

WORLD FLIERS
SAFE, EXPECT TO BE DELAYED

Commander of American Globe-Circling Squadron Is Rescued; Precautions to Be Taken Against Future Mishaps

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, April 16 (AP)—Continuation of the flight around the world by the United States army plane will be delayed at least a week in order that a new engine may be installed in the cruiser Seattle, which was forced down yesterday near Cape Igarka, according to a wireless message received here from Major Frederick L. Martin, pilot of the plane.

Major Martin, commander of the army flying squadron, sent his message from the destroyer Hull which is taking him and his plane to Kanahtak, at the head of Portage bay.

CHIGNIK, Alaska, April 16 (AP)—With all four of the U. S. army planes flying around the world safe tonight continuation of the flight awaited rehabilitation of the cruiser Seattle, which was compelled to descend yesterday 120 miles northeast of here because of a hole in the crankcase.

Major Frederick L. Martin, pilot of the Seattle, and commander of the plane-circling squadron, was rescued at 9 o'clock this morning by the United States destroyer Hull, in Portage bay. The commander, his mechanic, Sergeant Alva Harey, and the flag plane are being taken to Kanahtak, on the Alaska peninsula, 170 miles east of here, where the plane is to be repaired and made ready to continue the flight.

The next leg of the flight will be from here to Elko, Nev., 220 miles southwest. It had been planned to fly to Anchorage, Dutch Harbor, 400 miles from here, but it was decided later to break the trip into two stages. The fliers have accepted the invitation of J. B. Nichols, superintendent of the U. S. E. Harris and company canneries there, to take a brief respite at the company's plant.

With orders from the war department at the route to them to keep in sight of each other in the future and with greater care being exercised as they approach the stormy Bering sea, the aviators are expected to pick their way from here on and bide their time for pleasant days.

Just So.

THAW WANTS TO TESTIFY

PHILADELPHIA, April 16 (AP)—Harry K. Thaw is expected to take the witness stand in his own behalf tomorrow at the jury trial to determine his sanity. Judge John M. Patterson, chief counsel for the Pittsburgh millionaire, announced at the conclusion of today's session of the case.

"I can't tell how the trial is going yet, but I am hoping," was Thaw's comment. "I was hoping they'd get through today and let me have a chance. I want to testify and let them judge for themselves."

DURANT CALLED MOTOR DICTATOR

Wall Street Observers See Master Hand in Present-Day Automobile World

PLINT, Mich., April 16.—(Rate contradictions) explained and hastily prepared comment by automobile executives mainly purporting to show that there would be no curtailment in spring production was the big topic in Wall Street today, according to New York advices received by the Plint Daily Herald. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors corporation, in speaking of conditions as especially indicated by General Motors, is quoted as admitting that General Motors had about 10 days' current production on hand and that cars in dealers' hands are in excess of the corresponding time last year. He explained that this condition was sought in view of the fact that last year General Motors was unable to effect prompt deliveries, and lost business thereby.

C. W. Nash, president of Nash Motors, says that the automobile industry looks to the future with confidence, but that the industry itself will grow through those manufacturers best qualified to serve the demands of the public. Mr. Nash says that he sees a process of elimination in the automobile industry and that only the fittest will survive.

The real view by the so-called "wise men" of Wall Street is that the master hand of W. C. Durant, president of Durant Motors corporation, is seen virtually in control of this gigantic industry.

Wall Street has come to the realization that Durant has made good and that his companies are in a better position today to supply a line of cars designed to serve the most exacting demands in the transportation field than any others. It is pointed out that General Motors pays to W. C. Durant and his associates a profit on every car they build.

It is well known that Mr. Durant holds large blocks of preferred and common stock in the General Motors corporation, in Fisher Body, Hayes, Wheel and other industrial concerns supplying products for the automotive industry.

It has been discovered that every time Fisher builds a body, Durant makes a profit; every time Hayes makes a wheel, Durant makes a profit; every time General Motors builds and sells a car, Durant makes a profit. It has also been pointed out that every prediction regarding the automobile industry that Durant has made in the past 20 years has come true.

Durant Motors annual financial statement will be given to the public in the near future and the company is known to have made money.

The prospects for the future of Durant are considered in Wall Street to be better than any motor car manufacturer excepting Henry Ford and some of the smart traders are quietly picking up Durant securities.

Strong Resolutions on Subject of Control of Foot and Mouth Disease Passed

Following discussion of the foot and mouth disease and the effect of the recent quarantine order issued by the state, the following resolutions were submitted, and, on motion, adopted by the Twin Falls Rotary club at its regular Wednesday meeting:

Whereas, livestock in the foundation of our livelihood in Idaho and the cattle and sheep on our ranges; and the dairy cows on our farms are the anchor of our prosperity; and

Whereas, without them Idaho would be a group of destitute mountain communities; and thousands of our industries could not live if they were gone; and their welfare should be of the greatest concern; not only to owners of livestock, but to every line of commercial activity as well; and

Whereas, the spread of the foot and mouth disease out of California gravely menaces the very existence of the tremendous livestock industry of the state, as well as our whole agricultural prosperity; and

Whereas, our state authorities have in effect a certain quarantine number, which regulations we deem to be too far in the face of the existing emergency;

Therefore, be it resolved: That we respectfully request the governor of Idaho, and Marcus A. Means, commissioner of agriculture for the state of Idaho, that they amend and make more stringent their regulations, as follows:

1. So that they prohibit the transportation in any way of any kind of livestock through the state as well as into which is now in force; so that no California livestock can come in here, even in sealed cars, nor be unloaded here for feeding, even though they are carefully guarded, and the yards disinfected; and

2. That they draw the lines so closely that no shipments can enter through the mails as they are doing daily now.

3. That no biologies, or dairy or other products of any kind be allowed to enter the state if those originating in California, even though they have been thoroughly pasteurized because of the danger of transmitting the disease through their packing, and otherwise;

4. That all farm laborers, shepherds and other labor from California be compelled to disinfect themselves and all their effects at the border of the state, whether they have certificates or not; and that laborers from other states be required to do the same unless they have certificates of disinfection recently issued by free states.

5. That the provisions of the preceding paragraph be equally applied to all automobile tourists coming from the south and west, and that no tourists be allowed to traverse our state without certificates from our authorities.

6. That, in short, we want, instead of a quarantine, an embargo, at least until this dread mouse stops spreading at the alarming rate it is.

7. That although these are strong measures that we are recommending, that it is the sense of this club that nothing will avail once the disease gets within our borders in which case we will indeed be a broken community for years to come; and that nothing can be too stringent a measure for our authorities to take to prevent a dread calamity.

The rooms were decorated in spring flowers and the dining table had as a centerpiece a bouquet of jonquils.

The usual business session followed, and Miss Julia Jennison was initiated to membership. Mrs. Charles Hart gave an interesting paper entitled "A Visit to London," and Mrs. Zenas Smith told of her visit to that historic city.

The Truth

About this Light-Six—plus proof on proof

THIS Studebaker Light-Six is the supreme value in the "thousand-dollar" class.

It offers, not a few, but scores of advantages. In its chassis it represents the best that modern engineering knows. In its steels and quality of construction it is identical with the costliest cars we build.

This is to offer you proofs. Then urge that you see it before paying $1,900 or more for a car.

Some evidence

The extra values which this car typifies have made Studebaker the largest builder of quality cars.

They have made these cars a sensation. Sales have almost tripled in three years. Last year 145,167 people paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

The multiplying demand has forced an investment of $50,000,000 in model plants and equipment. Of this, $38,000,000 has been spent in the past five years, so the plants are up-to-date.

The engineering department which designs and superintends this Light-Six costs $500,000 per year.

The machines which build it are modern and exact. 517 operations on this car are exact to 1/1000th of an inch. 122 operations are exact to one-half 1/1000th of an inch.

1,200 inspectors are employed to submit each car in the making to 32,000 inspections.

Infinite care

The steels are selected from 35 formulas, each one proved best by years of test for its purpose. On some we pay the makers 15% premium to get them exactly right.

The crankshafts are machined on all surfaces, as was done in the Liberty Airplane Motors. This to give perfect motor balance, at an extra cost to us of $600,000 yearly.

It has more Timken bearings than any other competitive car within $1,500 of its price.

cars in this class called in auditors to compare the operating costs. They made comparisons on 329 cars, running up to 25,000 miles.

It was found that this Studebaker Light-Six cost for operation 11.4% less than the average of its rivals. This figure included depreciation. That meant $207.50 saved on 25,000 miles. All because of this quality construction.

What it saves you

We build 150,000 cars yearly. All such major costs as engineering, dies, overhead, etc., are divided by 150,000.

We build in model plants, with modern machinery, which have immensely reduced the manufacturing costs.

A car like this, built under ordinary conditions, would cost you from $200 to $400 more.

Learn, for your own sake, what that means to you.

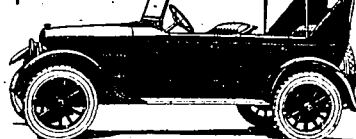

Send for the book

Mail us the coupon below. We will send you free our new book that will inform you on five simple things which reveal the value of a car.

For instance: It will enable you to look at any car and tell whether it's been cheapened to meet a price or offers true quality.

It will tell you why some cars rattle at 20,000 miles and others don't. It shows one single point in a closed car which measures whether you're getting top or medium quality. The book is free—clip the coupon below.

Scores of extra values

Built by the leader in the fine-car class. One of the cars for which people last year paid $201,000,000.

Built in a model $50,000,000 plant, producing 150,000 cars yearly. And saving you by quantity production from $200 to $400.

Built of the same steels, with the same care, as the costliest cars we make.

The car that saved 11.4% in operating cost under rivals. The car with 14 Timken bearings.

Mail coupon for book about it

The equipment is unusual. The cushions are of genuine leather, and are ten inches deep.

Every part and detail accords with Studebaker traditions. And the name Studebaker has for 72 years stood for quality and class.

ORPHEUM SHOWING ARLISS IN "THE GREEN GODDESS"

George Arliss in "The Green Goddess" is the highly attractive offering of the Orpheum theater for a period of two days, beginning today. Mr. Arliss, as is well known, is one of the most distinguished actors of this generation, and also one of the very few who can draw patrons to a theater on his name alone. "The Green Goddess," by William Archer, is doubtless the best play ever written for Mr. Arliss and this is saying a great deal when one takes into consideration the "Disraeli" of Louis St. Parker.

For two solid years "The Green Goddess" attracted thousands to the Booth Theater in New York, and has since that time been the most popular and most productive season in metropolitan theatrical history. This play has had a record breaking run at the Sun, H. Harries theater, New York, equalling in every way its popularity as a stage play.

"The Green Goddess" is hailed as the greatest achievement of the screen to date. For sheer compelling melodrama, superbly acted, and magnificently set, it is said that nothing has ever been done to approach this production.

DO WE WANT THE FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE?

On Sunday last a car containing a typical tourist outfit arrived in Twin Falls from California.

The car and its occupants had been turned back at the Washington state line under state regulations put into effect to prevent the spread into that state of the foot and mouth disease. No such regulations interfered with the entry of the car into Idaho and no objections whatever were interposed by anybody until Twin Falls was reached.

Not even railroad tickets to Arizona points may be purchased in California. No goods of any kind from California, no tourists, no stock but what is held up at the state line and permitted to enter the state only when every precaution in the way of safeguard has been taken.

Practically every western state in any manner contiguous to California, including the state of Washington, has pronounced an embargo against California goods of every kind which could possibly carry the germ of the foot and mouth disease—all except Idaho. Idaho has issued a set of regulations which seem to prohibit but which do not. Idaho today, in comparison to the drastic steps taken in other western states, is literally inviting the foot and mouth disease. Idaho is temporizing in a situation which calls for real action of the most drastic sort.

Idaho, uninterfered with, will produce this year alone over twenty-five million dollars' worth of lamb and wool, to say nothing of cattle and hogs. This income will be cut in two if the disease gains a foothold here and the marketing of the fifty per cent crop will be accomplished at a cost which will virtually wipe out the livestock industry in the state.

In Colorado a mere suspicion of the existence of the disease cost that state five hundred thousand dollars.

The outbreaks are spreading in California. Control of the epidemic has not been established. Every day adds to the risk which this state incurs.

Parcel post packages come into Idaho postoffices with the contents wrapped in California rice straw. Auto tourists reach Idaho towns with the dust of California travel thick upon cars and contents. California fruit and vegetables are received daily.

Why let these things gain entry at all? To destroy every ounce of goods about the goods pass through half the state is to go but fifty per cent of the way. What is wanted is an embargo on California shipments which will prohibit them entry into Idaho until such time as inspection and examination at the state line shall have determined that entry may be safely allowed. Even this is not a sure way of preventing infection within the state, but it is the surest way that can be devised.

Some years ago Moses Alexander, while Governor of Idaho vetoed an appropriation of four thousand dollars which was to have been used to fight the alfalfa weevil pest which at that time was beginning to make its appearance in this state.

It is estimated by stockmen and others in a position to know that this four thousand dollar economy has cost the farmers and stockmen of Idaho two million dollars a year during every single year which has followed.

No hardship is involved anywhere down the line in an embargo which would set up a literal bulwark along Idaho borders against California shipments of all kinds, including fruits,

THE WEATHER MAN'S JOKE

By DADDY

Jack, Janet and the birds plan a spring picnic in the woods, but the Weather Man foils them with a snowstorm. So they hold a snow picnic.

CHAPTER IV.

King Bird Has a Fight.

WHILE the birds are having fun in the bird houses which Jack and Janet had made out of snow, the children were busy making snowbirds. They made the snowbirds by sticking small snowballs together, and then shaping them like the heads, bills, wings and legs of birds. They could make birds of snow and as easily as they made birds of clay in their kindergarten lessons.

They set the snowbirds up on the fence all in a row. They were very funny, as Jack and Janet made them in all sorts of queer shapes. One particularly odd appearing bird they tied on a string hanging from a limb of a tree. When the wind blew the odd appearing bird seemed to fly awkwardly back and forth.

When the snowbirds were all finished Jack called to the live birds in the snow houses.

"Come out, birds!" cried Jack. "See the handsome white birds that have come to visit you." The birds came rushing out of the snow houses. They were eager to see the strange white birds. They gazed with surprise when they saw the stiff, dead snowbirds sitting on the fence. "How do you do?" cried the live birds. "Welcome, white strangers," but the white strangers answered with a chirp and a peep. They just sat there and stared sadly at the live birds. The live birds did not like this. When they were friendly they expected others to be friendly.

"Hello! Why don't you say something?" blurted King Bird to the odd appearing snowbird swinging back and forth at the end of the string. The odd appearing bird just swung its back to King Bird. That was its only answer.

"Here! Don't you turn your back on me," blustered King Bird. He flew at the odd appearing snowbird and knocked him sharply. The odd appearing bird bounded away under the force of the mighty peck. Then back he swung, hitting King Bird full in the face and knocking him head over heels.

King Bird, after a struggle, righted himself in the air, just as a skiffed aviator does when his airplane turns over.

Now King Bird was fighting mad. The odd appearing bird by knocking him over had added injury to insult. King Bird flew full tilt against the snowbird giving him a week harder than the first. Away swung the snowbird; then back again, beating King Bird in the head and knocking him spinning. A second thought like that would have caused some birds to fly away. But not so with King Bird. He was a fighter. And his fighting blood was slow up. Back he came again and again, pecking the snowbird, laughing him, sending him swinging away. But vegetables and California products generally. No one would suffer, no one would be injured.

Not to create such an embargo is to take the gravest sort of chances of destroying, or at least crippling, one of the greatest of all Idaho industries.

Such a responsibility should not be lightly accepted!

Breakfast Food

"Matrimonially Speaking"

By MRS. HUGH MCKAY

My husband loses his temper over little things.

He's really a pretty good natured man, but he can't stand small annoyances. Like tripping over things in the dark, trying to open bureau drawers that are stuck fast and cutting his face when he shaves.

The other night I heard him tossing about restlessly and muttering something about "the way that darn alarm clock ticks as though it was made to keep people awake all night."

I didn't think anything more about it till I was roused by a crash and the tinkle of broken glass under our window, and I heard Hugh saying: "Go on back to sleep—just throw that clock out where it belongs."

I've often seen him slip on a rug and then get up and kick it all the way across the room.

And when his coffee is too hot and burns his mouth he'll tell me to keep him from upsetting the breakfast table.

But I keep myself calm by thinking—how much better to have him annoyed at these things than at me!

Tomorrow: "My wife takes part in amateur theatricals."

One's Best Friends.

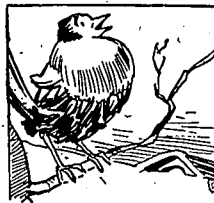

It is the people who utter the bromides and platitudes that are probably one's best friends. They are sincere and unchangeable.

Fish Eggs.

One female fish may lay 9,000,000 eggs—this number was actually found in the roe of a turbot weighing 17 pounds.

Surely Is.

Isn't it queer that the things that people want most to know are usually none of their business?

"Hurrah! I've won!"

the snowbird, dangling on his swing. Every peck and every smash of King Bird knocked part of him away. And at last a mighty crash parted him in two, causing him to fall in pieces to the ground.

"Hurrah! I've won!" screamed King Bird. "I have won from that hard fighting white bird. Why don't you whip those other white birds?" At this the live birds flew at the snowbirds on the fence, and with one smash after another they tumbled to the ground.

"Cheer! Cheer! We've won a mighty battle!" they boasted. "We have whipped the strange white birds."

"Hut! Hut! Hut! You have whipped a bunch of snowbirds," laughed Jack and Janet. "You have been very brave indeed! The joke is on you!" And King Bird and the others, when they saw they had been fighting packed snow, had to agree that the joke was on them. They joined in the laughter of Jack and Janet.

(In tomorrow's chapter there is another kind of a fight with the joke on Jack and Janet.)

In the Days of Poor Richard

By IRVING BACHELLER

Continued.

Now Andre came sliding down the road alone on the back of the mare Nancy. He came to an outpost of the Highland army, and presented his pass. It was examined and endorsed and he went on his way. He met transport wagons, a squad of cavalry and later, a regiment of militia coming up from western Connecticut, but no one stopped him. In the faded hat and coat and trousers of Reuben Smith, this man, who called himself John Anderson, was not much unlike the farmer folk who were riding hither and thither in the neutral territory, on their pet errands. His face was different. It was the well-kept face of an English aristocrat with handsome dark eyes and hair beginning to turn gray.

A little out of Terrytown on the highway the horseman traveled, a group of three men were hidden in the bush-ragged, reckless, unlettered country lads waiting for cows to come down out of the wild land to be milked. They were "skimmers" in the militia, some have said; some that they were farmers' sons not in the army. However that may have been, they were undoubtedly rough, hard-fisted fellows full of the lawless spirit bred by five years of desperate warfare. They were looking for Tories as well as for cattle. Tories were their richest prey, for the latter would give high rewards to be excused from the oath of allegiance. They came out upon Andre and challenged him. The latter knew that he had passed the American outpost, and thought that he was near the British lines. He was not familiar with the geography of the upper east shore. He knew that the so-called neutral territory was overrun by two parties—the British being called the "Lower" and the Yankees the "Upper."

"What party do you belong to?" Andre demanded.

"The Lower," said one of the Yankees.

It was, no doubt, a deliberate lie added to inspire frankness in a Tory. That was the moment for Andre to have produced his pass-ports, which would have opened the road for him. Instead he committed a fatal error, the like of which it would be hard to find in all the records of human action.

"I am a British officer," he declared. "Please take me to your post."

They were keen-minded men who quickly surrounded him. A British officer? Why was he in the dress of a Yankee farmer? The pass could not save him now from these rough, strong handed fellows. The die was cast. They demanded the right of search. He saw his error and changed his plan.

"I am only a citizen of New York returning from family business in the country," he said.

He drew his gold watch from his pocket—that unfailing sign of the gentleman of fortune—and looked at its dial.

"You can see I am no common fellow," he added. "Let me go on about my business."

They firmly insisted on their right to search him. He began to be frightened. He offered them his watch and a purse full of gold and any amount of British goods to be allowed to go on his way.

Now here is the wonder and the mystery in this remarkable proceeding. These men were seeking plunder and here was a handsome prospect.

Why did they not make the most of it and be content? The "skimmers" were plunderers, but first of all and above all they were patriots. The spirit brooding over the Highlands of the Hudson and the hills of New England had entered their hearts. The man who called himself John Anderson was compelled to dismount and empty his pockets and take off his boots. In one of which was the damning evidence of Arnold's perfidy. A fortune was then within the reach of these three hard-working men of the hills, but straightaway they took their prisoner and the papers, found in his boot, to the outpost, commanded by Colonel Jameson.

This negotiation for the sale of the United States had met with unexpected difficulties. The "skimmers" had been as hard to buy as the learned diplomat.

APPRAISALS OF PROPERTY HELP IN TOWN MOVING

American Falls Residents Preparing for Removal to New Townsite from Area to Be Inundated by Reservoir

Problems incident to removal of the town of American Falls from the old site and the new townsite to make way for construction of the American Falls reservoir, are clearing up satisfactorily, according to word received by R. E. Shepherd, chairman of the American Falls irrigation district board of directors, from F. A. Banks, construction engineer of the American Falls project.

"Since the publication of the report of the appraisal board," Mr. Banks said, "the right of way situation at American Falls seems to have been greatly clarified, and I do not anticipate any difficulty in reaching a settlement with a very large number of the remaining property owners as soon as money becomes available."

Scenes Related Convert.

Mr. Banks referred to action of a prominent American Falls citizen who previously had opposed the settlement terms who recently signed an option for sale of his property in the old townsite at the appraised price and invested $3800 in lots in the new townsite.

"All reports from Washington seem to be very encouraging for the outlook of the project," Mr. Banks said. "Today, however, in the action of the supreme court on your bond issue is causing some apprehension in this vicinity. But I am in hopes that favorable decision can be reached in the near future in order that plans may be made for the utilization of our present appropriation as well as the one which congress has apparently approved for the fiscal year 1925."

"I understand that the appraisal board has been appraising the lands in white ownership in the reservoir belt, and will have its report ready about next Saturday and I agree with you that it will be well to have a meeting of the advisory board at about that time to discuss this report."

Committee Must Collect Pledges in Recent Drive

Chamber of Commerce Issues Statement Asking That Amounts Subscribed be Paid at Once

Following a meeting of the finance committee of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce held Wednesday afternoon, the following statement was given out:

"On a complete re-check of funds received in the railroad drive it was found that of the total sum raised, a considerable portion is made up of uncollected pledges, post-dated checks, and some checks on which payment has been refused on account of insufficient funds. It was also found that it would be necessary to collect all pledges and all post-dated checks to ensure the complete success of the undertaking."

"Approximately 700 separate contributions have been made to the fund and the committee desires to express its thanks to all who by their assistance rendered the making of the money possible."

"We urge that all pledges be made good at once and all checks not post-dated, covered in order that they may be cashed and the amounts turned into the fund."

Jury Makes Awards in Deal for Horses

Awards Amount of Claim on Note to Dealer and Gives Waltz Credit for Disability

Verdict awarding $3226.66 to S. Metz and Sons, Homevale, Illinois, horse dealers, from E. R. Waltz, Ellettsville, Ind., district farmer, and awarding $200.00 to Waltz from the Metz concern were returned Wednesday morning by a jury in district court. Award to Waltz was based on a note given by Metz in payment for two stallions which, according to the evidence, were destroyed by fire caused by lightning some months later. The award to Waltz was based on his claim for damages because of alleged defect in one of the animals.

The suit involved also Metz' claim against the First National bank of Ellettsville for $3000 insurance money paid to Waltz upon loss of the horses. The jury was unable to agree on an answer to question propounded in an interrogatory as to whether the bank had notice that the animals had been insured by Waltz for the benefit of the dealers, although the jury found that such an agreement regarding the insurance had been made between buyer and seller of the animals.

The jury found further that the bank held for collection the note given by Waltz in payment for the horses, and that the bank applied the insurance money on another note executed by Waltz and due at the time the money was received.

Trials in the case occupied almost three days. Plaintiffs Metz were represented by Attorney T. K. Haeckman and the defendants by Stephan and North.

Gentle Rain Outcome of Threatened Storm

Threat of storm that continued for two or three days culminated Wednesday evening in a gentle rain of about two hours' duration bringing a small amount of precipitation.

Temperature Tuesday night fell to 18 above, a decline of five degrees under the low mark of the preceding day, setting the lowest mark since March 31, when minimum was recorded at 17 above. High mark Wednesday was recorded at 50 above, an advance of six degrees.

Havens, local garage proprietor, to whom, according to the bill of particulars, she was married in Shoshone, September 3, 1911. She asks for the custody of two daughters, aged six and nine years. Community property valued at $1000 is involved. The petition was filed for Mrs. Havens by Stephan and North, attorneys.

The Star Car

Let Us Prove That the Star Is the Greatest Light Car Built

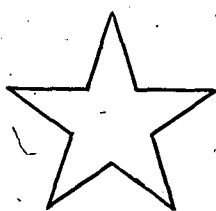

Here Are Some of the Reasons The Star Excels:

The STAR CAR has an abundance of power in all gears. The STAR CAR will lug longer on a stiff grade than any other light car. The single dry plate clutch is smooth in action during the life of the car, and absolutely will not grab, which is a common fault found with cars using a cone clutch. The STAR CAR is the only low-priced automobile using the standard recognized design of semi-elliptical springs which are found on 90% of high-priced automobiles. The rear springs are 4 1/2 inches long. All twisting of the frame is eliminated by the tubular backbone a Durant patent found on no other car other than Durant built. Simplicity of construction of the chassis makes the repair maintenance cheaper than on any other car built. The STAR CAR has more recognized standard units than any other car selling under $1000. The STAR CAR is the only low-priced car built using a force feed oil system to all bearings in the motor.

Ride in a Star and You Will Own a Star

There are now 3700 Star service stations in the United States.

The Star car is a Durant product. W. C. Durant has directed the building of more automobiles than any other man, living or dead, saving Henry Ford.

Do not fail to read the news item on W. C. Durant found elsewhere in this paper.
