SECRET AID TO POLITICIANS IS CROWNED UPON

Senate Passes Amendment by Borah Providing for Publication of Campaign Receipts With Penalty for Failure.

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—Full publicity of political contribution at intervals of ten days during the coming presidential and congressional campaigns would be required under a measure approved unanimously today by the senate with 55 senators voting. It has yet to be acted upon by the house.

Besides calling for publicity during the campaign the measure would make mandatory the publication of the amount of any deficit at the end of the campaign and public announcement thereafter monthly of the amounts received from each contributor to wipe out the deficit.

Adopted as an amendment to the pending postal law increase bill, the measure is broad in its terms and would apply to all campaigns for the election of members of congress and all officials of the government after its enactment, but it does not limit contributions. It would affect all committees, local, state or national, and all persons or parties having any part or share in the election or in the campaign for the election of such officials.

Would Supply Details.

Moreover it would call for the publication during the campaign and thereafter, of the name and residence, and official position, if any, of each contributor and the amount of his contribution. The requirements with respect to residence and official position was written in at the suggestion of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader and one it would be disclosed the amount of contributions by office holders, such as marshals, postmasters and customs collectors.

Every person offending against the provisions of the proposed law would be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction could be imprisoned for not more than one year or fined not more than $5,000 or both.

Explaining the amendment, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, its author, declared it was broad enough in its scope to encompass reports not only on contributions used to help elect a candidate, but also contributions to organizations, or persons seeking to bring about the defeat of any particular candidate.

Immigration Bill Is Sanctioned by Executive Action

President Coolidge Signs Measure Notwithstanding Disapproval of Feature Providing Japanese Exclusion.

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—Deploring its provisions for Japanese exclusion but heartily approving its main features President Coolidge today signed the immigration bill.

Steps were taken immediately by the department of labor to prepare for administration of the law which provides for further restriction of immigration after June 30, when the existing quota law expires and the total exclusion of Japanese immigration after that date. The president approved the bill reluctantly, issuing a statement after he had affixed his signature in which he said he regretted the impossibility of covering from the measure the exclusion provision which he and Secretary Hughes had opposed strongly during the course of the legislation through congress.

Disapproves Exclusion.

"There is scarcely any ground for disagreement as to the result we want, but this method of securing it is unnecessary and repugnant at this time," the president said, with reference to the exclusion section. "If the exclusion stood alone I should disapprove it without hesitation if this way at this time."

The president pointed out that the bill put before him was a comprehensive act dealing with the whole subject of immigration and setting up improved administration machinery and also that the existing act automatically expires June 30.

Condemned Negro Stabs Women at Baptism Service

Arizona Murdered Under Sentence of Death Turns Upon Spiritual Advisers.

FLORENCE, Ariz., May 26 (AP)—After having been baptized today preparatory to going to the scaffold June 30 for the slaying of Ted Grosh, University of Arizona athlete, William B. Ward, negro, turned upon one of those who baptized him, a woman, and stabbed her with an ice pick, just after he had handed a purported confession of the Grosh murder to the superintendent of the state penitentiary. Half a hundred convicts who were newly formed into a mob and attacked Ward, beating him severely. His condition is critical.

The woman he attacked, Mrs. J. E. Wright of Claypool, Arizona, was stabbed several times and is in a serious condition. Miss Stella Martin, woman evangelist, who baptized Ward at his request, was struck by the prisoner just before his attack on Mrs. Wright.

POLICE SEARCH IS UNREWARDED

Slayers of Chicago Boy Still at Large; Efforts Under Way to Apprehend Murderers.

CHICAGO, May 26 (AP)—Detectives hunting the slayer of Robert Frank, 13-year-old son of a Chicago millionaire, whose nude body was found in a swamp last Thursday after demands for a $10,000 ransom had been made, were searching tonight for a man who answered in nearly every detail the hypothetical description of one of the kidnapers built up by the police from various fragments of evidence.

For a time last today it was thought that the man sought was surrounded in an apartment hotel where he applied for a room. Detectives made a thorough search of the building but the man eluded them.

The man, slim, nervous, about five feet nine inches tall and weighing 140 or 145 pounds, excited the suspicions of the hotel clerk. The clerk said he appeared about 35 years old, had a slim face, wore tortoise shell spectacles and was exceedingly nervous. When the clerk informed him there was no room available the man said he "had to get off the street," and left, but was followed and entered a nearby building. Detectives hurried to the scene and searched every building in the block, but failed to find their man.

The police believe the man may be the wearer of the spectacles found near the slain boy's body. These spectacles were of peculiar make and oculists say they could only have been worn by a man with a thin face or by a woman.

They also declared that an examination of the lenses indicated they were probably worn by a highly nervous person. The police are also holding a man whose name they refuse to reveal and who is said to answer in a general way the description given by a florist of a man who purchased a wreath. This wreath, bearing the name of "George Johnson" was sent to the Frank home on the day of the boy's funeral. George Johnson was the name used by the man who tried to obtain a ransom of $10,000 from Jacob Frank, father of the slain youth.

MUSCLE SHOALS PROJECT VOTE IS DRAWING CLOSE

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—Public hearings on Muscle Shoals closed tonight after many weeks of deliberation and tomorrow the senate agricultural committee will go into executive session to act on the various proposals.

Action by the senate on Henry Ford's Muscle Shoals bill was virtually assured today when western senators promised Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, to support the southern senators in obtaining a vote at this session of congress.

At tomorrow's executive session, supporters of the Ford bill will make another attempt to obtain favorable action by the committee on the offer and failing in this, they will take the fight to the senate floor, where they are determined to get a record vote. It could be brought up either as a substitute to the committee report or in an amendment to any other bill that might be pending.

SENATE SERVED WITH NOTICE TO PASS FARM BILL

Frazier of North Dakota Tells Solons That Adjournment Will be Resisted Until Measure Is Disposed of

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—Reclamation, relief legislation and Muscle Shoals bobbed up in the senate today as further obstacles to the carrying out of the plans of leaders to adjourn in advance of the national political convention.

Farm aid measures and the proposal to abolish the railroad labor board already had threatened to prove stumbling blocks and with the addition of reclamation and Muscle Shoals leaders became doubtful that their program could be put into effect.

With the fate of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill still in doubt in the house and with a vote there out of the question before the end of the week Senator Frazier, North Dakota and republican on the farm bloc, served notice in the senate that there would be resistance to adjournment until some sort of agricultural aid bill had been put through.

Then Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, insisted that congress should not adjourn until reclamation relief legislation had been enacted, declaring that unless it were thousands of western homesteaders would lose their property. Later he said privately that farm legislation also must be enacted before adjournment.

A demand for action on Muscle Shoals and more particularly Henry Ford's offer, was made by Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, and Senators Borah, Warren, republican, Wyoming, and others gave him assurance of their support in demanding action, after the Alabama senator had announced he would vote for justice for homesteaders.

Adjournment Uncertain.

In the face of these developments, Representative Longworth, republican, Ohio, said he and other leaders in the house as well as some of those in the senate were determined to conclude this session by the end of next week and that, failing in that, he would insist that there be no recess through the convention period. He conceded, however, the possibility of a determined group in the senate blocking adjournment.

President of Germany to Confer with Parliamentary Leaders to Select New Government; Marx Now in Charge.

BERLIN, May 26 (AP)—The German government has resigned. President Ebert accepted the resignation of the ministry and requested Chancellor Marx to carry on current affairs.

President Ebert will confer with the parliamentary leaders tomorrow regarding the selection of a chancellor and the formation of a new government. Prior to the resignation of the cabinet attempts to construct a straight bourgeois government definitely foundered on obstructionist tactics carried on by the German national party after a four hours' party caucus, drafted an evasive resolution in which they reiterated their readiness to co-operate with the other side, but only on condition that they be given representation commensurate with their numerical strength and that the selection of the new cabinet take precedence over the question of formulating a program of internal and foreign policies.

The reactionaries urged Admiral Von Tirpitz to the fore as their candidate for chancellor, designating him as a man who by virtue of his antecedents and past record was eminently qualified for leadership.

The nationalists informed the middle parties that the question of agreeing on a leading personality must take precedence over the form of government, inasmuch as outstanding political issues will more readily be solved through the medium of leaders than through parliamentary formulas.

Field Guns Roar in Big Demonstration of U. S. Artillery

Event at Fort Sill in Connection With Editorial Gathering Is One of Largest Ever Staged in Peace Times.

FORT SILL, Okla., May 26 (AP)—One of the largest peace time artillery demonstrations in the history of the United States army was staged here today before a crowd estimated at more than 50,000 persons. The demonstration was in connection with the visit here of the National Editorial Association, members of which are touring Oklahoma.

For five minutes, large and small field-guns swept the front lines of the enemy's position and then the barrage was concentrated on the "enemy" batteries and lines of communication for 15 minutes. A battery of 155 millimeter howitzers opened the artillery action and four batteries of 75 joined in. Behind a machine gun barrage waves of infantry swept to the attack. Bombing planes from Kelly field attacked the "enemy" positions from the air, dropping heavy bombs on the hill which was the objective of the attacking force.

During the maneuvers the planes blanketed the enemy lines with a smoke screen made by smoke bombs and the artillery showered smoke shells covering the force.

The editors were served a lunch prepared by the army field kitchen.

REDUCTION OF TAXATION NOW PROVIDED FOR

House Approves Conference Compromise by Heavy Majority and Measure Goes to Coolidge for Signature.

WASHINGTON, May 25 (AP)—The tax reduction bill was put up to President Coolidge for final enactment into law today by congress. Like the senate, the house, by an overwhelming majority approved the conference compromise on the main provisions. The vote was 376 to 9. An early decision by the president was forecast by those close to him on the basis of his instant demands that congress hasten action on tax reduction.

Mr. Coolidge had asked congress for the bill proposed by Secretary Mellon, rejecting almost entirely in the framing of the pending measure, but has let it be known he will consider the latter on its merits as compared with the present law. In this connection Secretary Mellon indicated today he considered the bill on the whole an improvement over the present law.

Within a few minutes after the bill reached the White House it was sent to the treasury secretary for study. Mr. Mellon expected to have a report containing his analysis of the bill in the hands of the president tomorrow or Wednesday. It was indicated he would confine his report to a comparison of the measure with the present law without definite recommendations.

The bill provides for a 25 per cent reduction on income taxes payable this year; permanent reduction downward of the income, miscellaneous and excise taxes; additional reductions after this year of 25 per cent on earned income of $10,000 and under, and numerous changes in the administration provisions, most of which were proposed by the treasury.

Although carrying the democratic proposal for reductions in the income rates, the bill was acclaimed today by leaders of both parties in the house, as was done in the senate, as "fair and just."

Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, read treasury figures to show that it would provide sufficient revenue to meet all government expenses next year, including the cost of the new house law. The bill cut taxes by $22,000,000 more than proposed in the Mellon plan, Mr. Green added.

Several Mellon plan advocates from the republican side assailed the measure because of its provisions for limited publicity which would permit the publication of the amount of tax paid

PLAYGROUND FOR HANSEN

Committee of Representative Citizens Named to Consider Plans for Program of Supervised Play.

A committee consisting of Mrs. O. J. Bellwood, representing the Women's Council of Hansen; Charles Calvert, representing the town board, and Geyer McVey of the Business Men's association, has been appointed to consider the work of converting the Hansen park into a supervised playground for two days each week.

by each tax payer and open the hearings of the proposed board of tax appeals to the public.

Although only nine republicans actually voted against the conference report, there were indications that probably many more would vote to sustain any veto on account of the publicity provision. Only six senators voted against the report and some of those announced they would vote to override a presidential veto.

The revenue bill passed the house three months ago by a vote of 48 to 8. Two members who then voted against it today supported the conference report—Blaichbach, republican, New Jersey, and Howard, democrat, Nebraska. Three republicans who previously voted for the bill voted against the report—Hill, Maryland; Moores, Indiana, and Phillips, Pennsylvania.

The treasury department previously had announced objection of the publicity provisions and the increase provided in the estate tax rates. Republicans as well as democrats defended in the brief debate in the house today the publicity proposal, declaring no harm would result while a lot of good might be accomplished if the amounts of taxes paid were made public. The provision further permits certain congressional committees to inspect all tax returns.

The senate by a democratic-republican-insurgent coalition vote, had amended the bill to make all returns open to inspection by the public. The increase in estate tax rates, making the maximum 40 per cent, instead of 25 per cent as in the present law, applicable to amounts of $10,000 and over, was originally voted by the house.

Cheers, mounting in several instances to real ovations, greeted speakers during the debate today and, as the vote indicated, the house seemed thoroughly pleased with the bill. Representative Longworth, republican, floor leader, defending his compromise stand on the Mellon rates, was accorded enthusiastic applause from both sides of the chamber. The fifty per cent cut proposed by Secretary Mellon in the high surtax rates, with the proposal for a 25 per cent reduction in the normal rate was not comparable in merit, Mr. Longworth said, with the schedule fixed by the bill, giving a 75 per cent cut in surtaxes and 50 per cent cut on the lower normal rates.

Representative Garner, Texas, leader of the democratic tax fight, pronounced the bill "distinctly democratic" and insisted President Coolidge would not veto it. Despite his objections to some of the provisions in the measure, Secretary Mellon has informed his advisers there are many good provisions in the bill which must be given due consideration in any comment that the treasury may give the president.

The provision for a 25 per cent cut in income taxes payable this year would permit taxpayers, if paying on the installment plan, to cut in half the installment due June 15 and take one fourth off the last two installments. If the entire tax was paid March 15, the treasury would refund, without application, one fourth of the sum.

The income schedule provides for a reduction in the present normal rates of four per cent on incomes under $4,000 and eight per cent above that amount to two per cent on incomes of $4,000 and under; 4 per cent on incomes between $4,000 and $5,000 and 6 per cent above $5,000. It would reduce the present surtax rates all along the line, making the maximum 40 per cent, applicable on incomes of $500,000 and over and starting at one per cent on $10,000. The present surtax rates start at 1 per cent on $5,000, increasing to 50 per cent on $200,000. In the new schedule the rate on $200,000 would be 38 per cent.

Repeal or reduction of most of the miscellaneous and excise taxes is ordered, and these would go into effect thirty days after the enactment of the bill into law.

The revenue bill was one of the first taken up for study by congress at the opening of this session and has served to bring about sharpest legislative party battles, many of the provisions being lined in both branches on strict party lines with republican insurgents in both bodies holding the balance of power. In the house the insurgents eventually went with the republicans while the contrary was true in the senate. A compromise on the senate and house differences was accepted in the adoption of the conference report.

Easier to Iron With —and It Goes Farther

EVERY housewife who takes great pride in the dainty fresh appearance of her linens is interested in the new starch discovery, Linit.

She knows it is often difficult to get good results with ordinary starch that forms a sticky jelly when it cools. For this pasty starch clots and smears on and makes your ironing difficult.

All this is now overcome with Linit, the remarkable new starch discovery.

Linit is a new starch—distinctly different from ordinary, old-fashioned starches. Linit gives a soft, pliable finish to all fabrics, making even cotton goods look and feel like linen.

LINIT is easier to iron with and is more economical because it makes a THIN, "milky" mixture, free-running like water. You dip your garments into this mixture, which is quickly absorbed by the fabric. Linit is not "spread on," which was customary with the old-fashioned starches. This is why you find it so much easier to iron with Linit—and why it is so economical.

Baseball Season to Open with Pocatello

Cosgriff's Call for Help Meets With Splendid Response; Team Ready for Game With Gate City Nine.

A baseball season which promises to be one of the best Twin Falls has ever experienced, begins this week and when Pocatello visits the local park for a three-day engagement with Manager Cosgriff's Magicians.

Interest in the local club is being demonstrated by several business houses in Twin Falls by sizeable donations to the "campaign fund" to which the local manager has contributed no small share. A splendid grandstand has been constructed for the fans and the local park should attract a large number of fans who are being asked this week to do their bit to further the cause of local baseball by subscriptions to the club, as many firms have done, and by supporting the team in its first games.

Manager Cosgriff, from the Boise valley league, is expected today from the capital city unless a previous dicker with a Mississippi league carries through, and the player decides to go south. With both pitchers on hand and a creditable infield practicing every night and two first-class catchers working in uniform, manager Cosgriff awaits only the several university players in June to complete his lineup for a first class season.

BUHL TAKES SCALP OF GLENNS FERRY SQUAD

9 to 0 Is Final Score in Fast Game as Buhl Field; Boston, New West and Twiliter, Pitchers.

Cal Griswold's Buhl grays seem to have gotten into the swing of the game and Sunday they took Glens Ferry into camp with a shutout score of 9 to 0.

A large number of Buhl fans and visitors from surrounding towns watched Cal's ball team perform. Hard hitting and air tight fielding spelled success for the Buhlies over the Glens Ferry squad who were somewhat unprepared as they planned upon a strengthened battery which failed to arrive from Boise.

Fox pitched the first part of the game for Buhl and in the latter innings Elmer Boston, an addition from the coast league, took the Buhl box and held the visitors down to a minimum of hits.

BURLEY TAKES SMALL END OF 4 TO 0 SCORE

Kimberly Shuts Out Visitors in Fast Game on Home Lot Sunday; Errorless Ball Features for Home Team

Kimberly held the upper hand in the Burley baseball game at Kimberly Sunday coming out of the fracas with a 4 to 0 score.

Peppy, clean and high class baseball predominated according to the fans who report it as being one of the best games ever played on the Kimberly lot.

Thompson occupied the mound for Kimberly and retired 12 men by the strikeout method while Durfee, the Burley twirler, did not fare as well, getting the ball hit but seven successfully. Errors for Burley proved to be the most costly events of the game and scattered hits by Lowery and Stone of Kimberly, with a three-bagger by Thompson with the errors accounts for Kimberly's score.

The Kimberly band, under the direction of J. T. Bainbridge of Twin Falls, and a number of Twin Falls musicians helped to keep the large crowd in good humor during the game.

Kimberly gave promise of having a strong baseball team before the season closes.

JURY DENIES CLAIM FOR COLLECTION UPON NOTE

Verdict for Frank Housman, Defendant, Comes After Default Judgment Entered Long Ago.

A jury in district court here Monday decided by its verdict that Frank Housman, one of the defendants in a suit instituted several years ago by the Consolidated Wagon and Machine company, is not liable for payment of $1200, each in the sum of $1,461.37, bearing his endorsement. Contentions of the defense, which the jury sustained by its verdict, was that the notes in question were two of a number of notes signed in blank by Housman as president of the First National bank of Fairfield, and that the bank's cashier had not been authorized to use these notes for the purpose for which they were used.

Default judgment was entered some years ago against Housman and G. W. Faulkner and H. N. Rubottom, defendants in this case, the judgment as to Housman being set aside subsequently by the state supreme court.

Plaintiffs in this case were represented by Attorney Harry J. Benoit, defendant being represented by Attorneys J. R. Bothwell and W. Orr Chapman.

Judge W. A. Babcock, presiding, ordered a special venire for six additional jurors to complete the panel for trial of this case.

Trial in the case of H. E. Hemmingway against W. J. Emory is scheduled to open today in district court here, plaintiff being represented by Attorney S. T. Lowe of Burley, and defendant by Sweetley and Sweetley of Twin Falls.

New Blasting Record

What is believed to have been the biggest blast ever set off in the history of industry was recently fired near Ogden, Utah, to provide material for constructing the flume that are the approaches to the Great Salt Lake trestle of the Southern Pacific railroad. Earth and rock to an estimated volume of 550,000 cubic yards was raised and shattered by the explosion, which used 301,200 pounds of special-process powder, equivalent to 600,000 pounds of black powder. A hill 275 feet high and covering a face of approximately 1,000 feet in length was lifted up and separated into fragments. The placing of the explosives in tunnels, aggregating 4,100 feet in length, occupied 25 men for 45 days.

Not to Be Caught Twice

The clergyman, absorbed in thinking about a sermon, rounded a turn in the park and bumped into a tree. He swept off his hat with a flourish, exclaiming: "My pardon, madam."

Then he observed his error and was annoyed. Soon, however, again engaged with thoughts of the sermon, he collided with a woman at another bend of the path.

"Get out of the way, you brute!" he said.

OUT OF THE DUST

AT IDAHO THIS WEEK
There is a distinct individuality about the J. P. McCarthy production, "Out of the Dust," at the Idaho Friday and Saturday only. It is stirring and entertaining in quality, has considerably more human interest and less of the spectacular than the old style western, and should go well with the majority of audiences. Mr. McCarthy received his inspiration for the production from the Frederic Remington paintings dealing with frontier days.

In addition to the scenes at the fort which have not been depicted there is an excellent ranch and cowboy flavor to the picture. The old-time dance hall provides atmosphere for the big climax, where Martha Evans' husband gives the villain the beating that he deserves. The fight is a brutal affair, but thoroughly convincing. The picture throughout is well staged.

JEALOUS HUSBANDS

"Jealous Husbands," a First National picture, produced by M. C. Levee and directed by Maurice Tourneur, on view today at the Oregon theatre, is a remarkable photoplay in many respects—and one of the most grippingly entertaining films that it has been our good fortune to see in some time.

It is remarkable for its general excellence; for the finished work of the cast; for the unusual and dramatic story; for the fidelity of its setting.

To go, with the outline of the plot would be to spoil for you one of the most breath-taking dramatic moments that has been light on the silver sheet.

"Jealous Husbands" is a picture that keeps up your nerves to a high tension, now letting down until "Finis" is flashed from the projector. It is a masterpiece of suspense.

MARY PICKFORD SEEN IN NEW CHARACTERIZATION

Mary Pickford's latest United Artists production, "The Love Light," which is now showing at the Idaho theatre, is an entirely different story and an absolutely new characterization than anything in which the World's Sweetheart has heretofore appeared.

Ever since Mary Pickford has had her own producing organization and could dictate as to the type of photoplay in which she was to appear, she has adapted the policy of never adhering entirely to one line of parts, not only because she believes that the public likes variety but because she believes the different lines of characters tend to increase her ability as an artist.

GIVES METHODS FOR EXTENDING USE OF WATER

State University Agricultural Engineering Department Declares Full Size Crop Can be Produced on Short Supply.

There are many ways in which a short supply of water may be made to produce a full size crop, according to the University of Idaho department of agricultural engineering, which has in preparation a series of articles in relation to this subject setting forth methods which have been proven in various places and at various times in actual farm practice. "The first of these articles follows:

There are many ways in which a short supply of water may be made to produce a full size crop. Most of these methods require more work in applying the water or in preparing the land or cost money for lining canals or building reservoirs.

Rotation costs nothing. The yields which may be produced by a small amount of water may be very greatly increased by one method which costs nothing. That is the distribution of water by the rotation method. Rotation may be practiced in many ways. It does not necessarily mean that the water is turned out of the whole canal system for any part of the time. Many of the advantages of the rotation system may be achieved without making any change from the ordinary continuous flow method of main canal deliveries.

The Big Farm.

On a farm of a few hundred acres the supply of water should be kept in one stream and used first on one field and then on another. In this way, much better results are obtained in irrigation, saving of labor, and economy of water may be reached. Streams of several hundred inches may be handled by one man or, if necessary, by two men working together.

The Medium-Sized Farm.

On farms of the usual size, the time spent in irrigating may be shortened and the land covered by a short supply increased if a double or triple "head" of water is used for one-half or one-third of the time. Two hundred inches of water will cover 40 acres land to a depth of five inches, which is a plentiful application for most crops and fertile soils and a deeper rooted crop, in two days. To spread the water out over the ground in this time requires the use of large heads of water.

The Small Farm.

On small farms it is a steady job to make the small continuous flow stream get over the place before it is time to start over again. One hundred inches of water will cover 10 acres in 24 hours. Then the irrigation is done for a week ten days or two weeks, and there is time to cultivate the corn spray the trees, to do some other things that always need doing. It is even possible during this time between irrigation to park the family cow with the neighbor and go on that long-wished-for fishing trip.

The agricultural engineering department of the college of agriculture of the University of Idaho at Moscow will be glad to answer any questions as to rotation or other methods of saving water.

GUERNSEY FANCIERS TO FORM STATE ASSOCIATION

Leacock Tells How to Help Son Get Lessons

The greatest nuisance of all to the schoolmaster is the parent who does his boy's home exercises and works his boy's sums. I suppose they mean well by it. But it is a disastrous thing to do for any child. Whenever I found myself correcting exercises that had obviously been done for the boys in their homes I used to say to them: "Paul tell your father that he must use the ablative after pro." "Yes, sir," says the boy. "And Edward, you tell your grandmother that her use of the dative case, simply won't do. She's gipping along nicely and I'm satisfied with the way she's doing, but I cannot have her using the dative right and left on every occasion. Tell her it won't do." "Yes, sir," says little Edward.

I remember one case in particular of a parent who did not do the boy's exercise, but, after letting the boy do it himself, wrote across the face of it a withering comment addressed to me and reading: "From this exercise you can see that my boy, after six months of your teaching, is completely ignorant. How do you account for it?" I sent the exercise back to him with the added note: "I think it must be hereditary."—Stephen Leacock, in College Days.

Romantic Story of Old London Jacobite Bank

One of the most romantic stories in banking history is recalled by the announcement that the business of Messrs. Drummond of Charing Cross, the old-established private bankers, has many associations with the Jacobites. Indeed, its founder, Andrew Drummond, is believed to have been a Jacobite first and a banker afterward. It is at least certain that he walked from Edinburgh to London, with a price on his head, bearing funds to be used to secure the restoration of the Stuarts. The Malacca cane with a gold crutch handle which he carried with him on this adventurous journey still hangs, a treasured possession, in the bank parlor.

The old banker probably thought of this journey and of the risks he had run in taking it, when Simon Fraser, Lord Lovat, the "old fox" of the highlands, passed the bank on his way to the tower after the "forty-five." Lovat, whose gray hairs did not save him from the scaffold, had been on the books of the firm.

As he passed the bank windows Robert and Henry Drummond looked out to see him, but Andrew sat still at his desk. "I suppose you would run out to watch me if I was to be beheaded," he remarked, dryly.

HISTORIC FLAG PLAYS PART AT HANSEN EVENT

National Colors Carried in Civil War and Tattered by Gunfire Displayed at Community Memorial Service.

An impressive service was held Sunday morning at the Hansen community church by the members of Sherman circle, leaders of the G. A. R. of Hansen, in honor of the deceased war veterans. The members of the circle marched to their places to the music of the Battle Hymn of the Republic, played by Mrs. J. H. Hall. Mrs. Lewis conducted the roll call, reading the names of the deceased veterans, the ladies answering present to the names which they represented. Mrs. Byron, acting as chaplain, gave the invocation.

The pastor, the Rev. Tom Blodgett, previous to his sermon, paid a glowing tribute to the sparsed and tattered flag which stood in front of the pulpit, giving as its history the following facts: This flag was made by an organization in St. Louis called the Loyal Ladies of St. Louis and was presented to the 59th Illinois infantry in 1861. Telly carried it through several battles and when it came badly torn the government gave them another flag and this one was carried as a sort of mascot.

It was unfurled again at the battle of Lookout Mountain, but was so torn with shot and shell that it was never used again. After the war it fell into the hands of Captain Hackney. He felt he would send it to the nation, and he gave it to J. S. Hyman. It is now in the keeping of Mrs. Hyman of the Hansen circle of the Ladies of the G. A. R.

As a text the Rev. Mr. Blodgett chose these words: "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people," and very forcibly portrayed to the minds of all present the need of America's acting as a world example for bringing about universal peace.

ABOUT WATER

This year in the Twin Falls country there will be less water for irrigation than has been the case in a good many years past. Just how serious this shortage may become cannot be accurately estimated at this time, but one thing is sure; no matter if the actual water supply is cut to 75 per cent of the normal flow, there need be little effect upon a majority of all crops if the best possible available use is made of what water there is.

With a view to gaining as thorough an understanding as possible of the conditions as they now exist with respect to the effect of a curtailed supply upon the crops of this section, The News has asked a great many questions of a good many different persons during the past ten days, and in all the opinions gathered one point stands out clearly and distinctly. All agree that there will be an actual shortage of water, but all further agree that much of the trouble which usually accompanies such a contingency can be averted by a safe, sane and sensible employment of such water as is available.

Primarily The News is not an agricultural newspaper. Its editors claim no particular knowledge of the business of farming and it has never been a part of the News' policy to thrust its advice unasked upon any element of the Twin Falls Country population. But in a juncture such as this The News is glad of an opportunity to pass along what it regards as the best judgment of the best men in the farming business as to what can be done to conserve the available water and secure the best possible results to everybody.

First and foremost, the experience of dozens of farmers bears out the statement that sugar beet crops as a whole have been receiving too much, rather than too little, water during the past several years; that the biggest crops per acre have been raised with a watering of only every second row, and that where more than this amount of water has been used the crops have not grown in the second year.

Detailed information on these points may be had from any one of a dozen of the most successful raisers of beets in these parts. Yet a majority of all beet growers have always used more than this amount of water, and many, unless they will take the trouble to investigate the matter for themselves, will consider their beet prospects as nil, unless the water can be poured over the land as heretofore. To those men The News would urge a honest investigation of the use of water by the men who have in the past grown the biggest crops of sugar beets, from the standpoint, not of how much water can we get but, how little water can we get along with and obtain a maximum beet crop?

With respect to potato and bean crops, the same general attitude of mind is apparent among those with whom the matter has been discussed. In the past, according to these men, a prodigious use of water has been the normal use. This cannot be done this year. The water will not be here to use. But there is ground for the belief that there need be little loss in crops, nevertheless.

"I regard the present shortage as a blessing in disguise," was the remark of one man. "What one man can do another can," said still another, "and I know of my own knowledge that bumper crops of beets, beans and potatoes can be raised by me with less water than is employed by others to raise smaller crops on the same amount of land."

"Am I afraid of not having water enough?" asked another. "I am not. I know there will be less water, but that does not mean smaller crops, for me, at any rate."

Less water and more cultivation, moisture applied in a manner to approximate the natural rainfall. Frequent short runs from six to eight days apart. These are the points dwelt upon mainly. There are others of course, but those mentioned are of principal importance.

The News, for its own part, offers no word of advice. It does, however, urge an investigation of the points covered. If these points are sound there is but little ground for worry over the water situation.

CONGRATULATIONS

The opening of the new hotel at Contact Saturday marks the culmination of hopes, which have been entertained, not only in Contact, but over a large part of Northern Nevada and Southern Idaho, for many years past.

The Hotel Fairview occupies a location which does not belie its name, and in point of general convenience and the various points of service which are looked for in hostelry in towns many times larger than Contact, the Fairview is a credit to the town.

Twin Falls would congratulate those Contact interests which by their enterprise have made the Fairview possible. The spirit which has brought into existence this great community asset is something of which to be proud. Contact is already a bigger town by reason of the building of the Hotel Fairview.

PARKS EVERYWHERE

The automobile is bringing about a demand for rural parks. City parks are everywhere regarded as essential. There are a few state parks which have justified their existence and promptly that the development of others is likely to follow soon. There are, of course, the national parks which are preserved for the benefit of citizens of today and of the future. But the average rural community isn't supposed to need a park. Every farm family has its own park in its orchard or its woodlot or along the little ravine through which the creek runs. Why have a special area set aside for a public park?

There are probably several reasons, but the chief one is to provide a recreation ground where lunches may be eaten and games played without disturbing the farm regime. Many a farmer who would have no objection at all to a quiet picnic party coming onto his land and rambling through his woods has to put up "no trespass" signs because the overflow of would-be picnickers from the city is too large to be safe for his fields and fence posts.

City parks are full. The automobile makes it possible for families who are crowded out of the city parks to look farther afield for their picnic grounds. A rural park would meet their present need and would also furnish a playground for the farming community in which it was located. Furthermore, it would be there, ready for future use, as the section became more closely settled.

These are the days when everybody ought to favor parks in every suitable location.

"Matrimonially Speaking"

By Hugh McKay.

My wife can't say "no" to people over the telephone.

If somebody called up and asked her if she could be ready to start for South Africa in a half hour I know she'd say "yes."

She accepts every kind and variety of invitation that comes in over the wire. The distressing part of it is that I never have time to head her off before the damage is done.

Every time she goes to the phone I sit waiting to hear:

"Why, yes, Mrs. Hodge, I'm sure Hugh and I would love to go with you. You say it's an entertainment to be given by the young people of your church. Thursday evening at 8—thank you so much."

And there we are; booked up for perhaps the most terrible evening ever invented. And all because my wife won't stop to think and give her better judgment a chance.

"I think I'll have to get a large sign painted on the wall over our phone: 'Danger! Invitation ahead! Say 'No' for your husband's sake.'"

Tomorrow: "My husband goes to sleep while we're listening to our friends' radio."

Jack and Janet help Lonesome Bear put out a fire in a berry patch. They cannot understand who would be so careless as to start a fire in the woods and then leave it.

CHAPTER II.

More Fires.

"THERE is another fire!" cried Janet, pointing where a spiral of smoke was floating upward from among the trees.

"Who can be setting these fires in the woods?" said Jack. "We must stop him before he destroys the forest."

Leaving Lonesome Bear cooling himself off in the creek, the children ran toward the spot where the smoke was rising. They found a fire burning briskly through dried grass on the bank of the pond.

"Hiss-angel! Hiss-angel!" they heard a voice from amid the tall grass in the path of the fire. Looking through the smoke they saw the blazer. It was Snapper Turtle. He was waddling along for dear life, racing the swiftly moving fire.

But Snapper Turtle even when going in his fastest gait was not very speedy. The fire caught up with him and would have swept over if it had not happened that he came upon a big rock. He clambered to the top of this and the flames whirled past on either side of him.

"Hiss-angel! Help!" begged Snapper Turtle. "Get me out of this or I'll soon be turtle soup."

Jack and Janet thought that instead of turtle soup he would be roast turtle, but they did not wait to argue the matter. They got fir branches and bent out the fire before it could turn Snapper Turtle into soup or roast him.

"Hiss-angel! Thank you!" said Snapper Turtle when the fire was out. "If I ever catch the boy that set that grass on fire I'll pinch him black and blue."

Jack and Janet opened their eyes when they heard this. So it was a boy who was setting the dangerous fires in the woods. Before they had time to ask Snapper Turtle more about the boy they heard King Bird shrieking an alarm.

Running to it, they beat and stamped it until not a spark was left.

"Huzz-z-z! Huzz-z-z! Huzz-z-z!" Wild howl came warning out of their house in the dead tree. "Huzz-z-z! Thank you, Jack and Janet for saving our home!" said they. "But if we catch the boy who set it afire we will make it hot for him."

"So will I," declared Jack. "I will give him a thrashing for trying to burn down the beautiful woods."

(How they find the boy and how Jack sets about giving him a thrashing will be told in tomorrow's chapter.)

And to the consternation of the spectators he again brought his hands before him. Men rushed upon him but the cords had vanished. Little Big Man glared murderously, then grew uneasy. A doubt was appearing in his mind. Mato Tipi was sacred ground, and those who prayed to Tunkan through rocks and stones must be very careful not to give offense. The prisoners were white, yet they had been captured, taken by surprise, when placing rocks in the trees. Scissors read the tumult in the man's mind and whispered encouragement to Dinadale.

Little Big Man gave an order and both men were released and conducted outside the lodge and tied to the medicine pole, from which hung the strangled puppy. A warrior was told to sit behind them to watch their hands. The warrior obeyed, but did not fancy the task for it was like applying on some agency controlled by Tunkan. To Dinadale Scissors said: "They're badly worried. Every hour we're kept alive improves our chances. Little Big Man won't dare hurt us until he hears from Crazy Horse. Already he has sent a messenger to Slim butte to fill in the details of the mirror-message."

The warrior behind him reached a hand forward and roughly clapped it over his mouth. Scissors' left hand shot to the front and caught the offending palm and at the same time his right hand darted up under the armpit and, pulling and pushing, he sent the guard rolling headlong. The camp was in an uproar in an instant. The warriors scrambling for their weapons. Scissors sternly called out: "The Ogakila are very foolish. My medicine will grow very angry. Some of you will go to Mato Tipi tonight as ghosts. What do you mean by treating the friends of your war chief in this way? Are we Crows or Poncas?"

Little Big Man clenched his lips and puzzled the situation. To leave the prisoners' hands free was to confess failure. To tie them up was useless. His quarry was interrupted by the rapid drumming of flying hoofs. A pony rider in among the lodges and a rider threw himself to the ground. With a gleam of hope lighting his sulen eyes, Little Big Man called on the man to speak.

"Tashuna-ulco and Shunac-luta, his medicine man, even now are riding to this camp," announced the man. "They were on the way here with a dozen warriors when Little Big Man's first messenger met them and told them about the white men. They will be here very soon."

"It is good," cried Little Big Man in great relief.

"What's he saying?" muttered Dinadale.

"Crazy Horse and his medicine man, Sorrel Horse, will arrive in a minute or so. I am very wakan, but only Taku Wakan can straighten this mess out. If only Crazy Horse was coming it would be better. Sorrel Horse is jealous of all medicine men. He'll work to have us skinned alive. But a man can't do for so long as he can hope."

CHAPTER IX

The Duel of the Medicines

Although Crazy Horse and Sorrel Horse rode into Little Big Man's camp shortly before midnight the prisoners saw nothing of either. Before the great leader of the hostiles arrived the white men were conducted back to the lodge and the flap tightly closed. A small fire was lighted inside and by its light three warriors stood on guard to prevent any attempt at escape. Dinadale was asleep when the war chief and his escort of a dozen men made the camp and was aroused by the commotion.

On opening his eyes he beheld the three silent figures of the guards, their eyes reflecting the light from the heap of coals. Scissors was awake, and whispered:

"If I can have a talk with Crazy Horse I think we will be all right for a while. But that Shunac-luta will try to keep between us. He ranks high as a mystery man and is a fair magician and ventriloquist. He claims to get his help from Tashunakakan, their moving god, who lives in the four winds and is never seen, but is represented by Tunkan, who in turn is prayed to through rocks and stones. Queer mess. Reckon a white man can never get it all straightened out. I made a picture of Sorrel Horse when I was prisoner that other time, and it scared him. He's bound to work against us. But I'm wakan. Wish Crazy Horse would come in to look us over."

Scissors would have felt more at ease had he known that the chief's first desire was to have the prisoners brought before him. Sorrel Horse, however, requested time for consultation. Scissors pronounced it to be better to wait until the sun rode the sky. Although considerably disturbed that the chief should ignore him, Scissors dissembled and Dinadale fell asleep and did not awaken until morning. With the sunrise came another kettle of meat. Scissors pronounced it to be mule deer and Dinadale ate heartily. After they had eaten, Little Big Man visited them, and he could not conceal his secret exultation. Scissors pretended not to see him, and after waiting several minutes the Indian said:

"Now Shunac-luta has come. Two Knives Talking has lost both his medicine and tongue. They say the white man was tied up all night and could not get free."

Scissors, who had finished his bowl of meat and had his hands free, picked up some things his guards had left on the ground and rolled them into a small ball and held them in one palm. Then his fingers closed over them, contracting as if squeezing them into a very small compass, then flew open and the ball had vanished.

Little Big Man scowled ineffectually. Scissors said:

"Two Knives Talking knows his medicine is still strong. It grows weary of working on children. Send in Shunac-luta with his medicine. Then we shall see."

Just outside the entrance a deep voice boomed: "The white man's medicine is very strong. But the medicine of Shunac-luta will eat it up. Two Knives Talking once ran away from the Ogakila. Now Shunac-luta's medicine brings him back. This time, they say, he will not leave until he feels that he is a ghost."

Little Big Man's eyes glittered at this threat.

Scissors called back: "Shunac-luta is very wakan, but Taku Wakan has not whispered in his ear. Why does he stay outside the lodge? The white man will not hurt him."

Sorrel Horse at once appeared in the entrance. Like the famous Sitting Bull, who is said to have foretold the Custer massacre, he wore a bunch of shed buffalo hair fastened to the side of his raven locks. This hair was wakan and was painted red and repeated the times when the buffalo filled the plains. It was also a symbol of the coming of the White Buffalo Maiden. His medicine pouch was formed from badger paws and had badger claws as pendants; for it was from the bear that he had learned how to treat adults, while the badger told him enough of medicine to dream how to cure children. He also carried the bent stick of one who has dreamed of a wolf. But it was his renown as a magician, and not his success as a healer, that elevated him high among the wakan wakanas, and high above the grass-root medicine men.

Scissors invited him to come and let our readers talk it over."

But Sorrel Horse did not intend to waste any dramatic effects before so small an audience. Outside the stage was set for convincing Crazy Horse that even High Wolf, the Cheyenne, was far below Shunac-luta in matters of magic. Instead, the white man he said to Little Big Man:

"Bring the prisoners out in the sunlight. That man's medicine does not like the sunlight. It works best under the moon."

The prisoners were at once led forth and seated before the medicine pole. Dinadale was glad to observe that the strangled puppy had been removed. Ravine was looped around their waists, and tied to the pole, but their hands were not secured. In a half-circle before them sat forty warriors. Scissors glanced anxiously about for Crazy Horse, but the chief was not present.

Sorrel Horse, however, was the principal figure in the scene until Crazy Horse should put in an appearance, carefully spread a wolf skin and after seating himself cross-legged before it made much of peering into a mirror. He took pains to turn the mirror so the curious warriors could observe the new man and saw reflected in white on its face. His vanity was highly pleased as he noted how intently the spectators followed every move he made.

Little Big Man stared triumphantly at the prisoners and nodded to their guards. The signal had been prearranged. The guards, pulling their spears, searched Dinadale and took nearly four thousand dollars from his pockets. The money was mostly in greenbacks. The time was gone when the Indian was ignorant of money values, and while they still called money "white metal," they knew a piece of paper was worth more than silver dollar. Beady eyes glittered at the bills and a bag of dust were placed on a blanket before Little Big Man. From Scissors only a small amount of money was taken; and Little Big Man tickled the fancy of his followers by frantically advising:

"Two Knives Talking should make a feast for the white man's metal god."

When the pad of paper and small scissors were held up Little Big Man hesitated, then shook his head. Paper and scissors were very much wakan and he did not care to assume charge of them.

LIFE OF YOUTH TAKEN AS TOLL OF AUTO WRECK

Edwin Wegner, 18, son of Fred D. Wegner, Suffers Fatal Injuries When Car Leaves Road on Highway West of Buhl.

Edwin Wegner, 18, son of Fred D. Wegner, of Clover and Twin Falls, one of a party of four young men and two young women returned Saturday night from Banbury's natorium in Snake river canyon, north of Buhl, suffered fatal injuries when the car in which they were riding left the road on a turn in the state highway five miles west of Buhl, and turned over several times causing injury of greater or less seriousness to all of the members of the party and wrecking the machine.

Joseph Moyland, 24, owner and driver of the car, who came recently to Buhl from Washington, suffered severe lacerations about the right arm and leg at the county general hospital, where all of the victims of the accident were brought early Sunday morning, the others being discharged within a short time.

Funeral Services Arranged.

Death of Edwin Wegner, resulting from hemorrhage from internal injuries occurred at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, about nine hours after the fatal accident. Funeral services, it was announced today, will be held Thursday afternoon in the Lutheran church at Clover, following private services at the family home in the vicinity of Clover.

Members of the party on the ill-fated excursion, besides Edwin Wegner and Joseph Moyland, were Martin Wegner, brother of the dead boy; Miss Beatrice Brown and Miss Bertha Brown, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. R. Brown of Buhl; and Emil Patton, Edwin Wegner and Miss Beatrice Brown, who suffered painful bruises, occupied the front seat with the driver when the accident occurred.

Wheel Brakes Off.

The car was proceeding at a high rate of speed, and the driver is said to have attempted to make the turn onto the road to the left after passing the center of the road. The wheels of the car and the car overturned. Members of the party, all of whom were rendered unconscious, were taken aboard a car that followed them on the highway and taken to Buhl to the office of Dr. A. F. McCluskey and thence to the hospital. Injuries of Edwin Wegner did not seem at that time to be serious. He lapsed into unconsciousness a short time after being brought to the hospital. The bereaved parents did not learn of the occurrence until shortly before the lad expired.

Parents of the Misses Brown, in another car, had accompanied the party to the natorium and were traveling on the road ahead of the wrecked car when the accident occurred.

Persuaded to Change Plans.

Edwin and Martin Wegner and the Misses Brown, who had set out together in another car to make the trip to the natorium, were persuaded by Moyland, when they reached Buhl, to join him in his car, a seven-passenger Peerless, which, he said, was large enough to accommodate the entire party comfortably.

Edwin Wegner was one of 13 children of Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Wegner, one of whom now survive. A brother, Theo. H. Wegner of Boise, arrived here Monday and another brother, who is attending school in St. Louis, and two sisters in California, are expected to arrive here Wednesday to attend the funeral on the following day. The family has been identified with the development of the Clover district since its beginning about 10 years ago, and are widely and well known throughout this region.

MOTORIST IS FOUND GUILTY.

Duvall in probate court here Monday of violating the state road law as charged in a complaint filed last week by the prosecuting attorney's office at the instance of D. H. Woodman. Judge Duvall announced today judgment will be pronounced today.

Opportunity for Enlistment Before Summer Encampment Finds Ready Takers.

Opportunity for enlistment of company L, 18th, infantry, Twin Falls unit of the Idaho national guard, which was opened by discharge of some 10 or 12 members at the close of the school year, was seized upon Monday evening by a number of young men who heretofore had been enrolling on the company's waiting list, so that at the close of the company's drill period that evening the number of vacancies had been reduced to three. Officers of the company expressed the opinion that the company would be recruited to maximum strength within the next few days, and pointed out attractions in store for members of the company at the encampment opening June 14 at Camp Lewis and continuing for two weeks.

Instructions as to the itinerary of the guardsmen attending camp and other information was brought to the company at its assembly for drill Monday evening by Captain L. E. DITCH PROBLEM GETS ATTENTION OF COMMISSION Delivery of Water to West Side Properties is Discussed; Library Board Appeals for Added Appropriation.

Problems attending the delivery of irrigation water through the cross-city ditch and application of the city library board for an increase of $1,000 in its annual appropriation were the principal matters before the Twin Falls municipal commission at its regular meeting Monday evening.

Straightening of the city irrigation ditch when paving was installed in 1919 and 1920 constituted the background for the discussion which ended in the decision that A. J. Meyers, city attorney, take up the matter with counsel for the Twin Falls canal company. Complaints as to water delivery have been received from persons living just inside the west city limits whose lands the ditch was designed to supply, according to Harley Rayburn, street and waterworks superintendent.

The commission found itself not in a position to act on the application of W. A. McDonald to rent a number of the city's water shares in case a surplus was found to exist.

Recapitulate Board Members

W. E. Nixon appeared before the commission on behalf of the library board, announcing that the terms of Mrs. R. F. Morse and Stuart H. Taylor are about to expire. On recommendation of Mayor Shad L. Hodgins they were reappointed.

Following discussion of the application for an increase of $1,000 in the library's appropriation for the year, the commission, on motion of Commissioner W. T. Leslie, recommended that the library board submit its application to the school district. Mayor Hodgins voted on Commissioner Leslie's motion. The library appropriation provided for in the present year's municipal budget is $6,000, the same as the appropriation of the previous fiscal year.

An interesting phase of Mr. Nixon's report to the commissioners was that the circulation of the Twin Falls public library is greater, in proportion to population and the number of volumes, than that of any other city in southern Idaho. Mr. Nixon's figures showed that the circulation per year of the local library is 20,000 more than that of Pocatello, although the latter city has a considerably larger number of volumes on its library shelves. The proportion of book circulation to population is also greatly in favor of Twin Falls in comparison with Boise, Mr. Nixon said.

Mr. Nixon stated that the additional appropriation is needed mainly to replace books worn out and discarded. Heating facilities are now insufficient during cold weather, he stated.

The Warburg Transer company was granted permission to install a set of heavy scales adjoining its building on Fourth street south.

Payment to W. J. Milseth of $37.50 representing increased price for tile of better quality than that specified in contract with the city was authorized. License to operate pool and card tables was granted to Pedro Rous and M. P. Cruz.

FIVE hundred big red ponies for Memorial day (next Friday). $1.50 per dozen. Lots of other cut flowers and plants. Thousands of pansies in bloom. Phone 1279. Seventh street south. City Tower Greenhouses. Twin Falls, Idaho—adv.
