48 KILLED AS BLASTS ROCK U. S. BATTLESHIP

EXPLOSION OF HUGE SHELL TAKES LIVES; SCORE SEVERELY INJURED

Charge in Turret Rifles Flares Back, Sweeping American Navy Men to Death; Second Blast Follows; Crippled Ship Sets out to Sea to Protect Harbor Life.

(By the Associated Press)

SAN PEDRO, June 12.—Three officers and 45 men of the battleship Mississippi were swept into eternity at 11:45 a. m. today on the San Clemente fleet drill grounds off this port when a shell in one of the 14-inch guns of the ship's number two turret exploded prematurely, according to semi-official information given out from the U. S. S. New Mexico, flagship of division four of the fleet.

Nearly a score more were injured by the flare-back that carried the terrific charge backwards through the breach of the gun instead of out of the muzzle.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., June 12 (AP)—Two premature explosions killed three officers and forty-five men of the battleship Mississippi today and injured a score of others, and the menace of death still hounded the crippled dreadnaught tonight as she left her dock and injured behind and headed out to sea to protect harbor life and shipping from the peril of a third and imminently expected blast.

Scores Burned. Seventy-seven men, naval officials stated, constitute the crew of men working on the three guns in a turret. At the time of the explosion in turret number two, seven additional observers and three additional officers, making a total of 88 men, are reported to have been in the fire, more than 20 of whom were in the upper chambers, the portion of the turret most affected.

The men heading the powder up from the lower decks are believed to have escaped serious injuries because of the progressive steps the fire was forced to take.

An Associated Press representative reached the deck of the U. S. S. Mississippi shortly after its return to the harbor here.

While passing ast of the Mississippi at a speed boat at 3:40 p. m., the correspondent observed the left gun in turret number two explode, firing a shell into the water 200 feet from the breech of the gun. The explosion being so great as to knock down all persons in the craft in the vicinity of the Mississippi. Ensign McGrew, 25, was from the U. S. S. New Mexico and was graduated from the naval academy at Annapolis with the class of '22 and is single. His home is in Benovo, Pa. The only two men of the New Mex.

Coolidge Extends Congratulations on Dawes' Nomination

Chief Executive Glad "to Be Associated" with General in Public Service; Hoover Also Sends Message.

WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP)—President Coolidge tonight sent a message of felicitation to Charles G. Dawes, selected as his running mate on the republican national ticket.

"It will be a pleasure," the president said, "to be associated with you in the public services. Best wishes to you and Mrs. Dawes in which Mrs. Coolidge joins."

President Coolidge received notification that Mr. Dawes had accepted through the Associated Press and immediately dictated his message of congratulations. Mrs. Coolidge, Dr. J. T. Boone, a White House physician, and Edward T. Clarke, his private secretary, he had listened by radio to the proceedings of the Cleveland convention throughout the evening.

During the day the president had in the same manner heard himself nominated and had listened to the naming of Frank O. Lowden and the latter's refusal to accept.

With the convention adjourned Mr. Coolidge delayed making any comment until he was informed that Mr. Dawes had agreed to the nomination on the ticket and it was after 11 o'clock when he dispatched his telegram. He had declined to express himself on his own nomination and that of Mr. Lowden, although the latter, as well as Mr. Dawes, whom he regards highly, was known to be very acceptable to the White House.

Hoover Is Happy. WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP)—Secretary Hoover in a telegram to General Dawes congratulated him upon his nomination for the vice presidency tonight in the following message:

"I am more than happy at your selection and the assurance of your being again drafted to public service. The country is to be congratulated."

BANDITS TAKE LOOT VALUED AT MILLION

Milwaukee Mail Train Held up Near Chicago; Get Bonds and Currency; Officers Speeding in Pursuit.

CHICAGO, June 12 (AP)—A Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul mail train from Chicago, on route to St. Paul, was held up and robbed tonight about 11:30 o'clock at Roundout, Ill., 32 miles north of Chicago, by bandits riding in four automobiles. A special train carrying express and government agents was commandeered and sent in pursuit.

It was not known whether any one had been killed or wounded. The train was due at St. Paul at 7:40 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The train was a solid mail and express train but neither postoffice officials or express officials would state if any unusually valuable packages were aboard.

The train carried no passengers. The bandits and train guards engaged in a pistol battle, according to first information reaching this city, and at least one of the robbers was reported shot.

The robbers took 40 pouches of registered mail containing bonds and currency from the Chicago Federal Reserve bank and consisted of bills in the northwest. Local bank officials estimate the loss at $1,000,000.

THIRTY-ONE CONVICTED

EBENSBURG, Pa., June 12 (AP)—A verdict of not guilty of riot, but guilty of an act of unlawful assembly was returned by a jury tonight in the case of 31 alleged Ku Klux Klansmen and residents of Lilly, who were tried upon charges growing out of the riot April 6 between visiting Klansmen and townspeople of Lilly. Counsel for the defense immediately filed a motion for a new trial.

OUTLOOK FOR APPLE CROP NOT FAVORABLE

BOISE, June 12 (AP)—Because of late spring frosts, and partly because of the large crop produced last year, the June outlook for the apple crop was 50 percent of a full crop, said a report today issued by Julius H. Jacobson, United States crop statistician for the state. A year ago it was 80 percent. Another forecast of apple production will be made in July, said Mr. Jacobson's report.

GENERAL DAWES ACCEPTS; EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

MARIETTA, Ohio, June 12 (AP)—Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes, tonight accepted the nomination for the vice presidency.

"I accept the nomination by the republican party for the vice presidency," he said in a formal statement, when informed of his nomination by the Associated Press. "I deeply appreciate the honor conferred upon me."

DAWES NOMINATED FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

Charles G. Dawes

GENERAL DAWES IS MAN OF FAME

Activities in German Finance Question Made Him Recognized by All Nations.

CONVENTION HALL, Cleveland, June 12 (AP)—Charles G. Dawes of Illinois, the "Hell and Maria" general, was nominated for the vice presidency by the republican national convention tonight after it once had nominated Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois and he had refused to accept the place.

General Dawes attained his greatest fame through his achievement in connection with the Dawes committee of experts, appointed by the reparation commission to endeavor to bring about a settlement of the German reparations question suitable to all the countries interested.

Leaving for Paris in December, General Dawes immediately set about accomplishing his task. This he did with his customary quietness, working long hours day and night until it was time to delve deeply in the subject matter by means of technical investigations.

The American plan, as briefly outlined by General Dawes, consisted of stabilization of German currency and the balancing of the German budget. He declared that "as the economic processes of Germany under a stable currency and with a balanced budget are revived, there will be demonstrated the capacity of Germany to pay."

"Let us first help Germany to get well," General Dawes added.

LAST HOUR VOTE SHIFTS TO GENERAL

President's Nomination Easily Accomplished; Running Mate Picked After Lowden Refuses to Accept.

TOTAL VOTE FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

Dawes, 682 1/2.
Hoover, 234 1/2.
Kenyon, 85.

CLEVELAND, June 12 (AP)—Coolidge and Dawes is the republican ticket for 1924.

President Coolidge's nomination was accomplished with only a ripple of dissent from Wisconsin and North Dakota, but the nomination of his running mate came only after the convention had once chosen Frank O. Lowden of Illinois and been forced by his declination to choose another—Charles G. Dawes, the "Hell and Maria General."

After a short race with Herbert Hoover, who came into the balloting after the declination of Lowden, Dawes galloped off with the nomination.

Motions to make it unanimous and by acclamation were disturbed only by the dissents from Wisconsin and North Dakota.

Dawes Man Get Busy. In a brief and spectacular fight in which William Butler, President Coolidge's campaign manager, had said to Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, "It must be Hoover," and Senator Reed had replied, "It can't be done, it must be Dawes," the Dawes supporters, after the declination of former Governor Lowden of Illinois, marshaled their forces and put the general across for the nomination.

Early in the day, Mr. Butler's forces had passed the word that the administration men desired the nomination of Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, and in the voting which followed the supporters of Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, ran away with the nomination for their man, only to have him decline it. The nomination of Dawes came as the climax to one of the most spectacular scenes in republican party history in which the convention once having nominated a candidate, was obliged to undo

Lieutenant Smith Forced to Land; Has Motor Trouble

Commander of Americans' World Flight Forced Down at Oriental Port; Others Make Trip Safely.

HONG KONG, June 13 (AP)—Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, commander of the American army around the world flight, with his mechanic, Lieutenant Leslie P. Arnold, was forced to land between Hwa, capital of Annam, French Indo-China, and Tourane, a port of Annam, according to a cable received here. Lieutenant Smith has requested that a new motor be sent him at once from Saigon.

Smith with his companions, Lieutenant Leigh Wade, with Sergeant Henry H. Ogden as mechanic, and Lieutenant Eric Nelson, with Lieutenant John Harding, Jr. assisting him, left Hainanport at 9:00 o'clock in the morning of June 11. Wade and Nelson arrived safely that afternoon at Tourane but Smith was forced down. Communication was established with him by automobile.

COURT CALENDAR SET

BOISE, June 12 (AP)—Twenty seven cases remain on the Lewiston calendar to be submitted to the supreme court. It was announced by chief justice Charles P. McCarthy, upon his return from north Idaho today. The court held its regular spring session in Lewiston last week, and eliminating what was presented to the court at that hearing there are but 27 cases remaining, he said.

The five-member court is fast catching up with the work that was several years behind, when the court was increased from three to five members, justice McCarthy says.

Pathfinder Picks Meredith For Democratic Candidate

Well Known Washington Journal Believes Chances Good for Former Secretary Under Wilson.

In an analysis of the general political situation with particular reference to the outcome of the democratic national convention, the Pathfinder, well known for its political acumen, frankly states that the chances of McAdoo are nil and offers E. T. Meredith as the man best calculated to put up a winning fight in the interests of the democracy should he gain the presidential nomination at New York.

The Pathfinder digs deep; it gives its reasons for and against republicans as well as democrats. Its reference to E. T. Meredith is of interest in this section not only because Meredith is a western man but because of his direct connection with Twin Falls county affairs.

In the editorial in the Pathfinder follows: Of course the democratic national convention isn't going to ask the Pathfinder's advice on whom to nominate for the presidency—though it could go farther and fare worse. The Pathfinder editors have made a dispassionate study of political chances and offers for many years and they can diagnose a political situation with somewhat of the assurance that a skilled doctor can diagnose a case of sickness. We go on record now as asserting that neither McAdoo nor Smith can be elected. We invite you to cut this statement out, preserve it and hold it to account if we prove false prophets.

The chances are against any democrat being elected this year—but that doesn't mean that they should give up the fight or put up a man who is foredoomed to defeat; it means that they should be all the more careful not to make a single mis-play. The Pathfinder has no interest in boosting any political party, faction or individual; it is nonpartisan in the highest sense. No Pathfinder editor is ever asked what his politics are, and they have no vote. But the Pathfinder is interested in politics in the sense that it believes the republic's welfare is wrapped up in the maintenance of two big, strong, permanent parties.

Believing in that American principle and being dead set against minority rule, this paper has always urged each party to pick its very best men as candidates for office. In that way the country is assured of a genuine contest, and then if the people don't vote for the candidate they think is the best for the place no one can be blamed but themselves. When we say now that in our candid opinion neither McAdoo nor Smith can win, we say it because we want to see a real contest, a fair race and a decisive result.

Coolidge Position Sure.
Coolidge has every advantage now; "possession is nine points of the law" and the party that is in power always has the political "edge" on the party that is out in the cold. Coolidge seems to be a "man of destiny." Think of it: he was born on the Fourth of July—the biggest day of the year in a patriotic sense. Can you beat that? Shallow people say he is no politician, but he can cut figure with the men who think they are real political leaders. He has held many offices, and he has always won; such a man is hard to beat.

He has the public endorsement of Woodrow Wilson, who, as president, sent him a message of approval for the way he stopped the Boston police strike. McAdoo, though the son-in-law of Wilson, is well known not to have had his father-in-law's approval. When McAdoo settled down after being in the cabinet he picked California as a home—which was about as far as he could get away from his father-in-law. The American people have an odd way of thinking things out and there are many good democrats who would refuse to vote for McAdoo because of a feeling that he had for some reason forfeited the confidence of Woodrow Wilson. And then the fact that McAdoo took huge sums of money from the oil barons, movie magnates and other interests under the guise of "legal fees" is in itself enough to condemn him in the minds of the masses of the people who have to labor a whole year for a sum that would be only small change to a man of the McAdoo type.

No Chance for McAdoo.
We have reviewed some of the reasons why McAdoo can't be elected. They are not our reasons but the reasons that ordinary voters would have for refusing to support him. The McAdoo followers and the Smith followers are so hostile to each other that no matter which one was nominated the other side would "kill" him. McAdoo is unpopular in the east and Smith is unpopular in the west. This simply means that neither could be elected. The duty of the democratic convention then is to cast about for a man who does not labor under the handicaps of McAdoo and Smith and who would stand a fair chance of election. John W. Davis is an able and trustworthy man, honored and admired by great numbers of men in both parties. He would have made a splendid candidate in any ordinary year or against a radical republican; but he has the faint of heart about him because he acts as lawyer for Morgan & Co. and other big capitalistic interests. No man who has any such connections, no matter how fine he might otherwise be, could win the election this year; the people are dead set against it.

Senator Ralston of Indiana is generally agreed to be the most logical compromise candidate. He is a high class man in every respect; he could carry Indiana; and that's a good start. He has a clean record and nothing can be said against him. His one handicap is his age—he is regarded by many as too old, but he would make a real candidate, who would have a reasonable chance of winning.

Has Best of Chances.
We think Edwin T. Meredith the Des Moines publisher probably has the best chances of all to win. Meredith was secretary of agriculture under Wilson and in the past he displayed unusual ability. He is a close friend of McAdoo and could pull every McAdoo follower. He has no enemies and is recognized as one of the sanest and most broad-gaged men in the country. He is a successful business man to start with. Then he is thoroughly acquainted with the problems and needs of the rural people and is sympathetic with their radicalism, though he is free from radicalism. He could carry every state that any other democrat could carry, and have a fair chance at a number of others, in our opinion. We would like to see Meredith nominated, because we consider him the best man the democrats could choose; he has a national reputation and a clean record. The west is entitled to have a president, and it will be a long time before it will have a likelier man than Meredith.

If the democrats put up a weak man or a man who has made many enemies they will simply swell the vote that Coolidge will get and he will have a walkover. Coolidge is a strong man and the democrats should put up an equally strong one. We merely mention Meredith as the man we consider the strongest under the circumstances; if a stronger candidate can be found, let him be brought forward.

Leading Figures in Republican National Convention.

AMONG THE PROMINENT PERSONS attending the republican national convention in Cleveland, Ohio, are Mrs. Nettie M. Giapp of Cleveland, chairman of the national women's committee; George B. Lockwood of Indiana, secretary of the republican national committee; Mrs. John Gordon Battelles of Columbus, Ohio, associate member of the republican national committee; LaFayette B. Gleason of New York, secretary of the New York state republican committee, and Mrs. I. B. Woods, second vice chairman of the republican national committee.

"SHOOTING OF DAN MCGREW"
PRESENTED AT THE IDAHO
Harry Lorraine, a well-known character actor on both stage and screen, performs a remarkable feat in "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," the Sawyer-Lubin production for Metro which is coming to the Idaho theatre for two days beginning today. He plays twelve different characters in a scene in which he portrays an actor who makes a specialty of doing "living-portraits" of famous men as part of a cabaret entertainment. Some of his impersonations are Napoleon, Svengali, Shylock, General Grant and Richard Mansfield. The cast of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" includes Barbara La Marr, Lew Colly, Percy Marmont, Mae Busch, George Siegmann and a host of others. Arthur H. Sawyer personally supervised the production, which was directed by Clarence Badger and put into screen form by Winifred Dunn.

Strongheart is at the Orpheum Theatre in "The Love Master," the latest First National production. The story is laid in the sparsely settled regions of Canada and centers about the mystery of the young man who has arrived with strongheart and ends with the solution of the mystery and the love victory of the young belle of the settlement along with the boy from the states. A dog race, filmed during the progress of a real one conducted by the best dog teams in Canada for prizes offered by Laurence Trimble and Jane Murfin, producers of the picture, provides some real thrills. Strongheart's love idyll provides real comedy, and for sheer drama the fight waged by Strongheart against Death on behalf of his "love master" has seldom been equalled on the screen.

The mysterious package

THE auctioneer shows a package. In a raucous voice he cries: "In my hand I have an article of value. At any store, anywhere, you couldn't buy it under a dollar. . . . I'll tell you what I'll do. . . . The first lady or gentleman who hands me a quarter gets this valuable package. Now who'll give me a quarter?"

If you are in a good humor, you may risk a quarter. You don't expect a quarter's worth, and you are not disappointed.

That's all very well once in a while. But you don't want to buy household goods, food, clothes, in this blind fashion. You'd laugh at the idea of your accepting a wrapped package and paying good money for it when it came to every-day necessities.

Yet you do. For example, when you buy some well-known breakfast foods. Of course, you have a general idea what is in it. But you don't investigate the quality. You don't break open the package to see the contents.

That is what advertising does for you. It protects you against inferior products. You know that an advertiser must keep faith—with the promise in his advertisement. That is why it pays you to read the advertisements. When you buy a wrapped package of advertised goods, you are not buying blindly.

THE GUMPS—THE WHITE KNIGHT

BURTON LAUDS COOLIDGE AS PARTY CHOICE

Career, Characteristics and Accomplishments Cited as President Is Named Candidate for Re-election.

CLEVELAND, June 12 (AP)—The principal part of the text of the address of President Marion Lorry Burton, of Michigan University, placing the name of President Coolidge before the Republican National convention today is as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen, Fellow Republicans and Fellow Citizens of America, the greatest country the world has ever known: "This hour is fraught with solemn obligations. Not a single member of the convention can escape that fact. A great party, with a noble heritage, with wise leaders and with responsibility for the government today has convened to nominate a candidate for the presidency of the United States of America. No higher office exists among men. For a time, and by consent of the people, it places marvelous forces at the disposal of one man. America today occupies a unique position of leadership in the world. Her financial strength is unequalled; her agricultural and manufacturing activities are enormous; her educational, religious and philanthropic institutions and agencies are maintaining with vigor the cultural, scientific and spiritual values of the nation. In nominating this man to succeed himself you are virtually choosing the next president. Such a task cannot be undertaken lightly.

Deserves Trust "I shall speak as one who for years has known the president. I follow this plan because I believe you want to hear from one who has a first hand knowledge of his subject. The people have an insatiable desire to learn about the life and ways of this man. The better you know him the more you will trust him. The more carefully you study his written words the more certain you will become of the character of his mind, the depth of his thought and the soundness of his judgment. There is no real statesmanship without these qualities. My function is to present the man. The emphasis must be just there. My primary task does not concern policies or platforms as such. These must, of course, serve as highly important illustrative material, but I am asked to tell you why I believe the president should succeed himself and formally to place his name in nomination. "In these days of worthy emphasis upon social obligations and public-mindedness it is easy to overlook the full meaning of the individual. Many powerful forces are now operative in America which make for the destruction of personality and a consequent failure always to realize that back of every great movement is a man. There can be no citizenship without the citizen and no virtue without the virtuous. Every cause is identified with a person. Just so today the Republican party has its wise leader, tried through many years of faithful and striking public service. His preparation for the high office he now holds has been adequate and ideal.

national lines or political issues into the very heart of mankind. It roars back upon the value which we place upon a human being. Has Clear Views. "Here is a practical idealist with an American world view which is clear, unmistakable and challenging. It is now time that his position be more clearly comprehended in its spiritual depth and practical effectiveness. His knowledge America must play her full part in world affairs. It insists upon doing it in an American way. "As self-respecting individuals, we can trust this man. As lovers of America we can follow one who is supremely American, as citizens with interests as broad as humanity we can accept his guidance into now and larger world leadership, because he is at heart a human being. "To the national convention of the greatest party in American history, I have the distinction to present as candidate to succeed himself as president of the United States of America—the virile man—the staunch American—the real human being—Calvin Coolidge."

The American. "With this partial understanding of the individual we are prepared to learn that this man is the most thrilling sense of the term is an American. He has been 'thinking America, believing America and living America. "The place he gives to intelligence is genuinely American. He is saturated with confidence in the value of the mind. He constantly emphasizes the necessity of schools and the importance of education to our nation. Problems of the most serious import require solution. Clear, straight, hard thinking alone will do it. This man sees this great truth in all its bearings and never fails to reiterate it. It may not be one of the spectacular aspects of his Americanism, but it is one which the future will not forget. Americans believe in their children and in education. They demand primary schools, high schools, colleges and universities. These agencies have no better or more understanding friend than this man. "He knows that progress will require hard unrelenting toil. To him a better future means continuous struggle and presents a constant challenge. He is no day dreamer for he knows the stern realities of a working world. We cannot legislate mankind into a state of perfection. "The question of law observance in our country today simply cannot be ignored. The problem has many ramifications. It will illustrate how many people fail to understand the real genius of our institutions. If democracy means anything it requires 'obedience to the rule of the people.' The Human Being. "We have seen what manner of man he is. We have found him to be superbly American. The roots of true Americanism run down deep into humanity. By the very logic of our national principles we were forced to enter the great war. Not for territorial expansion, not for indemnities, not for credit to present the man. As lovers of America we mobilize our men and our money. We sent our most precious possessions across the waters. Believing what we did and doing what we were it was inevitable. There was no alternative. To be an American is to be a member of the human race. It goes deeper than

Some few left-handers are very good players, but many are below the average. One reason advanced for this is that about 60 per cent of those playing with left-handed clubs are really right handed, and should be playing that way. The caravan promises to go down in history as a clincher of the many efforts to unite the sentiment of north and south Idaho and to bring about a closer relationship and a practical cooperation between the two extremes of the state. CARAVAN WILL DEDICATE ROAD

Auto Trip Under Auspices of Idaho Editorial Association Is Unique Affair.

BOISE, June 12—There will be two outstanding features in connection with the automobile caravan over the north and south highway on July 8 and with the convention at Grangeville of the Idaho State Editorial Association, which is sponsoring the caravan with the operation of the Idaho A. A. A., the Idaho Automotive Trades association and the Intermountain Truckmen and Auto Carriers association, which has donated a large bus for the caravan. One of these events as planned will be the dedication of the opening of the highway to continuous travel. The highway extends to the Canadian border and some time will be required to complete it through in all respects, but it is now open and in good condition as far as Grangeville. Officials Will Be Present. Governor Moore, Commissioner of Public Works William J. Hall and other state officials have agreed to participate in the dedication of the "highway opening monument" at Grangeville on the afternoon of July 9. It is also expected that Senator Borah and Gooding and Congressmen Smith and French will be present. This monument will contain a crypt into which will be placed various reports, newspaper articles, autographs, pictures, etc. At some future time this monument and its contents may become a feature of another highway celebration. Another event, connected with the meeting of editors, will be the selection, as desired by many editors, of A. F. Parker as president emeritus of the as-

POCATELLO TEAM LEADS IN HEAVY HITTING BATTLE

Cosgriff's Men Please Fans with Exciting Game Which Ends in Bears' Favor, With 13 to 12 Score.

The Bears from Pocatello seem to have the Indian sign on Cosgriff's shirt. Thursday with practically a new team the Magic City nine was unable to keep ahead of the Pocatellians and finally took the smaller end of a 13-12 score in a game that pleased the large crowd of fans and one that for the last three innings was packed with thrills.

Two pitchers' duel for the first six innings between Kellar and Phillips was slightly to the advantage of Kellar, who had 12 strikeouts, to Phillips 11. The score was 3-0 at the end of the sixth, each team having gotten five hits.

Two double plays which were more or less freakish, were the features of the hitting, which was more or less ragged on both teams, with a plentiful sprinkling of errors, which at times made the game interesting to the fans.

Phillips' homer in the eighth inning, which was the only one of the four corners of the lot in the final rounds as was Phillips, who broke in the eighth. The former allowed six runs and eight runs in the last two innings, while Phillips was being battered for eight hits and nine runs.

The first inning opened with Phillips and Kellar pitching in big tough style. Whitzel getting the best of the early innings in the first frame with a two-bagger to the right field fence. Kellar held the Bears scoreless with two singles for five innings, perfecting his record by striking out three men without allowing the ball to be touched. Phillips was not so fortunate and one run and three hits were scored in the first five innings.

The run coming when Whitzel reached first on a missed third strike, going to second when Seilly walked and scoring on Pettit's error. The run came in the sixth and was scored by a two-bagger to the right field fence, giving the bears a lead of two runs. The fans went crazy when Seilly took a healthy swing and sent the ball over the fence, giving the bears a lead of two runs.

The air-light of the early innings was totally disregarded in the ninth when Pocatello started the fireworks with a single, a walk, two doubles, another walk and a third single. All the hits were stolen bases, two errors at third for Twin Falls and a passed ball or two, kept the umpire busy, and allowed the Bears to bat around and gave them a five-run lead over the locals.

CREWS AT WORK PREPARING FOR BOURBON MEET

Workmen Are Getting Madison Square Garden Amphitheater in Shape for Democratic Convention on June 24.

NEW YORK, June 12 (AP)—The vast amphitheatre of Madison Square Garden is reverberating these days with the clamor of workmen and a corps of architects who invaded the historic old structure June 1 to dress it up for the National Democratic Convention beginning June 24.

The Democratic party will be in possession of the Garden until July 15 under the terms of the recent exhibit of the British Imperial College of Science and Technology. The current passing through coils, converts a rapidly revolving iron drum into a magnet for a brief space, attracting a small piece of iron, which operates a siphon tube changed with in. The dots and dashes are recorded on the paper tape as the drum flies past it. Wireless apparatus which could receive 300 words a minute was also displayed.

The whole job, on which it originally was intended to spend about $40,000, will cost approximately $80,000, according to George F. Marx, director of convention arrangements. First, plans for alterations have been elaborated to include the installation of thousands of incandescent light bulbs that the Garden boasted, the erection of speakers' and press platforms which will cover the entire arena, the installation of new ventilating systems, and a thousand-and-one jobs that will add to the beauty and comfort of accommodations.

To the Democratic convention delegates and visitors Madison Square Garden will present the appearance of a huge oval basket with flat bottom and tiered sides. The speaker's platform with seats for 350 delegates, will push out from the long side of the oval, facing south.

Platforms for the press will flank the speaker's stand, on a level 3 feet and 4 inches below it and extending right and left almost to the far ends of the oval. There will be seats for 950 news reporters and editors.

Then, directly in front of the speaker's stand, but 7 feet 3 inches below it, will be arranged the ranks of the delegates, with alternates flanking them to right and left at the same level. Overhanging the bottom of the bowl will be the boxes, seating six to ten persons, which will be given over to those who have contributed to the party and to local citizens' convention fund. Above them will stretch tier after tier of seats, extending away up to the Garden roof, for governors, congressmen, public officials, notables and party workers who fall within the "visitors' classification."

Experience

We spend about one-third of our lives in sleep and another third in play or recreation. A considerable portion of the remaining one-third is spent in eating. If then indulge in the luxury of having a few contagious diseases there is little wonder that poverty overtakes so many of us.

ONE INJURED IN HARBOUR WRECK

Sixteen Cars on Union Pacific Line Go Over Embankment East of Kuna.

KUNA, Idaho, June 12 (AP)—One man was slightly injured this morning at 7:30 o'clock when a broken journal piled 16 cars of Union Pacific extra 2559 over a 20-foot embankment about one mile east of here. Wooden box cars and steel coal cars were splintered and twisted and some of them stacked like jackstraws in a pile three deep. The injured man, with two attendant men, were in car that was turned bottom side up and beneath two others.

Traffic on the main line was held up more than nine hours, while two wrecking trains and crews worked to clear the tracks of the debris and repaired approximately 1,000 feet of track torn up by car No. 1 when the broken journal let its bed drag along the ground.

Who were present upon the Mississippi who are known to have escaped death or injury:
Joe Gavriel, seaman first class, of Los Angeles, and Robert Macavlin, boatwain second class, of San Francisco.
A fleet runner which reached shore at 7:45 p. m., but which could not be confirmed, has it that the captains of both the Mississippi and the New Mexico, who were believed to be watching the firing of the next number two, which was considered one of the best in the navy, are reported injured.

Greater Disaster Averted.

Had the turret, which was revolving at the time of the explosion upon the battleship Mississippi occurred remained in the position in which it was at the time of the explosion the hanging fire from the left would have gone into the center of the city of San Pedro, witnesses aboard the ship said.

When the gunners had guided the turret to the correct angle for the explosion, the guns kept revolving and stopped as they pointed directly aft.

Thus fortune probably saved the lives of many citizens and the destruction of much property in San Pedro.

Races Toward Port.

Hardly had the echo of the blast died away when the dreadnaught prow swung around and the big ship raced full steam ahead toward port. In the wireless room the radio snapped out the tragic news to the hospital ship at anchor in the harbor 40 miles away.

Aboard the Relief, men and surgeons sprung into action. Decks and operating rooms were cleared for the reception of the injured. Stretchers were brought out and placed on the deck. Preparations were made to lower the ship's life boats and launchers for carrying the wounded from the crippled dreadnaught to the Relief.

Meanwhile the word that something had gone wrong aboard the Mississippi had been spread along the station along the waterfront and all who could muster field glasses strained their eyes toward the south, where the fighting tops of the dreadnaughts were visible above the horizon.

From Point Firmin, an eminence near the mouth of the harbor, the distressed vessel could be plainly seen, with sails crowded around the shattered turret.

As yet no one aboard knew the extent of the disaster, but from the Relief came the news that preparations were being made to care for 49 injured.

Finally the Mississippi rounded the breakwater, the hospital ship racing out to meet it, and passengers aboard the S. S. Yale, just then departing for San Pedro, crowded the rail to gaze at the approaching battleship.

The demoralized turret and the unusual activity on the Mississippi told them at a glance that death was aboard. As the ship came closer they could see the rescue work in progress.

Once inside the breakwater the Mississippi let go her anchor.

Second Blast
Just then another blast rocked the dreadnaught.

A 14-inch steel shell shrieked past the stern of the Yale and plowed into the sea.

Panic broke out aboard the passenger vessel, but near the dreadnaught the water was crowded with boats from the hospital ship coming close to their duty of rescue, carrying surgeons and stretchers to the stricken ship.

Within a few moments 20 dead, injured or dying men had been transferred to the Relief, and that was but the beginning. After the last man had been taken across, the Mississippi moved slowly back to her regular berth near the end of the breakwater.

HYMNARIUM PROVES POPULAR

A crowd that filled the Lavering theater greeted "Texas Bob" performing Thursday night the first of a series of programs of hygienic and telephonic exercises to be continued through performances Friday and Saturday nights with a matinee on Saturday afternoon.
Interesting demonstrations including the hygienic sleep will be given, continuing in public for almost 30 hours and a blindfolded telephonic test performed Thursday afternoon by "Texas Bob" swelled the attendance at the first performance. Interest in the performances themselves is expected to draw capacity houses during the remainder of the engagement.

ONE OF OUR NEEDS

A rather new and interesting note is struck in a letter to The News from Dr. John E. White, now a resident of Sulphur, Oklahoma, and for 3 number of years a resident of Twin Falls. The letter is in part as follows:

It is very gratifying to read in your pages of a return of prosperity to Idaho. This morning, when the Postmaster was making out the enclosed money order, he asked where Twin Falls was and what the Capital of the State was and said that in his nine years in the Postoffice it was the first time he had made out a money order for payment in Idaho.

Breakfast Food "Matrimonial Speaking"

By Hugh McKay.

My Wife Has Had Her Hair Shingled. She decided to do it because she would save so much time by not having to put it up.

As far as I could see, it used to take her about an hour to make a couple of lobes a day to keep her long hair in order.

But now she gives up virtually the whole day to making her short hair behave.

Whenever I want her I know that I'll find her between two mirrors, trying to see how the back of her head looks.

She seems to have her hair "trimmed" about every four days, and it takes her from one cutting till it's time for the next to decide whether or not the barber made a good job of it.

I never noticed that short hair was much of a nuisance myself. But I never saw anything that seemed to take up so much of the girl's attention before!

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE UMBRELLA TREE

The Umbrella Tree had heard that Billie Browne had been to visit the Swamp White Oak and had asked that Billie Browne should come to visit him.

"Can't Billie browne come and see me?" The Umbrella Tree asked Mother Nature.

"I will see if he has no other engagements—or rather if he can come between engagements, for he is a very busy Browne."

"If he can come I will certainly be pleased and I think he will be, too, for you are one of my children, and I like to have Billie Browne call on my children."

"She tells others about my children and of their ways and of their looks and of what they like."

"I will ask him, Umbrella Tree." The Umbrella Tree thanked Mother Nature and waited anxiously to see if Billie Browne could come.

"When I received his invitation he looked at the Sun's Rays to see what time it was—which was Billie Browne's way of telling the time, and he said:

"Yes, I've time, and I'd be delighted to call on the Umbrella Tree."

So the Umbrella Tree came Billie Browne.

"You see," the Umbrella Tree explained, "I was particularly anxious that you should come and call on me for I had been told that you had visited the Swamp White Oak and I wanted to tell you that I, too, loved swamps."

"I don't care to stand in them in just the way Swamp White Oak does. I think you're most interesting."

"I like to be on the edge of a swamp, or I love to be on a bank of a running stream—particularly of a mountain stream."

"It is true I will grow and behave very nicely in a park or in a garden, but I must have quite rich soil or earth."

"I don't mean to be funny, but I was brought up that way and the family ways are always the same. We cannot change them."

"Nor," he added, "do we want to change them. Very much like your name," said Billie Browne.

"That's what they all say," the Umbrella Tree replied.

"And it pleases me very much. It is something as though some one said to a little girl:

"How much you do look like your mother." She is pleased to hear that.

"All we trees look like nice grass, green umbrellas."

"If you will notice you will see that our white flowers are surrounded by leaves which look as though they were acting as little umbrellas for the flowers."

"So we are well named for that."

"But I suppose it seems funny to you that we should love it where it is damp when we are always protected by umbrellas."

"Isn't it so funny when you stop to think of it. You see if we liked it where it was dry we wouldn't have any need of umbrellas."

"We belong to the great Magnolia family and we are very proud of this fact."

"I should think you would be," said Billie Browne, "and I am most happy that I was asked to come and see you, for I think you're most interesting, most interesting," he ended, as he made a handsome bow in farewell.

Thankful to have the attention of the hidden rifeman fully occupied, Dinadale managed to draw his right-hand gun with his left hand.

"I've got you," he yelled, "and I'm behind him now. A whole magazine being discharged in a string, and indicating each man was trying to drive the other from cover."

Dinadale crouched low as he turned a shoulder of a mighty rock and beheld a horse on the ground. The poor brute had done his best to save his rider, but had fallen and broken his leg.

"You d—d traitor!" he roared, "You set Dandy Allen on to me so I could do your dirty work. You lied about Roach. You knew Easy had it in for me. It's even Stephen. I must have you, but I'll see you have a square."

A bullet ricocheted and cut a furrow through the hair and brought blood. "I tried to help you, Joe," cried Dinadale; and he staggered from behind the boulder.

San Juan Joe had correctly interpreted the desperate firing down the gully. He knew he must be doubling the rocks and into the hills before more reinforcements arrived.

"I don't mean to be funny, but I was brought up that way and the family ways are always the same. We cannot change them."

"Nor," he added, "do we want to change them. Very much like your name," said Billie Browne.

the voice. "On the wrong track from the start. Thought you did the Ogala job."

With an effort Dinadale opened his eyes. He still holding the letter of introduction, stood staring blankly at the wounded man. Then he gently said:

"You're badly hurt. But I must know more about this while you can talk. You work for Patrick & Salsbury?"

"Dinadale nodded his head. "You were after road agents?"

"Another nod. In deep disgust the picture-man exclaimed: "And I thought you did the Ogala job! The greencrooks fooled me. San Juan Joe rode out of the hills and fetched you back with him."

Dinadale managed to explain: "Patrick gave me five thousand—greencroaks. I was to play bad man—reckless stuff—Get into confidence of crooks up here. Joe thought I was train-robbler. Hated to get Joe. Pyrites did it. He was the leader. Known as Number One. Brains of the outfit. A bad man wherever he's been. Besely bad in Montana. Played to perfection. Used to get tenderfoot to go out with him. They always got lost, or killed by Indians, who take such small games and worked big jobs. My helper, the little French-Indian girl, who deals Twenty-one at times, heard stuff dropped by Easy at Rapid City. She got Webb to talk when I was drunk. She suggested Pyrites and me."

"That'll be awfully figured if you didn't fool me complete! Now I'll get a horse and pack you down to the road. I was watching from up the divide. Have a big French Creek posse just below here ready to comb the hills if the job was tried this side of the spring. The man named Pyrites, he was a horse thief, I'm so sorry, but his singing 'Joe Bowers' puzzled me. I knew it meant something, but couldn't tell what. My helper said he was expecting some one he didn't know, and the song would identify him."

Dinadale's eyes lighted and he broke in: "Easy knew San Juan Joe. Didn't know Number One. Joe sent word the other way as to what to do at Rapid City. They were to recognize me by other singing. It was Pyrites, pretending to be drunk and singing back at him that told him he was Number One—for him not to take a fight to me."

"If I'd only known about you! If you'd only told Myhor Farmum?"

"Didn't do it. Didn't know Number One myself—had to work alone. Knocked Webb off his horse. Told guards he fell. Didn't dare tell Roberts what was up till I'd sounded him down—just before we came to the one-down. Everything cleared up but the one-down. Easy was the man. Salsbury turned to get his horse, then halted and called back over his shoulder:

"'Who? Met Why, I'm Jim Omaha.' They got me and sure die. Mrs. Colt and Lottie Carl said I must live. The agent for Patrick & Salsbury received orders to spare no expense in rounding up all available members of the medical profession in the hills. The head and arm wounds were not dangerous, but the hole through the lung was most serious. He had to die in eight days, were the alternating reports of the street. Finally an Eastern practitioner, rough of garb and wild with whiskers, was discovered in White-wood gulch and brought to the sick man."

He remained on duty for forty-eight hours, heavily subsidized by the stage-coach company, and then announced the invalid had a chance if he could be kept quiet. Mrs. Colt and Lottie Carl were his nurses. Gradually he began to improve and on the sixteenth day of September he had an excellent chance of recovering."

The sixteenth of September was the first day he was left alone for a minute; and he was aroused from drowsy sleep by the sound of guns and loud yelling. The gun volleys became more violent and the men in the hills, Crasy Horse was trying to sweep the gulch. At the head of the bed hung his belt and the two hand-guns. He secured the weapons and slipped out onto the floor and dragged himself to the window. There Salsbury and Mrs. Colt found him, collapsed, one of the guns cocked."

When Dinadale recovered consciousness Salsbury gently rebuked him. "Why did you go to the window? Taking a chance like that?"

Dinadale faintly explained: "Always looking for action, Peter, I signed Salsbury. 'What you heard were the citizens celebrating over General Carl's capture. It was a mistake. My one is safe now. The Sioux will never sweep the hills.'" allows to escape. "Pyrites was away from town until it was all over. I'm going out with General Crook. The general is ordered to move in to Red Cloud and Spoiled Tail agencies and disarm the hostiles, who are coming in in great numbers. Crasy Horse said he had struck and killed General Crook. He had from a wound received at Slim Butte. Horsehoe Webb goes out with us as a prisoner, but I fear we can't hold him, as there is no corroborating evidence. The crack you gave him over the head and the greencroaks said I never dreamt you'd kill him! I'll go with you," murmured Dinadale.

"Not a day. The Union Pacific is calling me, by every incoming stage. Now you're on the mend I must go. I never can forgive myself for being fooled by you, Pete. It was your law that got me into greencroaks. I never dreamed Patrick & Salsbury had sent a man up here. Miss Linsley, my helper who sometimes deals Twenty-one, insisted you were straight. She couldn't give any reason, and I never want to instinct or intuition. So I bank on instinct or intuition. I go to Goodby. See Jim Omaha. Believe me, you're the most wakan galoot I ever met. I'll never forget Slim butte."

Scissors turned from the bed and briskly took Lottie Carl's brown hand and stared at her intently. Facing Lottie Carl, he said: "I'm glad to see you. And what about this little lady?"

Dinadale's emaciated face was lighted with a rare smile as he explained: "She doesn't know it yet, but after she's older and has had a chance to go to school, and has learned her own mind, I'm going to ask her to marry me."

"Good talk! You're wakan—Taku Wakan has been whispering to you," warmly declared Jim Omaha. "Good-by."

Imagination Stirred by Problems of Great Spaces

I have no doubt star gazing is a fine occupation. For it leads you within the borders of the unattainable. But map gazing, which has become added early, brings the problems of the great spaces of the earth into stimulating and directive contact with same curiosity and gives an honest precision to one's imaginative faculty, writes Joseph Conrad in the National Geographic magazine.

From the middle of the Eighteenth century on, the business of map making had been growing into an honest occupation, registering the hard-won knowledge, but also, in a scientific spirit, recording the geographical ignorance of its time.

And it was Africa, the continent out of which the compass used to any new thing was always coming, that cleared of the dull imaginary wonders of the Dark Ages, which were replaced by exciting spaces of white paper. Regions unknown! My imagination could depict to itself these south and north men nibbling at the edges, attacking from north and south and east and west, conquering a bit of truth here and a bit of truth there and sometimes swallowed up by the mystery their hearts were so persistently set on unravelling.

"Brush" Used for Removing Deposits From Ship's Hull

It is reported that an Australian company has introduced in England an ingenious method of cleaning the outside of the hull of a ship. The invention has been in successful operation for some time on the coast of Australia and has been tried at Southampton and Plymouth.

The apparatus is mounted upon a suitable frame, which can be suspended from the side of a boat. It consists of a cylindrical brush about five or six feet long, held in a framework which also supports an electric motor and a propeller. The purpose of the propeller is to keep the brush pressed against the side of the ship. The case carrying the apparatus contains also a four-cylinder petroleum motor directly supplied to the brush. The current produced serves to raise and lower the carrying frame as well as to drive the propeller and brush. As the appliance operates under water the motor and gearing are inclosed in a water-tight box. The machine is capable of removing the thickest deposits and can thoroughly clean the hull of an 8,000-ton ship in from six to seven hours.

Flea's Wonderful Eyesight

Fleas have far better sight than men. A German scientist who has been investigating fleas makes this disclosure, saying their sight is so sharp that when a man is sleeping at night under a blanket in a darkened room his body glows to a flea as brightly as a red-hot stove appears to a man in a darkened room. Man is far behind many animals in both sight and hearing, the scientist says. The human eye catches light only a small percentage of the myriad light waves and as human eyes do not react to ultra-violet beams is lost to man which reaches eyes of a lower order.

WHEAT MARKET GAINS IN STRENGTH DESPITE SALES

Values Continue Responsive to Broad Demand Although Persistent Selling is Reported.

CHICAGO, June 12 (AP)—New strength showed itself in the wheat market today. Despite persistent selling to realize profits, values continued responsive to broad demand based on opinion that the 1924 production of wheat would be much smaller than last year. Closing prices for wheat were unsettled, at 1.4 to 7.8c advance, July $1.11 1/8 to 1.4 1/8, and September $1.12 7/8 to $1.13, with corn up 1/4 to 1/2c, oats 1/4 to 1/8 to 1-1/2c off and provisions at 7 to 20c gain.

At first the wheat market showed a tendency to broaden out owing to showers in Canada, North Dakota and Montana, and to the fact that Liverpool failed to follow fully yesterday's price advance here. Of late, however, orders were absorbed, and the market throughout the remainder of the day bulged again after every set-back. On the other hand, the futures market failed to show yesterday's top price record, which was accompanied by the largest aggregate of business this year.

IDAHO ELK LODGE BRINGS SESSION HERE TO CLOSE

Speakers Stress Exalted Concepts of Order's Principles in Reports to State Association in Annual Meeting.

With the designation of Burley, as its meeting place June 15 and 16, next year, the Idaho Elk lodge yesterday concluded two days annual convention here after electing officers for the coming year; authorizing continuation of the work of the convention and a year ago to arrange for a memorial for the late Major Fred R. Reed; approving additional expenditures to take two young elk from Yellowstone park to the convention of the order in Boston next month, and expressing by raising vote its appreciation of the services rendered by retiring officers, and its fraternal hospitality during the convention period.

New Officers Chosen

Clinton H. Hartson of Boise, was elected president of the association to succeed A. M. Peterson of Pocatello. Other officers were elected as follows: First vice president, F. B. Parke, Burley; second vice president, A. R. Maupek, St. Maries; third vice president, W. Williams, Idaho Falls; sergeant at arms, Ed. H. Branson, Pocatello; secretary and treasurer, Harry J. Fox, Donnelly.

Harry J. Fox, secretary of the association since its organization three years ago, was chosen as the association's representative at the Boston convention where he will arrange for headquarters for Idaho delegates. He also was charged by the convention with responsibility for safe delivery of the elk to Boston where the young animals which Elks lodges of Idaho combined efforts to obtain, will be presented to the state of Massachusetts on Boston common. It was announced that James H. Hawley, former governor and pioneer citizen of Idaho, will be invited to make the presentation address on this occasion.

Lodge's Progress Reviewed

Spoken for eight lodges represented at the convention out of the 11 Elks lodges in Idaho were called upon by A. M. Peterson, retiring president, at the session yesterday to review a review of the progress during the past year. Activities recounted in these reports covered a wide range indicative of the broad scope of Elkdom which was defined by Jesse Hawley, retiring president, as "the common meeting ground for American citizenship, however divided outside its production by differences of religious creed or political belief."

Urging strict fidelity to the cardinal principles of the order, Mr. Peterson declared there is urgent necessity for revival of patriotism "to scourge aspathetic citizenship and restore the vision of the founders of this great democracy for its future."

"There is no place," he said, "in which patriotism may better be preached than in an Elks lodge, and no place from which patriotism can be preached than from the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks." James H. Hawley, in response to invitation, spoke briefly but eloquently, in appreciation of inspiration which he said he had never failed to find in the development of the Elks lodge country in the space of a few years from the sage brush waste which he had traversed 50 years ago to the region of high civilization which he substantially built towns of the present.

Work for Young Folks Figures

In reports on activities during the past year of the lodges for which they were spokesmen, W. A. Dum, Jr., of Burley, referred to undertaking on the part of Elks to "see that boys hallo for before the probate court for minor offenses get a square deal." Fred Curtis of Caldwell, told Elks boys' baseball teams for which Elks provided equipment and stood sponsor. F. B. Parke of Burley, referred to observance of Glog Day and Americanization effort including an essay contest for boys and girls. Curtis Hayden of Caldwell, told of measures adopted by the Elks for encouragement of college students and needy community needs. Harry Branson of Nampa, paid tribute to the American Legion to which the Nampa lodge has extended use of its hall and club, and characterized the veterans organization as the principal repository of hope for the future of America.

A. J. Pierce of Pocatello, told of discharge by the Pocatello lodge of all its financial obligations, and stated that funds heretofore used in payment on those obligations would be employed hereafter in charitable activities of the lodge.

First President Gives Counsel

P. Davall of Twin Falls, first president of the state association, urged Elks to take an active interest in community advancement and young people's activities. "If, he said, "for other reasons than the one derived individually by persons who become thus actively interested in affairs outside their own individual concerns."

The newly elected officers were installed by A. J. Pierce of Pocatello, S. Earl Boyce of Caldwell, serving as sergeant at arms, and H. M. Heller of Twin Falls, as chaplain.

A silver loving cup given by Twin Falls lodge was received by Jesse Hawley for the Boise lodge's drill team which was adjudged the outstanding feature of the parade at the opening of the convention. The presentation was made by Harry J.

Loob, one of the kidnappers of Robert Frank, as one of his kidnappers, and has partially identified Nathan E. Leopold Jr., the other slayer, as the other kidnapper, according to the police sought to link the sons of millionaire families with the slaying of Freeman Louis Tracy, University of Chicago student, who accepted a lift from two men in the night of November 23, 1923, and was shot to death and thrown from the speeding car.

Members of Troop for Which Kiwanis Club Is Sponsor Provide Shelter for New Donations of Park

Credit for the building of four eagones in which fox squirrels recently brought here by the Kiwanis club from Wisconsin to be liberated in the city park, belongs, according to statement given out Wednesday by boy scout leaders, to five members of the boy scout troop of which W. E. Nixon is scoutmaster, and for which the Kiwanis club is sponsor. "The scouts who worked with diligence and skill in construction of these quarters for the squirrels, which have been transferred to the space under the band stand in the park, are Paris Kall, George Taylor, Edgar Wheeler, Claudius McCoy and Fred Shaefer.

COMMUNITY PAYS TRIBUTE

Hansen paid tribute to the memory of a well-beloved young girl at funeral services Wednesday afternoon in the Hansen Community church for Miss Grace Walker, 14-year-old daughter of Fred Walker of Hansen, whose death occurred last Monday at the residence of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Polton, at Nyan, Ore., with whom she had made her home following the death of her mother. Her body was brought to Hansen by the grandfather. One of the largest attendances at a funeral in Hansen and a profusion of floral offerings evidence the esteem in which the girl was held and the community's sympathy with the bereaved relatives. The father has been blind for many years.

Benoit, exalted ruler of the Twin Falls lodge, exalted ruler of the Twin Falls lodge, urged broadened activities.

In his annual report, A. M. Peterson, retiring president, advised larger participation by Elks in community affairs and particularly in unprivileged children. "It suggested that an Elks lodge should be made an annual event in the calendar of Elksdom in Idaho."

Report for the committee on memorial for the late Major Reed was made by Irving Johnson of Boise, who stated that Masonic bodies which had taken the initiative in a movement to this end, had indicated readiness to cooperate with the Elks. He made reference also to a suggestion of a member of the Elks lodge that the American Falls dam be officially dedicated as a monument to Major Reed as the "Major Reed Dam."

A telegram from Fred C. Robinson, grand secretary, commending the work and ideals of the Idaho association and expressing regret over his inability to attend the convention here, was read to the delegates.

Stress on Order's Principles

The convention session Thursday opened at 10:30 a. m. and continued without intermission until 1 p. m., when its work was concluded.

Election of the new officers and selection of the next meeting place was by unanimous vote, element of contest being entirely absent from the proceedings. The spirit of good fellowship that was outstanding throughout of the gathering here of Idaho's scattered Elks, was, in the closing session of the convention especially, evinced as a memorial with inspiration flowing out of appreciation of the broad, fundamental concepts of the order.

SOUNDS ALARM TO WATERUSERS

Meeting at Buhl, Addressed by Canal Company President, Calls for Rally Here.

Buhl, June 12 (Special to the News)—Call to all waterusers under the Twin Falls Falls canal system to attend a meeting of the Twin Falls Canal company directors in Twin Falls at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon next, "so if some action cannot be taken to protect the rights of the Twin Falls Canal company" with respect to the exchange of Snake river waters was issued by a meeting of about 100 waterusers held here this evening at which Carl J. Miller of Castleford, president of the canal company was the principal speaker.

No dissatisfaction was expressed at this meeting as to the present distribution of water supply through the Twin Falls canal system, but it was the expressed opinion of several speakers that the interests of all waterusers of the Twin Falls project are jeopardized by the existing methods of exchanging water.

Compare 1910 and 1924

Up to the present time, Mr. Miller said, there has been more water available in Snake river irrigation during the corresponding period of 1910. In support of this assertion he referred to reports of G. Clyde Baldwin, watermaster, who since June 3, 1919, has had complete charge of the natural flow and stored waters of Snake river. These figures showed that during the week of June 3-10, 1919, there was available at Miller's outlet of the natural flow passing Hays station, and that during the corresponding period in 1924 there was available at Miller only 50 per cent of the water passing Hays.

The difference between the 51 per cent in 1919 and the 30 per cent in 1924 he said, is a direct loss to waterusers of the Twin Falls project.

It was his opinion, Mr. Miller said, that this loss is occasioned by ruling of the committee of pipe, under which Watermaster Baldwin operates; which ruling provides that water users of the upper river holding decreed rights to natural flow, may, under certain conditions, release part or all of their natural flow rights in exchange for equal amounts of water stored in Jackson lake reservoir.

Charges Unfair Exchange

On June 4 last, Mr. Miller stated, $500,000 worth of natural flow water was stopped at Minidoka dam for the reclamation project whose natural flow fillings are subsequent to those of the Twin Falls project. On this date, Mr. Miller declared, the Minidoka projects were not entitled to any of the natural flow of Snake river, but were on a stored water basis. However, he said, no water is being released from Jackson lake, but it is being held for credit of the upper river projects for their use later in the season. This arrangement, he declared, permits upper river projects to acquire water in June and July, but the Minidoka projects were not entitled to any of the natural flow of Snake river, but were on a stored water basis. However, he said, no water is being released from Jackson lake, but it is being held for credit of the upper river projects for their use later in the season. FOOD POISON BLAMED FOR TRAPPER'S DEATH

Authorities Seek Relatives of Steve Base, Whose Death Near Contact Follows Eating Canned Sauser Kraut

Steve Base, a trapper, apparently over 40 years of age in the Keyser mortuary, while authorities are endeavoring to find relatives, or someone who knows something of the dead man, says the Elko, Nevada, Independent, in its issue of last Tuesday. Base was found dead near his camp on the Vineyard ranch, seven miles from Contact, last Thursday. Death, it is declared, was induced through accidental poisoning. The body was brought to Elko Saturday, after a coroner's jury had determined, at an inquest conducted by Henry Crittendon, justice of the peace at Contact, that the man had come to his death through having eaten poisonous food.

An appointment to the position of government trapper, found in the man's effects, gave rise to the report that he was a government trapper in that vicinity. A letter received from E. R. Sans, head of the Biological Survey for this district, indicated that although Base was given an appointment, he never accepted the position.

Another letter, found among the effects of the deceased, indicated that at one time he was in the employ of John G. Taylor, a well-known stockman. Base is reported to have been trapped in the vicinity of Mida, and it is said he was known by Arthur Primeaux.

Base, it is said, was taken violently ill after having partaken heartily of canned sauer kraut. Ptomaine poisoning or acute indigestion is believed to have been caused and after an illness of not more than three-quarters of an hour, Base died.

The body is being held at the Keyser mortuary awaiting definite instructions, and in the meantime, every effort is being made to ascertain if the man has any relatives. Almost $100 was found in his possession when his effects were examined, and he is the owner of a rather elaborate trapper's outfit, it is said.

CASTLEFORD DISTRICT WINS SUIT ON APPEAL

Judge W. A. Babcock in District Court Reverses Judgment for H. G. Hays and Mrs. Hays, Dismissed Teachers.

Contentions of the Castleford school district, as defendant in suits instituted by H. G. Hays and Mrs. H., former teachers in Castleford schools, were sustained by Judge W. A. Babcock in district court here in decrees entered Thursday in both suits, which were heard in district court on appeal from judgment for the plaintiffs rendered in the probate court.

Both Hays and Mrs. Hays, who had been employed by the Castleford district board in 1922, were dismissed from service by a subsequently elected board, Hays being dismissed after hearing on charges preferred against him, and Mrs. Hays being dismissed because of her alleged lack of an Idaho teacher's license at the time she began teaching at Castleford.

Hays sued for approximately $1,400, seeking to recover damages under his contract from the time of his dismissal until he had obtained employment elsewhere.

BOY SCOUT BUGLER TO SOUND FLAG DAY CALLS

Twin Falls Boys Adopt Plan for Summertime Citizenship to Ceremonial to Honor National Emblem.

Bugle calls to be sounded early Saturday morning throughout Twin Falls by a Boy Scout bugler will summon Twin Falls citizens to observance of Flag Day and will serve particularly to announce the assembly of all Boy Scouts of the city and their leaders on the high school campus at 6:30 o'clock Saturday morning for ceremonial in connection with the raising of the Stars and Stripes.

All members of the Boy Scout council and of troop committees are expected to attend this ceremonial and it is the hope of the scouts that a great number of citizens will meet with them at this time to pay tribute to the national emblem.
