project, a former attempt made about two years ago having met defeat when it was voted down by the settlers.
