DEMOCRATS ARE PREPARING FOR BITTER BATTLE

Contest Over Candidates Looms As Main Bone of Contention With Party Issues in Second Place.

CONVENTION PROGRAM FOR OPENING DAY

Called to order at 12 o'clock noon, daylight saving time, by national Chairman Hull.

Singing of national anthem.

Official photograph.

Brief address by Chairman Hull.

Reading of the official call of the convention by General Haynes.

Recommendations for temporary officers and their election.

Appointment of a committee of the whole to hear the report of the committee on the platform.

Address by Senator Harrison.

Appointment of committees and trustees of auxiliary business.

Optional speeches.

Presentation and adoption of resolutions of respect in memory of Woodrow Wilson.

Adjournment.

NEW YORK, June 23 (AP)—The democratic national convention will assemble in Madison Square Garden at noon tomorrow with its favorite for the presidency deadlocked. Its chief advisers in disagreement over party policies and its delegates seeking a leader to guide them out of the wilderness of their own indecision.

In the vast arena of the storied old amphitheater, political observers expect to see enacted such stirring scenes as have forever in political history. It will be a battle of both men and measures, with burnished shield and tempered steel flashing in the radiance of a mounting flame of party enthusiasm.

Despite the difference over platform declarations, the convention is looking to the contest over candidates as likely to furnish the greatest spectacle and most serious difficulty. Claims of 20 aspirants for the presidency have been placed before the delegates in a fevered pre-convention period, but there was no clear indication tonight that the convention would find even in such a field the standard bearer it is seeking.

McAdoo Leads Field.

In prolonged delegate strength William G. McAdoo stands well ahead of all of his competitors. Governor Al Smith, the idol of New York democracy, has developed a backing that will put him in second place on the opening ballot. Down the line will be ranged a long list of others, whose managers tonight were predicting triumphantly that both of the leaders would be eliminated in the end by the bitter rivalry between them.

Today there was a rallying of strength in the camps of both Smith and McAdoo that kindled enthusiasm to a fever heat and kept the hopes of the district of New York ebullient with the cheers of marching delegates. Mr. McAdoo, taking notice of fast-flying reports that some of those pledged to him were preparing to quit the contest after the early ballots, told a group of his supporters in a public speech

Maughan's Triumph Recalls Previous Aviation Records

Crocker Set Sensational Pace in 1400-Mile Trip a Year Ago; Kelley and MacReady Made Long Journey.

CHICAGO, June 23 (AP)—Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan's race with the sun across the continent in one day recalls other long distance and non-stop flights made in the last few years by American aviators.

One of the most notable of these was the record breaking trip a year ago of Lieutenant Harrison G. Crocker who broke the world's record for a non-stop flight in a one-man plane by flying approximately 1400 miles from Ellington field, Houston, Texas, to Selfridge field, Detroit, in 11 hours and 54 minutes on May 26, 1923.

Another sensational record was made the same month when two aviators crossed the continent without a stop. They were Lieutenant Oakley G. Kelly and Lieutenant John A. MacReady who flew from New York to San Diego, 2525 miles, in 28 hours and 50 minutes on May 2 and 3, 1923. A year previous, May 3 and 4, 1922, they had established a record by flying from San Diego to Indianapolis, 2086 miles, without stopping, while attempting a transcontinental flight.

MAJOR O. W. CLARK, former chief of the rehabilitation bureau of the veterans' bureau, has been appointed by Brig. Gen. Frank Elmes as head of the new division that will direct the issuance of the adjusted compensation certificates under the provisions of the soldier bonus bill.

RALSTON LOOMS AS POSSIBILITY

Indiana Delegates Enthusiastic as They Propose Hoosier for the Presidency.

NEW YORK, June 23 (AP)—Hoosier delegates put Senator Ralston of Indiana, actively into the presidential race here today.

At a meeting marked by great enthusiasm the delegates decided to have Fred Van Nuys, former United States attorney for Indiana, and Ralston's law partner, put the senator in nomination with Indiana's 30 votes for him "from then on."

Decision to place Ralston's name formally before the convention was a surprise to delegates generally and did not meet with the approval of the senator's friends outside the Indiana delegates. Powerful influences immediately began to argue with Thomas Taggart, who is in active charge of the senator's campaign, to dispense with the nominating speech. Taggart listened attentively to the arguments against a formal nomination and his attitude was described as "half convinced."

Indiana leaders declared that if any speech were made it would be short and devoid of oratorical flourishes. Their hope is to make the senator's position before the convention as dignified as possible.

Optimism over the senator's chances was expressed by the entire Indiana delegation from Taggart down. Taggart insisted that Ralston is the second choice of more state delegations than any other man and that he will begin to pick up votes as soon as the states have paid their compliments to their favorite sons. Taggart thinks that large blocks of votes will come to his man if it becomes apparent he believes it will that neither Smith nor McAdoo can be nominated.

SMITH WILL GET STRONG SUPPORT

Roosevelt Says Outlook Is Encouraging for New York Presidential Candidate.

NEW YORK, June 23 (AP)—Delegates from 21 states met today with Governor Alfred E. Smith and Franklin D. Roosevelt, his campaign manager and discussed questions affecting the governor's candidacy and acceptability for the democratic presidential nomination.

At the end of the day's events, Mr. Roosevelt said the series of conferences had been very encouraging, revealing many unexpected sources of support for the Smith movement. It was explained, however, that while the delegates who called did not, in all cases, represent the full delegations from the states they represented, they felt it to be known that Governor Smith had "votes in them."

The states represented either in whole or in part were named by Mr. Roosevelt as follows: Tennessee, Virginia, North and South Dakota, Kentucky, Missouri, Washington, Oregon, Utah, Colorado, Nebraska, Louisiana, Florida, Mississippi, West Virginia, Maryland, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Maine.

ROCKWELL ENTERS DENIAL

NEW YORK, June 23 (AP)—David Ladd Rockwell, manager of the McAdoo campaign, tonight denied a statement published here that E. L. Doherty, the oil man, had contributed $10,000 or $35,000 to the McAdoo campaign for president.

POCATELLO MAN NAMED AS NEW SCHOOL COACH

Board of Education Confirms Nomination of Felix Plastino to Direct Athletics and Head Science Department.

Felix Plastino of Pocatello, graduate of the University of Idaho, is to be athletic coach and head of the science department of the Twin Falls high school, as a result of confirmation by the Twin Falls school district board of education at a special meeting Monday evening.

Plastino, of a member of the teachers to serve in Twin Falls schools next year. Mr. Plastino, who will succeed Clinton W. Evans, coach for the Twin Falls school for four years past, will receive an annual salary of $2500.

The board received and accepted at this meeting the resignations of Miss Esther Mcobe, teacher in the Lincoln school for two years, and of Miss Raymona Holmes, teacher in the Bickel school for two years, who were this year re-elected and had signed their contracts.

Committees to Buy Coal.

Six coal dealers submitted proposals for supplying Twin Falls schools with next year's fuel supply, which were opened at this meeting. After lengthy discussion the board authorized appointment of a committee composed of W. H. Weaver, James Fitzgerald and E. N. Flory, to inspect and purchase the coal for the schools. It is estimated that approximately 700 tons of coal will be required.

With view to extending use of motor trucks in transportation of pupils to and from Twin Falls schools and for the purpose of obtaining further information on the subject, the board instructed E. N. Flory and M. C. Mitchell, retiring superintendent, to visit Butte and Rupert to make inquiry into results attending use of motor trucks in transportation of pupils in those districts. The board heretofore has called for bids for furnishing service of four motor trucks under contract for maximum of three years' period. Each truck is to be capable of carrying at least 24 pupils.

ARMY AVIATOR SPANS CONTINENT

Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, of the United States army, set a mark in the history of aviation at 9:48 o'clock Monday night when he landed at Crissy field, near San Francisco, the destination in his daylight-to-dusk flight across the country.

Score of Prisoners Gain Freedom From Jail Through Tunnel

Notorious Police Character Leads Fals to Liberty in Daring Outbreak in South.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 23 (AP)—More than a score of prisoners, led by H. Diggs Nolen, notorious police character, escaped from the Shelby county jail here late today.

The prisoners escaped by digging a tunnel through the rear wall of the jail building. Jail officials said they could not determine the exact number of prisoners who escaped until a check of the cells was completed.

CONFESSIONS TO CONVICTION

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., June 23 (AP)—Threats by the Ku Klux Klan to expose his past, Rev. O. Piers Beilanger of the Landmark Church of Christ said today, had prompted him last night to confess to his congregation that he had served a term in the state penitentiary of Minnesota, having been found guilty of arson 12 years ago.

LOS ANGELES, June 23 (AP)—Peace reigned today at Belvedere, near here, between 16 American men and women who attacked local Japanese, according to Sheriff Tracer, who investigated the incident.

MAUGHAN FINISHES DAYLIGHT-TO-DUSK TRIP SUCCESSFULLY

CHEERING CROWDS CLOSE IN WHEN ARMY MAN REACHES JOURNEY'S END

Daring American Lieutenant's Feat Marks Epoch in History of Aviation; Lands at Crissy Field Slightly Under Original Estimate for 2,670-Mile Dash.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 23 (AP)—Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, army aviator, successfully completed his daylight-to-dusk flight from New York to San Francisco when he landed at Crissy field at 9:48 p. m. He arrived in San Francisco at 9:44 p. m.

As soon as the plane landed newspaper men broke through police lines holding back a huge crowd lining the field and greeted the flier. A few seconds later the mammoth throng of spectators, cheering and shouting, while automobile sirens shrieked in a bedlam of noise, surged over the landing field and surrounded the plane.

Maughan landed on a brilliant path way, huge flares making the field almost as light as day. The landing was made without mishap.

The plane, in which Maughan left New York at 3:52 a. m. eastern time today on his third attempt to span the continent, was first sighted when he circled the field twice in the deepening dusk.

Maughan dropped down on the field at the northern corner, and tumbled to the center of the field. There he became the center of a surging, shouting, wildly excited mass of spectators.

The plane was cleared however, for news photographers to take pictures of the plane and the daring flier.

Maughan's landing at 9:48 p. m. made his time for the 2,670 miles airline dash from New York, including five refueling stops en route, 21 hours, 49 1/2 minutes, slightly under his original estimate of the time the flight would consume.

Apparently almost overcome with emotion and jubilant at the victory which he had achieved, Lieutenant Maughan seemed unable to speak when his plane came to a stop. His face bore a serious and drawn expression.

He was lifted bodily from the cockpit by his cheering comrades of the service and carried on their shoulders through the swelling crowd to a rear door of the army headquarters.

Lieutenant Maughan's landing time was given officially at 9:47:15 o'clock, making his total elapsed time for the trip 21 hours, 47 minutes, 45 seconds.

Ask Protection For Americans Living in Japan

Great Forward Society Publishes Appeal to People Not to Molest Citizens of United States.

TOKIO, June 23 (AP)—An appeal addressed to the "entire Japanese Nation," not to molest Americans now in Japan, is published over the signature of the Tai Keshu, or "Great Forward Society" in seven leading newspapers today. Its text follows: "Beware of believing newspaper reports regarding the murders of two Japanese at San Pedro which probably are exaggerated the same news reports in America of our sword dance at the Imperial hotel were exaggerated."

"Our conflict with America must be decided according to the code of bushido (ethical system of the old warrior class of feudal Japan). Retaliation against American residents would be an act of savagery which we absolutely condemn."

The Great Forward Society was responsible for the recent breaking up of a dance at the Imperial hotel, attended by both Japanese and foreigners.

The action resulted from the society's desire to reproach Japanese for association with Americans at a time of "national humiliation" as a result of America's prohibition of Japanese, it was explained later.

The foreign office and other government authorities are issuing statements in an effort to allay popular indignation and to interpret the San Pedro killing in a non-inflammatory light.

TRoubles Over Platform Are Still Serious

Ku Klux Klan Still Looms as Main Stumbling Block in Path of Democratic Leaders in New York Convention

NEW YORK, June 23 (AP)—Volunteer platform builders had another busy day today but if anything their labors served only to bring into bolder relief the differences over four of the principal planks, those dealing with the Ku Klux Klan, foreign relations, prohibition and farm aid.

As matters stood on the eve of the first meeting of the platform committee of the democratic national convention there were ready for that committee no less than three separate drafts of complete platforms and a score or more of individual planks, most of them dealing with the four most controverted subjects.

These were all the products of groups of leaders, individual chieftains, or emerged from sessions of state delegations. Consequently, they do not embrace the many suggestions in written form which will come from the outside—from labor, business, women, "wet" and dry, and other organizations.

Despite the gaps that divide the mind of leaders, particularly on the Klan and league of nations issues, Homer Cummings of Connecticut, who is slated for the chairmanship of the platform committee, predicted that all troubles and difficulties would be adjusted in the committee, making floor fights unnecessary. Others, high within the party councils, were less optimistic and minority reports from the committee with contests on the floor were forecast in several quarters. Besides the Klan and league questions, some thought that only the convention itself could finally determine the broadness of the expression by the party on prohibition and law enforcement.

Many Anti-Klan Planks.

With the arrival of Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, with a strong anti-Klan plank and the vote of the Massachusetts delegation directing Senator Walsh of that state to a fight for a plank naming the Klan as such and condemning it in no uncertain terms, the lines were even more sharply drawn on the question. The Ohio delegation also instructed former Secretary of War Baker to present Edmund H. Moore's anti-Klan plank to the state committee and urge its adoption.

William Jennings Bryan and the Indiana delegation added their support to those who favor omission of the name of the Klan. Bryan's plank would simply reaffirm the devotion to the fundamental principles of the constitution by which the rights of civil and religious liberty are guaranteed, but the Indiana plank would go further. In fact, the plank which it will propose is identical with that adopted by the Indiana democratic state convention except that the language is changed to make it a national party instead of a state party expression.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, and other Wilson followers who have insisted that the league of nations be determined in the state party conventions were reinforced with the arrival of Newton D. Baker and former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, who led the Wilson fight in the senate for ratification of the league covenant.

Two League Planks.

Both Mr. Hitchcock and Mr. Baker will present planks with direct reference to the league. That by Mr. Hitchcock would declare that the democratic party rejected the claim by republican leaders that as far as the United States is concerned the league is a "closed incident" but there would be the reservation that the Pacific city would be content to leave the ultimate result to time and non-partisan decision. This proposal is in line with that for which Senator Glass has been contending since he first joined the informal platform discussions last week. Mr. Baker's plan has not been made public but it is understood it contains similar expression to that in the Glass plan—that the United States adhere to the league in time with reservations safeguarding its sovereignty.

Lines of differences over prohibition and law enforcement plank are not as sharply defined as are those over the league and the Klan, but in the contending ranks there is a spirit of determination equally as pronounced. The main fight from the point is whether there shall be any expression by the party regarding the right of the people through their representatives to modify laws enacted under the eighteenth amendment. In the background are elements contending for a direct expression against the Volstead act and for a forceful expression regarding enforcement of both the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act itself.

Against Volstead Act.

The Massachusetts delegation voted today to direct its representative to the platform committee to contend for a declaration against the Volstead act.

The new agricultural planks were added today to those already drafted. One prepared by E. T. Meredith and Carl Vrooman, by direction of a group of delegations from the western states and after consultation with William G. McAdoo. The other is sponsored by a group in which Senator Fredrick of Wyoming is the guiding spirit. The chief division between the two is the method of approach in solving the agricultural problem. The Meredith-Vrooman plank would call for a section of the tariff as a lever, not only of things the farmers produce and stimulate foreign buying of American farm products; a reduction in freight rates and a change of policy in the federal reserve banking system under which farmers might more readily obtain needed credits in marketing their crops.

To Aid Agriculture.

The other proposal, demanded by the Association for National Relief of Agriculture, would declare among other things against "discrimination against agriculture by the federal reserve board, the farm labor board, the interstate commerce commission, or other government bureau; for the right of agriculture to create for itself a national marketing organization under its own management and for the Curtis-Awell bill which it is asserted would "make it possible to eliminate all unnecessary and unjustifiable commissions, profits, and waste between producers and consumers."

A plank proposing the granting to the people of Porto Rico of "the traditional territorial form of government with a view to ultimate statehood," was approved today by the Porto Rican delegation and will be presented to the platform committee.

Announcement was made today by the National Women's party that it would present an equal rights plank to the committee and urge its adoption. The legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor decided today to present to the committee labor planks similar to those offered at the republican national convention at Cleveland this month.

HANSEN

HANSEN—Mrs. Goodman and daughters and Mrs. R. E. Foster and children were shopping in Twin Falls Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Taylor returned home Saturday.

Cal Griswold and wife of Buhl and Mrs. Meyers of Seattle, who is a sister of the former, were callers at the Pledger home Sunday.

The camping trip of the booster boys was postponed until after Christmas. The men furnishing the transportation trucks will be free to get away at that time as it will come between the first and second cutting of hay.

Local strawberry growers are finding no trouble in selling their fruit this year. The production for some seasons is not so heavy as usual. A good many are finding a ready sale for all they can furnish to both Twin Falls and Burley markets.

The work on the highway between Murtaugh and Hansen is progressing rapidly and the gravel will probably be spread to the pavement in Hansen by the end of this week.

Judge Hansen was a familiar and most welcome figure seen on the streets Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Wilson of Millersburg, Iowa, are visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Locke Kelly. Before returning home they expect to visit in Idaho and Los Angeles.

The Latwale club was very delightfully entertained at the beautiful and spacious home of Mrs. Alfred Pettigrove south of town on Friday afternoon. The women were festively decorated with pink roses. To respond to roll call the members were required to answer by singing the first song of the season. The prize was won by Miss Dorothy Hamilton. Much of the day and Mrs. J. Freulich were guests of the club.

The Women's Community council will meet at the church on Thursday afternoon of the week. The afternoon's program will consist of reports and discussions on chapter IV of "The Child and America's Future."

Miss Helen Blaney, a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ramsey east of town.

The boy scouts came home from Kimberly on Friday evening wearing rainbow or long fur, having lost the ball game to the Kimberly nine. They were able to brace up and again are ready to play like "Phillies."

Still Ahead

Grace H., a stenographer, wished to have her hair bobbed. Now her sweetheart, a physician, age thirty-two, object because he thought that a woman, age twenty-seven, was too old for bobbed hair.

But off came Grace's hair. And when Doctor Jim arrived that evening there was a long grim silence. Finally she broke it. "Oh, Jim," she exclaimed, "it's quite too young to go with an old man with a mustache. You'll just have to shave yours if you keep going with me."

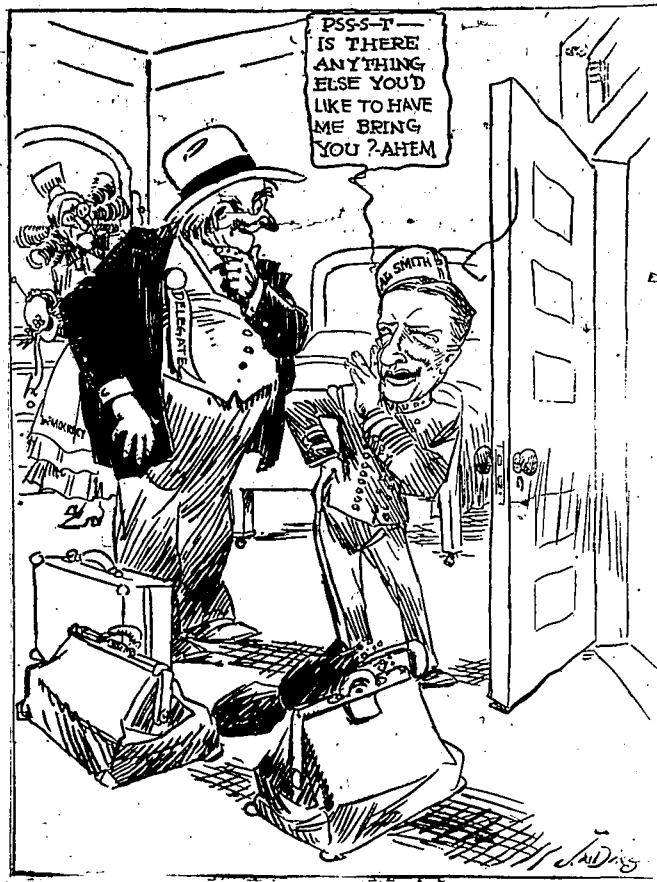

Now Doctor Jim's eyebrow mustache was one of his prizes. But so conclusive was her argument that now he is shaving. He has lost it and his friends who are next to the story are complementing the girl on her rare genius.

When Wood Duck Nests

Far from its natural element, water, and often a mile or more from the nearest watercourse, the wood duck, unlike other members of its family, usually builds its nest. However, the difficulty of transporting the family from the nest to the feeding grounds is solved in a truly remarkable way. No sooner are the eggs hatched, and the ducklings, about the size of bumblebees, than each parent bird takes a little one in its bill, wriggles through the opening in the chestnut tree or white oak which harbors the nest, and with a quick glance lest some enemy may lurk near, flies swiftly overland to creek or water hole. Here the tiny burdens are dropped gently into the water. Without previous swimming lessons, these newly hatched mites dash over the surface of the water for the first time, swimming as if they were old marshmallows or lily pads, where they bide until the return of their parents with more of their brothers and sisters.

Onlooker Dreams of the Origin of Round Cheeses

The damaged brig has for neighbor a bark of humbler degree, a river barge in course of lading with the round cheeses of the country. Tossed from one to another, they pass with mathematical precision through the hands of three stout Dutchmen, before reaching their allotted berth. The onlooker sets about counting them mechanically, till, speculating whose enviously robust appetites they are destined to satisfy, he loses count.

Of the quiet, level meadows, he dreams where these golden discs had their remote origin. From thence his fancy flies to Alpine pastures where the cattle feed amid the ceaseless music of their bells. And then to a vale amongst the mountains; it is late evening; he is seated in a garden, in the cool darkness. And out of the darkness and the distance there comes a faint glow of a curling smoke away. Closer and closer it draws; surely a chime of bells. But how brought near? Not a footfall can be heard, but still the chime advances. Only when it is all but abreast of where he is seated does he catch the muffled tread of man's hoof upon the road, deep in dust, and know that the kins are pacing homeward, bringing an echo of the mountain's music to the bosom of the plain—Harry Christopher Minchin, in Talks and Traits.

McADOO CLAIMS NOMINATION IS BEYOND DOUBT

Leader Delivers Two Speeches to Delegates Stressing Absolute Confidence in His Selection as Nominee

NEW YORK, June 23 (AP)—William G. McAdoo, in two addresses today to delegates to the democratic national convention, renewed his assaults on the metropolitan press for what he characterized as unfair tactics and declared his confidence that victory for progressive democracy with himself as leader was as certain as though already recorded.

Both Mr. McAdoo and his campaign manager, David Ladd Rockwell, took cognizance of reports, published and spoken, that McAdoo is losing ground and that much of his support would be dissipated after the first few bulletins.

The candidate for the presidential nomination assured the delegates from the far western states who marched to his hotel upon their arrival that a statement that they would "betray" their trust was a libel upon them and their states.

Mr. Rockwell, in a conference with newspaper correspondents, declared that McAdoo not only had not lost any delegates, but had gained some.

"And we have a reserve strength that will surprise you," he added. "All talk about losing ground is pure propaganda."

Speaking to the delegates from nine western states and Hawaii and the Philippines, McAdoo told them they had not come here to "betray," but to execute a trust.

"And I know that you are going to do it," he said, "and that every other democrat in America is going to do it."

This declaration brought long cheers from the delegates and cries of "we are last ditchers."

"You bet we are last ditchers," McAdoo shouted back. "We are not only last ditchers, but we are pathfinders for democracy."

McAdoo's second address of the day was delivered at a luncheon given to women delegates to the convention by Mrs. J. Borden Hartman and Miss Carolyn Buttrick-Ree.

Progressive Note Is Stressed.

In it he declared that the convention must adopt a progressive platform and nominate a progressive candidate if democracy is to triumph.

Opening his attack on the New York newspapers he declared that he "was game, but added that his heart was new he was not 'getting square deal' from the metropolitan press."

While Mr. McAdoo was addressing delegates and conferring with a steady stream of visitors to his headquarters his lieutenants held prolonged conferences to work out final details of convention organization and strategy.

The McAdoo floor force consists of 36 workers, three to each of the 12 zones into which the delegate space will be divided with Breckinridge Long of Missouri in direct charge under Mr. Rockwell.

Besides conferring with delegates and other visitors McAdoo was closed for some time with former Senator James Phelan of California who is to place his name before the convention. He also conferred with E. T. Meredith, former secretary of agriculture and Carl W. Johnson, former assistant secretary of agriculture, and others regarding platform planks.

There was no pronouncement from McAdoo headquarters as to the candidate's attitude toward the question of abrogating the rule requiring a two-thirds vote of the delegates to nominate. Referring to this subject generally Mr. Rockwell emphasized that discussion of such abrogation had not originated in the McAdoo camp but had been initiated by George F. P. Brennan the party leader in Illinois.

Defects in Both.

Out of the griet of pre-convention statements came those praising and assailing McAdoo's candidacy. Governor Pat M. Neff of Texas who declined to become a delegate from his state, declared that the selection of either McAdoo or Smith would mean defeat for the party. "Smith is too wet," he said. "McAdoo is too tall."

"If we are to successfully meet on the field of political conflict the enemies of clean government," Governor Neff said, "we must do it with a leader who has never been the attorney for the minister, corrupting influences of this country."

"The unfortunate division of our party at this moment between the two impossible candidates has caused the delegates to overlook temporarily the strength and virtues of many able and better-fitted men, such as Davis, Connelley, Bunker and Bryan."

George L. Berry of Tennessee, president of the International Printing Pressmen of America, and himself a candidate for the vice presidency, declared that Mr. McAdoo undoubtedly has the confidence of the West as the South.

"He represents a progressive and liberal thought that is needed at this time in American government as never before," Mr. Berry said, "and I regard him as being one of the most clean-cut and outstanding figures in public affairs today."

The Cinelux

The Cinelux is an organlike instrument that plays light on a screen for the eye, just as music is played into the air for the ear. The instrument blends the qualities of color and of light—now rising and falling in soft gradation, now marshaled in full, impressive splendor, now falling into abrupt darkness. Squalls of light and symphonies of color are thus made possible.

Salt From Earth Floors

In a Southern woman's recollections of Civil war times, a novel means of obtaining salt resorted to in those days is described.

"A common practice," she says, "on the part of people who sadly missed salt as an ingredient of their food, was to dig up the earth floors of the smokehouses and by a sort of distilling process get out of the earth the salt that had dripped from the pork and other meats that had been cured in the smokehouses." This made a fairly good substitute for the salt that could no longer be obtained from the closed channels of commerce—Industrial Students.

BLUES WALLOP WENDELL TEAM BY BIG SCORE

PHILLIES TAKE DOUBLE HEADER

Northside Nine Powerless Before Onslaught of Twin Falls Batsmen; Flynn Holds Invaders to 4 Hits.

Local fans returned with their faith restored after watching Cozziff's Blues slaughter the touted Northside champions Sunday to the tune of a 20 to 0 score in a game which never was anything but a galling lashing and fielding practice. For the home team who took their time at bat and pounded the three Wendell twirlers unmercifully and in turn took the field and threw the Wendellites out in one-two-three order, allowing but six to get on base during the game.

Flynn, the youthful recruit pitcher whom Manager Cozziff recently secured from San Francisco, made his debut in the box and gained the admiration of the fans in the first five innings when he shut the visitors out without a hit. In the sixth he was felt for two singles and again in the ninth a single and a double murred what started out as a no-hit game.

The Blue infield was also a thing pretty to watch, functioning perfectly while the whole team giving Flynn air tight support with the exception of a hard error.

Double plays on three occasions for local sides helped to culminate matters for the fans who were inclined to doubt Wendell's chance to beat Twin Falls despite the northsiders predictions.

No games have been scheduled for this week.

LOCAL NET CHAMPION STARTS TENNIS TOUR
Henry Graham, Idaho title holder to compete in numerous Northwest tournaments.

Henry Graham, local net star and Idaho state tennis champion, leaves Wednesday for an extended tour of the northwest during which he plans to enter many state tournaments.

In 1923 the local star took the Idaho honors with a brilliant display of ability and this season he will start his conquest on the Spokane courts July 2 when he enters the Island Empire tournament with the best of the netmen of the Spokane region which will include Washington State college, Gonzaga and University of Idaho stars.

Following the Spokane meet Graham will leave for Portland, where he will arrive just in time for the Oregon state tennis meet which will be held the week of July 7. Competition in this and the Washington state meet which he will attend next at Seattle on July 14 promise to force the Twin Falls ace to his utmost to stay on an equal footing with the stars who compare the firmament of the Pacific coast and the western states.

Should Graham come out successfully in these meets he will undoubtedly enter the northwest tournament at Tacoma, which will follow closely upon the heels of the Seattle match.

Summer Camp Is Scene of Activity

Camp Fire Girls Spending Busy Days on Outing; Lads at Work on New Mess Hall.

The carefree laughter of a dozen or so young girls, members of Owaissa Camp Fire circle, mingled with the sound of saws and axes as a summer day scout headquarters in Shoshone Basin these days. The new mess hall for the scouts is rapidly nearing completion; the headquarters building in the center of activities in connection with the use of the plant by the Camp Fire girls.

Considerable improvement has been made in the arrangements at the camp grounds and the entire terrain is in better condition this year than has been the case in the past. The headquarters cabin which is used as official headquarters as well as supply depot, bears air of neatness and care. There is no single sign of rubbish or refuse about the camp. Life moves forward day by day on a schedule, and the dayfare busy ones.

Conveniences Provided.
The mess hall is designed with a view to consolidating the work of cooking and serving the meals. The building in addition to containing dining room and kitchen sufficient for needs of the scouts, is provided with hot and cold running water and an ingenious arrangement of roof tanks which will also permit of the installation of shower baths with an ample water supply for all ordinary needs. The entire building is substantially built, the dining room being screened on three sides from a point about four feet from the ground to the bottom of the roof. When completed, which is expected to be within the next 10 days, the cabin built two or three years ago will become simply an administration building in day time and an assembly room at night.

Tests are being made among the trees, where the present guests put in their sleeping hours with the exception of a few of these who prefer the veranda of the cabin or the cabin itself. Early last week a snowstorm followed a day of cold bleak weather, at which time the entire camp moved into the cabin temporarily.

Mrs. Catherine Provost is in charge of camp activities and of the troop now in camp. The guests number 12 or 13 and from early morning to late at night there is little idle time. Hikes are taken, games are played, and camp work takes up most of the waking hours. Scout leader Hawley with Mrs. Hawley and children arrived in camp on Sunday and will remain for a few days. An accompanying letter of explanation of mess hall construction are disposed of. The troop as a whole will break camp for the return trip on Wednesday.

Outing Entire Success.
The outing started by the girls, is proving an entire success. The last lingering traces of homesickness among the guests disappeared with the arrival of warm pleasant weather after the days of last week when the time on the days have passed all too quickly.

Following is a partial list of the girls in camp on Sunday: Margery Neal, Ruth Kith, Elizabeth Caldwell, Ruth Taylor, Julia Hunter, Blanche Detroit, Lucille Walker, Dotie Lou, Barbara Jane and Mary Catherine Provost, Lucille Gentry, Dorothy Estling and Carmela Holland.

Owaissa circle promises to return to town with its treasury enriched and in part replenished by reason of the fact that the circle's commissary has taken in the women who the mess halling as to meals during the work. The assistance afforded the circle by Donald McLean and Scout Executive Hawley in connection with the encampment is highly appreciated by Mrs. Provost and by the members of the circle.

Highest Points
The maximum difference in the elevation of land in the United States is 14,777 feet, according to the United States Department of the Interior. Mount Whitney, the highest point, 14,501 feet above sea level and a point in Death valley is 276 feet below sea level. These two places are both in California and are less than ninety miles apart. This difference is small, however, as compared with that in Asia, where the Compressor Mt. Magazine, Mount Everest, rises 29,002 feet above sea level, whereas the shores of the Dead sea are 1,200 feet below sea level—a total difference of 30,202 feet. In Europe the difference between the highest and lowest land point is about 15,363 feet.

"Gaston Glass" may sound like a stage name but it is not his popular player, who appears in "Daughters of the Rich," the Al Lichtman Attraction showing at the Orpheum Theatre, did not choose a name beginning with two G's because of its euphony.

"The name Glass has been in my family for several centuries," explains the young leading man. "I was born in France and my father told me when I was a little lad that our ancestors had migrated from England some five hundred years before, and brought me the name Glass from English shores."

ANTONIO MORENO COMES INTO UNEXPECTED WEALTH
Spurred by conscience, a fourteen year old boy of Ironton, O., forwarded twenty-five cents in stamps to Antonio Moreno, Paramount celebrity, in payment of a debt months old.

An accompanying letter of explanation read: Dear Sir:—Here is a quarter I owe you. Last June I stole into an Ironton theatre, where you were playing in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," without paying for a ticket.

"Hoping that you will forgive me because I promise not to steal any more quarters from you, I remain—"

Moreno who is now appearing at the Idaho theatre in "Bluff," a Sam Wood production, in which he is featured with Agnes Ayres, returned the stamps to the boy with the instructions that they be given to the managers of the Marlow theatre.

A CLOSED INCIDENT.

The reply of Secretary Hughes to the Japanese protest against the exclusion law boils down to this:

That while the President would have preferred to continue the "gentlemen's agreement" under which Japanese laborers have been excluded, heretofore, Congress has preferred to do the excluding by direct legislation, and Congress has power to do that; that anyway, the United States is making the gentlemen's agreement, always reserved full freedom of action to exclude any aliens, or to fix the rules and conditions under which they might be allowed in the country; that Japan has always had the same rights, and has used them, with regard to other nationalities; that therefore Japan has no legal grounds for kicking; that America regrets that Japanese feelings have been hurt, but sees no way to change the situation.

So for practical purposes the incident is closed. It is so regarded by this country, and will be eventually by Japan, if jingoism and militarism refrain from making unnecessary trouble.

ANNEXING ICE.

An American named Captain Lane is sailing from San Francisco to Wrangell Island, in the Arctic Sea. He aims to bring back Charles Wells and the thirteen Eskimos left there last year by Captain Nole. The latter, it will be recalled, went to rescue the party headed by Allan Crawford of Toronto, left there two years before,
of which the four men had perished,
leaving only an Eskimo woman.

Captain Lane plans to raise the Stars and Stripes there, as notice to all the world, frozen and otherwise, that it is American territory. He is running a race with Russians, who also want to plant their flag on the island.
The Canadian flag flies there now,
but that is not regarded as a serious obstacle, because, after all, Stefansson's efforts to save Wrangell for the British Empire, as a polar bear reservation or reindeer farm or airplane station or something, both the Canadian and British governments repudiate his claims.

It seems queer that Russia should want that God-forsaken piece of frost-en waste beyond the edge of nowhere, seeing that Russia already has more useless and unoccupied Arctic islands than all the other nations combined.
But the Russians go in for that sort of thing. To a normal American, in spite of the lure of illimitable ice at this time of year, Wrangell is entirely nothing to wrangle about.

GETTING OUT THE VOTES

Efforts are being made in many different communities and states to get out more voters this fall. The stay-at-home citizen is told that he is a lazy member of society who is not carrying his share of responsibility for government. Even if the non-voters are divided in opinion about as the voters, so that the results would hardly be changed though every unfranchised citizen cast a ballot, a larger turnout of voters should mean a larger general interest in government.

In 1920, when the vote was compulsory, only 40 per cent of eligible citizens cast their ballots. Most voters of the nation should have polled that much alone, even without the recently enfranchised women who were expected to vote so heartily.

It is easy enough to lose interest in voting. The individual citizen, if doubting politics or candidates represented on any or all tickets, finds it easier just to drop the matter than to get out and hustle with his neighbors to present better policies and better candidates. And when he doesn't vote, nothing dreadful seems to happen which can be directly traced to his failure to do his duty. Affairs wag on about as usual.

But the point urged by those who would get out all voters, if possible, is that those who do vote take a greater interest in public affairs than those who do not, and interest in public affairs on the part of all private citizens is greatly needed in this country now to clean up the dirty spots in politics.

Breakfast Food
"Matrimonially Speaking"

By Hugh McKay.

My Wife Keeps Talking to Me Whenever I Try to Do Any Work at Home.
She's always very indignant if I remark about evening or on Sunday that I'm going down to my office to clean up a little last week.

"I don't see why you couldn't bring your work home and do it right here in the house," she says. "You know very well that nobody will disturb you here—and I think you might try to spend as much time at home as you can!"

So I follow her suggestion. I bring my papers home and sit down with them at the living room desk for a quiet evening's work.

And then she begins:
"Excuse me, Hugh, but I forgot to tell you if you brought that money home for me, I simply must have it in the morning."

Or, "I'm sorry, dear, but I promised to phone Helen McAllister and let her know if we could come for dinner Thursday. That evening suits you, doesn't it?"

Or, "Oh, Hugh! Listen to this in the paper. Isn't this just too screaming?
If we don't do more of their work right in the privacy and quiet of their own homes!"

Shadows in Oil Do
Not at Once Fade

Frank shadows that do not fade away at once when the objects that cast them are removed are described by S. Leonard Haslow in St. Nicholas (New York). We read:

In the great oil regions of California, pools of crude petroleum are frequently seen. Here the oil is allowed to remain until it is stored away in barrels. One of the curiosities of the district is the freak shadow which these ponds of crude oil produce. If, when the sun is shining brightly, a person stands so that his shadow falls across the surface of the petroleum, a very remarkable thing happens. Should the individual change his place, strange to say, the dark shadow remains on the oil, while the person casts a second shadow from his new position. The longer the individual has been standing by the oil pond, the longer will the original shadow remain. The explanation of the mystery is simple: Under the influence of the hot sun, gas is freely produced in the crude oil. This rises to the surface in the form of millions of bubbles far too minute to be noticed by the human eye. When the oil moves, the gas on the surface of the petroleum the temperature is reduced, and this has the effect of checking the production of bubbles. The result is that the shaded area looks different from the part which is exposed to the sun. Now, when the person moves, the temperature of the oil which has been shaded from the sun does not at once get back to its former warmth. It takes a little time to heat, and, until this actually happens, the shadow effect persists, giving the curious appearance which has been described.—Literary

Easy to Tell Fortune

Shown by Tea Leaves

The custom of telling fortunes from tea leaves left in the cup is by no means on the wane. It is a simple matter to memorize most of the signs, and a good imagination is also of great assistance.

Leaves in the form of a train are said to mean either a journey or the arrival or departure of some one in whom you are interested. A snake indicates enemies. Doves are supposed to be lucky, and so are stars,
the crescent moon, and horsehoes, says London Tit-Bits.

News from abroad is often foreshadowed by a tent. Shoes mean a journey. If the cup is clear all round it is said to be a good sign. Gloves signify a meeting with strangers, while stockings usually foreshadow preludes.

Chairmen mean visitors; keys new undertakings. Lathes are usually designed to be lucky. Black clusters of trees mean gatherings, but may also be taken to mean a cluster of worries.

Houses in Belgium

Wooden houses are rare in Belgium.
Real estate is high, lots are small,
and the yards which Americans enjoy are usually except for villas owned by the well-to-do.

Harmless

I doubt if hard work, steadily and regularly carried on, ever yet hurt anybody.—Lord Stanley.

SUNBURN

Your first day by the ocean
The color you get is so fine,
But that night you commence
To regret that color so fine.

So sang Peter Gnome as he perched on the end of the little Eugene's bed.
Eugene had been adopting his first day by the ocean. He had not been to the ocean before that season and he thought it was so nice to get a wonderful sunburn.

He sat right out in the sun and he quite admired the fine color he was getting.

But that night how it did hurt! Oh, how it hurt and it seemed as though his face and his neck and his arms and his legs were a-fire.

He was so hot and he didn't seem to be able to get cool. He hadn't realized until he was at home.

He had thought he would simply have a fine appearing sunburn, and that it would not be so dreadful.

He had quite forgotten that it had been the same way the summer before when the blisters had come after the sun had burned him so much.

"You see," said Peter Gnome, "it gives you no idea during the time you are there of how it is going to burn and hurt that night—that very same night."

"I've come to tell you how sorry I feel for you. I haven't come to scold you or tell you that it was as I expected."

"I hate the 'I told you so' person, and I wouldn't want to be like such a person."

"But, Eugene, do not try to go to sleep without looking after your sunburn."

"You are half asleep now and you think you will be able to sleep comfortably."

"But no, your sleep will be hot and you will wake up feeling as though you had not rested at all."

"Get up now and put some cold cream all over your sunburn, or any other kind of grease. Olive oil is very good, but the smell is not quite so pleasant."

"Just cover yourself with grease. It is the only thing to do after sunburn."
"But do tell all your friends to be careful about the hot, hot sun, for it burns you more than they think.

"You go in swimming and you come out feeling a little cool. Then you lie in the hot, hot sun."

"You find the sun so warm and so comforting and when it begins to make you a little red, that doesn't bother you."

"Besides, it doesn't make you so red until quite a little while afterward."

"The sun has been working when you have scarcely realized it."

and once more you come out feeling so cool."

Then he got up and covered himself with cold cream. The next morning he felt better and he did the same thing the next night.

But he always remembered after that to be careful the first time he was

sun, that his skin was still tender from having been so well covered during the winter and spring, and that he must get used to it gradually or it would be most horribly painful and

CHAPTER V

Moya's Highwayman.

Dinner at the Lodge was just finished. It was the one hour of the day when anything like formality obtained. Unless there was to be night fishing the whole party usually adjoined from the dining room to the river-front porch, where such members of it as desired might smoke the possible cigar or cigarette. Tonight nobody cared to get out and ride.

Voices drifted up the trail and presently riders came into sight. They halted among the trees, where one dismounted and came forward.

He bowed to his audience in general,
and again more particularly to Lady Farquhar.

"Evening, ma'am. My name's Gill—sheriff of this county. I hate to trouble you, but my men haven't had a bite to eat since early this morn'g.

"What we could get a snack here? We won't get to Gunnison till about eleven."

Lady Farquhar rose. "I'll have the cook make something for you. How many?"

"Six. Much obliged. Just anything that's handy."

Sheffield Gill beckoned to the men in the trees, who tied their horses and presently came forward. All but one of them were heavily armed. That one walked between a 30-80 and a 32 special carbine. It was observable that the men with the rifles did not fix their eyes on the ladies.

Moya felt her heart flutter like that of a caged bird. The blood ebbed from her lips and she averted her face. The prisoner was Jack Kilmory.

Farquhar, sitting beside the girl, let his hand fall upon hers with a comforting little pressure.

"Steady," his voice murmured so that she alone heard.

Yet his own pulse stirred with the sheer melodrama of the scene. For as the man came forward it chanced that the luminous moonbeams haloed like a spot of light the head and splendid shoulders of the prisoner.

Never in his gusty lifetime had he looked more the vagabond enthroned.
He was careless and the strong muscles sloped beautifully from the brown throat. A sardonic smile was on the dark lips, and, though he saw that smile alike, it impudent, deonair, or whimsical, as fancy pleased.

Jack Kilmory nodded with cool equality toward Farquhar and the captain, ignored Verinder, and smiled generally at India. For Moya's look had a special meaning, she charged him with the duty of, with indeed, to pour courage into her sinking heart.

"Afraid an engagement at Gunnison with Sheriff Gill won't let me stop for any pork tonight," he told his host.

Farquhar was on the spot to meet him in a sane spirit. Verinder would be glad of that. I fancy my pocketbook, too, will be fatter tomorrow morn'g."

Biggs appeared to take the newly arrived party in charge. As they started to follow him the prisoner came face to face with Joyce, who was just coming out of the house. Under the lowered lights of evening she seemed to swim in a tide of beauty rich and mellow. The young man caught his breath at the sheer pagan loveliness of her.

"What is it?" she asked in a low,
sweet, tremulous voice.

His assurance fled. The bravo was sponged from his face instantly.
He stared at her in silence from fascinated eyes until he moved forward at the spur of an instant arm at his elbow.

India wondered how Lady Jim would dispose of the party. Jack Kilmory might be a criminal, but he happened to be her cousin. It would hardly do to send him to the servants' quarters to eat. And where he ate the sheriff and his posse would likewise have to dine.

The young woman need not have concerned herself. Lady Farquhar knew enough of the West and its ways not to make a mistake. Such food as could be prepared at short notice, was served in the dining room.

Having finished the business of travel from himself, the sheriff returned to the porch to apologize once more for having made so much trouble.

Farquhar diverted him from his regrets by asking him how they had made the capture.

"I ain't claiming much credit for getting him," Gill admitted.

"What was it?" he asked. "Did he lose from Landon's ranch—strayed away in the hills, I understand. Was he gone for forty-eight hours, and everybody in the district was on the hunt for her. Looked like they were going to get her. Soon it would be too late even if they did find her. Besides there are a heap of mountain lions up in that country. I tell you her folks were plumb worried."

"Moya, listening to every word as she leaned forward, spoke vividly. "And Mr. Kilmory found her."

The sheriff's surprised eyes turned to her. "That's right, ma'am. He did.
I dunno how you guessed it, but you've rung the bell. He found her and just happened we had dropped in there ten minutes before. So we gathered him in handy as the pocket in your shirt."

The sheriff retired to the dining room, where came presently snatches of cheerful talk between the prisoner and his captors. In their company Jack Kilmory was frankly a western frontiersman.

"You passed close to me Wednesday night at the fork of Rainbow above the J K ranch. I was lying on a ledge close to the trail. You discussed whether to try Deer creek or follow Rainbow to its headwaters," the sister said.

"That was sure one on us. Hadn't been for the kid, I don't reckon we ever would have took you," a deputy confessed.

"What beats me is why you weren't a hundred miles away in Bonit county over in your old stamping ground," unanswered.

"I had my reasons. I wasn't looking to be caught anyhow. Now you've got me you want to watch me close,"
the prisoner advised.

"We're watching you. Don't make any mistake about that and try any foot break," Gill answered, quite satisfied.

"He's the coolest hand I ever heard of," Farquhar said to the party on the porch. "If I were a highwayman I'd like to have him for a partner."

"He's not a highwayman, I tell you," corrected the sister with a laugh.

"I hope he isn't, but I'm afraid he is. India confided in a whisper. "For whatever else he is, Jack Kilmory is a man."

"Very much so," the captain nodded, between troubled puffs of his pipe.

"And I'm going to stand by him," announced his sister with a determined tooth of her pretty head.

Moya slipped an arm quickly around her waist. She was more grateful for this support than she could say. It meant that India at least had definitely accepted the American as a relative of her sister's that implied.

Both girls waited for Ned Kilmory to declare himself, for, after all, he was the head of the family.

The excitement of the girl he loved showed itself in the dusky eyes sparkling beneath the soft mass of black hair which she had gleamingly braided that swept into her cheek.

She hoped—oh, how she hoped!—that the officer would stand by his cousin.
In her heart she knew that if he did not—no matter how right his choice might be in principle—she never would be able to give him up.

He was a man who carried in his face and in his bearing the note of success, of personal distinction, but if he were to prove a formalist at heart, if he were going to stickle for an assurance of his kinsman's innocence before he came to the decision, Moya would have no further use for him.

When the sheriff presently came out Captain Kilmory asked him if he might have a word with the prisoner.

"Sure. Anything you want to say to him."

The English officer drew his cousin aside with some embarrassment tendered him the use of his purse in the event it might be needed for the defense.

Jack looked at him steadily with hard unflinching eyes. "Why are you offering this, captain?"

"I don't quite take you."

"I mean, what's your reason? Don't like it to get out that you have a cousin in the pen, is that it? Anxious to avoid a family scandal?" he asked,
almost with a sneer.

The captain flushed, but before he could answer India flamed out. "You might have the decency to be ashamed of that, Jack Kilmory."

Her cousin looked at the girl gravely, then back at her leant, clean-faced brother. "I am, Reg your pardon, as far as your offer, I would accept it if there were any more. But there isn't. The charges against me will fall flat."

URGE NEW PLAN FOR REMOVING CITY'S REFUSE

Commission Favors Employment of Men and Teams; Grant Awards on Fire Hose; Pass Appropriation Bill.

Twin Falls' municipal commission at one of the longest sessions held in recent weeks Monday evening voted to purchase 500 feet of hose for the fire department, agreed upon a plan for removal of garbage, passed the annual appropriation bill, and an ordinance providing for the sprinkling of streets in improvement district No. 41, comprising property located in the northeast section of the city.

Action on a petition urging the appointment of W. A. Palmer to succeed Dr. W. C. McPherson as meat and dairy inspector was carried over until next week.

Favor New Plan

The plan favored for garbage removal provides for the employment of men and teams by the city to remove both garbage and rubbish under municipal supervision. Final details of the plan, principally technical matters, are still to be decided upon. Under this system garbage would be removed at city expense and sold.

The American and Gandrich Rubber companies were the successful bidders for fire hose, these two companies having the lowest bids on the basis of the quality demanded by the city. The entire purchase amounts to $400 and was awarded as follows: 300 feet of one and one-half inch hose and 200 feet of two and one-half inch hose to the American Rubber company and 300 feet of two and one-half inch hose to the Gandrich Rubber company, represented here by Carl Meigs. The award was made on motion of J. S. Keel, commissioner of finance, and seconded by Commissioner W. T. Leslie. Commissioners S. S. All and W. H. Dwight voted no.

Principal items in the appropriation bill passed and signed last evening, are as follows:

Administration, salaries $6180, sundries $6805; fire department, $11,190 and $2125; police department, $7,320 and $2125; park, $1,000 and $700; sanitary, $120 and $3,000; sewer, $300 and $1,200; street, $780 and $10,920; meat and dairy department, $1,200 and $1,200; engineering, $300 (sundries only); contingent, $1,000, scries, $340 and $160; street lighting, $14,000; library, $6,000; warrant redemption, $9,962.75; street sprinkling, $6,000; waterworks department, $8,440 and $18,810; interest and sinking fund, $49,245 and $10,204 including commissions to New York banks and county fees for collection, $21,115.25 and $1,351 including commissions and fees for collecting.

The sprinkling ordinance passed last evening covers approximately the same territory as previous years except that the sprinkling of local street extends from Eleventh avenue east south to Ninth avenue east from which it jumps to Elizabeth boulevard and extends from there to Fourth avenue east.

The commission again took up consideration of assignment to the city of the shares of water applying to lands principally in the district east of South Park addition. The commission adopted Commissioner Keel's motion to postpone action to determine the status of maintenance payments.

FIREWORKS DISPLAY IS CELEBRATION FEATURE

One of Largest Pyrotechnic Exhibitions in Idaho History Promised Fourth of July Assembly Here.

One of the biggest and best displays of fireworks ever fired in Idaho has been obtained for Twin Falls' celebration of the Fourth of July according to announcement made Monday evening by the chamber of commerce committee in charge of the celebration. Practically double the amount of fireworks that has been fired in connection with celebrations hereof, comprises the "aerial unit display" which now is enroute from the factory in Cincinnati for the Twin Falls celebration.

A unit of fireworks of the triangular park at Sixth street and Third avenue west has been selected as the place for firing the display, this place being selected because it will bring the display into view of persons generally throughout the town.

Twin Falls fire department will have charge of the firing of the display, which is to be done in accordance with schedule and specifications furnished by the manufacturers.

SCHOOL EXHIBIT ATTRACTS MANY

Vacation Bible School Pupils Display Handicraft and Present Program.

An exhibition of handicraft and a program of dramatized Bible stories, recitations and singing, illustrative of the work accomplished by more than 200 children during the first two weeks of the vacation daily Bible school brought to the Methodist Episcopal church Monday evening an assemblage of relatives and friends of the little folks that crowded the capacity of the auditorium. The school, in which several religious denominations are co-operating under auspices of the Twin Falls Ministerial association, will close at the end of the present week.

Each of the three departments—beginners, intermediate and junior—had a part in the program and contributed to the exhibit handicraft that included beadwork and carpentry. The Rev. Charles E. Winning, superintendent of the school, presided, and invocation was offered by the Rev. O. D. Harlan. Ministers of all participating denominations were present into service in collection of a silver offering to assist in meeting expenses of the school. Numbers in which the beginners appeared were warmly applauded, while among the more elaborate and interesting offerings were the dramatizations of "Ruth and Naomi," by girls, and of "Joseph and His Brothers," by boys of the junior department. The former dramatization was written by Dorothy Minnie, and Maud Warfield, two girls of the junior department. Other numbers included a cantata, "The Ten Virgins," pantomime songs, "I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old," by Edna Stover; recitation of the ten commandments by Mary Hoover and of the beatitudes by Junior boys.

New Starch Discovery Keeps Your Children's Clothes Looking Like New

FOR your children's dainty wash clothes, which often soil so quickly, there is nothing that produces such a delightful effect as LINIT, or gives such a soft, pliable finish.

In fact, LINIT will make even ordinary cotton fabrics look and feel like linen. That is why modern mothers welcome this remarkable new starch discovery.

Because LINIT eliminates lint, your children's clothes will stay clean much longer when starched with LINIT.

LINIT is distinctly different from ordinary starches. It never clots or smears on the surface of fabrics. To the contrary, the LINIT mixture is THIN and FREE-RUNNING like water and penetrates each thread of the material. In this way, the fabric is strengthened and it wears longer.

Because a small amount of LINIT goes much farther than a similar amount of old-fashioned starch, you will find LINIT is very economical.

GO to your grocer, ask for a package of LINIT, and begin to use it for all household fabrics. Perfection in starching guaranteed—or your money refunded.
