TRUE BILLS ARE VOTED AGAINST CHICAGO YOUTHS

"Intellectual Murderers" Are Named by Grand Jury for Kidnaping and Slaying of Franks Lad.

CHICAGO, June 5 (AP)—True bills said to charge murder and kidnaping for ransom on 28 counts, each crime punishable by death, were voted against Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, sons of two Chicago millionaires, late today by the grand jury which was spending three days investigating the slaying and kidnaping two weeks ago of Robert Franks, school boy son of another Chicago millionaire.

The true bills were made returnable tomorrow, it was reported, in view of pending writs of habeas corpus for the release of the confessed slayers, also returnable tomorrow. Arguments on the writs side against it is expected, after the indictments are returned. It was reported that efforts will be made to seek bonds for the boys but the state is expected to resist such efforts.

MANY COUNTS.—The true bill for murder against each of the boys was reported to contain ten counts and that for kidnaping for ransom was said to contain sixteen.

The true bills were voted two weeks to a day from the time the body of the boys' victim was found stuffed into a culvert in a south side swamp. Presentation of evidence was concluded late in the afternoon after which the grand jury remained in session until long past its usual adjournment time. The boys then adjourned until tomorrow morning and immediately it was learned that true bills had been voted. State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe refused to say whether true bills had or had not been voted. His only comment was: "Indictments have been decided upon."

Some court officials said they believed the case would be taken to give indictment experts time to draw up the formal charges.

The only other important event of the day in connection with the case was the filing of a suit for $100,000 damages against Leopold and Loeb by attorneys for Mrs. Louise Nohley. According to her counsel, the woman claims the youths attacked her when she went for an automobile ride with her. Assistant State's Attorney said they knew of the charges but were little concerned because of the grave charges which the boys are expected to face.

COOLIDGE AGREES TO GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS FOR SECOND POSITION

President Makes Known His Approval of Lowden as His Running Mate; Delegates from LaFollette Territory Add to Growing Strength of Probable Candidate.

CLEVELAND, June 5 (AP)—President Coolidge has passed the word that former Governor Lowden of Illinois will be so acceptable to him as his running mate. There is every reason to believe that Mr. Lowden, who was the choice of the old line party leaders for first place in 1920, will not resist a draft.

This word came to Cleveland today and crystallized the sentiment already running strong toward Lowden. It was made plain that President Coolidge in disclosing his approval of Lowden had not departed from his hands off policy and was still leaving it to the convention, so long as no attempt was being made to put on a running mate to represent the insurgent wing of the party. The president, it was carefully pointed out, was simply making it known that he would regard Lowden as very acceptable if the convention chose to pick him.

Has Much Support.—All this fitted in with a rapidly rising tide for the former Illinois governor which today had entirely drowned out the talk for Charles G. Dawes of Chicago and put Secretary Hoover out of the running. If he ever was in it, for Mr. Hoover had publicly declared he did not want the place.

Delegates and committeemen arriving from the states of the northwest where the LaFollette strength is openly admitted as a factor to be reckoned with added to the rapidly growing sentiment for Lowden.

They declared that Lowden was the man who could do the ticket most good in the agricultural states west of the Mississippi and who would draw strength from the rural vote elsewhere. If the committeemen and delegates already on the ground were to pick out a vice presidential nominee now it undoubtedly would be Lowden, as pre-convention details steadily are being cleared away, the majority which will nominate the ticket likely will be giving to gather momentum.

Dispose of Contests.—Principal contests among delegates have been disposed of; organization sections for national committee offing which both proponents and opponents have been added to the arrange of the party. The delegates are being cleared away, the majority which will nominate the ticket likely will be giving to gather momentum.

PROHIBITION PARTY SESSIONS

Abandonment of Organization Is Debated by One Side; Another Wants Program of Expansion

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 5 (AP)—Picking a memorial for disbandment and vote proposals that the nation of nominating national tickets, the prohibition national convention tonight was in an uncertain state. The first day's session brought out sharp divergences of opinion on the subject of the program and the issue will be fought out on the floor tomorrow.

Opponents of the abandonment faction went ahead with plans to carry through the usual program and talked candidates.

Another faction in the party worked to bring about an expansion in its ranks, and, if necessary, a change in names.

Still others lobbied for amalgamation with the newly organized "American party," which had its inception in a convention held in Columbus last week.

Gives Proposal.—The proposal for party dissolution was presented to the convention by Murray, sole delegate from Nebraska, yesterday chosen as vice chairman of the national committee and an outspoken advocate of continuing the organization. He explained that the state convention of Nebraska had adopted a memorial and that he had presented it in accordance with instructions from that body.

A more determined attempt to wind up the party was fathered by Robert H. Patten of Springfield, Ill. He introduced a resolution which, with the memorial, was referred to the platform committee, providing for the possible organization of an entirely new party. It proposed that the prohibition convention adopt a set of principles based upon law enforcement. These were to be the basis of a new party to be organized.

Trouble Ensues.—Introduction of this threw the convention into a preliminary tangle during which both proponents and opponents were called to order for discussion.

Deficiency Bill Passed; Provides For Bonus Cost

Last of Supply Measures Approved by Senate; Clear Calendar for Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, June 5 (AP)—he pending deficiency bill carrying approximately $300,000,000, of which $131,945,000 would be for making the first year's cost of the soldier bonus, and last of the supply measures, was passed by the senate late tonight, clearing the calendar apparently of legislation of first importance in preparation for adjournment Saturday evening. It now goes to conference with the house.

The senate added numerous items to the measure as it came from the house for various government activities. Its principal single increase was $10,000,000 for paying refunds on income taxes by the internal revenue bureau.

OBSERVANCE OF LAWS DEMANDED.—Describe Plans at Portland Conference for Tri-State Body for Enforcement

PORTLAND, Ore., June 5 (AP)—Formation of a tri-state organization with branches throughout Washington, Idaho and Oregon to work for enforcement of law, was outlined in a plan adopted at the Northwest Citizens' Enforcement congress in session here.

This organization which it is proposed shall have units at centers of population, is to co-operate with the Women's Christian Temperance union and the Anti-Saloon league. Efforts are to be made for legislative action designed to make more effective the operation of prohibition statutes and the eighteenth constitutional amendment. Among measures advocated were:

Placing prohibition agents under civil service.

Making purchasers of illicit liquor equally guilty with the sellers.

Depository of all liquor confiscated by liquor and drug law violations.

Centralization of authority for enforcement under a responsible head with a department represented in the cabinet of the government.

A statute authorizing the president to use designated ships and officers in the suppression of rum smuggling.

A law making it a felony to drive an automobile while intoxicated.

SENATE ACTS ON PROJECT RELIEF PLAN

Senate Votes Reclamation Legislation; Smith Bill and Rate Slash Scheme Scheduled in House of Representatives.

WASHINGTON, June 5 (AP)—Reclamation legislation was voted by the senate late tonight, which upon action by the house would provide for the establishment of a bureau of reclamation in the interior department and a readjustment of water charges, which would be based on the average estimated crop value extended over a period of years. Settlers on new projects would be given a much longer period of time at present in which to pay off charges.

The measure would afford relief to settlers on reclamation projects, and provide sweeping changes in the reclamation law; it would provide for the establishment of a bureau of reclamation in the interior department and a readjustment of water charges, which would be based on the average estimated crop value extended over a period of years. Settlers on new projects would be given a much longer period of time at present in which to pay off charges.

SMITH BILL SCHEDULED.—WASHINGTON, June 5 (AP)—Reclamation legislation in line with recommendations of Secretary Work's fact-finding commission, which was considered by the house tomorrow under a program agreed upon late today by leaders.

It is planned to call up a bill introduced by Chairman Smith of the irrigation committee under a motion to suspend the rules which would shut off amendments, limit debate to 40 minutes and require a two-thirds vote for passage.

Similar action is expected on the Hoch resolution, which would direct the interstate commerce commission, after a inquiry to retain railroad freight rates on commodities, including livestock, affected by the agriculture depression.

Action Delayed.—Unexpected delays prevented the house from reaching the measure today, both of which had been given places on the legislative calendar. Other business also prevented their consideration at a night session.

In view of the delay, Mr. Smith announced that Speaker Cullum had consented to give early recognition to the reclamation bill. In calling the measure up under suspension procedure, Mr. Smith and other friends of the bill, confident that they can muster the votes for passage, agreed that such action was the only way a vote could be reached before adjournment.

Speedy senate approval is expected, as Senator Gooding, republican, Idaho, has announced he would for it as an amendment to a de-

Confession Tells How Boy's Slayers Planned His Death

Nathan Leopold, Jr., Named by Grand Jury for Killing Franks Lad, Gives Details of Their Ghastly Plot.

CHICAGO, June 5 (AP)—A plan by two rich youths, both brilliant students, to kill for excitement and to kidnap for a ransom which they did not need, was revealed tonight in the detailed confession of Nathan Leopold, Jr., who with his boon companion, Richard Loeb, was named today in true bills charging murder and kidnaping for ransom in connection with the slaying of 13-year-old Robert Franks. The confession, which was presented to the grand jury today was made public tonight by Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney.

"We planned as long ago as last November, I guess," the confessor said. "The process of getting the money was the most difficult problem. We said several different plans and all were good for one reason or another. Finally we hit on the one to throw the money from a moving train after we had given the point marked."

"The next problem was the system of notification. We had a plan of a number of relays. The thing was to tell the man that his son was kidnapped and being held for ransom."

"It was to secure $10,000 in denominations as follows: $8000 in $50 bills and $2000 in $20 bills. We were to get old bills so the children would not be in sequence. The money was to be put in a cigar box and wrapped with white paper and taped and the ends were to be sealed with sealing wax. The reason for this was to give the impression that it was to be delivered personally to a messenger of a certain executive of the plans. He was then to receive a phone call instructing him to go to a refuse box and there to get a note instructing him to proceed to a drug

Author's Address Leaves Delegates in Bewilderment

Rupert Hughes Creates Sensation with Speech at Federation Convention; Discusses Motion Pictures.

LOS ANGELES, June 5 (AP)—An address before the General Federation of Women's clubs by Rupert Hughes here this afternoon, left the 6000 delegates and visitors in a state of confusion and bewilderment, little short of an uproar.

In his address to the convention Mr. Hughes suggested that a woman's place was in the home, and that she should not leave the home to go around the country, and regarded the federation's idea of censorship as very faulty.

"Censorship is one of the greatest evils of modern times. Horribly moral people," Rupert Hughes continued, "are really sacrilegious." Mr. Hughes stated that "if the fault-finding people of the world are to be allowed to not let God take care of these things."

In closing, Mr. Hughes read a report written by Cotton Mather, famous minister of Puritanical days, which revealed facts as sinful as any of our modern problems.

"So evils cannot be laid at the door of the movies," Mr. Hughes concluded.

Moving picture producer, author and gossip columnist, in a short address, supported censorship, providing the board is made up of people who understand and appreciate art and the finer things of life. Mrs. Porter favored a similar censorship of books stating that vulgarity in writing was as great an evil as obscenity in movies. Princess Cantacuzene, Russian, and granddaughter of President Grant, in a brief talk complimented the club workers on their accomplishments, stating that upon returning to the United States, she was pleasantly surprised by the great strides made by American women for better living."

WESTERN MAN REVIEWS U. S. FOREIGN TRADE

Donovan—Demands Unity of American People for Advancement of Nation's Business Dealings Abroad

BOSTON, June 5 (AP)—Union of the American people for exploiting existing foreign trade advantages was demanded today by J. J. Donovan, of Bellingham, Washington, speaking at the eleventh National Foreign Trade Convention, who declared that the present wealth of the United States could easily be increased many fold if such union existed.

Mr. Donovan, speaking on "American Foreign Trade Policy," made a comprehensive analysis of the wealth of the United States, pointing out that in the last two decades American foreign trade had grown from less than $1,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000 yearly. He said that this was the best proof that there was no such thing as an economic difficulty left in any land, and that now the United States was definitely a part of the international world of human relationship.

Handing over the unparallelled development of the weapons of prosperity, namely, production, transportation, communications and finance, within the United States, but said that in the last three this nation was handicapped abroad.

He said that greater wealth would come through a persistent and consistent merchant marine policy, and the handling of foreign loans for the benefit of American industry.

His address, in part, is as follows: "In view of what has been achieved, chiefly through the more or less haphazard efforts of many individuals, each working for himself and his own interest, there seems almost no limit to the accomplishment possible for American enterprise, initiative and skill if once there could be brought about the concentration of effort and sustained energy that would necessarily result from substantial unity of deliberate purpose."

Traces Advance
"Our inland transportation system is the most complete the fastest, the surest and the cheapest in the world. Our domestic system of communication by mail, telephone and telegraph ranges so far and wide throughout the country that it is literally possible for information of great public events, as well as for business news of sufficient importance, to reach practically every person in the country within 24 hours. Our financial institutions cover the country with a network of branches and agencies which puts the most remote places within their reach."

"Our foreign trade should have several additional facilities which are not furnished to it simply because Congress is willfully or stupidly blind to some of the most obvious facts of our modern development. We have the greatest market in the world to which we freely admit all comers on terms of absolute equality. They, in turn, discriminate against and hamper our trade in numerous and devious ways. Whatever the underlying principle of our tariff, the government should be equipped with authority that would enable it to deal effectively with such cases. We should have a real bargaining tariff."

"We need and should have a thorough-going reorganization of the foreign service of the government. It should be adequately compensated, so that it would cease, especially on the subordinate diplomatic side, to be chiefly a haven for rich young men ambitious for social distinction."

"These things, and more, are all possible. They are all merely details of an American foreign trade policy. They depend for their establishment on the will of the American people. Once the real favoring spirit manifests itself among the sober-minded majority of our citizens there will unquestionably follow a different attitude in Congress toward helpful foreign trade legislation."

"Foreign trade, in increasing measure, is an absolute economic necessity for the United States. The chief essential in getting it is the development of the will to have it among the American people. That is sound foreign trade policy."

EASY VICTORY FOR RATE BILL

Passage in Senate of Gooding Measure Ends Long Fight on Behalf of the West

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5 (AP)—One of the greatest battles ever fought in the United States senate opened May 15 and closed on May 19 with an overwhelming victory for Senator Gooding's long and short haul bill. For seven days the senate had listened to the story of freight rate discriminations against the inland mountain territory and the story of how the boats were driven from the rivers by the policy of the railroads in making rates to water points below where the boats could compete while at the same time the railroads reaped their losses by high rates against the intermediate points located back from the rivers.

It was a victory for fair play and square dealing. Senator after senator who knew little or nothing of the so-called fourth section situation was won over to the Gooding bill as the fight proceeded until on Monday when the vote was taken on the bill it carried by a vote of 64 to 23, better than a two-thirds vote. In addition the supporters of the Gooding bill could easily have mustered a majority of the absent senators.

Senator Gooding's bill, known as senate bill 2327, amends the fourth section of the interstate commerce act to prevent long and short haul violations for the purpose of meeting water competition. In other words if the bill passes the house and becomes a law the railroads will be forever prohibited from making discriminatory rates for the purpose of meeting some boat line rate, actual or imaginary at a water port. It will not effect the present policy of permitting a long line railroad meeting the rate of a short line railroad between competitive points on land. Nor will it effect export, import or express rates. It also permits joint water and rail rates to meet direct rail rates.

The passage of the bill by the senate is an outstanding triumph for Senator Gooding of Idaho and Senator Pittman of Nevada. Though long and short haul battles have been fought before in congress, never has there been such a thorough discussion, never has there been such a decisive vote as a right law that will protect water and never has other body passed such a right law that will protect the intermountain country as in this instance.

ADVENTURE CALLS FOR RIDES

OF MOST THRILLING NATURE
Douglas MacLean, whose latest comedy success, "The Yankee Consul," is now at the Orpheum theatre has just faced three trying experiences, demanding unusual courage, and he has come through victorious.

If his hardships had been real, his friends declare, all the king's doctors and all the king's men wouldn't have been able to put his shattered nerves together again.

But it all happened in the "movies," so Douglas is happy and in good health and his audience are in good health and even more happy.

The first of Mr. MacLean's three adventures were in "The Hotshot," when he rode a horse against his will in a break-neck steepclimb. He hated and feared horses. It happened in England. Then in America, he piloted an airplane up the dizzy heights above the clouds in "Going Up"—and he had only seen an airplane once before.

Now he has impersonated an American consul in South America, land of romance and intrigue, in "The Yankee Consul."

How This Settles Every Mother's Biggest Problem

EVERY mother takes great pride in the clean, neat appearance of her children's wash clothes. To keep these clothes from soiling so quickly is one of her greatest problems.

However, your children can always be charmingly dressed if you will starch with LINIT the remarkable new starch discovery.

Not only does LINIT make even ordinary cotton goods look and feel like linen, but LINIT eliminates lint, thereby keeping your children's clothes from soiling so quickly.

THIS is because LINIT is distinctly different from old-fashioned starches. Instead of merely smearing on the surface of the material, LINIT penetrates each thread, helps to prevent wear and prolongs the life of the fabric.

Use LINIT according to directions and you will find it a THIN, FREE-RUNNING fluid like water. And use very little of it, for a small amount of LINIT goes much farther than a similar amount of old-fashioned starch.

For this reason the wide-awake housewife finds LINIT to be much more economical.

GO to your grocer, ask for a package of Linit, and begin to use it for all household fabrics. Perfection in starching guaranteed or your money refunded

RADIO TELEPHONE COMING, WIRELESS INVENTOR SAYS

LONDON, June 5 (AP)—Radio telephone communication between Europe and America is coming soon, William Marconi, wireless inventor, declared yesterday in an interview in which he discussed the results of his recent radio speech from Cornwall which was heard distinctly not only by a prepared listener in an interview with a friend in Canada, J. H. Thompson of Montreal. The beam system was not used in this experiment in which both listeners had only small sets for receiving.

Mr. Marconi said the results of beam system transmission which he intended to make the material for transatlantic experiments soon, undoubtedly would satisfactorily prove its availability for high speed telephony for which, he said, his company was prepared to build large stations in various parts of the world.

The inventor is certain the beam can be compassed within an area as narrow as five degrees and possibly less and that by its use he will be able to obtain with power of only one tenth of a kilowatt an efficient transmission as is now possible in scattering transmission with twenty kilowatts with the power used in the speech to Australia.

SENATE ARGUES OVER INQUIRY

Order Appeal From Decision Releasing Brother of Former Attorney General

WASHINGTON, June 5 (AP)—Almost the entire session of the senate today was given over to an acrimonious discussion of the Daugherty investigation. Its only tangible result was the adoption of a resolution, under suspension of the rules and with but two dissenting votes, requesting the attorney general to appeal to the supreme court from the decision of the district court at Cincinnati releasing Mal B. Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general, on a writ of habeas corpus after the had been taken into custody in pursuit of a senate subpoena.

Chairman Brookhart introduced the subject, particularly stressing criticism of Mr. Daugherty's refusal to testify personally or to continue his representation before the committee. He began with the assertion that the committee had proven the existence of a "criminal conspiracy to protect law breakers in the attorney's household," and wound up with the declaration that this is "the brave, fighting Daugherty—the man who fights in the dark and stands in the back."

Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, declared that he personally would also have refused to appear before the committee, in view of the character of some of the testimony it had taken. This brought into the discussion Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, and several members of the democratic side including minority leader Robinson, Senator Canaway of Arkansas, Senator Mitchell, Tennessee, and Senator Ashurst, Arizona. Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, a member of Senator Brookhart's committee, declared himself in disagreement with the chairman on several points.

LEGISLATION IS THEME AT WOMEN'S CLUB MEET

LOS ANGELES, June 5 (AP)—In the "Blue Bird" women's Daugherty legislation in the British isles was the theme of an address before the general federation of women clubs by Miss Amy Cryan of London, attached to Mills college, Oakland, Cal., at a luncheon here today.

"We need have no fear that 'petticoat government' weakens nations as Montaigne points out that the Romans ruled all nations—but obeyed their wives," Miss Cryan said in closing. Miss Cryan gave a chronological review of the steps British women have taken in their fight for recognition.

COOLIDGE APPROVES OF LOWDEN AS CANDIDATE

arrangements for the sessions in public hall beginning Tuesday; delegations are beginning to arrive and the convention period has now reached the stage of the ticket scramble.

The center of interest in Cleveland tonight is a great burglar proof, bomb proof, steel and concrete vault over in the federal reserve bank building which contains the thousands of coveted postboards which are many thousands to few to satisfy all. Everybody who has anything to do with distributing tickets is going to have a fresh crop of enemies by Tuesday. Even the party leaders of the highest position cannot get enough tickets to meet the demands upon them.

It was definitely made known today for the first time, with official sanction that the name of Hiram Johnson will not be presented to the convention and that no votes are expected to be cast for him from the floor, as will be done for Senator LaFollette, State Senator George H. Bender, Johnson's manager in Ohio, announced that there would be no nomination of the California senator and that he stood by his previous release of his delegates. William M. Butler, President Coolidge's manager, said he had been advised that the two Johnson delegates chosen in 1918 would cast their votes for Coolidge.

Before the national committee completes its reorganization it will choose a treasurer to succeed Fred W. Upham of Chicago. Charles D. Hiles, national committeeman from New York, who has been discussed for the place, said today he was not a candidate and would not have it under any circumstances. Garret Thompson, one of the Ohio leaders also discussed for the place, said he appreciated the honor of being considered but doubted that he could spare the time from his business affairs. Claude H. Houston of Tennessee, chairman of the sub-committee on ways and means is understood to have the backing of Mr. Upham and the support of many of the older committee members.

Among the organization proposals to be submitted to the convention for ratification with the endorsement of the national committee will be one to elect women to full membership in the committee and equal participation in its affairs. At present women members are "associates," do not vote and retire with the public from executive sessions when any real business is to be done. Mr. Butler, the incoming chairman, said today he favored recognizing women members in full membership as a recognition of their interest in party affairs and it was assumed that his position had the endorsement of President Coolidge. It was announced today that Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton of Ohio, vice chairman of the national committee would retire and be succeeded by Mrs. A. T. Hirt of Kentucky.

LAUNDRY'S OWN BUSINESS.
Harold B. Hamilton, former deputy sheriff and later employed by the Harrott Auto company, has entered business on his own account and is the proprietor of the South Park service station, which this week was opened for business at the east end of the Shoshone street bridge. In addition to gasoline and oil, Mr. Hamilton will deal in tires, tubes and automobile accessories.

student and the mutilation of Charles Room, a taxi driver, last fall, was practically at a standstill, all efforts of the authorities being bent to the task of hurrying the last testimony to the grand jury.

Tomorrow the youths will be brought into court for final hearings on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. The state's attorney expects to have indictments against the boys before the time for a decision on the habeas corpus proceedings.

During the day the youths were brought from the county jail to criminal court building where two employees of a Chicago bank identified Leeb as the youth who opened an account there under the name of Ballard. The boys refused to come to the criminal court building until the state's attorney had secured an order for their appearance.

As they entered, a photographer exploded a flashlight and Leeb nearly collapsed.

Attorneys representing the boys went to the county jail later for a conference. It was reported that details of the defense for which a fund of $1,000.00 is said to be available already were discussed.

SHIPS TAKE FIRE

VICKSBURG, Miss, June 5 (AP)—Fire broke out tonight in the government fleet at Walters, several miles north of Vicksburg, threatening the destruction of the entire fleet valued at more than $1,000,000. The Vicksburg fire department and hundreds of men were fighting the flames.

AT THE LAVERING THEATER

Tonight the Price and Woods players will present a dramatization of Mary J. Holmes' popular novel, "Lena Rivers," at the Laving Theater. The story is too well and favorably known to need an introduction. Suffice to say that the Price and Woods players promise a most pleasing presentation of the same, the story is pretty, the comedy element predominates throughout. The play will have a special mounting and there will be a complete change of vaudeville numbers between acts. It is seldom the theater patrons have an opportunity of witnessing a performance of this quality at popular prices.

CAMPAIGN GIFTS.

Campaign funds are always a problem. And it makes a lot of difference from which side a person looks at the problem. A campaign committee never thinks it has enough money. The public usually thinks it has too much. There is no agreement as to the ethics of war chest donations and their proper limits.

One thing has been generally agreed on in recent years. It is that corporations should not contribute to political campaigns. There are laws, federal and state, to prevent that. But as every one knows, such laws are not very effective. Instead of gifts being credited to the corporations, they are credited to individuals representing those corporations, and it amounts to about the same thing.

"Large gifts" are unquestionably against public policy. But where definite limits are set, large givers find it easy to divide up their donations. Publicity of campaign funds has not accomplished what was expected of it, because the published statements may conveniently overlook various gifts, and it is hard to get at the facts. Senator Borah has a new plan, approved by the Senate, whereby the sources of campaign money must be published before election on ten-day periods. This, like other remedies for "buying elections," will help only in so far as it is lived up to in letter and spirit.

JAPANESE EXCLUSION.

The immigration law does not really slam the door in Japan's face as hard as some of the comments on that subject have seemed to imply. In his statement made when he signed the bill, President Coolidge took pains to explain, perhaps for the special benefit of Japanese jingoists:

"It should be noted that the bill exempts from the exclusion provision government officials, those coming to the country as tourists or temporarily for business or pleasure, those in transit, seamen, those already resident here, and returning from temporary absences, professors, ministers of religion, students, and those who enter solely to carry on trade in pursuance of existing treaty provisions."

This is fairly broad. It does not keep out any class that has been admitted heretofore under the "gentlemen's agreement." It bars only the lowerclass Japanese who were already barred under that agreement, merely making their exclusion more definite and emphatic. It is a change not of matter but of manner.

Thousands of Americans have agreed that it may be unwise or unfortunate to do the thing in this particular manner. Perhaps it is. Yet it is possible that the Japanese themselves, after a little, will realize that they have not really lost any privileges they possessed, and that the American people, while apparently harsh, do not really feel any ill will toward them.

PROFITLESS GOLD.

The Federal Reserve system was originated in its early years because it was making money. The critics insisted that the Federal banking system was never intended for profit. There is no more of such criticism. The system lately is unable to earn expenses.

The reason for that would have been incredible a few years ago. The system is choked with gold. It has so much gold, over and above its requirements, that it cannot get rid of the stuff according to any existing method. The surplus metal is not earning its keep.

The facts of the situation explain what is a mystery to many people. Every one knows there is a huge gold surplus, that the country's money supply is almost limitless. Citizens are often surprised and annoyed, then, when they apply to their banks for loans on real estate and other solid security, to find that the banks have no funds to lend them. The bankers are obliged to explain that they can only obtain funds from the vast store in the Federal Reserve vaults by turning over first-class collateral of a liquid nature—bonds, standard stocks, commercial paper, etc. And their own supply of such collateral is limited. The Federal Reserve cannot accept "frozen" securities, and so its own money remains frozen.

There are two possible ways, bankers say, by which this situation could be relieved. But either has its dangers. One is to send gold back to Europe—which is harder than it sounds. The other is to "loosen up" on domestic loans.

Money sent to Europe might be lost. Money poured into American loans might start a new inflation. Most Americans, however, who want money for legitimate activities, would be willing to risk the inflation if they could get the credit.

My Wife Expects Rain.

She never really enjoys starting out for anywhere unless she has an umbrella with her.

Whenever she leaves the house she always examines the sky carefully to see if possibly there isn't a storm blowing up somewhere.

A dark cloud the size of a postage stamp will send her scurrying back for a protecting umbrella.

And then she insists that I'd better take my coat and hat. She says she can feel rain in the air and that there's no point in getting my new suit drenched.

But, of course, it hardly ever rains on any of the occasions when she has us all prepared for it. And inside of half an hour the sun is making me want to throw my raincoat away and head-butt the umbrella over my head.

As a believer in preparedness for wet weather, my wife has only one historical rival—Noah!

Secret Service Tells How to Detect "Raised" Bills
The raising of United States currency above its face value by unscrupulous individuals has become so general during the past few years that the secret service has issued a general warning to all who handle large sums of money to give close watch to its currency accepted. Hotels, banks and merchants are generally the ones who receive most of the raised money.

Ninety per cent of the money in circulation in the United States is in the form of Federal reserve bank notes. Ninety-five per cent of the raised currency in circulation is in these same notes. Crooks succeed in changing the dollars and cents into raised money by changing the portraits. If bank tellers, department store cashiers, railroad ticket sellers and others who handle large sums of money would memorize the portraits which appear on the different denominations of Federal reserve bank notes, they would be very little hampered by raised currency. The ought to be easy because the portraits which appear on these bills are ones which everyone remembers from school days. They are: On the $1 Federal reserve bank note, Washington; on a $2, Jefferson; on a $5, Grant; on a $10, Lincoln; on a $20, Jackson; on a $50, Grant; on a $100, Franklin.

Lives of High and Low Influenced by Figures

A book published recently draws attention to a remarkable table that Sordani, the famous, colored, show-bog how the number 13 influenced him all through his life.

Murderers seem to be particularly subject to the malign influence of figures. Crippen's unlucky number was 48, and Charles Peace, was evilly influenced by 7.

The Bible is full of references to the potency of certain figures, notably 3 and 7, while both Oliver Cromwell and Napoleon had sincere convictions regarding the luck-bringing propensities of certain numbers.

In connection with this superstition there is the well-authenticated story that the famous Italian charlatan, Count Cagliostro, based his famous prediction concerning Marie Antoinette's execution and Josephine's elevation to empress by a calculation based on the number of letters in their names.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SWAMP WHITE OAK

"Sometimes," said the Swamp White Oak, "I've heard mothers telling their children that they must not get their feet wet."

"Or, if they have got their feet wet, I hear them tell them to come home at once and change their shoes and stockings so they will not catch cold."

"That seems so funny to me, so I say, Billie Brownie."

Billie Brownie had gone to call on the Swamp White Oak, and Billie was sitting curled up in one of its small branches. Billie had not liked to say that he didn't care to stand in the swamp for he was afraid it might hurt the Swamp White Oak's feelings!

He thought perhaps it might be rude so he had said:

"Oh, may I sit on one of your branches? It would be so comfortable. I feel sure it would be so comfortable."

And the Swamp White Oak had agreed.

"Of course," Billie Brownie said, in answer to the Swamp White Oak's speech, "people do catch cold when they get their feet wet and you don't catch cold to stand in the swamp for."

"If you sneezed and coughed and had to blow your nose you might feel different."

"That is the thing that happens when people catch cold and it is most uncomfortable."

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

"I seem to sense the presence of a kindred spirit, one of Nature's children, one of my organic brothers."

"I've never seen a tree with a cold and I don't suppose a tree could have a cold."

"I've never heard that they sold handkerchiefs in stores for trees and I've never heard a tree sneeze, nor seen one blow its nose."

The Swamp White Oak laughed. "Of course, no tree never catch cold. But, of course, all trees would not like it in the swamp as I do."

"I'm the special oak which likes swamp life. And I wouldn't be happy anywhere else. I amuse myself in all sorts of little ways."

"I shed my bark and it curls up and shows bright green underneath. It's rather an untidy habit but it amuses me. When I am young you do not notice this habit as my foliage covers all this up."

"But dear me, we can't all act just alike. What a dull world it would be if we did."

"There I agree with you absolutely," said Billie Brownie.

"I think," he added, "one of the reasons the world is so interesting is because so many have different ways."

"But I gather from your remark," the Swamp White Oak said, "that you do not agree with me about wet feet?"

"Yes, I like to stand in swamps and to feel the cool, wet ground under me."

"That is what I like above everything else, and when you see me or any of my family you will know how happy we are with our wet feet—or wet roots, perhaps you'd better say."

"Yes," said Billie Brownie to himself, after he had said good-by, "the world is filled with different tastes!"

Riddles

"What is the best material for kites? Fly-paper."
"Where is it that goes but never gets anywhere? A clock."
"What is the best thing to put in a sauce pie? Your teeth."

Why are the Western prairies flat? Because the sun sets on them every day.

Which eat more grass, black sheep or white? White, because there are more of them.

Why should you never tell secrets in a cornfield? Because there are so many ears about.

Why is a baker a most improvident person? Because he sells that which he kneads himself.

Why can a tramp wear a short coat? Because it will be long enough before he gets another one.

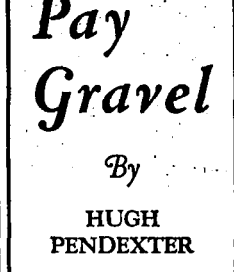

Why can't you tell a secret in the garden? Because the potatoes have eyes and the corn has ears.

Unusual Baseball Uniform

The old "Chicago" who were famous in the early eighties were known for startling uniforms. Their white stockinged legs were always in evidence, and sometimes wide short Dutch pants were worn, while at other times the tightest sort of black tights were worn. In one season they actually wore dress suits—stiff-breasted white shirts and all—removing the spike-laced coats while actually on the ball field.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

"I seem to sense the presence of a kindred spirit, one of Nature's children, one of my organic brothers."

Scissors picked up a jug and found it filled to within a few inches of the mouth. He examined the stopper to make sure it would exclude all air and then handed it to Sorrel Horse and told him to cork the jug and break it by striking the stopper with his flat. Sorrel Horse nervously followed instructions and was much cast down when nothing happened.

"It is because you have no medicine of your own," explained Scissors. "Now I will give you a medicine."

And he removed the stopper and pointed it to the earth, the sky and the four winds. Then with a tug he dipped water from a kettle and filled the jug to overflowing and gently inserted the end of the stopper until it stood upright.

"Now strike," he commanded. Sorrel Horse obeyed, and this time the hydraulic pressure rewarded his efforts and brought a glare of triumph to his eyes. The chest expanded and he softly boasted:

"They say he will have a new name. They say he can break jugs."

Scissors eyed him suspiciously and pulled forward another jug, only half filled, and releasing the stopper curiously directed:

"Break that jug."

Sorrel Horse confidently struck the stopper and the jug remained intact. As the medicine man hung his head in bitter disappointment Scissors told him:

"I have taken the medicine away from you so you will know it is my medicine and will not work if I do not put it in the water. Now I will give the medicine back to you. Bring water and fill this broken jug."

As he spoke he fitted the two pieces together, the cleavage being clean, and held them in place while Sorrel Horse with trembling hands lifted a kettle and poured in the water. When the jug could hold no more Scissors revealed the climax of the medicine by teaching the medicine man how to work gently to inserting the stopper deep enough to remain in place and yet to prevent any air pressure on the mouth; only he said nothing about pressure, as the Indian would not have understood. Sorrel Horse simply understood the manipulation of the stopper was the waken way of doing it. Had he been told to plug the jug while one hand was held high above his head his face and body have been great and the mystery no more profound.

"Now lift it by the handle," said Scissors. The hand of Sorrel Horse shook convulsively and he could scarcely grip his fingers about the handle. He was on the threshold of conquering the greatest mystery he had ever attempted. To have Tunkan break a jug in his hands had been astounding. But to be permitted by the stone god to break a jug and then fill it with water and then to break it a second time surpassed his wildest dreams of wizardry. Even Sitting Bull, himself, could not do it.

He rose from the handle and the jug rose from the ground and stood intact. The medicine man stood holding it, his small eyes protruding, his breath coming in gasps and the sweat oozing from his copper forehead as he felt the close presence of the gods. Scissors explained the waken way was always to place the jug on a smooth, level spot. Under his directions the medicine man lowered the jug to the ground.

Scissors took his paper and scissors and cut out two ponies, each having a white rider, and laid the pictures on the ground and solemnly directed:

"Now if your heart is clean, now if you will do as you have said by the white men, Tunkan will hear you. Break the jug by taking out the stopper."

Of course the jug collapsed and the water escaped once the plug was removed. Scissors advised:

"Have the little water-girt help you hold the jug when you fill it. Be sure it stands on a level place. If a jug breaks in more than two pieces do not try to mend it. Such a jug is weak and does not please Tunkan. Two halves. Talking goes to look after his sick brother."

Dinsdale was nervously walking about the lodge, snapping his fingers, his flushed face betraying his highly strung nerves. He was surprised to have Scissors abruptly command:

"Lie down and be sick."

"What the devil!" exploded Dinsdale.

"You have eaten too much meat and wild cherries. You are very sick. Lie down."

"You're crazy."

"You must pretend to be sick," Scissors elucidated. "Sorrel Horse will show his medicine to the village this afternoon. We cannot be there. One white man sick; one white man watching over him."

"We're lighting out this afternoon!" hoarsely whispered Dinsdale, clutching Scissors' hand and hurrying it. "Why couldn't you say that at the start?"

"If it is so, Scissors, this afternoon, I would like to wait until evening, but I do not dare. I am waken, and I can hear the pounding of a pony's hoofs. Some one is riding to this village."

"Darned if I know when to take you seriously," muttered Dinsdale. "You'll get me to hearing and seeing things next. But if I'm sick, here goes." And he slipped down on the robes. "Now while I suffer please tell me what you've been up to."

"Before I spend time talking the village must know you're sick," said Scissors. He ran out the lodge and called to one of the apiketa and asked that the roots of sage and wild licorice be brought him so he might sing the bear song over his sick friend and cure him.

The roots were quickly brought, presumably obtained from the medicine bag of Sorrel Horse; and word was spread throughout the village that one of the prisoners was ill. There were those who declared that Sorrel Horse was expecting his medicine and was killing the white man's medicine. But when it was understood that Scissors was using licorice, the medicine the bear digs up, and was singing the bear song, there was much doubt as to the efficacy of Sorrel Horse's magic.

Then to increase the tension Sorrel Horse instructed the apiketa to announce to all the lodges that after the sun started down the west he would break a jug on the river slope and prove that he was a favorite of the stone god and that Tunkan still worked through him.

"He has stolen the white man's medicine! They really say it does what he tells it to do!" joyously shouted some.

Crazy Horse was infected by the excitement and called at the prisoner's lodge after having a talk with Sorrel Horse. When he struck his head inside it was to behold Dinsdale, eyes closed, tossing his head from side to side and mumbling incoherently. Scissors sat beside him and fanned him with a fan of eagle feathers, and as he swung the feathers he softly sang the bear song.

"The young man is sick?" asked Crazy Horse.

"He is very sick, but I shall make him well after two sleeps," replied Scissors.

"You must break a jug after the sun crosses Ma Ti-pl."

"He talks like an old woman. He cannot break jugs," scoffed Scissors. "After he tries and fails, and covers his head with his blanket, and is hiding his lodge, let Tashka-salico remember what the white man told him."

Mainly disconcerted by this bold skepticism Crazy Horse withdrew. To add to the tremendous excitement caused by the medicine man's atonal claims, young Dinsdale, the village warrior, shortly after the noon hour, returning from a scout between the Grand and Heart rivers. They brought with them horrible trophies in the shape of human hands and feet tied to their lances. Their arrival was greeted with a chorus of singing and yelling and howling. The three ponies wore feathers in their tails and manes to show they had ably abetted their masters. The lances were passed over to the apiketa to dance before being struck up to which the about-faced warriors stepped out to investigate. Soon he was back, his face looking pale and sickly.

"Some poor devil of a soldier who strayed and got lost, or who wandered off and was killed by a Dinsdale's rush. Get the village crazy." It makes it bad for us. They're tasted blood. They won't be satisfied until they've wiped us out."

"If there was one soldier there must be more behind him," said Dinsdale hopefully.

"He was a soldier. They brought in enough of his clothes to prove that. Crazy Horse is in his lodge trying to figure out how many more there may be, and where they may be. I believe it means General Crook has struck the Heart. I mean something would happen today. It's lucky for us that the scouts saw nothing of Crazy Horse's messengers to the Short Medicine Pole hills. But they'll be coming back any time now. When things begin to break the contest with a rush."

It was some time before the village quieted down sufficiently for public interest to revert to Sorrel Horse and his boast. The medicine man, when he could gain a hearing, proudly proclaimed it was his new medicine that had enabled the young warriors to make their attack and forcing them to brought in their dinner was too over-comely with excitement to answer any questions. At first Dinsdale refused to eat, but Scissors insisted until he swallowed some meat. Scissors would not let him leave the couch for fear some horse thief or even the hand of the Heart, might snatch something away from him and discover the truth.

After the shouting and dancing had ceased, the apiketa began parading through the village and crying "Shun-calutn will make a new medicine. They say, Hiyu pol! (Come on!) Hiyu pol!"

As the camp police passed a lodge it was a signal for the inmates to come and take their place. Crazy Horse took his place and as the procession reached the prisoners' lodge he halted and looked inside and asked Scissors to come and witness the new medicine.

RAIN REPORTS CAUSE
WHEAT PRICE TO DROP

Weather Map Indicates Moisture Being Supplied Fields Both North and South of Canadian Boundary

CHICAGO, June 5 (AP)—Showers likely to afford at least temporary relief from dry weather effects in portions of the wheat belt had been considerable to date today with lowering of the price of wheat. Closing quotations in the wheat market were unsettled at 5.8 to 1.1-1.2 net decline, July 1.04 1/2 to 1.04 1/4, and September 1.05 7/8 to 1.06, with corn unchanged to 1.2 to 1.2c off, oats showing 1-1/4 to 1-1/2c gain, and provisions 2 to 10 cents down.

With the weather map indicating that more or less moisture had been supplied wheat fields at various places both north and south of the Canadian boundary, which has been a factor in the wheat market, the Chicago market was unprepared for the opening, and although the market then made a rally, the available buying power failed to last, and fresh declines occurred in the late trading. By some observers weakness of the market was ascribed partly to Coolidge's refusal to endorse a proposed substitute for the McNary-Haugen bill. On the other hand, the transient rally was associated with word of export purchasing at Winnipeg and with gossip that European bids for United States wheat were about an extra basis.

On the bear side of the wheat market some euphoria was put on the fact that Liverpool quotations had made but little response to yesterday's advance on this side of the Atlantic. It was also pointed out that with harvest only a few weeks away there is 20,000,000 bushels of wheat in Kansas City, Chicago and Omaha against 18,000,000 bushels a year ago.

Announcement that the Iowa corn crop outlook was the poorest in many years largely counterbalanced in the corn market the effect of warmer weather and wheat weakness. Scarcity of supplies here led to sharply higher prices for oats.

Provisions eased down in line with hog values.

NEW YORK, June 5 (AP)—

Protracted irregularity marked the course of stock prices in today's market which was given a special impetus by the active buying of the low priced rail road shares and the depression of most industrial issues on disturbing trade reports and connection with the volume of business, but late trading was stimulated to some extent by a reduction in the call money rate to 1 1/2 per cent.

While the general movement of the stock progressed with considerable vigor buying was confined chiefly to issues with speculative possibilities and few of the standard high grade stocks shared in the advance. The movement gave further indications of the changed public attitude toward the class of securities with the danger of adverse reaction from the Federal Reserve.

Selling pressure against industrial shares was concentrated principally on the oil, as a result of gasoline price decline and the increase in crude oil production and gasoline supplies, while the drop in the price of raw and refined sugar to the lowest level in two years provided an excuse for hammering down prices of these commodities.

A drop in the call money market to 1 1/2 per cent, after opening at 3 per cent, reflected the plethora of funds at center. Treasury bonds were offered freely at prevailing quotations on a 3 1/4 per cent basis. Commercial paper was again active at rates ranging from 4 to 4 1/2 per cent.

Foreign exchanges improved today with French francs rallying about 13 points to above 5 cents and bringing back some of the advance in Belgian currency. Sterling was fractionally higher at $4.31 1/4.

MURDER CHARGE ARISES OUT OF BASQUE'S DEATH

John Adkins, 30, Faces Prosecution for Alleged Killing of Companion with Blows of Stick in Dispute.

John Adkins, 30, will be prosecuted on charge of first degree murder of Francisco Marguegia, 27, Spaniard, whose death occurred Thursday morning at 2 o'clock Thursday morning in a dispute over a stick in the hands of the two men. Adkins was in the vicinity of the Salmon river dam, west of Ringers, where both the dead man and his alleged slayer were engaged in a struggle. The slayer was found with a stick in his hand, and the dead man was found with a stick in his hand. The slayer was found with a stick in his hand, and the dead man was found with a stick in his hand.

Admits Striking Blow. In a voluntary statement to the prosecuting attorney and Sheriff M. E. Finch, Adkins advanced upon him with a stick in his hand, and that he struck Marguegia on the head with the stick, striking the second blow when Marguegia started to rise from his hands and knees after the first blow. There were no witnesses to the occurrence. After the second blow Adkins said that he returned to camp and told Ben Eganon, Spanish camp tender, that he had hurt Marguegia. The injured man was taken aboard a passing automobile that was stopped by the camp tender, and was brought to the hospital here. Marguegia died three days later without regaining consciousness. A post-mortem examination made Thursday by Dr. D. L. Alexander and Dr. C. R. Scott showed that Marguegia's skull had been crushed on the left side, a fracture extending to the rear of the right ear.

Plends Self Defense. Adkins expressed deep regret over the fatal effect of his blow. "I had no intention of causing any serious injury to Marguegia," he said. "I was afraid for my own safety and I must only to stop him. I could not turn and run because I had hurt my knee a day or two before, and for that reason was carrying the stick I hit him with."

Two broken sticks were brought back from the scene of the fatal encounter by the prosecuting attorney, who was accompanied on the visit Thursday by the attorney, John P. O'Neil, J. J. Gressman and John R. Ault, probation officer.

Adkins has identified one of the fragments as a piece of stick with which he struck Marguegia. It is a piece of hickory, 1 1/2, about 18 inches long. It was taken by the authorities from the possession of the camp tender, who said he had picked it up after the encounter and had hidden it away in his camp wagon, where it was overtaken today by the authorities. The stick was found from Rogers' westward to Cedar creek.

Second Stick Unexplained. The other stick or club which was found within 50 feet of the scene of the fatal encounter by the coroner's man is a heavy branch of a tree about four feet long, and tapering toward the broken end from the heavier end where it is about two inches in diameter. No explanation has been given for the presence of this club at the point where it was found.

Adkins, the accused man, has been employed as a shepherd by Mr. Pence for about four years. He is married and is the father of three sons ranging in age from a babe of a few months to the oldest, 3 years old. During the past two years, it is said, he and Marguegia had worked together, and according to the camp tender, there had been no trouble between them before the fatal encounter on last Sunday.

The dispute which led to the fatal encounter is said to have arisen between the two men over question as to whether the sheep of which they were in charge should be driven across a bridge before nightfall.

No Relations in America. Marguegia has been engaged in sheepherding in this region for nine years past, having only two different employers during that time, according to his friends. He had no relatives in this country. His brother was found dead from natural causes in his bed about a year ago.

GIRL VICTIM OF GUNSHOT WOUND RESTING EASILY

Miss Mary Coates, Found at Sister's Home with Bullet Wound Through Chest; Believed Accidental.

Suffering from effects of a bullet wound through her right breast, believed to have been inflicted accidentally by herself, Miss Mary Coates, graduate of the Twin Falls high school and well known as an employee of the Idaho theater, was taken Thursday evening to the county general hospital from the home of her sister, Mrs. A. Campbell, on Blue Lakes boulevard.

Neighbors and passersby attracted by sound of the shot found Miss Coates in the door of the garage at her sister's home, a revolver lying at her side. Miss Coates was not rendered unconscious, but made no statement in explanation of the occurrence. X-ray examination made at the hospital showed that the bullet had passed through the right side of the chest, emerging at the shoulder.

Miss Coates was reported to be resting as comfortably as possible under the circumstances late Thursday night.

SEES NO CAUSE FOR ALARM OVER HAY SITUATION

President of Idaho Wool Growers Reviews Present Outlook For Sheep Raisers in This District

"A great many people are becoming alarmed over the hay situation in the state of Idaho because of the water shortage," says Clyde Bacon, president of the Idaho Wool Growers' association. "It is probably affecting the north side Twin Falls tract as much as any irrigation project in Idaho. The project is very short of water, and will be out of water entirely after July 1. The early waterings have in most instances insured a good first cutting of hay with every likelihood of a fair second cutting. All the soils are in good condition now, and the deep soils are retaining enough moisture to make a good second cutting."

"Just over the year the weevil in a good many sections destroyed entirely the second crop and the third crop came on too late to be harvested because of the early fall rains. This year quite a number of the large land owners are spraying for weevil, and no doubt will be able to control it by this method. If they spray they will have more hay per acre than they had last year, and, here I predict all through there will be as much hay as there was last year."

Could Save Hay. "The practice of early lambing in southern Idaho has increased the hay consumption of sheep approximately 40 per cent," Mr. Bacon says. "If some of the ewes ranged in southern Idaho would lamb on the range as they all did formerly, it would make a big saving in hay consumption. This they can easily do if the necessity arises. Some of them did this spring very successfully. Twenty-five years ago there were more sheep grazed in southern Idaho than there are today, and the only hay available was a few hundred tons raised in the Hagerman valley. Yet these sheep were able to winter here and in most instances came through in practically as good condition as they do under the present system of feeding hay."

"There is law in Idaho and most states which prohibits a person from publishing or even making statements that would hurt the credit of a bank. One must not say so it can be proved on him that a certain bank has loaned a million dollars, as it might cause a panic. That law should be extended so that not only the banking business but the farmers' business which is just as basic should not be injured unnecessarily by scare-mongers. It seems to us hardly ethical that the local bankers should be hollering 'ruined ranges,' 'ruined sheep,' 'no winter feed,' 'ruined sheep business,' '$20-$40 hay this winter,' etc., etc., which is quite unnecessary, and unjustly hurting the sheep business and the farmer also. The fact is nothing like what so many are representing to be, and it would be much better business for all concerned if the people who are crying calamity would investigate the actual conditions and then boost instead of knock."

Range and Lamb Prospects

"The report is pretty general that the Idaho ranges are all shod up, and that all the Idaho ewes will be for sale. It is true that the lower ranges are dry and the desert are dry. That may work to the advantage of the stockmen, in that it has caused him to buy more sheep. The sheep in the upper country much earlier than usual on account of the lack of water. He has left behind him abundant grasses which are going to seed, and when the fall rains begin they will make better than usual fall and winter feed."

The higher ranges are much earlier than usual, and in most instances the feed on these ranges is exceptionally good. The quality of the lambs being shipped, and the prices obtained to date, proves beyond a question of a doubt that up to date, at least, the Idaho sheepman has not suffered seriously from the so-called drought. The lambs marketed so far are heavier for this season of the year than the average that was ever known before. When a lamb born in February and loaded on the cars the latter days of May weighs 75 pounds he certainly has not suffered for lack of feed."
