GIBBONS WINS EASILY FROM FRENCH BOXER

St. Paul Man is Master of Carpentier at Every Turn in 10-Round Bout; Opponent Barely Saved From Knockout.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 31 (AP)—Tom Gibbons of St. Paul, Minn., the only boxer ever to stay the limit with Jack Dempsey, restored himself to standing as a contender for the world's heavyweight championship today when he decisively defeated Georges Carpentier, ring idol of France, in their 10-round international contest. It was decided before a capacity crowd of 27,000 to 30,000 spectators in the Sky-Rise arena on the edge of this little resort city.

Gibbons, winning from start to finish, perfect master of the situation at every stage of the battle, had his French foe staggering and groggy half a dozen times, and only Carpentier's refusal to battle passively saved him from a knockout.

Georges Limpes From Ring.
Carpentier, bleeding from the mouth and blood dripping from a cut over his right eye, limped from the ring between two of his seconds a thoroughgoing fight to the hour. The Frenchman claimed he twisted his right ankle in the ninth round when he slipped on a wet spot in the ring during a lively exchange at close quarters.

He was unable to walk to his corner of the ring unassisted, but fell limply into the arms of a policeman when he attempted to descend from the ring. He was carried up the aisle through the crowds to his dressing room.

Nearly Got K. O.
Carpentier withstood a shower of left hooks and right smashes that were meant to end the contest half a dozen times, because he continually retreated, hung on in the clinches and forced Gibbons to chase him. Carpentier was in such a desperate situation in the seventh round, reeling and groggy from solid blows to the chin, that his manager, Francois Deschamps, scrambled from the corner to the floor of the ring just outside the ropes and began yelling to Carpentier, in excited French, to be careful. Carpentier also was tottering at 4:30 and of the eighth, ninth and tenth rounds.

Gibbons fought a perfect fight, a fight he evidently planned before starting. He beat his foe to pieces, but the stubborn retreating Frenchman kept well covered, always backing away and would not yield to a finishing blow. The St. Paul boxer figured that he was Carpentier's master before they had finished the first round. He had no difficulty in connecting whenever he started a blow and smashed the Frenchman's body and head with perfectly timed left hooks, interspersing them with jolting right crosses to the chin.

Gave Receipts Heavy.
Gibbons, who did not get a dime for fighting the battle at Shelby, Mont., last July 4, will receive 30 per cent of today's receipts, while Carpentier received a guarantee of $70,000, including $5000 training expenses, with the privilege of 25 per cent of the receipts. If the receipts hit the $300,000 mark, which is possible, Gibbons will receive $90,000, the largest purse by far of his career, the largest amount he ever received before being $12,000.

Gibbons Beats Former Champion.

Tom Gibbons and George Carpenter.

TOMMY GIBBONS, the St. Paul fighter who stayed the limits with Jack Dempsey at Shelby, Mont., last July, decisively defeated George Carpenter, Franco's famed fighter and former light-heavyweight champion, in their 10-round battle at Michigan City Saturday. Gibbons proved himself master of the Frenchman in practically every round and Carpenter was narrowly saved from a knockout.

ANOTHER GAME MARKED UP FOR VISITING NINE

Pocatello Batters Twin Falls Baseball Players for 13 Hits and Take Second Game by Score of Ten to Five.

Battering Twin Falls for 13 hits, Pocatello took the second game of the three-day bout on the league field Saturday afternoon with a 10 to 5 score. A more handful of fans witnessed the dull game. The feature plays of the game were Whitzell's home run in the fifth and Watson's catch of a difficult foul ball in the seventh, which he accompanied with a backward somersault.

Pocatello batters who were powerless before Keller Friday, found Linville and Fix comparatively easy going and hit the former nine times, pounding him from the box in the fifth, and got but four from Fix in the final innings, three of them doubles and a single. Alldred pitched the whole route for the Gato City team, getting the ball safely past 12 local batsmen, and allowing eight hits in the game, including Whitzell's homer and Keller's double.

Fielding Good.
Twin Falls playing with a rearranged infield fielded the ball on a par with the Braves and on two occasions Russell, local catcher, proved his ability to catch runners at second and installed some respect in the visitors' minds for the pegging prowess of the high school backstop.

Linville started in the box for Twin Falls and got out of the first inning lucky without a hit. In the second he fared not so well and Grayson singled but still no runs were scored. The Blues in the meantime scored one run in the first inning when Whitzell with a single and Jarman's sacrifice got to third and came home on a wild throw. This was the end of the local scoring, however, until the fifth inning.

Pocatello Starts.
In the third stanza Pocatello took the hit in its teeth and with the assistance of two passes and an error of Red Ball were able to bring in four runs and take the lead with but three hits in the inning. In the fourth Linville shut down on the visitors and held them to a single hit and the score stood 4 to 1 for Pocatello at the start of the fifth.

Reese started the fifth inning off by getting a pass to first, scoring on Bourne's first hit of the series, a neat double. Bourne came in when Grayson singled and another double by Hill advanced him to third where he evaded Russell, Watson and Linville, who attempted to catch him between third and home when Warner doubled.

Fix Takes Box.
Fix took the box after this mixup and retired the side with the next two men up.

In the latter half of the inning Keller started a similar rally for the Blues with a two-bagger, Bailey also getting on on an error, and both taking advantage of Whitzell's homer to score. Yechem brought in the fourth and final run of the inning when Red Ball's single to right field was converted to a triple when Feldstead allowed the apple to slip untouched through his legs. Then the score stood 8 to 5 until the seventh when a single, a double and a sacrifice brought in two more tallies for Pocatello.

Twin Falls started a spurt in the seventh when three singles, without a man down, populated the bases, but an assist to short by Alldred accounted for one out and two high fouls to Grayson left the three men still stranded on the bases without bringing across a tally. The Blues never got to first in the last two innings.

Today the two teams will play the deciding game which promises to be the best of the trio. Phillips, who got 15 strikeouts in the Memorial day game, will probably occupy the mound for Pocatello and Oswald will demonstrate his ability in the box for the Blues. Richard will catch the Seattle twirler and the fans which were noticeable by their absence Saturday will undoubtedly turn out for the final fracas.

Box Score.

JAPANESE TAKES HIS LIFE AS PROTEST ON AMERICAN LEGISLATION

"Nameless Subject of Mikado" Commits Suicide in Front of United States Embassy.

TOKIO, May 31 (AP)—A Japanese, signing himself "a nameless subject of the Mikado" today committed suicide in the wide open space in front of the ruins of the American embassy in Akasaka-Ku, the most fashionable residential section of Tokyo, as a protest against the enactment of Japanese exclusion act by the American congress.

The Japanese, apparently 40 years old, dressed in the formal costume of a Japanese gentleman, whose name the police say they have not learned, took his life by harakiri, using a short Japanese sword. He left a letter addressed to the retiring American ambassador, Cyrus E. Woods, which the latter informed the police they might keep. From this letter found on the body, the police inferred that the man was a Christian. In it he declared that he was hiding his identity to prove that his action was not the result of craving for self-advertisement.

RIVAL POLO TEAMS TO MEET AT BOISE TODAY

BOISE, May 31 (AP)—Both teams charged with a rivalry of long standing which was intensified during the tournament at Vancouver three weeks ago for the championship of the northwest, Camp Lewis, the champions, and the Seventh Infantry of Vancouver barracks, runners-up, will meet this afternoon on the barracks field in the third game of the tournament in Boise. Camp Lewis emerged victorious by one point at Vancouver only after a neck and neck race with the infantry, after which the score stood 8 to 7. Both teams have strong lineups of veteran players.

SEVERAL BASEBALL GAMES ARE LISTED FOR SUNDAY

Burley and Hansen tangle this afternoon on the Hansen grounds. On the two teams are a number of players from Twin Falls, including Ray Odgin, high school pitcher who occupied the mound Friday against Albion for Burley. Bob Putzler is a very probable moundman for Hansen to perform with the Hansen team which has previously annexed the scalp of Eden. At Buhl the victorious Kimberly also will cross bats with Cal Griswold's Grays who trimmed Glenn Perry nearly last Sunday in a one-sided battle on the Buhl field.

These two games with the local encounter between Pocatello and Twin Falls occupies the center of the baseball stage for Sunday's games.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON TAKES CONFERENCE MEET

EUGENE, Ore., May 31 (AP)—Seating 1,000 in the indoor polo vault, and taking third place in the mile relay race, the University of Oregon track and field team captured first place in the Pacific coast conference track meet this afternoon. The Oregon team garnered 37 points; Washington was second with 36, Stanford and Oregon Agricultural college tied for third with 30 points. Idaho was fourth with 17, Washington State fifth with 16 and Montana last with five.

One conference record, the half mile, was broken, Dodge, Oregon Agricultural lowering his own time from 1:50 4-5 to 1:56.2. Spearow, Oregon, won the pole vault at 12 feet 9 inches, but was unable to eclipse the world's record in his six trials.

Oregon held the lead in the relay race until the last lap when the Washington and Idaho runners brushed past in the back stretch and took first and second places respectively. Had Oregon failed to place in the relay the meet would have gone to the Washington team.

Spearow of the Oregon team was high point man of the meet with first in the high jump and pole vault and second in the broad jump for a total of 13 points.

Art Tuck, competing in the Olympic tryouts for the Spokane Athletic club, threw the javelin 194 feet 3 inches. Shaffer, throwing the discs for Montana, failed to break the conference record held by Pope of Washington.

Oregon scored first places in the high jump, pole vault and broad jump. Washington took first in the 100 and 440 yard dashes, relay and low hurdles. Stanford took first in the high hurdles, javelin and shot put. The Oregon Argies scored first in the mile and half mile.

"I cannot be deported" he said and this was supplemented by formal notice of appeal, filed by his counsel. The trial court itself gave the defendant a respite of nearly six months by announcing that it would not pass sentence until October 14 next. After that the defense will have sixty days in which to file its appeal to the church's board of review.

FRANCE AND THE LEAGUE

Edmond Herriot, comig premier of France, announces that France's future foreign policy will be built around the League of Nations. He says the world's hope for peace lies in utilizing that organization for the transaction of international business. He has no intention, he explains, of weakening French security against Germany or waiving any proper payment of reparations. His immediate task is to safeguard French interests along that line. But he looks to the League as the means through which the best French guarantees of safety, peace and justice may be gained in the long run.

This is interesting, to say the least, from the leader of a country which has been considered lukewarm in its support of the League. It is also in harmony with the foreign policy of Premier MacDonald of Great Britain. Both of these liberal leaders have now declared in favor of utilizing the League as far as they can for "international business," and strengthening it where it seems weak or futile. With the two leading countries of Europe committed to such a policy, the League stock is certainly rising abroad. And Americans, whatever their attitude toward League membership may be, have no reason for anything but good will toward such a development.

If Europe can make the League of Nations more useful for settling its problems and minimizing war caused on that continent, America will benefit by it even though it has no part in the process.

MUSICAL PROGRESSES

Paderewski should be a good judge of the musical status of any nation. In an interview in Paris, she left America, he speaks of musical progress in this country in a way that should please every good American. "I have had long experience of America," he says, "and when I contrast my first experiences with my more recent, I am struck with the quickness with which musical education has spread throughout the United States. Where there were hundreds of years ago who would go to listen to classical music, there are now many thousands, men and women, who both understand and appreciate." It goes farther than mere passing appreciation, says the great pianist. He makes no prophecies of an outburst of musical genius here, but says that "in execution Americans are going very far ahead, and very quickly."

This testimony is the more reassuring because Paderewski is not obliged in Paris to say fine things about America. Any observing person is likely to corroborate his views. The advance in musical education and enjoyment in this country in the last twenty years is amazing, and it is more rapid today than ever before.

OLD STORIES

A sea captain drifted into an American port the other day with a new yarn. "The chart," he said, "put us in the Palayan passage, off the southern end of the island of Palawan, in the Philippines. We were supposed to have plenty of room. But as sure as you're sitting there, dead ahead were eight floating islands; the largest more than seven acres in extent. We checked with our instruments to make sure they moved. We passed one less than fifty feet to starboard, and

Fifteen Years Ago in Twin Falls

From News Friday, June 4, 1909.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Twin Falls Investment company held in Twin Falls on Tuesday, June 1, the officers of the company were re-elected. They are: C. B. Hurtt, president; H. L. Hollister, vice president; I. B. Perrine, vice president and general manager; R. M. McCollum, assistant general manager and sales agent; R. H. Cost, secretary; George F. Sprague, treasurer; directors, C. B. Hurtt, H. L. Hollister, R. M. McCollum, George F. Sprague, I. B. Perrine, A. McPherson and S. H. Hays. Minor changes have been made in the official roster from time to time as conditions demanded.

Mr. McCollum was secretary of the company and sales agent during the early days when the original tract was opened. His office was in a little shack on lower Main street, and for a time his principal occupation was rustling water. Visitors were few and far between and Mr. McCollum spent most of his time watching the jackrabbits gamboling in the sagebrush. Land seekers had to drive over from Shoshone or Kimama by stage and the dusty journey across the desert did not add to their enthusiasm. They were sent out in wagons through the sagebrush and the experience was productive of many cases of "cold feet."

Nowadays the land seekers travel in Pullman cars and are taken out in automobiles over good roads. Under Mr. Hurtt's presidency the policy of the company has never varied, and the remarkable success achieved confirms the soundness of his judgment.

The contract between the Twin Falls Investment company, the Twin Falls Townsite company and the Twin Falls Land and Water company was executed on July 9, 1904. By its terms the investment company agreed to sell in five years the townsite of Twin Falls and the lands under the original Twin Falls canal system. This contract expires on July 9 of this year, the investment company will be able to report that it has sold all ground in the Twin Falls townsite and nine-tenths of the land under the canal system. It also has sold the platted portion of the Buhl townsite and practically all the land on the Salmon tract.

Jack Bratton sent in two four-horse teams loaded with wool from Three Creek on Thursday. He is storing his wool in the Alkon warehouse.

Mr. and Mrs. George Scott were in from their home on the Salmon tract last Wednesday. Mr. Scott said the Salmon was carrying a lot of water and indications were favorable for a good run off this year.

Harry West returned on Friday last from Omaha, where he took his crop of spring lambs. The trip from Kimberly to Omaha occupied seven days. He had considerable shipping owing to having to unload so often, but in spite of shrinkage managed to top the market. At the time he sold woolled yearlings were bringing $9.25 per cwt.

Bert Sowle has moved his barber shop from the ground floor of the Hotel Perrine to the basement of the annex. His new chairs are still hung up on the road and he could not wait for them. When the shop is furnished it will be one of the prettiest in the state.

Alfred J. Dunn, John L. Dunn and Miss Susan Hoes of Wallace, were in on Wednesday. They are making yearly proof on their desert claims near Geop Springs. They have drilled a deep well from which a good supply of water is now flowing.

Miss Carrie Newman made a safe journey from Denmark, arriving in Hansen Monday, where she took the stage for Rock Creek where her brother, Dr. William Newman, and other relatives reside. She was accompanied by her brother, George Newman of Racine, Wis.

and monkeys up in the trees heaved recounts at us. It was a ticklish moment, with those islands moving at us and drifting together."

A good sea tale, but old stuff! When Homer composed the Odyssey, some 3,000 years ago, he told of the Spheryades, at the entrance from the Black sea into the Bosporus, which rushed together to crush the Argonauts, as they sailed through on their quest for the Golden Fleece. And it was an old yarn then. But that is all right. Sea life is conservative. And the best yarns are the oldest.

Original "Star Rover"

A prisoner in San Quentin named Morrell was the original leading character in the "Star Rover" by Jack London. When he was a boy, he was a member of an outlaw gang in California. He was captured and consigned to the state prison. Because he rebelled he was condemned to years of solitary imprisonment in a dark cell. For long periods he was strapped as tightly as three men could lace him. Morrell found that he was being tortured by the constant hypnosis himself. His experiences were incorporated in Jack London's novel.

Jack and Janet put out fires set in the woods by a bad boy. The Wild Bees, King Bird, Snapper Turtle and Lonesome Bear help to punish the firebug.

CHAPTER VI.

The Firebug's Lesson.

AFTER the boy firebug had been spanked by Lonesome Bear, pinched by Snapper Turtle, nipped by King Bird and stung by the Wild Bees, he should have learned the lesson that it is bad to set fires in the woods. So Jack and Janet thought. They expected to see the boy firebug scot for home as fast as he could go. But the boy firebug was angry. He wanted to get even with Lonesome Bear, King Bird, Snapper Turtle and the Wild Bees for the punishment they had given him, even though that punishment was richly deserved.

He searched through his pockets and found a match that was still dry in spite of the ducking he had received in the pond. He started a fire in the leaves and dead grass.

"I'll burn up the woods and the stinging Wild Bees and the Snapping Turtle and the Nipping Bird and the Spunking Bear," muttered the boy firebug. "I'll make the fire so big those interfering children cannot put it out."

The boy firebug started fires in seven places, and then scattered the burning flames. Panned by the wind the flames spread quickly.

Janet gave a cry of dismay. She would have run to put the fire out, but Jack held her back.

"No," whispered Jack. "There is no danger of that fire destroying the woods. It will only get the boy firebug into trouble."

Janet halted in astonishment. Then Jack pointed to the way the smoke was whirling.

"The wind is blowing away from the main woods," Jack explained. "It is carrying the fire toward the river. The flames will stop there without doing harm. But watch the firebug now. He is finding himself in a fix."

And, indeed, the boy firebug was in a fix. He had lighted the fires in such a way that they had run around him. He was in the middle of a blazing circle.

"Oh! I'm going to get burned up! Hoo!" yelled the boy firebug. Seen through the dark glasses, which saw with eyes of fear the fire looked very terrible. It seemed to the firebug that the whole forest was ablaze. He climbed on a pile of stones that stood within the circle of fire. There he danced up and down in terror.

Birds flew by in clouds escaping the smoke and flame. Rabbits scurried out of the line of fire. A frightened deer ran through the woods. The Wild Bees buzzed in their dead tree home. Snapper Turtle lumbered to the pond. Lonesome Bear flopped by. To the boy firebug seeing with eyes of fear, it seemed that all the wild folk were fleeing.

"Hiss-ss!" said a threatening voice at his feet. "Hiss-ss! Move over! Give me room." The boy firebug looked down. There was Black Snake squirming on the rocks to get out of the fire. The boy firebug was afraid of snakes. He would have fled, but he didn't dare to run in the wall of fire.

"Oh! I did not know a forest fire was so awful!" wailed the boy firebug. "If I got out of this alive I'll never set another fire."

"Will you promise that?" cried Jack through the smoke and flame.

"Yes, I'll promise it, and I'll promise to put out every fire I see of in the woods just as you have done," yelled the boy firebug.

"He has learned his lesson," said Jack to Janet. Together they began to beat a path through the fire to rescue the boy firebug. And it was not so very hard to do for on the wind side the grass and leaves were nearly burned out.

As soon as the path was safe the boy firebug dashed through and raced for home. But Jack and Janet stayed to see that every spark was out.

"I am glad you are fire protectors," said Jack. "Yes," replied Janet. "Because we are fire protectors all the wild folks of the woods have a safe home tonight."

"Thank you, Jack and Janet!" sang all the birds. "Thank you! Good night!"

Indians, Dogs and Horses

The Indians had dogs but not horses before the white men came. The Indian dog was little different from the tamed wolf from which it is supposed to have sprung. Eskimos were using dogs for transportation when first white men arrived. Though fossils of the forerunner of the horse have been found in America, it is now generally believed that these animals became extinct many thousands of years ago and that all horses used by the Indians were descendants of Spanish horses. Cortez brought horses to Mexico and Dr. Soto is known to have abandoned a large number of horses near the Texas border.

Lies on Being Photographed

At Capri there is a white-haired "fisherman" who haunts the landing where tourists disembark. This fisherman has not cast a net or line for many years, owing to the demands of tourists to pose—which requests he graciously grants for a small consideration. These requests have been so numerous that this old man has found it more profitable to grant tourists' requests than to go out fishing.—Mentor Magazine.

Largest Army and Navy

Russia has the largest standing army, numbering 1,900,000 men. Her reserves, including militia, amount to 8,500,000. Great Britain has the largest navy in the world—712 vessels with a tonnage of 2,432,140.

No Reason for Complaint

A large part of the indignation over violations of the prohibition law is because of the statement that the rich can get whiskey, and the poor cannot. Since we all hate the rich, and love the poor, why this indignation? I say let the rich get all the whiskey they want, and let them suffer to death, as most of it is poisoned. And in the name of the Great Jehovah, if the poor cannot afford whiskey, is not deprivation a good thing for them?—Ed Howe's Monthly.

The girl gazed took hold of the handle and lifted the jug. So great was her amazement and fear on beholding the jug remain intact that she came near to dropping it. Then holding it away from her and walking on tiptoe she began the ascent of the slope with the white men striding along before her. Scissors explained to his mystified friend:

"Years ago, and long before I became wakan and had learned to forget useless things, I went to school in St. Louis to an old Frenchman. He was a very wise old man, and from him I learned among other things how hydraulic pressure will knock the bottom out in her anxiety to have the vessel is filled to the brim and the stopper is inserted violently. I also learned that where the cleavage is clean the vessel can be fitted together and made to hold water if filled to the brim and the stopper inserted gradually and gently. The atmospheric pressure on the jug is uniform. But let the stopper be disturbed ever so little, there comes a space the width of a hair for the air to get in, and out comes the bottom of the jug. Now we will see what we shall see."

With the girl counting every step of the way in her anxiety to have her part in the mystery concluded, Scissors proceeded to Shun-ka-luta's lodge and called on him by name, speaking in a loud voice. The medicine man came out and glared at the picture man and waited for him to speak. The picture man said to the medicine man and carefully placed the jug on a smooth level spot, and fed as if demons were after her. Heads popped from the surrounding lodges when Scissors began calling on the medicine man to face him. Now men and women were watching the two.

"Shun-ka-luta, have meddled with my medicine," accused Scissors. "They say Tunkan is angry at you."

"They say a lie," hissed Sorrel Horse. "Red men do not touch the white man's medicine."

"Two Knives Talking is not a white man. He is red," solemnly declared Scissors.

A bell tinkled and Crazy Horse walked around a lodge; cowl wand in hand, and surveyed the two gloomily. Scissors, pointing to the jug, said:

"The jug is full of stone. Tunkan can speak through it. It is pointed with the sign of a Wolf-dreamer. It belongs to Shun-ka-luta. Tunkan can speak through it to him."

Sorrel Horse answered: "The stone god tells me through the stone jug that Two Knives Talking makes bad medicine against the red men."

"Then let the jug give a sign that you have spoken true words," challenged Scissors.

Sorrel Horse was now thoroughly puzzled. But the eager gaze of his chief and warriors told him he must do something. "Tunkan has already said through the jug that the white men are liars and will go under the skinning knives."

The listeners accepted this as conclusive and their fierce eyes exulted in anticipation of the sport.

"Two Knives Talking has asked Tunkan to sign to give his tongue is straight. The jug is stone and very strong, and yet before Shun-ka-luta can drink from it Tunkan will break it," Scissors asserted.

The onlookers, incredulous, granted and jeered. Scissors folded his arms and with level gaze dared Shun-ka-luta to make the feat. The girl had brought it, filled with water, even while he was talking with the white man. He took it by the handle and lifted it. It was a very strong jug. It was impossible for anything to break it before he could take a drink. And to prove that fact he yanked out the stopper and started to lift it to his lips.

The bottom dropped out and the water splashed down the medicine man's legs. To the white men it was a ludicrous tableau. The medicine man stood rigid, the stopper clutched in one hand, the upper part of the jug held in the other, his eyes bulging. But there was nothing humorous in the spectacle to the Indians. Even Crazy Horse stepped back and stared uneasily at the prisoners. With a low gasp of fright Shun-ka-luta dropped the fragment of the jug and darted back into his lodge.

Here was a genuine demonstration of a superior medicine. It shook and racked his very soul. That Tunkan should turn against him and favor a white man was unthinkable; and yet it was a fact. There had been no chance for cheating. Two Knives Talking had not touched the jug. The appearance of the drug on the scene was merely an accident.

Breakfast Food "Matrimonially Speaking" By MRB. HUGH MCKAY

My husband never has time to be soable at breakfast. He looks at his watch a whole lot oftener than he does me. And when he finally rushes away, he has just time to give me a flying peck on the cheek as he tears for the door.

He never has a second to answer my questions because he is so busy eating food and drinking coffee. And then there's always the newspaper—if he should happen to be a little ahead of schedule some morning.

He and I might just as well have our breakfasts served in two different telephone booths, for all the conversation that goes on over our table.

Trying to talk to Hugh in the early morning is just as easy and satisfactory as interviewing a marathon runner on how it feels to be two miles from the finish and still going strong. He'd just love to oblige me, but he hasn't the breath to spare!

Tragically too great to permit of jealousy; it was so terrible that he did not have thought even for his lost caste.

The effect on the spectators was also tremendous. Crazy Horse in silence examined the broken jug. It was all entirely beyond his comprehension and as much of a mile as if the white man had precipitated the southern half of the butto into the fork of the Grand.

"We go to our lodge, Tanhunculito," said Scissors, the first one to break the silence.

Linking his arm through Dinsdale's he walked to the lodge, followed by the rest of the entire village. Once they were screened from the view of the Ozanla Dinsdale exclaimed:

"It had anything I ever saw. Talk about luck! If that girl hadn't broken the jug—"

"If! If!" repeated Scissors impatiently. "I am wakan wakan. I wish you would remember that I am different from other men. Many things I have forgotten, because a wakan man is not supposed to remember rubbish. But the things I have learned from life come back to me when the knowledge can help me. I can remember the most useful and helpful and forget the useless, then he is wakan."

"What I did on Crow creek was only slight-of-hand. Follow on the stage back in the States can beat me all hollow at it. Even if Shun-ka-luta knew this last was some trick he'd have to remember the most useful and helpful and forget the useless, then he is wakan."

While waiting for the village to recover some of its composure they remained in the entrance; and as they talked Scissors amused himself by cutting out pictures of the young cubs and fat puppies. No one came near them and the family in the nearest lodge moved to a more remote shelter.

"Very soon this will be looked on as a white medicine lodge," mused Scissors after he had discovered the surreptitious withdrawal of their neighbors.

Dinsdale discerned a great advantage in their desolation and whispered: "Why not try for it now? They're still stupid over the trick. If we could reach the ponies we could race for it."

"I'm wakan wakan. My medicine will tell me when to act and when to be idle," said Scissors. "There comes one now who must talk with us. He seeks us. It is good. He knows he must have an understanding with us if he would save himself from being known as a failure."

A figure approaching them had the head muffled under a blanket, but Scissors identified him as Shun-ka-luta. Scissors turned to one side as if to pass without speaking, but halted as a troubled voice said:

"My medicine tells me to talk with the white men. Unless Shun-ka-luta can learn the jug magic he will be a ghost and wander about like a blank."

"Shun-ka-luta should talk to Tunkan and paint the rocks green and red," advised Scissors.

"He has long talked to the sacred stones. They tell him to talk to the jug-braker. I will give many ponies to get the magic of the jug."

Scissors laughed and said:

"Two Knives Talking can give you the medicine that breaks jugs, but many ponies will not buy it."

"Let the white man tell-the-price for the medicine."

Scissors produced his paper and pencil and cut a jug. Next he drew two bowed figures mounted on galloping ponies, each a figure wearing a hat to show it was a white man. He dropped them on the ground before Sorrel Horse. A lean hand darted through the blanket and snatched up the figures.

"When will the white man tell?" whispered the medicine man.

"It must be before any rider comes from the Short Medicine-Pole hills."

"Shun-ka-luta knows the young white man is not High Wolf's friend. He knows the Knives Talking is afraid of the talk of the white man. Tanhunculito's ore the Ozanla will make you new medicine shirts out of white skin."

EFFICIENT USE BEING MADE OF WATER SUPPLY

Twin Falls Canal Company Manager Praises Waterusers on Vigilance in Irrigation Methods of Season.

Waterusers under the Twin Falls canal system are making efficient use of available water and quantities of the system is running smoothly, it was stated Saturday by General Manager Burton Smith of the Twin Falls canal company.

Inspection made prior to the rainfall of last Thursday, Mr. Smith stated, showed little or no waste water running through spillways into Snake river, indicating that highly efficient use was being made of the water, in irrigation of growing crops. With the coming of the showers, tendency toward less vigilance in the use of water was observed, and some waste into the river was noted.

With 2770 feet of water available at Milner Saturday for the Twin Falls canal system, water deliveries were maintained at a scant 80 per cent of normal for this season, it was stated at the canal company's office. Measurements made at Heyze in the upper valley indicated that the river was continually and rapidly falling.

Storage Water Released
Three thousand second feet of water was released Friday from Jackson Lake reservoir, according to report of G. Clyde Baldwin, watermaster, for that day and received Saturday at the office of the canal company here. All of the natural flow of the river that day amounted to 2940 second feet.

There remained in storage Friday at Jackson Lake 171,550 acre feet of water, a diminution of 9,450 acre feet under the high point for the season recorded at 481,000 acre feet.

Measurement of the stream made at Howell's ferry, just below the Minidoka dam, showed Friday a total of 5240 second feet of water in the river. Water was being diverted to the North Side, 3770 second feet being made available at Milner for this purpose.

DAWSONS UNDER BONDS OF $1500

Elko, Nevada, Newspaper Tells of Developments Following Raid on Resort.

Paul Dawson and Celia Dawson, proprietors of the Twin Springs, Nevada, roadhouse and of the Weaver rooms in Twin Falls, are held under bonds of $1500 each to answer charges of violating federal prohibition laws, according to an article appearing in the Elko, Nevada, Independent, in its issue of last Tuesday. Charges against the Dawsons were preferred following a raid made recently upon the Twin Springs resort by federal authorities, accompanied by members of the Twin Falls police force and deputy sheriff of this county.

Subsequent developments in the case
are thus told by the Nevada newspaper:
Word of a federal case of unusual interest was brought back from Contact by Sheriff J. C. Harris, after he had accompanied Deputy United States Marshal Lymon Fulton to Twin Springs where Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dawson, proprietors of the famous resort at Twin Springs, were served with a federal warrant as the outgrowth of the finding of a quantity of liquor on the premises by federal agents from Idaho recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson are at liberty under bail of $1500 each.

Although the offense with which the defendants are charged is alleged to have been committed in Nevada, the Idaho prohibition officers, who discovered the liquor, are endeavoring to have the case transferred from the Nevada jurisdiction to the Idaho federal courts. The procedure is similar to extradition, it is said.

Twin Springs, it will be remembered, was in pre-prohibition days, a resort famous throughout the west. It is located across the Nevada line, just a short distance from Twin Falls, and was the scene of many a misadventure prior to the passage of the Volstead act.

The board of county commissioners at a recent session, granted a license to Mr. and Mrs. Dawson to operate the resort.

It is said that a large quantity of bottled beer, together with whiskey and other liquors, were seized by the federal men from Idaho when they raided the resort. It is understood, however, that the liquor was not found in the resort proper.

EXCEPTIONS PUT ON FILE IN EMBEZZLEMENT CASE

Defense Counsel Asks for Settlement Regarding Objections Raised in Legal Battle Marking Trial.

Settlement of a bill of exceptions filed Saturday in district court here by defense counsel in the case of K. S.
Peters, former manager, and Frank B. Leichter, former secretary of the Mutual Building and Loan association, convicted of embezzlement, has been set for presentation before Judge W.
A. Babcock in court here next Tuesday, according to notice to Prosecuting Attorney J. W. Taylor, and the attorney general, which was filed with the bill.

The bill of exceptions contains in detail demurrer motion for arrest of judgment, objection to pronouncing of judgment and motion for new trial, which was overruled and denied by the court.

Peters and Leichter, who were sentenced to serve one to 14 years in the state prison, are at liberty under bonds of $4000 each pending appeal to the state supreme court.

NEARLY QUARTER MILLION INVOLVED IN NEXT TRIAL

Differences Between Idaho Construction Company and Development Company to Be Aired in Court.

Differences of almost a quarter of a million dollars between the claim of the Idaho Construction company and the counter claim of the Idaho Farm Development company, in connection with construction of the Farm Development company's reservoir for its irrigation project at Roseworth, is at issue in a lawsuit in which trial is to begin Monday in district court here.

The construction company is suing for approximately $30,000 as the balance alleged due it under its contract for building the reservoir, while the farm development company denies liability for any part of this claim and advances a counter claim for approximately $140,000 on account of damages alleged to have been caused by failure of the construction company to carry out the contract provisions.

The plaintiff construction company is represented by Bothwell and Chapman of Twin Falls and A. A. Fraser of Boise, the defendant farm development company being represented by Shad L. Hodgins of Twin Falls, Arthur W. Ostrom of Buhl and Edwin Snow of Boise.
