I. W. W.'S PLAN REVENGE DRIVE ON SACRAMENTO

Officers Claim to Have Knowledge of Attack on City; Workers Are Restrained by Injunction

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 23 (AP)—Sacramento is to be subjected to a "reign of terror" by the Industrial Workers of the World, and members of the organization plan to give the city "the same kind of a dose that was administered at Centralia, Wash."

Details of the plan of the I. W. W. to get revenge on Sacramento for prosecution of its members under the criminal syndicalism act were obtained by the newspaper during a meeting of the organization in a nearby city a week ago.

Time Set for Drive

The time set for the drive on the city is in the early fall, according to one official of the I. W. W., who told at the meeting of plans to "teach Sacramento a lesson."

This leader was the principal speaker at the meeting, according to the investigators. He began revealing the intended invasion of Sacramento by referring to the suit for an injunction against the I. W. W. brought by District Attorney J. F. Henderson.

"It is about time," the official is quoted as saying, "to give Sacramento the same kind of a dose that the members gave Centralia, and wake her up. It will be a good time to start it when the members come back this fall to spend the winter."

"Reign of Terror" The speaker is declared to have said that the organization should invade Sacramento with a force of I. W. W. members as can be gathered together, open a hall, start a free speech campaign, fill the jails of the city and county, then have parades and give a general "reign of terror" in the city.

The investigators also have reported concerning the plans of the I. W. W.

"At the time of the late President Harding's death," the senator said, "I, wined President Coolidge that I thanked God that he was at the helm. America is safe in his hands."

Senator Smoot asserted that unless there is an adjustment in economic conditions in Europe it will not be many years before the nations of Europe are in war again.

REPORT DEATH OF LEADER OF JAP CABINET

Unofficial Announcements Claim Baron Kato Is Stricken; Was Leader in Arms Conference

TOKIO, Aug. 24 (AP)—It was unofficially reported here this afternoon that Baron Tomosaburo Kato, premier of Japan, had died. It had been previously announced he was very ill.

The hour of the premier's death as given in the unofficial report was 1:20 o'clock this afternoon.

Physicians attending the premier announced at midnight last night that his condition had taken a turn for the worse. Before morning he began to show signs of general exhaustion, his pulse became extremely weak and the doctors said their patient's heart was causing them greatest anxiety.

While Premier Kato had been ill for a number of months, it was announced only last Monday that his condition was not dangerous. It was added, however, that his health was extremely poor and that his retirement could be expected in the near future.

Early this afternoon the announcement was made that the premier was seriously ill. Following this came the unofficial report that he had died.

Owing to the not unusual custom in Japan of not officially announcing immediately the death of an important official, the report of the premier's death was generally believed.

Premier Kato attained his eminence among the noted men of Japan as the right-hand man of Admiral Togo and Kuroki in the Russo-Japanese war. He entered the war as a captain and emerged as a rear admiral, chief of staff of the first squadron of the Japanese navy with the decoration of the second class order of the Golden Kite.

Taking over the portfolio of the navy in 1915, Baron Kato became a strong partisan of the advancement of friendly relations between Japan and the United States.

At the Washington conference, where he was a member of the Japanese delegation, he was credited with being one of the strongest proponents of the naval accord treaty.

Admiral Baron Kato was confirmed as premier of Japan June 25, 1922, his cabinet succeeding that of Viscount Takahashi, which resigned June 6.

PLANES FINISH SECOND TESTS

Land at Destinations Ahead of Schedule; Government to Review Trials

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP)—Bunting ahead of schedule, mail planes landed in New York and San Francisco today completing the second transcontinental test flight, while two other mail planes were speeding across the continent ahead of their schedules in the third test flight.

The plane carrying the mail that left the Golden Gate yesterday morning in the second flight, landed at New York at 12:25 p. m., spanning the continent in 27 hours and 56 minutes, four minutes under the estimated 28 hours.

The westbound plane, with its burden of letters from the Atlantic seaboard, completed its trip across the country when it landed at San Francisco at 1:45 o'clock, two and one-half hours ahead of its estimated time.

Third Flight Started. Meanwhile, the third flight gave promise of equalling or bettering the record of the second. The mail that left New York this morning reached San Francisco at 1:45 o'clock, and the plane carrying it, hopped off two minutes later, 59 minutes off schedule and with prospects of gaining a greater lead during the night flight.

The eastbound plane, scheduled to pass its companion during the night, will have accomplished what it set out to do to prove that aircraft can be operated at night with a certain degree of regularity, with a very definite degree of safety.

He stated that, when the four round trip test flights from coast to coast which will be completed at San Francisco and New York Saturday, the complete flights will have been made across the continent, a combined distance of approximately 24,000 miles, 8000 miles of which will have been flown over a night airway.

Will Check Up. With the termination of the coast-to-coast flights this week the department will check up the data collected, first as to performance, and second, as to the lights and ground equipment and within two weeks other flights will be made, the result which it is hoped will result definitely in determining the extent to which night experiments, as they may affect the air mail service with regard to night flying.

Our ground preparations represent a development only arrived at after sixteen months intensive study. In fairness to ourselves, we must take at least two weeks in which to review the work for over a year.

In the meantime a transcontinental air mail will be operated as it has been for the past 28 months, the postal official explained.

76,000 LETTERS CARRIED

OMAHA, Aug. 23 (AP)—During the three 24-hour periods in which the night flying experiments have been conducted, 76,000 letters have been transported by the air mail service from coast to coast.

"There has been a progressive improvement in efficiency," according to Second Assistant Postmaster General Henderson. "That San Francisco and New York have been placed with in 28 hours of each other is due solely to the flights."

"The comparative ease of performance and the faultless functioning of (Continued on Page Four)

RESUMPTION OF RELATIONS WITH MEXICO IS SEEN

Official Announcement Reported Forthcoming; Negotiations Provide for Protection of American Lives

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Resumption of friendly relations with Mexico is regarded here as virtually a certainty, and it is expected that official announcement of such a step will be made shortly by the Washington government.

The attitude of the administration on this question, a spokesman known today, has been revealed to representatives here of several foreign governments, which, it is believed, will extend recognition to Mexico once the United States has done so.

Announcement was made today that Charles B. Warren, one of the American commissioners to the recent Mexican City conference, had concluded his work here, and was being fully confident as to the results of the negotiations, and this assertion was taken as an additional indication that a recognition announcement was not far off.

"When I returned to the United States from Mexico City," Mr. Warren said, "I announced that the report of the proceedings there was satisfactory to the Mexican government, and, I hoped, would be satisfactory to our government. Now I can say that I have no doubt on this point, and am going home entirely satisfied as to the outcome."

It was authoritatively stated that the record of the Mexican conference continued signed agreements between the representatives of the two governments, which fully protected the mutual interests, and it was indicated that relations would be resumed on the basis of those agreements.

Steps toward the protection of American lives and properties in Mexico, it is understood, were obtained by the United States commissioners as a result of their report to President Coolidge, and under the agreement. In some quarters it is regarded as certain that these would be included in at least one of the claims cases referred to the commission for ratification in the event of recognition.

CRITICIZES POLICY OF U. S. TOWARD JAPAN

Foreign Church Worker, Minimizes Danger of War; Points to Reduction in Japanese Navy and Army

OMAHA, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP)—"American and Japanese militarists are chasing each other around in a vicious circle, each getting more alarmed because of the actions of the other," Dr. Sidney L. Gulick declared today at the conference on the international relations from the Christian viewpoint.

Dr. Gulick, who is secretary of the commission on international justice and good will of the federal council of churches, asserted that the ultimate success of liberal progress in Japan will depend upon the attitude of the government of the United States. He declared that not only had Japan reduced its army and navy, but that further reductions in arms would be made.

An important item in the program of the pronounced liberals, Dr. Gulick cited universal male suffrage, reduction of the army by one-half, autonomous government for Korea and the local execution of treaties and the spirit of the Washington conference on limitation of armaments.

"Germany is," he declared, "that the success of the liberal movement in Japan is closely dependent on the attitude of the nations of the west and particularly America. An anti-Japanese policy in America would be a serious obstacle in the ascendancy of liberalism in Japan."

GERMAN MINISTER FEARS DEPRESSION

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP)—The German minister of finance, Herr Hilferding, told the party leaders in the Reichstag today that another monetary depression would mean the death of Germany, says Central News dispatch from Berlin. The situation was extremely serious, he added, the railway deficit this year alone amounting to $50,000,000, marked with a further deficit in every bill, due to the provisions of the peace treaty.

JOHNSON GIVES HIS VIEWS ON 1924 OUTLOOK

Publication of Letter to Friend Brings Comment from California Senator; Talks G. O. P. Delegation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Publication of a letter to a friend in California, discussing the political outlook for 1924, impelled the senator to issue a statement tonight, saying that he respects the views of the writer, but that the incident would "be taken by the opposition as an invitation to a contest in California."

Apart from candidates, the statement said, the "progressive republicans" of California are determined that the state's delegation to the republican national convention next year should represent truly a "progressively republican state."

The letter to which the senator referred was written from Harrop in Idaho and was signed by Charles K. McClatchy of San Francisco. In it Mr. Johnson said he would like to be president, but saw no prospect that President Harding would be re-elected. He added that he was convinced the Johnson element could not rally its old-time strength in California, and doubted whether he could carry the state against Harding, Hoover or any other candidate.

Makes Stipulation.

Tonight's statement was prefaced by Senator Johnson with a stipulation that he was giving out for publication "on the express condition that what he published exactly as written and fully as written, or not at all." It was as follows:

"The only importance of the publication of this letter is as illustrative of the kind of political opposition we have in California—an opposition without limitations or honor or decency. "Last May, while I was in Europe, I wrote to a friend of mine, Charles K. McClatchy of Sacramento, an intimate personal letter. Mr. McClatchy sent me a copy of the letter in a letter of his own to Albert E. Boynton of San Francisco, chairman of the republican state central committee of California.

"I don't know how many of Chicagoans is publishing a small paper in San Francisco, called the Journal. Lawrence is the chief supporter in northern California of the paper. However, he devotes himself to meretricious abuse of me. Lawrence surreptitiously obtained letters from the files and private office of Mr. Boynton. Among these he found the letter of McClatchy to Boynton, with excerpts from my letter, and published McClatchy's letter in his paper. This is the letter now being circulated by him and published in the east.

Makes Severe Charge.

"There are some things that must not be done even in politics, and that decent men and women cannot condone. One of these is the burgling of a man's property, or private correspondence, or receiving things thus appropriated. This is exactly what was done in this particular instance.

"Fortunately, aside from little intimacies which occur in the correspondence of every man and woman, there is nothing in any correspondence of mine that cannot be revealed or published. I do object, however, to grand larceny or petty thieving in politics or business.

"I may add that I hope the letter may be taken by the opposition, well exemplified in this instance, as an invitation to a contest in California. Progressive republicans are invited from any candidates, are determined that the delegation to the republican national convention next year shall represent California as California is, a progressive.

Saw Harding's Strength.

The excerpts from the senator's letter to Mr. McClatchy, as published today in several eastern newspapers, are as follows:

"I feel that Harding will be able to renounce himself, although some very good people, like Senator Moses and George Henry Payne, believe otherwise, and want to commence an active campaign to have him re-elected. I would like to be president.

"I think any American in political life who pretends otherwise is wholly hypocritical. I realize that in political realities, and I cannot see success in an active candidacy. A sort of passive attitude never brought me anywhere, and my natural inclination is to fight. The thought of the value of ignorance and hardly wise. The next few months possibly will clarify the political atmosphere, and any personal declaration I am leaving entirely to the future.

"The delegation from California, however, is a different matter. It ought to be composed of our friends, not a compromise of some of our friends and some of our enemies, and this whether we have a candidate or not. If progressives are going to continue in politics in California, it seems obvious to me that they must really redeem themselves to the state. If they permit Chandler, Dickson, Andy Lawrence and the Hoover crowd to control the national delegation and against the best interests of the state, they might just as well resign themselves to the role of outsiders.

Rape Compromise

"Since last year I have endeavored to impress this on all our friends. We lost California principally because we compromised, because we feared we would whip them, and who remained as conservative and reactionary as ever, but bided their time to strike.

WE DESTROYED THE MORALS OF PROGRESSIVES AND CONVINCED THE ORDINARY INDIVIDUAL WE ARE NOT DIFFERENT FROM OUR OPPONENTS, THAT SOUGHT POLITICAL SUCCESS ONLY.

"My strength while I was governor was in never yielding, for an instant to the old rotten crew, standing always the same. My weakness today is that I have yielded and given power, position and political strength to the very men who so often formerly denounced me. The past, however, I have only referred to it as instructive for the future. I am under no illusions now about California. Really, C. K. McClatchy could carry it against Harding, Hoover or any other candidate. The old crew are in the saddle. For the first time since 1910 they have the state, all its offices and its active militant organization, both in publicity and otherwise.

Chandler Boosted

"Chandler has been in Washington lately. He is to have charge of the president's 'biography' in California. He boasted, as my letters say, after the city election, and Frederick's victory in Los Angeles, that he now has California in his vest pocket. He spoke of national delegates next year with a ticket to be led by Hoover and Blair, and made all arrangements to bring a Harding delegation from California.

"Now, singularly enough, though he is so low in his own state, he has very great possibilities in other states. If I were a candidate I would fear California more than New York. This is no idle statement and please do not ascribe it to my pessimism."

LAWRENCE REPLIES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23 (AP)—Andrew M. Lawrence, mentioned in a statement given out in Washington tonight by Senator Hiram Johnson, dictated the following over the telephone from Del Monte, Cal., where he is spending the week-end.

"It is always desirable to discuss matters with a corps. If the intimated Senator had paid more attention to his new friends that he made and to his enemies that he so frequently discussed, he would be alive today.

"I don't want to pronounce his funeral oration. The letters were obtained by the regular press. However, the senator is probably more disturbed over those that have not been published than over those that have."

LOSES LIFE IN SAVING RAIL CREW FROM DEATH

Former Policeman Who Once Held High Place Struck by Engine After Warning Workmen

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—John Gilmarin, who by dint of hard labor and a heroic deed, has won a place in the history of his city, was killed today by a New York city policeman, an assistant state's attorney of Illinois, only to be broken and dragged down again by ill health, was killed today in saving the lives of a gang of six railroad track laborers.

The former state's attorney had a job standing on a curve of the New York Central railroad, whistle in hand, to warn the workers of an approaching train. A dozen men were working in a cut at Governor's place when Gilmarin saw an express train approaching.

He blew his whistle and the men stepped over to the express track, thinking the train was a local. Gilmarin, seeing their mistake, ran toward them shouting a warning. As they jumped back to the other track the engine struck him, killing him instantly.

Five years ago Gilmarin gave up his job on the police force here and started to study law, attending King's college. He went to Chicago, was admitted to the bar, and made a name for himself in private practice. Then he went into politics and became assistant state's attorney, holding that position for several years.

However, the hard pace of study and work that he had kept up for years finally got to him, and he was forced to give it up.

ALASKAN OIL FIELD IS ATTRACTING ATTENTION

Leases on Supposed Coal Areas Taken for Locations; Geological Survey Is Favorable

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Aug. 23 (AP)—Many leases taken on supposed coal-bearing areas in Matanuska bituminous oil fields, 70 miles north of Anchorage, are being abandoned for oil locations, according to operators here. With the discovery of a heavy flow of gas beneath the coal horizon, it is believed an oil field will eventually be brought in.

The discovery of gas, confirmed by the United States geological survey, was made at a depth of 1000 feet in a diamond drill hole. The log of the bore, it is stated, indicates the possibilities of oil. Dr. Alfred Brooks, chief of the Alaska division of the geological survey, said it was possible for the Kenai formation to be superimposed upon by an older formation containing reservoirs of oil. The new discovery, it is stated, confirms the U. S. G. S. deduction.

GERMANY SEEKS FOOD CREDITS

Luther Claims Heavy Resources of Foreign Cash Needed to Save Country

BERLIN, Aug. 23 (AP)—Unless Germany placed in a position to float food credits abroad, or to pile up heavy reserves of foreign currencies, her food situation will be in a state of chronic severity, in the opinion of Food Controller Luther. The shortage of hard and raw materials from which oleomargarine is manufactured, is presenting great difficulties to food controllers as these materials are chiefly brought abroad, and must be paid for in foreign money.

Until the mark is rehabilitated or given some sort of permanent prop, all attempts to create normal conditions in the nation's food supply will be unavailing, said Dr. Luther in a statement today. For the present he has succeeded in forcing the reichsbank through the mediation of the ministry of finance, to disgorge sufficient sums of foreign currencies to pay for heavy consignments of fats from Holland and Denmark.

With respect to immediate supplies of wheat and potatoes, the food controller proposes to adopt a system of requisitioning and rationing which will not be far removed from war-measures. The commanding of rolling stock has been rendered necessary because of the shortage of freight cars. This shortage is due to the fact that many cars are tied up in the Ruhr blockade, thus complicating the hauling of the new crops here.

Dr. Luther is disposed to encourage cities and smaller communities to assume official distribution of winter supplies to the poor.

It is recommended that they be given appropriations necessary to contract for supplies to be estimated on a per capita basis. The food controller believes a liberal policy of financial aid by the central government or credit accommodations to the cooperative societies are essential to furthering the whole process of collecting and distributing the new crops.

No statistics with regard to the volume of the crops are available, although it is supposed to extend the limit of grain reserves beyond April 15, 1924, to avoid a possible crisis in the summer months, when stocks are nominally exhausted.

CINCINNATI'S PLAYERS DENY COOKED DEAL

Heydler Advises Legal Action After Hearing Allegation that Two Men Were Offered $15,000 to Throw Game

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—Charges that two Cincinnati players were approached by gamblers recently on the eve of a crucial series with the New York Giants, will be lifted to the bottom, John A. Heydler, president of the National league, announced tonight, after a hearing before him earlier in the day at which the players, Second Baseman Sammy Benge and Left Fielder Pat Duncan, flatly denied the accusation.

The charges were published last Saturday by Collier's Eye, a Chicago weekly sporting paper, but the first official recognition given them was at today's hearing in the office of the national league executive, who established a procedure by inviting Cincinnati newspaper men, traveling with the club, to attend. The publication alleged that Bohno and Duncan and a third player, whose identity was not revealed, had been approached by gamblers with an offer of $15,000 each to influence their play in the series with the Giants at Cincinnati the first week of August. Color to the gambling charges, it was said, was added by the fact that the Reds lost five straight games to the Giants in that series. Today, however, both players denied, under oath, that they had been approached either directly or indirectly by gamblers, while President Heydler, after the hearing, asserted "the charges against Bohno and Duncan appear to me to be silly and unfounded. Notwithstanding, the league held emphasized that every effort would be made to trace them to their source."

FOREIGN VISITORS IN RUSSIA ARE NUMEROUS

Land of Sovietism Is No Longer Isolated; May Improve Hotels Soon to Meet Tourist Demands

MOSCOW, Aug. 23 (AP)—Russian isolation is ended. Three years ago the presence of a foreign visitor in Moscow or Petrograd was sufficient to cause the native populace to stare at him as if he were a being from some other world. Two years ago foreigners were still so rare that the few American and British newspaper correspondents scouted a story in each of them and tried to interview all who came to Russia. Last year they were still sufficiently rare to arouse some curiosity.

But today, Moscow, Petrograd and the other principal cities are thickly sprinkled with foreigners; daily trains from the outside bring hundreds by the dozens, and they arouse no more interest than they would in any other European capital. During June more than 1000 foreigners visited Petrograd, and over more, perhaps, came to Moscow. Most of all of them were business seekers. Hotel accommodations in Russia are still limited, particularly in Moscow, that the government has not yet found it advisable to admit large numbers of tourists. Everyone must show some legitimate business reason before he can secure his visa. Within a short time, perhaps in 1924, hotel accommodations are to be improved and it may be that Russia's interesting revolutionary scenes will become a Mecca for tourists.

AUSTRALIAN STARS LOSE

Significance Noted in Victory of American Players in Tennis Contests at Brookline

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 23 (AP)—The lawn tennis double championship of the United States may yet remain in the keeping of Americans by virtue of the success of R. N. Williams, Jr. of Bryn Mawr, Pa., and Watson Washburn, New York on the courts of the Longwood Cricket club at Chestnut Hill today. The American Davis cup team of 1921 defeated the crack Australian Davis cup challengers, James O. Anderson and John B. Hawkes, 7-5, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2, in a semi-final match.

On Saturday the Williams-Washburn team will play the winners of the other semi-final to be played tomorrow between William T. Tilden, M. Philadelphia, and Bryan I. C. Norton, South Africa, against Manuel Alonso, Spain, and Wallace F. Johnson, Philadelphia.

The defeat of the Australians, who have had a much more thorny path to the semi-finals than their opponents, came as a surprise to many. Yesterday they looked most impressive in administering a trouncing to William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, three times national champions, but today was another day. Not only did the Australians play more spitty tennis but the Americans had profited by the lessons of yesterday.

Dempsy Switches to Light Heavyweights in Sparring; Appears in Good Shape

BARABOTA SPRING, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP)—Jack Dempsy switched from light to heavyweights during his sparring today, confining his work with the gloves to two rounds each with Jack Burke, Pittsburgh heavyweight, and George Goff, 225 pound negro. The heavyweight champion, due to the chill wind that swept through his outdoor ring, wore a heavy woolen shirt under full length trunks to protect himself, while the 400 spectators wrapped themselves in sweaters and overcoats and shivered through the brief but spirited workout. Although both Burke and Goff are suffering from the bombardment received while preparing Dempsy for Tommy Gibbons, they were forced to mail route to the ring. Burke managed to evade Dempsy's hooks for the first round by continually retreating, but Dempsy's teeth gleaming in anger, drove him into a corner in the second and all but buckled him over with a right cross to the chin. Burke fell into the ropes and clinched until his brain cleared.

Dempsy's left hooks and jabs were working to a perfection against Goffrey. In the absence of Manager Kearns, Jack Egan, former world's champion welterweight, returned. Kearns went to New York to file an application for Dempsy's license and also to arrange for additional sparring partners. Before putting on the gloves Dempsy popped the light punching bag for two rounds and went through a round of shadow boxing.

AMERICA'S AID SAVED RUSSIA

Colonel Haskell Brings Message of Appreciation from Soviet Government

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—America's aid to Russia through the American relief administration, is called by the soviet government the "greatest single service rendered in the history of the world by one nation to another," according to Colonel William M. Haskell, director of the administration, who returned on the steamship Hiram from Leningrad today. Colonel Haskell's first act on arriving was to convey to the American people the undying gratitude of millions of Russians. He brought a parchment document in which the soviet government had officially expressed its thanks in the above words, concluding with "this assistance will always preserve friendship between the two nations." The document is three feet long, wrapped in an embroidered silk folder. There is no longer a food shortage in Russia, he said, and if the crop this year is as great as it is estimated, the farmers will be able to export two million bushels of grain. The present crop is from 60 to 70 per cent of the normal crop prior to the war.

PLANES FINISH

Equipment should not cause the country to lose sight of the fact that for the first time in the history of aviation, night flying service on schedule has been successfully accomplished.

At Fort Crook there were assembled tonight for the first time transportation officials than had previously witnessed the flights. Rail transportation experts were unanimous in their expressions of admiration for the night mail.

Compare Costs The presence of the railway officials elicited a comparison between the costs of establishing a double track railway and those of laying out a modern airway. The railway requires, in addition to signal lights and ground equipment. It was learned from postoffice officials that $600,000 was the approximate cost of the permanent terminals and the special ground equipment extending for practically one thousand miles from the Great Lakes to the Rockies, or at the rate of $500 a mile.

A record transfer was made when Pilot Allison hopped off for Cheyenne, the next lap upon the transcontinental mail route at 10:52. He carried 12 mail pouches, four being picked up at Omaha. The quick hop off was made possible by the perfect landing of Pilot Hopson, whose plane was only a few feet away from the Allison machine.

STOCKEN AREA RECOVERS FROM FLOOD EFFECTS

Property Damage Estimated at $600,000 Inflicted by Rushing Torrents; No Loss of Life Reported

PUEBLO, Colo., Aug. 23 (AP)—Colorado's Arkansas river valley tonight is recovering from the havoc wrought by flood waters of the Apishpa river Wednesday night and early today. The last ripple of the Arkansas river water burst through the Apishpa irrigation reservoir dam, 36 miles south of here, and rolling thence out in the lower stretches of the Arkansas river valley near Las Animas and Lamar, leaving behind a property damage estimated at $600,000 and several hundred persons homeless along the lowlands inundated by the torrent.

No loss of life had been reported. As early as 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, flood warnings were sent out through the valley and hundreds fled for their homes, carrying their goods and livestock with them. Most of them had returned to their homes tonight, as the waters subsided almost as suddenly as they rose. The greater damage was done to crops, homes and railroad tracks between Fowler and Manzanola where the wall of water, sweeping down the Apishpa river after cracking the dam, was joined with the already swollen waters of the Arkansas river.

Crops Destroyed.
The river overflowed its banks and spread over acres of farm land, washing out growing wheat, alfalfa, corn and small orchards. At one point, it was estimated, the destruction covered an area of one mile in width.

As the flood waters progressed, however, they spent their fury, the river flowed back within its banks, although still running higher, and the torrent rolled down through the long valley to the southern, still flooding, and it went and hourly becoming less dangerous.

Many Leave Homes.
At Manzanola, Rockford and La Junta, the flood damage was comparatively slight, although residents had camped on high ground for hours in fear of the inundation. At La Junta between 800 and 1,000 people fled along the lowlands, gathered such belongings as they could hastily gather and departed late Wednesday, although the crest of the flood did not reach the city until 5 o'clock Thursday.

Several hours after dawn today the first reports of a drop in the river were received and the waters passed towns along the course of the river, they immediately began to recede and it was apparent that the flood danger had passed.

Considerable debris was washed down Arkansas river by the flood, residents carried away trees, outbuildings, farm implements and some livestock.

Included in the loss resulting from the flood is estimated $200,000 as the cost of repairing the dam and reservoir, and the damage is considerable to crops, highways and homes along the river's course.

BELIEVE GIRL BRIDE KILLED BY SPANIARD

Body of 17-Year-Old Wife Is Found; Police Suspect Former Lover as Being Guilty

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 23 (AP)—A crumpled packet of five letters, said to contain evidence incriminating the unknown assailant who killed Mrs. Edith Greenhouse, wife of R. H. Suttle, Jr., here today, is believed to have been the cause of the attack which ended in the death of the 17-year-old bride of a month, according to police.

Mrs. Suttle was attacked this morning in her bed, her skull crushed by a blunt instrument and her eyeballs protruded by the aid and at the close of this afternoon at a hospital.

A dragnet has been thrown out by the police for a man called "Jack," who is believed to have entered the girl's room in an effort to secure the letters, which were found under her pillow in the bed on which she was lying.

Mrs. Suttle has been trying on a clandestine correspondence with her unknown admirer, who had called on her and talked with her several times in the valley near Las Animas and Lamar, leaving behind a property damage estimated at $600,000 and several hundred persons homeless along the lowlands inundated by the torrent.

Police are looking for a young Spaniard, whose first name is said to be "Mando," said to be a rejected suitor who the girl, in the hope that he may throw some light on the case.

OFFICIALS TALK FUEL PROGRAM

Government Representatives Take Up Final Phases of Plans for Coal Supply

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Final plans of the government program for supplying fuel to anthracite consumers in the event of suspension of work in the hard coal mines were taken up today by the several bureaus to which the program has been assigned, but hope of an ultimate settlement of the controversy between operators and their employees continued to be expressed in various quarters.

Chairman Hammond of the coal commission, after a conference with President Coolidge announced that the commission's emergency report on the situation would be ready in the next few minutes so its conclusions might not hinder any move of the disputants to get together. He declined to say whether the commission's recommendations of information which led it to expect such a move. Six visits to the White House was explained as for the purpose of keeping progress in the distribution program.

F. R. Wadleigh, federal fuel distributor, completed arrangements for the meeting of representatives of the government of 23 anthracite consuming states, in New York next Tuesday, while his assistant conferred with the interstate commerce commission on a proposed system of price control.

NEW EXTENSION PLANS ADOPTED BY UNIVERSITY

Division Director of State School to Retire; Upham Announces Plans for State- Wide Conference

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Aug. 23.—Announcement of the retirement of Senator W. H. Upham, director of extension division and the prompt inauguration of a unified cooperative program of agricultural service by all branches of the college of agriculture of the University of Idaho was made from the office of President A. H. Upham today.

The responsibility for the future of the university will be transferred to Dean E. J. Fiddings of the college of agriculture, and sufficient secretarial force will be secured to enable him to give proper direct supervision to the activities of the extension division.

Beyond this no changes whatever are contemplated in the extension force which will continue to work out from the Idaho office at Moscow. Every effort is being made to select a thoroughly capable and experienced man to succeed F. R. Cunnack, as field director in the extension division. Several excellent men are under consideration and early announcement of a selection may be expected.

Plans are already being made for a statewide convention of all extension and other agricultural workers connected with the university to meet on the campus late in October to formulate plans for more effective service to the farmer in all parts of the state and to study and organize Idaho's needs in the form of a five year program of investigation and extension work.

This announcement was given out after a conference of members of the university executive committee of the state board of education held at the university today.

Upham's Comments.
President A. H. Upham said in commenting upon it: "The retirement of Mr. Fluharty has been anticipated for several weeks and will in no way change the policy of the extension service or curtail its activities. Every effort will be made to secure a man who it permits of greater unity and cooperation in administering the entire agricultural program. The extension service is being considerably criticized in recent years, particularly during legislative sessions, and state funds for this purpose were greatly reduced for this biennium. Our constant aim in meeting the situation is to reduce overhead cost wherever possible in order to render the largest service within our means to the farmers in all parts of the state."

Enlarge Field.
"Our superior corps of extension specialists continue to give general satisfaction. Home demonstration and club work are now operated effectively on a district instead of a county basis. The county agents who are reduced in number are as capable a body of men as have ever labored in Idaho. A worthy successor to Mr. Cunnack will soon be employed. Professor Graves, who is being asked to our campus staff in rural economics, will give his summers to the study of production costs and marketing problems throughout Idaho. Both experimental and demonstration work in combating insect pests will be pushed as rapidly as funds permit."

Intimations have been made that some recent change in the extension staff indicate a change of policy on the part of the university toward its co-operation work with the farmers through the extension division. These are absolutely unfounded in fact."

convoy, in a clever musical and vaudeville turn.

Caldwell was represented by the brothers Quant in a blackface comedy sketch. Other original features were presented by Boho, Ogden and Logan clubs.

The keynote of the convention was struck by international officers and other speakers at a luncheon at noon at which about 200 delegates and visitors were guests of the Twin Falls club. Fidelity to the ideals of Kiwanis, upholding of the Golden Rule in business and private life and self-sustaining endeavor, was urged at the luncheon by Edmund F. Arns, Columbus, Ohio, international president; Fred C. W. Barker, Chicago, international secretary; George E. Snell, Billings, Montana, international vice president; W. H. Reeder, Jr., Ogden, district governor; and Oliver O. Hagen, Boise, past district governor.

Similar reports predominated in the round table discussions, which with the committee sessions, occupied the entire first day of the convention.

Registration lists Thursday evening showed a total of 446 delegates and visitors attending the convention. Of this number 90 are women according to the figures mentioned in clubs of the district, all of which are represented.

Pocatello is the only Idaho town that has made known its desire to entertain the Kiwanis convention and the Idaho and Provo, Utah, are bidding for the convention.

Names of M. J. Sweeney, Twin Falls, and Jean Bristling, Pocatello, are being prominently mentioned for the office of district governor.

Delegates and visitors in the forenoon were taken on an automobile excursion to Blue Lakes, Shoshone Falls, Hohenburg and other nearby points of scenic interest, their attention being directed to abundant crops in fields along the route.

Women Are Guests.
Women convention visitors were guests at a reception and luncheon in the afternoon in the Elks' lodge rooms by wives of members of the local club.

One of the interesting discussions in connection with a conference for members held in the afternoon with O. O. Hagen, Boise, past district governor, as chairman, related to the question of the promotion of the Kiwanis club. The assistance to the farmers? The question was presented by J. H. Lovell of Caldwell. Only sympathetic understanding on the part of the general help to the farmer in solving his problems, Mr. Lovell asserted.

Speakers and Newspaper Men Excluded when Ship Takes to Water; Launching Is Accorded Success

CHATHAM, England, Aug. 23 (AP)—When England's new "mystery ship," Submarine X-1, was launched here recently, newspaper men and spectators were rightly excluded from the approaches to the dockyards were heavily guarded to make sure no unauthorized person should see her take the water. Nevertheless it can be said the launching was a complete success, and the latest addition to under-sea power was at once towed to the dockyard for completion.

The new vessel is a submarine in submarine she is really a submarine battle-cruiser. Her displacement when submerged will be 3,000 tons, 1,500 tons greater than that of the largest German submarine and considerably greater than any of the existing American types. On the surface the X-1 will use steam for navigation, but when submerged will use electricity.

There is a great diversity of opinion regarding the size of the new vessel's armament. In some quarters it is said she will mount a gun of 12 to 15 inch caliber. It is possible, however, that the X-1 is being designed for a high surface speed, enabling her to work with the Grand Battle Fleet. If this is true a big gun would not be carried.

The cost of the new submarine, apart from armament and ordnance stores, will be nearly $5,000,000. At present there are 25 submarines in the British Fleet, and of these the X-1 class, which mount a 12-inch gun, are the most powerful.

WILL FRANCE PAY?

Nobody need have been surprised, on this side of the water, by the sudden discovery that France has no apparent intention of repaying the money she borrowed from the United States. At the time the loans were made, and for some time afterward, it was taken for granted that these debts would be honored and taken care of in due time.

The French government and people, in their present mood, seem persuaded that whatever their legal obligations may be, they were under no moral obligations to pay the billions advanced them in money and materials during the war. France has paid a little over two hundred million dollars in interest, but none during the past year, and has never paid anything on principal.

All this is unfortunate. America and France have always been friends, and should not allow any bitterness to develop between them over money matters, at least. France should be made to understand, however, that America is no Shylock, but has already made a huge contribution to France in renouncing reparation for herself, and that if America is to renounce any of her claims for money lent to France, it can only be in consideration of better guarantees for the peace of Europe than France is now giving.

If France were to adopt a spirit of reason and conciliation, in which lies the only hope of future peace, she might find America willing to make liberal concessions.

MINERS' RIGHTS

The smothering to death of nearly 100 coal miners in Wyoming, coming in the midst of the anthracite coal dispute now interesting the country, has helped a little to keep the public perspective straight as regards coal miners and mines in general. They may seem, at times, more "rough" and inconsiderate than some other types of workmen, more insistent on their rights, more fiercely determined to hold their own against capital and, if necessary, against the public. It is not likely that miners are naturally more unsocial or unreasonable than any other class of citizens. They are what their work makes them.

Hard toil underground, with the tendency to early exhaustion and serious disease, and the continual risk of sudden death in dreadful form, is not conducive to any special breadth of view, tolerance of thought and speech or a "light touch" in negotiation. The peril of death, too, no less than the requirements of life itself, has its rights which must be considered in any adjustment of working conditions and wage scales and in public judgment of the men themselves.

LOW GASOLINE PRICES

Cheaper gasoline gives every automobile owner a pleasant feeling, but it is by no means an unmixed blessing. The cheaper gasoline is, the more rapidly the available supply will be wasted. And when the gasoline-beav-ing petroleum is gone, it is doubtful whether mankind will ever again have such a convenient source of energy to drive his machinery.

The cheaper it is, the less incentive there will be to improve the internal combustion engine and increase the efficiency of motor cars, motor boats and airplanes. There is no more important mechanical problem today than such improvement. This progress is retarded for the sake of a little present gain. More miles per gallon would be better, everything considered, than fewer cents per gallon.

This is not saying that gasoline should not be sold to consumers at the lowest price consistent with a legitimate profit to producers and distributors. When the fuel is making such big fortunes for the other two sides of the economic triangle, the consumer should have his share of the benefit. But it will be no misfortune, in the long run, if the price rises again somewhat, before long, in accordance with economic law—as it is likely to do.

WOULD EXCLUDE ALIEN JAPANESE

California Congressmen See Little Hope of Americanizing Orientals in Hawaii

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 23 (AP)—There is no possibility of Americanizing the Japanese now in Hawaii who were born in Japan, and aliens who are ineligible to citizenship should be excluded from the islands in the future, according to opinions expressed here by Representative Charles C. Currier. Mr. Currier is chairman of the house committee on territories, and he has been investigating conditions in the islands for the last month.

Mostly all of the Japanese and other orientals here who are educated in the common schools are to a great extent Americanized, with the exception of those who come under the alien franchise in the language schools, but that influence is counteracted to a great degree by their contact with American teachers in American schools, he said.

"Oriental law came to Hawaii under the law should continue to receive fair and square treatment, but an immediate stop should be placed upon the bringing in of the so-called 'picture brides' and 'Oriental' who abandon Buddhism or other religions of Asia should be encouraged by their Christian friends."

Referring to the future of the territory, he declared that Hawaii's outstanding problem is to keep the islands American, but "there is no reason why Hawaii should have a commission form of government under existing conditions." In giving his impressions of the industries of the territory, Mr. Currier stated there is not much of a labor shortage in the islands in the language schools, but the world where labor is treated as well; that the sugar industry has not been developed to the limit; that the present annual production of canned pineapples could be doubled if sufficient care were taken; and that the Japanese monopoly of commercial fishing should be stopped.

He emphasized the need of military and naval preparedness for Hawaii, with the remark that "you have about 13,000 enlisted men here; you ought to have twice that many." Congressman Currier, after an investigation of the homes of the island of Molokai, where the homes commission is endeavoring to rehabilitate the Hawaiian race, said that the subject is sound and should be continued.

What did Petit Jean Henneple see in these four precious things? Not money alone, nor beauty, nor rarity; none of these could have drawn into his face such a devil of inhumanity as was compelled there as he gazed!

These things, which react alike on no two men, awakened all the beast in this man. "That evil spirit divine the lust and blood which these precious objects had aroused in the past, and would rouse again? Was it this which evoked into his face that frightful devil of malign virulence?"

A movement attracted his attention. He looked up and saw Alline Lavergne standing in the doorway. Under his look, the face of the girl white with fear, the face of the girl that clear serenity which so distinguished her; she met his keenly piercing regard, and baffled it by the sheer magic of her virginal spirit. His eyes fell from hers.

"What do you want with me?" she asked quietly. Petit Jean stirred a little. By an effort, he became composed. He came to his feet and stood gazing at her emerald-clad shape. He looked at her eyes again, and now his gaze was quiet and hard, terrible in its evil meaning.

Hatred of her serene purity flamed in his face. "I want you," he said, speaking the guttural words which came naturally to his lips. "You belong to me."

He was astonished to find no fear, no terror, in her face. She was afraid, yes; the pulse at her throat, the quick color in her cheeks, betrayed inward fear, yet none showed in her eyes. And her voice was steady, cool—it maddened the brute before her.

"You are an evil man, Petit Jean," she returned calmly. "I know what you have done here; you are not a man, but a degraded beast. Go your way and await your punishment. What have you to do with me?"

Petit Jean started. "You know—nonsense!" "You know nothing!" he snarled. "I say you belong to me—like this!"

And he came toward her, with the devil dancing in his eyes. Meantime, outside at the head of the companionway, John Solomon was standing, his blank blue eyes fastened upon the curly figure of Alice, the guard. Alice had hooked a fist on his line, and was standing, half leaning over the rail, peering down.

Solomon shook his head half regretfully, and stuffed his clay pipe into his pocket. His hand came forth, and brought with it a queer knife, with a haft of heavy lead. He poised it in his hand and looked again at the figure of Alice.

This knife was the same which had supposedly been lost when Gros Michel was slain.

An instant later, the knife left his hand. The haft of lead struck the man Alice just at the base of the skull. The next time, the knife actually did go overboard.

CHAPTER XVIII

As John Solomon descended the companion ladder, a sound came to his ears. It was a low, involuntary cry—the only one that Alline Lavergne uttered.

She stood against one wall of the saloon cabin, shrinking from Petit Jean, and yet having no fear in her eyes. In the body, she shrank back; in the spirit, she met him fairly and squarely.

unafraid. The outlaw, who had gazed her wrist, stood leering into her face as though seeking to overwhelm that spirit of hers with his evil power.

"Come!" he was saying. "Come, look at the pearls which shall be yours, the pearls which shall glimmer on your bosom when you are mine—"

"Beggin' your pardon, sir," said the apologetic voice of Solomon, "but I'd like to 'ave a word with you about them 'ere pearls me own self."

Looking the girl's wrist, Petit Jean snarled. He glared at the steward, not comprehending what had been said. "Get out of there," he ordered.

"Yes, sir," said Solomon, "but I wants to 'ave a word with you first, just like that."

Solomon was stuffing tobacco into his clay pipe in his placid manner. He appeared quite unconcerned, and the gaze of those blank blue eyes fairly staggered Petit Jean for an instant.

"What are you 'talking about' snarled the outlaw. 'Didn't you hear me say to get out?'"

Solomon scratched a match and held it to his pipe. "You and me," he said wheezily, "are goin' to 'ave a bit o' talk. This 'ere paper was in that box o' stones, sir. If you'll be so good as to read it, you'll see what I'm a-gittin' at. And if I was you, I'd take it calm, if the old gent said when 'e kised the 'ousekeeper."

Solomon extended a scrap of paper. Astonished and perplexed by this attitude of humility mingled with cool defiance, Petit Jean took it and glanced at the lines of writing. His eyes widened with astounded surprise. Alline Lavergne, at a sign from Solomon, remained motionless where she was.

Dropping the paper, Petit Jean took a step backward, against the table. He was now staring at Solomon; one hand crept behind his back, fumbled with the little boxes of wood, slipped them into his pocket. Still he stared, an incredulous, uneasy wonder in his eyes.

"You—what sort of joke is this?" he croaked. Hoarse fury crept into his voice. "You fool, have you gone crazy? Lavergne never left this stuff for—"

"Yes," he did, just like that 'ere paper says," returned Solomon. He puffed at his pipe a moment; he was absorbed in this, quite ignoring the menace of that half-crouching, devil-eyed figure against the table. Then he resumed, placidly, as though conducting a perfectly matter-of-fact conversation.

"You see, sir, me and Mr. Lavergne was werry good friends, just like that! I give 'im these 'ere things to keep for me, 'cause they 'erd 'em never 'a' took them as a present. Later on, I wrote 'im sayin' they was 'is—but I'm afraid that 'ere letter never got to 'im."

A hoarse, incredulous burst of laughter broke from Petit Jean. "You!" he cried. "You—fool that you are! What mad dream is this?"

"Why, sir, it's all gospel!" exclaimed Solomon, looking slightly injured. "So when I come to see me old friend, and 'ard as 'ow them 'ere Macarty was a-plannin' some injury to Miss Alline, why, I ups 'an' makes me own plans, just like that! Them 'ere two Arabs in Ah Lee's gang, they was werry good friends o' mine. So was Ah Lee."

Solomon came to an end, and went on puffing calmly at his pipe.

Petit Jean, who was transfixed by the calm placidity of these disclosures, at length began to believe them. His astounded brain was forced to believe them. Yet as he stared at Solomon, he could only believe that the pudgy little man was a blundering fool.

"So 'it's all true, it is!" he exclaimed, and broke into a demonic cackle of mirth. "You expect me to give you those two boxes, do you?"

His laughter shrilled horribly. He thrust out his hand to a pistol, and produced his automatic pistol. "Wait a minute!" exclaimed Solomon, clapping one hand to his pocket. "If you'll be so good as to look at these 'ere accounts with you, sir, in the matter o' these stones, I expect as 'ow you'll find them all shippin'—"

He drew out a little red notebook as though quite unconscious of the pistol that was trained on him. He thumbed over the pages of the notebook, nodded with a satisfied air, and stepped forward. He ignored the pistol that leveled at him, and extended the notebook.

Petit Jean was held in leash by curiosity, like any wild beast. He could not figure out what this little old man, so absurdly helpless in appearance, was driving at. There was no menace in the air of Solomon. When Petit Jean took the notebook, Solomon stepped back again and went on smoking. His face was quite expressionless.

Alline Lavergne looked from one to the other, spellbound by the scene. Holding the notebook in one hand, Petit Jean looked at what was written in it. As he read, his face changed horribly; his eyes dilated, his lips curled back from his teeth, an atrocious contortion seized on the muscles of his face. With an oath, he dashed the notebook to the floor and glared at Solomon.
