Three Prisoner-Murderers Who Held Troops at Bay with Pistol Fire Found when Stronghold Is Ended

PADUCAH, Ky., Oct. 6 (AP)—Three convict murderers, who since Wednesday have held prison authorities at bay, killing three men and wounding several others in a three-day battle in the Kentucky state penitentiary, were found dead today when the besiegers entered the bullet-torn stronghold after flooding the building with ammonia fumes.

Spectacular Siege

The storming party entered the mess hall at 5:30 o'clock. Authorities succeeded in entering the disputed barricade at 7:15. A desperate siege of 41 hours in the course of which prison guards, reinforced by two details of Kentucky national guardsmen, riddled the building with withering barrages of steel-jacketed bullets from high-powered rifles and two machine guns.

Chancellor Stresemann-Plainly Exhibits Signs of Nervousness as Situation is Outlined to Reichstag

BERLIN, Oct. 6 (AP)—Plainly exhibiting signs of physical exhaustion wrought by five days of political exertion, Chancellor Stresemann this afternoon submitted to the Reichstag a liberally provided statement of the internal and foreign situation. The familiar optimism which ordinarily is an engaging feature of the chancellor's political utterances was wholly lacking today and its absence was clearly reflected in his somber and weary expression.

LABOR UNIONS HEAR TALKS ON CONSERVATISM

Voice Is Raised at Portland Convention Against Ultra-Conservatives and Seekers of Dissension in Ranks

PORTLAND, Oct. 6.—The American Federation of Labor convention today heard a voice raised against ultra-conservatism and against those who would appeal dissension in union ranks by ultra-radical means. This address was delivered by Max S. Hayes of Cleveland, a delegate of the International Typographical union, and following him came John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who flayed the elements in union ranks who refuse to abide by established union traditions and rules.

Hayes, in speaking of himself and associates in Cleveland, said: "We do not stigmatize anyone who has the courage to advance an original thought as a radical or a heretic. John L. Lewis laughed against those who follow 'false philosophies' and 'false gods,' and told of the fights his union has made against 'agents from Moscow and radical forces.'"

Whatever conflict there may be in the convention are expected to come to a test of strength in the report of the committee on resolutions to which was referred a resolution for organization of unions along industrial rather than craft lines, and resolution on the recognition of soviet Russia and others of popular interest. This committee late today was winding up its hearings preparatory to making its report.

Fifteen Years Ago in Twin Falls

From News Files October 9, 1908.

By a vote of more than four to one the voters of Twin Falls county approved the proposal to issue bonds to the amount of $150,000 for the erection of a court house and jail. The election was keenly contested, the opponents of the bond issue in Twin Falls putting forth every effort to defeat the proposition, while the Twin Falls electors stood almost solidly in its favor.

L. A. Warner and Miss Ethel Munger of Bedford, Iowa, were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents in Bedford Wednesday, October 7. Mr. and Mrs. Warner are expected home about the 20th of this month and will live in their new home on Shoshone street.

It is announced that Morgan G. Heap and Miss Florence Higbee will be married in Twin Falls on Wednesday, October 14. They are two of the most popular members of the younger set and the friends who wish they all the joys of life are legion.

The south corner of Main avenue and Shoshone street, with a frontage of 50 feet on the former and 125 feet on the latter thoroughfare, was purchased this week by the Twin Falls Bank and Trust company for $23,000. On August 25, 1904, when the townsite was opened the corner lot sold for $1000 and the one adjoining for $750. These are considerable exorbitant prices at the time by all save those who had faith in the city. The Pike building on Main avenue was sold on Wednesday, to T. A. Goodnight of Colorado, for $7500.

BABSON GIVES REASONS FOR INDUSTRIAL SLACK

Increased Foreign Competition Ascribed as Having Deterrent Effect; Predicts Continued Readjustment

WELL-FLEBY HILLS, Mass., Oct. 6. (Special to The News)—"Business will have a sidewise tendency for the remainder of the year," says Roger W. Babson. In a statement issued today the statistician diagnoses developments during the last nine months which furnish an illuminating and helpful picture of business for the executive and investor. "The 1923-24 developments for the last quarter of the year," "Going back to August, 1922," says Mr. Babson, "we find readjustment of general activity increasing and confidence running high. As a result conditions improved and business picked up. It carried us above normal in the last week in December, starting 1923 on a very active and prosperous basis. Being a premature development, however, such prosperity could not last and after the first six months of the current year we dropped back to a continuance of readjustment. This has given us two months of change to mixed conditions which have confused and upset the calculations of a great many business men."

Outputs Increased.
"This boom during the first six months of 1923 has resulted in a marked increase in the production of basic and industrial commodities. The volume increased 38 per cent from June, 1922, to June, 1923. The output of pig iron climbed from 2,351,000 tons to 3,229,000 tons from June, 1922, to January, 1923, and to 3,669,000 tons in June 1923. Copper production increased from 95,225,000 pounds in June 1922, to 112,159,000 pounds in January, 1923, and to 124,809,000 pounds in June 1923. Petroleum showed an increase from 45,889,000 barrels in June, 1922, to 61,407,000 in January, 1923, and to 61,364,000 barrels in June, 1923. Boots and shoes increased from 24,831,000 pairs to 30,740,000 pairs in June, 1922, to 30,926,000 pairs for these same respective months. Since July, however, this activity has receded. The United States Steel corporation is operating about 80 per cent of capacity today. Its unfilled orders are now only 6,910,000 tons as compared with 6,386,000 in June and 7,403,000 in March of this year."

Auto Cheaper.
"The cotton mills which were running large productions early in the year have shut down but will probably resume activities as other price settings fall. Automobile production has been the greatest in history, but has exceeded demand at present price level. A score of price cuts since July 15th have resulted. There are in approximately the same condition, price cutting indications are now in evidence. Building material rose to a peak in the late spring and declined since then. Lumber is now selling at 13 per cent below April quotations."

Wholesale commodity prices as a group reach their peak in March of this year when the Babson commodity index stood at 184. Its September reading is 166 a decline of 20 points or 11 per cent. Copper is selling at about the pre war average. Paper has declined slightly. Steel is selling at about 33 per cent below its recent high. Seasonal strengthening in most commodities may occur this fall but the long swing indications point to a new lower price level.

Scouts Farm Depression.
"The agricultural situation," continued Mr. Babson, "is not as bad as it has been painted during the last few months. The price now quoted for December delivery of cotton is 23 1/2¢ a pound. This multiplied by the indicative production of 10,748,000 bales gives an approximate return to the cotton planter of $1,537,200,000. Last year's production was only 9,765,000, at a price of 26 cents a pound, yielding a total value of $1,209,900,000. In other words the purchasing power of the cotton farmer this year is 18 per cent greater than it was in 1922. The corn belt is practically as well off as it was last year as far as purchasing power is concerned. The price for December delivery are quoted at 72 cents a bushel while production is indicated at 3,070,000,000 bushels, which gives a return to the corn farmer of $2,211,720,000, compared with last year's revenue of $2,110,220,000. In other words, the return to the corn farmer in total are actually higher than they were last year."

Wheat Crop Heavy.

"It is the wheat farmer whose income has been greatly reduced as is his story that has colored the whole agricultural outlook in the mind of the general public. The combined production of winter wheat and spring wheat will be about 728,000,000 bushels, an average of 22 per cent less than he did a year ago.

"The farmers' difficulty these last two years has been due to the abnormal spread between agricultural prices and industrial prices. This situation is gradually righting itself. So far, the adjustment has been affected by the lowering of the industrial prices rather than the increase of income to the farmer. This balancing tendency may be interrupted from time to time by divergent movement of other groups, but will continue over the next few years until a more equitable adjustment has been reached between the prices of the things the farmer had to buy and the things the farmer had to sell. While we are not out of the woods as yet, by any means, the worst is over. We may be thankful for that."

Foreign Competition Figures.
"The slackening of general industrial activities has been due in a measure to increased foreign competition. This of course has been felt in the manufacturing fields and has not as yet reached the retail trade which is running about 15 per cent above a year ago. The fact that goods are moving to the consumer in tremendous volume is indicated by the figures for freight car loadings, which have continued to make new records during the past three months. In fact, during the week of September 1 there were more cars loaded with merchandise and sent over the rails than any previous week

POTATO Growers Meetings

FILER, Monday, October 8th, 8 o'clock P. M., in High School Auditorium.

KIMBERLY, Tuesday, October 9th, 8 o'clock P. M., in Legion Hall.

BUHL, Wednesday, October 10th, 8 o'clock P. M., in City Hall.

HANSEN, Thursday, October 11th, 8 o'clock P. M., in Town Hall.

At a meeting held in Parish Hall, Twin Falls, September 28th, Mr. W. S. Hill, organization manager, explained to some 50 or more farmers and townspeople the Aaron Sapiro National Plan of marketing potatoes. It was decided at this meeting that local meetings should be held at the above places on the dates set forth, for the purpose of further discussion of the plan and explanation of the contract and to appoint committees to carry on the organization work.

Bankers and business men are urged to attend these meetings and a special invitation is extended to the ladies. Farmers who did not grow potatoes this year should also attend these meetings and lend their support if they are convinced that the plan is right.

Mr. Hill recently organized the Colorado Potato Growers Exchange and is Secretary of the Farm Bureau of that State, also National representative on the Farm Bureau Committee; he is thoroughly posted on this national marketing plan and his talk will surely interest anyone who has the interest of the community and the agricultural industry at heart.

Surely every one is alive to the activities of the Nation on orderly marketing of farm products ere this time, and we should get lined up and put our shoulders to the wheel and put the agricultural industry on its feet.

Be sure to attend these meetings.

NO ALIBIS FOR BRUINS' DEFEAT AT IDAHO FALLS

Analysis of Game Shows Contest Undecided Until Final Whistle; Opponents Admit Breaks Were Theirs

By J. L. HODGINS

The game at Idaho Falls Friday was one of the best grid contests seen for many a day in that fair city. The only thing possibly worse than it was the fact that Twin Falls won on the short end of the score. There are no alibis to offer, but even the Idaho Falls fans admitted that the breaks were in their favor. For instance, with Idaho Falls kicking from behind their own goal line, the center made a low pass, which under normal circumstances would have netted Twin Falls at least two points and perhaps a touchdown, but the ball took a wicked bound right into the hands of the kicker and he made a beautiful punt to safety.

Both teams were able to gain through the line at times and at other times were unable to make a yard with line plunges. It was anyone's game until the last quarter and only unfortunate penalties kept Twin Falls from scoring in the final quarter. The work of the Twin Falls backfield was good in spots. Both Garrity and Jenkins were able to gain through the line, but not consistently. Timmer did excellent work at safety and worked like a charm receiving punts, picking several from his shoe laces. Hodgins' passes were good and only a few were low and not any nearer to fame-bles that were costly. Considering the heavy field and the drizzling rain that fell throughout the game three were mighty few fumbles and only once did the Bruins have to fall on the ball.

Passing Featured

The most beautiful thing of the whole game was the forward passing of Twin Falls. Nine passes were completed, two of which did not net a yard but were completed nevertheless. The other seven passes netted Twin Falls gains from 10 to 30 yards each. Garrity did most of the passing and as usual was accurate on the long passes. Alford, Timm, Jenkins, Cram and Minsell were on the receiving end of the passes and made some wonderful catches. Alford snatched everything he had in the line of passes in the last half and was gaining consistently with them. The whole weakness appeared to be in the Twin Falls line and the backfield men were often nailed in their tracks. Moose got away to a bad start with his punts, which left the ball within striking distance and resulted in the first touchdown being scored. The second came as the result of an intercepted pass and two bucks through the line. If Moose had put just an ounce more pressure behind his attempted dropkick Twin Falls would have scored just before the end of the fourth quarter. It was a beautiful kick, anyway.

Victors Fast Workers

Idaho Falls has a smooth working machine and they play like veterans. Russell and Mappen at half-back and Pierson at quarter are mighty good men and plough through the line in one, two, three style. Their line has an immense amount of local strength and is well trained, but once Moose and Jenks get started on off tackle bucks there was no stopping them.

There will probably be a return game, which will be a conference game, some time in November, and then it may be a different story. It was a good test for Twin Falls and has given Coach Evans something to work on from now on. With Albion Normal coming next Friday and probably the Nevada Fresh the next week the Bruins are facing a heavy schedule.

The team made the trip in the big bus "Miss Twin Falls" and were greeted in fine style all along the way, people running to windows and front porches to see them go by and waving them the glad hand. With Jenkins for a yell leader they succeeded in letting everyone know who they were and where they came from.

CHICAGO DOWNS AGGIES

Colorado Team Puts Up Close Fight Although Defeated, 10 to 0; Chicago Goal Threatened

CHICAGO, Oct. 6 (AP)—Although defeated, 10 to 0, the Colorado Aggies football team played the University of Chicago a nearly even game at Stagg field today. A blocked punt recovered by Henderson gave Chicago its touchdown and Rehke scored three points with a drop kick from the 25 yard line. Twice Colorado held back the Maroons in the shadow of their goal posts and in the third period Colorado made five straight first downs to Chicago's 15 yard line, but there the Maroons stopped them when the Aggie passes failed.

Reid and Houser carried the chief part of Colorado's offensive and Houser's punting played a large part in protecting Colorado's goal line.

NO SINGLE HOLIDAYS

A New England commissioner of education has objected recently to the number of single holidays occurring in the school year. If it is necessary to have breaks in the school routine for the health of pupils or teachers, he argues, these rest periods should not be in the form of solitary holidays, but should come as a full week of vacation at the end of the term.

In a study of the number of days lost in schools in his state for different reasons, such as holidays, bad weather and unsafe conditions in the school building, the state board found the total during the year nineteen hundred twenty-one-nineteen hundred twenty-two was from eight to thirty-seven half days in different schools.

Instead of closing schools on Washington's birthday, Memorial day and similar occasions, as is now the habit, the commissioner suggests that pupils should attend school as usual, but that a part of the school day be devoted to suitable exercises of observance.

While John and Susan may object to any abridgment of their holidays, many a teacher and many a parent will agree that the idea is worth careful consideration. The occasional mid-week holiday not only leaves the school plant idle while overhead expenses continue, but too often it brings the pupils back to school excited and excited—and so spoils the good work of the days just preceding and following it.

FISHING BY MACHINERY

Some European genius of a fisherman has invented a device that catches fish by a sort of vacuum cleaning process. There is a big wire net that is dragged behind the boat; along the bottom, scooping in the fish. From the net a water pipe worked by a centrifugal pump carries them up onto the deck in a flowing stream.

A New York man has worked out the same idea a little differently. He has a submarine chaser fitted up with a wire scoop in front, with a bucket belt worked by machinery hauling up the fish.

Thus the most leisurely of occupations bids fair to become one of the most efficient. It is a mournful outlook for the sportsman, and will be abandoned accordingly by men who fish simply for the love of fishing. If fishing is regarded, however, as an industry whose purpose is to produce food, there is less objection. A fish dredge may be no worse in character than an oyster dredge, if care is taken not to destroy the small fish.

CHAPTER XVII

Think of it. Ames was an inspiration, Jim Irwin received from the great agricultural college more real education in this one trip than many students get from a four years' course in its halls.

He had spent ten years in getting ready for the experience. The great farm of hundreds of acres, all under the management of experts, the beautiful campus, the commodious classrooms and laboratories, and especially the barns, the greenhouses, the gardens, here and there filled him with a sort of apostle joy.

"Every school," said he to Professor Withers, "ought to be doing a good deal of the work you have to do here."

"I'll admit," said the professor, "that much of our work in agriculture is pretty elementary."

"It's intermediate school work," said Jim. "It's wrong to force boys and girls to leave their homes and live in a college to get so much of what they should have before they're ten years old."

"There's something in what you say," said the professor, "but some experiment station men seem to think that agriculture in the common schools will take from the young men and women the best need, and therefore the desire to come to the college."

"If you can't give them anything better than high-school work," said Jim, "that will be so; but if the science and art of agriculture is what I think it is, it would make them hungry for the advanced work that really can't be done at home. To make the children wait until they're twenty is to deny them more than half what the college ought to give them—and make them pay for what they don't get."

"I think you're right," said the professor. "Give us the kind of schools I ask for," cried Jim, "and I'll fill a college with 'em."

like this in every congressional district in Iowa, or I'll force you to tear this down and hold it together."

More nearly happy and rather short-er of money than he had recently been, Jim journeyed home among the companions from his own neighborhood, in a frenzy of plans for the future. Mr. Kofmyer had dropped from his mind.

"No use in back-capping" a fellow that's tryin' to make somethin' of himself," said Bonner. "That ain't good politics, nor good sense. Anything to him?"

"He offered me a salary of seventy-five dollars a week to take charge of his school," said Jim. "Well," said Jim, "I'll be sorry to lose yeh, but you can't turn down anything like that."

"I don't know," said Jim. "I haven't decided."

Bonner scrutinized his face sharply, as if to find out what sort of game he was playing.

"Well," said he, at last, "I hope you can stay with us, of course. I'm licked, and I never squeal. If the rest of the district can stand your kind of thrice, I can. And there's here he comes still more mysterious—'If you do stay, some of us would like to have you be enough of a Democrat to go into the next convention for county superintendent.'"

"Why," replied Jim, "I never thought of such a thing."

"Well, think of it," said Con. "The county's close, and wid a poplar young educator—an farmer, too, it might be done. Think of it."

Jim was almost dazed at the number of "propositions" of which he was now required to "think"—and Bonner's did not at first impress him as having anything back of it but burlesque. He was to find out later, however, that the wily Con had made up his mind that the ambition of Jim to serve the rural schools in a larger sphere might be used for the purpose of bringing to earth what he regarded as the soaring political ambitions of the Woodruff family. To split the forces which had defeated Mr. Bonner in his own school district, with the very instrument used by the colonel at the last school election—that, to Mr. Bonner, would be a fine thing.

Jim had scarcely taken his seat in the car, facing Jennie Woodruff and Bettina Hansen in the Pullman, when Columbus Brown, pathmaster of the road district and only across the way from residence in the school district, in history. Retail trade is still good, but will no doubt reflect to some extent the slackening which occurred recently in the business of manufacturing.

"An influx of foreign merchandise, a steady stream of which is now going over our tariff wall, will tend to keep general business here from any activity which could be characterized as a boom, because of the foreign exchange situation and general chaotic financial conditions, abroad it is impossible for the American manufacturer to compete with low cost foreign goods on an even footing. During the next 18 months, however, this situation should adjust itself to a considerable extent."

"General business activity at the first of the year," concluded Mr. Babson, "was running at 10 per cent above normal. A slight slackening in February gave way to another rise to approximately the same point in March. By mid-summer we had crossed the normal line and gradually worked down to a point 5 per cent below normal by August 1. Our present position is 10 per cent below normal."

Present indications are that general sidewise movement with orderly adjustments will continue for the remainder of the year.

You Can Buy Individuality in Your Furnace as Well as in Clothes

FURNACES are like clothes—they must be made to fit each particular building and cannot be installed in a hit or miss fashion as might be supposed.

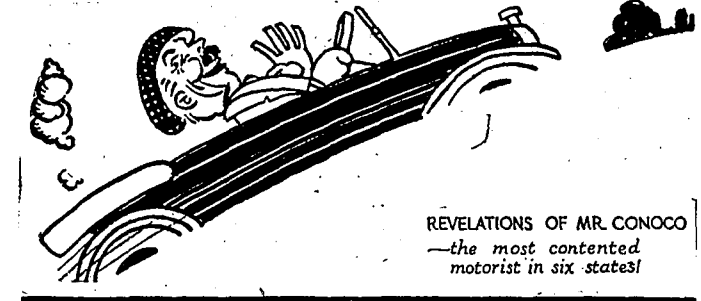

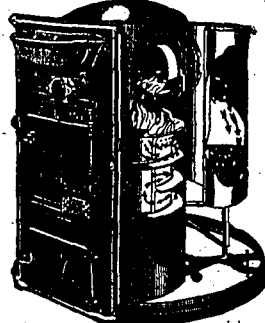

Each home or other structure presents individual problems that must be properly solved or that furnace will never give real satisfaction. Proper installation has as much or more to do with the way a furnace performs as does the way the furnace itself is made.

To insure perfect installations the Meyer Furnace Company sells only to the choicest authorized dealers and installers; and in addition to that they maintain a highly efficient Engineering Department at the plant where all installation problems are carefully gone over by experts.

This department is maintained for the free use of WEIR installers and dealers to insure perfect and lasting satisfaction to WEIR users

The WEIR is made by the Meyer Furnace Co., Peoria, Ill.

"Funny thing about Hills—

THEY'RE not nearly so bad as they look—not since I discovered what a 'powerful' lot of meaning there is in that word CONOCO.

"It used to bother me to see Neighbor Bill slip by whenever he caught me on a steep up-grade. I couldn't quite figure it out—same make and model of car, mind you—until one day in town I saw him pull up in front of the CONOCO sign.

"Bill admitted, with a smile full of meaning, that he had taken it for granted I knew the answer to the gasoline question. He showed me a little record he'd kept on mileage last month, too. That alone, was enough for me.

"I don't want to be as tight about a good thing as he was."
