BURLEY'S MOVE PRESENTS NEW GRID PROBLEM

Idaho Falls Up in Arms Over Disregard of Board of Control Ruling in Scheduling of Title Contest at Boise

BOISE, Nov. 27 (AP)—Boise and Burley high school eleven will meet here Thanksgiving day to settle the struggle for the state football title, according to official announcement made here this evening. Some dispute has arisen as to the right of the Burley team to contest for the championship, since its game with Idaho Falls November 24 resulted in a tie. Laws of the intercollegiate association, however, provided that the championship be decided on Thanksgiving, and Burley is considered the victor of the contest.

Burley and Idaho Falls were to play in Pocatello Thursday in compliance with a two-thirds vote of the athletic board of control, but negotiations resulted in a change of midweek by the Burley officials. Technically J. T. Rao, member of the board of control, holds Boise could claim the championship should the Burley-Idaho Falls game be played in Pocatello, regardless of which team won.

EXPECTS FORFEITURE

IDAHO FALLS, Nov. 27 (AP)—Burley high school football team refused to meet Idaho Falls to play off the tie game which resulted when the two teams met at Burley for the inter-district championship last Friday, according to word received this afternoon by Superintendent of Schools E. Snyder. The state board of control had wired both Idaho Falls and Burley that the tie would have to be played off the latter part of this week at Pocatello, which was considered as

MERGER FAILS TO MATERIALIZE

Officials Not Inclined to Talk on Combination of Maxwell and Studebaker Companies

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP)—The reported merger of the Maxwell Corporation with the Studebaker corporation failed to materialize today, although directors of each corporation met separately, presumably to act on the proposal.

A. B. Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation, who came from South Bend, Indiana, to preside at the company's board meeting, and there was nothing to give out on the meeting, while Jules B. Heche, a Maxwell director, asserted the reported negotiations with the Studebaker company had not been discussed.

MANILA, Nov. 27 (AP)—The republican central committee of the Philippines tonight adopted resolutions asking congress to take action in the Philippines providing that the preamble to the Jones law (the organic act of the islands) be nullified and that the law be amended to the effect that the sovereignty of the United States be permanently and effectively established.

The committee also elected A. S. Crossfield, prominent attorney, as national committeeman to succeed the late Henry B. McCoy. The administration of Governor General Leonard Wood was endorsed.

Life Narrative of Woman of Mystery Has Happy Finis

Gossip's Wagging Tongues Are Stilled with Final Chapter in Story of College Girl and Her "Husband" Is Written

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 27 (AP)—Police have solved the mystery of the "lady in 510" and a wedding in the courthouse today tore aside the veil that had kept the tongues of gossip wagging for years.

Names hardly matter but the facts the police learned have all been substantiated by the Minneapolis Journal which today told the story in a copyrighted article.

It was more than three years ago that a woman came to a local hotel, accompanied by a man—presumably her husband—who carried a crying baby. They were given room 510.

From that day, no one saw her outside her room. Guests in adjacent rooms heard a baby prattle and a mother crouch; then the months rolled into years, the prattle became a child's soft voice and a little boy pressed his nose against the window pane to view the mysterious outdoors.

Her "husband" traveled, she said, and his stays at the hotel were infrequent and brief. The woman sat in her room and ordered from shops by telephone. Her accounts always were promptly paid.

Then, by chance, detectives heard of "the lady in 510." A police woman

WITHDRAWAL OF ROHR TROOPS IS BELGIAN HOPE

Question of Reduction of Occupying Forces in Germany to Be Topic at Proposed Diplomatic Meeting

BRUSSELS, Nov. 27 (AP)—The Belgian government, it is learned in official quarters, soon will raise in friendly conversations with France the question of a partial withdrawal of the forces in the Ruhr. Now that active and passive resistance is considered ended the Belgians hope to bring back 5,000 of their men from the Ruhr by Christmas.

The question will be discussed with the Paris government as soon as the Ruhr situation is stabilized. M. Jaspar, the Belgian foreign minister, in a recent speech in the chamber, recalled the fact that France and Belgium were pledged to leave the Ruhr proportionately as the Germans fulfilled their reparations obligations.

M. Jaspar said that neither would fall in their promise. He reiterated that Brussels and Paris were acting in complete agreement and there was no question of separate action by Belgium for a reduction of her troops.

He believed it certain that France would take the same view. Nevertheless, the Belgian cabinet, if necessary, would exert pressure to obtain a partial withdrawal of troops if conditions in the Ruhr continued to improve.

TARIFF BODY FINISHES PRELIMINARY HEARING ON WHEAT COST PROBE

Investigators to Attend St. Paul Conference where Schedule to Be Used in Inquiry on Farms Will Be Finally Determined; Possible Revision of Rate Structure May Result

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (AP)—The tariff commission concluded its preliminary hearing today on the scope of its investigation into the cost of producing wheat in this country and Canada under the flexible provisions of the tariff act. The investigation has resulted from a proposal of the wheat council of the United States for a 50 per cent increase in the 30-cent duty on wheat.

The commission deplored the request of former Senator McCumber, counsel for the wheat council, that the investigation be limited to the American spring wheat states and the corresponding area in Canada, but stated that if evidence reporting competitive conditions tended to show that the accept should be limited it would further consider the matter.

The commission's next step will be to hold a conference at St. Paul Monday to determine finally the schedule to be used in investigations on the farms which will begin immediately thereafter in an effort to obtain data for tariff purposes. A force of 20 or more investigators of the commission will attend the St. Paul conference with Vice Chairman Culbertson presiding. Information from all sources of items to be included in the schedule will be sought.

Postpones Report. Indications are that the field investigation in this country and Canada may occupy from two to six weeks after which a formal public hearing will be held here. The commission's report with recommendations then will be made to the president, but it is believed it cannot be prepared until some time in January of 1924.

CUMMINS GIVES PARTY LEADERS HIS PROPOSALS

Would Leave Decision on His Present Positions Up to Republican Heads; Progressive Action Not Decided

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (AP)—Only two concrete developments regarding organization of the house and senate came out of various conferences today at the capital.

Senator Cummins of Iowa agreed to leave to republican leaders decision as to whether he shall retain both or either of his present places as president of the senate and chairman of the interstate commerce committee.

House progressive appointed a committee to confer with republican organization leaders regarding modification of house rules and committee assignments. It was indicated, however that this committee would not take the initiative in any possible negotiations.

Utah's Prediction. Senator Cummins' decision upset expectations of the majority leaders that he would voluntarily give up the place of president pro tem and retain the committee chairmanship. Some of the leaders, among them Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, said the question of selecting a candidate for president pro tem probably would not even come before the republican conference to be held Saturday.

Under the resolution of the senate which accompanied his election the Iowa senator holds the office of president pro tem at the pleasure of the senate. Some parliamentarians contended that since the senate is a continuing body, re-election of the president pro tem is not necessary. They point to several precedents to support their argument.

Senator Cummins was reported in this city by republican leaders as stating when the republican committee control of the senate and was re-elected when the sixty-seventh congress was organized in 1921. Pointing to this re-election, some of the senators argued that an election will be in order. Others say that whether it is or not an election can be on a vote of the senate in support of a motion offered by any senator.

Progressives Opposed. Senate progressives are opposed to Senator Cummins holding both of his present posts, but they have not yet formally discussed among themselves a possible course of action as a result of the decision of the Iowa senator. They have told him they would support him for the office of president pro tem. This was conditional some of the progressives say, on his relinquishing his committee chairmanship. Whether they will make a fight against his reappointment as chairman remains to be developed.

House and senate organization was discussed with President Coolidge by Senator Lodge early today. Immediately upon returning to the capital the senator called into conference his chief

SEGBEY VEILS RUM CONFERENCE

Canadian and U. S. Officials Observe Strict Silence in Regard to Meeting

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 27 (AP)—Canadian and United States representatives at the international conference on liquor smuggling which opened today, agreed to maintain strict silence regarding the negotiations and discussions which take place. Nature of the smuggling session, Canadian officials not revealed, but presumably, is confined to proposals outlined at Washington yesterday.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Moss, head of the American delegation, refused to discuss what was done at the previous session. Canadian officials who remained in conference after the joint session had adjourned likewise declined to outline their attitude on the tentative proposals of the United States.

The presence at the conference of Alvin Karpis, deputy minister of marine, indicated that his department was concerned with suggestions of the United States that Canada prohibit clearance of ships destined for United States ports with liquor cargoes and that search and seizure of liquor smuggling vessels on the Great Lakes be authorized.

If the report establishes that the vessels seized are British owned and were taken outside the three-mile limit, Great Britain will formally protest their seizure on the ground that the treaty giving the right to confiscate alcoholic liquors beyond the American three-mile limit neither has been signed nor ratified.

HEALTHY COWS VITAL ASSET SAYS EXPERT

Professor Atkeson Shows Favorable Comparison of Tuberculosis Tests in Idaho; Clean Herds Best Advertising

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Nov. 27.—"Let's keep Idaho free from tuberculosis," says Professor F. W. Atkeson, head of the university dairy department, in a statement which says:

"According to a recent report of the United States department of agriculture the average number of tubercular animals in the United States was 3.3 per cent for the last fiscal year. During this same period the per cent of tubercular animals in Idaho was one per cent. Therefore we see that Idaho has less than one-third as much tuberculosis among her herds as the average of the United States. During the past fiscal year there were tested in Idaho 4775 herds containing 94,880 cattle. In this number 970 reactors were found. The per cent of tuberculosis was less in Idaho than in any of the northwest states.

Comparison Favorable

"According to last year's report there were only four states in the union that, testing as many cattle as Idaho, showed a lower per cent of reactors. Some of the states, such as New York and Massachusetts, had nearly 14 per cent of tuberculosis last year. Just stop and think what a much more difficult problem it is in such states to keep herds clean! Think what a great advertising feature Idaho has over such a state as a source of good dairy cattle.

"The tubercular eradication work has gone forward very rapidly this year under the aggressive leadership of Idaho's state veterinarian, Dr. Wendell R. Smith, and Dr. W. A. Stetson, federal veterinarian. In September, 1923, there were 143 herds containing 4426 cattle that had been approved as accredited herds, while 12,082 herds containing 123,454 cattle had been tested once and were in the process of accreditation. There was a waiting list of 500 herds containing 5000 cattle. This is an increase of over 20 herds on the accredited list during the past year.

Danger Is Constant

"All of the above are rather dry facts but should be of interest to everyone. Tuberculosis is so easily spread that no livestock man can take a chance of harboring it through lack of knowledge. Very few calves in Idaho are being supplied with pasteurized milk, so every person in any town of Idaho should be vitally interested in this question because he either drinks milk himself or worse yet feeds it to babies without being sure it is from cows free from tuberculosis.

"An organization of Oregon livestock men recently passed a resolution requesting legislative action to prevent any California cattle being shipped into Oregon because of the reputation that state has for having tuberculosis among its herds. Think what that means to California breeders when an adjoining state takes such action, and also think of the many buyers in other states who will turn away from California when they hear of the drastic action of the Oregon breeders.

Advertising

"Advertising is either favorable or unfavorable. Wisconsin livestock associations spent thousands of dollars in advertising and proving to the world that their state was not badly infected and that the common belief of bad infection which had developed was due to a few unscrupulous dealers. It is true that Wisconsin is very clean at present, but the belief to the contrary was about to ruin their cattle exportation business at one time and it is common knowledge that New York is a dangerous place to buy cattle.

Offers Services

"The herds of Idaho are practically free from this disease, the reactors having been found mostly in a few herds. The veterinarians recently tested 2886 cattle in Star valley and found only one reactor. Such security of reactors may prevent the breeders from realizing the prevalence of this disease elsewhere and the great losses caused by it. The program for Idaho

Aged Gardener Claims Youths Slugged Him and Drove Stake Through His Body

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 27 (AP)—With a stick nearly two inches in diameter and more than eight inches long driven into his body by two youths whom he said had robbed and tortured him in the "jungles" on the Sacramento river near here, John Richner, 64, a gardener, today lay at the county hospital. Physicians said his intestines had been punctured and his wound might prove fatal.

Richner reported he had met two youths in Sacramento Saturday night. A "hoose party" was proposed, he said, and the trio repaired to the "jungles." There the youths robbed him of a small suit and, angered at the small amount obtained, he declared, they threw him to the ground and drove the stake through his body. Richner said he had laid in a semi-conscious condition that night, all day Sunday and yesterday, until he managed to drag himself to a road, where he was picked up by a motorist.

In the future should be continued testing to clean up any present scattered infections and then strictness in purchasing cattle only from accredited herds or with the privilege of 60 or 90 day retest. Anyone interested in having cattle tested should apply to either of the above-mentioned veterinarians or to the county agent, who will arrange to have the test conducted by an accredited veterinarian."

Things We Have Always Known

The recent business condition has brought to the forefront of thought many fundamental considerations that have always been known but have been damned with faint praise.

Human nature in the mass is very much like human nature in the individual. One of its dominant characteristics has been summed up in the observation, "You never miss the water till the well runs dry." We never appreciate fundamental things until we have occasion to do without them.

This observation has a special application to the Demand of the public for the products of industry. While the Demand was at high tide and everybody was busy trying to supply that Demand at a profit no one, seemingly, gave a thought to where the Demand came from, how long it might last, or what would happen if it should fail. We merely assumed the permanent existence of the Demand, just as we assume the presence of water, air, and fire.

But a day came when Demand began to subside, and in many industries it came almost to a full stop. And then we missed it, and realized, as never before, what an important thing it was. And we began to inquire where it came from in the first place, and how it might be restored.

We always knew—everybody knew—that Desire for things made a Demand for them in the market. That people desired things we accepted as an elemental fact. But when we discovered that Desire fluctuated we began to appreciate that Desire, as we know it, is a thing created by the art of man. It is a highly specialized form of an elemental need—just as a Louis XVI chair is made out of a tree.

This discovery led to another equally important discovery that the means of refining and specializing that Desire was Advertising. The gigantic work that has been accomplished by modern advertising now stands out in bold relief. It has been the means by which the refinements of civilization have been made known and made desirable, and this desire has been made into Demand. It is a simple fact that a million profitable forms of industrial activity owe their very existence to the fact that Advertising upheld the standards of living which in turn provided the demand for their products.

BRUINS PUT IN HARD GRIND FOR NAMPA CONTEST

Pat Flynn's Gang Constitute Opposition for Locals in Last Workout; Interest Keen in Coming Game

The Bruins took on their last hard workout of the season Tuesday night. The second string again retired to secrecy and doped another batch of new plays to work against their brother Bruins and the first squad, after a fast round of signals, took on Coach Flynn's Wildcatters. It was a beautiful scrimmage to watch and although there was some improvement in the Bruin line it was spotted and they were not charging evenly. Pat's gang was not able to make much yardage, but succeeded in getting away once or twice for considerable gain.

From the dops on Nampa the Bruins will have the edge on their career. The team will have to play full steam for the whole frame in order to come out with the long end of the score. If the Bruin line will charge like they did against East high and the backfield will work like they should the outcome will not be in doubt very long. Many are of the opinion that getting the Bruin squad worked up to the proper pitch.

Indications point to a large crowd and the topic of the day is the Nampa game. The fans are anxious that the Bruins beat Nampa by a larger score than Boise was able to pile up and one of the best battles seen on Lincoln field this year.

Arrive Wednesday Night.

The Nampa team with Coach Herbert F. Harrington and 19 men will arrive in Twin Falls Wednesday night by stage. The Nampa aggregation has had a remarkably successful season, being defeated by Boise 7-0, and by Parma 25-0. The line averages 132 1/2 pounds, while their backfield averages 167 1/2. In Ricks, their 100 pound halfback, they have a second Kernahan and the Bruins will have a hard time stopping the big boy. Nampa's regular quarter, Tom Smith, will not be able to play, as he is on the sick list. Otherwise the team is in good condition and expecting a hard game but confident that they can upset the Bruins.

The games played this year, with the scores and the lineup and weights are as follows:

- Nampa 46, Ontario 0.
- Nampa 31, Weiser Institute 0.
- Nampa 30, Wendell 0.
- Nampa 20, Caldwell 0.
- Nampa 23, Payette 0.
- Nampa 6, Boise 7.
- Nampa 6, Weiser high 13.
- Nampa 9, Parma 25.
- Nampa 30, Filer 0.

GERMANY STILL IN CONFUSION

Efforts to Select Chancellor of No Avail; New Candidate Is Being Groomed

BERLIN, Nov. 27 (AP)—Germany was still without a chancellor or an effective government at a late hour tonight and the five bourgeois parties which were supposed to constitute a new coalition bloc were far from an accord which would give them a united front in the Reichstag.

Adam Stegerwald, former premier of Prussia and Centrist leader, is now being groomed for the chancellorship. Dr. Heinrich F. Albert, having abandoned his efforts to form a ministry because of inability to find support in the Reichstag, Siegelrad, however, has not yet been unqualifiedly accepted by all the parties allied for the new coalition. The German nationalists have complicated the negotiations by demanding that they be included in the Prussian coalition government which at the present time is composed of socialists, the people's party, democrats, and clericals.

Since the dissolution of the feudal Prussian house of lords, which was a clinal of Prussian aristocracy and semi-feudally, the nationalists have not been represented in Prussian cabinets. They are now seeking rehabilitation there by making participation in the new government contingent on similar representation in Prussia.

STATE EXPERTS MAKING TESTS ON POULTRY FOOD

Purpose Is to Discover Why Hens Lay More Eggs when Fed a Lot of Sour Skimmed Milk

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Nov. 27.—To discover why hens lay more eggs when they get a lot of sour skim milk, the poultry department of the college of agriculture is preparing pens to compare the feeding of milk curd, milk curd, sour skim milk and protein-free sour skim milk.

A year ago study of the analysis of sour skim milk showed it to contain 90.77 per cent water, 0.10 per cent fat, 3.93 per cent milk sugar (lactose), 0.50 per cent lactic acid, 3.65 per cent protein and 0.79 per cent milk ash or salts. It was assumed that water alone was not the stimulating factor. The fat content seemed too low, and the distribution of carbohydrates did not point to milk sugar as a possible source of the problem.

A comparison was made of rations containing lactic acid, milk salts, protein-free sour skim milk and sour skim milk. The results showed conclusively that lactic acid in the same solution as in sour skim milk is valueless for egg production. Besides, both milk salts and ash entirely failed to stimulate increased egg production. The results all seemed to indicate that the protein or milk curd were the valuable part of sour skim milk. For two years the protein-free sour skim milk has not given as satisfactory production as the sour skim milk.

If you ever want to sell your house ARCOLA is a salesman

I WISH to inquire how long it would take to get another ARCOLA, similar to the one you sold me last year, as I have sold my house," writes E. D. Saunders, of Alton, Ill.

"My neighbor and I," he continues, "owned houses adjoining, that were built by a housing company and exactly alike; both of us were trying to sell and a prospective buyer paid me six hundred dollars more than my neighbor was asking, because my house was hot-water heated by an ARCOLA and American Radiators."

ARCOLA is an investment on which it is impossible to lose. Buyers are glad to pay more for a house with an American Radiator in each room. If you keep the house several winters ARCOLA's cost is entirely absorbed. It pays for itself in the fuel it saves.

PRINTERS UPSET THEATER SQUAD

Times Bowlers Retain Position by Walloping Idaho Gang; Bruggeman Knocks 'em Over

The Times bowlers successfully defended their places at the top of the bowling list Tuesday evening when they upset the Idaho theater squad two games out of the customary three. Brilliant flashes of bowling predominated throughout the evening and a large crowd was out to see their favorites play.

"Charlie" Bruggeman was the sensation of the evening when, in the last game, he made five successive strikes, finishing with a 224 score, and a total for the evening of 590 pins, 71 better than "Dinky" Moore, the Idaho's champion for the evening, who took the lumber for a total of 528.

The movie boys took the first game with a few warming up exercises, defeating the times men 795 to 741. In the second round Charlie and Henry the Bruggeman brothers, built around a little and the score went back on the theater lads by the following: 780-848. It was in the third that Phil Fix found out the peculiar kind of ball it takes to put the head pin over the backstop and the score was about the same time that the pin boys began to move when Big Phil came up.

Phil devoted too much time to his practice in this game and the Times only suffered three or four blows while Bruggeman was busy making an attempt for a record and the score was forgotten about until the end which proved to be a good thing for the Times as they won easily, 909-786, within two points of the season's record.

During the evening the typesetters got 2498 pins to 2301 for the movie boys. The evening's work will change a great number of places on the list for the week.

Table with bowling scores for various teams and individuals, including Boone, Moore, Ford, Lavinillo, Team, Bruggeman, C., Hill, Bruggeman, H., Anderson, Larsen, and Team.

STRIKES AND SPARES

We are glad to announce among our new arrivals in the league little Hugh Boone the leadoff man for the Theater bowlers. Last night was Hugh's first night, but he showed himself to be a good partner for the "special" artist Fix and ended the evening with a 452 total, not so bad for the first time at any rate.

Larsen the anchor man of the Times squad was a little off color yesterday as compared with the big fellow's usual scores and this fellow with the "striking" characteristic, Bruggeman will get him if he don't watch out and catch up with the men on the other end of the Times lineup.

"Dinky" Moore deserves more than special mention for last night's work. Dinky was looking for trouble in the last game and practically all attention was focused on his battle in the first frames of that episode with the Times star Bruggeman. However, Moore's total for the evening, 528 will boost his place on the weekly list.

Among others who had a bad night was John Henry Ford who just couldn't seem to find the pins and when he did they wouldn't fall right.

OFFICIALS PROTEST AT BURLEY GAME RULING

Referee and Umpire, in Message to State Board of Control, Declare Idaho Falls Team Superior

According to the Idaho Falls Daily Post, officials of the Burley-Idaho football game state that the referee, C. W. Petersen, made a wrong ruling on the play that gave Burley their second touchdown and further state in a telegram to the state board of control that Idaho Falls has the best team and would be more representative of Idaho football if they beat Boise.

The telegram follows: "As officials at Burley-Idaho Falls game we figure without doubt from neutral standpoint Idaho Falls has best team by far and would be a better representative of Idaho football if they beat Boise than Burley would. Referee Petersen ruled wrong in play that gave Burley second touchdown. Would suggest Idaho Falls play Boise Thanksgiving and if they win again in neutral town, either Boise or Pocatello, week later. Send copy of paper."

"C. W. PETERSEN, Referee. "A. A. CAFFEY, Umpire." Superintendent M. C. Mitchell, president of the board of control, stated that he had received the above telegram, but that it is possible it might have been sent to J. J. Roe of Caldwell, secretary of the board.

SALT LAKE, Nov. 27 (AP)—Ira Dern of Salt Lake, a champion of the world's middleweight wrestling title, won in straight falls from Henry Engle of Dubuque, Iowa, here tonight. The first fall, with a leg struggle, came after one hour and 33 minutes of mat work, and the second, with a double armlock, after 33 minutes.

It is said and done the Times had a good workout. The News team contends that the Times team will need a lot of practice between now and December 12 when the two paper squads meet to wage their paper war. The News bowlers plan to take three straight tonight but "Bill" Scully and his gang have a slightly different opinion.

a neutral field. Burley in advising the local board of their refusal to play advanced as one reason "that they did not care to have their team in a routing contest like the Idaho Falls game had been." Local officials have wired the state board of control of this action and are expecting to receive word of the forfeiture of the game to Idaho Falls. Burley has scheduled a game with Boise for Thanksgiving and it is thought this action may result in the forfeiture of the game scheduled for next week with Boise and thus make Idaho Falls state champions.

Boise seem to have thrown a monkey wrench into the machinery of the state board of control Tuesday when they disregarded the two-thirds vote of the board that Burley and Idaho Falls should play off the tie for the inter-district championship at Pocatello this week and scheduled a Burley-Boise game to be played Thanksgiving day in Boise for the state title.

Burley Team Travels

First word of the arrangements for the Burley-Boise game came to Superintendent M. C. Mitchell, president of the board of control, in a telegram Tuesday from Superintendent E. S. Crawford of Idaho Falls high school, stating that Burley refused to play Idaho Falls in accordance with the state board's decision and asking for advice. Mr. Mitchell received confirmation of this state of affairs in a telephone conversation with Superintendent H. M. Broadbent of Burley.

The Burley team left Tuesday morning for Boise, it was learned, and Burley citizens and high school students have arranged for a special train to Boise leaving either Wednesday evening or Thursday morning.

The Burley school superintendent was noncommittal as to whether Burley would be willing to meet Idaho Falls in a post season game in the event of victory over Boise.

Presents New Angle

Action of the Burley and Boise schools presents a new angle in the tangled interscholastic football situation this year and one that, it is believed, will require a new ruling by the state board. Several possible rulings are pointed out. The board may permit the Burley-Boise game to be played at the state championship claims. It may require the winner at Boise to play Idaho Falls for the state title, or it may declare both Burley and Boise out of the running because of breach of rules. In case of the latter decision Idaho Falls might be declared the state championship claimants and be required to play Twin Falls for the title.

Members of the board will meet this week end at Pocatello in connection with the state teachers' meeting, and it is expected that the football controversy will be threshed out and determined effort made to straighten the situation at that time.

IDAHO CHEESE MAKERS MAKE RAPID PROGRESS

Opening of New Plant at Moreland and Consolidation of Seven Factories Announced

POCATELLO, Nov. 26.—Another big chapter in the story of the rise of the cheese making industry in southern Idaho is being written at the present time, according to Professor Kenneth of the agricultural department of the Idaho Technical Institute. This new phase is in the consolidation of small factories.

Announcement was made at the celebration in honor of the opening of the Moreland cheese factory last week-end that the seven H. F. Labbe factories along the Snake river valley below American Falls, and the five C. E. Veigt factories east of American Falls, had consolidated under the name of the H. F. Labbe Cheese company.

This company will make regular weekly shipments of cheese to the California market and will be able to pay the farmers for their milk twice a month instead of monthly. This company will open warehouses and offices in Pocatello at once. These developments following so closely upon the beginning of the cheese industry in this section of the state indicates a rapid trend toward the growth of the industry in Idaho and the centralization of the marketing of the products on the Pacific coast.

JOHNSON FLAYS UNITED STATES' FOREIGN POLICY

Western Senator Presents His Views and Comments on Topical Subjects; Suggests Remedies for Present Troubles

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 (AP)—Senator Hiram W. Johnson, in his first public address since announcing his candidacy for the republican nomination for president, tonight condemned the foreign policy at Washington, which he said has been attempting to commit America to "undisclosed European adventures ever since the armistice." It is the first duty of citizens to resist this policy, he said, in an address before the Cook County Real Estate board.

Senator Johnson went on record, not only advocating the national bonus and a definite reduction of taxes, but outlined his ideas of how these two things could be accomplished.

He also advocated a constitutional amendment that would make child labor laws and women's minimum wage laws legal; suggested remedies for farmers' troubles, and then launched into an attack on the administration policy toward the European situation and also against America joining the reparations conference.

Raps Foreign Policy.

"I do not protest against an American policy towards Europe," said Senator Johnson. "I protest against an American policy which does not know what it is and which seeks to discover itself or to hide itself by first going into a conference with Europe."

"It is humiliating that we can not speak our mind, save with the consent of other nations or in conjunction with them. If an administration does not like an existing situation abroad why not say so?"

"Our position in the world is such, our financial and potential so great that our utterances would be of supreme importance. Thence it is our duty where there are no morals, of which it is a helpless minority, and it is lost."

"What I venture to denounce, what I venture to resist and shall always resist is not the effort to have an American foreign policy, but the effort, the continuous effort, to postpone having an American policy, in favor of going into European conferences and organizations where the policy reached is bound to be not American but European."

Talks Bonus

In taking up the bonus and taxation questions, Senator Johnson said: "The responsible heads of the dominant political party have for many years pledged themselves and their party to the soldiers' adjusted compensation act. You may say it is unwise. It is emotionally and morally impelling and long ago it was decreed by those in command of the government to be just. It is a promise, a solemn pledge and we must keep faith. But a brief period ago it was insisted we should delay, not deny it because the money was not forthcoming. The passage of the act you may assert to be financially bad, but our pretenses and delays, our shiftings and evasions are morally worse. But we can reduce taxes and we will; I hope, reduce them."

Senator Johnson then read figures computed by the treasury department and the American Legion and said: "If the computations be correct, we may do our duty by the soldiers, whom we were so grateful while they fought and of whom some are so forgetful now and still reduce taxation."

Would Reduce Taxes

"In round numbers 13,000,000 are paying taxes on incomes under $10,000. Three hundred and thirty thousand pay an income exceeding $10,000. By reducing in the manner that has been suggested the taxes of those 13,000,000 we would reduce the government's revenue $140,000,000. There is, according to the figures of the secretary of the treasury, a surplus of $300,000,000. Upon the basis of every computation the surplus is sufficient to justify the tax reduction immediately to the 13,000,000 of our people most needing it and to pay, too, the installment required under the adjusted compensation act. Taxes must be reduced. We stand for tax reduction that is just and we stand for the good faith of the American people."

Senator Johnson early in his address said that "what I say tonight is in no sense a political platform."

Should Have Lower Rates

Senator Johnson also discussed the agricultural situation, saying: "When agriculture languishes the nation is ill. It is obvious to the farmer that he has been compelled to sell for less than the cost of production. Some would have the American taxpayer generally make up to the farmer that which is unjustly taken from him, first by the railroad companies, and secondly by the middleman. I do not wish to ask the bank the government on this kind of catering. The initial step is the relief of the farmer in lower freight rates. I would not be unjust to the transportation companies, but they could reduce the rates upon farm products, I have little doubt; and if the

WITNESS TELLS MURDER DETAILS

Ogden Attorney Is on Stand in Browning Trial; Others Give Testimony

SALT LAKE, Nov. 27 (AP)—That W. H. Reeder, an attorney from Ogden, was not an eye witness to the slaying of Benjamin J. Ballantyne, for whom death John Browning, Jr. and Marjorie A. Browning, cousins, are being tried in court here, and that Marjorie Browning, who admitted to the police that he fired the shot, had carried a gun for legitimate reasons and had not armed himself especially when he went to the Ballantyne home and further that Marjorie Browning had come to Salt Lake on business and had only "happened" to be at the Ballantyne residence when the trouble which resulted in Ballantyne's death occurred, were statements brought out in today's testimony.

The gun which Marjorie Browning had given the police at the time he surrendered himself for the slaying was exhibited and was identified by one witness as being similar to the gun which Marjorie was carrying because of threats from another party.

Reeder also testified that Marjorie Browning went to the house and was in the automobile outside, but on seeing John Browning force his way back into the house following M. K. Ballantyne, and hearing angry ejaculations from Ballantyne, Marjorie Browning ran to the house. Marjorie said "I don't know what Ben is up to now," Reeder said.

Reeder then stated he heard Ballantyne say to John Browning, "I'll kill you," and that Mrs. Ballantyne came running out of the house and screamed "He'll kill us all." Marjorie rushed in, he said, and then came the shot. Mrs. Ballantyne screamed "Oh, he's killed Jack," and was about to collapse when Reeder caught her and helped her to the car. Then he went into the house, he said.

Reeder stated that Marjorie Browning had not intended to come down from Ogden with John Browning, but had come along to attend to business when he saw John Browning and Reeder start for Salt Lake. Under cross-examination he said Marjorie had gone to the Browning brothers' hardware store in Ogden, but that he did not know whether Marjorie went there for a gun or for some other purpose.

The defense then produced two witnesses, one Thomas B. Beason, manager of the Browning ranch, and another, Verne L. Watts, an Ogden bank official. Beason testified that a rancher had threatened to kill Marjorie Browning and that for this reason Browning was carrying a gun. Watts testified that he had seen a danger of bank robbers the officials of the bank had requested certain officers to have guns near them and also requested Marjorie Browning, who was a stockholder in the bank and whose office was across the hall from the cashier's office, to carry a gun. The bank officials also asked Marjorie who is said to be a crack shot with the revolver, to give the bank employees target practice.

interstate commerce commission were to function with the celery and certainly we desire, rates more in consonance with present conditions would be accorded."

Senator Johnson also advocated co-operative marketing as a help to the farmer. "It would not take the government either into price fixing or into the grain business," he said, "but I would have the government educate and aid into the forming of co-operative associations and just exactly as the government has aided oil activities, to extend and broaden, I assume, aid in the same fashion to farmers in their co-operative equipment."

SENATORS GIVE VIEWS ON PRESS AND INDUSTRY

Shipstead Traces History of Military Despots; Montana Solon Raps Present Publication System

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP)—Two new senators from northwestern states delivered addresses tonight in New York. One, Henrik Shipstead, farmer-laborer, Minnesota, attacked the modern "trustful king" as a war-mak- ing despot, while the other, Burton Wheeler, democrat, Montana, asserted that the channels of publicity in America have been commercialized. Both spoke at a dinner given in honor of Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of The Nation.

Senator Shipstead said there is a growing suspicion of parliamentary governments all over the world. "Parliamentary governments came to life and power, succeeding military and political despots," he said, "because these had dispossessed the producers of wealth and rewarded the destroyers of wealth, the war-makers. After destroying the old-fashioned political and military despot we have substituted for these a new despot, the industrial king. This new king is also a war maker, sacrificing the producer and builder in order to reward the destroyer. He will use parliamentary governments as his instrument if he finds them pliant tools, but will discard them for dictatorships if necessary to accomplish his purpose."

"To the military and 'rule by divine right' despot, treaties between governments were merely scraps of paper. To the industrial despot, struggling for a place in the sun, they were solemn contracts, but after achieving his place in the sun, 'open covenants of peace openly arrived at,' as for instance, the terms of the armistice, signed with a beaten foe, immediately became a scrap of paper. The militarism that had been a source of danger and war has now become a source of safety and peace and must therefore be preserved. One is as immoral as the other—the invasion of the Ruhr is as immoral as the invasion of Belgium. Why are we so shocked at the one and so indifferent at the other?"

"Industrial kings sacrifice nations and governments on the poker table of international politics when iron mines, coal mines, oil wells, land and trade are the stakes. This game is destroying the white man's civilization."

Senator Wheeler told his audience that in both the United States and in Europe public opinion is largely "a manufactured article—the output of propaganda factories."

Asserting that the day of great personal editors—the Greeley, the Dana, the Stanton and the Water- sons—is gone, Senator Wheeler declared that, with very few notable exceptions, the magazines and newspapers are "either owned outright by the great industrial and financial interests or controlled through the advertising patronage."

"This is not a criticism of the publishing business," he added, "but an indictment of the system. The publication of newspapers and magazines is a business and is run as other businesses. It is run for profit. This than profit may be secured from general advertising patronage or it may come from some economic advantage secured through the control of public opinion."

"The real trouble in Europe is that the channels of publicity—the public press—are damned up and only those things which the ruling class in each country desire to publish is allowed to get out."

ANTI-KLAN MEASURE IN OKLAHOMA WINS FAVOR

Sections of Proposed Bill Prohibiting Wearing of Masks Are Approved After Heated Session

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 27 (AP)—Sections of the proposed anti-Klan Klux Klan bill, which would prohibit the wearing of masks, trespassing while disguised, assault while disguised and the sending of anonymous communications were approved by the upper house of the state legislature today marking the first victory for its supporters in the furious controversy over the measure.

Proponents of a similar act in the lower house, however, were defeated in their fight for immediate consideration when the house voted to bring outside the measure until the senate finally has assented.

of American producers. Rex E. Willard, agriculturalist of the agricultural college of North Dakota, representing the farmers, bankers and business men of that state, presented reports of extensive study of wheat production costs. Representatives Young and Burtness of North Dakota also discussed the various phases of the question.

Select Job Rate Basis.

The commission submitted for examination and criticism its tentative schedule for field operations which is to a large extent on the job rate basis. The wheat growers representatives insisted that all factors in the growing of wheat should be considered by the commission. Objection was made by Mr. Cummins to using a rental as a basis in determining the cost of production.

Questions by Chairman Marvin of the commission announced its report would include data on transportation costs in the United States and Canada and the wheat council's representatives were asked to present any information possible on any subsidy or equivalent granted by Canada through freight rates.

Show Shipping Costs.

Testimony today showed the average cost of wheat transportation in Canada at present rates averaged one cent per bushel for 66 miles, while the American rates averaged one cent for 37 miles. Canadian growers, it was stated, enjoyed an advantage of about eight cents a bushel on all wheat shipped through the lower rates. In addition to the lower freight rates the Canadian growers were able to produce wheat this year according to estimates presented, at 46 cents a bushel less than the American farmers.

PIGGY PIGGINS

By DADDY

(Jack and Janet Take Piggy Piggins to the packing house where he sees what becomes of fat pigs.)

—Could waddle no farther.

CHAPTER III. Piggy Goes Hunting. DADDY PIGGINS'S book fat sides as he waddled. Piggy was in a great hurry to get away from town...

"Now you know what happens to fat pigs that go to town," said Jack and Janet as they caught up with him. "Oo-ink! Oo-ink! Yes, I now know what happens to fat pigs that go to town. How can I keep from getting fat?"

Just then Daddy Dog flashed into view. He was chasing a rabbit, which popped into a hole, leaving Daddy Dog baying out loud. Daddy Dog was slim and trim, as a hunting dog should be.

"Let us ask Daddy Dog how to keep from getting fat," suggested Janet. "That's right, Jack. What else can you hunt?" "Oo-ink! I see what I can hunt," cried Piggy Piggins, his little eyes peering down into the grass.

"Oo-ink! I'm going to have fun! I am going to hunt snakes!" cried Piggy Piggins, and he made right for a bit of marsh that Jack and Janet always avoided. It was known to be the home of a lot of snakes.

"Oo-ink! Rabbits run too fast," gasped Piggy Piggins. "I'll have to hunt something else." "That's right, Jack. What else can you hunt?" "Oo-ink! I see what I can hunt," cried Piggy Piggins, his little eyes peering down into the grass.

"Run," cried Jack. "It is a snake." Piggy Piggins did run—and very fast for such a fat pig—but he didn't run away. He went right for that snake. Quicker than skat he grabbed it. He gave it a few shakes and that was the end of Mr. Snake.

"Oo-ink! I'm going to have fun! I am going to hunt snakes!" cried Piggy Piggins, and he made right for a bit of marsh that Jack and Janet always avoided. It was known to be the home of a lot of snakes.

(Hunting has an unexpected effect upon Piggy Piggins, as well as told in tomorrow's chapter.)

out, he found his arms full of totally unexpected buldog. "Get out," whispered Sam tensely, recovering his faculties with a jerk. "Go away!"

Smith took the opportunity of his lips having opened to lick the roof of his mouth. Smith's attitude in the matter was that providence in its all-wise wisdom had sent him a human being at a moment when he had reluctantly been compelled to reconcile himself to a total absence of such indispensable adjuncts to a good time, and that now the revels might commence.

Between Smith and the humans who provided him with dog-biscuits and occasionally with sweet cakes there had always existed a state of misunderstanding which no words could remove. The position of the humans was quite clear, and elected Smith to his present position on a straight wrangle ticket.

How long he stood there, frozen, he did not know, nor did one say how long he would have stood there had nothing further come to invite his notice elsewhere. But, suddenly, dawned even the impropriety concert, there came from somewhere upstairs the rattle of a gun, and, when he heard that, Sam's nerves relaxed and his violent activity descended upon him.

He bounded out into the hall, looking to right and to left for a hiding-place. One of the suits of armor which had been familiar to him in his boyhood loomed up in front of him, and with it, at last, came the recollection of how, when a mere child on his first visit to Windles, playing hide and seek with his cousin, Eustace, he had concealed himself inside this very suit and had not only baffled Eustace through a long summer evening but had wound up by almost scaring him into a decline by boozing at him through the vizor of the helmet.

Smith, in his unnerred state, could not bring himself to share those unimable sentiments. He was thinking bitterly that Webster might have had the intelligence to warn him of bulldogs on the premises. It was just that sort of wooden-headed thing fellows did, forgetting facts like that. He scrambled stiffly to his feet and tried to pierce the darkness that hemmed him in. He ignored Smith, who snuffed sportively about his ankles, and made for the slightly less black oblong which he took to be the door leading into the hall.

He stood there, shaking. The narrowness of the escape turned him cold. If he had been an instant later, there would have been a crash loud enough to wake a dozen sleeping houses. This sort of thing could not go on. He must have light. It might be a risk; there might be a chance of somebody upstairs seeing it and coming down to investigate; but it was a risk that must be taken. He declined to go on stumbling about in this darkness any longer. He groped his way almost blindly care to the door, the wall adjoining which, he presumed, the electric light switch would be.

It was nearly ten years since he had last been inside Windles, and it never occurred to him that in this progressive age even a woman like his Aunt Adelina, of whom he could believe almost anything, would still be using candles and t-lamps as a means of illumination. This only doubt was whether the switch was where it was in most houses, near the door.

It is odd to reflect that, as he searching fingers touched the knob, and instantaneously their impact with him out of the darkness, he was greeted by a young man actually felt at that moment that his troubles were over. He positively smiled as he placed a thumb on the knob and shoved.

"Matrimonially Speaking"

By MRS. HUGH McKAY

My husband always has to shave before he can go anywhere.

And he never discovers this need until just the minute before we have to start. He sits around, reading, until I appear with my hat on, and then he looks up, rubs his chin and says: "I can't go yet—looking like this, you know. If you expect me to go to church with you, you'll have to wait till I shave."

In a case like this I can see that he's helping I won't wait for him. But I always disappoint him. We haven't arrived at a dinner or a party on time for the last five years. And, of course, the suspicion of having caused the delay always falls on the woman.

How can you explain to a gathering that you wouldn't have been late if your husband hadn't acted as though he'd never heard of a razor until two minutes before it was time to leave the house?

So concentrated was Sam on his private vendetta with the clock that no ordinary happening would have had the power to distract him. What occurred now was by no means ordinary, and it distracted him like an electric shock. As he sat on the floor, passing a tender hand over the egg-shaped bump which had already begun to manifest itself beneath his hair, something cold and wet touched his face, and paralyzed him so completely both physically and mentally that he did not move a muscle but just congealed where he sat into a solid block of ice. He felt vaguely that this was the end. His heart stopped beating and he simply could not imagine it ever starting again, and, if your heart refuses to beat, what hope is there for you?

At this moment something heavy and solid struck him in the chest, rolling him over. Something gurgled rhythmically in the darkness. Something began to lick his eyes, ears and chin in a sort of ecstasy; and clutching

NO WORD COMES HERE OF HUNT FOR BANK ROBBERS

FAIR WEATHER HAMPERS MOVE

Cream Producers Too Busy in Fields to Attend Meetings, But Interested

Steady progress is being made toward establishment of a co-operative dairy products marketing organization in Twin Falls county, according to leaders of the movement, although they say, fair weather conditions just now are hampering the undertaking. "Press of farm work with the coming of fair weather last spring caused temporary suspension of the movement, and in the present effort, through a series of meetings to launch the organization, leaders in the undertaking find farmers generally unwilling to take time from work in the fields that is made possible by continuing fair weather.

Interest Prevalent

Interest in the undertaking, however, they say, is prevalent, and they expect in the future to complete the enrollment of membership in the Twin Falls County Dairyman's association to a point where production of a minimum of 80,000 pounds of cream daily will be represented, and the marketing organization will become a factor in the dairy industry of this region. It is understood among persons taking the initiative in the movement that cream delivered through the marketing organization will be converted into butter and other products at local creameries.

Plans Presented Here

Plans for the launching of the organization were presented at a meeting here Tuesday afternoon by Gustav Kunze, Buhl, president of the dairy men's association; W. A. Claudin, Twin Falls, a director of the organization, and R. E. Brassard, county agricultural agent.
