

LABOR IS BIG PROBLEM IN NEW ENGLAND STATES

Babson Outlines Prospects for Further Expansion in North-east Section; Power Development Most Vital

BABSON PARK, Fla., Feb. 1 (Special to The News)—"It is the popular thing to talk of New England in the past tense," says Babson, the statistician, who is touring here at his winter home after a 10,000 mile tour of investigation. A report of his findings in each locality will be made public as soon as his notes and studies can be organized. Today he discusses conditions in New England.

"People in other sections of the country refer to what 'was' in New England as though it had seen its best days," continued the statistician. "Statistics in the meantime indicate a steady and highly satisfactory progress for this section. Where the United States as a whole increased less than 15 per cent in population between 1910 and 1920, all New England increased 13 per cent and southern New England increased 16.2 per cent. This shows that Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, the industrial section of New England, is gaining in population at a more rapid rate than the rest of the United States. General business throughout the country as reflected in the Babsonchart is running 6 per cent above normal, while activity in New England is 8 per cent above this general average.

Sixth in Population
"I have heard people complain that 'little Massachusetts' has more than its share of influence in Washington. These people, however, were astonished when they realized little Massachusetts is now sixth in population out of the 48 states and holds first place in the production of eight of the 17 lines of industry listed by the United States census. Yes, Massachusetts ranks first in the production of cotton goods, woolen goods, worsted goods, cordage and twine, linen goods, leather goods, and in certain kinds of machinery and machine tools.

Progress Surprising
"Nevertheless, it is not surprising that people wonder how New England does get on so well 'way up in that neck of the woods' with only rocks, bushes and some scraggly water powers as her natural resources. People are justified in wondering how cotton from the plantations of the south, leather from the prairies of the west, steel and lumber from the Great Lakes region can be taken to New England, and there manufactured into products which are then carried back to the cities of the west and sold at less than they can be manufactured for where the raw materials are produced. Industrially this is almost miraculous, but nevertheless it is a fact. There are many reasons for this remarkable condition and among them may be listed the following:

- (1) New England has a very large number of highly skilled workers who combine intelligence, integrity and industry to a marked degree.
- (2) New England has excellent airport facilities, being the nearest portion of the United States to Europe, with excellent steamship lines, backed up by a highly developed network of railways and hard surfaced highways.
- (3) New England, in density of population and wealth per capita, stands very high its climate is healthful and tends to high efficiency; while its colleges, technical schools, private and public schools offer splendid educational facilities to the children of both employers and wage workers. Living conditions are pleasant and not excessive.

Vast Water Power
"In looking into the future, however, the one feature which makes me bullish on New England is the vast amount of available water power. Not only is coal constantly becoming more expensive, due to increased freight rates and increased labor costs at the mines, but the constantly occurring labor disturbances are a continual menace to steam operated plants. This means that those who are dependent wholly upon steam not only are handicapped by a constantly increasing power expense, but they are always subject to shutdowns due to labor disturbances. Sections of the country which are blessed with water power, however, are largely free from these two handicaps.

Labor Problem Serious
"Finally, when surveying New England business conditions in a careful and unbiased manner, the labor situation is the one uncertain factor. American labor in New England is all right. It is earning good money, giving efficient service, and enjoying good living conditions. A large group of the foreign element in New England, however, is a factor which is not normal. It seems to me that it has no responsibility to render fair service in exchange for the wages it receives. There seems to be no method of satisfying these radical workers by either high wages or short working hours. They frankly say that however high the wage or short the hours, they still will fight for higher wages and shorter hours. Of course, such a condition cannot continue indefinitely without the wrecking of industry. Employers and wage workers are not the only ones interested in this industrial struggle; the consumers of the country are vitally interested as well.

Wagner's Son and Widow Accused

Frau Cosima Wagner, widow of the great German composer, and her son, Siegfried Wagner, are charged in Munich with having diverted funds collected for musical purposes to the aid of the German monarchist movement. The money was collected all over the world—particularly in America—to support a Wagnerian festival and revival at Bayreuth. Mail addressed to Ludwig Lindorff, head of the royalist plot, was opened and hundreds of dollars, said to have been from the Wagners, was seized.

VANDAL TRACK OUTLOOK GOOD

Six Lettermen Back in Suits at Moscow; Matthews Outlines Immediate Workouts

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Feb. 1 (Special to The News).—With six lettermen back in suits, Idaho track prospects point to a good season for 1924. Coach R. L. Matthews has outlined the training program which starts immediately in the indoor court where it will continue until the bad weather breaks.

Lewis Williams of Boise, captain and veteran two-miler, holds the Pacific record in the w-mile event and is expected to lead the team in the coming meets. Walter Casbolt of Genesee, last year letterman, is making good time in the 400 yard run. Errol Hillman of Rexburg is back and will make a strong bid for place in the dashes and distances. Arthur Sowder of Coeur d'Alene is going strong in the half mile and is one of the best milers. Henry Powers of Burley, is a good hurdler and a fast man in the dashes. Percy Eaton of Moscow, Home, a two-year letterman in the 440, will again make strong competition in that event.

Last year's freshman team has developed some husky Vandall track men. Neil Nelson of Hewhorn, is a powerful runner on the 100 yard dash. One of Blackfoot is out for the weights, and Wiley Toner of Spokane, for the weights and javelin. "Giff" Davison from Nampa is a fast dash man, and Wayne Davis, St. Anthony, will broaden jump and throw the weights. Otto Haefner of Kellogg is expected to show up well in the 400 and 800 yard dash. William Guernsey of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Marler Archibald of Boise, are fast half milers. According to the present track schedule, only men who have won letters and points will be required to turn out. Equipment has been issued to those men and they will practice three times a week until the early part of next semester, when real training will begin.

BUHL DEFEATED BY LOCAL TEAM

Two Extra Periods Necessary to Decide Rough Contest Between All-Star Quintets

The scholastic game of basketball was roughly manhandled Friday evening before a small crowd when Twin Falls took a pitched battle from Buhl in the local school gymnasium after two overtime periods were necessary to decide the scoring contest which ended 45-43.

The box score indicates that three fouls during the entire fracas, but those occurred only when the game was interrupted by individual fights, in the ordinary course of the game. Miller, the referee, after looking over the substitutes on hand, decided to call off all fouls and let the two bumpy fives fight it out without a basketball referee, and came to the rescue only in the clinches.

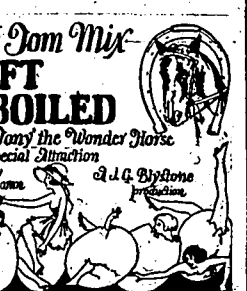

The game never varied more than six points in favor of either team throughout and was an oddly mixed tussle, taking the fast, dazzling play at times and then reverting to a safety method of play with slow passes which was interspersed with personal attacks that seemed to be at home either on the gridiron, or in the canvassed square and reached their climax at the end of the game when Eddie Wilson, Buhl guard, was knocked unconscious.

For the Twin Falls legionnaires Wilkins and Cook displayed the most basketball ability with Bitters and Exeter doing most of the scoring from their feeding. For Buhl Simpson was easily the star, while Griffiths and Owenby were prominent on the west end square. Two Falls (40) G. F. P. T. Tot. LAST WITNESS FOR JACKSON PUT ON STAND

Defense in Suit of Baseball Player for Salary on Contract to Present Case at Opening of Court Saturday

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 1 (AP)—Close of the fifth day of the trial in circuit court here of the case of Joe Jackson, White Sox baseball player, suing the Chicago American club for $18,600 as salary under an alleged breach of contract, brought about close of the plaintiff's direct testimony and he rested his case.

The defense will begin taking testimony tomorrow. Fred Luderus, former first baseman for the Philadelphia Nationals, and now manager of the Oklahoma City team of the Western league, was the final witness for Jackson on direct examination, having been called as an expert to give his opinion of Jackson's work in the 1919 world series, which, it is alleged, was thrown by a number of White Sox players to the Cincinnati Reds.

He testified the playing of Jackson was good and that the latter, by handy stick work sent in six runners to the home plate, or one-third of the runs scored by the White Sox during the series.

John Heyler, president of the National league, was the only witness during the afternoon. He was called out of turn by the defense, in order that he might catch a train for New York. He confirmed the testimony of Charles A. Comiskey given Thursday that the latter called him into conference concerning the rumored throwing of the series. This was after Comiskey said he became aware that all was not right in the conduct of players in the series.

It is not known what line the testimony of the defense will take tomorrow as the defense counsel would give no advance indication. It is generally understood, however, that Mr. Comiskey will take the stand at the opening of the court.

FILER TOSSERS BEAT QUINTET FROM BURLEY

Final Score Is 28 to 23 in Favor of West End Players; Game Well Fought But Marked by Clean Playing

FILER, Feb. 1.—(Special to The News).—Filer finished with the low end of the score when Burley traveled to Filer Friday evening for an engagement with the Wildcat squad which were accounted for in the matter of scoring by three red and white aces, Lapp, Shinn and Love. Both teams were handicapped by the loss of good men, Bateman being absent from the Burley lineup and Adams being out on the Filer side.

The game was hard fought, but clean, on both sides, five fouls being called on Burley and six on Filer with no substitutions. Filer led the end of the half by two points, the score reading 10-8 in their favor which they increased to read 20-23 by the end of the playing time.

FORMER JUDGE UNDER ARREST

Church is Arraigned on Charge of Adultery; Released on Cash Bond of $1,000

BOISE, Feb. 1 (AP)—Marfield I. Church, who yesterday resigned as junior judge of the third judicial district for Ada county, was arrested this afternoon at 5 o'clock on a statutory charge involving one Jane Doe-Goodman. He was arraigned before Carl H. Norris, justice of the peace and released on $1,000 cash bond, which he furnished himself.

L. E. Allumbaugh, sheriff of Ada county, signed the complaint, as complaining witness.

Sheriff Allumbaugh said late tonight that Mrs. Goodman had retained Herbert S. Delann as counsel and Delann pledged himself to produce her at 10 o'clock Saturday morning for arraignment, if the sheriff would abandon his attempt to arrest her tonight.

CONDITION OF WILSON SHOWS LITTLE CHANGE

at what moment the supreme crisis might come, or whether he again would emerge victorious.

Gave Up Hope

A conviction lay upon all of those closest about him, however, that even should he live to see the day the end would be only a question of hours.

The immediate cause of his relapse was a minor digestive derangement which first appeared last Monday. In the beginning it was not in itself alarming, but it was enough to undermine the slender and tottering support by which his vitality has been sustained since lingering illness first took a grip upon him four years and four months ago. He took a sudden serious turn in the early hours of today, and ever since has lain between life and death.

While the great personages of Washington and the lowliest of his followers, far and near, were pouring in a flood of messages of sympathy or calling at his home to express their concern, he spent the long hours of the day and night sleeping fitfully and awakening to speak the faint whisper to those who were with him.

Mind Alert

During the afternoon he was able to take nourishment; his heart seemed a trifle stronger; his mind remained for the most part clear and alert; he suffered somewhat, but bore it stoically. The sinking sun and the twilight hours saw him still fighting, but there were no signs that encouraged his physicians to believe that a material change for the better was in prospect.

He himself understood that the battle through which he was passing probably would be his last.

"I'm ready," he said to his friends and physician, Dr. Grayson, "I'm ready to go."

Mrs. Wilson, who has been his constant companion since his long illness began, remained silent at his bedside as the battle went on. Miss Margaret Wilson of New York, the former president's daughter, joined her late in the day. Other members of the family also have been summoned by telegram.

Wife Saw Danger

The digestive trouble that led to the present grave condition first began Monday. Dr. Grayson was in North Carolina on a hunting trip but Mrs. Wilson sent for him because out of her long experience with the delicate constitution of the former president she saw there must be real danger ahead. Meanwhile, Dr. Sterling Ross, who had helped the case for years in the White House, made an examination and prescribed a course of treatment.

When he reached Washington yesterday Dr. Grayson found the patient up and around the house, although he had cancelled his daily automobile rides about the city. The physician ordered him to bed, but there were further stomach upsets, accompanied by a violent bleeding at the nose.

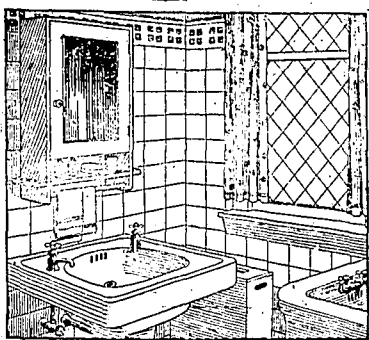

So rapidly had the now complication developed that Dr. Grayson spent last night at the Wilson home and toward morning he found symptoms that told him an alarming situation was likely. Soon afterward Mr. Wilson suffered a sudden collapse, and at 9 o'clock this morning the doctor summoned other medical aid and announced that the former president's condition was very serious.

Ocean Boat Rising

A cable ship of the Eastern Telegraph company, searching for a broken cable between St. Helena and Cape Town, found that the ocean bed has risen two and a quarter miles since 1890. When the original soundings were taken in that year the chart showed a depth of three miles.

Telephone Not Needed. There is not much need of telephones in the arctic regions. Conversations can be carried on easily at a distance of more than a mile. This is due to the stillness and clearness of the atmosphere.

Medicine Chest an Interesting Job for Amateur Carpenters

A commodious medicine chest, with its stock of tools, holds remedies collected in one accessible place for minor emergencies, and its plate glass shelves for the sanitary and inconspicuous accommodation of the family toilet preparations, is essential to every home. Where it is lacking, or where its antique design stands out in jarring contrast with modern bathroom fixtures, the handy man can build one with little effort and less expense.

The medicine chest illustrated above is built of white pine, and is equipped with a plate glass mirror, plate glass shelves and novel accommodations for tooth brushes and face cloths. In building the chest, the hinged mirror door should be constructed first, for as there is easily available a mirror that varies slightly from the dimensions given, it will be simpler to adapt the chest to the mirror than the mirror to the chest.

The frame for the mirror is of seven-eighths-inch white pine stock, planed on the edge until it is seven-eighths-inch square in cross section. The length of the four sections comprising the frame are determined by the mirror's dimensions. Mirrored joints are desirable, but should not be attempted without an accurate miter box and a sharp back saw. In the absence of these tools, the mortised corner shown in figure 1 will prove more satisfactory. The mirror is held back and front with quarter-inch quarter-round moulding as indicated in figure 2. The same moulding may be used later as cleats for supporting the plate glass shelves as in figure 3.

Before making the chest proper, secure the glass rod that is to serve as face cloth rack. Its diameter, preferably about three eighths of an inch, will determine the size of the holes to be bored in the sides for its accommodation. Next make the sides of seven-eighths-inch white pine, and at proper intervals, apply the half cleat as shown in figure 4. Leaving the half-inch space at one end of each for the fitting of the back. The lowest of the plate glass shelves rests directly upon a wood shelf of seven-eighths-inch stock, four by fourteen and three-quarters inches in size. It is on the level of this shelf that the two brackets for tooth brushes are fitted. These brackets are also of seven-eighths-inch stock, one and a quarter by four and one-half inches in size, and pierced with half inch holes for holding the brushes. The back of the chest is built of three-eighths-inch stock and is filled flush with the top and side members. Nickel hinges, a door knob of porcelain and nickel and two screw eyes in the back for wiring the chest to the wall complete the job. When finished it should receive two coats of flat white paint and one coat of high gloss varnish. In the design of this chest the lowest shelf was left accessible with the mirror door closed as a concession to the man of the house. It will hold his razor, brush, shaving cream, face lotion, talcum powder and dentifrice, permitting an uninterrupted use of the mirror until he has completed his toilet and is ready to put all the accessories back in their places on the upper shelves.

SOCIETY

Edited by Mrs. E. B. Williams
Telephone 306

Mrs. Ben Brown was hostess to the T. B. S. club Friday afternoon at her home on Eighth avenue north. Mrs. W. H. Karis was a guest and nine members were in attendance. The usual social time was enjoyed and late in the afternoon delicious refreshments were served.

Three hundred people attended the "get-together" dinner given at the Presbyterian church Thursday evening. Dinner was served at 6:30, the assemblage being seated at long tables in the parlors of the church. As they found their places Miss Margaret Bell, rendered several numbers on the piano. At the close of the dinner Rev. A. G. Pearson gave a few words of welcome.

The following program was then given: Reading, Mrs. Herman Schuriger; "Kentucky Home," chorus; "What You and I Want," Mrs. Margaret Bell; "A. D. Bellamy," "Quitting Party," chorus; quartet, "Come Where the Lilies Bloom," Mesdames Hall and Dygert; Messrs. Bellamy and Hall; "Blue Juniata," Mrs. A. W. Peck; "Dixie," chorus; "Carry Me Back," Mr. Hall and chorus; "Last Rose of Summer," Mrs. Duggan; "Garden of Eden," chorus; "Comin' Thru the Rye," Mrs. Dygert; duet, "Juniata," Mesdames Duggan and Smith; "Love's Old Sweet Song," Mrs. Hall and chorus; "Three Blind Mice," chorus; "Genevieve," Mrs. F. S. Bell; "Jingle Bells," Millard Dawson and chorus; "Good Night Ladies," chorus. The chorus was composed of about 25 voices and the audience joined in the singing of the choruses of these old and over popular melodies. The program closed with a farce, "Sowing Circle," with the following cast: Mesdames C. H. Kregel, M. G. Mitchell, A. E. Slifer, W. S. Hill, W. E. Nixon, Ethel Gray, E. V. Parker, W. Z. Smith and Miss Grace Bryant.

HUSHED CROWDS AT WILSON MANSION

A card was Ambassador Alencar of Brazil, and shortly afterward a small group of Filipinos from the Philippine independence delegation now in Washington.

Enforce Quiet

The room where Mr. Wilson lay is high in the back part of the house, his window looking out toward the south over a brick wall and garden that runs down to the street below. There was no fear that the coming and going at the S street entrance of the house would disturb him, even the noise of the streets could rise but softly to that quiet room, and none softly through the day to bar anyone who wished to stand a moment before the house.

A woman came to see near with the wish in her heart to pray for the sick man. The police officer on watch questioned her gently. She crossed the street and stood silently with head bowed for a few moments, then pushed on down the street.

A very few came to seek admittance. Bernard M. Baruch was among those and he spent most of the day in the house, seeking in some way to be helpful. Joseph R. Tumulty, Mr. Wilson's secretary in the long stirring years of his political life, came and went at the house both day and night. His great personal grief was very apparent.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal bishop of Washington, came during the day to console and pray with Mrs. Wilson. During the afternoon Joseph Wilson, brother of the former president, came from the house, hastening to meet Miss Margaret Wilson here to her father's bedside from New York.

Weeks Leaves Card

Toward evening Secretary Weeks' car stopped at the bottom of the hill and he walked up to leave his card at the door.

The door. A little later Chief Justice Taft walked down the hill with a messenger of sympathy, and later A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney general in Mr. Wilson's last administration, was admitted to the house for a few minutes.

As night fell, a cold wind rustled through the street, chilling the watchers. The group slowly broke up except for a knot of enlisted men from the non-commissioned officers' staff school whose uniforms made a spot of color under the dim street lights. They were staunch admirers of the former president and came to pay what tribute they could to him.

For those who stood long in the street, there was little to watch. Just the coming and going at a house of sickness, yet some of them remained long after dark before they surrendered to the cold and drifted away to leave the night to the newspaper reporters.

PAUL TO HAVE SUNDAY SHOWS

PAUL, Feb. 1.—As a result of the election held here January 25, Paul will have Sunday picture shows. Count of the vote showed 72 for and 54 against. There was but little electorship, but a representative vote was cast, more votes being polled than is usual at the city election.

The Cost of War

France used nearly 6,000,000 tons of munitions in the World war. Three hundred million shells were fired by the infantry and artillery. To manufacture these munitions during the four years of war required 6,000,000 tons of steel, 3,000,000 tons of iron and other metals and 1,000,000 tons of explosives.

An Added Burden

A new burden has been added to the life of house mistresses by the election that servants such as the effects of the rooms in which they are to be working.

GREGORY AND McADOO NAMED IN OIL CASE

root, put as a result of a demand made in the senate yesterday by Senator Reed of Missouri, who also is a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination. Mr. Reed insisted that the committee give Mr. Doherty a searching examination as to whether he had paid any money to men while serving as public officials or afterwards.

Tells of $100,000 Loan

Mr. Doherty declared that he had not advanced any sums to any public official other than the $100,000 which he has testified he loaned Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, on November 30, 1921, nearly a year before the firm obtained the lease for California naval reserve No. 1, which the government now seeks to annul along with that to the Teapot Dome reserve granted to the Sinclair interests by Mr. Fall.

As a result of the testimony of Mr. Doherty that Mr. Gregory was employed by a number of oil companies and that he has been counsel for the inland oil company, President Coolidge has definitely made up his mind not to retain him as counsel in the oil case. The executive talks over the matter tonight with Chairman Lenroot and Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the assistant republican leader in the senate. He will see Mr. Gregory upon his arrival tomorrow from Texas.

Before resuming its inquiry today, the oil committee decided to compel the attendance of Mr. Fall tomorrow morning for questioning. This decision was made after the committee's medical commission had reported in writing that the former secretary is in condition to appear; that while he is in an "anxiety state" there is no evidence of any organic nervous disease and no psychologic symptoms.

After Mr. Fall testifies with reference to the Doherty loan and the loan of $25,000 made to him by Harry F. Sinclair, Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, will broaden the scope of the inquiry in an effort to determine whether any public officials had transactions in the stock of the Mammoth Oil company, which was organized by Mr. Sinclair to take over the Teapot Dome reserve. To that end he has had representatives of a number of Washington brokerage firms subpoenaed.

CROEL MAKES CHARGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (AP)—George Croel, head of the bureau of public information at Washington in President Wilson's administration, whose name was mentioned by E. J. Doherty in the senate oil lease investigation today, issued the following statement:

"In late November, 1920, I was visited by Mr. Leo J. Stack, an old-time Denver friend of mine. He said that he was in the oil business—an independent—and had a plan in connection with the Wyoming naval reserve. As he made it clear, the incoming republican administration, with Senator Fall secretary of the interior, meant to turn over most of the Wyoming and California reserves to private interests.

"Since this was bound to be the case, why not have them go to a company that would give the navy a fair bargain and the best possible royalty to the independent oilman? He offered me $5000 to associate myself with him and I accepted.

"I gave considerable time to the plan and we went to Washington and made repeated calls upon both Secretary Daniels and his adviser, Secretary Daniels' position remained the British government its readiness to appoint a mixed commission to arrange the treaty suggested in the recognition communication.

"One motive pointed to for Mr. MacDonald's prompt action, is his belief that British recognition, especially under the present uncertain conditions arising from the death of Lenin, might have the effect of hastening the time when some form of parliamentary institutions might be developed in Russia. The premier's main object, however, is said to be the development of trade between the two countries as a means of remedying unemployment.

name throughout. He did not doubt that the naval reserves were going to be turned over to private exploitation by the incoming republican administration, but was resolved that neither word nor act of his should lend countenance to any such procedure.

"Some weeks later, while in Washington, I met Mr. Doherty in a hotel lobby and he made haste to inform me that the $50,000 advanced by Stack had been Doherty money. The news was an unpleasant shock, for never at any time had Stack mentioned Doherty's name, and I withdrew at once from all connection with the affair."

Coal Tar. Until about the middle of the Nineteenth century coal tar was regarded as a waste product and thrown away or burned under the retorts, but beginning in 1846 its value was discovered and it was first used in Germany for making roofing felt.

GRAIN OFFERINGS BREAK HIGHEST PRICE RECORDS

Speculative Buying Held Response for Upward Trend; Crop Damage Rumors Cause 'Frenzied' Demand

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (AP)—With striking unanimity, wheat, corn and oats today all overtopped one or more previous high price records for the season. Active speculative buying was largely responsible but was later offset in part as a result of sales to realize profits. Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 5-8 higher. May $1.11 1/2 to 1.11 5/8 and July $1.10 1/2 to 1.10 3/4. Corn made net gains of a shade to 3/8 to 1/2. To cash the outcome varied from 1-8c decline to 3-8c advance and in provisions the close ranged from 7c off to a rise of 17c.

Likelihood of crop damage had much to do with encouraging the purchase of wheat. Alternate intervals of thawing and freezing weather was the principal factor in this respect. It was reported that snow covering had disappeared from the greater part of the winter crop belt, leaving the plan exposed to any severe drop in temperature. Damage complaints were said to be already coming in, based on past experience. According to a generally accepted authority the late sown wheat was in most danger, the early crop being well rooted. A sharp advance in foreign exchange was also a bullish influence, as tending to augment the buying interest in Europe.

Free strength in the corn market developed chiefly from reports of bad condition of country roads and because of prospects that rural stocks of corn in hazard of deteriorating under present adverse weather conditions. Unusual scarcity of oats was reported especially at St. Louis and Minneapolis. Besides, there was much closing out of spreads in oats between here and Winnipeg.

Irregularity in the provision market came about through packers selling hard, whereas commission houses bought ribs.

Question of Radio Regulation Proves Poser for Officer

Police Chief Takes Up Legal Inquiries When Summoned by Unusual Complaint

An owner of a radio receiving set has put a poser to Twin Falls chief of police with a complaint regarding alleged activities of a local broadcasting station.

Provisions of federal regulations governing radio operations were recited to the police chief when he answered a call sent in to police headquarters last evening by the owner of the receiving set, who declares that activities of the local broadcaster were interfering with his enjoyment of the bedtime story transmitted by wireless.

Fights Disease in Cattle to Protect Human Health

Dr. W. A. Sullivan, Inspector in Charge of Federal Bureau of Animal Industry Activities in Idaho, Tells Medical Society of Campaign Against Bovine Tuberculosis

Value of eradication of tuberculosis among cattle as means of safeguarding an important source of food for the human family, was stressed in an address before a recent meeting here of the South Side Medical association by Dr. W. A. Sullivan, Boise, inspector in charge of federal bureau of animal industry activities in Idaho. On this occasion Dr. Sullivan said:

The use of milk and milk products as a food for the human family dates back as far as history gives any record. Milk as a food, is practically indispensable. As time goes on we are learning many new facts about its relation to health and the well-being of the human race. Milk contains the various constituents necessary for the growth of the young, and these constituents are mixed in the proper proportion. It is a matter of common observation that as long as the calf of the dairy animal is healthy and makes milk in large part of its diet it is thrifty and sleek. So it is with children and for this reason children and young people should be encouraged to consume large quantities of this food. There is no food known today that will compare with milk from the standpoint of economy.

Milk and Health.

While many things might be mentioned in support of the value of milk in the diet, it is well to think about the health of the milk. Milk as it is drawn from the udder, is white, the symbol of purity, but we often find germs of deadly diseases contaminating it. In order for milk to be fit for consumption for the infant, as well as for the adult, it must be produced from clean, healthy cows and handled by thoroughly proper methods.

Tuberculosis and several other contagious and infectious diseases which attack cattle are transmissible to the human. Tuberculosis is, perhaps the most common of these diseases that are transmitted to the human through the milk supply. If cows are free from this disease, the people who use their milk are safeguarded against this contamination. The surest and safest way to rid the herd of cows of this disease is to test all cows furnishing milk for a city or family. This is easily and readily done.

Pasteurization properly done, does afford protection to human health, but it should never be used to cover up filthy practices in the production of milk. Many cities have ordinances governing the milk supply, which make it compulsory to either test cattle for tuberculosis or pasteurize milk. This rule has been established as the most feasible method of handling the situation to date. But in the light of the present knowledge all cattle furnishing milk for human consumption should be tested and kept free of tuberculosis.

Means Saving of Lives.

The term "public health" today means more than the control or prevention of epidemics of contagious or infectious diseases. It means the saving of lives and the raising of a productive maturity of many children. It is more and more coming to mean the prolongation of life through educational means and through better diagnostic facilities for physicians.

Now, while the veterinary profession as a whole are not as actively engaged in public health work as such as physicians, the question of transmission of bovine tuberculosis to people naturally enters the federal and state cooperative of tuberculosis eradication in animals.

Scientific investigation has definitely established that bovine tuberculosis is transmissible to the human especially to children. The only difference of opinion seems to be in the various methods of transmission and the amount of human tuberculosis that is a result of infection from animals. It seems that children are most susceptible, and the principal source of infection is through the drinking of raw milk from tuberculous cows. For persons have the opportunity or inclination to make sufficient scientific investigations as will enable them to speak with authority from personal knowledge of the transmissibility of this disease. We accept many facts in every day life, without question, of which we have less present knowledge than of this subject.

Gains Foothold Early.

In our tuberculosis eradication work we have a number of instances found where affected with tuberculosis and members of the owner's family affected with the same disease.

There is no longer any doubt that the relation between diseases in animals and in man is so intimately associated that so important that each of us should know more of the work of the other.

When we are brought in close contact and when we know each other's subject more intimately, human beings and probably the lower animals will profit by it.

There is no doubt that there is a great deal of tuberculosis among human beings which begins early in childhood, and statistics the world over agree that human tuberculosis begins at a very early period of life.

A great discussion ensued when Von Behring stated that all tuberculosis of the human being was an inter-organism infection, that is, tuberculosis occurred from ingestion of food, that was of intestinal origin, and made itself manifest either in infancy or later in life. Of course, this theory has not been maintained, and other theories have been advanced, but the fact remains that there are great many cases of tuberculosis in infancy and certainly some of these are enterogenic infection. We know, for example, that infants may be infected from tuberculosis milk.

It is beyond my providence to go into the morphology of the human and bovine tubercle bacilli. So far as we are concerned, as practical men, we know it is possible for the cow to be tuberculous, and that food products derived from the cow may be tuberculous. We know that tuberculosis is spread from infected animals to humans, being caused by the bacteria, producing tuberculosis in them. We believe that tuberculosis in babies may be ingested on enterogenous variety.

Authority Cited.

There can be no better summary of the evidence as to what form of tuberculosis are due to bovine bacilli than that of Park (Public Health and Hygiene, 1920) in discussing bovine infection of human beings, his conclusions are:

- 1.—That children are especially infected, and usually the point of entry is the elementary tract.
- 2.—That cervical adenitis and abdominal tuberculosis are the most frequent type of infection.
- 3.—That generalized tuberculosis due to bovine tuberculosis is less frequent.
- 4.—That bone and joint tuberculosis is most commonly of the human type.
- 5.—That the Meninges are less commonly infected by the bovine than by the human type.
- 6.—That the infection of adults by bovine bacilli is very infrequent.
- 7.—That pulmonary tuberculosis due to bacilli of bovine type is rare.

Park (Public Health and Hygiene, 1920) states:

Bovine type is pathogenic for almost all mammalian animals. The widespread existence of the disease in cattle from which we derive all milk renders the bovine bacilli an important etiologic factor in connection with tuberculosis in children.

Reports show that children under five years of age have a higher mortality from tuberculosis than exist at any subsequent five-year period. This fact seems to point to the disease being maintained among infants through the agency of infected milk.

Newsholme (Medical Officer, May, 1921) says: If we are to reduce the incidence of tuberculosis and to save children's lives, the prevention of response to infection during the first four or five years, and especially during the first two years, is of supreme importance.

Of Vital Importance.

Now the point that I am supposed to speak of is the importance of your work to us, who are working toward the suppression of bovine tuberculosis. I would have difficulty in finding

ACQUITTED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

C. C. Hollenberger Convicted Jury He Had No Part in Illegal Possession of Whiskey

Clyde C. Hollenberger, one-time Twin Falls restaurant operator, and companion of Mrs. May Brown, former local rooming-house proprietress, on a trip to Jarbridge, where she admittedly obtained and brought back nine gallons of liquor, was found not guilty of violating the prohibition law by a jury in district court here Friday afternoon. The verdict was returned after three hours deliberations. Hollenberger was charged with illegal possession of the liquor for the admitted possession of which Mrs. Brown is serving a term in jail.

Witnesses for the prosecution in this case were members of the sheriff's force, who told of the arrest of Hollenberger and Mrs. Brown on the highway south of Twin Falls. Mrs. Brown was called by Attorney E. V. Larson as a witness for the defense and Hollenberger testified in his own behalf, denying knowledge of the alleged offense.

Mercury Fall Halts at Point of Freezing

Friday was the first day of the winter season during which mercury remained above the frost line throughout the 24-hour period, according to records of the government weather observer's station here, showing maximum temperature for the day at 32 above. The low mark represented an advance of five degrees over the minimum of the preceding day, although the high point for the day at 45 above was a decline of seven degrees, so that average temperature Friday was 37 above as compared with the record average of 38 above set on the two preceding days.

FORMER TWIN FALLS WOMAN MAYOR FOR I. O. O. F. HOME

The cover page of the Oklahoma Oklahoman for January contains a photograph of Mrs. Laura K. Hill, in charge of the Oddfellows home at Carmen, Okla.

Mrs. Hill resided with her husband, Harold Hill, for a number of years in Twin Falls, leaving here in 1915 to accept a position as matron of the boys' department of the Masons home at Darlington, Okla. From Darlington she went to the state orphan's home at Pryor in the same state where she remained for seven years.

Mrs. and Mrs. Hill were well known in Twin Falls. They conducted what was known as the Hill home here for a time and later assumed the management of the Justusman Inn.

For some years past Mrs. Hill has been a resident of California.
