COOLIDGE'S SONGrave in Peaceful Vermont
Village Cemetery Receives Body of Younger Son of the Chief Executive.

PLYMOUTH, Vt., July 10 (AP)—In the little village cemetery where the maples and evergreens throw long shadows across the old tombstones on the hillside they buried Calvin Coolidge, 10-year-old son and namesake of the president, today. Restraining in a large part outward manifestations of their sorrow, the president, Mrs. Coolidge and John, the elder son, stood with bowed heads during the short, simple commitment services until a marino bugler had blown "Taps" across the grave.

The cemetery where Calvin was laid to rest lies on a little hill dominated by the green mountains which overshadow this village. In the family plot the mother of the president, ancestors and kinsmen and in the same grassy row where the grave was dug are spaces reserved for the last resting places of the president, John and his mother.

Officialdom Pays Tribute
Much official Washington, including eight cabinet members, the speaker of the nation's house of representatives, and the governors of two states attended the service. The party from Washington came in the closely guarded train which was halted at Northampton for services in the Edwards Congregational church where Calvin was a member.

After the last note of "Taps" had echoed away, the family group went for a short time to the old white farm house of the president's father, Colonel John C. Coolidge, where the president took his oath of office on August 3, a year ago. Then accompanied by the elder Coolidge, the little family, broken now by death, started on the journey back to Washington.

The funeral party upon arrival at the Ludlow railroad station, 13 miles away, halted as the six marines from the presidential yacht Mayflower, who had guarded the boy's bier constantly in Washington and on the train, carried the casket to a waiting hearse. Then the procession, more than a mile long, drove over the long road among the hills to the burial ground.

Walk Up Hillside to Grave
The party was forced to walk up the hillside to the spot where the grave had been prepared. After the marines had lowered the casket into place, a mixed quartet sang, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," and the Rev. Kenneth Wells, Northampton pastor who had accepted Calvin into the church, read a few short passages from the Bible, then offered a brief prayer.

Softly again the quartet sang "Save."

BLACKWELL, Okla., July 10 (AP)—A settlement was made today in the heirship case of Gregorio Carmichael, 14-year-old Filipino boy, who came to Kay county, Oklahoma, several months ago, to claim a portion of a $7,000,000 estate left by John Carmichael, whom he alleged was his grandfather.

The boy's attorney accepted a cash settlement of $30,000 and indicated the lad would return to the islands at once.

Carmichael came to Oklahoma with the claim that he was the son of Dugal Carmichael, an American soldier who served in the Philippines and married a native.

Dugal Carmichael inherited land from his father, John, but before he died he learned that oil had been discovered on the seemingly worthless tract.

BAR FOR EARLY
INAUGURATIONAssociation Favors President
Taking Office Soon as Possible
After Election.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10 (AP)—Election of officers, including Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes as president, and the adoption of a resolution urging congress to change the date of the presidential inauguration from March 4 to the third Monday in January featured the closing session today of the annual convention of the American Bar Association.

The resolution was submitted by William L. Putnam of Boston, and would have called for the inauguration of the president on the first Monday in January. In discussing the resolution before its adoption, William C. Coleman, of Baltimore, said the members of the bar association believed the president should take office as soon after his election as possible and that by moving the inauguration date of members of congress back to the first Monday in January "would give them more time to carry out the nation's business."

Draws "Poor Litigant" Law
Reginald H. Smith, Boston, reported that the committee on legal aid had drafted a "poor litigant" law, a statute, providing a substitute for the various state laws designed to assist the poor man who could not bring suit, and therefore could not enjoy complete equality before the law, if he were forced to pay in full the customary fees and charges.

The annual banquet of the association was held tonight, the speakers including Robert von Moschizky, chief justice of Pennsylvania; George B. Rose, of Arkansas; and Stone Devours.

Convention of Order.

BOSTON, July 10 (AP)—More than 40,000 members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, brilliant in many colored costumes, parading behind two score bands, brought to a climax here today the sixtieth annual national convention of the order which opened its session in this city on Monday. A brief but heavy thunder shower which brought relief from the heat drove both paraders and spectators to cover, but the long line of march was taken up again as soon as the sun reappeared. Governor Channing H. Cox, Mayor James M. Curley and Grand Exalted Ruler John G. Price of Columbus, Ohio, reviewed at different points the three-hour long parade.

Heat and humidity brought about the prostration of about 30 persons, one of whom, an unidentified man about 40 years of age, died on the way to the hospital.

Drill teams in multi-colored uniforms preceded many of the lodge groups. Historical floats, broke, in many places the long line of marchers. The Jackson, Mich., drill team, five successive times winner of the national Elk drill trophy, in red fedoras and jackets and blue pantaloons stood out prominently with well executed maneuvers.

Three live elk on a motor truck cage accompanied a small band of Idaho paraders. The contingent from Portland, Ore., wore the purple uniforms cut in the fashion of the Canadian mounted police. Texans in sombreros and chaps marched between Gloucester fishermen and colonial troops with three-cornered hats, long swallow-tail coats and knee breeches.

Out of Tangle.

LONDON, July 10 (AP)—The British prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, made a statement in the house of commons today explaining his recent visit to Paris and his discussion with M. Herriot, the French premier, on the reparations situation. It is evident from this statement that Mr. MacDonald has gone a long way toward settling French resentments and susceptibilities, even to the extent of temporarily giving up some of his own pet ideas in an endeavor to help the Herriot government ward off an initial attack by the Poincaré line in the French senate.

It had been agreed by the British ministers and Herriot to avoid the outcome in the French senate.

DAYTON, Ohio, July 10 (AP)—Completing what officers of McCook field said in a report today was a flight of the utmost importance to aerial navigation, Lieutenant W. H. Brookley and Navigator MacShort landed at the past late yesterday.

Lieutenant Brookley and Navigator MacShort flew from Dayton to Kansas City and return in darkness. Stops were made along the route, but all the actual flying was done in the dark, the actual flying being wholly upon their earth induction compass and aerial log, which is a new McCook device. The flights showed the reliability of the instruments beyond any doubt, the officers said.

CONFERENCE TO SENATOR LAFOLLETTE

CHICAGO, July 10 (AP)—Senator Robert M. LaFollette, endorsed for president last week at the conference for progressive political action, will not receive the support of the farmer-labor party, which held its convention at St. Paul, it was announced today, by the executive committee of the party.

The executive committee at a meeting today consented to the withdrawal of Duncan MacDonald of Illinois and William Boock of Washington state, its candidates for president and vice president, respectively, and endorsed the candidacy of William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow of New York, who have been entered as the candidates of the workers' party of America.

The national executive committee of the farmer-labor party in a statement said that the conference for progressive political action at Cleveland "had surrendered to LaFollette, betrayed the farmer-labor cause into the hands of merchants, manufacturers, bankers and rich farmers and thus destroyed the only chance for a united front campaign in the coming presidential election."

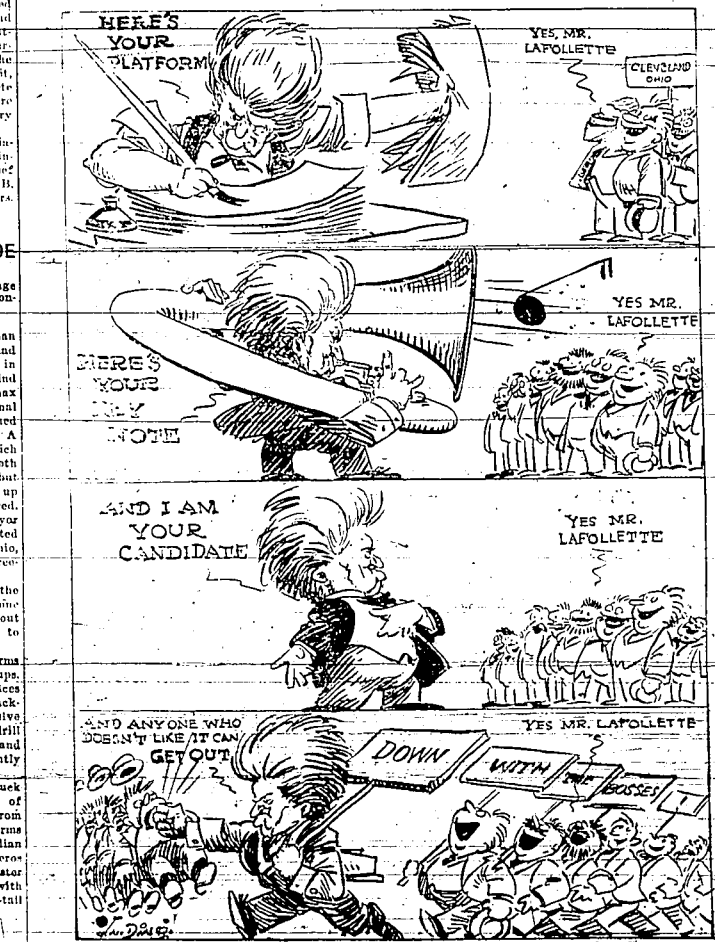

Admits Divided Front
The betrayal at Cleveland makes impossible any united front farmer-labor campaign," said the statement.

"It delivers into the hands of LaFollette and the propped middle classes, whom he represents, large sections of labor. It shows the complete surrender of the labor bureaucracy and the bankrupt socialist politicians which dominate the C. P. P. A., to LaFollette and LaFollettism. A united front in the campaign, therefore, becomes impossible."

Foster and Gitlow were nominated for president and vice president at a meeting of the national conference of the workers' party, attended by delegates from cities throughout the country. The conference was followed by a mass

PRECEPT AND PRACTICE

DEMOCRATS PUT
OFF FORMALITY
OF ORGANIZINGParty Leaders, Worn Out by Strain of Convention, Defer Detailed Preparations for Coming Campaign.

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—Eager to attack post convention details the democratic national committee found itself today unable to bring fagged wits to serious business and decided to put off the formalities of organizing for the campaign until overworked executives and party leaders caught up on sleep.

Tonight New York was a deserted village so far as the national convention was concerned. Hastily abandoned campaign buttons and multi-colored badges were heaped in various hotel repositories as evidences of the historic struggle. Weary, but smiling and, exuding optimism of a November success, the phalanx of delegates, alternates and advisers started homeward to tell the folks of the strong and able candidates resultant of the protracted labors.

Bryan to Stop in Chicago
The candidates themselves after a day of consultation and greetings—during which the presidential nominee was introduced to his running mate for the first time—prepared for a brief spell of organized and intensive rest. John W. Davis, already committed to a campaign "direct to the country," returned to his home at Locust Valley, L. I., with definite plans only for rest. Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, prepared to return to Lincoln, planning to stop off at Chicago for a conference with middle western leaders in the party.

Following the suggestion of Mr. Davis, the new national committee at a perfunctory first session today approved a motion to postpone organization and the selection of a new chairman until after the Davis notification ceremonies at Charlottesville, Va., probably in about three weeks.

Women Demand Equality
Women members of the national committee meeting separately, formally demanded through a resolution by Miss Elizabeth Marbury, national committeewoman from New York, that women have equal representation on the important resolutions committee in future conventions. The meeting also approved a resolution lauding the work of Mrs. Emma Blair, vice-chairman of the national committee.

No recommendations for a successor for Mrs. Blair were made.

The two hour session of the women members, presided over by Miss Caroline Baetz-Rees of Connecticut, was marked by several preliminary tangles and the flashes of colorful debate on the resolution also presented by Miss Marbury, limiting the authority of the women vice chairman in the matter of appointments and plans for the convention. That there were deep seated differences between members of the committee was denied by all.

ST. PAUL, July 10 (AP)—Farm leaders attending the preliminary sessions of the national conference of farm organizations at the McNary-Haugen bill here today recommended a second conference to be held in the near future at a point convenient to southern delegates.

The steering committee which recommended the second national conference believes that measures of such importance will be inaugurated at the conference which officially opens tomorrow that it will be necessary to take final action on them at a later date.

L. J. Dickinson, representative from Iowa, declared today that it is necessary that the farm leaders secure the support of either the east or the south to pass the McNary-Haugen farm relief measure.

Roar of Artillery

Brazilian DisorderRebel's Resistance Assumes
Formidable Proportions; Unrest Seen in Other Parts of Country.

BUENOS AIRES, July 10 (AP)—News from both Brazilian official and unofficial sources indicates that the situation in Sao Paulo, scene of the insurrectionary outbreak, is still very serious and that there is a great deal of unrest in other parts of Brazil.

Official statements today disclose for the first time that the operation against the rebels are being directed by the general staff of the federal army from a headquarters outside Sao Paulo. Judging by the positions mentioned as being held by the rebels and by the activities of the federal troops, the city is virtually under siege from the north and south.

There appears little doubt that the resistance of the rebels supposed to have been overcome Tuesday, has assumed formidable proportions. Heavy artillery bombardment continues and veritable warfare seems to be in progress.

So far it has been impossible to obtain either denial or confirmation from Rio Janeiro of the report that the state of Parana and part of the state of Rio Grande have joined the revolutionary movement.

Official statements emphasize, however, that "all the state governors have telegraphed to President Bernardes offering to send local troops to support the federal government." The situation in Rio is said to be calm.

DAVIS TO SEEK PERIOD OF REST BEFORE FIGHT

Democratic Nominee Confers With Running Mate and His Distinguished Brother, Reserves Campaign Discussion.

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—After a hectic day during which he surrounded good-naturedly to a throng of admirers and photographers who besieged him repeatedly at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, John W. Davis, democratic nominee for president, tonight escaped from an inundation of congratulatory telegrams, had a conference for about an hour with Charles W. Bryan, his running mate, and William Jennings Bryan and prepared to go to his country home at Locust Valley, Long Island, for a brief rest before taking up detailed plans for his campaign.

William J. Bryan, who had opposed Mr. Davis' nomination, and who again in a corridor of the hotel immediately after Mr. Davis' meeting with newspapermen this morning, Mr. Bryan held out his hand, smiled and said: "I am at your command."

Spends Busy Afternoon.
The nominee went to the home of Frank L. York, former under-secretary of state, and spent the afternoon receiving callers and answering some of the messages that poured in upon him.

In conversation with the correspondents, Mr. Davis did not discuss any of the issues of the campaign, explaining that because of the burial of President Coolidge's son today he preferred not to "get into the papers" much. He said that he would resign from his law firm, that he hoped to take a rest in the country, but that beyond that his plans were indefinite.

In the flood of telegrams which four stenographers at the Polk home sorted was one from Mrs. Woodrow Wilson expressing the conviction that in the democratic presidential nomination "the things Mr. Wilson fought for will have a worthy champion."

To Cut Celluloid.
Anyone who has tried to cut sheet celluloid knows that it is not as easy as it looks, says Popular Science Monthly. The best way is to make a deep scratch with a sharp scriber or the like, and put the celluloid by bending it sharply along the scratch. This trick is particularly useful when curved or irregular shapes must be cut.

Strength of Ice.
Science has enabled great military leaders to know when they might cross a river or lake of ice with comparative safety. By actual experiment and computation, it has been found that ice two inches thick will support a man; four inches thick, a man on horseback; five inches thick, a 50-pound gun; eight inches thick, a battery of artillery, and ten inches thick, an army.

Marriage in Papua.
In western Papua marriage ceremonies and rites are as wild as the people. A man may buy a wife with pigs, but he prefers to steal her or carry her off by raiding other villages. Then, amidst the abominable mud and she is given an abode wherein to dwell. Hubby would never dream of living with his wife and children. He prefers to live in the vast clubhouse, called a rava, which is set apart exclusively for married men.

Must Cultivate Food.
The common impression that the food of Samoa Islanders "falls in their laps" is quite wrong, says Prof. W. A. Setchell of the University of California. There are few edible plant products obtained there without regular attention. Every native village has its plantation where the famous bread fruit, bananas and coconuts are raised. The plantations are generally in forest clearings and are allowed to grow up in all sorts of weeds.

"Of First Water"
This means that the diamond has the highest degree of purity and fineness. When we say a diamond or other precious stone is the first water it denotes that the gem is free from all traces of color, inclusions, flaws or other imperfections, and that its brilliancy is perfect.

Road to Success
Men are best measured by what they do, not by what they say. The bigger the man the bigger the obstacles he overcomes to be great. Success lies in fitting oneself to the job, not in trying the job to capabilities and abilities as they are—Pennsylvania Grit.

Questions Need Answers

Sanford Martin of Atwood, Kansas, on Third Transcontinental Trip, Stops to Visit Brother in Kimberly.

KIMBERLY, W. S. Martin was pleasantly surprised Tuesday morning when his brother, Sanford Martin, and Jack Darling of Atwood, Kan., who are on route to San Francisco, dropped in on him for a short visit and to renew old acquaintances among his former Nebraska friends. Mr. Martin has made transcontinental trips traveling in early days with a horse and wagon, modernizing his mode of travel today by using a fully equipped Ford. Many places of interest have been visited on their trip west and one worthy of special mention was his driving the Pony Express over the old Oregon Trail in the year 1880, between the Goose creek country and the town of Shoshone. Mrs. W. R. Martin entertained at a salmagundi supper Wednesday evening in honor of her brother-in-law and friend for the following guests and relatives: Sanford Martin and Jack Darling, Mr. and Mrs. Will Wright and family, and Mrs. E. Odor of Paint

After a room has been painted, an excellent way to remove the smell of the paint is to place a pail of water, to which have been added a few slices of raw onion, in the room and leave it there overnight. Keep the doors and windows closed and the smell will be entirely gone by morning.

Laus of Divorce

In Australia divorces have never been sanctioned, and they are scarcely ever heard of in modern Greece. In Tibet they are not allowed except by consent of both parties, and then redivorce is forbidden. On the other hand, in Cochinchina, the parties desiring a divorce break a pair of chopsticks in the presence of witnesses, and the thing is done.

Engineers

At the present time there are about ten well-defined classes of the most important engineers. They are: Civil, mechanical, electrical, chemical, sanitary, hydraulic, railroad, highway, navigation and military. There are numerous other branches of engineers which shade off into the business lines, such as economic engineers and efficiency engineers.

Protecting Currency

The sheets of paper on which bills are printed are delivered daily by the loans and currency division of the treasury to the office of the secretary, upon requisition. From the time the blank sheets are delivered by careful count until 30 days later when the bills are sent to the treasury to have the seal printed thereon, the bureau must account for every sheet in its hands.

Facts About Circus

The American circus as a business venture dates from the days of its invention when it first appeared in 1789 on Boston Common. The first circus to take to the road was founded by Aaron Turner about 1820 at North Salem, N. Y., and the first of the long-lived American circuses pitched its tent in 1824 and bore the name of John Robinson.

Fog Buoy Mechanism

Buirs from Chinese gongs are stretched across a wooden frame in the mechanism of a fog buoy. The fog rolling in on the coast expands the strands of hair. This elongation of the buirs is sufficient to set in operation automatic fog bells, sirens and whistles, warning vessels off the rocks. When the fog recedes, the hair strands dry out and contract, close the valve, shutting off the signals.

CROPS DEPEND ON IRRIGATION

Only Idaho Regions With Adequate Water Supply Escaping Damage From Drought.

Only regions with adequate irrigation water supply are escaping severe crop damage from continued drought, according to a weekly summary of weather and crop conditions in Idaho for the week ending last Tuesday, just issued by Clinton E. Norquest, meteorologist for the United States weather bureau at Boise.

Regarding the conditions in south-west Idaho, the summary says:

Southwest Idaho—Scattered thunder-showers occurred in a few localities, but for the most part the drought continued unbroken. The warmest weather of the season was experienced during the first half of the week. The closing days were pleasant. Intense sunshine and occasional hot drying winds affected most vegetation adversely, particularly in the dry far meadows and those irrigated districts where the water supply is short, but corn and potatoes where well watered, grew rapidly. The cereals, which were ripening and ripening, were shriveling by the heat in many localities. The low range has dried so rapidly that livestock are being forced into the high range much earlier than is usual. Apples and prunes are developing rapidly. In the Twin Falls section beans were damaged by heat in some fields and sugar beets were injured by cut worms and the fly.

Rains in Southeast.

Southeast Idaho—The first of the week was hot and dry, but the last three days were cooler with light to heavy rains which were beneficial to crops generally. Near Fort Hall the main irrigation canal was broken by severe local rains. The first cutting of alfalfa is about completed in the southern counties and well under way in the rest. Second growth alfalfa is doing well where irrigated. Winter wheat and oats are fair to good on irrigated land and poor on dry land, being burned out in places. Peas are making good growth. Beans are doing well but some stands are reported in places. Peas are making good growth. The ranges are generally dry and short. Cattle are holding their own. Apples are fair in Bingham county.

Heat Hurts North's Crops.

North Idaho—High summer temperatures prevailed through the week to and including Saturday; afterward cooler weather obtained. The intense heat, with frequent hot winds, has damaged all grains and practically stopped the growth of all vegetation. Wheat harvest is getting under way over most of the district. Much of the wheat in the panhandle is being cut for hay. Barley and oats are being cut. Both are short and generally light. Pastures are dry and range feed scarce except along streams. Cherry harvest is completed. The yield was light but generally better than expected following the heavy spring frosts and unfavorable weather. Apricots, peaches and berries are being harvested. Irrigation water is low and will be short of actual needs unless copious rains come soon.

Notes From the Field.

Boise, Ada County—Crops are doing well where thoroughly irrigated. The continued heat has done some damage in spots.

Twin Falls, Twin Falls County—A hot week with just a sprinkle of rain; all crops doing fine except beans and beets; cut worms and fly working on beets. The heat blighted some beans; only 50 per cent water but no crops suffering.

Buhl, Twin Falls County—Hot and dry; minimum temperatures above normal, spite of irrigation water shortage; crops in general look good, with exception of sugar beets and early planted beans, which are total failures; beets on account of white fly and beans on account of late frost; late beans are promising.

AMERICANS WIN NEW HONORS AT OLYMPIC GAMES

Tootell, Boston, Takes Hammer Throw, Barnes, California, Pole Vault; Fleet Finn Breaks Two Run Records.

BLUES TO MEET STRONG SQUAD

American Falls Team Reputed to Be Stronger Than Generally Supposed.

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Colombes, France, July 10 (AP)—Within two hours this afternoon Paavo Nurmi, Finland's great distance runner, raced to spectacular victories in the 1500 and 5000 meter events, breaking the Olympic records at both distances and winning an Olympic triumph such as no individual has ever achieved before.

Nurmi captured the 1500-meter run against a fine field in 3 minutes 53.3 seconds, clipping of 3.15 seconds from the old record but falling by two-fifths of a second to equal his own world record. He won the 5000 meters from his fellow countryman, Wille Ritala, in 14 minutes 31.5 seconds, beating both the Olympic and the world record by several seconds.

But even this super triumph of Finland's greatest ace could not turn the onward march of the United States for the Americans demonstrated vast superiority in the pole vault and hammer throw, the remaining finals of the fifth day of competition, and lengthened their mounting point lead over the rival Scandinavian nation in the duel for international athletic supremacy.

Americans Share in Glory
The glory which went in double measure to Nurmi was also shared for the day by two young Americans, Fred Tootell, Boston A. A., who captured the hammer throw by a decisive margin from his countryman, Matt J. McGrath, New York A. C., veteran of four Olympic games, and Leo Barnes, the 17-year-old California high school boy, who won the pole vault laurels in the jump off with his coast rival, Glenn Graham, after they had tied for first place at a height of 3.95 meters (12 feet 11 1/4 inches) which equaled the Olympic record.

NEW YORK TIES WITH SENATORS

First Place Honors Shared as Tigers Take 13-Inning Battle; Indians and Reds Win.

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—Washington lost clear claim to the American league leadership today for the first time since it attained that position on June 24 by losing the first game of a double-header to Detroit, 12 to 10, after 13 innings. The defeat sent the Senators into a first place tie with New York, which won two games from Chicago. More than four hours were needed for the first game and the second went only five innings to a 3-0 score because of darkness.

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—The New York Yankees climbed to the American

Reports indicate that Congriff's Twin Falls Blues will meet a stronger team than is generally supposed when they cross bats Sunday with the American Falls nine at the local diamond.

The visitors Sunday come with a better record than the Blues have made lately. They come with a long string of victories over practically all of the fast teams in eastern Idaho and have but one defeat, this being administered by the Pocatello Bears who have proved to be the nemesis of the Blues on four memorable occasions.

The Blues were lucky to get off with the largest of 4-3 score from American Falls today, and this, it must be admitted, speaks well for the pitching force which the visitors will use Sunday.

Local workouts daily by the Twin Falls Blues have engendered the opinion of the Blues are now in mid season form.

Plenty, the Blues moundman, is in the best of condition for the game Sunday as a result of an auto accident Thursday when a collision of two cars, one of which he was riding, threw him to the ground. No bones were broken and with the exception of several bruises the Twin Falls' moundman will be ready to go Sunday.

CHRISTIANS TRIUMPH OVER KNULLITES, 7-3

Once again Knoll met defeat when they faced a team from the church league. This time it was the Christians who gave the Knullites the small end of a 7 to 3 score in a game in which double plays and hard hitting featured. The score does not indicate the really good fielding and all around playing demonstrated by both teams. Double teams on several occasions by both teams drew applause from a fairly large group of fans.

Elmer Adkins, pitcher and infielder for the visitors, was a casualty Tuesday evening when he sprained his ankle sliding into second base. This is the second annual injury of this sort for the church league.

He Didn't Fit

A new reason for being excused from jury duty was offered recently to a California court. Eleven jurors had been accepted and sworn in. The twelfth man glanced at the already well-filled box where the other jurors were seated and objected that he was fat, and that there was no room for him to sit. The objection was accepted as valid. The fat man was excused and a thin one was sworn in—YOUTH'S CHAMBERLAIN.

Actors' Superstition

When a train from London to Aberdeen was halfway across the Forth bridge all the members of a theatrical party traveling in it threw coins from the windows into the river. Asked for an explanation, one of their number said they were prompted by a superstition common among actors and actresses going to Scotland—London Tit-Bits.

YOUNG WOMAN FALLS TO DEATH IN ELEVATOR SHAFT

KANSAS CITY, July 10 (AP)—Miss Blanche Pearce, 27, milliner, plunged to her death accidentally Monday night down the freight elevator shaft of a local hotel, according to testimony presented at the coroner's inquest here today. For some unexplained reason, Miss Pearce left the three-room apartment of William Skiff and "Toto" Stett, Kansas City baseball players, on the tenth floor of the hotel, during the course of an informal party. Her body with back broken later was found at the bottom of the shaft.

WEATHER CAUSE OF BEAN BLIGHT SAYS STATEMENT

Plant Pathologist Says Hot Weather Weather Starts Fungus Growth; Conditions Relieved at Present

Following an examination of bean fields Thursday, J. M. Baeder, plant pathologist of the University of Idaho, declared that the disease is of a fungus origin and is closely allied to the fungus causing wilt in potatoes. This disease occurred in the past, but clearing up now in the west and where it was most largely noticed, is said to have been brought on to a large extent by hot, dry weather conditions and is being relieved by cooler weather now and by irrigating.

In a statement issued Thursday, Mr. Baeder, who with county agricultural agent R. E. Brossard, has been busy investigating the disease, said: "The trouble is the result of a combination of conditions. The primary cause is of a fungus origin, enhanced by weather conditions."

"The fungus causing the trouble is closely allied to the fungus causing wilt in potatoes but is not the same as that which causes potato wilt. The organism causing the bean trouble is known as fusarium. This particular organism demands hot dry conditions for its greatest activity, such as those which existed during the past week. If the temperature is reduced, and the moisture increased conditions are produced which are exactly opposite to those demanded by the organism, for its greatest activity. Bear in mind the trouble is not entirely exterminated, but it is greatly reduced."

"Observations made today bear out this conclusion. When the organism was most active, the thermometer registered above 100 degrees Fahrenheit and there was practically no moisture in the soil. Since then the temperature has lowered and the growers are now irrigating, thus producing conditions detrimental to the activity of the fungus."

"How did the fungus get into the fields? Was it introduced on the seed or in the irrigating water? Probably neither of these was the source of the contamination. It was already present in the soil, and ideal conditions for the growth of the fungus occurred, together with the presence of a susceptible host."

"Since the fungus causing the trouble is a soil organism, seed treatment, or spraying of the growing crop will not control the trouble. Keeping plants in the soil moisture in the soil will tend to control the trouble, for such soil is much cooler than soil containing less moisture."

"Observations made today seem to show that many of the fields affected are recovering since the advent of cool weather and the application of water. As a result, the loss resulting was thought to be quite great, will, after all, be quite small. No exact estimate can be given, but the loss in the tract shows quite a thrifty appearance."

FOSTER AND GITLOW HEAD FARMER-LABOR TICKET

meeting of members of the workers' party, where the decision of the conference was announced. Cheering followed the announcement which was made by C. P. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the workers' party.

Bakes Cleveland Platform

Ruthenberg in addressing the mass meeting declared what he termed a lack of interest in the working classes. The platform adopted at the Cleveland meeting was for the workers and a majority of farmers, he said, but for the small industries, the professional class and well-to-do farmers.

Every mention of communism brought cheers from the audience which filled the hall.

The program of the workers party, as announced, is to run candidates nationally and locally. A campaign to raise $50,000 to carry on the campaign is to be started.

Candidates Record's Traced

Foster headed the unsuccessful attack in 1918 and since that time he has actively opposed many of the policies of Samuel Gompers and other leaders of the American Federation of Labor.

Foster and Ruthenberg were indicted in Michigan for violation of the anti-sedition law in connection with holding of a communist meeting in the sand hills of Lake Michigan.

Recently Foster has headed the Trade Union Educational League, a communist organization.

Gitlow, in 1919 was sentenced to ten years imprisonment in connection with communist activities and served three years. He is now out on bond pending appeal.

The Contrary

To was an argumentative local attorney, and was crushing an opponent's case. "Gentlemen," said the attorney, "this is a case of six or one and half a dozen of the other. But I say, No," pause for emphasis. "No; it is nothing of the sort. It is exactly the contrary."

Not Cumulative

Any ordinary man can make a fortune. The hard part is to refrain from converting each week's installment as was the case of the Dutch merchant.

G. O. P. WOMEN EFFECT COUNTY ORGANIZATION

Meeting at District Courtrooms Attracts Many Elect Officers and Hear Address.

Twin Falls county republican women at a meeting held Thursday evening at the district court rooms formed the first permanent republican county women's club in Idaho and elected Mrs. H. W. Clouche, chairman; Mrs. R. A. Reed, vice chairman; Mrs. H. J. Young, secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. Burton Moore, parliamentarian.

The election of officers and the adoption of by-laws at the meeting, which was presided over by Miss Gladys Terhune, recently appointed national republican committeewoman for Idaho, was followed by an address by Judge T. Bailey Lee of Butte and Mayor Shad Hodgdon of Twin Falls. In addition to adopting by-laws and electing officers it was voted to elect a vice chairman in each district who would act with the other officers as an executive committee.

Judge Lee outlined the policies of the G. O. P. and told of efforts made to reduce taxes through the limiting of tax-exempt securities by law. He also spoke on the tariff and the policy the republicans have outlined along this line. He was followed by Mayor Hodgdon, who told of the franchise to women in 1890 and of their efforts to take the matter to the supreme court, where that tribunal held that there were sufficient votes for the amendment and that it should be adopted. Miss Terhune also addressed the women and discussed the policies the republican party generally. She told of the ideals of the republican party.

COURT ROOMS CAN NOT BE USED FOR MEETING

County Commissioners Decide to Uphold Ruling Made by Former Board; Causes Extra Expense, They Say.

Further political meetings at the courthouse will not be permitted, it was announced last Thursday by Twin Falls county commissioners. Several years ago, the commissioners said, the use of this sort was made and the unanimous decision was made at a meeting at the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce was given to it. The announcement comes as the result of the republican women's meeting held here Thursday evening, for arrangements were made some before the commissioners had decided upon what course to take with respect to such meetings. This ruling was made in the first instance, the commissioners said, as a means of saving expense and to avoid the certain ruling of a junior court is required as a result of a meeting, they said.

Eagle Always Admired

From the most ancient times the eagle has been universally regarded as the emblem of might and courage.

It was associated with Jupiter in the mythology of the ancients, and the standards of the national emblems of the United States, Germany and Russia. The eagle was adopted by the United States in 1783.

Fatalism

Fatalism is the belief that all events are always prearranged and determined by fate, including either divine will or physical nature as the underlying force. In other words, a fatalist is disposed to accept every event in human life or in nature as prearranged and controlled by fate, thus eliminating freedom of will.

POLITICAL MILITIAS

Nothing in the revelation growing out of the murder of a senator opposed to Italian Fascism has been more impressive than the frank admission of the source of Fascist authority.

That source, as Mussolini admits, has been the 300,000 black-shirted militia privately recruited and drilled by him, and kept as his personal possession. Now, had pressed by his enemies and weakened by the exposure of crimes attributed to the Fascists, Mussolini has consented to let his troops take the oath of allegiance to the king, and has promised other reforms.

But it seems that Mussolini is not the only Italian leader resorting to such means. A leading opposition newspaper, echoing the demand of all the opposition parties in the Italian parliament, insists upon "total abolition of all party militias."

Fortunately we have never had anything like that in the United States, and are not likely to have. This country is fortunate in possessing more respect for its Constitution than is shown by any other republic or constitutional monarchy in the world.

UNCLE SAM'S HOROSCOPE

Newspaper editors, as a rule, do not take astrology very seriously. The stars may guide human events and determine the news, for all an editor knows, but he is content to take the news as it comes, and get it into print as promptly as may be, without prying too deeply into occult explanations. Nevertheless, a "wildly published" daily horoscope for the date of July 4 seems to invite comment, as a matter of public interest.

"Those whose birthday it is," says
the horoscope, "may expect a lively and prosperous year, with increase of wealth and plenty of new business."

Now, isn't that rather reassuring, whether you believe in astrology or not? The Fourth, as everybody knows, therefore, may properly be applied to Uncle Sam's birthday. The horoscope of the fortunes of the American people for the next twelve months. And possibly the astrologer responsible for this forecast knows as much about it as the more prosaic dopesters who write for the financial column.

"A lively and prosperous year," not nothing as it is! And really, a lively, certainly, with the political uncertainty, open-minded, materialistic review of economic conditions tends to uphold the "stars" in their mystic revelations about coming prosperity.
Business, never very bad, has been picking up lately, and there is ground
for expecting a big gain in the fall,
with plenty more "new business"
abroad if the reparation plan works
out according to program.

There is the caution, however, in this same horoscope, that Uncle
"should give sufficient attention to important changes of journeys and not take undue risks." The stars can't do everything themselves.

VACATION BOOKS

A queer notion has sprung up that the human mind, during a vacation jaunt, can attend to nothing in the reading line—no light fiction. A book-keeper who happens to be also a book-reader and book-lover is disgusted with that notion.

says, "may be ideal for a night on the train or for a week-end, but for a longer period I recommend something more leisurely and worth while.

She's always getting ambitious

I ought to do but never seem to get time for. She seems to take a special delight in showing me up in this way.
But unfortunately she always pays up for it in the end. And I do a little paying myself, too.

For instance, the floor in one of our third-story rooms has needed painting for at least six months. And I've been postponing the job for that long. So last week she bought some paint and did it herself.

But during the operation she got erecting a cloud for attention. Everyone has at least one such book that he has meant to read "someday." Vacation is that time. So why, oh why, waste precious vacation time on trash?

Being a constructive critic, this bookkeeper proceeds to offer numerous suggestions. Parkman for the Admirals, Tomlinson's "Sea and the Jungle" for shipboard and home-vent's "Winning of the West" for adventure trips, are a few of the recommended books. But the field is wide and includes many other volumes as fascinating and entertaining as these. There is fiction worth reading to fit every taste and mood,
and there are books of biography and travel and nature lore as soul-stirring as fiction.

Even the hapless being who is deprived of a vacation change of scene
can profit by the bookkeeper's hints
and slip away from hum-drum cares into the enchanted world of some hitherto undiscovered book.

Spoons in History

Ordinary spoons were known to the Egyptians, who made them of wood,
stone, ivory and bronze, and in Medical times we may read that Moses and golden spoons for the tabernacle.
Silver spoons have been found in the buried cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum. The spoon, it is said, evolved from an Anglo-Saxon word that meant splitter of wood, so we can guess what the primitive Egyptian employed for this useful implement.

The "Nine Worthies"

The nine heroes of history and romance long popular in medieval art and history were these paynims, three Jews and three Christian men: Hector
of Troy, Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar; King Arthur, Charlemagne and Fievelroy de Bouillon. These heroes were a familiar and popular subject in tapestries and paintings and figured also in masks and pageants.

His "Think" Unchanged

When Hobart inquires up his mind to change it, he has decided to do so.
One day when he decided to do so,
something his sister did not want him
to do she talked to him for a long time trying to persuade him to see her point of view. When she finally decided from lack of further reasons, he said, "Oh, yes, Millie, you've wasted all your talk, for my mind is just where it was when you started."

Woman

If a man is in grief, who cheers
him? In trouble, who consoles him?
In wrath, who soothes him? In joy, who makes him doubly happy? In prosperity, who rejoices in his success,
who backs him against the world, and dresses with gentle suggestions and warm politeness the making wounds
made by the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune? Who, but woman, if you please—William Makepeace Thackeray.

Primitive Spoons

The origin of the spoon was very likely a shell used in a wooden or bone handle. Chisel, among other things, were only used after the custom of tea-drinking was well established, were nearly all with shell-shaped bowls, and were very small at first, to fit into the small caddy boxes and the small china cups, for tea was served and used in small quantities. Tea drinking, which did not come into England until the days of George II.

CHIPPY AND SHARPY

"Let's have a frolic and a game and a race," said Chippy Chippy the squirrel.

He had been named after his grandfather, Chippy Chippy and there was a famous chipmunk named Chippy Chippy too.

Sharpy, the squirrel, looked at Chippy and said: "All right, Chippy.
I'm always ready for some fun."

So Chippy Chippy and Sharpy started to play.

"Well play tag first," said Chippy
Chippy.

"Good," said Sharpy, "you can be
it."

"No, you be it," said Chippy Chippy. And Sharpy agreed, because if neither of them played "it" they couldn't have the game.

Sharpy chased Chippy Chippy from one tree to another. At one time Chippy Chippy jumped a great big jump, but Sharpy was after him.
Then Chippy Chippy jumped another enormous big jump, but Sharpy didn't like that so well.

He jumped though and tugged
Chippy Chippy so that Chippy Chippy
was "it."

Then Chippy Chippy chased Sharpy and Sharpy ran down the side of a tree and along the lawn and came to another tree.

He got quite far ahead of Chippy
Chippy doing this as Chippy Chippy hadn't thought he would run down the tree and along the lawn.

But Chippy Chippy hurried after him when he saw what he was doing.
And after a time he caught up with Sharpy and Sharpy once more was
"it."

They played this game for some time and then they decided they would play hide-and-seek.

Sharpy hid a beautiful hole in one of the trees in which to hide.

And he was anxious that Chippy shouldn't find him for awhile, as in the tree was a most delicious nut which had been put there some time before and which had been forgotten about.

But Chippy Chippy came just as Sharpy was about to take it. Sharpy wasn't any more hide-and-seek was over.

"Let's not play hide-and-seek any more," said Chippy. "I feel the need of a little nourishment."

"Ah, but my nourishment," said Sharpy.

"But I am willing it should be mine,
too," said Chippy Chippy.

"But I am," said Sharpy.

"That's not fair," said Sharpy.
"Who says it isn't fair?" asked
Chippy.

Tabbie Had Been Busy

Artisans were placing the last of the marble slabs around the walls of a bank in Pittsburgh when a cat was discovered behind the slabs. All efforts with cream and other delicates failed to coax her out; neither could she be caught with wire hooks or other devices. The whole day was wasted while the marble-setters waited. Finally a small boy—a very small boy—knewed into the marble and brought out Tabbie and nine kittens.

And the great joke of it all was that while they were scolding over one nu-trent the other squirrels had been jumping from place to place and had had most astounding luck in finding good things to eat.

But the quarreling of Chippy and Sharpy took so much time that they missed all the real feast.

It was night-time when they had finished arguing, but by that time both of them were too tired to scold any more.

And so they went to bed and to sleep, weary and worn out. And also with very empty little tummies.

The exercise they had had made them hungry, but also, they were too tired to get their food and no one else seemed to feel like handling it to them
on a tree tray.

No, the others did not seem to feel like eating on Chippy Chippy and Sharpy the squirrel, but seemed to think it was a great joke that they had wasted their time in an argument over one poor little nut.

What Happened to Goliath

"I guess," said the little girl, "that fore that. I've brought up in my arms the bodies of men torn to pieces and carried them to their wives and kids.

How about those women and children?
Haven't they earned an interest in the mine? Isn't their moral claim greater than that of Mr. Verinder, who sits in London and draws the dividends?"

"They are pensioned, aren't they?"
"They are not," returned Jack curtly.
"The mine owners of Goldbanks don't believe in encouraging negligence."

It was these workmen hadn't taken chances they probably would not have been killed, you see. But if they didn't take chances none of the men could earn a living for their families.
It is plain how very much to blame
they are."

Moya looked across the summit of the hills into the distant sunset that lay like a wonderful canvas in the crotch of the peaks. A troubled little frown creased her forehead. She was usually silent on the way home.

Once she looked up and asked Captain Kilmory a question.

"After all, too wrong don't make a right, do they?"

"No, dear girl. Life's full of injustice.
I dare say some of the men I lead are better than Ned Kilmory, but I've got to forget that and sit tight in the seat that's been dealt me by the gods. If Jack is trying to justify highgrading, he hasn't a leg to stand on."

She sighed. "You don't think, do
you, that—?"

He answered her broken sentence.
"Don't know. He doesn't play the game by the same rules as we, but my judgment is that the gossip about him has no basis of fact."

The girl he loved gave him one grateful look and felt again into silence. Captain Kilmory walked beside his slim, tall, worshipful sweetheart with a heavy heart. She was his precious child. That she would keep faith he did not doubt. But the prospect that he made in winning her love
was so little that he seemed to himself to be marking time. The shadow of his vagabond cousin still lay between them.

CHAPTER XI

One Maid—Two Men

Jack saw to it that he and Joyce followed the others down the trail at a very leisurely pace. The early night of the Rockies was already cutting them off from the rest of the world. Captain Kilmory and his betrothed could be seen as shadows

growing ever minute more tenuous, until they were already lost in the descending darkness.

It was the first time that the Gold-banks miner had ever been alone with Miss Seddon. He meant to make the most of his chance. Her loveliness saw its way through his alert, masterful eyes into the blood of the man.
They talked little and the talk was irrelevant. In both of them the tide of emotion ran full. Each was drawn by the subtle irresistible magnet of sex attraction. When their eyes met it was but for an instant. A shyness, delirious and delightful, ran like a gold rod through the excitement
which burned their blood.

"We must hurry," Joyce breathed deep, as if she had been running.

"Why must we?" he demanded.
"This is my hour. I claim it."

"But... they're getting ahead
of us."
"Let them." He gave her his hand to help her down a steep place in the trail. Their fingers clung, palm clinging to palm.
"You... mustn't," she protested.
"Mustn't?"
"No."
The note of faintness was in her voice. Courage flooded him in triumphant waves. A moment and his arms were about her, the velvet of her cheek against his. She lay still for an instant, pulses throbbing wildly. But when his lips found hers, the woman in her awoke. In an ecstasy of tenderness her arms crept around his neck, and she clung to him. A distant sea surf roared in her ears.
For the first time in her life passion
had drowned coquetry.

They spoke in kisses, in caresses, in little murmured nothings. As lovers will all the old and true. Something sweet and turbulent swelled in her bosom, an emotion new and inexplicable. For the first time in many experiences of the sex duel she was afraid of herself, of the strength of this impassioned feeling that was surging her. She disengaged herself from his embrace and stood back.
Beneath the quick probe of his eyes
a faint tremor passed through her body. The lion lashes fell to the hot cheeks and curtained lambent windows of light.

"What are we doing?" she cried
suddenly.
"Doing?" I'm making love to you, sweetheart, and you're telling me you love me for it!" he answered, captivating her hands.
"Yes, but... I don't want you to... make love to me... that way."
"You do." He laughed aloud, and with a swift motion drew her to him
again. "We belong, you witch."
His ardent kisses smothered her and drew the color into her lovely face.
She yearned toward him, faint with a sweet, exquisite longing. Was this love then? Had it at last trapped her in spite of her cool wariness? She did not know. All she was sure of was that she wanted to be in his strong arms and to feel forever this champagne leap of the blood.

With the excuse that she must dress
for dinner, Joyce went at once to her room and to lock the door. Discarding the walking suit she was wearing, she slipped into a negligee gown and seated herself before the glass. She liked, while thinking things over, to look at herself in the mirror. The picture that she saw always evoked pleasant reflections—pleasant, because—
Never had her beauty seemed so radiant and vital, so much an inspiration
of the spirit in her.

How had he dared? She was a rare, imperious queen of hearts. No man before had ever ravished kisses
from her, in such unbridled fashion.
When she thought of the abandon with which she had given herself to his lips and his embrace, the dye deepened on her cheeks. What was this shameless longing that had carried her to him as one looking down
from a high tower is drawn to throw himself over the battlements?

It was of herself, not him, that she was afraid. She had wanted his kisses. She had rejoiced in that queer, exultant stab of the blood when his eyes stabbed fathoms deep into hers. What was the matter with her?
Always she had felt a good-natured
contempt for girls who threw away substantial advantages for what they called love. After steering a course as steady as a mariner's compass for years was she going to play the fool at last? Was she going to marry a pamper, a workmanman, one accused of crime, one who had won the ridiculous attention he deserved in her world?

The idea was of course absurd.
Joyce Seddon was the last woman in the world to make a poor man's wife.
Tomorrow she must have a serious talk with him and set the matter on a proper footing. She must not let herself be swept away by any quixotic sentiment. The trouble was that she liked him so well. When they met, her good resolutions would be likely to melt in the air. Perhaps it would be better to wait. It was now only ten days till the time set for leaving.
She might write him her decision. It would be wiser to hold him as long as she could.

When Joyce pulled down the corridor to the parlor which adjoined the private dining-room of the party, she caught a glimpse of Verinder turning a corner of the passage toward his room. Lady Farquhar was alone in the parlor.

"Hello!" she saw Mr. Verinder. "You asked Joyce, didn't you?"

Into the easiest chair and reaching for a magazine, she said:
"Yes. At least he was here." After a moment Lady Farquhar added
quietly: "He leaves tomorrow."
Joyce looked up quickly. "Leaves where?"

"Goldbanks. He is starting for London."

"But... What about the re-organization of the companies?"
"I thought..."

"He has changed his plans. James is to have his proxies and to arrange the consolidation. Mr. Verinder is anxious to get away at once."

After Joyce's instant consideration
she laughed heartily. "He was dismissed by this sudden move, but did not intend to show it. He's rather... precious! We're all going in a few days. Why can't he wait?"

DAIRYING GREAT NEED HERE SAYS WISCONSIN MAN

Dean Russell of Agricultural College Guest of Chamber of Commerce; Urges Farmers to Buy Cows.

Necessity of Idaho farmers going more extensively into the dairying industry and less into wheat which can be produced as cheaply in wheat raising states nearer the markets, was the point forced home by Dean Russell of the Wisconsin agricultural college in an address Thursday noon at the Rogers hotel before more than 100 business men and members of the chamber of commerce here.

Dean Russell, he declared some years ago realized that in dairying lay the state's salvation and as a result it was gone into extensively with the result that today that state is one of the richest per capita in the United States. He declared it foolish for farmers to grow the north and south sides in the Twin Falls tract to grow bulkier crops for which the market was limited when this section is so ideally located and adapted to dairying.

Dean Russell in his address urged the farmers of this region to buy dairy cows and start dairying which would result in the consumption of alfalfa, and silage which can be raised in abundance here and the turning of these bulky crops into products that will stand higher freight rates.

To Business Men.

He declared that his visit through the western country was at the instigation of the American Bankers' association for the purpose of getting the word to the business men that they should support and do all in their power to get the farmer to go into dairying which would bring the farmer a much better profit and as a result give the merchant greater business.

Dean Russell pointed out that greater stability has been shown during the period of fluctuation by dairy products than by any other article. It is at all times a great market for these products, he said, with very small chance of competition which would injure the market price.

Dean Russell, who compared the growth of crops in Idaho to those of Wisconsin with a distinct advantage to Idaho, declared that when he left Wisconsin, he was four or five inches above the ground and that his arrival here showed the corn to be some of it almost shoulder tall.

R. E. Shepherd.

He was introduced at the luncheon by R. E. Shepherd of Jerome who met Dean Russell at Shoshone and is escorting him through Southern Idaho. Mr. Shepherd spoke highly of Dean Russell's visit through Idaho and the good he hoped it would accomplish. He told of meeting Dean Russell on one of his trips to Wisconsin at which time he purchased dairy stock for the north side. Mr. Shepherd has been largely instrumental on both north and south sides in getting the farmer to go into dairying.

Mayor Shad Hodgins presided at the luncheon and introduced Mr. Shepherd who in turn introduced the guest of honor. A trip was made by three carloads of citizens including the guest of honor, Mr. Shepherd and the secretary of the chamber of commerce, Charles Dwight, through the Twin Falls district. A number of dairy herds were visited. Among these were herds on the farms of Edmund Ehlers, Carl Irwin, J. A. Waters, A. T. Baulmeyer, the Maxwell place southeast of Buhl, to the Carl Middlestadt farm, where, after looking at the herd the visitors were treated to ice cream and cake by Mrs. Middlestadt and daughter.

The party then visited Buhl where they were met by officials. Following a short stay there Dean Russell and Mr. Shepherd left for Thousand Springs ranch where Dean Russell had a meeting and from there to Jerome where a meeting was held Thursday evening. Today Dean Russell will board the train at Shoshone and leave for Moscow.

MADE "NOT GUILTY" OF FORGERY, TELLS JUDGE

Bail Placed at $2000; Discourses for an Hour to Court on Why He Should Be Turned Loose.

Andrew Mace, charged with forging a large number of checks in various cities of the northwest, who was arrested here Monday by the sheriff's office, Thursday pleaded "not guilty" to the charge before Justice of the Peace Kennedy Packard. His plea follows an alleged confession to members of the sheriff's force in which he gave places and amounts of checks cashed in these cities.

His bail was set at $2000 which at a late hour Thursday evening he had been unable to furnish and he was held in the county jail. When Mace was arraigned Thursday morning, according to sheriff's officials, he went into an hour's discourse on why he should be released or let off with a light sentence.

Mace in said to have told officials that he did not realize the charge upon which he is held was so serious in Idaho. It was his understanding that a short jail sentence and a fine were about all he could get. He was considerably angered when he was informed that conviction on such a charge carried a sentence of from one to 14 years in the state prison. On Thursday a letter was received from Pocatello with a check for $5 cashed at a shoe store there supposedly by Mace. The shoe company asks that he be given the limit. Mace is thought to be a religious fanatic and in addition to quoting freely from the Bible in his talk Thursday morning, quoted copiously from Shakespeare. An insanity charge may be filed in place of the charge now pending, it is hinted.

Buyers Leave for East—Buyers for the chain of Golden Rule stores in southern Idaho leave this morning for eastern markets, where they will do the fall buying for the stores. W. A. Van Englen, manager of the Twin Falls store, with John Hood and J. L. Hood of Pocatello and W. E. Seaborn of American Falls are among those going. They will visit St. Louis, Chicago and New York. Mr. Van Englen declared he saw a big future this fall and will buy accordingly.
