French Dirigible Dixmude Still Floating High in Air and Out of Control; 52 Men Are Held Prisoners of Skies

PARIS, Dec. 25 (AP)—Hope that the French dirigible balloon Dixmude, last reported floating out of control over the Tunisian coast, will be saved, is apparently waning, judging from a communique issued by the navy department at seven o'clock tonight.

The communique begins: "News received this afternoon tends to increase the uncertainty of the Dixmude's position, and they say that investigation has shown it to be doubtful if the dirigible reported to have been seen between 6 and 7 o'clock Sunday night could have been from the Dixmude. It is pointed out that the reports did not say the body of the dirigible had been seen."

Investigation also has shown that the reports from Bizerta and Sfax, on the Tunisian coast, Sunday afternoon to the effect that the dirigible was going out to sea apparently in a damaged condition, were incorrect, the statement says.

Last Word Sunday. A wireless received from Fort Marnes, in the Sahara, Sunday morning, reporting the Dixmude drifting toward the Gulf of Gabon and asking for help seems to have been the last reliable news from the dirigible.

Late reports that lights were observed which were believed to be those of the dirigible seem to be erroneous, only those lights were seen, no outline of the airship, and it is thought possible that the lights were stars.

A normal crew of 52 men, including staff, 33 of whom were officers, started at 6 o'clock last Tuesday, several of them obtaining permission to make the voyage on their own, a few hours short of the fifteen hours flight which is necessary each three months to secure a flight permit.

TOULON, France, Dec. 25 (AP)—Every torpedo boat destroyer in the harbor is being kept under steam in readiness for a possible attack. The word is received of the definite location of the missing dirigible Dixmude.

SEES FAINT HOPE. LAKEWOOD, N. J., Dec. 25 (AP)—The French dirigible Dixmude, which has been in the air over northern Africa since last Tuesday, apparently has been seen only a few hours short of being saved in the opinion of Anton Heinen, consulting engineer on the Shenandoah, and German commander of the Dixmude on its flight to German waters where it was built to bomb New York.

Body of Killer is Exhumed and Burned in House. Charred Remains of Madman Who Killed Wife and Two Other Women and Committed Suicide Found in Ruins

JEFFERSON, Maine, Dec. 25 (AP)—The body of John Snow was exhumed early today from the solitary grave where it was buried yesterday and placed in the cottage where he killed his wife and two other women on Saturday. The house was then set on fire. The charred body was found in the ruins later in the day. County Attorney Weston says he will begin an investigation in an effort to determine who was responsible.

The countess was stirred when she learned that Snow, after killing the wife and son of Deputy Sheriff Frank C. Jewett at their home in Whitefield, had come to Jefferson, where his wife, her aunt and her two other women, had shot the three women. She ended his own life. Although the medical examiner characterized the murders as the work of a madman, she says that Snow's body would be burned were said to have been the mad man's.

NAVY HAMPERED BY SHORTAGES IN PERSONNEL

Chief of Naval Operations Says Small Forces Present Serious Defense Problem; Raps Shipbuilding Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—Operation of the United States fleet during the last fiscal year was "seriously hampered by the shortage of the 'lower' personnel," Admiral B. E. Conz, chief of naval operations during that period, declared in his annual report, submitted today. The present state of fleet readiness for several months, he added, required cutting down of complements at submarine bases and elsewhere to a point that meant loss of efficiency.

Use Several Craft. Recommendation was made that two vessels, preferably tankers equipped with mooring masts, six planes equipped for landing on ice or water, a permanent mooring mast, some and mooring facilities at certain other northern points be employed.

The ships with three planes each will go to Nome and to Spitzbergen, where preliminary flights for aerological observations will be made," the report said. Police O. K. Hamlet: At the height of the New York crusade against indecency on the stage...

Shakespeare meant nothing in that policeman's life. A play was a play. He went, observed the piece with an open, unspooled mind...

All this is reassuring. The public may now see that old-fashioned play, or even read it, with a clear conscience.

Along with business news of many sorts, good and bad, it is figuring to learn that the average daily distance covered by freight cars in use on American railroads during the month of October was thirty and seven-tenths miles...

How much this means may be inferred from the fact that the average daily distance of a freight car used to be estimated, before the war, at about fifteen miles.

The best of it is that the improvement has been steady and progressive all through the year, and represents a gain of over four miles a day as compared with the previous October.

Here is an answer to the statement still made occasionally, that American railroads are "breaking down." They are doing their work better than any other railroads in the world...

All this suggests optimism for the coming year, because the railroad record shows not only a big volume of traffic but ability to handle a still bigger volume.

THE UNSEEN HELPER BY DADDY

(Big Bobby Bully is mean to the other children, bumping them off the walk. Jack is teased by Con Fidance, an old man, until he can bump Bobby harder than Bobby bumps him.)

The Terribles won

CHAPTER III. THE FOOTBALL GAME. AFTER JACK, victim of the training of Con Fidance, his unseen helper, had outbumped Bobby Bully, the big boy did not try bumping him again.

Bobby Bully was captain of one football team called the Victors, and Jack was captain of another team called the Terribles.

"Why don't you win it, then?" asked Con Fidance.

"Because Bobby Bully is so big and strong and runs so fast no one can stop him from running when he wants and making touchdowns," said Jack.

"Why don't you train to stop him?" asked Con Fidance.

"I would like to win just one game from the Victors, said Jack one day. He heard a chuckle, and there was Con Fidance beside him.

"I hope they don't beat you too bad," said Con Fidance.

"I don't care," said Jack, and he said it to Con Fidance, his unseen helper, heard a chuckle.

The game began. The Victors got the ball again. He was going to make a touchdown, he thought.

"Go after him faster," whispered Con Fidance to Jack.

"That was an accident," he muttered. "I'll make a dozen touchdowns just to get even."

But Bobby Bully didn't make a dozen touchdowns. The very first time he took it, while Bobby ran in front of him, he was tackled.

On the other hand when Jack got the ball he went down the field like a streak. Bobby Bully tried to tackle him once more, but Bobby was knocked sprawling and did not try it again.

"Good work," chuckled Con Fidance into Jack's ear, and Jack grinned.

Diamonds of Malopo

By VICTOR ROUSSEAU

Copyright by W. G. Chapman

The Judge waved the suggestion aside as incredibly trifling. "The diamond means nothing at all to us," he answered.

"It has a monetary value." "We are not in need of small profits, Mr. Garrett."

"Pardon me, but if you are so prosperous and influential, what is the purpose of your resolve to get the control of the Big Malopo by means outside the ordinary run of business?"

The Judge smiled, looked thoughtful, and then, to Winton's surprise, showed a third phase of his nature—absolute frankness.

"The purpose of our resolve?" he asked. "I suppose to gain power, Mr. Garrett. To please the stockholders and to gain power. There, sir, we touch upon the fringe of philosophy."

"What is the motive or human life? Each of us has some secret, ruling passion that he holds secure from the eyes of his fellow men."

"His voice shook as he spoke, but this time it was not the quaver of hypocrisy. Judge Davis seemed on the verge of some intimate disclosure. Then the mood passed, the eyes grew hard again.

"The syndicate will assist you to the full extent of the company's needs, in so far as these have a legitimate existence," he said. "It will guarantee its co-operation. But it must be assured that no competitive interest shall be brought into Malopo, or admitted from Malopo. Therefore the terms are these: you will transfer thirty-three shares to me in blank, on which the syndicate will advance you four-fifths of their par value for three months. At the end of that term, if the money is repaid, you resume possession of your shares. If, on the other hand, the claim has not proved remunerative, the syndicate will reimburse to you personally all portion of this money spent on development, and the shares will become its property. In the latter event you will hold forty-seven shares, which will make the independent shareholders the decisive voters, and all interests will be protected. In the former event you will continue to hold your thirty shares. And I think, Mr. Gar-ret, that no fairer offer could be made. It gives you an opportunity to make a success of the company, and if you fail, protects us against external interests taking up the control to our detriment."

Winton thought hurriedly over the proposal. If he agreed, he would still hold forty-seven shares at worst, while the syndicate and its men would hold an equivalent amount. The balance of power would lie with the independent shareholders; but these, of course, were in a minority.

But why should he consider the proposal when he could realize working capital on the sale of the diamond? "It seems to me," said Winton, "that I am not compelled to face the problem you raise. The diamond can be legitimately sold in the interests of the company. When the time comes for considering your proposition I may come to you, or I may go elsewhere, according to where I can get the best terms in the interests of the company."

Judge Davis whistled softly and gathered in the reins; then he turned to Winton.

"My dear friend," he said, "in these days capital cannot be raised, except in America, upon a diamond claim that were in the hands of a single diamond. As for the sale of the De Witt stone—" "Hardly an appropriate name," said Winton hotly.

Breakfast Food "Matrimonially Speaking"

By HUGH MCKAY

My wife is afraid of sunlight fading things. I no sooner pull our shades up so bright as she comes along and pulls them down. Then I put them up again—and we're off!

According to her, a little sunshine will take the color right out of curtains, rugs, furniture coverings, and anything it happens to strike. She seems to look on it as only a little less dangerous than carbolic acid.

But I can't stand being in rooms that, at 11 a. m., look as though there'd be time for just one more song at twilight before night came in earnest. I want all the light and sunshine that can be made to leak into a room, regardless of its terrible destructive powers.

But my "More and Brighter Sunlight" campaign has never really gone over in our home. There's been too much organized opposition.

Almost as my Sunday afternoon you can see my wife going quietly about the house pulling down the shades that I've just put up. What's the use?

Produces Valuable Art Work Costing 30 Years' Effort

Cabinet-Maker Began Work Many Years Ago on Piece of Unique Furniture

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 25 (AP)—The aspiration of every artist is to produce a masterpiece, something that will live after him as a tribute to his genius, and Robert Prochnau, a cabinet-maker of this city, is no exception to the rule. He has just completed a piece of furniture, the making of which has extended over a period of nearly 35 years.

More than 30 years ago Mr. Prochnau conceived the idea of bringing his woodworking skill into play on some article of furniture that would be a lasting memento to his skill with the tools. He began the collection of materials without an idea of what special piece of furniture he was going to construct. On some fir trees there is a large bulge or hump and within this is beautifully grained and cross-grained wood. From this source Mr. Prochnau obtained his materials. Practically all of the wood came from places on Puget Sound.

A period of 30 years passed in the gathering of materials and Mr. Prochnau began construction of a dressing table and bench to match. For two years he devoted all of his time during evenings working on it, until it was completed.

Built on the mission style, the table has not a nail or screw in it, with the exception of the mounting for the mirrors. Every part is fastened by dovetail joints. The grain of the fir and cross-grain, in various shades of brown, are matched on different sides so the coloring and grain has a uniformity. The centerpiece is hand polished in the natural colors, no varnish having been used in the finishing.

A value of approximately $2000 was placed on the piece of furniture by Prochnau, who claims that there is not another article like it in the world.

PHEASANTS ARE RELEASED

More Than 10,000 China Birds Turned Loose for Hunters of Oregon During the Past Season

EUGENE, Ore., Dec. 25 (AP)—More than 10,000 Chinese pheasants were released for hunters of Oregon during the past year, according to a recent statement of the Oregon state game commission, following a check of the records of the state game farms here and at Corvallis for 1923. The number is a record for the state and the commission believes it has not been equaled by any state.

It is estimated that Chinese pheasants furnish 30 per cent of the upland bird shooting in Oregon and an increased program of propagation has the approval of the sportsmen. Cold weather often takes a heavy toll of the birds and their brilliant plumage makes them easy targets for predatory animals. To offset this, the commission has followed the policy of holding about 4,000 birds mostly females, at the state farms for release just before the nesting season.

CHRISTMAS DAY HERE ONE OF HOME KEEPING

Holiday Season in Twin Falls Memorable for Assiduous Endeavor to Extend Cheer to Every Home

The Christmas day just passed was, in Twin Falls, pretty generally a home-keeping occasion. Moderation of weather, hindering one of the warmest days of the month, made out of doors pursuits enjoyable; but streets in the business district were almost deserted most of the day. There were the usual holiday calls and interchange of gifts and greetings among friends; but gatherings for the most part were those of families assembled to join in observance of the day.

The dinner hour brought downtown a large number of families who had elected to divorce from their homes and to the cafes incident to preparation of the Christmas feast in the home; and theaters in the evening attracted a record holiday patronage.

Out of Doors on Christmas.

On the streets in the residence sections early in the day were scores of little folks trying out new roller skates or other wheeled contrivances they had discovered in the wake of the kindly patrolmen and hither and thither went persons bound on missions directly connected with the spreading of Christmas cheer in Twin Falls homes, great and small.

Celebration at Hospital.

One of the outstanding events of the day was the Christmas tree program and distribution of gifts among patients, inmates and nurses in the hospital, general hospital. Here the band of singers, directed by James S. Hall, choir leader of the Presbyterian church, and accompanied by the organ, sang and completed its program for the day with a concert for sufferers and those ministering to suffering.

For County's Wards.

Special attention was directed toward contribution to the Christmas cheer of those who were residents of the institution by reason of unfortunate circumstances. Gifts of clothing, tobacco or money, in accordance with the indicated preference of each of the eight elderly men who dwell as wards of the county in quarters provided in connection with the hospital, were presented as well by individuals as through the organized effort manifested in the Christmas tree program.

These men had been honored guests on Sunday of the Business and Professional Women's organization at a program that included, besides presentation of gifts, musical numbers by a trio composed of Mrs. W. H. Dwight, Mrs. I. H. Masters and Miss Emma Smith, with accompaniment by Mrs. D. L. Alexander, solo by Mrs. Mastey and recitation by Mrs. Charles T. Bance and Miss Ethelyn Lindley.

CANTATA TO BE REPEATED

Christmas Musical Play Arranged by Prof. F. W. Scott to Be Reproduced at Baptist Church

Because many persons were disappointed Monday evening when accommodations at the Baptist church proved inadequate for the numbers who sought to attend the Christmas cantata, "Glimpses of Surprise," arranged by Professor F. W. Scott, the performance will be repeated in the church at 7 o'clock this evening, it was announced Tuesday. Persons who attended the cantata, however, are invited to attend the second performance.

Templars Observe Day.

In regular observance of the day, members of Twin Falls Commandery, No. 12, Templars, assembled at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in their assembly in Masonic temple for annual Christmas services.

None in Want on Christmas.

The Christmas day just past was, in Twin Falls, a memorable one for the reason that, so far as a dozen or more church, relief and civic institutions would determine through assiduous effort over several weeks, no family here was in want on Christmas day.

SUCCESS ATTENDS NEW DAIRY INDUSTRY PLAN

Manufacture of Powdered Buttermilk Is Achieved with Waste Products Formerly Discarded as Trash

SPOKANE, Dec. 25 (AP)—A comparatively new industrial venture which has enjoyed great success since its inception here about a year ago, according to company officials, is the manufacture of "powdered buttermilk," used as one of the ingredients of a certain brand of chick feed.

Where formerly the buttermilk was a creamery by-product and run off as waste, it is now being utilized by local creameries and has found a ready market among concerns specializing in the manufacture of chick feed. A production mark of two cars per month of the powder is maintained, it was stated.

The powdering factory is said to be one of two west of the Mississippi river, the second having been established by a Portland creamery about three months ago.

SOCIETY

Edited by Mrs. E. B. Williams Telephone 597

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Pringle on Blue Lakes boulevard was the scene of a beautiful wedding on Christmas day when their daughter, Mary, became the bride of Truman O. Boyd, Jr. Promptly at 3:30 o'clock the bride with her father descended the stairs to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Dorothy Graybill of Filer. They were preceded by the maid of honor, Miss Charlotte Black, and worn at the altar, which was banked with ferns, by the groom and his best man, A. J. Myers.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. J. Penran of the Presbyterian church, who read the ring ceremony. The bride wore white brocaded louisette and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Black, wore a gown of all-over orchard lace over gold metal cloth.

Immediately after the ceremony a three-course luncheon was served in the dining room where the guests were seated at two tables decorated with Christmas roses, pink candles in silver candlesticks and pink nut cups in the shape of rice. Mr. and Mrs. Boyd left on the evening train for Lone Pine, Cal., where they will spend their honeymoon. They will be at home in Twin Falls after February 10.

Those present in addition to the family were Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hartz of Clear Lake, and John Wendell of Milwaukee, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Morgan G. Hoop, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Graves, Miss Marjorie Black, Miss Dorothy Graybill and A. J. Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur S. Hill entertained at Christmas dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Wall and daughter, Peggy; Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Nixon and son, Bob.

Mrs. Emma A. Dobbinson entertained at a dinner party Tuesday evening in the Perrine dining room in honor of the Rev. and Mrs. Louis Niasen of Boise. Miss Mary Dobbinson was a guest.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Finch entertained at dinner on Christmas day for Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Walter and daughter, Mrs. M. A. Balle, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Barkley, Mrs. Jessie D. Barkley and R. D. Johnston.
