SAYS U. S. NAVY NOT READY TO BATTLE JAPAN

Rear Admiral Fiske, Retired, Describes Situation in Case Of Possible Fight With Oriental Nation

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, retired, in a letter to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, which he made public tonight, called attention to the present comparative strength of the American and Japanese fleets for operations in far eastern waters which he said was gravely misunderstood by the public.

"Possibly if our people were told the truth about the naval situation they would not be as indifferent as they are to the diplomatic situation," the letter said.

"Of course, I do not mean to suggest," said the rear admiral, "that war is even possible, but nevertheless, it may be pointed out that the Japanese and the Americans have taken attitudes that are irreconcilable and that the Japanese have virtually broken off diplomatic relations by giving their ambassador a 'vacation.' Such attitudes and such acts have usually preceded wars though they have not always been followed by wars."

"Although the Americans imagine," he said, "that as a result of the naval treaty the United States fleet is superior to the Japanese navy in the ratio of 6 to 3, this is the reverse of the truth. Even if the American navy were superior in capital ships, he asserted, 'it is far from being superior in that ratio in active personnel and it is far inferior in reserves.'"

"If Japan should go to the extreme of taking the Philippine Islands and thus forced us into war, the latter added, 'we should find ourselves in a deplorable condition because of lack of trained men as well as other requisites.'"

Referring to his service on the general board of the navy in 1910, and 1911, Admiral Fiske said: "We believed that Japan would take the Philippine Islands if ever the resentment of the people against us should result in a height sufficient to assure the government of their support. That Japan could take the Philippine Islands we all agreed at that time, but that we could retake them no officer was then willing to declare."

"Nevertheless, every man with whom I then talked, no matter what his occupation or political creed, declared that if the Japanese should take the Philippine Islands, the United States would be bound by every principle of

Advocates of Ford Bid Are Ready for Showdown in Senate

Chances for Final Action Regarded as Slight but Propponents Prepare for Staging Determined Fight

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—A showdown on the Muscle Shoals issue will be demanded in the senate tomorrow under plans agreed upon by advocates of Henry Ford's bid.

Although the chances of bringing the question to a vote at this session were dimmed considerably by the action of the senate today in denying unanimous consent for its consideration, supporters of the Ford bid are prepared to carry on a determined fight for a vote until the closing hours of the session.

The Ford supporters, led by Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, must defeat today when two requests for unanimous consent to make Muscle Shoals the unfinished business after the pending pension bill had been disposed of, but objections from western senators favoring enactment of farm relief legislation first, Senators Brookhart, republican, Iowa, and LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, blocked consideration.

Another attempt to get action is planned for tomorrow, with Senator Underwood demanding a roll call on a motion authorizing immediate consideration of the Muscle Shoals question.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, chairman of the senate agriculture committee, told the senate today it would be useless to attempt to settle the Muscle Shoals question at this session with congress adjourning Saturday. Senator Harris, democrat, Mississippi, one of the Ford bid leaders, on the other hand, implored the senate to permit a vote on the question and rebuked Senator Norris for "delaying" the committee report.

Senator Underwood declared the real issue before the senate was "not the Ford bid but what the senators of the United States want to do with a great governmental property."

Senators Demand Resignation of French President

Most Important Group in Senate Adopt Resolution to Force Millerand From Office

PARIS, June 3 (AP)—One hundred and twenty-two senators of the democratic left, which is the most important group in the senate, adopted a resolution this afternoon declaring that M. Millerand must resign from the presidency. The senate numbers 300.

The republican union, at a caucus which M. Poincaré attended for the first time since he assumed the premiership two and a half years ago, adopted a motion deprecating the agitation against the chief of state and affirming the principle that the president ought to be allowed to fill out his term of office. M. Poincaré supported the motion.

DATE FIXED FOR FINAL SESSIONS

Senate Willing to Adjourn Saturday Night; Way Clear for Action on Reclamation

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—By a non-partisan vote of 68 to 35, the senate today adopted the house resolution fixing 7 o'clock next Saturday night for final adjournment of the first session of the 68th congress.

Republican and democratic organization leaders joined to put the resolution through carrying with them 34 of the majority and 19 democratic votes. The opposition comprised 14 republicans, 20 democrats and 1 republican.

Members, most of whom are interested in reclamation, Muscle Shoals and farm relief.

Conferees preceding the motion of Senator Lodge, the republican leader, to take up the adjournment resolution resulted in agreements looking to action for farm relief and reclamation legislation before adjournment, but the fate of the Muscle Shoals question remained more uncertain.

Led by Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, recognized leader of the insurgents in both houses, opponents of adjournment conducted a strenuous fight against adoption of the concurrent resolution. After the substitute offered by the Wisconsin senator, which would have provided for a recess of one month, had been defeated 30 to 52, Senator Frazier, republican, North Dakota, attempted to extend the session by declaring that his proposal was rejected 25 to 53.

A warm exchange over the Muscle Shoals proposal preceded action on adjournment. Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, twice sought unanimous consent to bring that question formally before the senate but an objection was made in each case. Senator LaFollette, blocking consideration in the second instance, served notice that he would oppose "from this time" all legislation which did not have as its main object the relief of the farmer.

In the main program of congress for the next four days was well outlined tonight. The way was cleared for rapid action in the house on the administration reclamation bill and the measure recommended by the interior department's fact finding commission—by a favorable vote of the committee which has had it in charge. Plans were also discussed by leaders in that body for putting through the pending deficiency bill providing for the expenses of operating the bonus law.

Reclamation supporters in both houses were prepared to seek a suspension of the rules which would permit the reclamation bill being attached as an amendment to this last appropriation bill and the statement was made that leaders of both parties had approved that procedure.

LITTLE CHANCE FOR TAX ACTION, LEADERS CLAIM

Party Heads Accept Coolidge's Criticism of Revenue Bill as "Expected" but Fear Changes Cannot be Made

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—Republican leaders in congress today accepted President Coolidge's criticism of the tax bill in the statement he issued yesterday upon signing it as "expected," but gave little encouragement to the president's proposal for early revision of the measure.

Both Chairman Smith of the senate finance committee and Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee said there was slight prospect that tax revision would be taken up at the short session which begins next December and ends March 4.

Not only were there no time in that session, they believed, but the same membership which framed the new law still would be intact. Others argued that the bill just sent the president represented the views of the most of the members and was satisfactory to a majority of the democrats as well as republicans. In its final form the measure passed the senate by a vote of 60 to 38 and the house 315 to 9.

Admitted as Fact.

The statement is accepted as a declaration by the president of a decision issue and in this regard it is considered likely that if a republican congress is elected and Mr. Coolidge returned to the White House, he will call a special session of the congress after March 4 next.

Democrats generally considered lightly the president's tax declaration, while Representative Garner, Texas, leader of the democratic tax fight in the house, suggested "the president doubtless expressed a feeling of revulsion towards the new tax law because the rates were written by democrats and supported by democrats and many broad liberal minded republicans."

"The president," Mr. Garner said in a statement, "could much more gracefully and accurately have taken the position that while the tax measure does not contain all he desired it is a long step in honest tax reduction and one that will give substantial and general relief to all classes of internal taxpayers. I interpret the attitude of the president, nevertheless, as being more one of disappointment at the defeat of the Mellon plan than of hostility to the measure he now signs."

GERMAN CABINET IS BACK IN OFFICE

Ebert Reappoints Marx as Chancellor and Confirms Other Members of Ministry

BERLIN, June 3 (AP)—The Marx-Stresemann cabinet, which resigned May 26, but continued to carry on current affairs, is back in office. President Ebert tonight reappointed Dr. Wilhelm Marx as chancellor and confirmed the members of his ministry in their posts.

In the period intervening since the resignation of the cabinet it had been found impossible to bring about an alignment of parties so that a new ministry could come into power and the final outcome is a reunion of the German people's party with the clerical and democrats, enabling the Marx-Stresemann combination to return to office.

The decision to end the most hectic of parliamentary crises came at the close of a day marked by demagogic attempts to reopen negotiations with the German nationalists. The latter's political ambitions, as reflected in an unofficial communique issued in the course of the afternoon, soon convinced Chancellor Marx and his associates in the democratic party that further parleys with the right party would force the middle parties into an ignominious position and the chancellor led the way in announcing his determination to resign his resigning ministry, or resign the mandate given him by President Ebert.

As a result of the endorsement Mr. Ebert loomed as possibly the strongest of three candidates to succeed Mr. Thomas G. Winter of Minneapolis as president of the organization. The other candidates for the chair were Mrs. John D. Sherman, Colorado, and Mrs. William Jennings of Florida.

Action on the appointment of a committee to prepare a blanket amendment to the constitution of the United States which would prohibit protective legislation, was proposed at a meeting of the general federation executive board when it was brought out that a congressional body representing the federation already is fighting the bill.

A new record for attendance was set with the registration late today of 1800 delegates previous to the formal opening of the conference.

The joint congressional committee on reorganization of the executive departments recommended a new department of education and relief.

Charles B. Warren, ambassador to Mexico, was virtually agreed upon as chairman of the resolutions committed for the republican national convention.

WOMEN'S CLUB DELEGATES SUPPORT MONTANA MATRON

LOS ANGELES, June 3 (AP)—Support of Mrs. Wallace Perham of Glenview, Mont., second vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, for the presidency of the organization, was pledged late today at a point meeting of the Mississippi valley conference and delegates from the Rocky Mountain states, held preliminary to the opening here tonight of the seventeenth biennial convention of the Women's clubs.

As a result of the endorsement Mr. Perham loomed as possibly the strongest of three candidates to succeed Mr. Thomas G. Winter of Minneapolis as president of the organization.

The other candidates for the chair were Mrs. John D. Sherman, Colorado, and Mrs. William Jennings of Florida.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)

Less than two hours after the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill had been sent into the discard today by a vote of 224 to 154 republican leaders in the house tentatively agreed on a substitute.

The compromise probably will be outlined to President Coolidge tomorrow and it was indicated that if it receives his approval an attempt will be made to enact it into law before congress adjourns Saturday.

Details remained to be worked out but a rough draft of the new bill would place the marketing abroad of certain surplus farm products, limited to wheat, flour, livestock and meat products in the hands of the war finance corporation which would be authorized to buy from farmers at prices in advance of market quotations.

Emergency Act.

Funds of the corporation would be available for purchases, and losses sustained in foreign sales would be charged against them. The life of the emergency act would be limited to July 1, 1925.

On the substitute abandons practically all the features of the McNary-Haugen bill, those who assisted in drafting it declared it carried out the measure's principles. The house vote today clearly indicated, they said, the futility of obtaining favorable action on a modification of the McNary-Haugen bill.

Urged Restriction.

Conceding that defeat of the measure was a certainty, its proponents, just before the house voted, proposed restriction of the proposal to wheat, flour, swine and products of hogs, but to no avail.

One hundred republicans, 58 democrats, one independent and one farmer-labor voted for the bill, while 101 republicans, 122 democrats and one socialist opposed it.

Representative Longworth, the republican leader, and Representative Garrett, the democratic leader, both voted against the bill. Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, leader of the republican insurgents, supported it.

Relates Story of Pampered Lad Who Became Murderer

Confessed Slayer of Chicago Boy Lived in Luxury and Was "Spoiled." When a Child, Friend of Leopold Says

MARTINEZ, Cal., June 3 (AP)—Mrs. Pauline Van de Borch, wife of an oil worker here, who said that she was a nurse for two years in the home of Nathan Leopold, Jr., youthful Chicago confessed slayer, detailed her experience as such today.

"I do not want to see him hanged," she said, "but I believe that he should be given a long term at hard labor. He was a spoiled child, was a lovable character despite a meanness that manifested itself not only toward the servants in the Leopold home, but toward his companions and his parents. He was inclined to use bad language, but in spite of his faults he drew many friends to him. His brilliant mind would be dulled a bit, and hard labor would do him good."

"Until he was 14 years old he never laced his own shoes. The servants did it for him and attended to other details of his dress that other boys care for themselves."

"At one time he came near killing a maid in an adjoining home through accident while shooting at a robin. The bullet lodged in a window blind but a few inches from where the maid was standing."

"I worked in the Leopold home from Labor day of 1918, to Labor day of 1919. I was constantly with Nathan during his hours of study and play. I spent much time with him in his bird museum, helping and advising him."

"Problems that would take others hours to solve he would solve in a few minutes. He knew many languages even as a child. I have received numerous letters from him since I left and all tell of the progress he is making."

"He simply was pampered and spoiled. He was so used to having others wait on him that it must have given him a bad and given him an idea that he was made to be waited on by others and that, therefore, he was a superior being. But 'Dabe' has a good strain in him. It is too bad that he has not had his light dimmed a little bit, that's all."

MORE CRIMES
MAY BE TRACED
TO TWO YOUTHS

Confessed Kidnapers and Slayers Suspected of Murder of Another Student and Offense
Against Taxi Driver

CHICAGO, June 3 (AP)—The Cook county grand jury today was asked to indict Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, youthful sons of millionaires and confessed kidnapers and slayers of Robert Franks, school boy son of another wealthy Chicagoan, for murder and kidnaping for ransom, each crime punishable by death, while the authorities investigated the possible connection of the youths with the deaths of two other persons and the mutilation of a third.

Robert E. Crow, state's attorney, is prosecuting the Franks case to the grand jury in person, ordered associates today to investigate the possible involvement of Leopold and Loeb in the shooting last fall of Freeman Louis L. Tracy, university student, whose body was found with a bullet through his head and the mutilation a few days later of Charles Ream, a taxi driver.

With a similar and in view of an unofficial investigation was under way of the death several months ago of Martin Wolf, who left the home of his wealthy grand parents to mail a letter and whose body was found in the lake. Relatives were never satisfied with the decision of authorities that he committed suicide.

Many Witnesses

Eleven witnesses went before the grand jury during the day and more than a score yet remain to be heard. The grand jury reconvenes tomorrow.

Possible connection between the slaying of Tracy and the youths was formed when the authorities discovered that the bullet which killed Tracy fitted a bullet belonging to Leopold which he carried when the Franks boy was kidnapped and which he purchased several months previously. A motive for the shooting of Tracy was never found. He appeared to have been a brilliant student and seemingly without enemies. His body was found almost on the campus of the University of Chicago, the institution attended by both Leopold and Loeb and by Tracy. Friends of Tracy said that he knew both the youths.

A few days after Tracy was slain, Charles Ream, a taxi driver, was attacked and mutilated. Yesterday he was taken to the state's attorney's office by newspaper reporters to view Leopold and Loeb and expressed the opinion that they were his assailants. The authorities were skeptical until an investigation has been made, however, as Ream had told them shortly after he was attacked that he did not get a full view of his kidnapers who clubbed him into unconsciousness and mutilated him after taking him away in an automobile.

Used Similar Methods.

The reason for the investigation, the authorities said, aside from Ream's statement that he believed Leopold and Loeb were his assailants, was the similarity of the attack on Ream and the slaying of the Franks youth.

Robert Franks was abducted as he walked home from school, and, according to confession of the youths, was struck over the head with a club, died a few minutes after they induced him to enter the auto in which they were riding. They then tried to collect $10,000 ransom from the boy's father, but failed when Jacob Franks, the father, failed to understand their instructions.

A few hours later the body of the boy, which had been found in a south side swamp, was identified. Except for the fact that Wolf lived in the same neighborhood as the Franks, Leopold and Loeb family, nothing was revealed to indicate a possible connection between the youths and his death.

Father Testifies.

Among those who appeared before the grand jury today were Jacob Franks, the slain boy's father; Percy Van de Berger, druggist from whose store the youths said they telephoned ransom demands to Franks; James C. Kemp, employed by Van de Berger; Irving Hartman, who attended private school with the Franks boy, and who saw Robert start home on the day he disappeared and who believes he entered an automobile parked nearby; Dr. Joseph Springer, coroner's physician; who made examination of the body; Dr. Emil Deutsch, who said Leopold the pair of horn-rimmed spectacles which the latter lost near the place where the body was concealed, and which led to his arrest; Sven Englund, chauffeur at the Leopold home, whose statement that the Leopold car was in the garage the day of the kidnaping when Leopold and Loeb said they were driving about town with it, led to their breakdown and confession; Mrs. Sven Englund, his wife; Elizabeth Salter, maid in Leopold's home, who told the authorities that Leopold and Loeb were the writer of the same make as that on which the ransom letter to Jacob Franks was written, and Mrs. Lucille Smith and her daughter, Elizabeth, who said they passed the automobile the night of the kidnaping resembling that in which Leopold and Loeb had found Franks' body to the swamp.

Mr. Crow said he was going before the grand jury that he did not expect indictments to be returned for three days. He said he expected to submit the confessions of the youths and every bit of evidence to the jury in order to make all the information matters of record. He said this action was also being taken to prevent the possibility of any of the witnesses changing their stories later. Should the grand jury, he said, they will be charged with perjury and prosecuted.

GAVE UP LIVES TO AID SCIENCE

Federal Meteorologist and Pilot
Killed While Seeking Important
Weather Data

RELLVILLE, Ill., June 3 (AP)—Dr. C. Leroy Meisinger, federal meteorologist, and First Lieutenant James T. Neely, air pilot, whose mangled bodies and charred balloon were found near Remont, Ill., today sacrificed their lives for the advancement of science, Scott field officials declared tonight.

The ill-fated flight of the army balloon B-3, starting from Scott field yesterday, was to have been the ninth and final in a series of weather observation trips which began March 31.

The observations were directed by the weather bureau at Washington and were said to have been the most comprehensive of their kind ever attempted. The resulting data were expected to be of great value in weather forecasting, particularly in predicting storm movements.

The information gained from the first eight flights in on file at Scott field and will be turned over to the weather bureau of Springfield.

A telegram was received from Dr. Meisinger's parents, at Lincoln, Neb., today asking that his body be sent there. Lieutenant Neely's father is at Springfield.

THE GUMPS—SYMPATHY

SINGLE VACANCY ONLY ONE LEFT IN G. O. P. LINE

Nominee for Vice Presidency
To Be Selected; Mondell and Warren Get Places; Predict
Three-Day Sessions

CLEVELAND, June 3 (AP)—One week from the day the republican national convention assembles for business, everything has practically been settled with the exception of finding a nominee for the vice presidency.

It is a situation without a parallel since 1804 when the republicans marched to Chicago and nominated Theodore Roosevelt by acclamation. Inasmuch as no arrangements have been made to place Senator Hiram Johnson of California in nomination for the presidency, there is no doubt that President Coolidge could be chosen by acclamation were it not for the presentation of the name of Senator La Follette by the Wisconsin delegation.

Two Selected.
The last important details for the convention machinery were perfected today, so far as they can be in pre-convention arrangements, by party leaders with the selection of Congressman Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming as permanent chairman of the convention and the choice of Charles H. Warren, ambassador to Mexico, as chairmen of the resolutions committee which will draft the party platform.
Even such contests among contending delegations as are to come before the national committee tomorrow do not involve any question of convention votes for President Coolidge. In every case both sets of contending delegates are for Coolidge and the contest ranges around local fights for control of the party machinery in their home states.

Expect Quick Action.
Aside from the presentation of La Follette's name as a neutral point for the Wisconsin delegation of certain substitutions and changes in the platform as it will be sent to the convention by the resolutions committee there isn't a ripple in sight for the Coolidge forces. What at first looked like a five-day convention ending on Saturday, June 14, now promises to be a three-day affair winding up with a night session on Thursday, June 12. Nobody wants to nominate a presidential candidate on Friday, the thirteenth and nobody sees the need of prolonging the business until Saturday so the plan is to speed up affairs and get through Thursday.

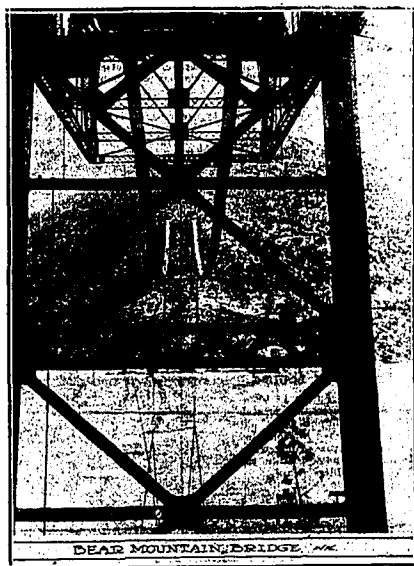

Unless unforeseen hitches develop and there are none in sight, the program will be about like this:

Tuesday—Preliminary short session perfecting the temporary organization and to hear the keynote address by Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, temporary chairman. Early adjournment to release delegates for service on the resolutions, credentials and rules committee.

Wednesday—Probably two sessions, morning and afternoon to perfect the permanent organization, hear the speech by permanent Chairman, Mondell, adopt the reports of the rules and credentials committee; hear the report of the resolutions committee, receive the platform proposals from the La Follette factions, act on them; and adopt the platform in final form.

Thursday—Two long sessions, or possibly three, with one at night, but not the latter if it can be avoided. Hear the speech of Dr. Marion Leroy Burton, president of the University of Michigan, placing President Coolidge in nomination and nominate President Coolidge on the first ballot which, according to all estimates, will give him not but possibly 40 of the 109 votes in the convention. Then the convention will proceed to the nomination of a vice president.

OPTIMISM is taking the place of the blues for the "Blues" fans with the announcement that by the end of the week the lineup of the local nine will be strengthened about 100 per cent.

Sunday the Idaho Falls Tigers will cross bats with Casgriff's strengthened team which will attempt to get started on the right track this time after their more or less inglorious beginning last week with three defeats in a row.

On the local lineup Casgriff will have three college stars by the end of the week to work with. The new lineup, making a somewhat alright proposition of the field unless the dogs stray any more.

Of these recruits perhaps "Flash" Mullins, a St. Mary's college star, is the most promising. He comes with the reputation of being the sensation shortstop of the Pacific coast during the season just closed in intercollegiate baseball, in addition to being a batsman of no mean ability. He with "Syb" Kleffner, who is also due the latter part of the week from the University of Idaho, where he has been consistently holding down the third sack in big league form during the past college season, will with Watson, the local captain, make a strong position of the shortstop and third base positions.

This leaves second and first to Bob Whitel, who is more than capable of handling first, and Jim Scully, who is on his way to Twin Falls from Denver university, where he has been playing during the college season. Local fans are beginning to brighten up noticeably at the new news and are looking forward to a first class team.

Nor has the outfield been overlooked in the strengthening process. Harry Riles, a former fielder of the Cache Valley league in Utah, where he played on the Logan team, will help materially, as it is possible to find a third fielder in the aggregation which faced Peaslee last week.

Davis is also a pitcher and is looked upon to aid Keller and Oswald on the chucking end of the game.

SEEK TEAM TO PLAY HANSEN

Community Nine Scheduled for Game Here Saturday; Church League Is Suggested

The Hansen Community nine is scheduled for a baseball game Saturday afternoon on the Lincoln field with a team from Twin Falls. As yet the Twin Falls team is to be formed. Tuesday night practice was to be held but the number of aspirants for a place on the Twin Falls "community" team was considerably less than the customary nine that is used on most ball teams. However, another practice later in the week is hoped to bring out enough players to make a creditable showing against the Hansen team, which is a seasoned nine now, having played for the past three weeks.

The game Saturday is proposed to be the first of a series which will be played, provided the plan of the Rev. Tom Hladgett of Hansen, is adopted by the churches of the various towns in the immediate vicinity. Hansen has already organized a ball team consisting of the members of the church there and organization here and in Elmer, Elmer, Elmer, Eden and other neighboring towns is being urged with the prospect of forming a league.

So far the plan has not met with enthusiasm and it is a previous plan, also proposed whereby the various churches were to form a league within the city, playing twilight baseball. In fact the Baptists have already organized their team and are ready to enter the proposed city league as soon as the other teams fall into line. The Presbyterian and other churches are equally anxious for either system and favor a combination of the two. The fact that inter-town games would interfere with working hours on Saturday afternoons is more or less of a drawback to that line and at the present time, at any rate, the twilight league among the churches seems to be the most feasible plan for church baseball.

A Money-Saver

Engineers at the office of the Delta Barrage in Egypt did not want to pay a man to stay at the reservoir miles away just to read the gauge. They decided to make the water report its own level by telephone. Now they just take down the receiver and the number of the gauge reading is automatically spoken to them. A float connected with the telephone does the trick.

Origin of Navel Oranges

Navel oranges, of which California sends out $300,000 boxes a year, were introduced into the United States from Brazil by the Department of Agriculture in 1870. The first experimental grove contained fewer than twenty trees. One of the original two trees brought here may be seen in Washington, D. C. still and the other is exhibited in California.

Eddie Bowen, Sharon, stopped Gene Larue, Montana, in two rounds.

Protect the Child

Exposing a child to any form of contagion so that he may have it and be over with it is just as sensible and reasonable as to hold his finger in the fire so that he will have forth know that fire burns. There is no disease that children "have to have" and the older a healthy child grows the less likely is he to suffer from common contagions.

Spoiled the Dinner

An unexpected visit of some relatives threw a North side home into a flurry in an attempt to produce a very tempting dinner for the hungry guests. As the call for dinner came, the smallest member of the family ran to the dining room and seeing the chicken, which was the crowning glory of the feast, broke out with: "Oh, mother, is that the chicken that has broken the leg?"—Columbus Dispatch honor and international respectability to try at least to make them.

Betsy Ross was a flag-maker by trade. When consulted about "sewing the new American flag," she suggested that the five-pointed stars be used. Mrs. Ross received a contract to make government flags and her daughter, Mrs. Charles Wilson continued the business until 1857.

"Coast Bases Inadequate"

The admiral then discussed the prospect of the American fleet operating in Asiatic waters, more than 6000 miles from our "inadequate" bases on the west coast, and more than 3,000 miles from the drydock in the Hawaiian Islands. It would have to engage the Japanese fleet close to the latter's own bases, harassed by submarines and aircraft he said. "Our fleet could not get near the coast of Japan because of the mine fields; and in case of injury to ships it would have no drydock to go to that was less than 3000 miles away."

The admiral thought it impossible to say whether the recapture of the Philippines from Japan would be more difficult now than it would have been ten years ago, though he believed the improvements in submarines and aircraft would prove more advantageous to Japan than to the United States in such a struggle.

The obstacle to a Japanese assault on the islands would be increased by the additional defenses, he thought, but would be decided by aerial advances which would enable them to do effective bombing, especially at night.

NATIONAL PARK IS OPENED TO AUTOMOBILISTS

Motorists: With Own Camping
Outfit Admitted to Yellowstone Last Sunday; Southern Entrance Opens Soon

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., June 3.—Yellowstone national park, because of an early spring and light snowfall during last winter, was opened to automobilists two weeks earlier than usual. Motorists having their own camping equipment were admitted to the park through the northern entrance at Gardiner, Montana, and the western entrance at West Yellowstone, Montana, on June 1. The Fern, or Cody, Wyoming, entrance will be open on June 15, perhaps by June 12, and the southern or Snake river entrance will be open on June 20, perhaps a few days earlier.

On June 1, all of the Grand Loop road, which touches the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone, the geyser basin, Mammoth Hot Springs and Lake Yellowstone, was opened, except the Dunraven Pass section. Tower falls will be accessible from Mammoth Hot Springs. Motorists coming in the north or west entrances with the expectation of going out the east or south gateways should plan to camp in the park until those entrances open about the middle of June.

Auto Camps, Gas Stations.
All stores and gasoline stations were opened June 1, and the Yellowstone Park Camps company will be able to accommodate from 10 to 15 people per night, but meals will have to be served in construction crew mess halls as regular dining rooms will not be ready until June 15 or June 20.

Free public camping grounds, maintained by the national park service will be available at all points of interest. These are supplied with pure water, wood, comfort stations and garbage disposal facilities. A self-help laundry is a new feature of the Mammoth Automobile Camp.

During the 1923 season over 70,000 motorists used these camping grounds. Altogether last season 91,254 people toured the park in their own cars, and it is expected that not less than 125,000 motorists will see Yellowstone national park this year.

Season for Fall Visitors.
For visitors other than motorists, all park gateways open June 20, and a celebration of this formal opening will be held at the Roosevelt arch at Gardiner, Montana, the north gateway, at 10:30 on the morning of June 20.

Very reasonable excursion rates to the park are offered by all of the railroads and it is possible to enter the park via one gateway and leave via another, thus varying the trip coming and going from the great park. Last year 44,800 people from every state in the Union and from over 20 foreign countries, came to Yellowstone by rail. This year it is expected that not less than 50,000 people will avail themselves of the low rates and the exceptional service offered by all rail lines for Yellowstone park tours.

Visitors coming by rail will enjoy unusually good transportation and hotel and permanent camp accommodations. Sixty new ten-passenger touring cars have been added to the big fleet in the Yellowstone service; eleven improvements have been made in the hotel system; and the permanent camps have been considerably enlarged. Hotels and camp service is also available to all motorists.

An Even Break
It is occasionally a doubtful and pondered choice: To go to the party and pretend you enjoy it or stay at home and be lonesome.

WORK ON ROAD GOING AHEAD

One Outfit Engaged Now on Grading of South Line; More
To Be Sent; Bowman Here

Archie Bowman, Sr., in charge of construction work for the Utah Construction company on the new Wells-Rogerson line, reached Twin Falls last night from San Jacinto and is registered at the Rogerson.

Mr. Bowman says that, to date, but one outfit is at work on the grading of the line. This consists of a gang of about 20 men with equipment who are a few miles below the Hubbard ranch, south of Contact. A second outfit of men and teams passed through Twin Falls Tuesday on the way to work on the line and they will be followed today by two or three cars of smaller outfits, Mr. Bowman said. All of the outfits now arriving on the scene of operations are being put to work on the line between Rogerson and a point about 55 miles south of Rogerson. Considerable clearing of brush on the line has been completed by the first outfit in the field. It is expected to put a heavy force of men at work within the next week or two or as fast as the men and material can be assembled. Work on the Boise main line connection is about finished, Mr. Bowman says, and a number of outfits will be moved to Rogerson in the next few days as fast as they can be released from the Boise job.

The construction firm of Morrison and Knudson of Boise have taken a sub contract on some of the heaviest rock work on the entire line, just this side of Twin Springs. They expect to get under way shortly.

"Wait two or three weeks then we may have something to show you," said Mr. Bowman. "We haven't really got started yet."

Road material is still being assembled at Rogerson and it is expected that once commenced the entire job will be rushed to completion with just as little delay as possible.

The Samaritans

The Samaritans were a mixed people of ancient Palestine, composed of the remnant of the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, and of colonists introduced from Assyria after the Ten Tribes had been carried into captivity (721 B. C.). They accepted the Pentateuch, but rejected the rest of the sacred writings of the Hebrews. In 408 B. C. they erected a temple on Mt. Gerizim, intended as a rival to the one in Jerusalem, and thus incurred the hatred of the Jewish people; so that for many years the "Jews had no dealings with the Samaritans."

Famous Greek Inventor

To the Greek Anaximander of Miletus is attributed the invention of the first navigation instruments. The following account is given: "Mariners had observed that the farther north they went the higher the Pole star rose in the heavens, and Anaximander is reputed to have invented an arrangement of two sticks hinged together, so that when one was held horizontally and the other pointed to the Pole star, the angle they made would indicate how far north the observer was."

HEADS OR TAILS.

"The lot," some old-fashioned people say, "is sacred." If you undertake to decide upon a course of action by flipping a penny or any other method, you must abide by it. There was a medieval belief that Providence somehow made such a decision for the frail human being incapable of deciding for himself. Be that as it may, it is reasonable to argue that the person committing himself to any form of adjudication, even that of blind chance owes it to his self-respect to accept the result.

Yet it is sometimes a question of interpreting the result. Fred Rodolph of New York made a mistake. He flipped a coin last spring to see which of two girls he should marry. The coin fell through a grating and disappeared. Thus there was no choice indicated. So Fred rashly assumed that fate meant for him to marry both, which he did. Now he is in jail for bigamy. Too late he realizes that fate meant for him to marry neither.

MORE SCHOOL?

In many a home during the next few weeks the question of more schooling for the older children will come up for discussion.

Shall the boy ready for college become so interested in his summer job that he thinks after all he had better stick to business and let college go? Shall the boy or girl half way through high school and becoming restive stop and go to work or shall he by changing his course a bit get ready for college or for mechanical work of the higher sort? Shall the eighth grader be allowed to decide that he is educated enough, and never again look inside of a school room, never read a good book or advance himself intellectually in any way beyond the necessary requirements of the nearest job, joining for life the great army of hewers?

We asked a wise old person what he thought about all this, the arguments for and against more school. This was his answer, and it bears consideration:

"There are two things which I have lived to hear many a man and woman regret not doing when young. Never have I heard man or woman regret 'doffing' them. One is getting a little more schooling while there was a chance; the other is trying a little piece of land.

"Not every boy or girl should go through college; not every one should buy a farm. But just getting one more year of school or music or acquiring the habit of reading good books while the mind is young and nimble is worth everything to the happiness of later life; and buying one good lot with the margin of the first salary establishes a foundation of credit and thrift for later comfort.

THE LAST PARLIAMENT.

"Italy is beginning her very last parliamentary experiment," says Premier Mussolini. This is not a prophecy but a threat. What the Black Shirt leader means, apparently, is that if the Italian Parliament fails to do what he thinks it should, he will kick it out and get along without it. Then, instead of representative government, actual or pretended, there will be frank absolute government.

This is what happened in Italy about two thousand years ago. Julius Caesar was some such man as Mussolini, though bigger-brained and softer-spoken. He rejected the Roman Senate to a rubber stamp. And after him came a long succession of emperors, pretending to rule according to the established law but actually making what law they liked as they went along.

Yet that did not last forever. Italy eventually tired of tyranny and became a group of free republics, with genuinely representative government again. Finally came the modern constitutional monarchy that allows a Mussolini to rise from nothing to supreme power.

It is easy for any man "clothed with a little brief authority" to make the importance of himself and his ideas. Mussolini has done an excellent work in suppressing Bolshevism in Italy and restoring material prosperity. But his authority and his ideas will not endure forever. There will be many a free Parliament in Italy after his brief period of power. Even Red Flag and Black Shirt cars do not last long nowadays.

AMSTERDAM.

AMSTERDAM—Mr. and Mrs. Bert G. Bingle of Twin Falls were guests at the C. L. Kunkel home several days last week. On Friday they, and Miss Julia Kunkel, left for a motor trip to Jarbridge, returning Sunday evening.

Miss Ruby Bigger came to the home of her sister, Mrs. Chas. Hummel, on Saturday, remaining for a few days.

Back Blee was a business caller in Amsterdam on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Kunkel, Leslie Dean, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Holmquist and family, Misses Laura Kitchell and Julia Kunkel were among those from this vicinity in Twin Falls on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Dean and son Billy were guests at the Gilbert Hall home east of Hollister on Sunday. James Palmer was a business caller in this vicinity on Monday. Billy, Misses Julia Kunkel, Myrle Skinner, Lucille Kitchell and Jesta Kunkel, motored to the county seat on Thursday to shop.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Weir and daughter, Hazel, of Council Bluffs, Kansas, arrived at the Frazier home on Monday morning. They made the trip by motor and report the snow storm in Wyoming last week as very severe.

They were very busy a great deal of the time. There was a great deal of ways to be done.

In the first place they were fond of eating but for the most part they helped farmers for they ate little milk and moles.

His voice was very clear and its beautiful tone resounded through the woods.

It was the voice of a wild creature and yet the voice of a creature who knew how to sing and the loveliness of ringing sounds.

Again and again he would sing the same song. It was a song in which he tried to say how much he loved the woods and the great, free world and the beautiful air through which he could fly.

And he would sing his song so that you could feel the woods—you could feel the whispering wind and the warm, sweet air. You could feel the stillness and yet the coziness of the woods.

You could feel the warmth of the sunshine outside of the woods where the Red-Shouldered Hawks would have their meal.

But again and again came that long, strange Ke-o, Ke-o sound that was so beautiful.

RED-SHOULDERED HAWKS

They lived in the woods, these two Red-Shouldered Hawks, and splendidly they enjoyed themselves. Their home was made of sticks and twigs. Soft weeds and bits of bark made up the beds and the furniture for the family.

Their shoulders were of a reddish-brown color and they were hawks of course, but because of the reddish shade to the feathers upon their shoulders they had long ago been given the name of Red-Shouldered Hawks.

They were very busy a great deal of the time. There was a great deal of ways to be done.

In the first place they were fond of eating but for the most part they helped farmers for they ate little milk and moles.

"Matrimonially Speaking"
By Hugh McKay

My wife never tells me when she's going to get up, winter clothes away in her bags.

And, of course, she never thinks to go through the pockets of the skirt to see if there might be any papers or letters there that I might need before next fall.

She just piles everything—of mine that she can find into her hat bags, fastens them up and puts them away in the store-room closets. That's why I have to make so many trips to the third floor and break into so many bags and boxes.

This year, she managed to take my blank book, eight important letters, a check, the keys to my desk and my fountain pen. She couldn't understand why I should make such a fuss over little things like that and insist on having them rescued.

She gives me more inconvenience at the beginning of every summer than forty-seven regiments of moths ever could!

same one. But he can't. He can't get the beauty into his voice that you get into yours."

"I don't think my song is as wonderful as you say it is," said Mr. Red-Shouldered Hawk. "But I do know that I enjoy singing it."

"Somehow it seems to express what I feel. It is so hard to tell what is in your heart. Maybe you are afraid some will make fun of you.

"Maybe you feel that some will say: 'How silly to be so in love with everything about you, the woods and freedom and all!'

"But if you sing no one will say such things to you for there is something in their hearts too which is the same as is in your own. They, too, have been too shy to speak.

"And so, because I've been given a voice though it is not remarkable, still I suppose you love it because in your heart, too, is the thrill of the woods of which I sing.

"That, I think, is the reason you love my song."

Hero on His Way

From New York comes report of a milk wagon driver who, on his early morning round, responding to a call for help, rushed to the aid of three little children and saved them from death by suffocation to which they were succumbing, and then, his rescue work done, weak and almost overcome, climbed to his wagon seat and drove on his way. Manifestly to that man the great service he had rendered was just an incident. That is the way with heroes and their work.

Dinsdale paced about the lodge, his body erect, his eyes glowing. To feel the guns in his hands once more would do him a world of good. Nor did Scissors err in estimating the extent of the chiefs' curiosity. Crazy Horse returned to his own lodge undecided whether to have the young man give an exhibition or not. But once he fell to contemplating the two Colts the idea fastened upon him. It was always ready to learn better technique in the handling of firearms. Dinsdale spent the afternoon on the range, and his acquaintance with the white man's skill had been largely limited to skirmishes and battles when individual scores could not be followed.

Within thirty minutes after Scissors had spoken to his companion Little Big Man, uttered at the lodge and suddenly announced the prisoners were to follow him.

On the slope leading to the river and the pony herd were gathered the men, women, children and most of the dogs. All were waiting with childish eagerness to witness the white man's skill. Crazy Horse was seated apart from the assemblage and had the two revolvers on a robe before him. The chief asked:

"Does the young man wish to show the Ogulala how to shoot?"

"He is ready to show them," Scissors answered.

"How does he want to shoot?" asked the chief. "He must shoot away from us."

Scissors repeated this query to Dinsdale.

"Tell him to have some of his men stand up to the slope behind me and throw gourds and dishes down the slope and over my head. That will let me keep my back to the people."

Scissors repeated the suggestion to the chief. Crazy Horse readily agreed to it, and gave an order to the spectators.

The women ran back to the lodges to secure mugs, bowls and tin plates. A dozen warriors with rifles were drawn up behind Dinsdale ready to shoot him down did he offer to face about before dropping the revolvers to the ground, Dinsdale explained to the girls and Dinsdale curiously looked at:

"I understand. But I want to look at the guns and see if they are all right before I commence."

Crazy Horse unloaded the weapons and took them to Dinsdale and watched him closely as he spun the cylinders and tested the trigger action.

"I am ready to load," he told Scissors.

He faced down the slope and reached a hand behind him for the cartridges. Crazy Horse handed these to Scissors and hurried back to his blanket. Scissors then turned to the outcattered hand and Dinsdale examined each critically before slipping it into a chamber. At last he was ready and stood with the guns half-raised, his head tilted back so as to catch an early sight of the targets as they flew over his head.

The men with the rifles crouched within five feet of him, while those chosen to throw the targets stood some fifteen feet away. Ten men were picked to throw the gourds and dishes. To prevent a too general discharge of targets Crazy Horse ordered that three men on each end of the line should throw in turn, from right to left and transversely, while the four center men should hurl straight ahead, each taking his turn. This would allow not more than three targets crossing Dinsdale's field of vision at the same time.

The gathering on the slope became as quiet as a tomb. All eyes were focused on the motionless figure holding both arms half-raised, the head back as if making a sun dance vow to Wakantanka.

"Be ready!" Scissors broke the silence by yelling as a man on each end drew back his arm.

Then one after another the warriors hurled dish, mug, or plate, and Dinsdale worked both guns for a total of seven shots and dropped his hands to his side as the last dish sailed to the ground.

It did not seem possible to the spectators that he could have released that number of shots. They had expected to hear distinct detonations, and instead it had been a blurred, crackling sound of very brief duration. There was something so casual about the whole performance that it was impossible more than one hit could have been scored, and that would be by accident. It was all over so soon there was only one feature which was recalled—how a tin plate had deviated from its gliding flight by jumping convulsively.

"Drop your guns," advised Scissors. Dinsdale did so; then the squares scuttled forward to bring back the targets. Hands patted against lips. Grunts and sharp yelps sounded. Crazy Horse leaned forward and looked at the prisoner with new respect. Six of the seven shots had registered.

"Did well, son," murmured Scissors. "It's a joke," replied Dinsdale. "Not more than three were in fair position at the same time. I was a fool to miss even the one shot."

broadside, and the instant it appeared overhead, the full surface shrouded and making an easy mark. He used

Scissors put the question and Crazy Horse courteously answered it was for the young man to decide. He said it would be as waken to hit-one target twice as to hit two targets once. Scissors reminded the chief that Dinsdale had five shots left. Then he warned Dinsdale:

"Man on your right has a big bowl. Then throw the arrows to your left. Pick up your guns."

"Let's hope he throws slow and high," mumbled Dinsdale, bending and securing the guns.

Despite his condemnation of the spinning plates he could not resist curiosity, and the instant it appeared overhead, the full surface shrouded and making an easy mark. He used his left-hand gun on this, and within a second a ball was crossing to his right with the same gun. Then appeared the big bowl, thrown high and traveling in a broad arc from right to left. Firing the last shot in his left-hand gun with much deliberation, he then fired twice with his right, the latter as his bending as one. He dropped the guns and said:

"Washu-helo!" greeted Crazy Horse. "Bring me the guns. Bring the bowls and the plate."

Scissors carried the revolvers to the robe and remarked:

"Tashu-helo! now you know my friend could have killed many of Little Big Man's horses and been held for a fight instead of for this village."

"He was caught with his guns in his belt," spoke up Little Big Man.

"Then let him have the empty guns in his belt and let Little Big Man show Tashu-helo!" challenged Scissors.

This appealed to Crazy Horse, who nodded it should be done, the capture being acted in pantomime. Little Big Man, as master of ceremonies, arrogantly insisted that Dinsdale should stand up to the back of the red men and should not attempt to draw a weapon until Little Big Man whistled. Dinsdale dutifully turned his back and Little Big Man and his braves began crawling forward.

Scissors bit his lips in anger at Little Big Man's portrayal of the capture. He Big Man's hands and he had held the white man knew nothing of the Indian's appearance until the dusky hands were all but on them. At last as the half-circle of braves were stretching out hands to haul Dinsdale to the ground Little Big Man whistled, and Dinsdale turned and heaved himself up, turned about while his feet were clear of the ground. And the two guns were out and clicking madly and fanning the short line of red men. Verved in pantomime, there was none of the onlookers who did not concede the victory to the white man.

"His gun medicine is very wakan," called out Crazy Horse as he waved the warriors back from continuing their attack. "Bring me the guns."

Taking them from Scissors he walked back to his lodge.

The prisoners returned to the lodge, followed at a respectful distance by the Indians and guarded by the aketa, village police. Little Big Man was much chagrined. His companions were convinced his life had been at the mercy of the young white warrior, and secretly he was admitting the fact that he had been deceived.

The lodge of Sorrel Horse the medicine-man struck out his head and announced:

"Shu-hu-hu! he has been trying his new medicine. He tried very hard. He told it to help the white man to shoot his arrows."

"It made him miss a very easy shot," Scissors hurried back at him. "It is a very weak medicine just now. It must grow big before it can break Jugs."

The medicine-man vanished.

When this exchange had been explained to Dinsdale he angrily denounced him.

"The cheap bluffer! Trying to get credit on another man's work. I am more scared of that snake than I am of the chief."

"You needn't be scared of him at all. I've bought him, I tell you. He must learn how to shoot. Just as he can only learn on our terms, and he knows it."

"You must teach him the trick before you get the ponies; after that what is there to stop him from deserting us?" asked Dinsdale. "I don't trust him."

"Not I, except in this one thing. I know how troubled he is. After I've shown him the mysteries of hydraulic pressure it will remain just as much a miracle to him as it was when the Jug broke in his hands. He will believe it will refuse to work for him if he hears us false. It's to his interests for us to get away. When he tries the trick he doesn't want to go around to say we told him how to do it, and then proceed to prove it by showing others how to do it. You're feeling better, aren't you?" The last as he noted the sparkle in Dinsdale's eyes and the uplifted chin.

Assurance that the Iowa delegation to the democratic national convention of which Mr. Meredith is chairman will vote solidly for McAdoo's nomination also was given by Mr. Meredith. The Iowa delegation, he said, is unopposed, but at least 10 of its 26 members are personally pledged to McAdoo.

DISMISSAL OF ACTION SOUGHT

Idaho Farm Development Company Attorneys Deny Claims Of Suing Contractor Proved

Attorneys for the Idaho Construction company, plaintiffs in a suit for $40,000 against the Idaho Farm Development company of which E. T. Meredith, former secretary of agriculture is the principal stockholder, rested their case on the testimony of three bankers at noon, and attorneys for the development company immediately moved for dismissal of the suit. Judge W. A. Babcock, presiding, reserved his decision on the motion until Wednesday morning.

The motion was based on alleged failure of the plaintiff corporation to prove its contention that a written contract for building by the construction company of irrigation works for the farm development company on its project near Rosamouth, Idaho, had been abrogated by an oral agreement between John March, president and general manager of the construction company, and Pearl C. Meredith, president and manager of the farm development company. In this suit the farm development company has presented counter claim for $140,000 damages on account of alleged failure of the construction company to carry out provisions of the written contract.

COURT UPHOLDS HAZZARD CLAIM TO POWER SITE

Decision Denies All of Adverse Contentions Urged By Mrs. Mary E. Syster to Clear Lakes Water Rights

Claim of W. C. Hazzard to waters of Glen Lakes for power development purposes has been upheld by Idaho's supreme court in a decision written by Judge T. Bailey Lee of Burley, sitting as commissioner, and concurred in by Justices Bugge, Dunn and W. A. Lee. Copies of the decision were received here Tuesday by attorneys for Hazzard and his associates in the action which was instituted March 21, 1919, by Mrs. Mary E. Syster for cancellation of permits issued to Hazzard and for restraining order enjoining Hazzard and his associates from interfering with her rights under later permits which she sought, also, to have declared superior and prior to those claimed by Hazzard and his associates. The suit was tried before Judge H. F. Fawcett in district court in Gooding county, and judgment of the trial court is affirmed by the supreme court except as to the earlier of the Hazzard permits which previously been abandoned by Hazzard.

Court Fixes Figures

In the trial of the suit the court found that work for development of power rights claimed by Hazzard and his associates could be completed at a cost of $50,000 and that some $10,000 had been expended within the time limit set by the state engineer. Application for extension of this time had been granted on Hazzard's representations that litigation over the property and water involved had prevented him from complying with the terms imposed.

Associated with Hazzard in this case were the Mutual Light, Heat and Power company; E. J. Finch, trustee, and the Farmers' Mutual Power company.

Their attorneys were Bothwell and Chapman, George Herriott and Turner K. Hackman, all of Twin Falls, and H. C. Wyman.
