PROPOSE CURB ON EXTENSION OF BIG BANKS

Proposal to Curb Branch Banking is Submitted to Investigating Body; See Danger to Small Institutions

CHICAGO, Nov. 6 (AP)—A proposal to curb branch banking through prohibitory regulations by the federal reserve board was submitted to the McFadden joint committee investigating federal reserve membership today by William J. Rathje, president of the American Bankers Association and the National Association Opposed to Branch Banking.

The congressional committee completed its Chicago inquiry today, moving tonight to Omaha, where further testimony will be taken at the federal reserve branch bank building tomorrow.

Questioned by Representative Steagall, democrat, of Alabama, as to the reserve board's authority to exclude from membership in the reserve system any bank operating branches was suggested by Mr. Rathje, the witness declared there was no authority in the law for such action, but urged that some vigorous action against "the evil" be taken at once.

Opposes "System"

Branch banking will drive the small independent community banker from America, Mr. Rathje said, and in their stead would spring up a system of hundreds of branch banks controlled by two or three leading national groups. He condemned the California system under which state banks are permitted to operate as many as seventy branches and urged that necessity for a federal statute clarifying the present situation as regard national banks. Declaring he was unable to determine the exact status of the question from the rulings of the federal department of justice which authorized agencies defined by Representative Wingo, a member of the committee, as "financial comfort station," Mr. Rathje urged the committee to clear up the uncertainty surrounding the question by early enactment of a regulatory law. Committee members indicated the question would be suggested for the consideration of the banking and currency committees of both houses of congress.

Offers New Plan

The testimony of J. H. Mortenson representing the Wisconsin Bankers Association recommended that many of the smaller state banks of his territory might be brought into the federal system by the abandonment of the parcel clearance system, under which all remittances through outlying banks are cleared at par without charge. This arrangement, the witness said, was costing country banks relatively large amounts of income and was, therefore, an influence against their adhering to the federal agency. Governor James B. McDougall of the seventh reserve bank questioned the validity of the argument inasmuch, he said, as the reserve system now performs a large part of the transportation service which formerly was paid for by the individual banks out of their exchange receipts.

Prizes Federal Reserve

E. H. Wolcott, banking commissioner of Indiana, told the committee he believed the federal reserve system to be the most wonderful financial institution ever created and advised against additional legislation which might impair the efficiency of the system. State banks not already within the national scheme had little to offer in strengthening the institution, he believed, while on the other hand, legislation designed to make their participation more inviting from the outside might weaken the present strong position of the entire system. The principal reason which kept most non-members out of the system he found to be purely a selfish one, since the refusal usually is based on the fact that the federal agency pays no interest on reserve deposits of member banks. This small item, Mr. Wolcott said, influenced many bankers against the system, but he deemed it inadvisable to offer to pay interest on the reserves for the financial burden of the reserve system then would become too heavy.

MANY INJURED IN RIOTS

Thousand German Shops Wrecked and Hundred Persons Hurt by Babes; Center Attacks on Jews

BERLIN, Nov. 6 (AP)—In the food riots in several sections of Berlin more than a thousand shops have been wrecked and pillaged and more than a hundred persons injured by stone casts. One man died of a shot wound. Owing to the anti-Semitic character of the riots the police forbade a proposed meeting of anti-Jewish organizations tonight.

The activity of the police today prevented the excesses attending the scale of yesterday's and more realized closed. This evening again, however, the city was given over to unruly elements, the looting of shops proceeding in all parts of Berlin without serious clashes with the police.

INDICT FOX FOR SLAYING COBURN

Klan Publicity Man Who Shot Attorney is Still Silent on Details of Shooting

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 6 (AP)—Indicted by the Fulton county grand jury Monday for the slaying of Captain W. S. Coburn, attorney for the so-called insurgent Klan faction as he sat at his desk in his office, Phillip E. Fox, publicity chief of the Ku Klux Klan and editor of the Night Hawk, Klan publication, tonight maintained silence in the waiting result of his efforts to obtain counsel.

Solicitor General J. A. Boykin, who presented the case to the grand jury this morning, had not indicated late today when the case would come to trial, but at his office it was said that the trial will be called soon.

Other than the statement that Coburn planned to publish certain statements that would have attacked his character, Fox declined to explain the slaying. It was said at the jail that no Klan official had been to see Fox, and newspaper conversations with the prisoner were cut short by police officials. The prisoner's wife called at the jail twice, leaving the second time without seeing her husband when "the learned newspaper men were seeking her. Other reports said she was ill at her home here, but reporters who called there were turned away today. It was learned today that some time ago Coburn was poisoned while luncheon with a man whose name has not been announced. Last month, it is said, a threatening note was delivered to the Coburn home.

The body of Captain Coburn was to be sent tonight to Savannah, where funeral services and burial will be held.

REPUBLICANS WIN IN PHILADELPHIA VOTING

Mayor to Take Office by Virtue of Record Majority; G. O. P. Superior Court Judge Is Re-elected

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6 (AP)—The republicans today elected W. Freeland Kendrick mayor of Philadelphia by a record of the largest majority cast in a mayoralty election in this city in recent years. The fact that Kendrick had no independent opposition made the republican victory an easy one. Party leaders claimed that the final count of ballots would show a majority of more than 200,000 over A. Raymond Bartz, the democratic candidate. The entire republican county ticket also was swept into office and two municipal loans, totalling $71,000,000, for various public improvements were approved by the voters. Judge John J. Henderson of Meadville was re-elected to the state superior court by the republicans of Pennsylvania for a term of ten years. His democratic opponent was Charles D. McAvoy of Norristown. The socialist candidate was Henry John Nelson of Philadelphia.

CLAIM HARDING BLOCKED SALES

Senate Inquiry Committee is Told President Took Hand in Vets' Supply Transactions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Harding put an end to the sale of materials from the Veterans' Bureau supply depot at Perryville, Maryland, it was disclosed today before the senate investigating commission.

The late executive first intervened in the transaction on November 24, 1922, nine days after the bureau had entered into a contract for the sale of the materials valued at $3,600,000 to Thompson and Kelly, Inc., of Boston for approximately $600,000. Deliveries were resumed after a conference December 12 between the president and representatives of the veterans' bureau and the war department. The second and final order by Mr. Harding stopping deliveries was issued January 24, 1923, and, according to the testimony of Lieutenant-Commander Charles R. O'Leary, then in charge of the supply division of the bureau, after a meeting at the White House between the executive and Charles E. Forbes, then director of the bureau. What transpired at that conference or the information on which the president acted was not developed.

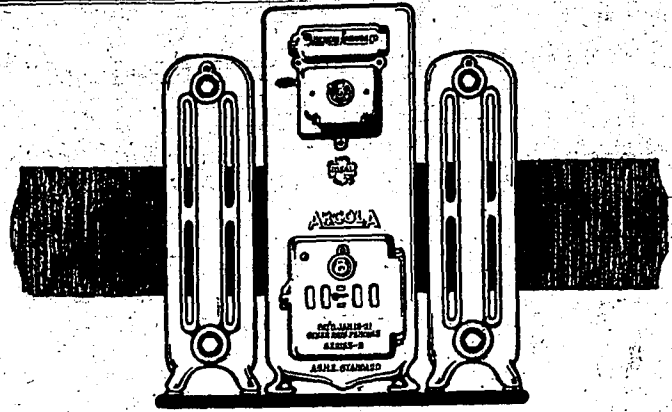

O'Leary's understanding was that Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer, personal physician to President Harding, and Senator Calder, republican, New York, were among those who had made representations to Mr. Harding regarding the Perryville transaction.

Development of the story of this sale was pursued again today by the committee with only a single break. This came with the presentation by John F. O'Bryan, general counsel for the committee, of a letter describing "parties" said to have been included in by some officers and employees of the bureau at Chillicothe, Ohio, where is located the largest rehabilitation school of the bureau. The letter was written by E. A. Trippe, in charge of the supply division of the bureau; was dated November 17, 1922, and addressed to W. C. Black, chief clerk of the bureau, who testified it was among papers stolen when his office was burglarized on the night of November 26.

Repetition of vain efforts of the public health service to prevent the sale of much of the property which Surgeon General Cummings reported could be used by his soldiers, was testified to by several witnesses before the story of the final stoppage of the sales was related. Commander O'Leary who was on the stand yesterday was recalled for examination on the basis of questions prepared by James Easby-Smith, counsel for Forbes, and handed to Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee.

No ashes—no dust—little attention

Less fuel to heat the whole house than formerly used to heat one floor

Standing Back of Your Mousetraps

A shoe manufacturer whose store in New York City is in a rather out-of-the-way locality recently called the attention of the reading public to these lines:

"If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

For many years people have beaten a path to this shoe manufacturer's door. He has proved the truth of this famous aphorism.

And where did he publish this quotation which he applies with such pride to his business?

Why, in an advertisement, to be sure—

for this manufacturer is a consistent and regular advertiser, and when he has anything to say, he says it through his advertising. It may fairly be assumed that he would not look for a thriving business in the best of mousetraps, or shoes, if people were not told about them as people expect to be told—through advertising.

Of course, people do find out which are the best mousetraps, the best shoes, the best tires, the best breakfast foods, and buy them in preference to others.

And people today are pretty well aware that when a manufacturer puts Advertising back of the thing he makes, he is telling the world that the path to his door is a broad highway.

AGGIES DOPED FOR HARD GAME

Backfield Is Still Slow and Heavy, But Idaho Set for Tough Battle Saturday

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Nov. 6.—(Special to The News).—An apparent inability to get punch into the Aggie backfield need not be looked upon as any indication that the Vandals will have an easy job at Boise Saturday in the fourth annual Armistice Day game against the Oregon Agricultural college team. Thus far the Aggies have shown more defense than anything else and in the conference have been unable to score but 12 points, against Pacific, a team hardly of sufficient strength to test the stronger western eleven.

Following the disastrous trip to Berkeley, on which they received the 26 to 0 lacing by the Golden Bear the Aggies have had two weeks to do nothing but concentrate on offense. Their defense has proved itself and now Coach Butherford is not worrying about it.

This lack of backfield punch is an old, old story with Aggie teams, yet in years gone by some of the most formidable coast eleven have come from Corvallis. Butherford has a club well drilled in fundamentals and up to the minute on defensive tactics but somehow or other it can't get the snappy drive that is so essential to forward progress. In recent years this condition has been due largely to the lack of a competent quarterback, but this year the Aggies apparently have a youngster born for the job.

A defensive team was in slight at the opening practice, September 15. Coach Butherford found in probing through Aggie history that in no season had a Corvallis team won more than two coast conference games. Occasionally a third was tied but never a victory.

Speed Is Needed.

The great need now seems to be a backfield slasher of the type of Miller, who played his last year in 1922. It takes these plungers, who are good for a yard or two on every play, to build up a real offensive on the rear platform. There is one bright spot at the Aggie fortress this year and that is a quarterback. In Ray Price of Long Beach, Cal., the Aggies seem to have their first genuine quarter. In former seasons Aggie teams have been run by makeshift leaders who lacked nearly all characteristics so essential to successful generalship.

This boy Price is stocky, weighing about 172 pounds. He is not terribly fast, nor is he a triple threat man; but he seems to have a natural knack for running a football club. He has ability as a safety and thus far has gotten maximum results.

BIG TEN CROSS-COUNTRY DRAWS MANY ENTRIES

SEEK TO BAR GRID STAR FROM CONFERENCE GAMES

Wisconsin Player Charged with Professionalism for Teaching Boy Swimmers While Earning Expenses

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (AP)—Teaching swimming to boys' Y. M. C. A. class to earn money for university expenses was made the basis of a charge of professionalism against one of the star tackles of the western conference.

The protest is made against Ed C. Gerber, tackle of the University of Wisconsin eleven, just on the eve of the crucial Wisconsin-Illinois game Saturday. The protest if allowed means that he will be barred from all athletics on the ground that he was a paid coach.

The situation recalls a similar incident a year ago when as the Badgers prepared to meet the Illini a protest came from Illinois quarters which disqualified Murray, another star Wisconsin tackle. This protest brought out the wrath of "Big John" Richards, then Wisconsin coach, and almost resulted in a severance of athletic relations between the two universities.

The attempt to have Gerber ruled out of competition comes from a different source, according to reliable reports here. Faced with a shattered line in the most important game of his present season, should Gerber be declared ineligible, Wisconsin athletic authorities tonight hastened an investigation into the charges. T. E. Jones, director of athletics went to La Crosse to find from Y. M. C. A. officials the status that the athlete held when he taught a boys' swimming class there.

Gerber, rated as one of the star tackles of the Big Ten, maintains that he has violated no conference rule. Before the season started he submitted his case to the athletic council of the

BRUINS PREPARE TO MEET RUPERT

Try Conclusions with Husky Cubs in First Workout Since East High Game

The Bruins took on their first workout since the East high game Tuesday night. After a few minutes practice the first string Bruins lined up against the junior high Cubs. The Cubs promptly walked through the line and around ends at will and finally got away easily. But on the next try the Bruins line began to show a little steel and the junior high Cubs had a little harder going.

Timmi is on the crippled list with a bad knee. Although it is not thought to be very serious, the plucky fullback did not run signals Tuesday. Captain John Lester was not in a suit, but out in his flannels. Jimmie is still badly swollen but looks better and will not bother him Friday.

The Bruins will have two more workouts before the Rupert game and will need them both. The East high game seems to prove conclusively that the Bruins are going to start the season off strong. Nevertheless, they always pile up enough score to put the game away for keeps before they slacken their pace. Last time they lost in the first three quarters of last Saturday's clash was too much for any team to stand up under. It completely bewildered the Salt Lakers and they never did recover.

Rupert's Team Speedy. Rupert boasts of a light, fast team with one of two men in the backfield who are extremely dangerous on the offense. Long is the most dangerous. Although light, he is a sprinter and the Rupert aggregation arc staking their chances to win on his getting away.

Bleasmeater's squad are also doped to spring a big fall of tricks and the Bruins will have their eyes open every second if they come home victorious. Rupert did not show misdemeanor form against the lighter, less experienced Aberdeen team last Saturday, but the probable reason is the long lay-off. Three weeks without a game is hard on any team.

The Rupert line will average close to the Bruin forward wall and it will again be a question of the fastest charge. With a well trained heavy line and a light fast backfield it makes a team that is dangerous until the last minute. Twin Falls fans by the scores are planning to accompany the team to Rupert, and the game will draw from all over the east end. It looks like a big day and a big crowd.

The Green Turf stables Nedra won the race, at a mile and one-sixteenth, from the field of five.

MILING NEW THUNDER

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 6 (AP)—Several Notre Dame plays which have not been exhibited for this season were rehearsed during today's workout in preparation for the Nebraska game Saturday. Notre Dame has relied to a great extent on a straight football attack against teams they have met so far this season, but Coach Beckel today indicated he was prepared to unleash every trick in the team's repertoire if necessary to defeat Nebraska.

SCHEDULE STRAIGHTENED OUT

Owing to a misunderstanding, the game which was canceled to be played between the junior high Cubs and Filer's first string will not be played until Tuesday of next week when the Cubs will travel to Filer. With the very creditable showing they made against the Bruins Tuesday evening, the Filerites have something in store for them and that won't be an easy game, either.

Game With Rupert Is Still on Schedule

School Officials Declare Rumor of Cancellation Is Without Foundation

There seems to be a rumor afoot that the Bruins will play a game with Rupert this Friday. Coach Evans reported late Tuesday evening that nothing official has been said and so far as he knows the rumor was entirely without foundation. However, there is nothing definite regarding a future game with Rupert as the following week, November 10, they meet Gooding and Idaho Falls is unwilling to wait later than November 23 to play for a chance to meet the northeastern team winner for the state championship. Consequently nothing has been decided upon the future Bruins schedule beyond Friday's game with Rupert which promises to be a fair exhibition of football and present indications point to splendid delegation of rosters from Twin Falls.

IDAHO'S DEFENSE POWER PROVED IN RECENT GAME

Vandals' Inability to Break Up Passes Is Soon Overcome; Speculation Turns Toward Future Contests

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Nov. 6.—(Special to The News)—The Vandals' biggest weakness was inability to break up passes set off by the Gonzaga passing offense into the ditch and kept the fighting Bulldogs from advancing nearer than 20 yards from their goal line the last forty about Idaho's defensive powers was removed. In each of the four previous games Idaho's biggest weakness was inability to break up passes set off by the Gonzaga, a team that staked all on its crafty passing. Idaho stopped passes with effectiveness. Of the 24 passes attempted by the Bulldogs only six were completed, four being intercepted at critical stages.

The Vandals are now getting ready for that three-game trip. They play the Oregon Aggies at Boise November 10 in the fourth annual Armistice Day classic, and head south immediately thereafter to meet Stanford at Palo Alto and Southern California at Los Angeles. At Boise the Aggies will find themselves opposed by a team whose goal line has yet to be crossed this season. Seven times it has been endangered, three times the turning point was within inches of the goal. Contrasted with that Idaho has scored 150 points in her five games. The more impressive part of the scoring, however, was done against the early season opponents.

It is believed at the Vandal camp that the trip ahead of Idaho is the first time in history that a team has over played three games on the same trip. If Idaho should pull through it would put glorious finish on a season which has already been a greater success than any previous one. No serious injuries resulted from the Gonzaga game. The squad leaves Thursday afternoon on the "friendship" special which is carrying north Idaho fans south to the big game.

WALSH WINS ON POUL

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—After taking two counts of nine, Pat Walsh of Cincinnati tonight won on a foul from Dave Rosenberg of Brooklyn in the fifth round of their ten round fight. The referee charged Rosenberg with using the back of his glove. They are midweighters.

KEEPS HUNTERS AWAY BY PUNTING TREES

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Nov. 6 (AP)—Taking his cue from the brightly colored comic sections of Sunday newspapers, one Great Falls duck hunter maintained his favorite lake for private duck hunting by scattering sticks along the road leading to the lake. After suffering casualties to their trees, early duck hunters gave up in disgust and came back to town. However, following an indignation meeting the culprit took his sticks to the woods and no similar offenses have occurred.

Speedy Bowlers for Showmen Prove Undoing of News Team in Second League Game

Phil Fix and Ryan, who substituted for Hugh Boone, proved to be the undoing of The News in the second game of the league, the showmen taking two out of three games from the printers with a total of 203 pins to The News 2178. With the exception of these two black places on the score sheet The News seemed to have a little better of the showmen. Phil Fix took high honors with a score of 200 and the way Phil was sending the ball down the alley, he must have thought that the mops were bolted to the floor. If they let him play often he'll wreck the alleys. Several witnesses claim that it is impossible to follow the ball at all. Fix also goes on record as taking high score in every game, his nearest competitor being Thompson for The News, who bowled 169.

As was the case Monday evening, the last game was the deciding contest and up to the last frame of that it was easily anybody's game. And with the brand of bowling the teams seem to be starting the season off with fans will be assured of some good bowling before the winter is over. The crowd that witnessed Tuesday's game also showed a slight improvement over Monday and the chances are that a full house will be present before another week is gone.

Increase Shown in Retail Food Prices In Numerous Cities

Federal Report Indicates Gains and Declines in Cost Nearly Equally Divided

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Retail food prices in 13 of 26 selected cities investigated by the department of labor, increased during the month from September 16 to October 15. Decreases were reported in 11 cities; the department reported today, while no changes were found in two. Two of the cities showed increases for the year from October 15, 1922, to last October 15, ranging from 2 per cent in Buffalo to 8 per cent in Indianapolis and Bridgeport, Conn. Increases from 37 to 66 per cent were shown in the cities compared with the average cost in 1913.

LIQUOR FINES EXCEEDED FUND FOR ENFORCEMENT

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 6 (AP)—Fines assessed during one week in October in liquor cases aggregated more than one-third of the entire appropriation allowed by the state legislature for the maintenance of the state enforcement bureau, according to M. C. Watchel, commissioner of the department. The total of the fines for the week was $10,150 and jail sentences aggregating 475 days. This, Watchel believes, is a record never before equaled in the state of Wyoming.

SETTLEMENT OF ESTATE

PUBLIC, Colo., Nov. 6 (AP)—The question whether husband or wife died first in a drowning accident near here held up the final settlement of the estate of Philip and Hattie Morrow for 14 months. Morrow and his wife and another person were drowned in a coalboat near Beck creek in August, 1922, and the question as to who lived the longest involved the settlement of the estate since the husband had direct heirs while the wife had none. The single surviving eye-witness of the incident testified that Mr. Morrow probably outlived his wife by ten minutes and the estate, amounting to $1,000, was handed over to the direct heirs of Morrow.

My judgment they are due not to neglect or indifference but to understandable and pardonable causes. The removal of 40,000 bodies to America has of itself meant a general tearing up of the burial grounds and involved rearrangement and reburial of many if not most of those left.

STANDING TOGETHER
Lloyd George, harping on his favorite theme in his Seranton speech, declared that the United States and Great Britain, acting together to insure order in the world, could save civilization. And how could that be done?

"Not by alliance but by understanding," he said. "Not by contract but by co-operation. I am as opposed to entangling alliances as any man in this room."
The people standing together to bring order out of chaos will achieve the end. Mankind will be saved and peace will reign forever.

The conclusion, at least, may be regarded as oratorical exaggeration.
Nothing that America, or Britain, or both together, can do, now or hereafter, can be sure of making "peace reign forever." Forever is a very long time, and every age has a way of deciding its own destiny.

There is little doubt, however, in the minds of thoughtful men who disregard old prejudices and see things somewhat as they are, that in friendly co-operation between the two great English-speaking countries lies the chief hope of this generation and the next.

It hardly needs to be added that,
as regards America at least, the
"standing together" must be informal. Lloyd George himself sees that,
more clearly than some of our other British friends.

THE STEEL DIVIDEND

The extra dividend of one-fourth per cent on common stock voted by the directors of the United States Steel Corporation is important out of all proportion to its size.

The Steel Trust is not accustomed to declaring dividends of any size, merely to make the stockholders feel good. It may be assumed, therefore, that Judge Gary and his board of directors not only have made a little extra money during the last quarter,
but expect to continue making it.
That augurs well for the steel industry in general, and consequently well for other industries. It is an intimation of a good business winter.

It is a tacit admission, too, that the abolition of the twelve-hour day
in this basic industry is working better than the steel men anticipated.
They feared increased expense of production, inability to obtain the additional workmen needed for three shifts, insufficient housing for such workers if they were obtainable, and the need of higher prices for steel.
None of these results has appeared.
The shorter working day seems to be developing rapidly into a self-paying proposition, as it has previously in other industries.

AERIAL CROP ESTIMATES

Crop estimates for the United States Department of Agriculture may nearly all be made from the air in a few years. An army aviator, working in Louisiana, has recently completed a series of experiments along this line.
He found that it was quite possible
to judge the nature of crops from photographs taken at an altitude as great as seven thousand feet, and that pictures made at about three thousand feet hundred feet could be "read at a glance" by one who knew how.

So far as the photography goes, the method is far ahead of any previously used. Its cost is still to be determined.
This is a field open particularly to civilians because the number of available army fliers is small. Present es-

TRICKY FOX
By DADDY

(Chickens vanish from the henhouse. Jack and Janet are unable to find the mystery. Daddy Dog offers to turn detective and help them.)

CHAPTER II.

Daddy Dog as a Detective.

DADDY DOG sat down at looked at the henhouse from which the five chickens had vanished without leaving a trace. He puffed at his pipe and pulled his cap down over one eye. He looked like a detective whose mystery Jack had once asked in a book called "Sherlock Holmes."
"You say there is no hole by which a chicken might get out or a thief get in?" he asked.

"We have been all around the henhouse, both inside and outside," replied
Jack. "We couldn't find any hole."
"And the door and the windows were locked?" went on Daddy Dog.
"Yes, the door and windows were locked," declared Janet.

"And you are sure the chickens are gone?" went on Daddy Dog.
"To be sure they are gone," said Jack, growing more impatient. "We had 26 chickens when we can count
only 20."

"Woo!" Daddy Dog grinned. "I can't count more than five, but I
can't count more than five, but I counting for a dog. Children are better counts than dogs, so I will take your word that there are 20 chickens
here now."

Daddy Dog puffed his pipe a moment longer.

"If the missing chickens were shut up in the henhouse and not in the henhouse, they must have got out,"
said he wisely. "If the door and windows were shut tight they couldn't have got through them. Neither could they have gotten through the board walls. Woo! My common sense does not tell me how they got out. I'll have to use my nose!" It's a good detective!

So Daddy Dog put away his pipe
and began to sniff around the henhouse. And he had not sniffed very long when he gave a sharp "Woo!"

"I smell strange tracks here," he barked. Then Daddy Dog sniffed again. "They are the tracks of a fox."

"How do you know they are the tracks of a fox?" asked Janet.
"Woo! Smell them yourself!"
barked Daddy Dog excitedly and a bit crossly. "Anyone can tell the smell of fox tracks."

Janet tried to smell the tracks, but couldn't smell anything but earth. Jack tried too, with the same result.
Daddy Dog sniffed along the tracks.
His sniffing led him into the empty
box that stood against the outside wall of the henhouse. "Ki-yi! Ki-yi! I have found how the fox got into the henhouse," he barked. Look here!
Daddy Dog was pulling dead leaves from a hole in the ground beneath the box. The hole seemed to go under the henhouse.

"Ki-yi! Look inside the henhouse," barked Daddy Dog.
Jack opened the henhouse door and Daddy Dog darted within. He went straight to the other empty box that stood against the inside wall. He followed his nose inside the box. "Woo!
Woo! Here is the other end of the hole," he barked, digging out more dead leaves. Here is how the crafty fox got inside the henhouse to steal
the chickens."

Jack and Janet looked inside the second box. Sure enough they saw a hole in the floor—a hole that led from the outside. They thought it must be a very shy fox, indeed, who would hide it under the boxes, and then hide it with leaves. The leaves would prevent even the chickens from seeing the hole and yet the fox could pass through as he pleased.

"How shall we find the sly fox who stole our chickens?" asked Jack.
"Woo! Woo!" barked Daddy Dog.
"I'll follow the tracks of the crafty fox," said Ki-yi. He can't fool me!"
Daddy Dog set off at a swift pace, his nose sniffing at the ground.

(Where Daddy Dog's nose leads him to will be told tomorrow.)

ure in the shadows, went over to a box of raised ammunition with brass thimbliness in it, fooled about for a moment, and went away again.
Sailors earn their money easily.

"Yes," said Sam when he had gone.
"I forgot what I was saying."
"Something about my being the perfect knight."
"Yes," I thought you were."

"That's good."
"But you're not!"
"No!"
"No!"
"Oh!"

Silence fell. Sam was feeling hurt and bewildered. He could not understand the woman. He had been expecting to be soothed and comforted
and she was like a petulant lecher.
Cynically, he recalled some lines of poetry which he had had to write out at school as a punishment for having introduced a waste mouse into chapel.

"Oh, woman in our hours of sooth,
Un-something, something, something,
When tidily-empty uptry bow,
A something, something, something,
thou!"

He had forgotten the exact words,
but the gist of it had been that woman, however she might treat a man in times of prosperity, could be relied on to rally round and do the right thing when he was in trouble. How little the poet had known women.

"Why not?" he said huffily.
She gave a little sob.
"I put you on a pedestal and I find you have left rest of clay. You have blurred the image which I formed of you. I can never think of you again without picturing you as you stood in that saloon, stammering and helpless."

"Well, what can you do when your planet runs out on you?"
"You could have done something. I can't forgive a man for looking ridiculous. Oh, what, what," she cried, "induced you to try to give an imitation

of Bert Williams?"

Sam started, stung to the quick.
"What? Imitation? William? It was Frank Tinney!"

"Well, how was I to know?"
"I did my best," said Sam solemnly.
"That is the awful thought."
"I did it for your sake."

"I know. It gives me a horrible sense of being humiliated again.
Then, suddenly, with the nervous quickness of a woman mistaking thrust a small black goliwink into his hand."

"Take it!"
"What's this?"
"You bought it for me yesterday at the barber's shop. It is the only present that you have given me. Take it back."

"I don't want it. I shouldn't know what to do with it."
"You must take it," she said in a low voice. "It is a symbol."
"A symbol?"
"A symbol of our broken love."
"I don't see how you make that out.
It's a goliwink."
"I can never marry you now."
"What? Good heavens! Don't be absurd!"

"Oh, go on, here a dash at it," he said encouragingly, though his heart was aching.
She shook her head.
"No, I couldn't."
"Oh, hang it all!"

"You're a damned silly girl."
"I don't see what right you have to say that," she flared.
"I don't see what right you have to say you can't marry me and try to load me up with goliwinks," he retorted, with equal heat.

"No, I don't understand."
"No, I'm dashed if I can."
She looked at him despondently.
"When I said I would marry you,
you were a hero to me. You stood to me for everything that was noble and brave and wonderful. I had only to look at you to know that you were the man of my dreams. But now you are just a man with a bad temper."
"I shall always think of you as I saw you looked."

She looked at him sadly. "There's always something in the left ear."
He tried to take her hand. But she drew it away. He fell back as if struck.
"So this is the end," he muttered.
"Yes. It's partly on your ear and partly on your cheek."
"So this is the end," he repeated.
"You had better go below and ask your steward to give you some more butter."

He laughed bitterly.
"Well, I might have expected it. I might have known what would happen!
Eustace warned me. Eustace was right. He knows women—as I do—and women are mighty hard to get not been done by women. But she betrayed the what's-its-name? A woman! Who lost... lost... lost... who—er—so on? A woman...
So all is over! There is nothing to be said but good-bye!"

"Good-bye, then, Miss Bennett?"
"Good-bye," said Billie sadly. "I'm sorry."
"Don't mention it!"
"You do understand, don't you?"
"You have made everything perfectly clear."
"I hope—I hope you won't be unhappy!" Sam produced a stran-ged noise from his larynx, like the cry of a shrimp in pain. "Unhappy!
I'm not unhappy! Whatever gave you that idea? I'm smiling! I'm laughing!
I feel I've had a merciful escape."
"I'm very unkind and rude of you to say that."
"It reminds me of a moving picture I saw in New York. It was called,
"Saved From the Scaffold."
"Oh!"

"I'm not unhappy. What have I got to be unhappy about? What on earth does any man want to get married for?
I don't. Give me my my bachelor life! My uncle Charlie used to say,
"It's better luck to get married than to be kicked in the head by a mule."
But he was an optimist. Good-night,
Miss Bennett. And good-bye—forever."

He turned on his heel and strode across the deck. From a white bench
the moon still shone benignly down, mocking him. He had spoken bravely;
the most cautious critic could not but have admitted that he had made a good exit. But already his heart was aching.

As he drew near to his stateroom, he was amazed and disgusted to hear a high tenor voice raised in song proceeding from behind the closed door.

I fear I saw law in thee—ling arr-mor,
Though his lance be sharrp and-er
But I fear, I fear the glah-mor
Through thy der-rooping lashes seen:
I fear, I fear the glah-mor...

Sam flung open the door wrathfully.
That Eustace Hignett should be alive
was what he had pictured him hurling
from his overboard and bobbing about, a pleasing sight. In the way of the vessel; that he should be singing was an outrage. Remorse, Sam thought, should have stricken Eustace Hignett dumb. Instead of which, here he was comporting himself like a blasted inferno. It was all wrong. The man could have no conscience whatever.

"Well," he said, sternly, "so there you are!"

Breakfast Food
"Matrimonially Speaking"

By MRS. HUGH MONAY

My husband knows about every thing. He knows the difference between a glass top desk and a sight—and he'd be a regular information bureau.

Of course, I appreciate just how handy this is when there's something I want to find out in a hurry. But sometimes I wish that I could discover just one thing that he didn't know all about.

It doesn't make any difference what sort of a question I ask him—from football to international politics. He always replies with the air of a man who has just written a book on the point in question.

But he never comes right out and tells me what I want to know. Instead he says, "Well, now my dear—there are quite a few other things that must be cleared up before we come to an swearing your question." And then he gives me his fifteen-minute lecture on the subject.

I should think it would be dangerous for anyone to carry that much information around with them.
(Tomorrow's wife keeps reminding me of the musical career she gave up when she married me.)
(Copyright, 1923, by Public Ledger Co.)

Eustace Hignett looked up brightly, even beamingly. In the brief interval which had elapsed since Sam had seen him last an extraordinary transformation had taken place in this young man.
His was a look had disappeared. His eyes were bright. His face wore that beastly self-satisfied smirk which you see in pictures advertising certain makes of fine-meat underwear. If Eustace Hignett had been a full-page
drawing in a magazine with "My dear friend, I always wear Sigbee's Superfine Featherweight!" printed underneath him, he could not have looked more pleased with himself.

"Results!" he said. "I was wondering where you had got to."
"Never mind," said Sam coldly,
"where I had got to! Where did you get to, and why? You poor, miserable worm," he went on in a burst of generous indignation, "what have you to say for yourself? What do you mean by feeding away like that and killing my little sister?"

"Awfully sorry, old man. I hadn't foreseen the cigar. I was bearing up tolerably well till I began to sniff the smoke. Then everything seemed to go black—I don't mean you, of course.
You were black already—and I got the feeling that I simply must get on deck
and begin myself."

"Well, who didn't you?" demanded Sam, with a strong sense of injury. "I might have forgiven you then. But to come down here and find you singing
..."
A soft light came into Eustace Hignett's eyes.

"I want to tell you all about that," he said. "It's the most astonishing story.
A miracle, you might almost call it.
Makes you believe in Fate and all that sort of thing. A week ago I was on the Subway in New York ..."
He broke off while Sam cursed him,
the Subway and the city of New York,
in the order named.

"What is the matter? What is the matter?"
"What is the matter? Ha!"
"Something is the matter!" persisted Eustace Hignett. "I can tell it by your manner. Something has happened to disturb and upset you. I know you so well that I can pierce the mask. What is it? Tell me."

"You surely can't still be brooding on that concert business? Why, that's all over. I take it that after my departure you made the most colossal ass of yourself, but why let that worry you?
These things cannot affect one permanently."

Golf Balls Kill Birds.
Driving a long, low shot from the teeth, W. L. Wass, playing on the Thorp's Hill golf course, Essex, saw his ball hit a titlark as it rose about fifty yards from the tee, and such was the force of impact that the bird was killed. Ten minutes later, Wass's partner, A. F. Hurt, playing his second shot, struck a lark in flight, the ball killing the bird outright.

HEAVY SELLING LEADS TO DECLINE IN WHEAT

Drop in Prices Is Offset by Strength in the Corn Market and Closing Quotations Are Unsettled

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Further selling on the part of owners who had ceased to count on government action to help them out led to fresh declines today in the price of wheat, but strength in the corn market had a counterbalancing effect later. Wheat closed unsettled at 1-1/4 to 1-3/8 net...

Apparently the majority of wheat traders were selling at the outset today on the assumption that the only hope of higher prices through government aid of an immediate character was the chance that the wheat tariff would be raised on a possible recommendation...

After midday, however, selling in the wheat market appeared to dwindle and with the corn market showing a decided upward trend the prevailing sentiment as to wheat underwent considerable change...

Scarcities of receipts of corn here had a good deal to do with strengthening the corn market and so too did reports of disappointing husking returns...

On the most part provisions tended downward in line with the hog market.

DRINK WATER IF BACK OR KIDNEYS HURT

Begin Taking Salts if You Feel Backache or Have Bladder Weakness

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains at the back or side, headache, dizziness, the stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is agreeable and causes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders.

By all means, drink lots of good water any day. Have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year—adv.

WAY IS PAVED FOR BRIDGING HIGHWAY GAP

Understanding as to Financing of Road Building Between Hansen and Burley is Reached at Conference Here

Complete understanding as to financing of highway construction to bridge the gap of about 24 miles between gravel road west of Burley and pavement at Hanken, on the Old Oregon Trail, was reached at a conference here Tuesday in which H. W. Gregory, state director of highways, and A. K. Ashline, highway engineer, discussed the undertaking with directors of the Twin Falls highway district and officers and members of the roads bureau of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce.

As a result of the conference, the chamber of commerce has undertaken to dispose of about $3000 worth of the Twin Falls district warrants, which will bring the full amount of the district's share of about $4500 in the cost of the improvement. Additional funds to meet the district's share in the cost are required under a revised estimate of the total cost of the undertaking, which is placed at approximately $115,000.

Other participants ready all other units participating in the undertaking, including the Murtaugh and Burley highway districts, state and federal governments, have funds appropriated and available for the work. Sale by the Murtaugh highway district of $30,000 worth of its warrants, which was completed recently, removed a principal barrier to the undertaking. The state has approximately $1,000,000 available for this work. The federal government will furnish 50 per cent of the total amount to be expended, the state and participating highway districts furnishing 45 per cent.

Approximately 15 1/2 miles of the proposed road to be built lies in Twin Falls county, the remainder being within the borders of the Burley district, which for a long time has had funds appropriated and available for the work.

Chamber's Campaign Carried to Schools

Director Frank Horton Enlists Students' Support and Puts Questions

Carrying the chamber of commerce expansion campaign to the younger men and women of Twin Falls, Frank Horton, chamber director, addressed students of the high school Tuesday afternoon. With the presentation of a questionnaire, he made a definite request for support of the students in the chamber's undertaking. The questionnaire is made up of three questions. The replies are to be returned today, and analyzed by the chamber directors.

The questions are: 1. What vocation do you prefer? 2. Do you intend to remain permanently in Twin Falls? If not, why not? 3. As a future citizen, what do you suggest that the chamber of commerce undertake for the improvement of Twin Falls.

"We want the young men and women of the city to know that they are having a part in making this city a greater and better Twin Falls," Mr. Horton told the students. "Every day members of the high school faculty are endeavoring to make the students think. That seems like a simple statement, but the ability to think makes the difference between a student who leaves school ready to do things, independently helps himself and his community, and the one who is of less value due to lack of independent thinking. You are learning to think so that you will be able to work towards your ideals. The high school hopes also to develop you into leaders who will help the public think straight and in a big usefulness way. The modern chamber of commerce is a chamber of citizenship and its chief duty is to teach the public to think."

Definite decision on this question is to be announced in a few days, it was stated.

University Musicians, on Tour of State to Advertise School, Will Give Concerts and Play for Dance

The University of Idaho Pep band will arrive this afternoon for their concert and dance this evening at Pocatello. In the evening they will again give a street concert before their dance.

The tour of the state is the fourth this organization has completed in four years and promises to be quite as successful in gaining its end of advertising the university as in former years. The entire expenses of the trip are made by the boys by the dances they give along their itinerary. The tour is not being fostered by a money-making proposition, but as a part of an extensive plan to advertise the University of Idaho to the future students of the state.

NEW PARK FOR CITY IS URGED

Senator M. J. Sweeley Pleads Out Present Opportunity for Acquiring Civic Playground

Direction of community effort toward immediate procuring and improvement of another park for Twin Falls was urged by former Senator Martin J. Sweeley at a dinner dance given at the Rogerson Tuesday evening by members of the Kiwanis club for their ladies.

Property values will never be lower than at about Twin Falls than they are at the present time, Senator Sweeley proclaimed, while the need for additional parks will become increasingly urgent.

"It is the history of every town that has progressed," Senator Sweeley declared, "that as time goes on, the regret becomes greater that they failed to make provision for adequate parks in the beginning."

Immediate action toward procuring the new park, Senator Sweeley urged, would make it possible to advance development by transplanting large trees which can be done successfully during the winter months. Declaring that Twin Falls has not in its entire history, spent a single dollar for purchase of park grounds, Senator Sweeley stated that four blocks, some of which now form the city park, had been donated by the Twin Falls Land and Water company upon solicitation of pioneer citizens, and that a park in the west quarter of town had been given to the city by the late Frank H. Buhl. Senator Sweeley suggested also that a number of nut trees be set out in the city park to take the places of poplars recently removed. He suggested, also, that the park be made the habitat of a number of squirrels.
