

PROGRESSIVES TAKE STAND ON MANY ISSUES

Public Ownership of Water Power Urged in Party Platform; Would Create Federal Marketing Organization.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 5 (AP)—The text of the platform of the conference for progressive political action follows:

"1. The use of the power of the federal government to crush private monopoly, not to foster it.

"2. Unqualified enforcement of the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech, press and assembly.

"3. Public ownership of the nation's water power and creation of a public super-power system. Strict public control and permanent conservation of all national resources including coal, iron and other ores, oil and timberlands in the interest of the people; promotion of public works in business depression.

Taxation.

"4. Retention of surtaxes on swollen incomes, restoration of the tax on excess profits, taxation of stock dividends, profits undistributed to evade rapidly progressive taxes on large estates and inheritance and repeal of excessive tariff duties, especially on trust-controlled necessities of life and of-necessity taxes in consumption, to provide for the needs of the people.

"5. Abolition of the tax on the burden of taxation and compel those who profited by the war to pay their share of the war's costs and to provide the funds for adjusted compensation solemnly pledged to the veterans of the world war.

"6. Reconstruction of the federal reserve and federal farm loan systems to provide for direct public control of the nation's money and credit to make it available on fair terms to all and national and state legislation to permit and promote co-operative banking.

"7. Adequate laws to guarantee to farmers and industrial workers the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing for the improvement and maintenance of their standards of life.

"8. Creation of a government marketing corporation to provide a direct route between farm producer and city consumer and to assure farmers fair prices for their products and protect consumers from the profiteers in food stuffs and other necessities of life. Legislation to control the meat packing industry.

"9. Protection and aid of co-operative enterprises by national and state legislation.

"10. Common international action to effect the economic recovery of the world from the effects of the world war.

"11. Repeal of the Esch-Cummings law. Public ownership of railroads with democratic operation, with definite safeguards against bureaucratic control.

Counts.

"12. Abolition of the revenue and usurpation of the courts, insuring the practice of nullifying legislation in conflict with the political, social or economic theories of the judges. Abolition of injunctions against labor disputes and the power to punish for contempt without trial by jury. Election of all federal judges without party designation for limited terms.

"13. Prompt ratification of the child labor amendment and subsequent annulment of the federal law to protect transportation in industry. Removal of legal discrimination against women by measures not prejudicial to legislation necessary for the protection of women and for the advancement of social welfare.

"14. A deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the sea.

Foreign Policy.

"15. We denounce the mercenary system of detached foreign policy under recent administrations—in the interests of financial imperialists, oil monopolists and international bankers, which has at times degraded our state department from its high service as a strong and kindly intermediary of defenseless governments to a trading outpost for those in this and concession-seekers engaged in the exploitation of weaker nations, as contrary to the will of the American people; destructive of domestic development and provocative of war. We favor an active foreign policy to bring about a revision of the Versailles treaty in accordance with the terms of the initiative and to promote firm treaty agreements with all nations to outlaw wars, abolish conscription, drastically reduce land, air and naval armaments and guarantee public referendums on peace and war.

"16. In supporting this program we are applying to the needs of today the fundamental principles of American democracy, opposing equally today the dictatorship of plutocracy and the dictatorship of the proletariat.

"17. We appeal to all Americans without regard to partisan affiliation and we raise the standard of our faith so that all of like purpose may rally and march in this campaign under the banner of Progressive Union.

"18. The nation must grow rich in the vision of greater. The nation will grow great in the vision of service."

"(1) Resolved, that we favor the enactment of the postal salary adjustment measure for the purpose of the postal service passed by the first session in the sixty-eighth congress and voted by President Coolidge.

Both Birds and Animals Subject to Epidemics

Dr. Herbert Fox, pathologist of the Philadelphia zoo and head of the Pepper laboratory at the university, has written a book on the diseases of wild animals and birds. For the last eighteen years Dr. Fox has been studying the tenants of the zoological garden—the only place in the world where such exhaustive work has been done. Pulling a tiger's tooth or treating a humming bird for tuberculosis is all the same to this mapoof science, observes "Girard" in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Dr. Fox has laid bare many startling results. Among others he found that tuberculosis was the foe which swiftly depopulated monkey cages. Epidemics afflict birds as they do men. The inference is drawn that extinct races of animals and birds were wiped out by disease.

A practical result of Dr. Fox's search is that monkeys and other animals and birds may now live for a far longer time in captivity than formerly. And his experiments on the epidemics among birds may give the real clue for the startling and sudden annihilation of our wild pigeons.

BRICKS BROUGHT BISHOP INTO PROHIBITION FOLD

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—Brickbats were the chief cause of the conversion to teetotalism of the bishop of London, this prelate said recently at a public gathering.

"I was led to become a teetotaler in a fit of youthful enthusiasm 40 years ago," the bishop declared, "because I saw brickbats being hurled at women trying to hold a temperance meeting in a town I did not name. When I saw that these devoted people had the whole of the publisher in the place leaving bricks at them, I said to myself that a cause that wanted backing up with brickbats was not the cause for me. I have been a teetotaler ever since, and I am glad of it."

Religious Art Gems

While it is not literally true that all of the greatest paintings are of religious subjects, since there are many famous paintings that are not religious, of the following list of so-called twelve great paintings, ten are of subjects connected with religion: "The Last Supper," Leonardo da Vinci; "The Last Judgment," Michelangelo; "Descent from the Cross," Daniel da Volterra; "St. John the Evangelist," Raphael; "Assumption of the Blessed Virgin," Titian; "Holy Night," Correggio; "Communion of St. Jerome," Domenichino; "The Descent into Limbo," Vermeer; "St. John the Baptist," Vermeer; "The Transfiguration," Raphael; "Sortie of the Civic Guard."

Druggist's Witticism

The corner druggist was an easy-going chap and some of his friends used to criticize the way the store looked. One day he arranged a display of fibrous products in his front window, the exhibit comprising cichona, cinnamon, elm, massaras, wild cherry and so on. Then a dog climbed into the window and went to sleep. "Doc," declared a friend, "that dog is very much out of place in the window."

"Oh, I don't know," responded the druggist, easily. "It's an assortment of bark."

"Pop, you're wasting time here," said the magnate. "Come with me and I'll make you head doorwalker of my department store."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

GERMAN NOBLES SEEK LEADERSHIP OF NATION

BRESLAU, Germany, July 5 (AP)—A large part of the German people demand leadership by men who are not looking out for themselves, but who place the common weal above their personal welfare, is the import of a resolution adopted by a gathering of German noblemen held recently in Berlin. And in the next sentence the nobility modestly tells the world who can qualify as leaders: "Such leaders have been the German nobility, and they intend to continue to be such."

Every year representatives of the old noble families of Germany foregather in some city for a "nobles' day." They are convened by an elected marshal of nobility, who occupies a position something like that of a grandmaster of a lodge. In the days of the Emperor, "nobles' day" was a very brilliant affair. It is now arranged on a much more modest scale, for many of the noble families have been reduced to virtual pauperism.

That these circles are monarchical to the core goes without saying. Generally speaking, the change in their personal status brought about by the revolution has not tended to make them more democratic. On the contrary, their official organ preaches the doctrine, that now, more than ever, the nobility must stick together and demonstrate that their loathed blue blood puts them in a class by themselves.

THE GUMPS—A VOICE FROM THE TOMB

M'ADOO IS NOT READY TO QUIT BALLOT BATTLE

Requests to Withdraw From Nomination Fight Ludicrous, Rockwell Says; Sees 'No Chance to Talk Veto Power.'

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—William G. McAdoo has no intention of withdrawing from the democratic presidential nomination, David Lloyd Rockwell, his campaign manager, announced to night, previous to the conference of convention officials to find ways and means of breaking the deadlock.

It seems ludicrous, Rockwell said, to suggest that the high man, who has been the high man from the first to the seventy-seventh ballot, should be asked to withdraw.

Rockwell's statement was supported by other of the McAdoo supporters who either will represent McAdoo at the conference or be close at hand for consultation.

"This conference was not put up to me as a gun for the elimination of candidates," Rockwell added. "The purpose is to lay down some broad principle of procedure that may offer some solution of what appears to be a deadlocked convention."

"We have not a right to sit down and eliminate candidates. Likewise we are not meeting to deal out the nomination. The delegates were sent here to do that."

Have No Plan.
Representatives would go into the conference with an open mind and without any well defined plan to put forward.

Asked if McAdoo would be bound by any decision of the conference, Rockwell said judgment would have to be exercised on that question.

Mr. McAdoo's campaign manager said there could be no talk of one of the other leading candidates having a veto power in the convention until after there had been a "run-off" between Smith and McAdoo.

"There are candidates before the convention who have developed no appreciable strength," he said, "and yet they are holding away from McAdoo votes that will go to him. Until these votes are released, there can be no talk of the veto power."

FATHER FLANAGAN'S BOYS AT LAVERING

Entertainment at Theater July 7, Said to be Different Than Anything Before Shown in Twin Falls.

Advance notices of Father Flanagan's boys show, which will appear at the Laving theater here July 7, for being with the Epworthians at the forest an entertainment entirely different from the ordinary run of amusements.

Father Flanagan has some 280 boys at his home near Omaha, Neb., and from them he has picked those who excel in one or more lines of entertaining. Carefully drilled and coached in songs, choruses, recitations, dramatic sketches, etc., the boys are said to put on an evening's entertainment which excels many professional troupes.

They have given their performance in hundreds of towns throughout the middle west, and have been greeted by enthusiastic audiences in the states of Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Missouri, Illinois and Wisconsin. In nearly every city the hall has been filled long before the performance was scheduled to begin; and it is often found necessary to give two performances.

One of the most heart-touching numbers in the group of thirteen favorite songs rendered by the boys in chorus. Several of the solos are highly enjoyed each evening, while the duets frequently have to be repeated. The boys come with the highest of recommendations from prominent citizens of every state in which they have appeared, and as the performance is free a large attendance is assured when they perform here.

A boys' club which plays entirely by rule closes the evening's entertainment with a burst of real music. A matinee for children is given at 4:00 p. m. and no children are admitted at the evening performance.

Religious Art-Gems

While it is not literally true that all of the greatest paintings are of religious subjects, since there are many famous paintings that are not religious, of the following list of so-called twelve great paintings, ten are of subjects connected with religion: "The Last Supper," Leonardo da Vinci; "The Last Judgment," Michelangelo; "Descent from the Cross," Bartolomeo da Volterra; "Sainte Madonne," Raphael; "Assumption of the Blessed Virgin," Titian; "Tinted Night," Correggio; "Communion of St. Jerome," Domenico; "Aurora Breeding," Caracciolo; "The Sun," Guido Reni; "Immaculate Conception," Murillo; "Descent from the Cross," Rubens; "The Transfiguration," Raphael; "Sortie of the Civic Guard."

Druggist's Witticism

"The corner druggist was an easy-going chap and some of his friends used to criticize the way the store looked. One day he arranged a display of fibrous products in his front window, the exhibit comprising cichon, cinnamon, elm, sassafras, wild cherry and so on. Then a dog climbed into the window and went to sleep.

"Doc," declared a friend, "that dog is very much out of place in the window."

"Oh, I don't know," responded the druggist, easily. "It's an assortment of herbs."

A Find

A great commercial magnate was driven into a small candy store during a storm and spent half an hour watching the ancient proprietor attend upon the vagaries of a child who was thinking of spending a cent.

The infinite patience of the old man impressed him. Finally the cent was spent and the youngster went.

"Pop, you're waiting time here," said the magnate. "Come with me and I'll make you head foreman of my department store."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Why, no, John. I had no idea you smoked, and I wouldn't have told your father if I had known," she answered. "Well, maybe you didn't tell 'im, but some lobster did!"—Exchange.

GERMAN NOBLES SEEK LEADERSHIP OF NATION

BRESLAU, Germany, July 5 (AP)—A large part of the German people demand leadership by men who are not looking out for themselves, but who place the common weal above their personal welfare. Is the import of a resolution adopted by a gathering of German noblemen—held recently in Berlin. And in the next sentence the nobility modestly tells the world who can qualify as leaders: "Such leaders have been the German nobility, and they intend to continue to be such."

Every year representatives of the old noble families of Germany foregather in some city for a "nobles' day." They are convened by an elected marshal of nobility, who occupies a position something like that of a grandmaster of a lodge. In the days of the Emperor, "nobles' day" was a very brilliant affair. It is now arranged on a much more modest scale, for many of the noble families have been reduced to virtual pauperism.

That these circles are monarchical to the core goes without saying. Generally speaking, the change in their personal status brought about by the revolution has not tended to make them more democratic. On the contrary, their official organ preaches the doctrine that now, more than ever, the nobility must stick together and demonstrate that their boasted blue blood puts them in a class by themselves.

THE GUMPS—A VOICE FROM THE TOMB

M'ADOO IS NOT READY TO QUIT BALLOT BATTLE

Requests to Withdraw From Nomination Fight Ludicrous, Rockwell Says; Sees No Chance to Talk Veto Power.

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—William G. McAdoo has no intention of withdrawing from the democratic presidential nomination, David Lloyd Rockwell, his campaign manager, announced to night, previous to the conference of convention officials to find ways and means of breaking the deadlock.

It seems ludicrous, Rockwell said, to suggest that the high man, who has been the high man from the first to the seventy-seventh ballot, should be asked to withdraw.

Rockwell's statement was supported by other of the McAdoo advocates who either will represent McAdoo at the conference or be close at hand for consultation.

"This conference was not put up to me as one for the election of candidates," Rockwell added. "The purpose is to lay down some broad principle of procedure that may offer some solution of what appears to be a deadlocked convention."

"We have not a right to sit down and eliminate candidates. Inevitably we are not going to deal out the nomination. The delegates were sent here to do that."

Have No Plan.

Rockwell said the McAdoo representative with an open mind and without any well defined plan to put forward.

Asked if McAdoo would be bound by any decision of the conference, Rockwell said judgment would have to be reserved on that question.

Mr. McAdoo's campaign manager said when asked how he felt about the other leading candidates having a veto power in the convention until after there had been a "run-off" between Smith and McAdoo.

There are candidates before the convention who have developed no appreciable strength," he said, "and yet they are holding away from McAdoo votes that will go to him. Until those votes are released, there can be no talk of the veto power."

FATHER FLANAGAN'S BOYS AT LAVERING

Entertainment at Theater July 7, Said to be Different Than Anything Before Shown in Twin Falls.

Advance notices of Father Flanagan's boys show, which will appear at the Laving Theater here July 7, for the first time in the history of the town, are being distributed by the boys in the town.

Father Flanagan has some 280 boys at his home near Omaha, Neb., and from them he has picked those who excel in one or more lines of entertaining. Carefully drilled and coached in songs, choruses, recitations, dramatic sketches, etc., the boys are to put on an evening's entertainment which exceeds many professional troupes.

They have given their performance in hundreds of towns throughout the middle west, and have been greeted by enthusiastic audiences in the states of Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Missouri, Illinois and Wisconsin. In nearly every town the performance has been a success, and it is often found necessary to give two performances.

One of the most heart-touching numbers is the group of old-time Irish songs rendered by the boys in chorus. Several of the solos are heartily cheered each evening; while the duets frequently have to be repeated.

The boys come with the highest of recommendations from prominent people of every state in which they have appeared, and as the performance is free of charge, it is assured that when they perform here.

A boys' band, which plays entirely by note, closes the evening's entertainment with a burst of real music.

A matinee for children is given at 4:00 p. m., and no children are admitted at the evening performance.

JEROME

JEROME—July 4 was an ideal day in Jerome and one of the largest crowds ever seen throughout the day was present to celebrate. The street dance and dance at the Victory theater closed the best celebration ever put on in Jerome.

Other social affairs for July 4 was the picnic on the spacious lawn of the Frank Brock home west of Jerome, when the Appleton Improvement club members and their families met to enjoy the day. Games and races were enjoyed with the usual spread of good eats.

Mr. and Mrs. Lew Rawlings and family, accompanied by Miss Neva Wilson were callers on Mrs. Rawlings' parents in Murtough on July 4 and took in the celebration in Twin Falls.

ERRORLESS BALL HELPS BLUES TO WIN FROM OPTS

Perfect Fielding With Errors and Walks Gives Twin Falls Second Contest from Salt Lake Team, 14 to 2.

Playing errorless ball, taking advantage of the Optics' many errors and getting on base with Taylor's passes, the Twin Falls Blues demonstrated their ability by a 14-2 win over the Salt Lake also Saturday evening before an energetic crowd of rosters.

Hitting honors for the day went to the Optics with Lambourne leading with a double and a homer in the sixth inning. Ostrander was the man who stood out for Twin Falls with a single and a triple in three trips to the plate.

"Horseshoe" Mullins lived up to his name, with a batting average of .500 on two hits that were close, in four trips to the bat. "Flash" also secured three runs for the day.

Taylor, being the "mound" work for the visitors, held the Twin Falls batsmen for two innings with fair form, going to pieces in the third and fourth, allowing seven hits for the two innings, and again wailing himself together, allowed no hits in the fifth, but walked two men. In the latter part of the sixth he was replaced by a young pitcher, P. Miller, who showed the same tendency to issue passes that Taylor so ably demonstrated, and for the rest of the game he allowed Ostrander a beautiful line drive for three bases and walked three men.

New Man Gets Support.
Holly, Cosgriff's latest acquisition in the pitching line, was touched for scattered hits throughout the fray but was never very badly in the hole and was accorded splendid support by the whole team.

Features of the game were plentiful with the fielding of Lebrhan standing out as a remarkable feature along with Ostrander's running catch in the fourth inning of Peterson's high fly to the "thriving" line. "Two day" plays, as they were called, were made by Taylor for Twin Falls in the sixth inning, when Whitel caught Brown's drive and returned it to second. Mullins completing the play to first, and the second coming in the next inning, when Taylor Miller threw out Ostrander at second on a similar play which was completed to first where Richardson was waiting.

The Salt Lake club, which has been weakened during the series by the loss of many of the regular players who were unable to accompany the team, plan on a surprise return this afternoon pending the arrival of several players to strengthen the lineup, according to Manager Cosgriff.

General satisfaction was displayed with the umpiring Saturday evening. Sunday's game is called for three o'clock.

BOARD ACCEPTS HAULING BIDS

School Trustees Give Transportation Contracts to Shipman Brothers and A. Wellener.

Members of the Twin Falls school board at a special meeting held Saturday night in the superintendent's office at the high school, opened bids for the transportation of students living in the country to the city schools for the coming year. Seven bids were received and the bid of Shipman Brothers for the operation of four motor trucks and trucks of August Wellener of Twin Falls to operate one truck were accepted.

While no routes have yet been assigned which the trucks will cover, it was agreed that they would stay on the hard-surfaced roads and that approximately 300 students would be given transportation. Two trips will be made each morning and evening by the trucks. Amount of the bids accepted will not be given out at present. Pending the discussion of this plan was it was decided to hold the matter over for future consideration and the arrival of the new superintendent, Ernest D. Bloom, who takes the place of M. C. Mitchell. Mr. Bloom is expected to arrive in Twin Falls July 15. There have been no manual training or domestic science classes for several years.

nomination for county treasurer; E. H.
Sherman of Blinn, former sheriff, opposes S. Clark Stewart, the incumbent, for the nomination for assessor; Craig T. Bracken, T. E. Moore and J. A. Gallier are rival candidates for the nomination for sheriff; Don J. Henry, F. S.
Bell and J. L. Hodges are the candidates for probate judge, and P. J. Gross-man, the incumbent, is opposed by J. E.
Dewitt for the nomination for coroner.

Progressives.
Progressives filed no nomination for state senator, assessor, probate judge, superintendent of schools or surveyor.
The great bulk of the nominations filed Saturday were those of candidates for delegates to county conventions, president, committee men and precinct officials—just as of the past and candidates—all of whom also are to be voted upon at the primary elections.
Leaders of the three organized parties in this county put in a busy day collecting and filing a major portion of these filings.

In only a few instances were a great number of candidates for delegates filed from any one precinct in excess of the number allotted to the party in that precinct, the outstanding exception being noted in the case of Twin Falls precinct number five where nominations were filed for candidates for twice as many delegates as there are to be elected to the democratic convention.

MIDDLE WEST QUITE COOL.
Twin Falls Man Declares Weather Conditions Improved as Between East and West; Missouri Nights Cool.

Corn in many places throughout Kansas and the middle west has attained a growth of only eight inches due to cold nights and extraordinary rainfall, according to Dr. R. A. Sutcliffe, who returned from St. Louis, Mo., Thursday after a visit of some weeks.

"Of course I went to St. Louis prepared for warm weather," said Dr. Sutcliffe, "but I didn't find it." "It was cool, and at night it was, sometimes cold. I had a heavy suit with me and I found it comfortable during my whole stay. Even in Wyoming, on the other side of the mountains there has been heavy rainfall. The tops of the hills are green, indicating a heavy degree of moisture. It seems to me that weather conditions this year as between the east and the west are reversed. In the east they are getting the rain and cold nights while we out here have the heat usually to be found all through that section at this time of the year."

BETTER EYES

Many youngsters enter school with defective eyesight. Poor school lighting increases eye troubles, so that at the end of the eight or twelve school years there are more vision defects and more serious ones than at the beginning.

The Eye-light. Conservation Council of America has a program for the relief of these conditions. First of all, it suggests, homes must be better lighted, and this should be accompanied with intelligent and thorough supervision and care of the children's eyes. Here is work for lighting engineers and parents.

Again, school illumination must be improved. Much has been done in recent years to secure abundant and suitable light in public schools, but the problem is so far from solved that the Council does well to emphasize the continued need.

School children's eyes should be given thorough and careful examinations annually. This task need not be added to the overworked school curriculum, but the school authorities should be among those who insist that it is done by some means.

There is one other problem to be faced. The Eye-light Council recognizes it and describes it thus:

"There is immense inertia to be overcome and a vast amount of work to be done, principally of an educational kind, before much progress will be noted. There is available only a small number of workers."

When eyesight is conserved as it should be, there will be a big falling off in accidents and a big gain in general health and happiness.

WHAT'S WHAT IN HARVEST
MEALS.

Modern dietetics have invented the farm kitchen in which harvest meals are used to be prepared. Agents from the Kansas State Agricultural College are teaching farm wives what they ought to feed the army of men that has just started on the big summer harvesting job. The men themselves have not been consulted, and may have some kicks to make at first. But if the food specialists are right, the men are going to feel better and derive more genuine nourishment and strength from the modern meals than from the old.

Under the old regime breakfast was invariably pancakes, eggs, meat, fried potatoes and coffee. Dinner was still heavier, with pork, beef, chickens, more potatoes, rice, macaroni, pie, cake and coffee. Supper was almost a repetition of the dinner. Anyhow, who has ever helped cook a harvest hand meal or who has seen the food disappear, might be excused for believing that the assortment of viands was all that could be desired—until the new assessment was disclosed.

The new menu is to start off with a breakfast of fruit, cereal, eggs and coffee, with pancakes or potatoes occasionally substituted for the cereal and eggs. Dinner will be a gracious array of chicken or another meat, potatoes, a green vegetable—beans, corn, tomatoes, peas, spinach or enchilada—salad, bread pudding, coffee or iced tea. Supper will present macaroni and cheese, scrambled or boiled eggs, fruit, milk, a vegetable, salad and a cool custard or ice cream.

Certainly no one could go hungry for either system, but the 1924 menu appears to offer a more wholesome and less heating variety. At the end of the season a vote of harvest hands and housewives would probably be strong for the modern menu.

Breakfast Food
"Matrimonially Speaking"

By Hugh McKay.

My Wife Gets Me to Stop in at Stores to Bring Home Packages for Her.

That may sound like a very little thing to ask any one, and it is—until you start to do it.

In the first place, the clerks at the store where the package is supposed to be ready never hold of any Mrs. Hugh McKay. They tell me there must be some mistake, and look coldly off into the distance.

When I finally get a chance to talk to the manager, I find that, of course, my wife did arrange to have a package ready for me—but that somehow the order has been overlooked.

So the manager inquires if I'd mind waiting a half hour until they can get my stuff ready. He implies by his tone that a half hour couldn't possibly mean anything to me.

And I wait, and wait, and in exactly 48 minutes I get out of the store with my wife's package.

And when I reach home and tell her about it, she never can see why I get so worked up over doing a little errand like that.

AMERICA AND ART

Chattapin, the great singer-actor, interviewed in Paris after his highly successful American season, says of us:

"Ah, if that nation only employed in the domain of art a little of the skill and science which it devotes to business, what great things would be accomplished!"

To which an American critic replies:
"And this after the undeniable fact that America spends relatively more money on art and literature of all kinds than any other country!" Also that "if industrialism got a little of the free advertising that the basso profundo or the high soprano or the circus rider or the movie actress gets, it would know how to profit from it without slandering other pillars of the field of prosperity."

More fault can be found fairly with the American critic's comment than with that of the Russian genius. Chattapin is rated by those who know him well as not only an artistic marvel, but a genuine thinker. And taken at their face value, his words are not offensive. He recognizes in American great possibilities in the realm of art, but a lack there of the "skill and science" which Americans apply to business. Only take art as seriously as business, he says, and "what great things will be accomplished!"

Some day America will do that.
The day is approaching now.
But the shallow critic merely prates about the money Americans spend on art and the free publicity they give to artists—as if these were substitutes for serious application to the fine arts. And he makes it still worse by compiling the operative singer with the circus rider and the movie actress with the latest bag of tricks. Why not accept truth and profit by it?

Whale's Small Throat

The blue whale, the largest animal alive today, reaching a length in excess of 80 feet for a man's size, more than ten to twelve men could stand therein, has a throat, but about eight inches in diameter. This is one of the whalebone whales, all of which feed upon minute crustaceans, especially the little red shrimp which is about three-fourths of an inch long. As much as four barrels of this shrimp have been found in the stomach of a blue whale, which even then was not full.

May Marriages

The idea that it is unlucky to be married in May is not so prevalent as it was formerly, but the superstition still lingers.

We got it from the Romans, who apparently got it from the Greeks and brought it with them to Britain. It is a curious thing about this superstition is that it should ever have been originated; for the month of May in ancient times was dedicated to the goddess of growth and increase.

Lattitudinous Lids

Says an English paper: "Women are to be featured again—in dress, at any rate—and as manners are latitudinal, the women of the world will be found to be no less so. The women of the slithering darlings who were well-known to hide their blushes and criminalities."

We weren't aware that even Gains-borough, whose ladies were the limit, made 'em of that size.—Boston Treascript.

Road Was Coming

Small Edna was out driving with her parents one afternoon. She was much interested in watching the road.
After a while, as they began driving faster, she exclaimed: "Oh, look out, mamma, the road is coming!"

OUTGROWN CLOTHES

"It's too bad," said the dress which was so small now for the little girl who owned it and who had worn it.

"Yes," said the suit which was too small now for the boy who owned it and who had worn it.

"I am not regarded with affection as I go down from one to another."

"Nor am I," said the dress. "And yet I cannot blame those who do not care for me. I feel sorry for them and I understand that it is something which must be done but which is not very exciting."

"Then I am often laughed at. The one who has just owned me was not the first to own me. A man older than she owned me first and now I'm to go to a very little skater."

"I shall be too big for her and she will feel ashamed in me. But they will make a tuck—a thing I must not do—and they will say:

"It doesn't fit her but she will grow so fast it will be a very short time."

"But I've been laughed at lately as my owner put me on and I was way up on her."

"It wasn't my fault. She just grew. That was all. But they all laughed and said:

"Goodness, would you believe the child had grown so much.
Why that dress looks a perfect sight on her."

"Oh, it is rather hard to be outgrown clothes."
And the children particularly.

"But then I think to myself:
"Well, the grown-ups had to do the same thing when they were young, and when these children grow up they'll be doing the same with their children."

"So it makes it fair, I suppose."

"I suppose so," said the suit wearer.

"Oh, yes," said the dress with a sigh while she made a wrinkle upon its rather plain front.

"That Dress Looks
a Perfect Sight."

"I suppose so," said the suit wear-
er.

"Oh, yes," said the dress with a sigh while she made a wrinkle upon its
rather plain front.

ing glowed in them inscrutably. He knew her gallant suit approved him, and his heart lifted with gladness.

The beauty of her companion fascinated him, but he divined in this flash of the first of loyalty that this girl had character out of the commonplace. Her slender, vivid personality breathed vigor of the spirit wholly engaging.

Joyce joined her friends in the doorway. "With her cheeks still flushed from sleep and her hair a little disheveled she resembled a queen of a beastly crumpled rose leaf. Since her charm was less an expression of an inner quality, she seemed more than Moya the adventuresome lady of dress."

The young woman's smile came out warmly at sight of Kilmeny. It was his custom always to respond to the available man. Toward this bronzed young fellow with the splendid throat sloping into muscular shoulders she felt very kindly this morning. He had stood between her and trouble.

He was so patently an admirer of Joyce Seldon. And his own gaze the virility and good looks of him drew her admiration. At sight of the bruises on his face her heart beat a little fast with pleasurable excitement. He had fought for her like a man. She did not care if he was a millionaire. His name was Kilmeny.
He was a gentleman by birth, worth a dozen Verlanders.

"Mr. Kilmeny, how can we ever thank you?"

"He looked at her and nodded faintly.
"Forget it, Miss Seldon. I couldn't have done less."

"Oh, yes," she added softly, her lovely eyes in his.

No change showed in the tanned brown face of the man, but his blood moved faster. It was impossible to miss the appeal of sex that emanated at every graceful movement. Of this she was conscious, but she gazed from the deep still eyes in an electric current flashing straight to his veins.

He would have loved to touch the soft flushed cheek, the crisp amber hair clouding the convolutions of the little ears. His eyes were an index of the man, bold and passionate and unswayering. They announced him a dynamic American, one who walked the way of the strong and fought for his share of the spoils. But when she looked at him, they softened. Something fine and tender transfigured the face, and winced at his passion redoubled.

The pressing question before the house is breakfast. There are bacon and flour and coffee here. Shall I make a batch of biscuits and offer you my luck? Or do you prefer to wait till we can get to Goldenhank?"

"What do you think, Moya asked:
"I think whatever you think. We'll not reach town much before noon, if you can rough it for a meal. I should imagine trying out the new cook. It really depends on how hungry you are."

"I'm hungry enough to eat my honor," the Irish girl announced happily.

"So am I. Let's stay—if our hosts won't object," Joyce added.

"I'm quite sure they won't," Kilmeny replied dryly. "All right. A camp breakfast it is."

"I'm going to help you," Moya told him.

"Of course. You'd better wash the dishes as soon as we get hot water.
They're probably pretty dirty."

He stepped into the cabin and took off his coat. Moya rolled up her sleeves to the elbows of her plump dimpled arms. Miss Seldon hovered about helplessly and wanted to know what she could do.

"The minor had not, 'bathed' in the hills for years without having learned how to cook. His biscuits came to the table hot and flat, his bacon was done to a turn. Even the chowchow casted delicious to the hungry guests."

With her milk-white skin, her vivid crimson lips so exquisitely urged, and the superb vitality of her youth, Joyce bloomed in the sordid hut like a flower in a rubbish heap. To her broiled vis-a-vis it seemed that the world that morning was shimmering romance. Her father had been en-lured a breakfast-half as much. He and Miss Seldon did most of the talking, while Moya listened, the star fish in her eyes and the whimsical little smile on her lips.

"Joyce was as gay as a lark. She chattered at the children, artless-ness that at times veiled her sophistication. Jack was glad to understand that she loved to be natural and simple, that she detested the abasms of social convention to which she was made to conform. Her lovely eyes were watchful in their attentiveness as they met his. It was not wholly a pose with her. For the moment she meant all she said. A delightful expression fluttered her pulses. She was playing the game she liked best, moving forward to the first skirmishes of that sex war which was meant and drift to her vanity. The man at the table was as few men ever had.
That nothing could come of it beyond the satisfaction of the hour did not mitigate her zest for the battle.

They were still at breakfast when one of the Cornishmen—pushed open the door and looked in. He stood looking down at them suitably without speaking.

"Want to see me, Penic?" asked Kilmeny.

"Did I say I wanted to see 'ee?" demanded the other roughly.

"Teeter come in and shut the door.
The air's chilly."

The battered face of his companion loomed over the shoulder of Penic.
To Kilmeny it was plain that they had come with the idea of making themselves disagreeable. Very likely they had agreed to force their symphony upon the young woman for breakfast. But the sight of their dainty grace, together with Jack's cheerful invitation, was too much for their audacity. Penic grumbled something inaudible and turned away, shaking down his white hair.

The young miner laughed softly.
If he had shown any unwillingness they would have pushed their way in.
His urbanity had disarmed them.

"They're not really bad men; you know—just think they are," he explained casually.

"I'm afraid of them. I don't trust them," Joyce shuddered.

"Well, I trust 'em while they're under my eye. The trouble with men of that stripe is that they're yellow.
A game man gives you a fighting chance, but follow up this sort of while you're not looking. But you needn't worry. They're real tame citizens this morning."

"Yes, they looked tame," Moya answered dryly. "So tame I'm sure they'd like to crucify you."

"If darrest they would, but in this world a man can't get everything he pleases. I've wanted two or three dozens myself that I didn't get."

His gaze happened to turn toward Joyce as he was speaking. He had been thinking of nothing definite, but at the meeting of their eyes something flashed into birth and passed from one to the other like an electric current. Jack knew now something that he wanted, but he did not admit that he could not get it. If he dared for him—and what else had her eyes told him—in the golden glow of that electric moment—a hundred Verlanders and Lady Farquhars could not keep them apart.

His heart sang jubilantly. He rose abruptly and left the room because he was afraid he could not tell his feet to stop.

Joyce smiled happily. "Where is he going?" she asked innocently.

Moya looked at her and then turned her eyes away. She had understood the significance of what she had seen and a door in her heart had been open for weeks closed shut.

"I don't know," Moya said. "I thought he was going to get the horses."

A few minutes later he returned, leading the animals. From the door of the shaft-house the Cornishmen watched them mount and ride away.
The men smoked in silent agreement.

Before that had ridden a hundred yards, Moya had a gay talk with Kilmeny. She had forgotten the very existence of the miners. But Moya did not forget. She had seen the expression of their faces as the horses had passed. If a chance ever offered themselves they would have their revenge.

RAIL SHARES IN DEMAND

Believe Higher What Prices Will Bring—Boards Increased Prosperity—'Big Four' Leads Price Advance.

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—A brisk demand for the northeastern railroad shares apparently predicted on the belief that higher wheat prices will bring increased prosperity, featured today's half-hourly rise at the stock market. Trading was in good volume at the opening, but the market soon lapsed into a state of lethargy, the total sales being the smallest 34 any session since August 11, 1923.

"Big Four" led the advance in the rails by jumping four points to a new 1924 top at 129 and was followed into new high ground by Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred and Chicago Northwestern. Southern Railway established a record high for all time at 62 1/2 and then cancelled the day's gain on profit taking.

"While most brokers were of the opinion that politics is bound to have some part in price movements in the next few months, the prevailing opinion was the part of most of them to await the selection of a democratic nominee for the presidency before attempting to discount political possibilities.

All the successful pivot stocks closed at small fractional gains, United States Steel common at 104 1/4, Baldwin at 125, American Can at 144 and Studebaker at 34 3/4.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the further weakness of French francs, which fell about 10 points over night and closed the week just above the 5-cent mark. Dutch guilders jumped about 15 points to 37.7 cents on nominal trading and the other principal rates showed only minor changes.

Simply Meant He Was

Guest at Two Dinners

Burlington looked up from his desk, upon hearing a cheery "Hello!" and found himself looking into the face of Davidson, college chum-whom he had not seen for several years, says a writer in the Kansas City Star.

"Where in the world do you come from and what are you doing here?"

Then the two launched into explanations, and reminiscences of college days. After an hour or more, Davidson declared that he must be on his way.

"How long are you going to be in town?" Burlington asked.

"Oh, two weeks at least," Davidson replied.

"That's fine. Won't you come out to the hotel for dinner Sunday?" Burlington asked.

Davidson hesitated a moment.

"But I already have an engagement for Sunday," he said. "Can't you make it the Sunday following?"

"That's all right," Burlington agreed. "I'll see you again a week from Sunday, then."

"Oh, yes; but you'll see me next Sunday, too," Davidson told him.

"I don't quite get you," Burlington said. "I thought you had another engagement for next Sunday?"

"Sure, I have," Davidson repeated, "but it is also at your house. I called up your wife this morning and said hello to her and she invited me out for Sunday!"

Sees Earth a Desert

Were Birds to Perish

While man fondly imagines himself lord of all that is, which he lives in, he is actually nothing of the sort. True masters of this planet are the insects, and while man can easily hold his own against the beasts he is helpless against the insects. Helpless, that is, without the help of the birds. Few have the remotest notion of the plight of the insect world, which far exceeds in number of species, in voracity and in power of multiplication all other living things. More than three hundred thousand different sorts of insects have been classified, and there are tens of thousands still to be described.

Were insects left to work their will and multiply unchecked, it would be merely a matter of two or at the outside three years before all crops and all green things would be destroyed. That is a disaster.

Farmers and gardeners are constantly at war with birds because some species eat considerable quantities of grain and fruit. It is, however, essential to remember the fact that the food of birds consists mainly of the insects which are the first and the only force which swings the balance of Nature against the insect hordes.—T. C. Bridges in the Continental Edition of the London Mail.

Odd Fishing Ground

Amphiplex is a little creature that lives in the sea—and also in laboratories where he serves as a specimen to students of zoology. He is something like a fish and something like a worm, and is about two inches long. The Chinese eat him. This taste on their part has caused the development of one of the most extraordinary fishing grounds in the sea, located in the strait between the island of Amoy, in this limited area 200 fishing boats are employed daily from August to April in the dredging up of amphiplex which inhabit the bottom of the strait in enormous numbers. The average daily catch of the fleet is more than 800 tons. It has been calculated that this represents 5,000,000 individuals, and that the average annual catch amounts to 1,000,000,000 amphiplex. Since most of them are not caught, the number of this little creature on this stretch of the sea bottom may be better imagined than calculated.

Quite Satisfactory

There is an elderly artist in Washington who appreciates fine millinery, the Kansas City Star reports. His young married daughter, however, was practical domestic economy when a hat, a beautiful affair, arrived for her. He Marie from her devoted grandparent, whose eye had surrendered to this bit of baby apparel the moment he saw it in a department store.

"That hat is too extravagant for this family," remarked the young mother, "I like it, but I can't see how I can do it."

"Do let me see how she looks in it," he said. "And she did look lovely in it," said the father, "thank you. They gave me two hats, two dresses, a sweater and 40 cents in change for it."

His "Office Clothes"

Old Aunt Sarah was that rare creature, a perfect lamina, and the South family rejoiced in her, with the exception of Mr. Smith, who said that he did not approve of Aunt Sarah's lamina. So Mrs. Smith promised that Aunt Sarah should be spoken to in the name of Aunt Sarah.

"Auntie," she began, diplomatically, "you need not be so very particular about Mr. Smith's lamina; don't slouch them at all; just from them out promptly."

Aunt Sarah looked at Mrs. Smith reproachfully. "I don't begrudge him the work, miss. I want Mr. Smith's office clothes to look just as well as I can make 'em."—Kansas City Star.
