"Perfect Ralston Day," Says Tom Taggart; Smith Gives His Case to the Jury; Underwood Boom Still Going.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—This was a perfect Ralston day at the democratic convention, Thomas Taggart, the Indiana leader declared tonight as, collarless and in his shirt sleeves, he sat in his hotel quarters and greeted his candidate's friends.

Taggart wants Ralston's candidacy to be different from any other in the convention, and he declared happily tonight that he believed it is all of that so far. The simple brief presentation of Ralston's name today, followed by the singing of "On the Wabash" without marching, strain shrieking, or other loud demonstration, was in strict accordance with Taggart's order. He wouldn't have had any more display for anything, he said, and nobody in the Indiana delegation suggested it. They are solidly with Taggart's leadership.

SMITH AWAITS VERDICT

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—My case has been submitted to the jury. I await the verdict, confident that it will not be an acquittal.

This statement was made tonight by Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, and was concurred in by his campaign manager Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"The verdict when returned by the convention," Mr. Roosevelt said, "will look toward four years in the White House in Washington."

The governor was pleased with the day's developments. Both the events in the convention hall where he was placed in nomination by Mr. Roosevelt and elsewhere about the city where Smith workers went in furtherance of his candidacy was characterized as particularly pleasing.

UNDERWOOD HAPPY

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—The Underwood boom was still backing tonight in the reflected glory of the row kicked up in the convention yesterday over the Ku Klux Klan statement made for the Alabama candidate by Forney Johnston in placing him in nomination. There were several mild surges of that row in the intervals today when Justus Smith boosters let up long enough on the fire siren accompaniment to the Smith demonstration to let somebody else get the floor.

All of this anti-Klan noise is chalked up in Underwood headquarters as so much gain for him. Not that his henchmen predict he will get the nomination, but that he will get the nomination on the first half dozen ballots, but that they believe it means a friendly disposition in a large number of very large delegations now shouting for Smith toward the Alabama senator, provided they cannot get their own man across.

Delegates Howl and Yell in Record Demonstration for Governor; Others Restless by Delay of Program.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—Friends of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York turned the democratic national convention into a shrieking pandemonium of sound, terrifying in its formless, terrible din, exhausting in its duration.

They howled, yelled, screamed and sang from densely crowded galleries, flinging the uproar with the steady clamor of fire sirens, horns, bands, and every known variety of mechanical noise made. They flooded the aisles of the convention floor itself, almost to the obliteration of the Smith delegates who were busy aiding the turmoil. They waved huge Smith banners in the slow surging march around the great hall that went on for more than an hour. They carried the demonstration out into the street to keep it going on and on amid showers of torn papers rained down from the tall tops of nearby office buildings.

But through it all the bulk of the convention delegates sat or stood in their places, pleased with the vigor and antics of the demonstrators at first but growing a little restless toward the end; a little anxious to get on with the business that brought them to New York.

SAYS POWER COMPANIES' TAXES JUMP 42 PER CENT

GEARHART, Ore., June 26 (AP)—Taxation of electric light and power companies in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Utah has increased 42 per cent in the last three years, according to statistics assembled by George L. Meyers, president of the Northwest Electric Light and Power association, and presented at tonight's session of the association's annual convention. This percentage of tax increase, President Meyers declared is greater than the combined increase in the amount of money invested, the gross revenues, expense of operation, net revenue and fixed charges of all the companies in this geographic division.

Brief Address of Van Nuys Sums up Qualities of One of Many Party Candidates.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—In an address of 239 words, 27 words shorter than Lincoln's Gettysburg address, Fred Van Nuys of Indianapolis today placed Samuel M. Ralston in nomination for the presidency at the democratic national convention.

Van Nuys eulogized Ralston's ability as a vote getter and his record for economy while governor of Indiana, particularly. And he took president in recent months, Van Nuys said, he would not have been "stoleily silent" but would have been a man of action. "The speech follows:

"On behalf of the United States and loyal democracy of Indiana I desire to place in nomination for the presidency one of our own men, both able and dependable in this hour of necessity."

"In 1912 he was elected governor of Indiana by a plurality of approximately 500,000. In 1920 President Harding carried the state by 185,000. In the last election this man once more changed the political complexion of the Hoosier state and was elected United States senator by 50,000."

"As governor of Indiana he made an unparalleled record for economy and efficiency. He left over $5,000,000 in the state treasury and the state out of debt for the first time in 82 years."

"As United States senator he has shown himself possessed of rare poise and purposes. And he has been president of the United States during the long trying months just passed he would not have remained stoically silent. He would not have broadcasted silence to an outraged and expectant people, but would have led them with a dynamo and not a static spirit of Americanism."

"We know this man from Indiana. We need him at the head of the nation's affairs today. He is a rugged American of the middle-west, intensely honest and of seasoned fairness."

"On behalf of the nation which hangs expectantly upon the results of this convention, I present the name of Samuel M. Ralston for the presidency."

SAULSBURY URGED.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—Willard Saulsbury was urged upon the democratic national convention as a presidential candidate today by Senator Thomas F. Bayard of Delaware, who said his record for ability and power to keep in touch with the needs of the people and the times would make him a particularly fitting choice.

In placing the former Delaware senator in nomination, Mr. Bayard declared he was backed by the people of his own state, a man "with a life-long regard and adherence to the sound principles of democracy, coming down from the time of Thomas Jefferson."

"Our candidate," he said, "is not the first of his name who has sat in the high places of party and national government, but an able descendant of his forefathers, our candidate has proven himself the worthy son of a worthy sire, for, too, has held and ably filled high office in the party and in the nation."

"With life-long regard and adherence to the sound principles of democracy coming down from the times of Thomas Jefferson our candidate has always been found advocating the cause of his party which is the cause of the people and at all times keeping pace with modern thought and progress. He, too, has been a member of the United States senate from Delaware during the stirring years of 1913 to 1919, and his record while a member of that body shines high and clear for ability and power to keep in touch with the needs of the people and the times as well as showing his patriotism in furthering and voting for all measures to help our beloved country pull safely through the stress of the period of the world war."

Acrimony and Noise Feature All-Day Session of Convention; Platform Shaping Slowly; McAdoo Forces Lose Out.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—Through an all-day session crisscrossed with acrimony and clatter, the democratic national convention went its uneven way today toward the hour of paramount decisions.

When it adjourned 10 candidates had been placed in nomination for the presidency; the much advertised major demonstrations for McAdoo and Smith had passed into history; the disagreements of rival groups had met in their first roll call on a question of procedure and the party platform was beginning to take shape after 48 hours of heated discussion in committee.

Five more presidential aspirants at least remain to be formally presented to the convention tomorrow while the platform makers are completing their work, but party officials expect the platform to be adopted and the way cleared for balloting on a nominee before tomorrow night's final adjournment.

Plenty of Action.

In the seven hours of today's session there were no dull moments. Starting with a new and unexpected demonstration for McAdoo and rising to a climax in a noisy hour and a half of rooting for Smith, the convention produced a new touch of the dramatic, the very end in a fight over adjournment in which the McAdoo managers sought unsuccessfully to force a night session. The adjournment proposal led to the first roll call vote of the convention and was killed by some of the delegates as a test of strength between the McAdoo forces and their combined opposition. Others declared this showdown was not clear cut because many delegates were too tired to want a night session while others had left the hall and lost their votes. Whatever the cause, the managers of the McAdoo campaign lost their fight, 558 to 513.

The McAdoo demonstration with which the proceedings began was evoked by a second speech for the former secretary by Governor Sweet of Colorado, who had been promised his state's support for his own nomination at the start if he wanted it. Again, as at yesterday's session when McAdoo's name first was presented, there was a parade of McAdoo delegates about the convention arena to the accompaniment of a continuous rumble of cheering.

PREMIERS ARE RESTRICTED TO
EXPERTS' PLAN

Assurance Is Given That Inter-Allied Debts Will Not Come Up for Action at Conference Next Month.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Definite assurance that the premiers' conference in London will be restricted to a discussion of the Dawes plan for reparations settlement and that the subject of inter-allied debts will not be permitted to come forward, reached the Washington government today. Government officials, elaborating on the statement from the White House last night on Mr. Kellogg's appointment, explained that its object was threefold: To illustrate in a substantial way the cordial sympathy of this government to the proposal that the Dawes plan be expedited; to obtain first-hand information of developments in the conference, and to watch those phases which offered possible connection with American interests under the treaty with Germany.

Ambassador Kellogg will be the "official representative" of the United States, it was said, the term "unofficial observer" being declared to have no relation to the situation.

According to diplomatic experts, an official observer is sent to report on the meeting of a definite organized body, of which the nation, while sending him, is not a member. In the present case it was pointed out there is no such organized body, but "merely the meeting of officials of several governments to discuss a definite plan."

Mr. Kellogg would have no authority in any event, it is added, to commit this government to any attitude or decision without specific authority on each question as it was raised from Washington.

MELLON ON STAND.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—With Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury on the witness stand, summoned by the defense in the trial of Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, and his secretary, Elmer W. Jarecke, charged with violating the prohibition law, counsel for Means today failed to make a strong case. That Means was dismissed because he exposed an illegal withdrawal of whiskey from a distillery in Pittsburgh partly owned by Mr. Mellon.

SEATTLE, June 26 (AP)—Mrs. Henry Landis, wife of the dean of science in the University of Washington and acting mayor of Seattle in the absence of Dr. Edwin J. Brown, mayor, at the democratic national convention in New York city, today took personal charge of the police department.

Mrs. Landis designated Police Captain Claude G. Bannick, formerly chief of the department, to be her aide. She gave the Bannick the title of acting chief.

Mrs. Landis yesterday removed William B. Zeveryns from the office of chief of police, after she had given him 24 hours to effect reforms in the city and in his department, and he defied her. She issued a proclamation today which stated that an emergency existed and that in this emergency "I, Mrs. Henry Landis, acting mayor, was put in charge of the department."

State Utilities Commission Instructs O. S. L. to Put Tracks in Operation.

ROISE, June 26 (AP)—H. F. Samuels' fight to force the Oregon Short Line railroad company to repair the tracks leading into the coal mines under lease by Mr. Samuels and others in Teton county was won Thursday night when the public utilities commission ordered the railroad company to put the tracks in operation and commence spotting cars within 30 days from June 26.

"We are ready to comply with the commission's order as it is issued. We have coal ready to ship and as soon as the first car is spotted it will be loaded and sent out to serve Idaho's people with cheaper and better coal," said Mr. Samuels commenting on the order, Thursday night.

The railroad company is further ordered by the commission to hasten the completion of the construction of a "Y" to facilitate transportation in winter weather, when in its judgment, it is necessary.

Party Men Commissioned to Draft Planks Still Far Apart on Klan and League of Nations Issues.

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP)—The platform committee of the democratic national convention adjourned after 3:30 o'clock this morning after approving all of the 35 or more planks submitted to it by its drafting committee, except those relating to the Ku Klux Klan and the league of nations.

The sub-committee of 11 which submitted the preliminary draft was instructed to meet at noon today to attempt to whip into shape planks on the Klan and league and the entire committee was called for 2 p. m. to decide the reports.

Little change was made by the entire committee, approving the other delegations.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—After more than 20 hours of deliberation, the 11 men commissioned to draft a platform for the democratic national convention found themselves so far apart tonight on the Ku Klux Klan and the league of nations questions that the majority and minority reports were made to the entire platform committee, when it assembled to whip the party declaration into shape.

Reports coming from the room where the 11 commissioners labored were that there was a division of eight to three against denouncing the Klan by name. Those holding out for mentioning the majority and minority reports were made to the entire platform committee, when it assembled to whip the party declaration into shape.

Both Senator Walsh and Mr. Baker were under instructions from their state delegations to insist that the Klan be named in the platform. Mr. Baker, however, was not so sure. He was only one of nearly a dozen that had been prepared. All of these were placed before the entire committee.

Amplified by the entire convention followed closely the battle in the committee and renewed their threats of a fight on the convention floor unless there was a clear-cut declaration in the committee draft. They said they had been having informal polls of the delegations made and expressed confidence that they could muster a majority in the vote.

In the long hours of discussion in the sub-committee, Newton D. Baker was reported to have conducted a single-handed fight for a declaration for the league of nations practically identical with that adopted at San Francisco four years ago. Aligned against him were William Jennings Bryan and other "wheelhorses" of the party who favored a very much modified expression.

M'ADOO REFUSES TO TALK

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—Proposals by his adherents that he deliver public speech some place in New York tonight, further outlining his policies and answering questions raised by his opponents, was voted late today by William G. McAdoo.

The candidate from California for the presidential nomination in the democratic national convention spent most of the day in his hotel rooms receiving friends and delegations.

Dollar Line's Ship President Garfield Forced to Anchor Outside Island Port Because Light Failed.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26 (AP)—Because cannibals refused to eat the lighthouse keeper on the island of Sobote, consequently no light was showing, the President Garfield, due here July 2, was forced to anchor outside the island port all night and so was delayed in its scheduled arrival at San Francisco. The company here have been advised by Captain Kenneth B. Lowry, commander of the boat.

Natives of this island, which lies between Colombo and Sumatra, are so plentiful that five others have appeared in this manner since the British vessel arrived. The vessel is to be delayed in its scheduled arrival at San Francisco.

The President Garfield, on her second round the world voyage, was delayed in its scheduled arrival at San Francisco by sailing 55 miles with a wail of distress. The report stated that the vessel was delayed in its scheduled arrival at San Francisco.

ROOSEVELT SAYS SMITH IS BEST MAN FOR OFFICE

Classes New York Governor as Republican's Most Dangerous Foe; Believes Everything Wrong at Capital.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York was formally placed before the democratic national convention today for nomination for the presidency of the United States. In course of the presentation of his name, Franklin D. Roosevelt, himself, nominated for the vice presidency, and now serving as campaign manager for Smith, said the New York governor is the "most dangerous adversary that the republican party had behind," and his name spells victory.

After a comprehensive recital of Governor Smith's record during the years he has served in public office, picturing him as the nation's "most able in defense of right and in attack on wrong," Mr. Roosevelt said the democracy of America "will stand without fear and without hesitation loyally behind" Mr. Smith as the nominee of the convention.

"Wears No Man's Collar," Mr. Roosevelt said, "Imagine running through the halls of the nation this man's denunciation of the official corruption, of un-American official of sordid tariffs for the benefit of the few, attacking as only he can, the republicans' onslaught on the reserve powers of the states. Imagine his thrust and his genial sarcasm burning out the truth where all men can see it; the eloquence of his simple, clean-cut oratory; the way of understanding and belief in him which will follow his steps."

Mr. Roosevelt told the convention its candidate "must be able to stand upon" a clear-cut plank against corruption in government," adding that "our governor for over 20 years in public has withstood the white light of publicity upon whom it has pitilessly beaten and revealed only spotless integrity."

"The country cries out in consternation and contempt over the continued dissensions between the executive and the legislative branches of the government during the last four years," Mr. Roosevelt continued. "Under the complete lack of leadership in a republican White House and in a republican capital, we have had all of the checks but none of the balances," which, he said, the constitution, in theory, provided.

"Need Team-Work." "Therefore, we must give to the country," he said, "a president experienced in administration and capable of restoring team-work and good will between the executive and the congress. These qualifications are rare, but I submit to you no experiment. This man's record is history; it has brought the

KANSAS MAN IS PROPOSED

Governor Davis Called True Representative of the West; Ayres Gives Speech.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—Jonathan M. Davis, governor of Kansas, was placed in nomination for president at the democratic national convention as "a fair representative in its true sense of the progressive west," and as a "forceful executive who would inspire the confidence of congress in his leadership."

Representative William A. Ayres, of Wichita, spoke for Kansas, informally placing her governor before the convention, and he asserted the choice of the Sunflower state had demonstrated he could carry his message to the nation as he had so successfully carried it to the people of his own state.

"People everywhere, but more especially in the mid-west and the great north, in the agricultural sections," Mr. Ayres said, "are looking for you, demanding something more tangible than calling attention to the acts and noble deeds of the past."

"They are expecting something more than a platform of pledges. Performance can be accomplished only by a forceful executive who can inspire confidence in the legislative branch, who can impress the congress that he possesses the qualities of leadership and statesmanship, and who is not unmindful of the fact that he should be the supreme leader and champion of all the people and not a favored few."

"There is no use nor place in this nation for two reactionary political parties. One is enough. The platform of the conservatives of reactionary party has been made and the nominee announced."

"It will be remembered the agriculturalist was requested during the war by the chief executive to double and redouble his efforts to supply the necessary foodstuffs."

Largest Fresh Springs

The National Geographic society says that it is impossible to state exactly which fresh-water spring is the largest in the United States since springs fluctuate in their discharge, and it is also the question of considering a group of springs singularly or collectively. Among the largest fresh-water springs in the United States are the Thousands springs and the Maad springs, both of which are in Idaho. Either of these springs would supply the city of New York with water. Silver springs in Florida are also among the largest fresh-water springs in the United States.

A Little Careless

"What do you know of the character of the defendant?" asked the judge of a colored innkeeper suborned in an accident case of a white man arrested for careless driving of a motorcar. "It's terrible," Maria said. "Had you seen him drive the car before?" "Yes."

"Would you consider him careless?" "Well, judge, as to do as—let the little thing slip to hurt nobody, but being us is all here, I might as well tell you that he sho' is careless 'bout payin' for his wash!"

Hid From Lightning

A thunderstorm was approaching and a group of Jennings county women began talking of the laughable things people do to guard against lightning. The honors went to Mrs. Henrietta Elliot of North Vernon. She turned to a former pupil and said, "Alice, you must remember the time a terrible storm came up in the afternoon and lightning struck several trees right close to the schoolhouse. I got so scared I pulled the door back to hide myself the best I could, and took off my steel hoopskirt!"—Indianapolis News.

Doing One's Duty

Take good care of disagreeable duties. Attend to them first. Never select the things that you want to do, and shirk upon others the things that you do not want to do. Choose the disagreeable things you will get in your manhood. You cannot grow in any other way so fast. You may be angry with some shiftless man, who is willing to put on you work that he ought to do himself, but you cannot afford to be unfaithful because somebody else is.—Henry Ward Beecher.

BAPTISTS LOSE GAME TO KNULL BY 10-7 SCORE

The Baptists waited too long Thursday evening to change pitchers and to the Knull nine with a 10-7 score in a hotly contested five innings of twilight baseball.

The farmers from Knull fielded the ball but slightly better than they did the night before. They were hit by a slight edge and wild hitting in the second and put them on the safe side of the game from the start.

White put a small delegation of Baptist and Knull fans appeared to root for the two teams, their enthusiasm was genuine and made up in volume what it lacked in numbers.

DeWitt occurred in the box for two innings for the Baptists. Knull scored three men in the first and in the second frame five hits drove DeWitt out and broke Knull the box, holding the Knull team to two hits and a single score in the three remaining innings.

For Knull Bill Thompson held the Baptists to three scores in the last half of the fifth with the score 10 to 3 the Baptists started a rally, scoring a run with no one out. This worried Thompson, who walked a man and Brannock and another two runs with a hit. Adkins, a Flair-high school athlete, went to the hill at this juncture and the Baptists sent in Masters as a pinch hitter. The older man proved that the younger men of the team weren't the whole show by pounding the ball for a double which he denied when Marty refused to go over more than one base on a hit. This made the score 7-10 and the game was over when Silver whiffed.

A double play with three men on bases by the Baptists was a feature of the game from the fielding standpoint. Tonight the Methodist and Presbyterian are scheduled to cross bats, either at Lincoln field or on the city ball grounds.

The score: R. H. E.
Knull 10 10 8 5
Baptist 7 11 0 4

Batteries: Thompson, Adkins and Steward; DeWitt, Brannock and Silver.

Republican voters of Twin Falls county, at a dinner gathering to be held at 8 o'clock this evening in the banquet room of the Hotel Perrine, according to announcement by the committee in charge, will hear talks by C. A. Hobbs, who has been designated as a delegate to the recent republican national convention at Cleveland, and by Shad L. Hodge, republican state committee member and former Senator M. J. Sweeney and Consider Campaign Plans.

Preparations for united action on the part of republican voters in the coming campaign and the matter of filing nomination of candidates for delegate to the county convention also are to be discussed.

It was indicated Thursday evening that the affair would be one of the most largely attended occasions of its kind. Invitations have been sent out to members of the county committee, known candidates for office on the republican ticket and a number of the leaders of the party. It is expected that a large attendance is by no means limited to persons who have received these invitations and an urgent and cordial invitation is extended to each and every republican voter.

SPEAKER URGES MORAL TRAINING

Chautauqua Audience Hears Constructive Criticism of American School System.

With an earnest and eloquent appeal for moral and religious education to be provided through co-operation of churches and the public schools to help that the plane of American citizenship might be raised, Arthur Walwyn Evans, Thursday evening, addressing one of the largest audiences ever assembled under a Chautauqua tent in Twin Falls, stressed a thought inspiring note of the Chautauqua course.

The speaker told his audience that he was a native of Wales, indicated that he was a graduate of Ohio State university and his address was that he was a student of educational institutions and affairs.

Speaking on "The Little Red Schoolhouse," Mr. Evans devoted considerable time to the existing defects, as he saw them, in the American educational system, interspersing his argument with sentimental observations and elaborate humorous bits, one of the most elaborate of which was his realistic reproduction of a baseball enthusiast's performance at a game. The address was closed with the appeal for instruction in the Bible and the ten commandments.

Bible Education of Heart.

"The heart of education is the education of the heart," Mr. Evans declared. "You may be damned as effectively by an education that is itself devoid of the intellect as by an unrestrained ignorance."

In his survey of the American educational system, the speaker made a strong appeal for greater emphasis on teaching of spelling, grammar and other educational rudiments. He criticized employment of all-women school faculties and called for men teachers for boys of high-school age. He said that it takes men to raise men.

Referring to salaries paid to teachers, the speaker declared that "it is placing a premium upon ignorance and a handicap upon intelligence to pay a football coach three times as much as a full-fledged professor of law or history."

Recalls Former Visit.

Mr. Evans referred to a former visit seven years ago as a speaker on the Chautauqua platform, and complimented Twin Falls on the development of its Chautauqua since that time, in which, he said, he discerned a growth of an appreciation for the things that Chautauqua represents.

Miss Ada Ronch and Miss Ruth Freeman, who provided the musical entertainment at the opening of the evening offering, delighted an unusually large afternoon audience with a program of military, music and mirth.

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, June 26.—(Special to the News.)—South Idaho and northern Utah are destined to become the greatest poultry producing area of the United States, both as to the value of the produce and the number of production. Fren Moore, poultry specialist with the University of Idaho extension division, stated while visiting the university recently.

"Caldwell, in the Boise valley, is rapidly looming to the fore in the poultry industry of the state, and already 100 full carloads of eggs have been sent out of that district by the Idaho Poultry Producers Association. This year, 25 cars being shipped during the three-month period of March, April and May, cars going to Los Angeles, and one car to New York city." This record was made during the period when eggs were bringing the lowest price in years, and yet after freight and all expenses incident to production and shipment the average price received was $2.80 by any car was $2,800, the price ranging from there up to $4,800.

Better Market This Year.

Indications point, Mr. Moore stated, to a better egg market this year in the better grades. While the markets usually begin to strengthen about July 25, this year they began to show a tendency to rise June 1, and continue to be firm and improving, with indications that they will continue firm throughout the season. Packers and brokers are reporting fewer eggs in storage this year than last, and the volume of receipts on the big markets is considerably below last year's record. This is the first time in the history of the assumption of 30 per cent during the past five years, with a corresponding increase of only 20 per cent in egg production in the country.

Predicts 2000 Car a Year.

The remarkable growth of south Idaho in egg production has occurred during the last four or five years, Mr. Moore stated. Until 1921, there was not a section in the state that did not buy eggs to supply their local needs to some extent, and that condition is still true in the northern section. Until that year, the Union Pacific system had never hauled a full carload from the state, and in that year they hauled out 13 cars. In 1923 the shipment from south Idaho had reached 190 full cars from a single community, and it is being freely predicted that in from five to seven years, the yearly shipment will reach 2000 cars.

Makes $3000 Profit.

Many people are of the impression that poultry is not a paying proposition in north Idaho except as a sideline, Mr. Moore stated. In refuting this claim, he cited two notable examples where an absolute check has been kept upon all factors entering into the production and sale of poultry products. S. O. Watson, living near Bonners Ferry, with 500 hens and using covey land, cleared after deducting all feeding expenses, depreciation, labor and interest upon his investment, $1400 last year. L. C. McPherson of Sagle, near Sandpoint, did somewhat better with 1200 hens. Starting in 1910 with 40 acres, only one of which had been cleared, Mr. McPherson last year, after deducting all feeding expenses, interest, depreciation and labor of himself and family at 40 cents an hour, cleared $5000 on his poultry.

Mr. Moore will do considerable work in poultry investigation in north Idaho during the next few weeks, in Latah, Clearwater and Boundary counties.

SEES IDAHO AS CHIEF POULTRY STATE IN U. S.

Fren Moore, Noted Expert, Predicts Production of 2000 Cars of Eggs; Cites Profit of $3,000 a Year.

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, June 26.—(Special to the News.)—South Idaho and northern Utah are destined to become the greatest poultry producing area of the United States, both as to the value of the produce and the number of production. Fren Moore, poultry specialist with the University of Idaho extension division, stated while visiting the university recently.

"Caldwell, in the Boise valley, is rapidly looming to the fore in the poultry industry of the state, and already 100 full carloads of eggs have been sent out of that district by the Idaho Poultry Producers Association. This year, 25 cars being shipped during the three-month period of March, April and May, cars going to Los Angeles, and one car to New York city." This record was made during the period when eggs were bringing the lowest price in years, and yet after freight and all expenses incident to production and shipment the average price received was $2.80 by any car was $2,800, the price ranging from there up to $4,800.

Indications point, Mr. Moore stated, to a better egg market this year in the better grades. While the markets usually begin to strengthen about July 25, this year they began to show a tendency to rise June 1, and continue to be firm and improving, with indications that they will continue firm throughout the season. Packers and brokers are reporting fewer eggs in storage this year than last, and the volume of receipts on the big markets is considerably below last year's record. This is the first time in the history of the assumption of 30 per cent during the past five years, with a corresponding increase of only 20 per cent in egg production in the country.

The remarkable growth of south Idaho in egg production has occurred during the last four or five years, Mr. Moore stated. Until 1921, there was not a section in the state that did not buy eggs to supply their local needs to some extent, and that condition is still true in the northern section. Until that year, the Union Pacific system had never hauled a full carload from the state, and in that year they hauled out 13 cars. In 1923 the shipment from south Idaho had reached 190 full cars from a single community, and it is being freely predicted that in from five to seven years, the yearly shipment will reach 2000 cars.

Many people are of the impression that poultry is not a paying proposition in north Idaho except as a sideline, Mr. Moore stated. In refuting this claim, he cited two notable examples where an absolute check has been kept upon all factors entering into the production and sale of poultry products. S. O. Watson, living near Bonners Ferry, with 500 hens and using covey land, cleared after deducting all feeding expenses, depreciation, labor and interest upon his investment, $1400 last year. L. C. McPherson of Sagle, near Sandpoint, did somewhat better with 1200 hens. Starting in 1910 with 40 acres, only one of which had been cleared, Mr. McPherson last year, after deducting all feeding expenses, interest, depreciation and labor of himself and family at 40 cents an hour, cleared $5000 on his poultry.

Mr. Moore will do considerable work in poultry investigation in north Idaho during the next few weeks, in Latah, Clearwater and Boundary counties.

Work was done on rugs and quilts and late in the afternoon delicious refreshments were served to 17 members and the following visitors: Madames Atkins, Patrick, Skillman and Wood and the Misses Helen and Hazel McDowell. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Stewart on Wednesday, July 16.

The Addison Avenue Social club entertained the children of the club with a lawn party at the home of Mrs. Frank Smith Tuesday afternoon. Delicious refreshments were served at small tables having a centerpiece of roses. Each guest received a small flag as a favor.

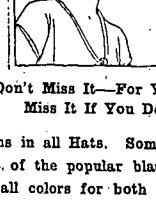

Mrs. Frank Thomsen Jr. was hostess at a delightful luncheon at her home in the country on Thursday, complimentary to Mrs. Zach Norton. Roses were used to decorate the table and rooms and the afternoon was spent with sewing and visiting. Those present besides the guest of honor were Mrs. P. J. Cossett, Mrs. J. D. Kautz, Mrs. Oliver Kautz, Mrs. Minor Bonnell of Fort Missoula, Mont., and the Misses Florence and Irene Costello, and Miss Ethel Kautz.

The Cameron home Thursday evening was the scene of a delightful shower in honor of Miss Erma Klingner, who is to be married soon to E. G. Driscoll. The guests present were Mesdames Baird, Ault, Tucker, Holland, Berg, Hammond, Brannin, Lawrence, Cameron, Towin, Heron and the Misses Walker, Wheeler and the Driscoll sisters. At the conclusion of the evening refreshments were served.

AN ITALIAN REVOLT.

There is a revolt against Fascism in Italy, within the government and among the people. The murder of a Socialist member of Parliament by members of the Fascist party has precipitated a crisis.

Trouble has really been gathering
ever since the Black Shirt dictatorship began, two years ago, though until recently it was obscured by the outward prosperity of the country and by the rigid censorship maintained.
Now, with uncensored news leaking
out of Rome and Northern Italy, it is clear that Mussolini's power is weakened, that there are grave governmental scandals, and that there is needed a thorough housecleaning and return to government which shall be not only orderly but lawful and fair.

The situation is such as intelligent observers have been forecasting ever since, Mussolini, with an armed mob
at his back, seized the government and made himself another Caesar. It is not enough, in Italy or any other free country, that a government shall be strong, patriotic and conservative.
The means used are as important as the end sought. It is found that violence done in the name of conservatism is no better than violence done
in the name of radicalism.

TOO MANY THINGS TAUGHT

A county jury commissioner in the East, moved by the discovery of a juror who admits having accepted
bribes to vote for acquittal, now suggests that courses in jury duty be put in colleges. The idea would be to teach the citizen's duty in serving on juries whenever called, the need of honesty and public spirit in jury service, and so on.

Undoubtedly something should be done to restore to our jury system the dignity and honor intended for it.
Evasion of jury service should be the exception instead of the rule. But it is hardly likely that a college course is wanted to bring this about.

There are already courses in civics,
ethics, psychology and literature which, if "related to life" as the reformers demand, ought to help
somewhat in developing public-spirited citizens with a sense of honor adequate to the best jury service. The demand that college courses—or high school or grammar school courses—be established to meet every weakness in our civilization looks rather foolish
when carried to its logical conclusion.
Courses in telephone usage, jury duty
and similar matters might well lead to a demand for courses in correct street riding, letter posting, good sportsmanship, good movie taste, and so on.

With such a host of specialized courses, there would be no time left for the sound instruction that trains intelligence and develops character.

MOTHER GOOSE EXAM.

Applicants for jobs as children's library assistants have to pass examinations like any college student at this time of the year. But with what a difference!

Read over a few of the questions
appearing in one such quiz and see if it doesn't do pleasant things to your bored or worried mind.

"For what person or persons was the wool of the black sheep declined?"
"Describe briefly the astral pro-pension which led to the elopement
of two useful kitchen utensils."

"How many court muzzlers were maintained at the court of old King Cole."
"Name and describe article on which Miss Muffet sat."

Others might be quoted or imagined
for oneself, but these are enough to suggest that life is not all dull labor. Or is it possible that the library student finds these questions
as troublesome and difficult in hot weather as other exam-takers find their questions on more complex subjects?

Breakfast Food
"Matrimonially Speaking"
By MRS. HUGH McKAY

My Husband Loses Things.
His watch, or his key-ring, or his new umbrella is always disappearing in a most mysterious manner.
He's continually coming home and telling me, for instance, that he can't understand what could have happened
to his silver penknife—he remembers having left it in his pocket only a couple of hours ago—and now it's gone.
He's invariably very much upset over these misfortunes. And his next thought is to telephone a "lost" ad to the newspaper. He's sure that he must have dropped his knife, or whatever it is, somewhere on the street while he was coming home.

He contributes one of these ads to the "lost" column at least every other week, although he never seems to get any results from them.
But nobody could possibly blame
the newspaper for that, because he almost always finds his lost possession himself, and in the most unexpected places
—right where he left them!

Forced to Do Public
Penance for Slander

Public penance was the punishment meted out to slanderers as recently as the Nineteenth century. In 1822 thousands of persons assembled in Bethnal Green church, London, and the adjoining thoroughfares, attracted thither by the announcement that a young married woman, named Sarah Green, had been ordered by the surrogate of the ecclesiastical court to do penance in the church for having called her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ann Johnson, an improper name. Mrs.
Ann Johnson, an improper name. The order said she was to stand in a white sheet, but this was dispensed with,
and, in lieu thereof, she was ordered to stand in a white sheet, and to be described as being "a very bad young woman," was attired in a white dress,
and repeated the following recantation
to the vestry in the presence of the rector, church wardens, the person calumniated, and five or six of her relatives.

"Sarah Green, wife of James Green, have uttered and spoken several scandalous and opprobrious words against Ann Johnson, wife of William Johnson of St. Matthew, Bethnal
Green, to the great offense of Almighty God, the scandal of the Christian religion, and the injury and reproach of my neighbors; therefore,
by calling her '—' I do, therefore, before God and you, humbly confess and acknowledge such offense, and am heartily sorry for the same, and do ask her forgiveness, and promise hereafter never to offend her in the like manner. God assisting me."

Mrs. Green appeared very much affected; and after the form was gone through was led out of the church by the beadle, who conducted her safely
through the mob, and she was conveyed home in a coach.

Diversity in Retail Trade Is Spreading

"John," said the affectionate wife,
"before you come home tonight will you stop at the drug store and get me
one of those electric nailtrons they advertise for $3.98 and a pound of tea?"
"Yes," said the loving husband, "and when I go out to get my lunch in the clear store I'll buy you a nice box
of candy."

At how many kinds of stores can you buy a safety razor? asks the Nation's Business. Hardware stores, drug stores, cigar stores, stores that deal in men's clothing, department stores, sporting-goods stores, occasionally a store that began by selling candy and later carried tobacco.
They can be bought from mail-order houses and direct by mail, and there may be others.

These instances could be multiplied indefinitely to show the increase in diversification of retail trade. Retailing in the last few years in this country.

Made Sick of Liquor

One of the most original ways of curing the habitual drunkard is that practiced in the "Inebriates" homes of Norway. And, according to report, it is one of the most effective.

When brought to the "homes" the "case" is allowed nothing but water to drink. Not only this, but all food supplied to inmates is flavored with, or dipped in, wine.

For a day or two there are "no complaints." But gradually the wine and wine-flavored food begin to pall, until presently even the most thoroughgoing drunkard begins to wonder what the cause of the craving can possibly be.
So quickly does the treatment work, indeed, it is claimed even the worst cases can be cured.

A Girl's Way

The young man next door was watching Bluebell narrowly from his front window. He had declared frankly that he wanted to marry a sensible girl.
The skies were dripping and the sidewalks were wet.
Bluebell had emerged and turned her beautiful orbs upon the skies.
She inspected the sidewalks. Then she went back into the house.
"Wise girl," murmured the young man. "She has gone after her overshoes."

But Bluebell, as it transpired when she again appeared, had merely gone back for her new earrings.—Louisville

That "Alteration"

It was a case of witness, and the following is what a lawsuit said he witnessed:

"I saw the plaintiff and the defender, and the defendant, and the defender struck the plaintiff, and the plaintiff struck the defendant, and they both missed each other, and an alteration took place, and they knocked each other down, and—"

"That will do," said the magistrate.
"Judging by their faces, the 'alteration'
has been about equal. Case dismissed."

Canary Has Rival

Canaries, long the pet of bird fanciers, are being replaced by a new species of bird pet popularly called the "love bird," because of its devotion to its mate. Scientifically it is known as the budgerigar. A pair of these birds will sell at close to a thousand dollars, though some may be bought for five dollars or thereabouts.

He looked, at her with hard, narrowed eyes. "It will be returned, will
it?"

"Today. Within a few hours."
"Who is going to return it?"

Moya had it on the tip of her tongue
to tell, but pulled up in time. "I think we'll not go into that."

The American looked at his watch.
The hands showed the hour to be 2:30.
If the money was to be returned that day someone must already be on the way with it. He had seen his cousin, Captain Kilmeny, take the Gunnison road in a trap not half an hour earlier.

"So the captain is taking it back today?" he mused aloud, wary eyes on Moya's face.

A startled expression leaped to her countenance. "I didn't say so."

"I say so." Beneath his steady gaze her lashes fell. He nodded, sure that he had guessed correctly.

"I intended to have a talk with you and straighten out some things," he went on. "But I find I haven't time
now. We'll postpone it till tomorrow.
I'll meet you here at ten o'clock in the morning."

"No," she told him.

The wave of hope had ebbed in her.
Given the opportunity to explain the evidence against him, he had cared more to find out what they were doing with the stolen money. He had no time to save his good name.

"Ten in the morning. Remember.
It's important. I want to see you alone. If I'm not on time wait for me."

He bowed, turned away almost at a run, and was lost in the small willows.
Presently she heard the sound of a gun.

India and Moya were on the veranda
when the captain drove up. One glance at his grim face told them
something had gone wrong.

"I've been held up," he said simply.
"Robbed—with a rifle within reach of my hand all the time."

"But—how?" gasped India.
"Moya, white to the lips, said nothing. A premonition of the truth clutched lily at her heart.

"A masked man stopped me just as I swung round a bend about three miles from Gunnison. He ordered me to throw out the satchel with the money. I did as I was told."

"Did you recognize him?" Moya thrust was dry, so that her question
came almost in a whisper.

The captain's eyes met hers steady-
ly. "He stayed in the bushes, so that I didn't see his body well. He was masked."

"But you know who it was. Tell
me."

"I couldn't take oath to the man."
"It was your cousin." Moya was pale to the lips.

The officer hesitated. "I'm not prepared to say who my throat beat fast."
"You know better. It was Jack Kilmeny," she charged.

"I could tell you only my opinion,"
he insisted.

"And I know all about it." Moya
came to time with her confession promptly, in the fearless fashion characteristic of her. "It was I that sent him to you. It was I that betrayed
you to him."

India set her lips to a soundless whistle. Her brother could not keep out of his brown face the amazement
he felt.

"I don't wonder you look like that,"
Moya nodded, gulping down her distress. "You can't think any worse of me than I do of myself."

"Nonsense! If you told him you had a red coat, was it?" India sighed, a little sharply.

"No reason that justifies me. He took me by surprise. He had come to get the stolen money and I told him we were returning it to the Fair association. He guessed the rest. Almost at once he left. I saw him take the canyon road for Gunnison."

"You weren't to blame at all," the captain assured her, adding with a rueful smile: "He didn't take you any more by surprise than he did me. I hadn't time to reach for the rifle."

Moya, too, kept silence. Her heart was seething with scorn for this handsome scamp who had put this outrage upon her. It was bad enough to be a thief, but to be a thief who added
deception, falsehood and gross ingratitude. Her did the girl's contempt show itself. Neither warning nor advice—and Lady Jim had been prodigal of both—had availed to open her eyes about the westerner. She had been so foolish over him as a school-girl in the matter of her mating idea
that she would have to lash herself
for her folly through many sleepless hours of the night was a certainty.

dere to his horse, owing to the saddle without touching the stirrups, and was off instantly.

An hour of rapid travel brought him to the Gunnison road. He swung to the ground and examined the dusty roadbed. Apparently he was satisfied, for he took his sweat-soaked horse back into the brush and tied it to a cottonwood. From its case beside the saddle he drew a rifle. He retraced his own steps and selected carefully a place among the thick bushes by the roadside. With his pocketknife, he cut eyeholes in the bandana handkerchief that had been round his neck and tied it over his face in such a way as to conceal his features entirely. Then he carefully emptied from the rifle all cartridges it contained,
and dropped them into his pocket.

These preparations made, he sat down and waited. There came to him very soon the rumble of wheels. Presently a one-horse trap appeared at a curve of the road. Captain Kilmeny was the driver. Jack was within six feet of the road and he waited until his cousin was almost abreast of him.

"Throw up your hands!"

The captain knew in an instant
what he was up against. A masked man with a rifle in his hands could mean only one thing. Ned Kilmeny was no fool. He knew when to fight and when to surrender. His hands went into the air.

"Kick that rifle into the road—with your foot, not with your hands."

The Englishman, who he was told,
"What do you want?" he demanded,
looking sharply at the masked bandit.

"I want that satchel beside you.
Drop it off."

Again the officer obeyed orders. He asked no questions and made no comment.

"There's room to turn here by backing. Hit the grit for the Lodge."

After he had faced about, Ned Kilmeny had one word to say before leaving.

"I know who you are, and there's just one name for your kind—You're an out-and-out robber."

"It's a difference of opinion that makes horse races, captain," answered
the masked man promptly.

Ned Kilmeny, as he drove back to the Lodge, was sick at heart. He came of a family of clean, honest gentlemen. Most of them had been soldiers.
Occasionally one had gone to the devil
as this young cousin of his had done.

But now, in this whole affair so contemptible that it hurt his pride. The miner had traded on their faith in him. He had lied to them.
Even the elements of decency seemed to be lacking in him.

JURKO ASSERTS FATAL SHOOTING WAS PROVOKED

Slayer of A. B. W. Vandemark
Apparently Unmoved When Told of Death of Former Partner; Search for Relatives Disappointing.

While unsuccessful search yesterday was made for relatives of A. B. W. Vandemark, geologist, mining specialist, shot to death here Wednesday night, his slayer, John Jurko, the subject of general denunciation in all quarters heretofore, secure in his cell at the county jail, apparently little concerned about his fate, joked with fellow prisoners, conferred with his attorney, W. P. Guthrie, and gave to Sheriff M. E. Finch a statement indicating that he expected to plead self-defense for his act.

That Jurko did not open fire upon Vandemark until after Vandemark had hurled a glass at him, struck him twice with his right hand and was moving toward the back of the counter in the Cozy billiard parlor on Main avenue east, where the fatal tragedy occurred, were statements made Wednesday by Jurko to the sheriff.

Story Contradicted.
Statements of four witnesses to the shooting entirely controvert Jurko's assertions in this regard. They agree that Vandemark made no move toward Jurko but that he, Jurko, with his three companions at a card table near the counter when Jurko drew out his gun and began firing; that Vandemark was not five or six steps away from his place at the table and then, falling forward and around the table he dropped mortally wounded to the floor almost on the spot where he had been sitting.

The cards that Vandemark held when Jurko entered the place were clutched in his hands after he died.

Vandemark was a married man and he and his wife were in the city on Thursday by Coroner P. J. Grossman and the police of the Vandemark effects as well as of the premises, disclosed no gun or other weapon. In the absence of Probable Judge O. P. Duvall, who was in Jarbidge, no charges against Jurko were filed Thursday, but Prosecuting Attorney J. W. Taylor engaged actively in investigation of circumstances surrounding the fatal shooting. Several photographs were taken Thursday evening at the scene of the tragedy. It was indicated that a complaint charging Jurko with murder of Vandemark would be filed immediately upon Judge Duvall's return.

Visited in Cell by Wife.

In his cell late Wednesday night and again on Thursday Jurko was visited by his wife who had accompanied him to the scene of the tragedy, and who turned and fled when Jurko fired the first shot. She was found at about midnight at her home on Fifth avenue east by searchers who brought word that Jurko desired to see her. It was learned Thursday that Jurko and his wife, on their way to the billiard room where Vandemark was killed, were observed by witnesses who stated that the woman seemed to be endeavoring to persuade Jurko from shooting and that she reached out as if to take something from him and was forcibly thrust aside by Jurko.

Jurko manifested no concern when he was informed that his wife was dead. "I have nothing to regret, yet," he said. "I feel that I did right and I would do it again."

Addressing other prisoners, Jurko asked several of them as to the length of their jail terms. "I may not be here as long as that," he said to one of them. "They may hang me."

Apparently disturbed by the tragedy in which he played a principal part, Jurko ate hearty meals, smoked and talked and sang, according to statement of persons who visited the jail during the day.

One Proves Disappointing.
A single clue that the authorities thus far have discovered as to relatives of the dead man proved disappointing Thursday when word came from New York that a telegram addressed to L. H. Van Der Mark, 121 Greenwich street, New York, believed to be a brother of the dead man, could not be delivered for the reason that no person of that name was to be found at that address. Later Chief of Police P. O. Herlihan wired the New York police chief to assist in locating the brother.

This clue came to light in a letter found among the dead man's effects. It bore date of early last winter.

Among the dead man's effects was found a copy of the agreement whereby under dissolution of partnership between Vandemark and Jurko in the Cozy billiard parlors had been effected on the day that Vandemark was slain. Under this agreement business differences between the two men of several weeks' standing were settled and Vandemark came into possession of the establishment in which he had placed Jurko as a partner and manager some five months before.

included a great number of leases and other documents relating to oil and mineral properties and claims in Arizona, California and British Columbia, where Vandemark had lived and worked as well as in Michigan, South America and Mexico during his life time.

Aside from the letter that is believed to have been written by the brother in New York, no other letters or documents were found to shed any light on the whereabouts of relative. Attorney E. V. Larson, who represented Vandemark in litigation in connection with the dissolution of the partnership between Vandemark and Jurko, stated that Vandemark had spoken quite freely of his varied experiences and had mentioned the place in New York state where he was born, but the attorney was unable to recall any reference by the dead man to his relatives.

It was learned by the authorities from a woman in whose home Vandemark had had lodging and board that he had spoken of brothers residing in New York and Chicago, but she was unable to give further information.
