One of the biggest advertisers in the world says: "We advertise, not only to cultivate sales, but to cultivate belief in us. That's the best way to sell, because everyone likes to buy from those they believe in—advertising that MAKES FRIENDS is advertising that's worth paying for."

1896-1924

WE WANT YOU TO BELIEVE IN US

To Cement Old Friendships and to Make New Friends

We'll run through the month of April in addition to our regular advertising of fine values, a series of Aditorials on subjects that we conceive are controlling (either consciously or unconsciously) in the minds of a great majority of folks in determining where to buy their goods.

The Aditorials will endeavor to "get over" our ambition to serve as well as sell. They will modestly recount some of the ideals in which this business has been conducted since it was founded in Boise 28 years ago. We'll also express some hopes for the future in a merchandising sense.

We Know Now That Better Aditorials Can be Written Than Those We'll Write

We want to publish those better ones. For all we know there may be some potential advertising geniuses in our midst and if there are we want to discover them. But one need not be a genius to win.

We'll offer CASH PRIZES in connection with each Aditorial for the best one submitted to us on the same subject applicable to our business, and furnished in compliance with the conditions of our contest.

Everyone Is Eligible

Every man, woman and child is eligible to compete.

Contributions to the contest must not exceed in number of words the ones we publish. Each contribution to the contest must be on some particular subject covered by us. Contestants may contribute on all of the subjects or simply on certain ones. That's optional.

Contributions need not be set up as ads.

Amount of Cash Prizes

In order to compete, your Aditorial must reach us within seven days from the date of our Aditorial, each one of which will carry a date line.

The Boise Store and the Stores at Nampa, Caldwell, Emmett, Weiser, Payette, Mountain Home, Ontario, Buhl, New Plymouth, Parma and Midvale will each pay a $25.00 cash prize for the best Aditorial to them on each subject.

In addition, there will be a capital prize for each topic of $50.00 paid by the Boise

Store. The winner of each capital prize will be selected from the best of the winning Aditorials on each subject at Boise, Nampa, Caldwell, Weiser, Payette, Mountain Home, Ontario, Buhl, New Plymouth, Parma and Midvale. So that the winner of a $25.00 prize at Weiser, for instance, may also become the winner of a $50.00 Capital Prize at Boise with the same Aditorial.

It will be seen that the Golden Rule organization will pay $3.50 in cash prizes for the best Aditorials on each subject. There will be six subjects, so $21.00 will be the total amount paid in cash to the authors of the winning Aditorials when the contest is completed. Isn't it worth your while to contest?

In order that our judging be made absolutely fair, please keep your name off of each Aditorial you submit but enclose with it your name and address in a separate envelope. As your Aditorial is received it will be given a number and that number will be placed on the envelope containing your name and address. We do not want to know the names of the winners until the judging is complete. Winners of each contest will be announced the week following the submission of their Aditorials.

Each store will do its own judging.

SUBJECT NUMBER ONE

Advertising and Selling Methods

There are two vital cogs in the machine of merchandising—perhaps the most important from the public's standpoint.

There's a wide difference in the use of these tools in the hands of different persons. And isn't it this wide?

One artist with the use of some canvas, paints and a brush produces a masterpiece. Another with the use of the same materials paints merely a picture. Now they both used the same tools, but the differences in what they produced with them were as far flung as the two Poles.

Now a word about the principles governing Golden Rule selling:

First and foremost—they strive for 100 per cent truth.

Golden Rule Salespeople are instructed to avoid not misrepresentation alone—but all forms of exaggeration.

They are told to limit their selling arguments to the merits of the goods—that unless the goods had merits they would not be called upon to offer them.

And the basis of the appeal of our printed salesmanship is the same.

Readers of Golden Rule advertising have noted the absence from it of "comparative prices." That's the giving of a selling price and the use in connection of such expressions as "worth regularly $—" or regular "selling price" $—more.

As recently as last month a committee of the Department Store and Advertising Managers' Association in New York City recorded the fact they considered "The use of comparative prices is one of the factors that lead to untruthfulness in advertising."

The Golden Rule recognized the fact many years ago and changed its advertising accordingly.

The Golden Rule avoids advertising "tall talk" but always invites competition—even makes the positive suggestion that you "Shop Before You Buy." It never enters a competition in the use of figures and "tall" claims.

The Golden Rule believes that TRUTH in advertising is what the Public wants—that that's the only kind of advertising the public should be invited to read.

—refuses to test the profitability of any other kind.

SUBJECT NUMBER TWO

The Cash Way

Benjamin Franklin, America's dealer of Thrift, 'way back in 1736 said:

"Yet in buying goods, it is best to pay ready money, because he that sells upon credit expects to lose five per cent by bad debts; therefore, he charges on all he sells upon credit an advance that shall make up that deficiency.

"Those who pay for what they buy on credit, pay their share of this advance. He that pays ready money escapes that charge.

"A penny saved is twopence clear;
A pin a day's a groat a year."

Although those who sell upon credit today may not lose five per cent, as they apparently expected to do in Franklin's time, bad debts still continue an item of expense that cannot be overlooked by those who extend it.

The Golden Rule Sells for CASH only and sells for LESS Buying for cash is a safety valve against extravagance—Extravagance that has all through history caused the ruin of nations as well as individuals.

Thrift—that virtue of spending less than one earns—and CASH buying—with the virtue that one buys only for which he has the cash—are twin virtues in founding personal fortunes and promoting human happiness.

Is there any argument about that?

And in selling for CASH only, the Golden Rule does not have to reckon in its selling prices such costly factors as interest on outstanding accounts, expensive charge account systems and uncollectible debts—for many persons entirely solvent today are insolvent tomorrow—many here today are gone tomorrow.

Viewing CASH BUYING entirely from your own standpoint, isn't it a fact that a charge account invites more ready buying, and by the same token CASH BUYING is a brake that limits your expenditures to your reasonable requirements?

That's why the Golden Rule has always claimed that the CASH way is the right way.

FARMERS SAVE ON MACHINERY

Researchers Tell of Rapid Advances in Methods of Agriculture in Last 100 Years

CHICAGO, April 4 (AP)—American farmers saved 1,382,530,254 days in producing their eight leading crops last year by machine methods, compared with the methods of farming in vogue less than 100 years ago, according to a report compiled by the research department of National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers.

"Using the U. S. Department of Agriculture acreage figures for 1923, and taking the Department of Labor's estimates on machine labor and its replacement of human labor, gives these savings in time," says the report. "Using the rate of $3 a day for hired help in the wheat, oats, barley, corn, hay, white potato and rye crops, and $2 for labor on the cotton crop, gives $3,514,205,312 as the cash savings made in labor replacement in the present production of these crops."

"Since the shift from farm to city since 1830 has resulted in building up our great cities, factories, banks and transportation systems, the place of modern equipment, in building modern agriculture and a great nation wherein only 60 percent of the population produces the food for the other 20 percent, is apparent. Agriculture is still the foundation of the nation, and labor-saving farm equipment is the crane that lifted the foundation stones into place and maintains a solid foundation."

"The farm investment in implements and machinery is only $3,594,772,928, according to the last figures available, or less than the saving in labor on the eight leading crops last year. The saving on the four grain crops—wheat, oats, barley and corn—is nearly 10 times the total value of the 1923 production of farm equipment, according to the Chicago Federal Reserve bank's figures, which show $267,000,000 as the value of this production. The plow, tillage implements, grain drills and harvesting machines have been the biggest items of speeding up the operation."

"Going back to George Washington's day, since General Washington was one of the first inventors and manufacturers of farm machinery in his efforts to increase wheat production on his Virginia estate, it is found that it took 61 hours, 5 minutes to produce an acre of wheat that now requires but 3 hours, 19 minutes and 12 seconds."

TO ENTERTAIN AMERICANS. LONDON, April 4 (AP)—The city of London Corporation has unanimously resolved to give a state banquet to the Guildhall to the American and Canadian lawyers who are to visit London during the summer.

The company, it is stated, will number 850, and the entertainment will be on the same lines as the famous Lord Mayor's banquet which is held yearly on November 9.

BABSON NOT ENTHUSED OVER TARIFF CHANGES

Recites Varying Conditions Now Prevailing in Western Canada and Criticizes Wheat Levy as Being Unfavorable

BABSON PARK, Fla., April 4.—Roger W. Babson today made public the final section of his survey of current business conditions in the United States and Canada. The statistician is hopeful for western Canada and is not at all sure that the United States wheat growers will win under the new tariff schedule.

"Western Canada," says Mr. Babson, "is the most important factor in the post-war slump. For the first time in four years business is now looking up in this great empire. A brief summary of the present situation as indicated by current statistics is helpful in understanding this situation."

"Business in British Columbia is better today than at this time for some years previous. Agricultural conditions are good; the fruit crop was fair; mining is more active; and fishing is satisfactory. There are a number of public buildings under construction. The construction of the wharves and warehousing facilities at Vancouver represents the largest single building program in the province. The program is extensive and predicts a more active situation for the coming year."

"The only fly in the ointment is the attitude of labor. The longshoremen's strike has hurt shipping in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster. The printers and compositors have caused considerable trouble; while in most trades there is an undercurrent of labor unrest which is not favorable to local prosperity."

"The chief product of Alberta is wheat and the 1923 crop was very satisfactory. Those who are engaged in mixing farming and dairying have also done well. Building is fairly active; real mining is making better records; and new industries are continually starting up. These improved conditions have resulted in a quickening of retail trade, a strengthening of the banking situation, and a better feeling throughout the province."

"Although Saskatchewan is not recovering so rapidly as British Columbia and Alberta, it is coming along very well. The wheat crop of this province was proportionately as good as further west; flour mills and oil refineries working near capacity and building is active; and a better feeling is shown throughout the province."

Manitoba Has Poor Crop. "The crops in southern Manitoba were very unsatisfactory this year. The unseasonableness of the summer ruined many of the crops. The final report, however, is more encouraging and a 20 to 40 per cent crop has been harvested in many places where a total loss was reported in early bulletins. General business conditions are 5 to 10 per cent below the last year's average. The province is becoming more and more a tourist mecca and the 1923 travel was much greater than ever before."

and helped the retail trade substantially. The increasing popularity of the fur-farming industry is startling. The fur farms in this province increased 216 per cent in the year 1923. However, even here the outlook is relatively poor.

Discusses Tariff. Discussing the effect of President Coolidge's recent increase in the tariff on wheat as it will bear on the fortunes of western Canada, the statistician continued:

"Of course such a move on our part is unfortunate in developing ill-will between the people on opposite sides of the border; but whether the effect will ultimately be more beneficial to the United States or Canada is still a question."

"Acting under the flexible provision of the tariff act on the basis of the tariff commission's inquiry, the president of the United States ordered an increase of 26 cents a hundred pounds in the duty on wheat flour, and a decrease of 50 per cent in the ad valorem rate on mill feeds."

Rates Increased. "The new rates on wheat will be 42 cents per bushel as compared with the present rate of 20 cents; the new rate on flour will be $1.01 per hundred pounds as compared with 78 cents; and the rate on mill feeds will be 7 1/2 per cent ad valorem as against 15 per cent."

"The increases will become effective in time to be applied to the flood of Canadian wheat which descends on the United States about the middle of April each year, with the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes."

"The advance in rates was sought to aid particularly the hard wheat growers of the northwest, but the resultant increase in the price of spring wheat is expected to be reflected in the market quotations on winter wheat raised in the middle western and other states."

Price Set in Liverpool. "The tariff commission claims it costs 42 cents more to raise a bushel of wheat and $1.01 more to produce 100 pounds of flour in the United States than in Canada. The farmers expect this new tariff will rectify the situation, entirely forgetting that the price of wheat is made in Liverpool. Just what will happen no one can tell."

"Western Canada is destined to become the great wheat field of the western hemisphere. Nothing can stop such development. A tariff on wheat may result in a source of income for the United States government, but it will not increase the wheat crop of the states more than a tariff on sugar would increase the sugar crop. Furthermore such a tariff does two things: (1) The tariff forces the Canadian farmer to fight just so much more keenly for foreign markets. What they are prevented from selling in the states they will sell abroad which will hurt correspondingly the foreign markets of United States farmers. (2) The tariff compels the farmers of western Canada to become more efficient; adopt the very latest labor saving methods and still further reduce prices.

"Frankly, I am very sorry to see our agricultural interests face such a tariff policy against a peaceful neighbor. The Babson outlook of business in Canada today shows activity at 5 per cent below normal, while business in the United States is at 3 per cent above normal."

MORE CHARGES CROWDED INTO JUSTICE QUIZ

Witnesses Tell of Drug Selling and Paroles at Federal Prisons, Munitions Scandals and Official Slackness

WASHINGTON, April 4. (AP)—A wide array of new charges was thrown into the already crowded records of the senator Daugherty investigation committee today.

Witnesses spoke of drug selling and paroles at federal penitentiaries, referred to bootlegging investigations in New York, crossed the continent to tell of munitions being furnished to revolutionists in Lower California, and came back to relate alleged instances of liquor supplies being brought to "the little green house on K street" in Washington, mentioned many times as a rendezvous of high government officials.

The committee, already deeply occupied with extensive season inquiries into war contract questions, declined to recess until Monday.

Split Up Inquiry
The investigation is directed as rather than directing it. Chairman Daugherty, however, the committee decided to send two of its members, Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, its prosecutor, and Senator Moore, republican, New Hampshire, to Washington, Courthouse, Ohio, with power to hold either open or executive investigations into the affairs of the Midland National bank, operated by M. K. Daugherty, brother of the former attorney-general.

Two letters were received by the committee today, one from Secretary Weeks transmitting war department records of investigations into the contracts for the air service, which it examined behind closed doors, and one from Acting Attorney-General Beck asking delay in complying with requests for files of the bureau of investigation bearing upon records of drug investigations at the Atlanta federal penitentiary and saying that President Coolidge is likely to object to the opinion of his new attorney-general on the question.

Witnesses today included J. E. Dyche, once warden of the Atlanta prison; W. J. Burns, director of the department of investigation of the department of justice, and Daniel Smith, a former negro butler at "the little green house on K street."

Drugs Supply
Dyche declared that he instituted an investigation into extensive supplies of narcotic drugs to convicts, obtained the aid of "under cover men" in the department of justice, and had four prison guards indicted. Heber H. Votaw, federal superintendent of prisons, ordered the investigation suspended, Dyche said, adding that he received a hint to resign and did so, subsequently accepting an appointment in the prohibition service.

Investigation of the drug supply to the Atlanta penitentiary, Dyche said, has been disclosed by sources through "men higher up" and W. J. Burns, chief of the bureau of investigation, agreed, with the statement when called a moment later.

Daugherty Know
Senator Wheeler led Burns through an examination which switched around dazlingly. Former Attorney-General Daugherty, Burns said, "knew the situation at Atlanta," but Burns did not take the drug smuggling matter himself to Votaw. Two of the indicted guards were found not guilty on trial, and cases against the other two were dismissed. The supply of drugs, the witnesses said, was still going on at the Atlanta and Leavenworth prisons.

Burns denied that he knew "all men" had sought to conceal revolutions in Mexico, but said that leaders of the Cantu rebellion in Lower California, which "blew up," did have been once seized by the government agencies, but was turned back by order of Mr. Daugherty. His agents had begun investigating a bootlegging ring, involving "very prominent" persons in New York, Burns stated, naming Guston B. Means, now an assistant to the committee, as one of the secret service force. He told that this connection in order from Mr. Daugherty to the investigation force to "quit buttoning into treasury department matters" and a later compromise between the prohibition enforcement unit of the treasury department and his own agency.

Daniel D. Smith, formerly a negro servant to Howard Mannington, Ohio, who testified that on two occasions in 1921 "about 20 cases of liquor" had been delivered there by a Wells-Fargo express wagon with revenue man aboard. He had identified the revenue man, he explained, by his possession of "a badge and a gun" and named Mr. Daugherty, Jess Smith, Will Orr and Harry E. Sinclair as among the visitors to the house.

Lectures to Women

MADAME IDA CHIEROFF, whose engagements at the Idaho Theatre Friday and today are attracting great attention among Twin Falls women.

LOCAL DEBATE TEAMS WINNERS

Obtain Two to One Decision
Over Idaho Falls and Unanimous Award Over Pocatello

Twin Falls high school debate teams upheld the school's remarkable record Friday evening, when they defeated Idaho Falls and Pocatello in the annual triangular debate on the question, "Resolved that the United States should join the world court."

Twin Falls' negative team, composed of Miles Walters, Willis Moffatt, and Alton Blackburn, faced stiff resistance in the Idaho Falls affirmative speakers at Idaho Falls, but finally their arguments prevailed and judges that the United States should not join the world court and obtained a 2 to 1 decision there.

The Twin Falls negative men, Pocatello affirmative in the gate city and met with stiff resistance, there the Pocatello speakers claimed a victory, defeating the Idaho Falls debaters 2 to 1.

In the local auditorium the blue and white affirmative debaters obtained all three judges' votes.

The Twin Falls debaters were both of their arguments and chalked up another victory to their nearly perfect record extending over a period of 13 years in interscholastic debating.

Arguments Marshallled.
Kenneth Hendahl, first speaker of the affirmative, Twin Falls, opened the debate in the local auditorium with arguments that the world court is essential to the welfare of the nations of the world and that the present treaties and methods of arbitration are ineffective.

Karl Stoll opened the Pocatello battery, contending that the foreign policy of the United States had been entirely adequate for the United States in the past and should keep the United States from entangling themselves which would be brought on by the world court. Stoll's delivery and enunciation were particularly in his favor.

Lord Perry, the sophomore debater for the blue and white, argued that the world court was sound, competent and workable, citing authority to support his claims.

Miss Helen O'Connor took up negative argument against the court, declaring that it was based upon conditions that did not exist, that it had no executive power or head, and finally that the United States would be able to render to nations of Europe more aid if she were out of the court than if she were a member.

Walter Butcher delivered the final attack of the affirmative in an argument that was clear and forceful, taking in its scope the benefits to be derived by joining the world court, which he asserted would result in gains in prestige and advantages in economic fields.

For Pocatello Clarence "Dash" Campbell delivered the constructive arguments with a plan for the settlement of international disputes by education and by the present methods which have proved

HEALTH CALLED BASIS OF FEMININE BEAUTY

Twin Falls Women Flock to Hear Mme. Chieroff Disclose Secrets for Maintaining and Developing Charm

Health and correct living are prerequisites to beauty, Mme. Ida Chieroff, widely known writer and lecturer, told an audience of women who crowded the Idaho theatre Friday afternoon when she began the first of two lectures here in which she promised to tell her beauty secrets.

"Correct" care of the skin and proper living will keep any woman young," Mme. Chieroff said. In detail she discussed care of the complexion and expression of individuality and the philosophy of health.

In her lecture today Mme. Chieroff will tell how to reduce weight, giving 12 reducing methods, and care of the hair and nails.

Mme. Chieroff's lecture engagement here is under auspices of the Schenck Johnson Drug company.

Rebuttal Clears Issues.
The rebuttal opened with Miss O'Connor taking the floor for the negative with a well directed refutation of the affirmative arguments. The affirmative first speaker concluded his arguments with a clever "catch" by leaving two previously arranged questions which the final speaker, Karl Stoll, answered with clear cut decisions.

Throughout the rebuttal the Twin Falls speakers gained ground on the arguments which seemed to gather around the foreign policy of the United States as set forth in the Monroe doctrine and the value of public opinion at an executive force to back the court's decisions.

The judges who awarded the decision were Judge W. A. Babcock, Probate Judge O. E. Inval and Prosecuting Attorney J. W. Taylor.

RESERVOR SUIT AGAIN TO GO TO HIGHER COURT

Idaho Farm Development Company Indicates Purpose to Appeal Copdemnation Action

Suit of the Idaho Farm Development company against Chester Harkett, administrator of the estate of Ira Brackett, and others, to condemn certain ranch lands in the vicinity of Boise, will be carried again to the state supreme court following a second trial and award in district court here, attorneys for the company stated Friday when the court had under consideration the motion of the defendant landowners for an order to the company to pay the amount of the court's alternative award which they had accepted.

Payment of the award is to be made when the action is finally determined. Opposing counsel in the litigation saved the way for the appeal to the higher court and it was stated that the defendant landowners are satisfied for the present with the interest payment of $1400 deposited by the company when the suit was instituted about four years ago.

Legal questions involved in the proceedings toward appeal of the case are to be decided by Judge W. A. Babcock in the immediate future, it was understood by the public press.

The plaintiff company in this case is represented by Edwin Shaw of Boise and Arthur W. Ostrom of Butte, the defendant being represented by Walters and Parys of Boise and S. T. Hamilton, all of Twin Falls.

BUSINESS AND POLITICS

The business situation just now is a curious one. A prominent business authority, Theodore B. Price, remarks on the strange contrast between "fact and feeling." Nearly all the things by which trade is usually judged seem favorable: bank clearings, railroad earnings, car loadings, retail sales, postal receipts, telegraph, tolls, etc., all show a greater volume than they did a year ago. There is almost full employment of men and plants, at good wages and profits, and consumption keeps pace with production. Yet the stock market has been weakening and there is considerable doubt in the minds of business men as to the prospects for the year.

What is the trouble? The doubtful state of mind seems due more to political than business conditions. People are becoming worried about the possible effect of recent inquiries and revelations on national prosperity.
Some question the honesty of our public life in general and feel that government in America is breaking down.
Others are less moved by evidences of corruption than by evidences of destructive partisan spirit and fear of what the practical effects may be in this year's campaign.

To the citizen more concerned with the welfare of his country than with the immediate fortunes of any political party, there is nothing really alarming in the situation at Washington, and there is a plain course to follow.
Such a citizen is bound to feel that nothing permanent is to be gained either by painting things blacker than they are or by covering up dishonesty and incompetence where they exist.

WAR-TIME CONSCRIPTION

Organized labor may be unduly alarmed at proposals for the "conscription of labor" in case of future war emergency. Nevertheless the report of the legislative committee of the Federation of Labor is not unreasonable when it objects to any arbitrary control over labor not also exercised over capital.

"It is yet to be determined," says the report, "how labor could be ensconced and private industry and agriculture be conducted as now."

Manifestly it could not be, in a free country with a fair government.
If wages are to be limited like army wages, in order to equalize the burden in case of war, then salaries, prices and profits must all be limited, likewise. Such regulation would be enormously complicated and difficult, but a way should be found to accomplish it as a part of preparations for future war, as long as such preparations seem necessary. If there is one thing about war we disagree from than another, it is such profiteering as occurred in nearly all the belligerent countries during the last war and immediately afterward. If there must be war, money must fight and suffer as well as men.

THE WAY TO RECOVER

Theodore H. Price, editor of Commerce and Finance, looking into business conditions in the Northwest, has found them not so bad as he expected, because of the spirit in which the people of that hard-hit region are facing the situation. He has also found that in diplomacy would be called a "formula." It is credited to a Minnesota merchant, who says his neighbors are learning that "early to bed and early to rise—work like hell and economize" is the best way to recover from their business depression.

It is the best way for any section or community that finds itself temporarily in trouble. It is the best way for this country or any other

CHAPTER VI
The Tramp's Bath.

JACK and Janet were on their way to the creek to go fishing. They came upon Hoppy Hop Rabbit washing his face.

"Hello, Hoppy Hop Rabbit," said Jack. "Why are you washing your face. It looks nice and clean to me."
"M-m-m! It is nice and clean," said Hoppy Hop Rabbit, scrubbing his check with his paw. "But I just saw some very dirty tramp, that the sight of him made me feel dirty and so I am washing myself again, at least I had a bath at breakfast time."

"Where was the dirty tramp?" asked Janet, who did not like tramp.
"He is fishing in the creek," said Hoppy Hop Rabbit. "I would not go near him if I were you."

But both Janet and Jack were curious to see the tramp. The tramp was at the bank of the creek until they came to a place where they could see the tramp. The tramp was on the opposite side of the creek. He was sitting on a steep bank with his back to a tree. He was dozing. His pole was tied to his wrist, while his feet, held up by a bubble, had drifted down stream.

Hoppy Hop Rabbit was right when he said the tramp was dirty. He looked as though he had not taken a bath in a long time. "Why doesn't he wash himself?" whispered Janet to Jack. "With all the water in the creek in which he bathes, he is piggy-back to stay as dirty as that."

The birds flying about agreed with Janet. "He is a piggy-back," they said. "We do not want piggy-back in our nice, clean, springtime woods," Jack, watching the tramp, began to mutter.

"What are you snickering about?" asked Janet. "I am snickering to think how naughty that tramp is going to be when I give him a bath," said Jack's surprised answer.

"You give him a bath?" questioned Janet. "How can you give him a bath?" "You would not dare to go near him," said Jack.

"I don't have to go near him to give him a bath," said Jack. "Keep quiet and watch me."

PEDICULOSIS.

"Lice" is the short and ugly word for pediculosis, and its very name gives an uneasy feeling, but in these days when the relationship of personal cleanliness to prevention of disease is so universally recognized and so extensively taught in our schools and colleges this affliction is not so common as it used to be. Yet even now, in spite of our increased knowledge and school inspections, well cared for children sometimes become infested.

When the itching of the head is noticed, no time should be lost in making a thorough investigation.
To immediately eliminate the lice and eggs, wash the head with equal parts of kerosene and vinegar—the vinegar separates the eggs from the hair and the kerosene kills them. Then wash the head with a mixture of equal parts

A Thought for the Day.
There is something radically wrong with the man or his home if he has to go away from home to have a good time.

He was dozing!

Jack crept through the bushes until he came opposite to where the bubble on the tramp's fish line was floating on the creek. Jack took his own fish pole, and threw his hook over the tramp's line. Jack gently drew the line to him. When he caught hold of the end, he crawled among the bushes and gave the line a hard jerk.

The jerk awakened the tramp. He brushed around in the water. He tried to lift the pole. A second jerk came harder than the first. The tramp rose unsteadily to his feet. He thought he had caught a great big fish. Jack now pulled with all his might. The tramp was jerked off his balance. He toppled on the edge of the bank. Jack perked again. The tramp came tumbling down the bank, clumsily, slumpingly, headfirst into the stream. He went under.

The astonished tramp rose to the surface, gasping and spluttering. He brushed around in the water. He tried to get his fishing pole, but it was tied to him. And the other end of Jack had hooked on a tree. There the tramp was caught in the stream. He couldn't get out. He had taken a bath in spite of himself. He thrashed and thrashed, but his thrashing only helped to pull him down. He got cleaner and cleaner, and was a much whiter looking tramp when he finally broke the line and dragged himself and his pole out on the bank.

What happened then Jack and Janet did not wait to see. They ran, laughing, home.

"I did give him a bath, didn't I?" said Jack.

"I'll bet it was the best bath he has had since he was a baby," chuckled Janet.

In the Days of Poor Richard

By
IRVING BACHELLER

He read the dispatches and then the doctor and the young man set out in a coach for the palace of Vergennes, the prime minister. Colonel Irons was filled with astonishment at the tokens of veneration for the white-haired man which he witnessed in the streets of Paris.

"The person of the king could not have attracted more respectful attention," he writes. "A crowd gathered about the coach when we were leaving it and every man stood with uncovered head as we passed on our way to the palace door. In the crowd there was much whispered praise of 'Le grand seigneur.' I did not understand until I met, in the office of the Compte de Vergennes, the eloquent Senator Gabriel Honore Riquetti de Mirabeau. What an impressive name!
Yet I think he deserves it. He has the eye of Mars and the hair of Samson and the courage of an angel. I am told, in our talk, I assured him that in Philadelphia Franklin came and went and was less observed than the town clerk."

"But your people seem to adore him," I said.

"As if we were a god," Mirabeau answered. "Yes, it is true and it is right.
Has he got, like Jove, hurled the lightning of Heaven in his right hand?
Is he not an unpunished Prometheus?
Is he not breaking the scepter of a tyrant?"

"Going back to his home where in the kindness of his heart he had asked me to live, I am endeavored, modestly, to explain the evidences of such regard which were being showered upon him."

"It happens that my understanding and small control of a mysterious and violent force of nature has appealed to the imaginations of these people," he said. "I have the only man who has defied thunderbolts for his playthings.
Then, too, I am speaking for a new world to an old one. Just at present I am the voice of Human Liberty. I represent the hunger of the spirit of man. It is very strong here. You have not traveled so far in France without seeing thousands of beggars. They are everywhere. But you do not know that when a child comes in a poor family, the father and mother go to prison until he dies. It is a pity that the poor cannot keep their children at home. This old kingdom is a sawing machine, grinding hotter year by year with discontent. You will presently hear its voices."

There was a dinner that evening at Franklin's house, at which the Marquis de Mirabeau, M. Turgot, the Marquis de Brillon, the Abbe Raynal and the Compte and Comtesse d'Hanletot, Colonel Irons and three other American gentlemen were present. The Madame de Brillon was first to arrive. She entered with a careless, jaunty air and ran to meet Franklin and caught his hand and gave him a double kiss on each cheek and one on his forehead and called him "papa."

"At table she sat between me and Doctor Franklin," Jack writes. "She frequently looked her hand in the doctor's and smiled sweetly as she looked at his eyes. I wonder why the poor, simple, hardworking Deborah Franklin would have thought of these infidelities. Yet here, I am told, no one thinks ill of that kind of thing.
The best women of France seem to treat their favorites with like tokens of regard. Now and then she spread her hand across the backs of her chairs, as if she would have us feel that her affection was wide enough for both."

"She assured me that all the women of France were in love with le grand savant."

"Franklin, hearing the compliment, remarked: 'It is because they pity my age and infirmities. First we pity, then embrace, as the great Mr. Pope has written.'"

"We think it a compliment that the greatest intellect in the world is willing to stoop to be, in a way, captured by the charms of women," Madame Brillon declared.

"As the dinner proceeded the Abbe Raynal asked the doctor if it was true that there were signs of degeneracy in the average male American."

"Let the facts before us be my answer," said Franklin. "There are in this table four Frenchmen and four Americans. Let these gentlemen stand up."

"My dear Abbe, I am aware that unusual is a matter of feet and not inches. I only assure you that these are average Americans and that they are pretty well filled with brain and spirit."

"The Abbe spoke of a certain printed story on which he had based his judgment."

"Franklin laughed and answered:
'I know that is a fable, because I wrote it myself one day, long ago, when we were short of news.'"

The Frenchmen were underwhelmed, the Abbe himself being a mere shrill of a man. The Americans, General Harris, Humphreys and myself, were big men, the shortest being six feet tall. The contrast raised a laugh among the ladies. Then said Franklin in his kindest tones:

"My dear Abbe, I am aware that unusual is a matter of feet and not inches. I only assure you that these are average Americans and that they are pretty well filled with brain and
spirit."

"The Abbe spoke of a certain printed story on which he had based his
judgment."

"Franklin laughed and answered:
'I know that is a fable, because I
wrote it myself one day, long ago,
when we were short of news.'"

The guests having departed, Franklin asked the young man to sit down for a talk by the fireside. The doctor spoke of the state of France, saying:

"You will not understand them or us unless you realize yourself that we are in Europe and that it is the Eighteenth century. Here the clocks are laughing. Time moves slowly. With the poor it stands still. They know not the things we call progress."

"Those who have money seem to be very busy having fun," I said.

"There is no morning to their day," he went on. "Their dawn is noontide.
Our kind of people have had longer days and have used them wisely. So we have pushed on ahead of the European nations. Our fathers in New England made a great discovery."

"What was it?" I asked.

"That righteousness was not a joke; that Christianity was not a solemn prayer for one day in the week, but a real, practical, working proposition for every day in the year; that the pious support of the structure is industry; that its most vital commandment is this, 'six days shalt thou labor'; that no amount of wealth can excuse a man from this duty. Everyone worked.
There was no idleness, and therefore little poverty. The days were all for labor and the nights for rest. The wheels of progress were greased and moving."

Breakfast Food
"Matrimonially Speaking"

By Hugh McKay.

My wife, spends all day Sunday washing her hair.

Not every Sunday, of course, but often enough to upset everything around our house.

It seems to me that every time I decide that it would be a fine afternoon to take a good long walk, or to go to see the Stevensons, or something like that, I find that she's started washing her hair, and can't possibly think of going anywhere for an hour or two.

And then there's the matter of having the house look like a hair dressing establishment, the only day that I'm free to sit around and enjoy it.

After she's washed her hair, my wife joins me in the living room with her hair down over her shoulders, looking like an advertisement for "Somebody's Shampoo."

She brings two or three kinds of tonic, a towel, a brush and a curling iron with her, and goes to work on herself.

For a really domestic afternoon, I don't think any one could beat my wife's. I have course in hairdressing —every third Sunday at three."

Tomorrow: "My husband gets convenient headaches."

NARCOTICS AND CASH TAKEN BY STORE BURGLAR

Red Cross Pharmacy, Kimberly, Loses Stock of Knock-Out Drops, $38 in Silver and Constable's Gun

A quantity of narcotics, $38 in silver and the Kimberly constable's revolver and holster were taken from the Red Cross Pharmacy, Kimberly, by a burglar, who entered the establishment on Thursday night, according to report made Friday to the authorities by C. J. Lemm, proprietor. No clue to the burglar has been discovered, it was stated Friday evening at the sheriff's office. The missing narcotics, comprising the store's entire supply of laudanum and various morphine preparations, were contained in a metal box at the rear of the store, and were not displayed on shelves. Money that was taken was not removed from the cash drawer, but was carried away in a tin can in which it had been concealed behind bottles on a shelf. It was the proprietors' custom, according to local authorities, to conceal money in this manner, choosing a different place on the shelves for the receipts each evening. The missing money included a Philippine half-dollar. The missing weapons was a .32 calibre coin automatic revolver. Investigation looking toward apprehension of the burglar was made Friday by Constable William Conklin and deputy sheriffs.

SALMON'S WATER RIGHTS DEBATED

Variance in Views as to Adequacy of Water Supply Develops at Referee's Hearing

Testimony tending to affect statements of Salmon River project landowners that irrigation water deliveries on the project during the past 10 years have fallen far short of the amount provided by contract and have been inadequate for successful general farming, was introduced Friday in closing sessions of a two-day hearing here before C. W. McNeil, referee in the United States District Judge F. S. Dietrich, in a group of 11 suits brought by the Salmon River Land and Water company landholders against the project. Testimony advanced at the hearing here will be taken into consideration by Judge Dietrich in deciding the cases which now are pending in his court.

The defendant landowners during the first day of the hearing introduced testimony to sustain their claim of inadequacy of the water supply in which they base their defense in the foreclosure suits.

Gives Instances of Success.

Reference was made in testimony Friday by Nelson Hayward, director of the Salmon River Canal company, to individual instances of successful farming on the Salmon River project. Mr. Hayward testified that the water supply furnished to him was adequate for his crops, but stated on cross-examination that he could have used more water to advantage.

C. W. Whiffin, Caldwell, author of the celebrated Whiffin cut, by which the Salmon River project area was reduced from 50,000 to 35,000 acres, also was called Friday as a witness for the bondholders to testify as to the duty of water.

Further statistics as to payment of water contracts and the project's water supply and delivery were given by G. M. Hall, president of the Salmon River Canal company and representative of the landholders' protective committee, and by George F. Graver, secretary of the Salmon River Canal company. Both canal company officials previously had testified as witnesses for the defendant landowners.

Engineer Makes Estimates.

E. V. Berg, Twin Falls, engineer, a witness for the landowners, introduced into the record estimates indicating that the project's average annual water supply is approximately 42 per cent of the contract provision for delivery of 1,100 second foot continuous flow between April 1 and November 1, amounting to 4.17 acre feet per acre per year. If the excess of seasons of extraordinarily large runoff is eliminated from the estimate, Mr. Berg said, the average supply is only 34 per cent of the contract requirement. The engineer stated that the latter method of computing water supply is considered equitable to provide for full water delivery seven years out of eleven.

Defendant landowners who are members of the Salmon River Settlers' Protective association are represented in these suits by Homer C. Mills, and three others are represented by O. C. Hall. McKen F. Morrow of the firm of Richards and Hagg, Boise, appeared in the hearing as counsel for the plaintiff bondholders.

Discovers Pests Here in Numbers

State Horticultural Inspector Advises Spraying to Prevent Extensive Damage to Trees

A survey of the orchards in the vicinity of Twin Falls shows a condition far more serious than is generally supposed, it was announced here Friday by H. T. Blake, state horticultural inspector. Nearly every orchard shows some San Jose scale and in many there are trees fairly infested with this serious orchard pest. Only a few years ago this pest was not known to exist on the Twin Falls tract, but now it really is with us, and seriously so, in a strip from one to three miles wide bordering the Snake river canyon. Many fruit trees within the city limits are in very bad shape and will have to be either sprayed or destroyed.

The leaf roller, a new pest in this locality, is an even more serious orchard enemy than scale, as it multiplies very quickly, soon causing the fruit of whole orchards to be unmarketable and finally killing the trees if no control measures are used.

Another serious pest, the red spider, has been found very abundantly present in the egg stage. These spiders are hardly visible to the eye, but will cause serious damage to the foliage unless controlled by heavy rains or spraying.

Fortunately, Mr. Blake stated, an oil spray, if properly applied before the spiders swell, will control all of these pests. As the buds will, in all probability, start swelling within the next two weeks, it is very important that this spray be applied, weather conditions permitting.

Initiating Candidates.—The I. F. T. society Friday evening opened a four day initiation of new candidates. The ceremony will be continued until Monday evening. The young men who are being taken into the society at this time are Edgar Russell, Robert Simpson, Forrest Varney and Ed Daly.

Conference of South Idaho Growers and Shippers Takes Wider Significance

With the arrival here Friday of Elmer Kautson of Washington, head of the bureau of agricultural adjustment, to attend and take part in sessions here today of a conference of potato growers and shippers, significance of the conference assumed an even broader scope than had been anticipated.

Representative growers and shippers throughout southern Idaho from Welter to Idaho Falls are expected to attend the conference, which has been convened under auspices of the potato committee of the American Railway association's western regional board, with a view to facilitating marketing of the coming season's crop through concerted action relative to number and type required and diversion of rolling stock to avoid conflict with requirements of other producers during the shipping season.

Views formulated at this conference will be submitted to a general meeting of the several growers' and shippers' associations in Omaha later this month. Speakers to address the conference in addition to Mr. Kautson, who had arrived here Friday morning included C. T. Gignoux, Union Pacific assistant supervisor of agriculture, and M. L. Dean, director of the Idaho bureau of plant industry.

Completion of arrangements by the chamber of commerce forum committee for a banquet to be served this evening at the Rogerson hotel for convention visitors, was announced Friday evening.
