OFFICIALS HOLD TO SILENCE ON DEBT INQUIRY

Conversations Continue Between Hughes and Jusserand But Little is Known of Details for Conference

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Absolute official silence as to the nature of conversations today between Secretary Hughes and Ambassador Jusserand blocked every effort to obtain information as to whether progress had been made toward an agreement on scope of the proposed expert inquiry into Germany's economic situation and its effects on the reparations problem.

It was stated officially, however, that the conversations were continuing. This statement was regarded in some quarters as significant inasmuch as it indicated that the "insurmountable" obstacle to reconciling the American and French viewpoints had as yet developed.

The ambassador laid before the secretary detailed explanations from Paris as to the French point of view. The only word obtainable from the diplomat who left the department after a half hour conference with Mr. Hughes was the statement: "We continued the conversations. When there is a definite result, it will be brought to your notice."

Secretary Hughes would not go even that far. Evaluating an effort to get him to say whether he still regarded the situation "hopeless," he pointed out that the conference to the White House to report developments to President Coolidge.

Specialists on Outcome. In view of the complete silence as to what had occurred speculation as to how far direct conversations between Washington and Paris had served to clear the way for understanding among the allies which would result in the extending of a formal invitation for American cooperation in the proposed inquiry was thrown back upon analysis of press cablegrams from Paris and London.

These dispatches were reviewed, particularly those from Paris, describing French official circles, as more hopeful of ultimate agreement among the allies, as agreeing that distinct progress had been made.

At the same time Ambassador Jusserand's guarded statement at the conclusion of his talk with Secretary Hughes, it was noted, could be open to the interpretation that an early announcement from Paris was regarded in informed circles as not beyond inquiry was thrown back upon analysis of press cablegrams from Paris and London.

Bite of the Scorpion.

A venomous member of the spider family is the well-known scorpion, which some authorities consider the most dangerous species. The bite, or rather the sting, of the scorpion is not necessarily fatal unless neglected too long. The pain is very great and the affected part swells and throbs, while extreme nausea is felt. It has been claimed that the venom of this big insect gradually has effect upon human beings, successive stings seeming to render a person more or less immune to the usual suffering.

COURT MARTIAL IS COMPLETED

Predict Captain Watson Was Found Guilty by Board Probing Naval Disaster

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 7 (AP)—Arguments were closed late this afternoon in the court martial of Captain Edward H. Watson, U. S. N., accused of negligence in the destroyer disaster at Point Honda, September 8, and the case was given to the navy court in session here today.

The verdict reached, sentence and recommendations, if any, will not be known until the proceedings of the court have been reviewed by the authority that convened the court, the judge advocate general of the navy and approved by the secretary of the navy.

That the decision of the court was probably a conviction of Captain Watson, was indicated, observers believed, by the fact that no verdict was announced. Had the accused been acquitted of the charges the court would have released him from arrest, thought it would not have announced its verdict. Captain Watson was not released and it was assumed by his counsel that he had been found guilty.

The trial of the case was completed at 2 o'clock this afternoon. For two hours the court, composed of four captains, two rear admirals and one vice admiral, deliberated on its findings and sentence.

The court then opened and the preliminary formalities of the trial of Lieutenant Commander Donald T. Hunter were begun. They had not been completed at adjournment for the night, the court being aided with consideration of the challenges of the accused that it was qualified to sit in his case. He contended that his member already had formed opinions as to the evidence would be nearly identical with that adduced in the trial of Captain Watson.

BRUINS IN FOR STIFF CONTEST

Tough Scrimmage with Cubs Figures in Workout for Clash with Rupert Squad

The Bruins again took on the Junior High Cubs Wednesday night, for a tough scrimmage. The Cubs did not have such an easy time of it as they did the previous night but still made a good showing against the Bruins. The Bruins seem to be affected with the confidence bug, resting on past laurels instead of bucking down to hard work. Rupert will not be a walk away and they are seriously dangerous rivals.

Coach Evans is rounding into shape slowly and will probably be in good shape by Friday. Captain Lotzer was out in a suit but did not take active part in the scrimmage. Senks' eye is beginning to look natural again and he will be able to see at least for the first quarter.

East High's Coach Praises Reception

Salt Lake Football Mentor Voices Appreciation of Treatment in Twin Falls

Coach Evans received a letter from Coach L. E. Warham of East High of Salt Lake Wednesday afternoon that speaks mightily well for Twin Falls High school and the citizens of the town. Twin Falls has a justly earned reputation for entertaining visitors, whether they be competing athletic teams or delegates to a convention or just visitors. That reputation has spread all over Idaho and now this letter confirms the belief that it is spreading to other states as well. The letter speaks for itself as follows:

Salt Lake City, Nov. 6, 1923. Greetings Evans: Now that we have returned and before another week of hard work begins I must send you word concerning our visit North.

We all had a bully good time and I know the boys will remember the splendid treatment they received both on the field and off.

You were most courteous and attended to all our wants. The trip to the Falls was especially of interest and the fellows along with myself will never forget the sight.

I was pleased with the arrangements at the hotel. Our rooms and meals were satisfactory.

Your right-hand man, Jack Corcoran, was on the job.

I am sorry that I could not have stayed over Sunday and shot some birds.

You may be interested to learn that Derna's shoulder is not fractured. Please tell Mr. Swin this, as he made special inquiry to me after the game and kindly offered to drive us to the hospital for an X-ray.

I now thank Dr. Passer for his first aid.

I met Superintendent Mitchell, but talked with him only a short time, but I know that he is mighty pleased to be cleared so completely and satisfactorily.

Since we have been licked twice in succession I firmly believe that my boys have been convinced that past championships, easily won, have nothing to do with the present schedule. I hope for a beneficial reaction unless the consecutive blows have cracked the spirit.

Wishing you success the remainder of the season and hoping that we may play you baseball, I am,

Very truly yours, L. E. WARTHAM.

WALTON MUST GO ON TRIAL

Federal Judge Denies Request to Restrain Conduct of Impeachment Charges

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 7 (AP)—Governor J. C. Walton lost today in his effort to obtain federal intervention to stop his impeachment trial and his attorneys tonight were preparing to go forward with the trial tomorrow before the state senate court of impeachment.

Judge John H. Cotterell in United States district court at Lawton denied the executive's application for a restraining order against the parties prosecuting the impeachment charges and others alleged to have been instrumental in developing the proceedings. He granted a restraining order, however, on application of counsel for the governor for which he will set a date later.

While the hearing at Lawton was in progress, Governor Walton through counsel appeared before the court of impeachment here and entered a plea of not guilty to each of the 22 charges in the impeachment bill. He made 6 initial answers to five of the charges. The answers to remaining charges will be heard tomorrow morning and the actual trial is to start at 1:30 p. m.

The action by Judge Cotterell is believed to have removed all possibility of a delay in the opening of the trial. His decision not to take action was based on alleged lack of jurisdiction.

The name is given to the black-eyed damsels of paradise whose charms are set forth in the Koran. HOPE TO SETTLE LIQUOR PROBLEM

Canadian and U. S. Representatives to Discuss Traffic Affecting Yukon

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 7 (AP)—The question of whether Canada should be permitted to convey liquor in bond through Alaska for the Yukon and northern British Columbia is expected to be raised by Canadian officials at their conference here at the end of this month with representatives of the United States government when an effort to obtain closer cooperation in reducing rum smuggling will be made.

At present an anomalous situation exists in the Yukon where the people voted for government control of liquor but can get no wet goods because the United States will not permit shipments to pass through the Alaskan pass-ports which separate Yukon district from the sea.

The territorial government of the Yukon bought $100,000 worth of liquor. It is still in storage at Vancouver. A liquor store located at Atlin in northern British Columbia also is devoid of stock because of the attitude of the United States.

Under the treaty of Washington dominion officials explained, the Yukon river is designated as an international stream and it would be possible to ship liquor to the Yukon that way were it not for the expense and time entailed. The stretch of territory which separates the Yukon from the United States is 18 miles wide and government officials look upon Wrangell and Skagway as the logical points of entry.

THE REAL WAY OUT: Six plans for dealing with the present wheat situation are set up in the report to the president on the subject, as compiled by Eugene Meyer, Jr., and Frank W. Mondell, a copy of which has just been received.

Briefly, here are the remedies offered, based upon the investigations of the committee: (1) Increase in wheat tariff; (2) price fixing by government; (3) government purchase of surplus wheat; (4) distribution of $50,000,000 profits of Grain Corporation during its existence; (5) modification of immigration laws; (6) wheat grower co-operation.

The report dismisses the first three briefly. On item number four the committee has no accurate information. On item number five the report says: "It may be stated that the sentiment for a modification, along selective lines, of the immigration laws so as to permit the admission of a larger supply of more efficient labor is universal among the agricultural interests throughout the territory visited."

The proposition of co-operative marketing occupies more space than all the other items combined and closes with the following paragraph: "We feel, as a result of our trip, that the solution of the wheat problem lies along two lines: First, the adjustment of production to American needs if the world market is oversupplied from other producing countries at lower prices than are satisfactory to the American producer under prevailing conditions; and second, the development of an improved marketing system such as we believe can be brought about by the organization of the producers of the country for the purpose of marketing their wheat under the co-operative marketing plan, making it unnecessary to rely so completely upon the uncertain functioning of the speculative public contract market."

In other words, grower co-operation is the main road out of the difficulty. There may be by-paths leading from the labyrinth, but the broad road is provided by organization of the farmers themselves in their own interests, in a manner which will permit them to get the price to which their product is entitled. It can be done, there is no question about that, and apparently not until it is done will decent prices be paid to the man on the farm.

PSYCHIC PHENOMENA: In "My Psychic Adventures," J. Malcolm Bird, an editor of the Scientific Monthly, recognizes that, along with much fraud, there is also considerable sincerity among psychic mediums. There can be no rational doubt, he says, that many mediums are genuine to the extent that their speaking and writing are done without their volition or even their consciousness. One might as well deny radio broadcasting. But he is not convinced that their phenomena have anything to do with "spirits."

Most of the wonders, he is sure, can be explained by telepathy—the influence of one mind on another. Mediums are usually very sensitive to other minds, and may draw from them without knowing it. Other wonders can be explained by hypnotism, including self-hypnotism. Multiple personality, he remarks, in agreement with leading psychiatrists, sometimes occurs. That is, a medium may have his personality actually broken up into two or three apparently different persons. The impression of possession by an external spirit naturally follows. There are "objective" phenomena, however, which these various psychological explanations do not seem to explain. Among them are the moving of heavy objects, table rappings, etc., without any discoverable human agency. He suggests that telepathy may have something to do with these also. In ordinary telepathy "there must be some perfectly definite externalization of the energy of the human brain, which crosses space and produces an effect in another brain. Light has many receivers other than the eye or the photographic plate. Why, then, may it not come to be just as understandable that the energy which I have pictured as projected from the human brain may have potential receivers other than another human brain, and may exert physical effects upon such receivers?"

This sounds like hinting at the "astral body" which some students have suggested as responsible for external phenomena. That is, a third body or substance, supposed to be different from the physical body and the mind, and to connect the two, capable of reaching out and tipping tables, ringing bells, etc. We may hear more along that line.

MURTAUGH UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Nov. 7.—(Special to The News).—Orders for two carloads, totalling 65,500 pounds of sodalite, a T. N. T.—nitrate of soda compound used for blasting, have been forwarded to the college of agriculture by R. N. Irving, county agent for Kootenai county. No single one of these orders, which were made by 173 farmers of that county, was in excess of 1000 pounds, and some of them were as small as 100 pounds. The explosive which is left over from the year is shipped from Dupont, Wash., who is the agent of the station for this territory. It costs the farmers $5.45 a hundred pounds. Of this $5.20 is for extracting the powder from the cartridges which were not used during the war, and 25 cents is for other general expenses. Reports indicate that there will be a general increase in the explosive from the farmers in all sections of the state where there is much unclaimed stump land. Sodalite is an efficient blasting explosive and its use is largely confined to stump moving. This is the second order which has been sent to the bureau of public roads, the general dispensing agent, by the Idaho college of agriculture. The first order was made some time ago by O. R. Fletcher, county agent, for the farmers of Latah county. Splendid Substitute for Words. Little ever-wheels in form not unlike the Burman prayer wheels are now in use on the gold licks in Kashmir. TRICKY FOX BY DADDY

(Chickens vanish from the henhouse. Daddy Dog turns detective. He says a fox has stolen the chickens. Jack and Janet follow Daddy Dog as he trails the fox.)

CHAPTER III. The Fox Farm. DADDY DOG sniffed along the ground as he ran swiftly through the woods.

"Ki-ki!" I'm on the trail of the fox that stole the chickens," he whined. "The fox is cunning, but I will catch him. Ki-ki!" So swiftly did Daddy Dog go that Jack and Janet had to run their fastest to keep up with him. Over the hills and across the valley Daddy Dog followed the scent left by the fox. Now and then he stopped. That showed where the fox had stopped to rest or look about.

"Ki-ki!" The scene is growing fresh, yelped Daddy Dog as they plunged into a ravine. "I'll soon have this chicken-stealing fox." Jack and Janet were glad to hear that, for they were about out of breath. They could go no farther.

But Daddy Dog had promised too much. He followed the scent of the fox to a little creek that ran through the woods. He stopped at the edge of the creek. He sniffed about the ground, running up and down the creek.

"Whoof!" barked he in dismay. "The fox went into the creek. So I cannot follow him. So I cannot follow him. So I cannot follow him." Jack and Janet thought it very queer. They went to look for the fox in the water. That trick slipped what a smart fox he was.

"Whoof! Ki-ki! Perhaps he went up stream," yelped Daddy Dog. The troops are close to the border and within reach of the Hunek coal mine which is the largest in the Balkan peninsula.

Expresses Regrets. The day's program of apologies was completed when Premier Zankoff personally called on M. Rakitch and expressed his government's regret for the attack on the military attaché and Minister of War Colonel Voukoff paid a visit to Colonel Krattitch and expressed the regrets of the Bulgarian army.

The final act of the incident will be the judgment of The Hague court concerning the damage due the Jugo-Slavian government and Colonel Krattitch personally. It is understood Krattitch rates his damages high. No trace has been found of the men who attacked the military attaché, though the Bulgarian government is exerting every effort to find them.

DIVISION OF ALASKAN TERRITORY IS FAVORED JUNEAU, Alaska, Nov. 7 (AP)—Returns received today from six out of eight cities voting yesterday in a special election on the question of separating the southeastern part of the territory from the northwestern section showed 1204 in favor of the division and 89 against the measure.

Basal of Chewing Gum. Chicla, the crude gum used as the base in the manufacture of chewing gum, is derived from the sapodilla trees which grow in the mahogany forests. The best quality of chicla is produced in the states of Yucatan and Campeche in Mexico, in Guatemala and in some parts of British Honduras.

Digs Up Meteorite. A workman in a field in England recently saw a meteorite fall near him and dug it up. Only about fifteen falls of such "stones from the sky" have been recorded in the British Isles.

Another German Invention. An instrument invented by a German scientist automatically makes an accurate map from two photographs of the same ground area that have been made by photographers from airplanes.

My wife, keeping reminding me of the musical career she gave up when she married me. "Now, I don't have the slightest doubt that it would have been only a question of time until she'd had the whole musical world at her feet. She's convinced me of that long ago."

"And that's why I can't see the point of her telling me all about it every couple of weeks or so. I think she has a splendid voice. I like to hear her tearing the roof off the Metropolitan opera house at the go-go around gushing out 'farinata. But I do hate to be made to feel that I was the stumbling block in the way of a great career."

"I know all about Professor Savanelli saying that she had the finest untrained soprano voice he'd heard for some time. And all about the career her family had planned for her. But still I can't help thinking that she took a whole lot less of a chance when she decided to marry me and leave music flat."

"Tomorrow—" My husband is always planning to get to bed early—and never does."

Whale at Montreal. A whale followed a ship up the St. Lawrence to Montreal some years ago. Rusty old guns were taken out to have a shot at it at the behest of their owners' lives. A ferry boat collided with it and shortly after it was found dead and stranded and sold for a sheep-bow by the uneducated finder. One man offered him a $10 bill, another a certified check for $50. He took the $10 and the buyer immediately sold it for the check before his eyes.

MADDENED WOLF ATTACKS WOMAN

Wife of Kansas Farmer Battles for Her Life Against Onslaught of Savage Animal

SHOOTINGWOOD FALLS, Kansas, Nov. 7 (AP)—Savagely attacked by a wolf which had entered her chicken yard, Mrs. J. E. Adams, her back against a wagon and a plow for her hand fought for her life today. Mrs. Adams is the wife of a Toledo township farmer and lives about seven miles northeast of Strong City, Kansas.

Mrs. Adams was attracted to the chicken yard by a disturbance among her fowls. She at first thought the animal was a large coyote and that she would frighten it away, but it turned and rushed toward her.

Mrs. Adams fled toward a wagon, hoping to gain the protection of its bulk. She failed to do so as she barely had time to snatch a pitch fork and turn before the wolf was upon her.

The woman succeeded in striking the animal twice with the tines and this made the wolf wary. It paused awaiting an opportunity to attack and preventing flight.

The wolf swiftly changed its tactics and running to the other side of the wagon rushed upon her. By a lucky thrust Mrs. Adams pierced the wolf's neck and managed to hold it plonked to the ground. Two small dogs seeing the animal at a disadvantage sprang upon it. The wolf struggled free but was so distracted by the dogs that it was unable to defend itself further against the woman's thrusts and Mrs. Adams struck the beast down with a blow on its head.

Brow Establishes New Record Mark With Fast Plane

Man Who Has Fractured Previous Marks. Makes Speedy Climb to 5,000 Feet.

MITCHELL FIELD, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP)—Lieutenant Harold J. Brow who has been fracturing airplane world speed records the past week, today, participating in air carnival here, established what was believed to be an unofficial record for fast climbing. In one minute he climbed 5,000 feet. The best previous climbing time, authorities said, was made by Roland Rolfe when he ascended 2,000 feet in a minute.

Among the host of aces who witnessed Brow and Williams dash side by side past the grandstand for a brief distance was Captain Charles Nungesser, French air wizard. Later he clasped hands with the two navy flyers and demanded autographed photographs.

It was announced at the field that the friendly rivals would hold their 12-kilometer race next Saturday, when the carnival will be repeated.

The Meanest Man.

The meanest man in the world has once more been located. This time he turns out to be an eastern business man who stole a newspaper from a blind newsboy every morning for four months. He wore rubber-soled shoes and would take a paper from the lad's stock without saying a word. But he was finally trapped, and it gave a policeman much pleasure to bear him out to the busette. There a judge also found satisfaction in fining him the limit. It would have been cheaper had he subscribed for the paper twenty years in advance.

ITALY FAVORS LEAGUE PLAN

Sir Eric Drummond Gives Out Favorable Report in Results of Meeting with Mussolini

ROME, Nov. 7 (AP)—Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league of nations, who was received yesterday by Premier Mussolini, met the representatives of the Italian foreign press today and gave them some details of his conference.

"I am happy at the result of the meeting," he said. "The premier assured me that Italy had no prejudice whatever against the league and that he himself favored the principles of the league as an association of nations to effect the peaceful settlement of disputes and promote cooperation in technical international affairs."

Mussolini, however, informed the secretary general that Italy required that her position as one of the great powers and one of the founders of the league and a principal signatory of the treaty of Versailles should be "adequately maintained." Italy holds that her position is insufficiently recognized and that if Italian rights were secured Italy would be ready to participate fully and further that the popularity of the league with Italy would doubtless greatly increase.

Sir Eric assured the premier that he recognized Italy's claims as just and equitable and that he personally was endeavoring to insure the people of national equality which was the underlying spirit of the league. He expressed confidence that the requirements of Italy as explained by Premier Mussolini would be understood and appreciated by other members of the league who desire to effluents them in the friendliest spirit.

Stinnes' Son Is in America

"She was my soul-mate," proceeded Eustace with quiet determination. "I didn't know it at the time, but she was. She had gray brown eyes, a wonderful personality, and this elephant gun. She was bringing the gun away from the downtown place where she had taken it to be mended."

"Did she shoot you with it?" "Shoot me? What do you mean? Why, no."

"The girl must have been a fool!" said Sam bitterly. "The chance of a lifetime and she missed it. Where are my pajamas?"

"I haven't seen your pajamas. She talked to me about this elephant gun, and explained its mechanism. You can imagine how she soothes my aching heart. My heart, if you recollect, was aching at that moment—quite unnecessarily if I had only known—because it was only a couple of days since my engagement to Wilhelmina Bennett had been broken off. Well, we parted at Sixty-sixth street and, strange as it may seem, I forgot all about her."

"Do it again!" "Tell it again?" "Good heavens, no! Forget all about her again."

"Nothing," said Eustace Hignett gravely, "could make me do that. Our souls have blended. Our beings have been called to one another from their deepest depths, saying, 'There are your pajamas, over in the corner...' saying, 'You are mine!' How could I forget her after that? Well, as I was saying, we parted. Little did I know that she was sitting on this very boat!

But just now she came to me as I writhed on deck..."

"Did you writher?" asked Sam with a flicker of morbid interest.

"Certainly did."

"That's good!" "But not for long."

"That's bad."

"She came to me and healed me, Sam, that girl is an angel."

"Switch off the light when you've finished!"

"She seemed to understand without a word how I was feeling. There are some situations which do not need words. She went away and returned with a mixture of some kind in a glass."

"I don't know what it was. It had Worcester sauce in it. She put it to my lips. She made me drink it. She said it was what her father always used in Africa for bull-calves with the staggers. Well, believe me or believe me not..."

"Believe me or believe me not, in under two minutes I was not merely freed from the nausea caused by your cigar; I was smoking, myself! I was walking the deck with her without the slightest quail. I was even able to look over the side from time to time and comment on the beauty of the moon on the water... I have said some mordant things about women since I came on board this boat. I withdraw them unreservedly. They still apply to girls like Wilhelmina Bennett, but I have ceased to include the whole sex in my remarks. Jane Hubbard has restored my faith in woman. Sam! Sam!"

"What?" "I said that Jane Hubbard had restored my faith in woman."

"Oh, all right."

Eustace Hignett finished undressing and got into bed. With a soft smile on his face he switched on the light. There was a long silence, broken only by the distant purring of engines. At about twelve-thirty a voice came from the lower berth.

"Sam!"

"What is it now?" "There is a sweet womanly strength about her, Sam. She was telling me she once killed a panther with a hat-pin."

Sam groaned and tossed on his mattress.

Silence fell again. "At least I think it was a panther," said Eustace Hignett, at a quarter past one. "Either a panther or a puma."

CHAPTER VIII

A week after the liner Atlantic had docked at Southampton, Sam Marlowe was being observed—did was observed by various of the residents sitting on a bench on the esplanade of that repellent watering-place, Bingley-on-the-Sea, in Sussex. All watering-places on the south coast of England are blots on the landscape, but though Sam was aware that by sitting in it he offered the civic pride of some of the others, none was so peculiarly foul as Bingley-on-the-Sea. The asphalt on the Bingley esplanade is several degrees more depressing than the asphalt on other esplanades. The Swiss waiters at the Hotel Magnificent, where Sam was stopping, are in a class of bungling incompetence by themselves, the envy and despair of all the other Swiss waiters at all the other Hotels Magnificent along the coast. For dreariness of aspect Bingley-on-the-Sea stands alone. The very waves that break on the shingle seem to creep up the beach reluctantly, as if it revolted them to come to such a place.

Why, then, was Sam Marlowe visiting this bronze-swept Gehenna? Why, with all the rest of England at his disposal, had he chosen to spend a week at Bingley-on-the-Sea?

Simply because he had been disappointed in love. He had sought relief by slinking off alone to the most benighted spot he knew, in the same spirit as other men in similar circumstances had gone off to the Rockies to shoot grizzly bears.

To a certain extent the experiment had proved successful. If the Hotel Magnificent had not cured his agony, the service and the cooking there had at least done much to take his mind off it. His heart still ached, but he felt equal to going to London and seeing his father, which, of course, he ought to have done immediately upon his arrival in England.

He rose from his bench and, going back to the hotel to inquire about the trains, observed a familiar figure in the lobby. Eustace Hignett was leaning over the counter in conversation with the desk-clerk.

"Hello, Sam!" said Eustace.

"There was a brief silence. The conversational opening had been a little unfortunately chosen, for it reminded both men of a painful episode in their recent lives."

"What are you doing here?" asked Eustace.

"What are you doing here?" asked Sam.

"I came to see you," said Eustace, leading his cousin out of the lobby and onto the bleak esplanade. A fine rain had begun to fall, and Bingley looked, if possible, worse than ever. "I asked for you at your club, and they told me you had come down here."

"What did you want to see me about?"

"The fact is, old man, I'm in a bit of a hole."

"Can't they? Let me tell you that as a result of that concert my engagement is broken off."

Eustace sprang forward with outstretched hand.

"Not really? How splendid! Accept my congratulations! This is the finest thing that could possibly have happened. These are not idle words. As one who has been engaged to the girl himself, I speak feelingly. You are well out of it, Sam."

Sam thrust aside his hand. And it been his neck he might have clutched it eagerly, but he drew the line at shaking hands with Eustace Hignett.

"My heart is broken," he said with dignity.

"That feeling will pass, giving way to one of devout thankfulness. I know! I've been there. After all... Wilhelmina Bennett... what is she? A rag and a bone and a hank of hair."

"She is nothing of the kind," said Sam, revolted.

"Pardon me," said Eustace firmly, "I speak as an expert. I know her and I repeat, she is a rag and a bone and a hank of hair!"

"She is the only girl in the world, and owing to your idiotic behavior I have lost her."

"You speak of the only girl in the world," said Eustace blithely. "If you want to hear about the only girl in the world, I will tell you. A week ago I was in the Subway in New York..."

"I'm going to bed," said Sam brusquely.

"All right. I'll tell you while you're undressing."

"I don't want to listen."

"A week ago," said Eustace Hignett, "I will ask you to picture me seated, after some difficulty, in a New York subway; I got into conversation with a girl with an elephant gun."

Sam revised his private communication service in order to fling the elephant gun.

Now is the time to guard against winter lubrication troubles

THESE November nights and chill mornings give warning that winter is just around the corner. With the first temperature drop below the freezing point, check up on the oil in your crankcase.

Most of the popular makes of cars require a lighter body oil for efficient cold-weather lubrication. They need an oil that won't congeal to the point of sluggishness in a cold motor and thus fail to reach many of the vital, moving parts before deadly friction gets in its work.

It is easy to guard against this needless wear and tear. You are safe and sure if you consult the Polarine Chart—NOW—get the grade of Polarine recommended for winter use in your car and then stick to that grade throughout the cold-weather season.

STRIKES AND SPARES. "Pop" Kieffer says that the Golden Rule bowlers are the only ones you would have them do any night's game...

There is something wrong with the strategists of the losing teams, that's apparent. And what that has been done out of the solution of the winning team's success is in its substitutes.

Speaking of substitutes, who was the sub in last night's game? According to the score board his name was "Dumpty."

And we've got to hand it to "Bill" Scelley when it comes to taking the pins down. In the last game he played he was clear through to the ninth frame, marking every time, when he went wild in the ninth he came back in the tenth and evened matters with three strikes and consequently a score of 208.

Squires, the handsome sugarmaker, set a good example for his team with a total of 506, second only to Scelley.

Tonight the printers from the Times meet the Shoe Fitters from the Shoe Market. We wish them luck, and remember the team with good substitutes.

The attendance can still be improved. Vogel's bowling fluctuates. One game he is above par, and the next he is occupying a place with the marl.

Results of Scout Drive Announced

Campaign Executive Committee Chairman Expresses Appreciation of Support Given

According to W. T. Scelley, president of the Twin Falls Rotary club, the total pledges to the Boy Scout fund now stand at $3,137.07, which $2,900.00 has been paid in cash. The goal fixed was $5,000, which it is estimated is just about the amount which will be collected allowing for unforeseen contingencies of all kinds. "I certainly appreciate the way in which the Twin Falls people have backed this movement with their dollars," said Mr. Scelley. "It has been a pleasure to work with the members of the Twin Falls Kiwanis and Rotary clubs on the collection and no better co-operation could have been expected than that given by these two organizations." But the sum which wrote the checks are after all the ones who made the drive a success and I know that Rotary and Kiwanis as a whole join with me in full expression of appreciation for the splendid aid rendered the movement.
