CONGRESSIONAL CONFERENCES ARE SCHEDULED

Opposition to Regulars by Republican-Progressive Blocs Expected to Be Indicated in Friday's Confabs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Conferences to be held tomorrow by the republican progressive blocs of the house and senate may point the way to the extent of opposition the regular republican organizations will encounter in their efforts to organize promptly the two houses.

Senate republican leaders apparently have determined to leave the democrats or the progressives, or both, the initiative in any organization fight. They are agreed to adhere to the position that the senate is organized and that an election of a president, pro tem is unnecessary. The democrats take an opposite position, but the general belief is that they cannot force an election without the support of the progressive bloc.

Leaders Not Worrying. Republican leaders in the house apparently are not concerning themselves with the demands of the progressive bloc. They say they have received no official information as to those demands and have made no overtures looking to an adjustment of differences in advance of a vote for speaker.

The progressive bloc has issued invitations to 60 members of the house to attend their conference tomorrow at which the program drafted by the executive committee of the bloc will be discussed and acted upon. This includes not only a liberalization of house rules and committees but also with legislation, including tax reduction and the railroad question.

There were but few holiday conferences today at the capitol and those were largely between republican and democratic leaders of the senate with respect to the apportionment of committee places as between the two parties. Some democratic leaders said the majority appeared to view with favor

MISSING WOMAN IS IDENTIFIED

Young Seattle School Teacher Is Reported Found in Hospital at Vancouver

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 29 (AP)—The police of Vancouver, B. C., have positively identified a young woman in the general hospital there as Miss Nell Austin, 23 years old Seattle school teacher who disappeared from here last Saturday night, according to information received by Seattle authorities tonight. The woman, who is delirious and talks incoherently, was identified by photographs of Miss Austin sent to Vancouver and by two of Miss Austin's friends who called at the hospital. The friends asked for permission to remove Miss Austin to her home.

Police Captain C. O. Bannick of Seattle notified the British Columbia authorities tonight that the young woman should not be removed to the homes of friends and that she should remain under the care of the authorities at the hospital until relatives of Miss Austin go to Vancouver to get her. The police of Point Gray, B. C., a suburb of Vancouver, reported late today that they had found Miss Austin unconscious in a street near the waterfront Wednesday night and had taken her to the hospital in a delirious condition. The information was sent to Seattle by Sergeant W. E. Carr and Paquo left here by automobile at midnight.

The Seattle officers' telegram stated that Miss Austin was found in a khaki walking suit, a pair of gray hiking hose and low tan shoes. It stated that she was suffering from exhaustion, although showing no marks of violence. Owing to her condition the officers said she was unable to answer questions. Attempts at the hospital, according to the police, asserted that while delirious she said: "Daddy, oh, Daddy! Don't let them get me, Daddy."

"I am convinced," declared Chief of Police Stevens of Seattle today, "that Miss Austin deliberately left her home at the result of her inability to get along with her two sisters." # PROPOSED LOAN TO HUNGARY IS GIVEN THOUGHT

Details for Reconstruction Plan Worked Out by League Committee; Revenues to Be Given as Nation's Security

LONDON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Details of the proposed loan to Hungary, intended as part of the reconstruction measures for that country which the league of nations has under way, have been worked out by the committee of the league which has been meeting here and which it was announced yesterday had agreed upon a scheme to be submitted to the league council next month.

This loan will, under the committee's plan, be directed by a commissioner general responsible to the league and having functions similar to those of Dr. Alfred Zimmerman, the league's representative in Vienna in the Austrian reconstruction work.

The sum required to put Hungary on her feet will be much less than was necessary in the case of Austria. It is expected that the budget can be balanced in two and one-half years with the assistance of a loan of about $250,000,000 gold, repaid after which Hungary, by means of her own natural resources and her self-sufficiency in food will be able to maintain herself as a self-supporting state.

Unlike the loan for Austria no guarantee of foreign government will be required for the proposed Hungarian loan. The revenue from the customs, tobacco and salt monopolies and the sugar tax may be made available with the additional security of further assigned revenues if they are required.

The committee considers that the success of any scheme for Hungarian reconstruction depends upon satisfactory arrangements being made regarding Hungary's liabilities for war reparations and other debts and the establishment of good political arrangements with Hungary's neighbors.

Dr. de Kallay, Hungarian minister of finance, and other members of the Hungarian delegation who have been supplying the financial committee with information, will leave for Budapest tomorrow.

ADOPTION OF CALENDAR CHANGES HOLIDAY DATE

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP)—The adoption of the Gregorian calendar by the Russian orthodox church through a recent proclamation by Archbishop Tikhon, means that the entire Christian world will celebrate Christmas this year on the same date for the first time since 1581, the international fixed calendar league announced today.

The Russian and Greek churches for centuries followed the Julian calendar which caused them to celebrate Christmas from ten to thirteen days after the rest of the Christian churches.

LADY ASTOR IS SEEKING VOTES

Former American Woman Delivers Stirring Addresses in Parliamentary Campaign

PLYMOUTH, England, Nov. 29 (AP)—Lady Astor is carrying on a very lively campaign for re-election to parliament and her meetings are so crowded she often has to struggle to reach the platform upon which she is usually subjected to brisk heckling to which her quick and sharp answers afford much amusement and keep her listeners in good temper. At a meeting today in which she sought to show the impracticability of the proposed levy on capital championed by the labor party, Lady Astor said: "They say tax the rich. Well, the rich are being taxed, alive and dead, and it's quite right. One reason why death duties are levied is a capital levy is that all the millionaires don't die at once."

The speeches Lady Astor is making are centering largely on social reforms, especially those on behalf of women and children. Today one heckler said: "What will you do when you die?" and laughter and cheers. Lady Astor retorted, "I am going to send you, my son."

This was a reference to her speech when she was first elected to parliament, when she declared she would hold her seat until her son was old enough to be a candidate.

New York Churches Plead for Wider Share of Blessings; Prisoners Feast on Turkey

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP)—Many of the city's churches echoed today with appeals for the United States to share more of her blessings with the less fortunate peoples of other lands. This three hundred and second anniversary of the holiday founded by Governor Bradford of Plymouth colony was widely observed. The usual number of urchins from the Ghetto—boys in girls' clothes and girls in boys'—played charivari and gathered pennies among the crowds who thronged the public squares and theater districts during the day.

Every occupant of a cell feasted on turkey except the two negro inmates of the Tombs who asked for chicken and got it. Charitable organizations distributed thousands of baskets to families of the unfortunate, including mothers and children separated from their kin by prison bars. At Ellis Island nearly 2000 immigrants were initiated into the mysteries of turkey and cranberry sauce and every Bowery and waterfront home was crowded with guests-for-a-day.

President of Reform League Says He Will Bring Up New Suggestions in Regard to Federal Positions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—The placing of bureau of the veterans and prohibition employees under civil service reform league convention here December 8 and 9, William Dudley Foulke, league president, announced today.

HOW OLD AGE CAN BE EVADED

Keep Insisting That You Are Young, and Resist the Suggestions of Others.

Doc Henneberry has just proven the excellence of a long-held theory. For as long as I can remember Doc has insisted that age can be evaded, within limits. Nothing, he says, will grow later on a bald head. But if the owner of the hairless caput will say to himself:

"I am not old. I will not be old. I shall remain a man of hale middle age."

He will not know he has over-estimated until the day the reaper gets him with his hook, says the editor of the Kansas City Star. Doc points out that not one man in a million realizes he is old until his younger friends begin to exhibit needless consideration for him.

It is a shock for any man when he first hears himself referred to as "the old man." But if he is not a person of sturdy character he soon begins to act old. He has not been able to resist the power of suggestion.

Doc has been preaching and acting this for years. But last week his father dug himself out of the living grove he has been occupying for years and came to the city to visit his son. Doc says the old fool is a virtuous proof of the truth of his theory of the essential youthfulness of man. He rolled forty years off his shoulders the first time he heard his son's ideas about being young.

"I'm going to send for mother," said Doc. "Young or old, she always had his number."

JAPANESE TAKE REAR SEATS

Attitude of These People in Public One of Modesty and Humble Apology.

On entering a meeting place (church, address or public gathering) a Japanese invariably pauses at the door to bow in the direction of the platform—a combination of innate politeness and humble apology for the discourtesy of his tardy presence.

The Japanese shows a marked preference for a seat at the rear of the room and a position on the nearer end of a seat, his modesty occasioning those who follow him increasing inconvenience—"For when thou art hidden behind a seat, sit not down in a crowd or seat; lest haply a more honorable man than thou be hidden. But go and sit down in the lowest place. For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbly himself shall be exalted."

A person who is forced to make a way for himself through a crowd or in front of others does so in a crouch, between a crouch and a bow, expressive of supreme humility, murmuring the while, "Osore himasu" ("I go in trepidation"). Two Japanese quite outshouted Alphonse in debating precedence at narrow gates or doors—"Doso, o sai yo" ("Please to the honorable front.")—Stewart B. Nichols in the Outlook.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, and better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or soot, is not pumping up its flame, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, W. R. Johnson, 161 Union Ave. N., Portland, Ore., offers to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—adv.

He suggests that a day may come soon when British imperial conferences like the one recently held in London will not require the presence of the premiers of the various self-governing dominions...

THE TIME OF DEATH

The time of one's death has always been considered beyond human knowledge...

Dr. Charles Mayo, famous American surgeon, declares that in the case of most men, a competent physical examination will disclose within a year or two when they will die...

This is not prophecy, in the usual sense, but merely scientific reasoning from causes to effects, as observed in thousands of cases. It is like telling a motorist that, with a given car, speed and direction, he will reach a certain point at a certain time.

But there is nothing fatal about it. In Dr. Mayo's view, this scientific foretelling of death is based, as in the case of the motorist, upon the supposition that he will continue his present procedure. The motorist may change his manner of travel; the patient may change his mode of life.

Dr. Mayo says that the average man has it in his power, by a rational change of physical habits, to add 10 years to his indicated period of life.

THE TAX ISSUE

It was taxation that caused our Revolutionary War and brought this country into existence as a separate nation. Taxation, in one form or another, has played a big part in our history all along. Taxation is the biggest issue today, in the mind of the public if not in the mind of the politicians.

If any person doubts that, let him ask any given number of citizens, taken at random, what they are most interested in at Washington just now. It is a safe bet that a majority will say, "Tax reduction."

This is not a partisan issue, or ought not to be. Nearly everybody in both parties wants lower taxes, with

In teaching pigeons to fly at night, army officers claim to be developing a necessary factor in national defense and the maintenance of communications when other methods fail.

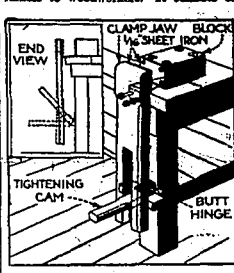

A band of night fliers in the Canal Zone has been trained with remarkable success, the birds released at any point in the region, finding their way home on the darkest nights as speedily as in daylight.

Many ships and aircraft are now being equipped with pigeons before they start upon their trips, to be used as a means of communicating with their stations in the event that mishaps make wireless messages impossible to send.

Useful Clamp for the Woodwork Bench

The drawing shows a simple home-made clamp that is of considerable usefulness to woodworkers. It consists of

A wooden block, securely screwed to the benchtop in the position shown and faced on one side with 1/2-in. sheet iron. This forms the permanent jaw. A 2 by 1/2-in. lever, also faced at one end with sheet iron, and slotted at the other end as shown, is arranged to pivot on a strapping hinge, as shown to the benchtop and bolted to the lever at the point indicated.

PIGGY PIGGINS

By DADDY

(Jack and Janet show Piggy Piggins what happens to fat pigs that go to town to be made into pork chops and spareribs. So Piggy Piggins wants to get thin.)

The Grocery Store.

CHAPTER V. A Queer Game.

PIGGY PIGGINS gave a squeal of dismay when Jack ran away with the basket of shelled corn on which Piggy expected to make a fine meal. Piggy was hungry after hunting for weeks in the marsh and he did not like it to have Jack run away with his expected dinner.

Jack ran fast. He meant to keep that corn away from Piggy Piggins. If Piggy at that corn he would become a still fatter pig and then he might be made into pork chops and spareribs. Jack took the corn away for Piggy Piggins' own sake. Piggy Piggins looked so funny wailing after the corn that Jack had to laugh at him. It seemed a good joke on Piggy Piggins. Jack dodged and twisted and turned almost as if he were a gymnast trying to whirl his fat body around quickly.

Janet laughed too. "Let us take turns running away with the corn," she whispered to Jack. "If we keep Piggy Piggins running he will run off his fat and we will keep the corn away from him. He cannot get his fat back on again. I'll rest until you get tired." Jack nodded his head. So Janet rested while Jack ran this way and that dodging Piggy Piggins, who kept stubbornly after the corn.

olly game for Jack and Janet, but it wasn't jolly for Piggy Piggins. Piggy was getting more and more tired with every turn and twist, but at the same time he was getting hungrier and hungrier, so he kept on wobbling. "This is no fun through the village," laughed Janet, taking the basket. She got off toward town and the basket Piggy followed her. The people in town saw Piggy Piggins chasing the corn and they had a good laugh. All the boys and girls joined in the chase, urging Piggy Piggins to run faster.

Jack and Janet were running on ahead. They did not notice what Piggy Piggins was up to until he had his snout and his feet in the basket of dried apples, gobbling the apples as fast as a hungry pig could gobble. It was too late then to stop Piggy Piggins. Piggy was having a feast, but it was a feast that was going off in a bad fix.

(What that bad fix was will be told in the next chapter.)

Three Men AND a Maid By P. G. Wodehouse Illustrations by Irvin Myers

He followed Billie in a docile manner out through the front door, and they made their way to the garage at the back of the house, both silent. The only difference between their respective silences was that Billie's was thoughtful, while Beaumont's was just the silence of a man who has unhitched his brain and is getting along as well as he can without it.

"I can explain everything," said a muffled voice through the vizor of the helmet. "I can—achoo." The smoke of the cigarette tickled Sam's nostrils again, and he sneezed with a gasp of understanding. "Oh!" she said in a different voice, a voice which was cold and tense and sinister. "Oh, I see!" She raised her gun, and placed a warning finger on the trigger. "Come out of that!" she said. "Come out of that suit of armor and let's have a look at you!"

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

Refrigeration. Refrigeration is a science that finds many uses. In mining it overcomes some great difficulties. The influx of water in porous formations and the heat of deep shafts. By freezing the water surrounding earth, miners can carry their shafts through water-bearing strata, and by supplying themselves with cool air they can penetrate the earth to great depths.

Harlequin Style. Towards the close of the Eighteenth century furniture makers designed pieces which were half a dozen or triple use. This was called harlequin furniture. Beds of today that are transformed into mantels or pianos, tables which become dressers, chairs that are step-ladders are surely examples of harlequin style.

LOOKS TO WOMEN TO FILL PULPITS

Methodist Church Official Suggests Solution of Difficulty in Retaining Pastors

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—The possibility of having churches in many rural communities served by women pastors as a partial solution of the difficulty of retaining experienced ministers in the service because of the economic conditions was suggested by the Rev. David D. Forsyth, corresponding secretary of the board of home missions and church extension of the Methodist Episcopal church, in his report at the annual meeting of the board in session here.

"The city," he said in his report to the department of city work, "is face to face with two major missionary problems—first, the problem of the newly developed sections of the city or suburb; second, that in the older sections, where the character of the population is changing, it is increasingly difficult in such fields to maintain and do the work of the church."

The most heartening and inspiring thing which can be imagined is the realization that the tide is turning. We have old churches in the downtown sections in many of our cities where there are Methodist churches which once ministered to stable and regular English speaking congregations, now making marked progress in ministering to congregations made up of groups of Italians, Poles and Portuguese.

There is a marked need of a better organization of rural service to meet modern conditions. There is a great shortage in our ministerial leadership and a shortage in such leadership is always felt first in the most needy rural fields.

Women as Pastors. There is the possibility that in many rural communities the churches will be served by women pastors just as the schools have been turned over to the teachers. It may be that the partial solution to our leadership problem in such fields. Recent reports from some sections indicate that the number of recruits to the ministry is discouragingly small.

Under the topic of negro work, Mr. Forsyth stated that the background of the negro migration to the north was the story of injustice, cruelty and scant educational advantages.

URGEE COOLIDGE TO DECIDE ON HIS CANDIDACY

Friends of President Believe He Will Settle Much Speculated Question Soon; Was Prepared for Announcement

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—With the return to Washington of republican leaders for the opening of congress, pressure for an early definite announcement by President Coolidge of whether he will enter into the presidential race in 1924 is being increased and some of his friends believe he will settle the question soon.

Many of the president's supporters have visited him recently and urged him to make an announcement of his candidacy at an early date, but so far he has contented himself with listening to advice without giving an indication of his course.

The situation in Maryland, in the belief of many, probably will serve as the final President Coolidge personally into a definite position. Maryland's primary law requires an announcement personally from each candidate whose name goes on the ballot.

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON. If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts. When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract.

DRINK LOTS OF GOOD WATER—You can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also stop up the water drinking, and, no doubt, you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least, twice a year.—adv.

MOTHER'S INFLUENCE IS NOTED IN FIRST THANKSGIVING OBSERVANCE

Unconventional Address Treats of Holiday as Home Festival and Draws Lesson from Maternal Influence in Acts of Lincoln; Service Featured by Superb Musical Program

Characterized by superb music by choir and orchestra under direction of Gustav Fleischer of Twin Falls Symphony orchestra, and an unconventional Thanksgiving address by the Rev. Charles E. Winning, minister of the First Methodist Episcopal church, union Thanksgiving services in the Presbyterian church Thursday were attended by one of the largest assemblages ever gathered here on a similar occasion.

Speaking of "Thanksgiving, a Home Festival," Mr. Winning presented the thought that Abraham Lincoln had authorized the first national annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation, had been inspired by the heart of his mother. He traced in graphic word pictures the mother's influence over the career of the martyred president.

His aid, in part: "We love our country and we love our God. We are none the less patriots than Christians. The patriotism of President Coolidge's Thanksgiving Day proclamation appealed to us no more strongly than did his plea. The anarchist who slanders his country usually the atheist who hates his God."

"But if Thanksgiving day is a day of national devotion it is not without other significant features—it is a day of home-gatherings, a day of family reunions. In keeping with scores of proclamations and in deference to his allowed precedent, and following the homing instinct of our folk, hundreds of thousands of families will joyously seek annual reunion on this, the last Thursday in November."

"At this time of year we can hear with a peculiar tenderness the affectionate 'very of the old home.' 'Almost 300 years ago, or to be historically accurate, in 1632, Governor Bradford of the Massachusetts Bay colony—good old Puritan that he was issued a Thanksgiving Day proclamation. The day was religiously observed; observed as a day of prayer and thanksgiving, but it was local in its observance. Other similar days were proclaimed and observed, each paving the way for the occasional Thanksgiving days of the Revolutionary period proclaimed by George Washington, in accordance with congressional instructions."

"First Annual Thanksgiving. 'But from 1790 to 1864 there was no annual Thanksgiving day—merely an occasional day proclaimed by governors of states, and once in many years a presidential proclamation; but in 1864, new life was given to the day and new meaning as well to the ancient custom and the first Thursday of November of each year has been the day when the families of America do homage to the God of nations—the God to whom the individual must bow and confess his sins, and at the same time the household God."

"Without seeking to, it is a lesson its national significance or its devotional element more and more its household significance is being recognized, and today I would like to dwell particularly on Thanksgiving day as a home festival."

"Mother's Influence. 'We cannot think (at least I cannot) of home without thinking of mother. I believe that Abraham Lincoln thought of his mother when in 1864, near the anniversary of her death, he issued the first national annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation. The heart of the mother was in the message of her son. What do I mean? 'I'll tell you. 'There is a log hut. No windows. No floor. We look in at the door, which has been left open to admit the sunlight which dances on the carpeted floor. There are a few stools, no chairs, a few dishes on the board. On a home-made bedstead lies the young wife of a young pioneer woodman of Indiana, 'Abraham,' she calls; and from outside, where he had been watching the restless wings of the wood birds, comes a boy, who, almost destitute of clothing, has been watching and listening for his mother's voice. 'What is it, mother,' he asks, and in a weak voice, thrilling with mother's love and anxiety, she replied, as she drew her boy to her side, 'I'm going to leave you, Abe, and O, how hard it is to part with you. How beautiful your outside is, and how beautiful where God is. I'm going to meet Him in a better world than this. I learned to love Him at the camp meetings, and I want you to love Him too, Abe.' She paused and then continued: 'Abe, I have not had much to make me proud, but I have never failed to raise in praise whenever a feeling of thanksgiving has gone over me. Abraham Lincoln, you have a heart. I am, thankful God gave you to us. Love everybody. Hinder nobody, and some day the world will be glad you were born. Be grateful for life, for everything, but more than all else because you have my heart.' 'But he can't sing, Nancy'—these words, followed by a ripple of forced laughter, came from the tall young pioneer, clad in buckskins, who was trying to be cheerful, and thus cheer his wife, though he knew she was crying, so that leave him. She did not answer him, and the husband drew up close to her and said in softer tones, 'Abe can't sing like you can sing. I wish she answered.' 'The heart sings in many ways. Some hearts make others sing. Abe may not have my voice, but he has my heart, and he may make others sing. 'I'm going now,' and the poor woman turned her face toward the split log cabin. Once she opened her eyes, once she tried to see him—once she said faintly, 'O, so faintly, 'My Abraham,' once she trembled and then was still—still in death. 'She's gone,' the young husband and father said, and then the father and mother laid out their own hands made a rude coffin; there were no neighbors; and they dug a grave and there they buried her 'neath the trees. Abe looked into the face of his father for sympathy, but the tear-dimmed eyes found sympathy only in his own face. It was a hard time when finished, but since that time the people of Indiana have honored the memory of the occupant. A polished shaft lifts its marble whiteness to the sky, and pilgrims with their prayers Thanksgiving at its foot. But long before the shaft had become sacred, and lay grave a herald to American people, a ragged, half-breed, barefoot boy sat by the grass-green mound and dreamed—and in memory listened to the songs his mother used to sing."

"Mother's Heart Inspires. 'But back to the first Thursday, 1864. The Battle of Gettysburg has been fought and won. That same boy—Abraham Lincoln, now president of the United States, has written a proclamation containing these words, 'The president especially desires that on this day to whom we owe so much should be remembered and revered with profoundest gratitude and thanksgiving. The heart of the mother had inspired him once more."

"But again mark: 'In Washington, the great crisis is approaching. Lincoln at the White House. Shouting thousands swarm over the green slopes. Old Glory ripples in triumph, and afar off the cannons of victory shake the magnolia covered hills. And there is Lincoln—his face dark with sorrow, and wrinkled with care. From the war now on, he came beamed with warmth and loving kindness, and when the throng ceased shouting he says, 'I sincerely thank God for the occasion of this call.' Aye, many heard him thus speak, but he alone heard, in his words, the tones of the mother who was working to his mind. It was the same tone that he had heard so oft, as a boy, in the little log cabin near the flaming maples of old Indiana."

"But again we hear him. He is seated in his private office in the White House. He has heard of the war and fore him like a panorama—he sees the wigwag of his father—the far-stretching prairie—the oaks—the pines—the maples—he could see the cot where his mother died, and he heard near her dying words, and the long remembrance of the mother and youth, and that had of come to him like the echoes of the recurrent minors of an anthem sent heavenward, came again to him and they came with the compelling force of a mother's benediction. Then he saw life. He saw the nation's life in his own heart. He heard the name of Lincoln everywhere. His mother's heart seemed to have gone into the hearts of the people—and the notes of praise and thanksgiving. Then he issued the first of a never-ending series of annual Thanksgiving Day proclamations. He had it issue it. The war had already ushered in the dawn of emancipation. It was issued in Gettysburg's memorable year, and at just about the anniversary of the death of his mother. The mother's death inspired the heart of her son when he wrote that proclamation and his heart was the heart of the people."

"In Message of Son. 'Now you know, my friends, what I mean when I say that Abraham Lincoln thought of his mother when he wrote the first annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation.' The heart of the mother was in the message of his son, and just as Lincoln received from his mother's faith and thanksgiving and song the inspiration that resulted in new life being given to Thanksgiving day, so each one of us should this day, in memory, go to the old home and find the fountain of faith and hope and love received in inspiration for another year. 'Thanksgiving being, then, the annual home festival, we should, aside from its national significance, seek to make it a day of family reunion and thanksgiving for no other reason. We should celebrate the day because we should religiously try to give the children and all our kith and kin a good time. Every father and mother owe it to their children to always try to make the home holidays just as pleasant as possible. No parent can tell how soon the children may be placed into surroundings dark and cheerless—parents never know how long they are permitted to be with and work for their loved ones, and hence every father and mother should daily, and especially upon the home holidays, try to fill home with joy and delight, so that from the possibly dark future they can

SMITH FAVORS BROADER SCOPE OF RECLAMATION

Idaho Congressman Declares West Ready and Willing to Aid South in Solving Idle Land Problems

Stirring appeal for formation of a permanent organization to work for reclamation of the south's idle lands was made by Congressman Addison T. Smith of Idaho, chairman of the house committee on irrigation, at the forestry, reclamation and home-making conference in New Orleans last week, according to advices received here.

Congressman Smith, presiding at a joint meeting of delegates from the Western States Reclamation association with the southern delegates in connection with the four days conference, told of what had been accomplished through reclamation in the west and assured the southern delegates that the west was ready and willing to assist the south in solving its land utilization problems. He said that it is the producer that really counts and that it is necessary for the country's welfare to provide more farm homes.

Enthusiasm Aroused. Much enthusiasm was aroused at this particular session, according to advices, by the exchange of telegrams between the New Orleans conference and the Western States Reclamation association providing for joint sessions of the representatives of the west and south to discuss mutual problems of reclamation and settlement and to devise a national program for carrying on the movement to a successful conclusion.

At a prior session of the conference Congressman Smith told of the benefits that had accrued from reclamation in the west, providing homes for about 45,000 families and adding $50,000,000 annually to the country's revenues. He also pledged his support for legislation to expand the federal reclamation policy into national scope.

Authorization given by the conference for the formation of a permanent organization to be known as the Southern States Reclamation association is considered one of its most important actions. The importance of utilizing such of waste lands as are suitable for self-supporting farm homes was the dominating motif prevailing throughout the conference sessions. Those advocating this use emphasized that these farm homes should be provided as a mode of life for those desiring rural residence and for producing men and women for the strength of the nation, rather than as mere money-making machines or "factories" to produce wealth.

Resolutions adopted set forth the sentiment of the conference in favor of revising the federal reclamation law so as to make it national in its application.
