

STUDY FORESTRY WORK IN IDAHO

Faculty and Student Body at State University Take to Summer Field Activity.

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, July 1.—The entire faculty and most of the student body of the school of forestry, University of Idaho, are occupied this summer in some phase of forestry work in the fields of Idaho or other northwestern states. Dean P. G. Miller announced here, recently.

Dean Miller himself is gathering data for an extensive report on "The Forest Resources of Idaho," which will require two or three field seasons to complete. He expects to finish the present summer in gathering data on the status of the timber lands of the university, which are quite extensive.

Dr. Henry Schmitz, professor of forest products, is to have general supervision of the white pine blight eradication campaign being waged in the state in co-operation with the federal government, and he expects to spend a large part of the summer in the field himself. He has a party of six students of forestry in south Idaho working on the eradication of cultivated black currants, while still another government party of 100 men is engaged in the eradication of wild currants and gooseberries in the Kanan forest in northwestern Idaho.

The blight rust, a deadly malady to white pine, has not yet appeared in the state, but it undoubtedly will appear in the Idaho white pine stands very soon. A peculiar factor in the spread of the disease, is that it appears to spread only through an intermediate transmission of black currant or gooseberry bushes to other pine trees.

C. W. Watson, assistant professor of silviculture, and H. I. Nettleton, instructor in forestry, and R. G. Wheaton, graduate assistant, are occupied in growth studies of white pine left after logging operations to determine how soon the logger may return for a second cut. This work was started last summer, and will continue for several field seasons.

Students of the school of forestry are scattered throughout the Pacific coast states and Alaska, although most of them are working in the Idaho forests. They are not only acquiring practical experience in their work, but earn a considerable part of their collegiate expenses in this manner. The demand for forestry students this summer was far in excess of the supply, according to Dean Miller.

TOURIST PARK NOTES

The city tourist park has been open two months and during that time more than 900 cars have been parked. The number of occupants of such cars averages a little over three, making a total of nearly 3000 people. It is estimated that only 10 per cent of the tourists that pass this way camp here, it is easy to see what a great opportunity for advertising our country we have right at our door. If our citizens would visit the park frequently and talk to the travelers, they would be doing good to both parties.

They had food but they did not know how to eat it

LET the southwest monsoon be delayed but a few days and in some district or other in India the crops are ruined. A famine occurs.

When the attempt was first made to relieve such districts, a remarkable thing happened! Rice eaters, ignorant of other foods, died sooner than make use of the wheat that was offered them. Death was preferable to the unknown. Nor would wheat eaters eat rice.

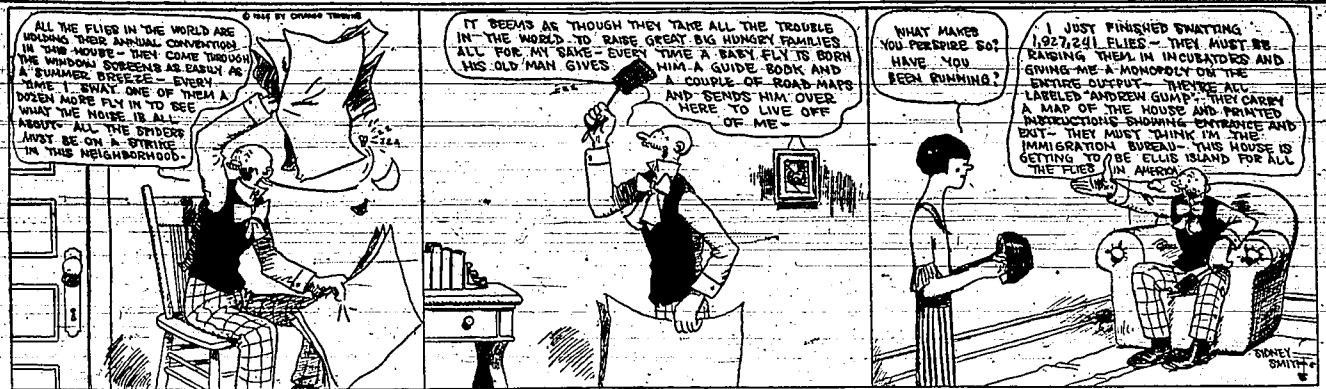

Incredible! Yet here, today, progressive people in a progressive country are very wary about risking themselves off the beaten path. They are suspicious of innovations. They leave them for others to try out.

Without advertising, many improvements common today would have failed to surmount the conservatism of our fathers. But alert merchants and manufacturers told about their products in the daily papers. The mystery surrounding them was dissipated. People became interested and in this interest forgot their first doubts.

Read the advertisements. They let you know about new things, where to get them, how much they cost. Without them we would live in complete ignorance of many things that serve to make life less laborious, more comfortable, happier.

THE GUMPS—SWAT'S THE MATTER

Biggest Celebration Ever Planned Here for Fourth

With Fourth of July yet two days away, plans have been completed for a celebration in Twin Falls which will start early in the morning and run through the day and part of the night with something entertaining every minute. It will be a day, say members of the general committee in charge of arrangements, which will long be remembered by Twin Falls citizens and by the hundreds of visitors who will be the Magic City's guests on that day.

Music, speeches, ball games and other athletic events as well as dancing, a parade and fireworks, will go to make up part of the program. To the visitor from the East on that day will be offered an opportunity to see some of Idaho's cowboys and cowgirls ride some of the worst outfit horses to be found in the horse country. It will be a day, say members of the committee, that will go down in the annals of Twin Falls' history as one of the biggest and most elaborate celebrations ever held over the birth of the nation.

Charles Dwight, secretary of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, and other members of the committee, Tuesday spent some time in floundering to get some of the things that will be a pig active enough to furnish some real amusement and excitement for the town. A one-block race on bicycles will be held at the park during the day when the small boy will be given an opportunity to test his muscles on the pig or wriggling, squirming porker that has been well greased.

Many Prizes
There will be prizes for everything. In the parade to be held through the business streets of the city Fourth of July morning at 2 o'clock and which will be the official opening of the day's fun, prizes will be awarded for the best-decorated automobile and for the worst-looking car. The best-decorated rated auto will win a prize of $10, while the worst-looking car, which must have at least one faulty feature, least enough engine for locomotion, will be awarded a prize of $5.

The parade which will contain its ranks civic and patriotic organizations of the city, will be led by Charles Flowerdew as marshal of the day. The Twin Falls band will lead and next in line will be the mayor of the city and city officials, in cars immediately followed in line by veterans of the Civil war, also in cars. Company L of the 180th Idaho Infantry with Captain Lauterbach in command, will swing down the street behind the veterans.

The Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scout troops of Twin Falls, decorated automobiles, cowboys and cowgirls, the fire department and other organizations will follow. In the automobile section of the parade it is expected to prove the contention of Twin Falls county citizens that they have the greatest number of automobiles per capita of any county in the state. Every owner of a car, no matter how new or old, is urged to take part. It will be during this parade that judges will pick the best-decorated car and the most dilapidated. Keen rivalry is expected in both classes.

Teams to Clash
Hansen's baseball team, said to be in excellent playing condition, will lock horns with the sugar factory team, known all over southern Idaho for its prowess. This is expected to be a bitter contest and is free to operators. The game will begin promptly at 10:30 o'clock Fourth of July morning. A glance at the lineup of both teams shows players of caliber which should make the game one of

BRIGHT ARRAY OF STARS IN THE "GOLD DIGGERS"

Three big stars, Hope Hampton, Windham Standing and Louise Fazenda, appear in the "Gold Diggers," the new Warner Brothers classic of the screen, which opens today at the Idaho theatre for a 2-day run. The picture is an adaptation of David Belasco's famous stage play of the same name which had a two-year run on Broadway.

A prettier group of chorus girls and more unique and attractive costumes for them could not have been found, we dare say, even if the entire country had been searched. And they dance and play right into your heart.

Frisco's Big Fop orchestra and a Stan Laurel comedy complete the bill.

First Copyrighted Book

The first book entered for copyright under the laws of the United States was "The Philadelphia Spelling Book."

It was held at the ball park and an admission charge of 50 and 75 cents will be made. A telegram was received Tuesday from the manager of the Utah team saying they would be here for the game.

Pay Cox, in charge of the Wild West bucking contest which will begin at 4 o'clock at the Lincoln field has obtained 25 outfit horses for this contest and the event promises to hold plenty of thrills for those who attend. It is planned to start at 4 o'clock and is expected to continue until 7 o'clock at least.

Mardi Gras
At the Mardi Gras which will be held on the paved street between Fourth and Sixth avenues on Shoshone street, a number of original features are planned.

This affair will be in the hands of Joe Kuchler who has planned a number of entertaining events. A prize of $5 will be given for the most grotesque get up at the Mardi Gras and a like prize for the most elaborate and most unique costumes. Music will be furnished by the Twin Falls band.

Fireworks to be set off at 7 o'clock. A man of considerable ability has been obtained to take charge. Fireworks will be set off on Washington avenue between Sixth and Seventh streets west. A. M. Peters, formerly with the fire department will have charge. Some new and unusual aerial bombs, sky rockets and other material is included in the fireworks received. At least and hour will be consumed in setting off the fireworks.

After this display there will be further free dancing on the pavement between Fourth and Sixth streets on Shoshone. Members of the committee of general arrangements are: Elmer Hollingsworth, Joe Kuchler and Kenneth Beach.

Special preparations are being made by hotels and restaurants for taking care of the large crowds that will attend.

WOULD INSPIRE YOUTH TO CIVIC BETTERMENT

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP)—Graduates of New York City high schools throughout the United States are being considered for the first award of the Alfred C. Bossm gold medalion, to be given annually for distinguished civic service, according to an announcement made yesterday by the cooperation in government committee of this city.

Public officials, leaders in welfare movements, soldiers, military aviators, actors and actresses are among those whose names have been forwarded to the committee.

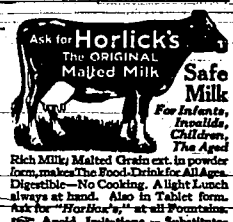

The gold medalion is similar in design to the Bossm silver medal, which for the last two years has been given to undergraduates of the New York city high schools who have distinguished themselves in the practical application of their studies of government in terms of service.

Candidates for the gold medalion, which will be formally awarded next fall, may live in any part of the country.

The committee which will make the award, realizing that within a few years the boys and girls of today will hold the reins of government throughout the world, seeks in this way to develop the power and ability of the younger generation for participation in government.

FLYING WET TOWELS ROUT LUMBERJACKS

A handful of wet towels swung rapidly about is an effective weapon. This is demonstrated by William Duncan, star in the great Vitaphone thriller, "Smashing Barriers," which will be shown at the Orpheum theatre today. Duncan uses dish-water-soaked towels to repel a number of lumberjacks who are bent on "initiating" him in their camp. This is one of the many startling, sensational scenes in the film of rough and ready life.

SIX KILLED, 17 HURT IN FAST MAIL TRAIN SMASH

CHICAGO, July 1 (AP)—Six persons were killed yesterday and 17 others injured, some of them seriously, when a fast mail train of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad plunged into the rear of the Burlington's Deaver to Chicago passenger train No. 2, near Budy, Ill., about 115 miles west of Chicago.

Railroad officials here declared that the accident was due to the failure of the engineer of the mail train to observe and obey an automatic signal which operated when the passenger train stopped at a coal chute. The passenger train was 40 minutes late and the mail was speeding to make up eight minutes. Most of the dead and injured were in the last five coaches of the passenger train. Two of these coaches were of steel and withstood much of the shock but the third coach from the end was of wooden construction. The coaches were knocked from the track and one of them landed partly across another track over which another train was about to pass. This train was stopped, however.

NEGOTIATIONS COMPLETE FOR THREE BALL GAMES

Cogill's Blues to Meet Salt Lake Opponents Fourth, Fifth and Sixth; Hard Struggle Looked For.

Negotiations were completed Tuesday for the Western Optical team, leaders of the Salt Lake City league, to meet the local Blues on the fourth, fifth and sixth.

Cogill has his team in fine trim and eager for the Salt Lake club which is said to hold its place in the Salt Lake league through their exceptional eyesight, their batting eye, so to speak.

Play, southpaw addition to the local club, is looked upon as the most favorable momentum for the opening affair and the result of the first game will largely determine the course of action.

The games are called for 2:30 o'clock each of the three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, on the city league ball grounds on Second avenue south.

CHURCH TEAMS CROSS SWORDS

Presbyterians Go Into First Place by Defeating Christian Lineup by 16-to-1 Score.

The Presbyterians went into first place in the interchurch league Tuesday evening when they whitewashed the touted Christian team who were forced to take the extremely small end of a 16-to-1 score.

Although the opposition has found fault with the numerous "triggers," so-called, which the Presbyterians have used, on this occasion however, the team was entirely composed of the Presbyterians who as a whole seem to be better players than the substitutes they have been forced to use on previous occasions.

A running "Concely of Errors" was placed throughout by the "Camelets," who seemed unable to get accustomed to their new suits which were inspired by the "Calvinists."

The game started with Cook in the box for the Presbyterians and three men came up and were retired. In the second inning Light, a junior high school athlete, took the mound and the performance was repeated. An error and a walk allowed the first two Christian batters to reach base and a quick play to third and a strikeout prevented them from scoring in the third.

Davis sent out the Christians' lone hit in the fourth inning, a double, and scored. Trueblood, who was caught at the plate. The last inning was hitless and runless for the Christians.

King Gets Homer. Trueblood opposed the Presbyterians at the opening of the game and after walking the first man up he allowed the next two to get on base with error and a single, and King, shortstop, did the cleanup act by pushing the pill over the right field fence for a homer. Another error followed by a double sent the Christians across the plate in this inning on three hits.

One inning was enough for Trueblood and Davis took the job in the second. The Christians tightened up noticeably and two singles, a base on balls and a double by Wallace scored two runs.

Presbyterian worked on Davis in the next inning, however, when Hills started off things with a single, an error and two more singles brought in three runs and Wallace once more wielded a mean club when he walloped the apple for three bases, King scoring Wallace with a double. The score stood 16 to 0 in favor of the Presbyterians.

Davis, too, gave up the job—in the fourth to Bevercome, who was found for two doubles and a pair of singles in addition to four runs which came in with the aid of errors, brilliant errors, on the part of the infield.

Gish Stars. Lyle Gish, the youthful Presbyterian pitcher, was the shining light for the winners with a batting average of 1.000 in addition to four strikeouts—Wallace, Davis, Hills and King. Gish's four trips to the plate was next and trying Cook was another whacker with three hits in four attempts. Hills reached the 500 mark for fourth place and Blue and King batted 500 each.

The hard hitting displayed in Tuesday's game is being counted upon to win for the Presbyterians when they meet Knoll on the Lincoln field for a game Thursday.

FLAG INCIDENT CAUSES STIR AT JAPAN CAPITAL

"I hope that no American believes this incident represents the sentiment of any thinking Japanese or has the approval of any member of our intelligent or responsible classes," Baron Haddara concluded.

The remnants of the flag, now in the possession of Charge Caffery, show that the flag proper was ripped with a knife from the canvas used whereby it was joined to the halcyons. Only the band was left, with a few clinging shreds of the flag itself. The police have forbidden publication of news regarding the incident in local newspapers.

The discussion in the house of representatives followed the introduction of a bill regarding the order of the day and permitting an interpretation of the government on the flag incident by Chiji Shimoaka, a time vice minister of home affairs and a leader of the Renzai, the strongest party in this parliament.

"The government extremely regrets the United States flag incident," Home Minister Wakasuki declared in replying to the interpolation. "The government will exercise precautions to guard such incidents in the future."

In his address on the subject, Shimoaka expressed the regret of the house of representatives that of such demonstration should have taken place. He asked the home minister to explain "in order to avoid any misunderstanding by the American people."

"The government has not interfered with proper expression of regret and repentance against the discriminatory immigration bill," Wakasuki replied. "But the government has insisted the police not to permit any repetitions of such incidents as the Imperial hotel affair (where ruffians broke up a dance attended by foreigners) which do not represent the will of our people. They oppose such outrages."

Special precautions were taken today evening to the demonstration following the making effective of the exclusion provision. A special squad of police was assigned to guard the United States embassy.

Two suspects were taken into custody last night.

Baron Shidechira called on Mr. Caffery late this evening at the embassy offices and officially tendered the regrets of the Japanese government for the apparent insult to the American flag.

U. S. MAIL PLANES MAKE GOOD PROGRESS

Candlepower lights which are used for forested landings.

At the main stations of the night service, Chicago, Iowa City, Omaha, North Platte and Cheyenne, there are 20 to 30-inch 500,000-candlepower electric beacons to flood landing fields and also lights outlining the field boundaries, the wind cone and all buildings or other obstructions. Between the main terminals are divisional fields from 25 to 25 miles apart each of these being illuminated, while carrying three miles between these fields are acetylene flashes on six-foot platforms.

The viators in the mail service work in relays, nine of them being used to carry a consignment of mail across the country. They are paid from $350 to $400 a month. The estimated time for the west-bound flight is 34 hours and 42 minutes and for the east-bound trip 32 hours and 5 minutes. The faster time eastward is due to prevailing favorable winds. If they keep to their schedule the planes on the westbound flight will complete their trip at San Francisco at 5:45 Pacific time tomorrow evening, while the east-bound plane will arrive at New York at 5:07 p. m., eastern standard time, tomorrow.

GERMAN TRADE UNIONS THANK BRITISH COLLEAGUES FOR HELP. LONDON, July 1 (AP)—The British trades union congress has earned the gratitude of the German general federation of trades unions for their moral and other help in strengthening the German workers against their employers.

A letter from Her Leipart, secretary of the German Federation, to their English fellow workers conveys "the hearty thanks of German trade-unions to the English trade unions for their willing and self-sacrificing help without which we certainly should not have been able, as we now are, energetically to oppose the employers in their attempts to lower the conditions of labor."

Everywhere in Germany, Her Leipart continued, the struggle for increased wages has been initiated and the attack on the eight-hour day by the employers. The majority of German workers still have an eight-hour day, and he is confident they will be able to re-establish it where it has been lost if an understanding with France on the basis of the experts' report is reached.

WORK URGED AS FEMININE TRAINING FOR MATRIMONY

BERKELEY, Cal., July 1 (AP)—The best training for matrimony a girl can get is by procuring employment for a while, in the opinion of Miss Cleo Murland, associate professor of vocational education at the University of California.

"As an apprentice school for marriage," said Miss Murland, "wage earning is an essential feature. Economic freedom of women is a determining factor in the length of the marriage period, in the stability of the home and in its maintenance. The self-respect of a woman, as well as her position in the family, is determined in part by her ability to be economically independent. More and more the daughter, as well as the son, seeks employment as soon as school days are over."

Miss Murland classified as the three distinct phases in a woman's development the time preceding marriage, the time of family responsibilities, and the time of middle age when she is released from these responsibilities.

She explained her views at a recent conference of educators. It was the conclusion of the conference that a girl should be educated both as a homemaker and as a potential wage-earner.

LATIN-AMERICAN HIGHWAYS

Thirty-eight engineers from twenty Latin-American countries are now in the United States as part of the Pan-American highway commission. They are studying American highway construction for the purpose of improving highways in their own countries.

Good roads are now considered as important as railroads in opening up new territory. An official of the Mexican government cites a new twohundred and seventy-five mile road which runs from the Gulf of Mexico back into the wholly undeveloped country. Other engineers express their belief that good roads in their countries will soon enable the automobile to replace the pack horse without any intervening period of wagon roads.

Good connecting highways in the United States came after the great railroads. In the neighbor countries to the south of us the highways are preceding a far-reaching railroad development. Railroads there will undoubtedly be, in addition to the few already constructed, but the highways will have led the way.

In their round-the-world flight,
American aviators are marking out air routes which will precede both railroad and paved highway. The need of communication between all parts of the world is developing at the normal process of development. It is well too, for air and land and water routes are first aids to the distribution of mutual understanding and good will as well as to commerce and civilization.

UNCLE DIGS UP BONUS MONEY

It was said, when Congress adjourned, that nothing could be done about paying the bonus, or even about preliminary for-payment, because Congress had not voted any money for the purpose. The urgent deficiency appropriation bill failed of passage in the final hurry of the session.

Yet the government is going ahead, just the same, sending out blanks and making ready to pay when the applications shall have been approved.

It is the old, familiar story of Congress passing the financial buck to the Treasury Department, and the Treasury managing, by hook or crook, to make good on the expenditures ordered and save the credit of the government. Always the Treasury, just like Father at home, digs up the funds somewhere when he has to, in order to meet expenses incurred regardless of the family income. It always has been so, and Congress, like a thrift-less housewife, or an imprudent son-in-law, has no objection.

It is no excuse, however for Congress. With the continuation of the budget system, that rather reckless body should learn better housekeeping.

A HAND IN REPARATION GAME

Only the most irreconcilable "bitter-enders" can object to the participation of the United States government in the forthcoming "premiers' conference" to discuss methods for putting the Dawes reparation plan into effect. This is giving government recognition to an obvious public desire.

The American participation in the work of the international committee of experts headed by General Dawes was of a private nature. Though unofficially approved by the government, it did not commit the government. But so great has been the public response to its work that it is impossible for the government to ignore the new reparation plan even if it desired to do so. The invitation from the British government was

"Well, one of those nights would be a good time for me to have some of the boys in for a little game."

"Just a quiet evening of cards," is the way he always describes the occasion, beforehand. But I hear somewhat different rumors from the neighbors after I get back.

"We didn't know what was going on at your house the other night, or, rather, morning," one of them will say to me, with an arch look. "We heard voices and saw a crowd of men in your living room about half past four."

"His young husband opened a night conservatory of music," another will ask. "We heard some wonderful singing in your house a little before sunrise the other morning."

And Hugh can never understand where these people get such foolish ideas. He always maintains that the boys played a little poker and went home early.

According to him, the neighbors could have heard a pin drop at any hour of the night.

I often wonder just how much of a compliment it is when my neighbors tell me how sorry they are to hear "I'm inevitable.

It is announced that participation will be confined to "such matters as affect the interests of the United States, and otherwise for purposes of information." That is a broad field, if liberally interpreted, because there are few details of the German reparation problem which do not affect the interests of the United States in one way or another. America has billions at stake, and the peace of the world may be involved. It is far easier to be represented in such a business than to have no representation.

BILLIE BROWNIE'S WALK

Of course Billie Brownie took many and many a walk. He made many and many a walk.

He was getting so he really felt very well acquainted with many of Mother Nature's children.

And almost all of them he could not help but like. Not that he didn't want to like any of them.

He always felt and after he had seen members of the mosquito family or the fly family or others who were mean and horrid.

He met Puss on his walk and Puss was walking so quietly.

"I have soft-padded feet, that is why," said Puss. "But I've excellent claws. If I want to be angry, as it is now angry."

"A dog can run faster than I can but he hasn't got my claws!"

Puss seemed to be quite proud of this.

Later on Billie Brownie met Mr.
Rabbit.

"I am in quite a hurry, Billie Brownie," Mr. Rabbit said. "And you will pardon me if I do not stop and chat for any length of time."

"I have an engagement with some carrots and I don't want to hurt the carrots," he said.

Mr. Rabbit wiggled his little nose and smiled.

"My hind feet are large and strong and so I can run very quickly in this way. I will be there on time. I can hurry up as because my hind feet are larger than my front feet."

"It is the same with the members of the Squirrel family. In the winter I can keep from slipping on the snow too because there are hairs upon the soles of my feet which act as rabbit skid chaps."

"What?" asked Billie Brownie.

"Well, not long ago I was sitting by the porch of a house and everyone said:

"Do look at that little rabbit.
Would you just say he was Heterinand taking in everything we are saying?"

"And I had taken it in too!"

"They had been talking about putting chains on their automobile tires when it rained so the cars wouldn't skid or slide about."

"They called these chains their skid chaps, I think."

"And so I call my hairs on my feet
skid chaps."

One afternoon Moyna and Joyce rode out from the canyon where the ugly little town lay hidden and followed the road down into the foothills. It was day of sunning, but back of the mountains hung a cloud that had been pushing slowly forward. In the peaks were already lost. The great hills looked as if the knife of a Titan had sheered off their summits.

The young women came to a bit of level and entered across the mesa in a race. They had left the road to find wild flowers for Lady Jim.

Joyce, in a flush of physical well-being, drew up from the gallop and called back in gay derision to her friend.

"Oh, you slow-pokes!—We win.
Don't we, Two Step?" And she patted the neck of her pony with a little gloved hand.

Moyna halted beside the dainty beauty and laughed slowly, showing in two even rows the tips of small strong teeth.

"Of course you win. You're always off with a hurrah before one knows what's on. Nobody else has a chance."

The victor flashed a saucy glance at her. "I like to win. It's more fun."
"Yes, it is more fun, but—"

"But what?"

"I was thinking that it's no fun for the loser."

"That's his lookout," came the swift repartee. "Nobody makes him play."

Moyna did not answer. She was thinking how Joyce charged the battles of matrimony by the door.

"No, but I've thought of something.
They say horses will find their own way home if you let them. Loosen
the reins, dear."

"Moyna spoke with a business-like cheerfulness, as if to herself, her cheerfulness. She knew it must be her part to lead. Joyce was as soft and about as competent as a kitten to face a

Moyna covered her anxiety with laughter and small jokes, but there came a time when these did not avail.
When Joyce faced the truth, she was less able to resist. The two helpless girls, with night upon them and a storm driving up, somewhere, not many miles from them, lay Golden-bears. There were safety, and electric-lighted rooms with great fires blazing from open chimneys. A shadowy man who gladly came into the night to look for them. But all of these might as well be a hundred leagues away, since they did not know the way home.

The big deep eyes of Joyce shone with fear. "Before I let her shuttled life, had she been brought close to Nature in one of her terrible moods.
From her soft round sobbing words leaped. "We're lost, Moyna.
We're going to die."

"Nonsense. Don't be a peevish," her downright. "I'm answered sharply.
"But—what shall we do?"

Scudding clouds had leaped across the sky and wiped out the last narrow line of sunlight along the eastern horizon. Every minute it was getting colder. The wind had a bitter sting to it.

"We must find the trail," Moyna replied.

"And if we don't?"

"But we shall," the Irish girl assured with a finality that lacked conviction. "You see, Joyce, I don't move from the spot. I'm going to ride round you at a little distance. There must be a trail here somewhere."

Moyna gave her pony the quirt and cantered off. Swiftly, she circled, but before she had completed the circuit she had covered the ground and obliterated any path there might be. With a heavy heart she started to return to her friend.

Owing both to the lay of the ground and the increasing density she could not see Joyce. Thrice she called before a faint answer reached her ears.
Moyna rode toward the voice, stopping now and again to call and wait for a reply. Her horizon was just beyond the nose of her pony, so that it was not until they were only a few yards apart that she saw Two Step and its rider. Both broncho and girl were sheeted with snow.

"Oh, I thought you were gone," I thought—your—never coming," Joyce reproached in a wail of despair.
"Did you think I'd be so late?"

"No, but I've thought of something.
They say horses will find their own
way home if you let them. Loosen
the reins, dear."

"Moyna spoke with a business-like
cheerfulness, as if to herself, her cheerfulness. She knew it must be her part to lead. Joyce was as soft and
about as competent as a kitten to face a cat."

"That's all right. She was a creature all curves and dimples, sparkling with the sunshine of life like the wavelets of the sea."

"No, but I've thought of something.

SETTLERS ASK DISMISSAL OF WATER DELIVERY SUIT

R. Glavin and Associates Apply in Court for Dismissal of Action Against Canal Company

R. Glavin and other settlers of the Salmon River project, through their attorney, Homer G. Mills, filed in district court here Tuesday an application for dismissal of the suit lately instituted by them against the Salmon River Canal company for court order requiring uniform delivery of irrigation water on the project on the basis of 1.57 shares per acre.

Application is made for dismissal of such action without prejudice.

In sustaining a general demurrer interposed by the canal company in this case, Judge T. Bailey Lee in district court at Burley last week, gave the plaintiffs Glavin and others ten days in which to amend their complaint in respect particularly to their failure to plead that they are the owners of any additional five-sevenths shares of stock or that they have accepted any leader of such amount.

Twelve empty sheep cars also left on the noon freight for Rogerson where they will be filled and shipped to the eastern markets.

EVIL OF DIVORCE SUBJECT OF OTT

Ralston Entertainers and Famous Lecturer Feature Sixth Night of Chautauque.

TODAY AT CHAUTAUQUE Afternoon—"Circus Day" Fair; G. W. Taylor, clown juggler, and ventriloquist.
Evening—DeKoven's Comic Opera "Robin Hood" by Val Ventrillo's Original Cast of 30 People.

Dr. Edward Amburn Ott, lecturer, par excellence, who spoke upon the present marriage and divorce evil and the ways and means of curing that evil, and the Ralston entertainers, musical artists of merit, were the features of the sixth night's chautauque at the huge chautauque tent opposite the city park Tuesday evening. Almost every inch of available seating space was taken at the entertainment Tuesday evening and the manner in which both Dr. Ott and the Ralston entertainers were applauded was ample testimony as to the worth of the features.

Declaring that the only way to solve the present divorce evil and unhappy marriages was to pass national laws which would regulate marriages in such a fashion that the changes of two persons marrying who were unfit for each other would be materially lessened, Dr. Ott held his listeners for approximately an hour with his talk on "Mour Grapes" which is widely known in America. One of the first laws needed and which should be a national law, he said, was a marriage annulment law which would require publication of intention to marry 30 days before the ceremony took place.

In this manner he pointed out parents of the two persons would be given ample time to teach eugenics, to the boy and girl and to ascertain to considerable extent whether or not they were suited to each other. Eugenics and heredity are two things, he declared in which he emphatically believed. He cited the present increase in crime, which he said was due to the raising of families by persons in whose blood ran the criminal tendency. One family he said had branched out and developed 1200 criminal cases while another family free of criminal type had developed none.

He urged that education be handed not necessarily through fine schools with many teachers and in mass formation but individually whereby each child would be examined and trained for life work along lines of which he showed natural talent. He likened the spread of crime and the divorce evil to the springing up of typhoid in a city which, he said, could only be stamped out by getting to the very source of the contamination and stamping it out.

The Ralston entertainers who preceded Dr. Ott on the program gave a delightful three quarters of an hour of music and imitations. The trio, consisting of Elizabeth Ralston, pianist, and cellist, Kathryn Ralston, mezzo soprano, pianist and reader and Irma Little Mary, violinist, were especially pleasing in their closing number, "On the Road to Mandalay." In an impersonation of the Duncan sisters, the Ralston sisters also pleased immensely as did Miss Morely with a number of violin selections.

Tuesday afternoon the Ralston entertainers and Hans Grathwell, "Spoken plug," and professional prompter shared the program. Mr. Garthwell's topic was "Getting by Your Hobbies." Mr. Garthwell told of what could be done through pluck and determination, and is a living example of the talk he gives.

which time a number of candidates were initiated. The lodge meets every Tuesday evening.
