MINE WALKOUT IN SEPTEMBER DRAWS CLOSER

Hopes for Preventing Coal Strike Nearer Vanishing Point as Miners and Operators Disagree

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (AP)—Hopes for prevention of a stoppage in anthracite coal production after September 1 were near the vanishing point tonight.

The second day of the United States coal commission's attempts to settle the dispute between the miners and the operators ended with miners' union officials completely dissatisfied with the response of operators contingent to the union's proposition to shut down the "check-off," with the operators charging the union with "jeteration" to avoid settlement except upon its own terms.

Moreover, the commission, itself behind closed doors, and with each party's terms of labor dispute, sought to explore new avenues for settlement and faced a complete block.

John L. Lewis, as president and chief spokesman for the United Mine Workers, gave to the commission what was interpreted as a flat refusal of arbitration in any form.

Lewis Refuses to Arbitrate. The commission's efforts were directed to finding some basis of proceeding that would keep the mine running while negotiations are carried on.

Police of Steubenville Ordered to Stop Public Demonstrations; Reprisals Banned

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, Aug. 16 (AP)—Fearing a recurrence of last night's anti-Klan rioting, Steubenville authorities tonight issued an order to police to prevent public demonstrations and reprisals and even small assemblages upon the streets.

Rumors of Klan reprisals tonight were not given much credence. Authorities of the city and county said outside help would not be asked.

Klanmen from other Ohio cities arriving tonight were not to be heard riding the investigation into the shooting of Darwin L. Gibson, 35, local Klan leader, by alleged rioters, three of whom were wounded.

MANY ARRESTED IN BOOZE RING

More May Be Taken in What Agents Term Biggest Syndicate in the United States

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—Department of justice officials declared today that the leaders in the largest and most powerful bootleg ring in the United States had been taken into custody in wholesale arrests made in Savannah, Ga., under direction of federal agents.

William Haas, at one time a grocery clerk, is described as the principal leader of a ring which, officials assert, operated a flotilla of craft, had its own cement lined storehouses in the swamps along the Georgia and Florida coasts, and supplied enormous quantities of liquor on the Atlantic seaboard as far north as New Jersey and over the south as far west as St. Louis, Chicago and Cleveland.

Headling forces of law wealth and strength, according to justice officials, were C. Graham Bough, Richard Belle and Sam Goldberg. These three, with Haas, are referred to as the "big four."

Reached to Europe. Haas is alleged to own a number of craft of British registry, which were used to import intoxicants from Europe.

DENVER STANDS IN PATHWAY OF FLOOD WATERS

Terrific Cloudburst Followed by Rush of Torrents Toward City; Warning of Danger Broadcasted

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 16 (AP)—Flood waters laid sweeping down the Platte canyon toward Denver, following a terrific cloudburst early tonight, according to information received at the Denver police department shortly after 8 o'clock.

Every available policeman has been rushed to the lowlands bordering the city where the water rose above the high grounds.

Water is spreading over the lowlands in the vicinity of Littleton, 10 miles from here, and near Englewood, a suburb of Denver.

Telephone operators at the water works in the Platte canyon, where the water is rising, notified the Denver police department.

No loss of life as a result of the inundation has been reported thus far. The first indications of the near approach of the high waters to the city were given shortly after 9 o'clock when patrolmen reported that the Platte river was rising near Overland park, the big motor tourist camp on the outskirts of the city, where approximately 3,500 automobiles are camped.

Shortly afterward houses near by, along lowlands beside the river banks, were inundated. The water rose above the ground floors of the residences in many instances, and the occupants fled with such belongings as they could hastily gather together.

It did not strike the city in the form of a wall of water as had been feared. In the Valverde district, which is about three miles from the business district, the basements and ground floors of many homes were reported flooded.

CORONER SEEKS CAUSE OF FATAL MINE EXPLOSION

Death List Brought to 98 when Last Body is Removed; Will Probe Rumor of Safety Lamp Left Exposed

KEMMERER, Wyo., Aug. 16 (AP)—With the removal today of the last body from Frontier mine No. 1 of the Kemmerer Coal company, where an explosion occurred last Tuesday morning, announcement was made here tonight that a coroner's inquest into the disaster, which cost 98 lives, will be held tomorrow morning.

The body of the last victim taken from the mine was that of Fire Boss Thomas Roberts. The body was found by Roberts' brother James, who had refused to leave the mine without securing some definite information for the Roberts family.

Coroner E. W. Holmes this afternoon was investigating an unverified rumor that a safety lamp, which Roberts had been carrying, was found open beside his body. If the report were true, he pointed out, it would have an important bearing on the cause of the explosion, which the coroner's jury will attempt to ascertain tomorrow.

As a preliminary to the inquest, the coroner questioned P. F. Patterson, state mining inspector, and officials of the United States bureau of mines rescue car, who have been working in the mine since the blast.

Estimates made today by mine officials indicated that the death toll as the explosion will cost the state workmen's compensation fund approximately $200,000 in compensation to be paid to the survivors of those who lost their lives.

Funerals Friday. All funerals will be suspended in Kemmerer tomorrow afternoon, when funerals will be held for those who lost their lives, were busy at the local cemetery today digging large graves to hold several coffins each.

Arrangements are being made for a community burial service in the city park tomorrow afternoon, under the auspices of the Lincoln County United Mine Workers of America local.

Old Suitcase Discovered by Police May Contain Fortune in Securities

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16 (AP)—A mass of mud, oil and paper in a decayed suit case found under a bridge in Beverly Hills, a suburb, today may prove to be securities worth $100,000.

Police detectives, who previously recovered about $100,000 worth of the stolen securities, and bank officials tonight began the work of trying to trace the find and determine whether it was what they hoped it was.

Nine persons have been taken into custody on suspicion of complicity in the robbery and murder, but the police say they believe that so far they have not apprehended the actual bandits.

It was in the arrest of Salvador Martinez July 4 that the police obtained clues which led to the arrests of the other eight and also to the discovery of the suit case today.

PICTURE PEOPLE TAKE PART IN ASSAULT AFFAIR

Conflicting Accounts Given by Attorneys Concerning Roadhouse Party Attended by Ince and Stewart

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (AP)—Conflicting accounts of how George Stewart, 20, brother of Anita Stewart's film actress, suffered a skull fracture after a party in a roadhouse Wednesday were told by attorneys for Stewart and for Ralph Ince, film actor and director, who admitted he had an altercation with Stewart.

Miss Stewart's attorney M. L. Malevinsky, charged Ince had beaten the youth into unconsciousness while he lay on the roadway and then took him to the Lambs club, where he kept him concealed until the next day when he was taken to a hospital in a serious condition.

Malevinsky said that Harry Voight, Miss Stewart's chauffeur, who was driving the party, told him he had heard an altercation and someone asked him to stop the car. As he did so Ince and Stewart sprang out and the director sent the youth to the pavement with a blow to the jaw and then followed up the attack while he was lying there. The chauffeur said he attempted to intervene but also was knocked down by Ince.

Ince's attorney, Nathan Vidaver, admitted the fight, but said Stewart started the attack, having taken offense when Ince spoke to an enemy of Stewart during the party. He said that Stewart became so abusive Ince stopped the car and got out, intending to take a taxi, but that Stewart sprang after him and in the ensuing struggle hit his head on the curbstone.

Ince, who is married to a sister of Miss Stewart, has filed suit for divorce and this was another cause of intense feeling between the two men.

No complaint has been filed and both factions said that no legal action was contemplated.

SUCCESS CLAIMED FOR FARM CREDIT MEASURE

Loading of Five Million During Two Months of Existence of Intermediate Banks Is Pointed Out

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—The practicability of the rural credit act has been demonstrated, in the opinion of federal farm loan board members, by the fact that in the two months of its existence there has been in operation, approximately, five million dollars have been loaned to the farmers.

Applications for loans are increasing and board members are confident that a continuing demand for credit will come from the farm districts.

Each of the money supplied through the credit banks, it was said today, has gone to cooperative organizations with the major grain crops and wool providing the security for most of the money loaned.

Officials of the war finance corporation which heretofore had been the sole source of federal funds for the farmer, report consistent repayments in repayments of loans by its agencies, while there has been a slowing down in new applications for funds. This is regarded by them as indicating that the organized farmers are turning to the new credit system.

ARCHITECT ACQUITTED OF KILLING HIS WIFE

Maryland Business Man Found Not Guilty of Murder; Wife Was Member of Prominent Family

FREDERICK, Md., Aug. 16 (AP)—B. Edward Kepner, local architect and business man, was acquitted tonight of the murder of his wife, Grace Simmons Kepner, member of a prominent Frederick family.

The verdict of not guilty came after Chief Judge Troner, Judge Worthington and Judge Peter of the circuit court, had heard testimony for five straight days. The judges deliberated one hour and 10 minutes. Judge Troner, in announcing the decision, said that "in the opinion of the court the evidence does not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused committed the crime of which he stands charged."

The body of Mrs. Kepner with a bullet through her head, and a pistol lying near by was found June 18 on a bed at the home of her father, Zera Houck Sr., where the Kepners lived.

URGES FINGER PRINT SYSTEM

Chicago Man Sees Benefits to Arise from Taking Records of Every Person

DES MOINES, Aug. 16 (AP)—Establishment of a federal finger print bureau where the finger prints of every man, woman and child in the United States would be on file, was urged today as an economic measure by speakers at today's annual convention here of the International Association for Identification.

Such a bureau, A. L. Dunlap of Chicago declared, would save the people of the United States approximately $14,000,000 annually in insurance alone. He explained that there are about 40,000 unidentified dead in the country every year, and that insurance records show that one in every six or seven persons carrying death insurance for approximately $200.

"This means," he said, "that about 7000 of the unidentified dead carried life insurance amounting to approximately $14,000,000 that the insurance companies are unable to pay to the heirs because the dead are unidentified."

The value of positive personal identification lies in preservation of the individuality of the family and of the family unit to the order of society, declared J. H. Edwards of Akron, Ohio, captain of police for the Pennsylvania railroad system.

Omaha, Neb., Detroit, Mich., Dallas, Texas, Hot Springs, Ark. and Houston, Texas, have extended invitations for next year's convention of the association. The 1924 convention city will be chosen Saturday.

London's Shrine.

Beligion is not the only purpose for which people frequent London's great shrine, St. Paul's cathedral. Many go there to sleep. When turned out at six they can go on to St. Martin-in-the-Fields, which is open all night. Only devotional books are supposed to be read, but the vergers are constantly finding visitors reading popular novels. Others try to eat their lunch there, which is also forbidden. A number of lunatics wander into the building from time to time. Most of them are quite harmless. Sometimes visitors try leaving their luggage there for an hour or two and are upset to find it stolen. One of the attractions of St. Paul's is Holman Hunt's picture, "The Light of the World," which was once exhibited in Canada. In the crypt underneath, near the tombs of Nelson, Wellington, Roberts and Scott, is a bust of Sir John A. Macdonald, Canadian premier.

Damage Suit Against Famous Players for $500,000 Filed in New York Court

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (AP)—Complaint in a Sherman law treble damage suit for $2,500,000 was filed Wednesday in the federal court against the Famous Players-Lasky corporation, moving picture producers, and 15 of its directors, by William Marston Seabury, attorney for Joseph C. Boss, formerly a moving picture exhibitor in McAlester, Okla.

Boss alleged that in 1919 the Famous Players-Lasky and others conspired to monopolize the moving picture industry. Among the directors named in his complaint were Adolph Zukor, Jesse L. Lasky, Cecil B. DeMille, Daniel Frohman and Eugene Zukor.

Boss charged that he had an understanding with Famous Players-Lasky he was to show their pictures exclusively in McAlester. After a year a subsidiary of the corporation acquired the theater opposite that of Boss and showed Famous Players-Lasky pictures. Later that year the theater, Boss alleged, told him he wanted to quit the corporation and buy Boss' theater to run himself, independently. He paid only $2000 cash and contracted to pay the remainder of $15,000, the total price. Boss said he had never received another cent and that it soon developed the purchaser was still in the employ of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation and had acted for them in buying the theater.

KANSAS CITY TO DENVER TRIP MADE IN 19 HOURS

Trails Association Manager Makes Good in Exceptional Road Test; Average Speed, 33 Miles

DENVER, Aug. 16 (AP)—J. W. Hazelbaker of Kansas City, Mo., field manager of the Midland Trails association, Wednesday proved his contention that he could drive an automobile from Kansas City to Denver in 19 hours and not exceed the speed limits in either Kansas or Colorado.

Hazelbaker left Kansas City at 9:05 a. m. and reached Denver at 9:15 p. m., covering the 657 miles over the Midland highway in 19 hours and 10 minutes. More than 10 minutes was deducted from the actual running time because of tire trouble. His average speed was 33 miles an hour, and 15 minutes, faster than the Kansas City to Denver train schedule.

L. E. Ginnere, who left Kansas City at 6 a. m. over the Union Pacific highway, had mapped out a schedule that was to land him in Denver at 7:30 p. m. Several hours after that time, however, Ginnere had not reached here.

Swifts That Build Edible Nests.

On Tawai-Tawai Island of the Sulis archipelago live colonies of the edible bird's nests, that make the edible birds' nests so beloved of the Chinese. These birds have some sort of glands in their jaws that secrete a thick glue which they stick up against the wall as a swallow does mud, and the nest, when completed, looks like white glass, but is very light. They are sold to the traders for their weight in Mexican silver, and it takes 17 nests to balance a dollar. They are supposed to be extremely nourishing and the broth is in demand for invalids. After the "first chop" nests are collected the birds begin at once the construction of the second chop, but these are worth only about one-half the first chop. When these are knocked down the birds resort to moss with only enough glue to hold it together. These are allowed to remain and in them they raise their broods.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Aug. 16 (AP)—Forest rangers today conscripted men on the streets of Santa Barbara and rushed them to the fire in the Santa Barbara forest which has been burning for two weeks and was believed to have been brought under control. The rangers reported the flames are driving across the eastern end of the great San Marcos ranch and are coming toward this city.

DOUBLE TREAT IN STORE FOR BASEBALL FANS

Colored Boys from Pocatello Promise to Make Things Lively Sunday; Fix to Pitch for Local Players

Local fans will have a double treat bestowed upon them Sunday afternoon when the Pocatello Gladiators, the only colored ball team in the Intermountain region, will clash with the local stars.

Aside from carrying a wallop as ball players, the team has a high class jazz orchestra that entertains the crowd before the game is called.

Mininger Davis of the colored team states that he has beaten all the teams in the eastern part of the state, and wants to add more laurels Sunday. Whether he will be able to beat the Twin Falls boys remains to be seen.

Phil Fix is slated for pitching duty, and should do as well against the Pocatello bats as in the first six innings against Emmett, where the invaders are in for a tough battle.

Fix pitched an elegant game last week, and will no doubt repeat Sunday. Lavinillo will take care of his slants. The game will start at 2:30, a half hour earlier than usual as the Pocatello men must catch the evening train.

FORDSON TRACTOR SHOWS ALL-ROUND CAPABILITY

Field Demonstration During Day and Picture Show in Evening Draw Interested Crowds

Adaptability of the Fordson tractor and motor to farm work, demonstrated Thursday by the Fordson caravan on land north of the tourist park, was witnessed during the day by large numbers of persons, and motor pictures displayed out-of-doors near the Western Auto company establishment attracted a considerable crowd.

Both demonstration and picture show will be repeated Friday, and in addition the several tractors making up the caravan will parade the principal streets during the noon hour.

Spectators at the demonstration Thursday saw the tractor plow, harrow and level a field, and witnessed sawing of a quantity of timber by a saw operated from the tractor's motor. They witnessed also the grinding of about two blocks of thoroughfare in the vicinity of the tourist park by the one-man grader for which the Fordson tractor furnishes motive power.

A cordial invitation to both the demonstration and the open-air picture has been extended by Manager George Eastley of the Western Auto company, under whose auspices the events are being held.

Wisconsin Woman Believes "Laundry Room Alone Is Worth a Dollar"; Is Surprised at Idaho's Beauty

Mrs. S. O. Peterson, who is making the trip from Milwaukee, Wis., to the coast, in speaking of relative merits of pay or no-pay parks, said: "Why, the use of the laundry room alone is worth one dollar to any woman." Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Artell from Ellendale, S. D., who are on their way to Whittier, Cal., said that what surprised them most was the enormous crops on such small fields.

ANALYZES CUTS IN GAS PRICES

Teagle Asserts Present Costs Only Temporary; Sees Recovery of Industry

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (AP)—Present prices for gasoline can only be temporary, although further cuts may reasonably be expected if crude oil prices are again reduced. W. T. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, declared today in a formal statement.

He expressed the opinion that the oil industry would weather the present downward trend, which would not last long.

"The present disrupted market," he said, "resulted from the dressing-up sale of a relatively small amount of 'distress' gasoline. The large over-production of crude oil in recent months together with the factor of the higher sulphur content, and increased refinery efficiency has resulted in piling up abnormally heavy stocks of gasoline for this season of the year, and forced liquidation by some holders, regardless of cost." Mr. Teagle said the cuts initiated in South Dakota and afterward made effective throughout the mid-western and southern states represented the only change made there in a number of months, while four successive cuts had been made in the eastern market since last February, because of lower costs of crude oil available for seaboard refineries.

Peak Production Expected.
At present, he said, an average of 117,000 barrels of California oil reach eastern seaports daily. Southern California fields are expected to reach their peak production next month, but, he said, it would be a long time before shipments from California would equal the amount of oil now available in those fields. The maximum shipments available to American tankers, which are the only ones allowed in the inter-coastal business, is 200,000 barrels daily.

Except for comparatively small shipments from gulf coast ports, the mid-continent crude oil is being received here. This is used largely for lubricating.

Small Refineries Hit.
While Mr. Teagle admitted the present situation was precarious for some of the smaller refining companies, he expressed confidence that the oil industry as a whole would "come out a. k. a." He declared he has experienced two or three similar periods of over-production, including the Cuban purchase of 1915, and that the industry had successfully weathered all of them.

FAIL TO MEET RAISE.
CHICAGO, Aug. 16 (AP)—Directors of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, meeting here today, adjourned without announcing any action to meet the raise in price of gasoline in South Dakota effective Saturday when Governor W. H. McMaster announced he would advance prices to within 6.6 cents of the price of the price reduction competition was started.

The Standard, however, offered its aid to Governor McMaster in his announced intention to institute a reduction in the industry. The Standard Oil company of Indiana reduced prices 6.6 cents throughout its territory after Governor McMaster had ordered state deposits in South Dakota to sell gasoline for 16 cents and the Standard met the price.

Local oil men said they looked for a change in price in the states included in the territory of the Standard Oil company of Indiana before the first of the week, despite the fact that in the previous step in the war, South Dakota had led the way.

MANY ARRESTED
Cuba, the Bahamas and other points in the West Indies. Bug the ring, the story goes, reached out even to Great Britain, France and Canada for its supplies. Great fleets of motor boats were anchored outside the three-mile limit, the claim is, and fast motor boats made the transfers to storehouses ashore. Distribution then was made by automobiles and trains.

It was two years ago that information came to the department of justice that Savannah was the port for the receipt and distribution of much of the liquor reaching the southern and eastern market. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, an assistant to the attorney general, ordered prohibition enforcement agents to that city in an effort to break up the illicit trade.

Grew Rapidly.
By this time, however, the king, from a beginning as a small scale, had become, according to officials, a large and powerful organization with an efficient intelligence department. The result was that the agents quickly were "uncovered" making it necessary to replace them several times.

The task of collecting evidence upon which to undertake prosecutions proved so difficult that an investigation of the federal tax returns of a number of suspected "bootleggers" was undertaken in the hope of developing leads that might lead to arrests under the prohibition law.

Income Exceeded $1,000,000.
As a result the "big four" and four or five others were indicted for violation of the revenue act for failure to make proper returns. It was charged that Haahr had failed to make a return on income in excess of $1,000,000.

A week ago those in charge of the bootleg investigation decided there was sufficient evidence on which to base action. Arresting indictments for the "big four" and others were drawn in the department of justice and additional agents of the bureau of investigation were dispatched to Savannah to assist in the final roundup.

THE SEVENTH TIME

Not the least impressive thing about Henry F. Sullivan's swim across the English Channel is that it was his seventh attempt. The feat speaks volumes for the character of the swimmer.

The stormy Channel is one of the most difficult passages in the world, on account of its choppy seas and baffling tides. Sullivan tried first 10 years ago, just as he came of age.
Then the war held him up for several years. He tried again in 1920.
On that occasion he got within three miles of the French coast, but was swept back by the tide. Ten days later he renewed the attempt and got within a mile and a half of his goal.
Twice the next year he went at it again, and both times was carried off by hostile tides when he had almost gained the shore.

He kept right on, last year and this year, and at last succeeded. His success came after he had almost reached Calais, on the French coast, only to be swept out to sea again. He was sick, too, for almost the whole distance.

Here is an example of perseverance worth, perhaps, of a more useful enterprise. Yet it shows strikingly the moral value of sport. There may be something in the English belief that it was devotion to outdoor sports which enabled England to win the war.

The sporting ideal is absolute devotion and self-sacrifice to gain the goal. It is doing what you set out to do. Applied to winning a game or breaking a record in a quest that matters little in itself, it develops in a man or a class or a nation a spirit that wins in bigger and more vital things, through the same unwillingness to give up.

NO OIL MONOPOLY

Stanley K. Hornbeck of the Department of State is rather convincing when he says that the excitement and alarm connected with the "world race for petroleum" are uncalled for.

Other nations, he argues, have no reason for bitterness against this country. Despite their wild assertions, the United States is far from having a petroleum monopoly. The fact is that the United States has only about fourteen per cent, or one-seventh, of the world's estimated supply.

On the other hand, there is no reason for Americans to feel alarmed, because Great Britain, the largest foreign oil-producer, has only about eight per cent of the total.

The supply is scattered pretty well over the world. Russia is thought to possess eight per cent, Mexico six per cent and South America, as a whole, eighteen per cent.

Nobody knows what the ultimate total will be. Now fields are being discovered right along and the estimates revised upward. The present estimate of seventy billion barrels should last civilization for quite a while. And natural business competition can be depended on to spread the product around where it is needed, except possibly in case of war.

MATRIMONIAL RULES.

Nobody takes advice on matrimony, yet philosophers hopefully keep on giving it. Here are the ripened conclusions of Judge Sabath of Chicago.

What the World Is Doing

AS SEEN BY POPULAR MECHANICS MAGAZINE

HOUSES MOVED OVER RIVER MOUNTED ON BARGE
In making room for a new state capital, 18 houses were moved across the Kanawha River at Charleston, West Virginia. Each was carefully cradled by the barge and rebuilt somewhere else, or of transporting them to sites on the opposite side of the river, the owners chose the latter. Lashed securely to heavy timber frames, 48 houses were moved in this manner, as an experiment, the first of which were large, two-story structures, were easily carried on great barges and finally set down on their new locations.

SCARED BY BAD LUCK BIRD

See Oull of Evil Omen Has "Got the Goat" of Residents of Pelham Bay.

Pelham Bay is holding its breath
and waiting for the next catastrophe.
What the catastrophe will be no one dare to prophesy, but that there will be misfortune of some kind no one familiar with the bay would doubt.
The bird of ill omen has appeared again, says the New York Sun and Globe. The bird is an elderly and distinguished sea gull which looks like a cross between Shakespeare's Polonius and Poe's raven.

It sits around on the rocks that dot
the bay and looks exceedingly idly and disgruntled and misanthropic and ominous. If transmigration of souls happens in the bird world, the creature is undoubtedly the raven or Polonius or both. "Nevermore" is that bird's middle name and its philosophy of life.

Bunglowsists around Pelham bay all remember the extraordinary series of familiar that occurred last summer in the wake of the bird of ill omen. It was nearly June of last year when the bird first put in an appearance, looking no less acclimated than it does today.

Hardly had the bird's peevish face and gray-white feathers first been seen than three fishermen upset their boat.
One was drowned and the other two were pulled out barely conscious.
Two weeks later, while the evil eye of the bird was still on the bay and its habitués came the great storm which will be remembered as long as anybody lives who saw it or was caught in it.

Then came the whole scare which put a crimp in the long-distance swimming contests. And there came one thing and another. A host of unkill-able and has been here since March islands, pride of the bay. A swimmer was drowned within fifty yards of a boathouse. The captain, most picturesque of 800-pound men and one of the historic figures of the bay, left it flat and emigrated to the Bronx.

All because of the bird of ill omen, says the Bay. Not a doubt in the world.
When winter came Pelham Bay hoped the bird would go South and forget to come back, but this dyspep-tic-looking granduncle of all sea gulls brought an enviable memory. Here he is again, and has been here since March.
Bunglowsists of Pelham feel sure that nothing else but that bird caused the extremely cold spring—perhaps even decreased the sun to lose its three degrees of heat or whatever the amount.

The bird doesn't cut up any antics, you understand. His only capriciousness is to depart. Instead it was a just sit on a rock, looking more like an ill omen than anything you ever saw. Pelham Bay is waiting with some anxiety. As long as the bird of ill omen sticks around it believes with some reason that anything is more than likely to happen.

How Hawaiian Fig Grove From Airplanes

Sowing seeds is one of the latest services that the United States army fliers have been asked to perform. When the Department of Agriculture recently wished to plant a number of barren areas in Hawaii with fig trees, it was found the project would require months of hard work in places that were almost inaccessible.
The planes with four airman were assigned the task and planted the grounds in less than three hours.

Find Rare U. S. Stamp in Italy

One of the rarest of early United States stamps recently was discovered in Italy where it has been hidden for more than 75 years. It is valued at $7,500. Made in Buchanan in 1845, when James M.
Buchanan was postmaster, it preceded government issues of 10-cent stamps.
So far as known, there are only six specimens of this issue in existence, and at a Paris sale last year one of these stamps was bought for $6,000 by an American.
The stamp found in Italy is said to be distinguishable from all other known copies, because it shows all of the four outside border lines.

Lubricating-Tight Windows

A better method than planing down the guide strips to make tight-fitting windows open and close easily, is to use a suitable lubricant on the guides. An excellent solution for the purpose is a mixture of paraffin and turpentine. Dissolve as much paraffin in turpentine as possible, by shaving the paraffin and allowing the mixture to stand for a few days. Apply the solution liberally to the window guides with a brush, going over them two or three times. The turpentine will evaporate and leave a colorless film of paraffin on the guides. After this treatment the windows will slide freely, regardless of weather conditions.

A keroceros heater of the common type can readily be converted into a serviceable gas heater. Remove the oil receptacle and wick, and fasten a circular stove gas burner in position with wire. The gas burner is purchased at small cost, and furnishes considerable heat.

CHAPTER XIV

David Macarty and his son were sitting in the library of the Macarty house on Cypressmont island, while the father swung to her moorings in the bay.

Father and son did not get on any too well. Felix felt that his father was too cautious, too "playcane," as he expressed it. David felt that his son was too impetuous, too headstrong.

As the two sat together in the dark old library, the afternoon heat hung heavy on the air outside, but their warmth did not penetrate the house.
David Macarty held a paper in his hand, upon which was an abruptly broken paragraph of writing. He had read it writing a hundred times since the death of his relative, Alne Le-vergne's father.

"Here," exclaimed Felix, holding out his hand. "Let's have another look."
His father gave him the paper. Felix spread it out, frowned over it. The writing, which had been written by Levergne an hour before his death,
read:

"My dear Alne: In confiding to you a great, an immense treasure, I do so with the injunction that it be held as a sacred trust. It does not belong to me, but to a friend, whose name you will find in many papers here. In the smaller box are the Gemlin, the Queen, and the Sea-moon. Three of these are pearls, probably the finest ever taken from the Gulf of Aden; when I brought them home, their customs valuation was ten thousand dollars each, and the value of the whole lot, including that of Sheba is at least of still greater value. In the larger box are—"

Felix Macarty looked up, uttered a curse, and crumpled the paper in his hand.

"Here!" exclaimed his father, startled. "You young fool, see carefully." Felix turned on him with a start, his dark eyes smoldering.

"What good is it to us? Not a hint in it of where the stuff is placed! It's bound to be in the library, somewhere!
We know from the way you pumped Alne that he knew nothing of it—before he was killed. It well, quite before he got down to business, and do it quick! Building that cursed dam has cost too much money. That's what we get for your slow and cautious ways.
Felix!"

The grave features of David Macarty looked disturbed.

"I know we're failed, my boy," he said weakly. "But why? From unforeseen accidents, that's all. That confounded Wrexham ruined all our plans and we are back where we started from—"

"Oh, are we?" snapped the younger man. "What about that man Fortier, eh? He's wise."

"Nonsense!" Alne herself suspects nothing—"

Felix Macarty broke into a torrent of profanity.

"Open your eyes!" he cried out savagely. "Can't I read behind all the story you've mandered along with?
The girl is wise to us. So is Fortier—her lawyer. You've fiddled away the time playing your own sort of game, and I've backed it out. Now that's done with, understand? You've failed.
Your game has failed. Can you deny it?"

David Macarty fingered his lips. His complacency was shattered, riven,
and he stopped at length. "No, I can't. So far, it has failed. Nevertheless—"

"I backed you," intervened his son coldly. "Now I'm done with your way of playing. I'm going to play my own game, understand? In my own way.
Which is to be me or you don't.
Which is it to be?"

David Macarty gazed at his son with pleading eyes, but met only an inflexible purpose, an iron determination. He met no affection whatever.

"Do you forget that I am your father?"
he said, donning his usual dignity.

"No!" flashed the other. "That's why I'm giving you a chance, one and only chance, to sit in my game!
I'm out of yours. You'll get no where. Get behind me, and you'll share a fortune—a whooping fortune!
You know the kind of man Levergne
was. He had two boxes of jewels, and you can bet they meant something! Yes or no?"

"Yes," said David Macarty in a low voice.

Felix dropped into a chair, lighted a cigar, and surveyed every corner of the room with a cool appraisal. Somehow, those smoldering eyes made the elder man wince.

"I shan't bother you with details—you'd only whine about 'em," said Felix brutally. "What you'll see will be results, that's all! I can use you. You'll come in handy when it's a question of covering tracks and stepping soft."

"That's where you shine. But for the present, only two men toward every corner of the house. I'm one of them. The other is Pett Jean."

At the mention of this name, David Macarty lifted his head. Now he responded, and in his voice was an un-wonted earnestness.

"Felix, let me tell you for the last time, an afraid of that creature! He is no man. He is a devil! That's what he's a devil. There's no crime he'd hesitate to commit; he has no more conscience or ethical sense than a wild beast."

"You talk of using me," went on the father, with gathering frown. "That's your own affair, and I'll have nothing to do with it. I'll have nothing to do with you, my father. Using me! Have you no love for me, Felix?"

"Certainly I have," said Felix Macarty, with a quiet assurance.

"Sometimes I doubt it," David was on the offensive now, and remained there when Felix found that the devils were employed, the girl I met Pett Jean on him. And with what result? None—"

"You probably did it halfway," said the son scornfully. "Toid Jean to say the lawyer out. You should have told him to kill Fortier then and there. But that's your own affair."

David Macarty nodded unhappily, as he gazed into space. His son continued at once.

Wrexham is out of our way. He took his schooner and went—took that old fool John Philbrick with him, too!
The Chinaman, Ah Lee, is dying; he's probably been killed. And my income for there's no one to look to fill Ah Lee's place. The job is slow for Pett Jean. Therefore, we'll have to grab those jewels, and do it at once! In spite of your kindly advice, the man to do the job—or help with it—will find it in Pett Jean. As you say, he's not a man, but a devil. So much the better! If I could drag Satan in person into this game, on my side, I'd do it!"

David Macarty put out his hands with a gesture of futility.

Felix smiled thinly and leaned back in his chair.

"I'll do what you failed to do," he said. "Pett Jean will be here tonight, sure. He was to come when Ah Lee was dead, and I had word that Ah Lee wouldn't last out the day. I'll have all the liquor business cleared up before he gets away in an hour or so.
That'll be our only hind. Then we'll go to work at once."

David Macarty flung him a startled look.

"Not tonight, surely? You can't mean—"

"Wait and see," Felix laughed, sweeping his feet. "Maybe not tonight. Don't know yet, but we will see the yacht—and you. See you later."

He swung out of the room.

David Macarty sat in perturbed thought. It was the tragedy of this man's life that he had no hold upon his son—that he must stand by, helpless, and see Felix go his own way.
Now he could do nothing but watch and see about him, too many little things! And there, too, lay tragedy—they were all little things.
David Macarty had no great crimes behind him; he was a man of small deeds and petty tricks. Nothing to steal his soul.

Now that Alne knew or suspected about those pearls, he was uneasy. He had supposed that paper under the table was the dying dictate. Levergne had hidden it, had kept its contents a secret as he thought. He dreaded any open rupture with her, shrank from meeting her clear eyes bent upon him in scorn and reproach.

The talk of marriage between Felix and Alne had fallen through, nor did David Macarty there see any way of arranging would not have secured the jewels to him and Felix. On the contrary, the Louisiana law would confirm Alne in their ownership, or trust.

"No, that's a dead issue," reflected David Macarty. Then he brightened.
"Does that mean some way of obtaining title to them after the marriage? Then they would be community property—and the law tucks that away in the absolute control of the husband—and, perhaps I haven't failed yet, my fine Felix! But I shall have to think—"

So David Macarty fell to his thinking, although it was destined to bear fruit. For when he thought, tragedy was sweeping close under the reckless hand of Felix.

At dinner that evening, David Macarty informed his son that he was going aboard the yacht and meant to stay aboard her.

"Don't let Wright we may put to sea tonight—let him sleep and know nothing until the time comes. By the way, I told Pett Jean to bring your man,
Solomon, whenever he showed up.
There's no sense having that fool steward hiding, got somewhere in the house."

"It seemed the safest—"

"There you go again with your cursed caution!" exclaimed Felix, heatedly. "His evidence will never be needed, and you know it! Thompson will be released soon enough, when it's clear that the dead man was Michel Hennepin. I only hope Thompson won't be released too soon—liable to happen at any minute!
You discharged him, of course!"

David Macarty looked troubled.

"Certainly not! He's been useful to me—"

"More playcane business!" said his son, angrily.

Just after the coffee was served,
the negro houseman entered with word that a boat had come in to the landing, and two men were coming up to the house. Felix uttered an exclaima-tion, which he thought was "Ah Lee!"

"That'll be Pett Jean and Solomon.
I'll send the steward aboard the yacht, eh? And take Jean into the library."

He hurried outside. At the gallery, steps he encountered the two men,
whose identity he had rightly guessed.
When they saw him, an indistinct group gathered under the starlight.

"Ah Lee!" queried Felix Macarty.
"Has he died?" Pett Jean managed to croak and jerked his thumb at the pudgy figure of Solomon. "He told this one to handle the accounts and pay off the men. It was well done.
When they see him, he'll be sure could talk with the two Arabs, and all's done."

Felix looked at Solomon. "So you talk Arabic, do you? How come?"

"I've knocked about quite a bit, sir," returned Solomon. "Some of 'em 'ere been tongue talkin' me 'n' sayin' 'n' that's all, and I've picked 'em up."

"B' your own fault, you haven't picked up too much information about my business," said Felix Macarty, coldly.
"You settled Ah Lee's accounts, did you?"

"No, sir—paid off 'n' men, that was
all. I wouldn't make no hold on 'em open 'n' account books, sir. They're all together in the canoe."

"Very well. Take 'em out to the yacht and settle back to your position.
Tell Mr. Wright to send a boat ashore for my father whenever a lantern is wanted from the house. And have things in shape aboard—no more poked out for a cruise tonight."

"Werry good, sir." Solomon touched his cap and stamped away toward the landing.

Art of the Idyl.

The Idyl is the product of a consciously artistic stage of civilization.
Even the simplest, plainest, most modern, the most extreme of social and heroic themes—imply an effort on the part of the poet to return to nature, and by means of highly developed processes of art to emphasize such features as seem to him beautiful.
The poet's aim is to give the primitive ballad air of the modern, to give the modern ballad air of the primitive.
They exist for natural expression and not adornment. At the other extreme is the Idyl, which exists for adornment and minute detail and for personal expression of the mood with which the poet has invested nature—
C. M. Gayley.

Three-Coat Cold.

A "three-coat cold" is a Chinese expression for severe cold. Some of our tramps and rumpsters know what it is to wear three coats or three trousers, and three hats; but that has nothing to do with the temperature.
They have the inside of them warm and all their belongings on their backs like a small. The trouble is, they sometimes carry other people's belongings,
too. China contains vast coal deposits, almost unworked. However, and the Chinese pile on coats instead of coal on cold days.

Egg-Grading Scale.

An egg-grading scale has been invented that registers the weight per dozen of an egg placed on it.

GOVERNMENT REPORTS
ADVANCE WHEAT PRICE

Estimates of Reduction of About 15 Cents in Average to Be Shown in Fall Has Favorable Effect

CHICAGO, Aug. 16 (AP)—Higher prices in the wheat market today followed the government report pointing to a 15 per cent probable reduction of winter wheat yielding this fall. Profit taking sales wiped out most of the advance. Closing quotations were unsettled, varying from 1-1 cent net to 1-1 1/2 cent gain, with September $1.00 3/4 to 1.00 7/8, and December $1.04 1/4 to 1.04 7/8. Corn finished 1-8 to 3-8 up. Oats showing 1/4 to 3/8 to 3-4 rise, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents higher.

Bullish effects of the government figures in regard to domestic fall seedling of wheat were emphasized today by announcement that the wheat yield of India this season was expected to be 32,000,000 bushels less than estimates heretofore current.

On the uptick in price, offerings increased and setbacks ensued but the market displayed good rallying power until near the close. Increasing arrivals of new wheat at Winnipeg together with a bearish estimate of the Canadian crop had more or less to do with the late downturn of the wheat market here. Another factor which appeared to be related to the decline at the last was gossip that many domestic mills had obtained all the wheat they need at present, and that demand for flour-making purposes was likely to fall off.

Corn and oats were governed chiefly by action of the market. Wet weather gave a little independent firmness to oats.

Higher quotations on logs lifted the provision market.

NEW YORK LIVESTOCK.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (AP)—Speculative sentiment underwent a decided change for the better in today's stock market with the result that quoted values were pushed up in all sections of the list and the buying embraced a wider variety of shares. Short interests continued to decline. Most of the buying was done at commission houses again reported increased public participation, particularly in high grade investment stocks.

Buying for both accounts was influenced by the signing of the minister's treaty and the signing of the Mexican conference with its prospect of buying away restrictions of that country, overnight indications of an early resumption of negotiations for the anthracite miners' wage agreement, announcement of a favorable trade balance in July and further signs of improvement in the outlook for domestic trade and industry. The net result was that attention was paid to the foreign situation by the stock market, some comfort was derived from the cable dispatches indicating that the danger of a German revolution had passed, and the improvement in French exchange.

OVERWHELMED BY BIG WORDS

No Wonder Fellow Sailors Couldn't Withstand West Indian Sailor's Remarkable Vocabulary.
If over a man bellowed his name it was "Trouble" who hired himself to me after overhurling me with an avalanche of polysyllabic words, used without reference to meaning. With gorilla-like arms, a flat head, enormous mouth and entire absence of nose, he was the ugliest human being I had ever seen. But he was an excellent sailor, a tireless worker and as good natured as he was ugly. His favorite diversion was talking and the other members of the crew, after one or two trials abandoned all attempts to out-argue him, for he soon left them floundering with a vocabulary of words that I could not understand. "Expansionist" and "superior" were his favorite words. On one occasion I overheard a bit of argument between him and a recent addition to the crew—for the older members invariably argued on new recruits to argue with "Trouble".

REPORT OF OIL FLOW AT OAKLEY CAUSES FLURRY

Unauthenticated Story of a Gusher in Cassia County Bore Proves High Degree of Interest Here in Undertaking

Reports of a "gusher" being encountered in oil well drilling operations in the vicinity of Oakley, current on the streets here Thursday afternoon, caused considerable excitement among Twin Falls citizens, indicating a high degree of interest hereabouts in the outcome of the prospecting activities in the Oakley field.

Accuracy of the reports, or lack of it, was determined with difficulty, because of the fact that a big proportion of the population of Oakley had come to Arden City, where Oakley day was being celebrated.

Communication with several Oakley citizens late Thursday evening established the fact, however, that if a gusher, or oil in any quantity at all, had been encountered citizens of Oakley generally were unconvinced with that development.

The reports here gained currency rapidly and were received in many quarters with a degree of credulity.

Two Bore Going Down.

The fact that drilling operations are in progress on two holes in the Oakley field complicated the task of ascertaining the truth of the reports. It was learned early in the afternoon that no work had been received from Dr. D. P. Carpenter, in charge of drilling on the Goose creek property, who had agreed to notify certain persons here in the event of his discovery of oil in that bore.

It was not until several hours later that it was learned with a degree of certitude that no new discovery of oil had been made in the bore on the West Pearl property, in which operations have been resumed after cessation of about two years when water was encountered just a few feet pointed to the tapping of an oil flow.

Persons here who are familiar with operations in the Oakley field were inclined from the start to attach little significance to the reports received here Thursday, although they said that the indications for discovery of oil in commercial quantities in that field were constantly improving.

IDAHO POTATO MARKET CONDITION HOLDS FIRM

Movement of Heavy Crop from Twin Falls District Continues with Price About $1 a Bag

Movement of the early crop of potatoes from the Twin Falls district continues in considerable volume, according to freight office records and statements of dealers. The market here is about $1 a bag. Report is current that growers have been offered $1 a bag here for all potatoes put on the market this month.

Market conditions at Caldwell and nearby points which have not varied materially in several years, according to R. H. Lamb, representative there of the central bureau of agricultural economics here, reported Wednesday as follows:

Warm and clear; hauling moderate; moderate wire inquiry demand on the market moderate; market steady. Sacked Irish cobbles and Idaho Bantam No. 1; Wagonloads cash to growers monthly $1.25; carloads 2 c. h. cash track $1.35.

CHILD HAS CLOSE CALL AT PLAY WITH MATCHES

Bysander Comes to Relief of Little Margaret Mae as Flames Envelope Her Clothing

Margaret Mae, four-year-old daughter of J. L. Mae, Twin Falls city clerk, narrowly escaped severe injury by burning Thursday afternoon when she escaped momentarily from parental supervision and made her way with a box of matches from the house into the front yard to play.

The child's clothing was in flames when Burton Perrine, passing the house, saw her plight and came to her relief. But for this fortunate circumstance, Mr. Mae said Thursday evening, the child probably would have been more severely injured. Injury was confined almost entirely to a burn on the arm. The child was resting comfortably Thursday evening.

Twin Falls Business Men Spend Day Visiting Farms

Chamber of Commerce Excursionists Seek First-Hand Information as to Status of Dairy and Livestock Industry in County; Meet with Uniformly Cordial Reception

Four or five cars of Twin Falls business men and others spent the entire day Thursday in visiting the farms in a section about 100 miles west of Twin Falls. The party left Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce about 9 o'clock in the morning, returning in the late afternoon. The trip which was the first of a series arranged by W. T. Leslie and Secretary Wright, was one of the most interesting and instructive over undertaken and it is confidently expected that an even larger attendance will be on hand for the next event of the kind.

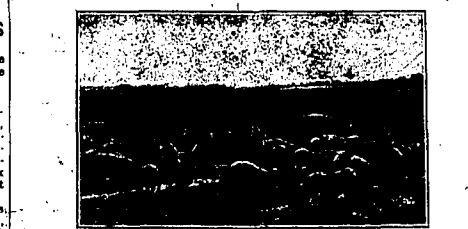

One of the longest stops of the trip was made at the ranch of W. H. Rambo, well-known breeder of Duroc Jersey and other varieties of swine. Mr. Rambo is the owner of prize stock which has more than a local reputation and will willingly answer all questions asked him by his guests. He backed his statements as to the profits to be made in hogs with an interesting array of figures, his deductions being in general about as follows: Beginning with 30 head as a basis Mr. Rambo stated that these could be pastured on one and a half acres of alfalfa with an additional ration of one pound of grain per day per hog, for a period of four months. This equals 8000 pounds of grain at $1.25 per 100 pounds or $45.00. Three acres of corn producing 75 bushels to the acre would be required to bring the animal to a weight of 225 pounds.

Pigman Profit per Acre

Figuring pork at 7 1/2 cents per pound, the original herd would reach a total of 6750 pounds or a value of $506.25. Subtracting the $45 feed bill together with interest on the investment and the facts restated from his experience in the interests of a better understanding on the part of his hearers.

Mr. Rambo talked interestingly about the business of raising hogs, offering and the facts restated from his experience in the interests of a better understanding on the part of his hearers.

Duroc Jerseys that Bring Home the Bacon

Some of the purchased swine on the A. A. Davis farm seen by the Chamber of Commerce excursionists. Milo Davis, well-known young stock man, who won Armour prize and Union Pacific scholarship last year, did the honors on the occasion.

ion that cows, properly cared for, constitute a type of investment for Twin Falls farmers in which much money could profitably be employed.

Breeds Production Records

At the S. H. Kayler home the entire party inspected barns and stables and listened to the views of Mr. Kayler on the subject of livestock production with special reference to the Jersey cow. Mr. Kayler pastures 18 head on five acres and apparently twice as many animals could be pastured upon the same acreage. The value of ensilage, together with the importance of production records on each animal, were dwelt upon by both Mr. Kayler and Mr. Waters.

The Charles Flowerdew herd of grade cows was next visited. Mr. Flowerdew's entire herd was purchased right here at home and not to exceed $100.00 was paid for any single animal. Mr. Flowerdew estimates the value of his hay at $40.00 per ton when fed.

Youth Does Honors

Milo Davis, well known young stockman, did the honors at the A. A. Davis farm, exhibiting a number of specimens and pointing out the special points of the animals. The jun-and also owns the sister of this world's champion cow. Mr. Schick states that the income from the sale of his purebred stock for last year was over $6000 and he has kept up the quality and number of his herd at the same time.

One of Beauty Herds

The Carl Middelstadt Jersey herd inspected by the caravan of visitors was judged as one of the beauty herds of this district.

Mr. Middelstadt's 16 years of experience in the dairy business has fixed one single type of cow in his mind as the model of perfection and the uniformity of his herd was the marvel of the day's visits.

The 20 head of high bred Duroc Jersey hogs displayed by Dr. B. S. Ames and which will place on the market in the near future, convinced every one that there is ample opportunity for any farmer in this region to get the best of breeding stock right here at home if any one wishes to get new blood or to improve the quality of a market herd.

Dr. Ames has many shorthorn beef cattle in addition to his hogs as a regular part of his farm livestock. A side trip to the farm of Mr. Averitt gave many interesting instances of farming methods used to get all of the farm products into the concentrated form for market, and a new pasture showed what can be done in a few months time in the way of getting a heavy pasture started.

Notable Pasture

The dairy farm of C. S. McClain outlined one point in the dairy business that is worthy of consideration and seems to be almost an incredulous fact. His pasture of seven acres of grasses, consisting mostly of blue grass, was planted in the year 1906 and still stands today as an example of one of the best pastures in the Twin Falls district.

He keeps 20 head of Jersey and Holstein cows on this field, furnishing them all the green grass they want without in any way injuring the field. This piece of land has never had any kind of fertilizer placed on it. The pasturing cows' manure has kept the field in perfect condition all these years. Alfalfa and grain are fed in small quantities to Mr. McClain's cattle as required.

The last place visited was that of E. G. Ehlers, a short distance south of Twin Falls, where is kept the record Holstein grade cow of the district along with many other good animals of the same type.

Knights of Pythias, Pythian Sisters and families' annual picnic will be held at Artesian City Sunday, August 19. Cars leave City Park at 10 a. m. sharp. Bring your basket lunch, dishes and roasting ears. Plenty of ice cream, coffee and lemonade furnished free at the grounds.

THE HISTORY OF THE MEAT BUSINESS OF THE LAST TWO YEARS IN TWIN FALLS

About two years ago the price of hogs was around seven to eight cents on foot; the price of whole dressed hogs, wholesale, fourteen to fifteen cents; pork chops, thirty to thirty-five cents; pork roasts from thirty to thirty-five, and sausage about thirty cents.

Sheep were less than half of what they are now, but the meat sold for twenty-five to forty per cent more than it does now.

Cattle, the best stall-fed, sold around five and a half cents a pound, but the retail prices were from twenty-five to forty per cent more than now.

The prices of live-stock, today, are a little more for cattle, twice as much for sheep, and hogs are about the same. Yet on an average, all meats are selling for fully forty per cent less than two years ago.

The people of this town grumbled and complained about the abnormal prices which they had to pay, and many people considered the prices prohibitive and curtailed their meat consumption. Those who were able to pay the prices were indignant, as they considered it bordering on robbery; while the wage-earner, salary man and small producer were not financially able to buy all the meat they naturally should or would buy if the prices were normal and in keeping with their earning capacity. Innumerable assurances were given us that if a meat man would start in business and sell the meats in keeping with the prices of live-stock he would receive the patronage of most of the people, as they had tired of paying outrageous prices. The U. S. MEAT COMPANY took over, about twenty months ago, a market in Filer and shortly afterward reduced the prices to the present level. They had agents in Twin Falls soliciting trade and caused prices to be dropped by the other meat men. The people of Twin Falls responded freely and encouraged the U. S. Meat Company of Filer by giving them orders and even by driving to Filer to purchase their meats.

Local competitors had suits instituted against the U. S. Meat Company, basing their complaints on a city ordinance, which resulted in stopping deliveries from the Filer company.

AFTER WE WERE CROWDED OUT OF SELLING MEATS IN TWIN FALLS PRICES OF ALL KINDS OF MEAT WENT UP AGAIN TO THE OLD LEVEL IN THIS CITY, although there was no advance in price of live-stock. We kept our prices in Filer at the same low level as since we started.

After certain city ordinances had been changed in Twin Falls we were enabled to open a temporary market and sold the meat at the same prices which we had maintained in Filer. As a consequence we received a very liberal patronage, and other markets, seeing that we were staying in business longer than they had expected, lowered their prices in some instances to meet ours.

We also advertised our intention to open an up-to-date market in Twin Falls that should be a credit to any city. Riddleme followed this and misleading statements were circulated against us, which were calculated to injure us and put us out of business. After machinery and equipment had arrived and a few months' rent had been paid on the new location, injunction proceedings were brought against us. The case was tried, and the court ruled in our favor, after which we proceeded with the installation of the new equipment.

We invite the public to inspect our new premises, to convince themselves that we are not making idle boasts. Our doors will be open to the public on Saturday, August 18th, and we cordially urge you to call and see us in our new quarters on Main avenue north between the United Stores and the building formerly occupied by Wright's store.

Our prices and quality of meats will be the lowest in the history of Twin Falls, considering the price of live-stock.
