GROWERS TELL
NEED OF WATER
TO SAVE CROPS

Representatives of Upper River Users Hear Appeal of Farmers and Business Men; Spending Day in Fields.

Representatives of upper Snake river water users, at a dinner conference in the Hotel Perrine here Monday evening heard an appeal in which farmers were joined by bankers and business men, for release of water to save crops of beans and sugar beets in the territory under the Twin Falls canal system, and without making any definite promise of contribution of water, which they would depend upon the "good will" of the upper river users, they pledged themselves to inquire diligently into the needs of crops here for additional water and to lay the fact fairly and fully before the upper river users with confidence that pride in Idaho's reputation and need of water here would prompt the upper river users to transfer a part of their own water to save the situation here.

Representing Pooling Committee
The upper river users were represented on this occasion by John E. Kelley of Shelley, W. O. Cotton of Idaho Falls, John Lew and N. A. Anderson of Rigby, members of a "pooling committee," which is a sub-committee of the "committee of nine" that, with Watermaster G. Clyde Baldwin, has charge of the distribution of Snake river water. This pooling committee, it was explained by Mr. Kelley, its chairman, was brought into being recently in response to disposition of the situation on the North Side project, and through its agency, upper river users are to receive their own water or supply for two days to the North Side project. "We felt that we would sacrifice less by giving our water to the North Side than we would by permitting failure of the North Side's crops with consequent injury to Idaho's irrigation supremacy," Mr. Kelley stated.

Gain New Insight
Mr. Kelley and Mr. Cotton, who were spokesmen for the committee at the conference Monday evening, both declared that statements of farmers and business men as to the present critical condition of bean and beet crops in this region had given them new light and appreciation of the seriousness of the situation here with regard to those crops. "When we crossed the Hanson bridge on our way here this evening," they said, "we thought there could be no water shortage in this country; but you have convinced us that very material damage may result if water deliveries are reduced below the present basis within the next two or three weeks."

The visiting committee members will

Grain Marketing Company Fails to Get Endorsement

Association Controlling 5,000 Grain Elevators Wants Merger Modified So Farmer's Elevators Hold Stock.

DES MOINES, July 28 (AP)—The National Farmers Grain Dealers association in which 5,000 grain elevators in the middle west hold memberships, today refused to endorse the recently organized grain marketing company of Chicago. The association declared it would continue to withhold its endorsement until the grain merger's organization plans were modified to provide that all stock must be held by farmers elevator companies and not by individuals.

The resolution adopted at the close of an all-day session to which none but associate members and a few others were admitted was:

"We do not favor any terminal marketing proposition of any sort unless all stock in it is held and owned by farmers elevator companies and not by individuals. We do not favor the organizing of any farmers cooperative elevator company into any terminal marketing venture until a sufficient number of other such companies have agreed to affiliate with the venture to insure control by the cooperative elevator companies; or until sufficient capital has been subscribed by such companies to properly finance the venture."

Unless the proposed grain merger may be so changed in its plan of organization as to meet the two requirements set forth above we do not endorse it.

Barkeeper and Friend Take Glass of Beer Each; Die Few Minutes Later.

BUDAPEST, July 28 (AP)—Martin Romler, a barkeeper in a local cafe, and one of his customers drank a glass of beer each from a freshly tapped keg today and a few seconds later both dropped to the floor dead. When the keg was broken open the body of a viper was revealed. The snake is assumed to have crawled through the bung hole before the keg was filled at the brewery, the viper discharging its poisonous fluid into the beer during its struggle against breathing.

JAPANESE WARNED TO QUIT PEAR PACKING

Party of Men in Autos and by Note Tell Workers to Leave California Jobs; Tokio Papers Excited.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., July 28 (AP)—Warnings to Japanese to vacate their jobs as pear packers have been delivered in the vicinity of Hopland in Mendocino county, by a party of men in two automobiles, and by a note left on the steps of the Earle Fruit packing company warehouse, advising to Sheriff Ralph Byrnes of Ukiah.

Advices from Tokio that California correspondents of Japanese newspapers had called articles telling of efforts by the Ku Klux Klan to intimidate Japanese workmen occasioned the investigation which brought the information from Sheriff Byrnes today. The warnings by the party in two automobiles was delivered Tuesday night to the Arthur Foster, Duncan and Wada ranches near Hopland and the not reaching "Out with the Japs! Fair warning! K. K. K." was found yesterday morning, according to Sheriff Byrnes.

From the Foster ranch 20 Japanese workmen are said to have disappeared saying they were going to San Francisco.

AMERICA'S AID
CREDITED WITH
STAYING CRISIS

Conference Circles Believe Dangerous Stage in Deadlock Between French and English Crossed by American Help.

LONDON, July 28 (AP)—Inter-allied conference circles are crediting American intervention at the experts' meeting this afternoon with having saved the conference from what threatened to be a crisis that possibly would have wrecked the parleys and seriously delayed the application of the Daves plan to Europe's ills.

At the meeting of the experts prior to the plenary session, the debate between the French and British representatives on the issue which has been deadlocked in the conference for a week had reached a very dangerous stage when Colonel James A. Logan, the American official observer, offered compromise suggestions which lessened the tension. As soon as he had finished his statement, which covered important points regarding American participation in the working of the Daves plan, the French representative announced he believed that within 24 hours the French delegation could submit a formula which they considered would satisfy both the British experts and the Anglo-American bankers in its provisions for security for the international loan which Germany must float before the Daves plan can be made effective.

Consequently the experts' meeting adjourned until tomorrow morning, when the French proposals will be heard.

The inability to reach a statement today, however, disrupted the program of the conference, and the invitation which it generally has been expected would be dispatched to Berlin tonight representing the attendance of German representatives has been delayed indefinitely, but it is hoped it will be sent forward Wednesday or Thursday.

BLACK HILLS PIONEER DEAD

DEADWOOD, S. D., July 28 (AP)—R. E. Grimshaw, Black Hills pioneer and for fifty years prominent in western South Dakota politics, died here today. He will be buried beside Bill Hickock and "Calumity Jane," widely known Black Hills characters.

Woman Candidate as Governor of Texas
Is in Second Place

Mrs. Myriam Ferguson, Lone Star State's First Woman gubernatorial Office Seeker.

DALLAS, Texas, July 28 (AP)—Mrs. Myriam Ferguson, Texas' first woman gubernatorial candidate, increased her lead over Lynch Davidson, Houston, for second place to 2,329 votes, it was announced by the Texas election bureau at 7 p. m. The partial returns for three leaders stood:

Judge Felix Robertson, Dallas, 152,844.
Mrs. Ferguson, 112,385.
Lynch Davidson, 110,056.

BOISE WOMAN
SHOOT'S CHILD

Mrs. George White, 29, in Jail for Murdering Her Baby Daughter.

BOISE, July 28 (AP)—Give me a speedy trial and shut me or hang me! I want to join my baby in a happier land than this," Mrs. George White, 29, pleaded with officers Monday afternoon after she had emptied four chambers of a .32 caliber revolver into the head of her eighteen months old daughter at their ranch home three miles southwest of Boise at 2 o'clock after noon.

Questioned in her cell in the Ada county jail following her arrest, Mrs. White threw off the air of calm that characterized her first statements and chose one of defiance in her reply.

"You'll never find out from me," questioning on a possible motive.

Mentally Unbalanced

Mrs. White is undoubtedly mentally deranged, declared Dr. T. Braxton, after an examination. Although he questioned her closely, he said, as to her antecedents, he found nothing to show hereditary insanity. In reply to his questioning as to her motive in killing her baby, she returned that she had no scruples against killing her daughter, because the child was "beter off dead."

Why, the doctor said, she would not say.

An inquest will be held either this afternoon or Wednesday morning, William McClintock, Ada county coroner has announced.

Boy Marked for Death by Slayers Takes Stand; Will Present Confessions Next

Mountain of Evidence Scaled by Prosecutor Against Loeb and Leopold; Question Again Comes Up As to Which One Struck Franks Boy With Chisel.

CHICAGO, July 28 (AP)—Scaling the final heights of his mountain of evidence against Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, today reached the point where he could place as a peak tomorrow the confessions of the two youths to the kidnapping and slaying of young Robert Franks. He gained this goal by placing on the stand today eight witnesses who identified statements, both written and oral, by the defendants and also told of the presence of Loeb at the Harvard school whence Franks was enticed to his death.

Believing the grimness of the proceedings was the presence, on the stand of John O. Lovison, aged nine and a half, going to ten." The boy who came all the way from his summer home in Kennebunk beach, Maine, to "inform the court" about Loeb's visit to the school yard that fatal afternoon, July 21, wore a contagious grin. It spread throughout the courtroom, bringing kindly smiles from Judge John R. Caverly, the attorneys, defendants and spectators.

Even when the boy pointed out "Dick Loeb" as the school visitor, the friendly smiles on the faces of both defendants did not fade.

Unaware of Plot

"Johnny" as he was addressed by the attorneys, seemed unaware that he had once been considered a possible victim of the Leopold plot, and that he had been in court.

He mounted to the witness box, clad in boyish knickers and jacket, his sport shirt open at the throat and tan stockings rolled down, exposing bare, brown knees. He turned to the clerk and held up his hand to be sworn but the judge stopped him, "I heard of the case surrounding the judicial bench and asked:

"How old are you Johnny?"

"Nine and a half," said the boy.

"Do you go to school, and do you

Reported Better

Bulletin from Sick Room Says Senator Passed Comfortable Day; Serious Operation.

HONOLULU, July 28 (AP)—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who successfully underwent an operation for a bladder ailment at the Charles Gate hospital, passed a comfortable day, attending physicians reported tonight. His condition was said to be excellent with no alarming developments.

A bulletin embodying these facts was issued early in the evening. Unless an unexpected turn for the worse occurred, it was said that no further bulletins would be issued in the course of the night.

Senator Lodge's temperature and pulse are normal and he is cheerful. There will be a second operation, however, for the removal of the bladder obstruction, it was stated; the date to be determined in two or three days.

Dr. John H. Cunningham's bulletin issued at 6:10 p. m., was as follows:

"Condition excellent. Comfortable day. No alarming developments."

TWIN FALLS MEN MOURN
DEATH OF WAR LEADER

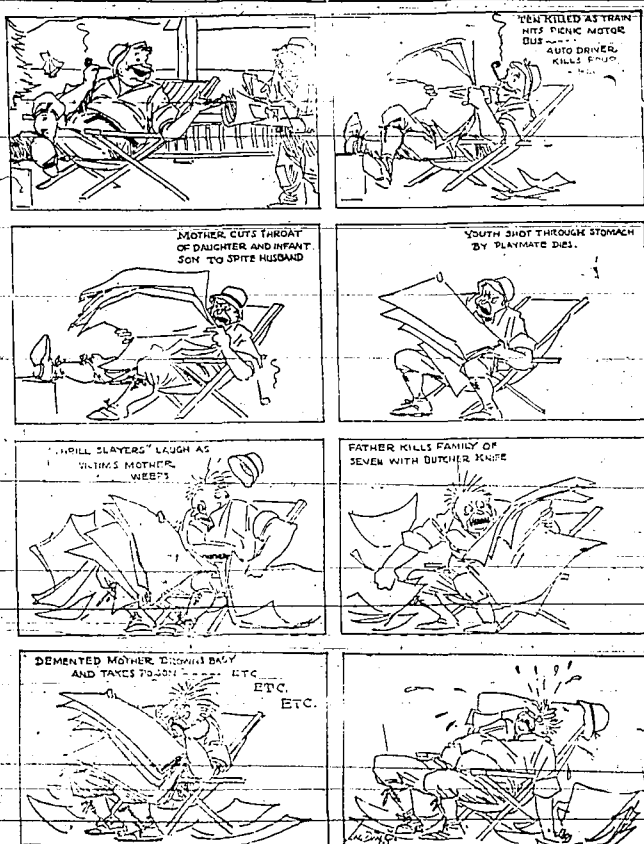

Dr. James Nagel of New York Killed in Auto Accident in Colorado, Chief of Staff at Hospital Where Idaho Men Served.

Word brought here in press dispatches Monday of the death of Dr. James Nagel of New York, in an automobile accident in Colorado, came as a shock to former members here of the hospital unit who was recruited in this region early in 1917 who knew him as Major Nagel, chief of the medical staff of camp hospital No. 26 at St. Albans, France, where many of them were assigned to duty during the World War.

Dr. Nagel was on his way to Denver to visit Miss Helen Champton, daughter of the late John Champton, millionaire Colorado mine operator, when his automobile turned over a sandy stretch of road near Fleming, Colorado. He was instantly killed.

SOIL STUDY IN IDAHO IS PLAN

U. of I. Experiment Station to Investigate Best Farm Dirt in Southern Idaho.

MOSCOW, July 28.—By special request of Dr. Elwood Mead, recently appointed commissioner of reclamation, who has been investigating irrigation projects in southern Idaho the past few weeks, the agricultural experiment station of the University of Idaho will co-operate in soils studies of certain sections of southwestern Idaho included in the proposed Owyhee irrigation project. Plans for the investigation were completed at a recent meeting with Dr. Mead's party and Professor O. R. McDole, associate professor of agronomy and soil technologist of the experiment station.

The Owyhee project, which it is proposed will use storage waters of the Owyhee river, will include approximately 60,000 acres of land in the north-east part of Owyhee county and 100,000 acres of land in eastern Oregon. The Idaho section is what is termed the Gem district and is now partly in the hands of pumping projects and includes some portions of desert, non-irrigated land.

Farm Feasibility.
The work which the university experiment station has been asked to perform will be a series of tests determining the feasibility of the proposed project and those lands in the project best adapted to irrigation farming. Information regarding the depth, texture and productivity of the soil will be obtained, and two men now doing similar work near Soda Springs, F. O. Young of the United States bureau of soils and A. J. Kerns of the University of Idaho experiment station, have been detailed to commence the survey immediately.

Dr. Mead, who has had eight years' experience of reclamation work in Australia and further work in California, has inaugurated the plan of obtaining such data prior to installation of irrigation projects, which would eliminate the possibility of including lands which from an economic standpoint, it would not pay to include in irrigable lands, a mistake which has been made many times in the past in western irrigation projects. Such a system of prior investigation has been advocated by the Idaho institution for several years, and the experiment station will lend its whole-hearted aid in furthering the work on the proposed Owyhee project, concerning which considerable discussion has been made for the past several years.

HAZELTON CHEESE FACTORY.

MARKETS $3000 PRODUCT

The Hazelton cheese factory closed its first month's run in a very satisfactory manner, according to D. C. Muckey, the proprietor.

Mr. Muckey states that during the first thirty days he made and marketed something over $3000 worth of cheese for which he found a ready market. A sample was recently sent to a certain large dealer and next day an order was received by telegram for 20 cases at once.

Since filling the order he received an additional order for all the stock he had ready for shipment. The state inspector just recently inspected the factory and tested the cheese and pronounced it to be an A1 product. He also stated the farmers and dairymen who supplied the milk are well satisfied, and after paying for extra runs out of their checks were able to realize about six cents per pound above the prevailing price of butterfat.

Mr. Muckey came here from New York state and selected Hazelton as an ideal place after looking over a large number of dairy sections in the west.

BLUES WIN FROM NEVADA'S TEAM

Cosgroff's Men Add Another Scalp to Their String; Wells Into Camp, 6 to 3.

The Blues added another victory to their list Sunday in the local park when they took the Wells engineers into camp with a 6 to 3 count, before a large crowd of Wells and Twin Falls fans. Plying pitting superb ball until the eighth inning, the Blues' individual reason for Twin Falls' victory, the lanky southpaw allowed but two hits for the first seven innings.

Individual features of the game were Whitel's home run in the fourth which brought in Twin Falls' first score and Wells' remarkable catch of Pyle's fly over shortstop in the fifth. The opening innings amounted to a pitching duel between Pyle and Wines with the break coming in the fourth in favor of the Blues.

Register in Eighth. The score remained three to nothing until the eighth inning when captain. Fouts sent in a pinch hitter, Evans, who came through nobly with a two base hit bringing in two runs and threatening the local lead.

Wells responded to the batting rally of Twin Falls with a similar rally in the ninth when the first three men to the plate hit scoring one more run.

Wednesday evening the Blues play Griswold's Grays on the R.H. field.

POCATELLO LOSES GAME TO BUHL BY LARGE SCORE

Three Home Runs Account for Big Score; Orndorff's Team Hits Hard for Overwhelming Victory.

Buhl took their second victory from Alfred's pitching Sunday when they battered the Pocatelloans into submission on the Buhl field with a score of 12 to 3.

The deciding factor in the game was the superior stickwork of the Grays who drove in three home runs from Alfred's offerings; Young and Cox were responsible for the circuit clouts. Boston pitched the full route for the Grays and was successful in holding the Bears 0, 8, L. Louie to four hits while Alfred was touched for seven hits.

YANKS REGAIN TOP POSITION

Detroit Loses as New York Takes Double Header; Washington Also Suffers Defeat.

CHICAGO, July 28 (AP)—New York went back into first place in the close American league pennant race by winning both games of a double-header from Chicago by scores of 8 to 3 and 12 to 10, respectively, while Detroit was beaten by Philadelphia.

Faber pitched a good game in the opener, but his mates played bad baseball behind him, being unable to hit in the pinches and loose playing. The second encounter was practically settled in the first inning when the Yankees hit the offerings of Leo Mangum, the former Minneapolis star, to all corners of the lot, and drove him to the plate after Walter Hard fencing him.

Ruth came up with Mike Oengros on the hill, and cracked out his thirty-first homer of the season. Two men were on base at the time.

Chicago plugged along, forcing the retirement of Mammux in the first inning and in the seventh and eighth innings hit Shaver hard, forcing him to retire. Jones finally retired the side.

MUCH EVIDENCE IS GIVEN AT HEARING

know what it means to tell the truth?"

"Sure."

"Do you know what it is to swear falsely?"

"Yes."

"And what do they do with people who swear falsely?"

"Put them in jail," said Johnny, and he and the judge chuckled.

Then the boy took the formal oath and in a few words told of seeing Leeb in the school yard. He was asked what Leeb said, and responded:

Playing Ball.

"He said, 'Hit 'or out'."

"Why did he say that?" asked the state's attorney.

"Because we were playing baseball," explained Johnny.

On cross-examination Benjamin Bachrach of defense counsel brought out that the boy had "no other business" in Chicago except to testify at the trial.

Then Johnny took his boyish buoyancy of confidence and the proceedings settled back to the tragic realities of a fight to save two 19-year-old college students from the gallows.

Just before Johnny's appearance there had cropped up the undecided dispute between Leopold and Leeb as to which one had actually struck Bobby Frank with a cold chisel, and then dragged him, gagged and strangled from the front seat into the tonneau of the death car. This came out first while Wallace Sullivan, a newspaper reporter, was on the stand.

Sullivan testified that he had been with the defendants when the police took them on an automobile tour June 1, the day after their convictions, to point out the various localities connected with the crime. He said the cars had stopped at a hospital where one of the police officials was undergoing treatment for an injury.

"I asked Leopold flatly whether he killed Robert Frank or if Leeb killed him," said Sullivan. "Leopold said Leeb did the killing so I went back to Leeb's car and I said: 'Nathan said you killed Bobby Frank. Is it true?'"

"Leeb said so, so I returned to Leopold's car and said 'It looks pretty bad for you, Leopold. Leeb has the confidence of all the reporters and he seems to have convinced everyone that you are the only one who really struck the boy.' He said, 'I can prove it was I who was driving that car, inasmuch as Leeb admits—that the boy was sitting in the front seat and was struck from behind. I was the owner of a White Knight car for one thing. I hired the car for another, and the third point is that I took the car to my garage to get gasoline and oil. Isn't it likely that I would be driving the car?'"

Accuse One Another.

"I went back to Leeb and said: 'It looks pretty bad for you, Leeb, as Leopold has a pretty good reason to prove that you were the one who did it,' and I told him what Leopold had said. Leeb said: 'Well, you go back and tell him he admits that I know Bobby Frank, that I hired the car, that he would be sitting next to me in the car that it would for him to sit next to Leopold.'"

"When I went back to Leopold with that story, Leopold said: 'Why, I can show you just exactly how he did it.' He leaned over and demonstrated in the police car just how Leeb had leaned across the car in which they had committed the crime."

The dispute also was touched on when Captain William Schoemaker, of the city detective bureau, told of an inspection of the death car by the defense and the newspaper men several days after the trip concerning which Sullivan testified.

Captain Schoemaker said the newspaper photographers suggested that Leopold and Leeb pose in the automobile. "He said that Leopold ran to the driver's seat and that Leeb refused to get into the machine, claiming that Leopold was not in his proper position."

CANNERY WAITS ON LOWER RATES

Ogden Man Finds Conditions Here for Plant Ideal, but Freight Must Be Reduced.

Rejection downward of freight rates to permit competition with similar institutions in Utah is a prerequisite for establishment of a cannery in Twin Falls, according to W. J. Barnes of Ogden, operator of a cannery at Ogden, who is one of a number of canners with whom the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce has communicated recently with view to obtaining a cannery for Twin Falls to handle fruit and vegetable crops of this region and to promote production of these crops.

Mr. Barnes' opinion in this regard was expressed Monday after he had visited a number of gardens and orchards in this vicinity. Mr. Barnes praised the quality of fruit and vegetables produced here and stated his opinion that crops suitable for canning could be produced here in paying quantity. The location, he stated, is ideal in all respects for establishment of a cannery plant in Twin Falls, except for the present freight rate barrier.

In anticipation of the objection raised by Mr. Barnes, the chamber of commerce has had before Oregon Short Line officials the necessary freight rate reduction to permit operation of canning plants here in competition with Utah canneries, Secretary Charles F. Dwight stated Monday evening.

GROWERS TELL OF THE NEED HERE OF WATER

spend today inspecting crops and interviewing farmers in the territory under the Twin Falls canal system.

Urges Need for Water

Possibility of material loss of crops if the water delivery on the present basis of 45 per cent is permitted to fall was outlined at the present meeting of the conference by Thurston Smith, general manager of the Twin Falls canal company, who introduced subsequent speakers including Judge J. R. Bothwell, attorney for the canal company; James Selley, district manager for the Amalgamated Sugar company; Dr. L. H. Giffin, bean grower; Guy Shearer, cashier of the First National bank of Ellettsville; M. J. Swesley, spokesman for the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce; J. W. Taylor, county attorney; W. F. Alworth, farmer and director of the American Falls reservoir district; and J. L. Miller of Caldwell, president of the Twin Falls canal company; Judge F. E. Chamberlain and John W. Graham.

Approximately 4500 acres of beets under the Twin Falls canal system already have been damaged 25 to 50 per cent by the water. Mr. Selley stated: "If water delivery can be maintained on the present basis, he said, we can get by without very much loss; but if we have to take another cut the result will be disastrous to both beets and apples."

Fifty thousand acres of beets under the Twin Falls canal system, if normally matured, will bring in a gross revenue of about $5,000,000 and will "put the farmers on their feet," Dr. Giffin declared. If water delivery can be maintained for three weeks under the present basis, he said, this crop can be matured with nominal loss. If there is a further cut in water before August 20, he stated, the yield will be reduced very materially because, he explained, the crop is now at a critical stage where pods are just forming and water is most urgently required.

In explanation of the mission here of the "pooling committee," Mr. Cotton said:

"Our position up the river is like this. Therefore we have been dependent on the natural flow of the river. At the present time 4500 second feet of water is passing Heise station, and we have 12,000 second feet of decreased rights to fill. We are however, in fairly good shape."

"This committee is not in a position to make any promise as to what we can do. That will depend entirely upon the good will of the people up there, to whom we shall report. We shall endeavor to say your case before them as you have laid it before us."

"We are grateful for the privilege given us of starting our natural flow waters in Jackson lake, and as a matter of paying a debt, the people up there might be prevailed upon to give some of their water to save the situation here."

"I hope and believe, that some time we may work out a solution for the storage water problem, but the water may be carried over each year in Jackson lake to meet the demands of 'lean years'."

Upper River Sympathetic

Inability of the committee to make definite promise of relief also was pointed out by Mr. Cotton.

"Sixty per cent of the canals in the upper river country are now dry," he said. "We shall have to appeal for a contribution for this country to those who have old decreed rights or storage rights. Ninety-five per cent of our people are rich and square, sympathetic and helpful, and if it is possible we are represented to them in a fair and square manner, I believe that they will contribute."

New York Girl to Marry British Earl

EARL OF GALLOWAY & MISS PHILIPPA WENDELL

THE ENGAGEMENT has been announced in London of Miss Philippa Wendell, of New York, to the Earl of Galloway, with whom she is pictured here at her mother's home, Sandridgebury, near London. Miss Wendell is a sister of the Countess of Carnarvon, whose father-in-law, the late Earl of Carnarvon, with Howard Carter, the American Egyptologist, discovered the tomb of King Tut-an-kh-Amen, near Luxor, in the Valley of the Kings, Egypt.

REPUBLICAN MEMBERS DISCUSS ELECTIONS

Senator Spencer of that state and of conditions in his southwest by Senator Cameron of Arizona. Secretary Slump, returning from a week-end trip to New York, where he was the guest of Fred C. Hicks, manager of the Republican eastern headquarters opened on the progress being made toward opening these quarters and getting the campaign under way in the east.

On League of Nations

"It will be interesting to hear what Mr. Davis does say on the subject in view of his strong approval of the league of nations in times past."

The eighteen states in which the republican senatorial committee will conduct its campaign for republican candidates, for senate seats were listed by Chairman Moses as follows:

Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Illinois, Delaware, West Virginia, Nebraska, Iowa, Michigan, Montana, Colorado (two), Minnesota, Kansas, South Dakota, Wyoming and New Mexico.

Opposite Thoughts

Senator Watson in his statement directed attention as he did in his recent New Hampshire address, to what he described "as the opposite poles of thought" supported by the democratic presidential and vice-presidential candidates.

"The real question is the election of Bryan," the Indiana senator said, referring to the possibility of the election going to congress. "This possibility should stimulate all those who believe in standing by the constitution and the right to acquire, possess and enjoy the use of private property, all of those who oppose the government ownership and operation of the railroads, of all those who are opposed to socialism and extreme radicalism, to rally to Goddard's standard and prevent the possibility of taking the content in congress."

will consent to giving up their water to relieve the situation."

Mr. Smith expressed appreciation on the part of the Twin Falls water users of the action of the upper river users in contributing their water to the relief of the North Side, and mentioned that in former dry seasons the Twin Falls company also has contributed to the North Side. Since May 1, he said, there have been very few cases of water wasted on the Twin Falls project."

King's Unlucky Day

May 1 is the anniversary of Charles I's order restraining emigration from England in 1635. On board boats ready to sail were Oliver Cromwell and John Hampden. To these two men Charles owed the loss of his life and his kingdom.

Desire Upholds Business

The basic changes that have taken place in business during the past year or more — specifically the change in price levels and price tendencies — have caused business men everywhere to think less superficially and more fundamentally about business.

Great basic facts which were but little realized, except by thinkers along economic lines have now become clearer to the public at large, and to business leaders in particular.

One such fact is that Desire is the foundation of business. It is the desire of the people for any article of commerce that makes it profitable to produce it. When that desire fails all the agencies of its production must cease to operate.

This fact was considered academically until the nation-wide cessation of liberal buying made it a matter of cardinal importance, and the question of the hour became the means, if any, of restoring the popular desire to do business — the desire to buy.

It came to be seen that the public desire for the products of a business or an industry was the only real and permanent asset. Every other assumed asset became a liability when that desire subsided.

It is upon this basic fact that Advertising rests.

It is the function of Advertising to create desire.

The desire that is created by advertising is always some specialized form of an elemental need. Elemental needs, in their simple form, are the raw material out of which must be created the Demand for the products of industry. This Demand, in its turn, upholds civilization itself. It is the one necessary thing that inspires all human activity.

It is the function of Art and Industry to take the raw materials of nature and refine the into products that constitute Supply. It is the function of Advertising to take the raw materials of elemental need for food, shelter, and clothing, and refine them into the desires for the finest products of Art and Industry, and these desires constitute Demand. Each function is as important as the other. And now, the time has come when this fact is realized as never before.

STRAFFING THE MONEY-LENDER

They have been having an anti-
American celebration in the German Breitling lately, in connection with the reputation plan. Reactionaries and radicals have combined in a terrific attack on the United States.

The provocation for this attack is the understanding that the two hundred million dollar loan required to set Germany upon its feet will be furnished mainly by America. German orators rant about "an American money dictatorship" and the inequity of ten per cent interest—which they say is to be the rate—tautly ignoring the fact that their own German bankers are charging borrowers twelve per cent a month.

All that excitement is really unnecessary. If the offer of a loan makes the Germans feel so bad, Americans are perfectly willing not to lend Germany any money.

WASTED PEACHES.

An efficient nation should be reliant of such news as that recently sent out from the peach region
in Georgia, and from other sections of the country at other times. Recent dispatches have announced that within a period of ten days peach growers in Georgia have thrown away approximately four million bushels of peaches,
or eight thousand cars.

The reason for such wholesale waste is that the entire crop ripened at once this year and glutted the market to such an extent that growers could not get even shipping prices for them.

In Macon, on July 21, peaches sold for eight cents a basket, not enough to pay for the baskets or crates in which they were packed, and leaving no allowance for picking, packing and hauling.

And all the while there are millions of people who need the fresh fruit and who can not get it, or who need the canned fruit in the winter and can not afford to buy it.

There is certainly nothing very efficient or praiseworthy in such a situation. The growers can not be blamed particularly, or the shippers, or consumers. All, however, have a degree of responsibility and, until they realize it and co-operate in solving such problems, all will have to suffer directly or indirectly from the situation.

BARGAINS IN DIVORCE

Russia, among other innovations, is having a sort of bargain divorce sale.
Under a new decree of the Soviet government, any couple may obtain a divorce in five minutes, upon payment of $150, provided they are agreed about it. In case of disagreement, the separation goes through the old-fashioned customary court procedure.

There is little difficulty, however,
in either party getting a divorce from the other on legal grounds. The most common cause is said to be "religious superstition." Political differences, also, are valid causes for separation. So flexible has the civil code become,
that divorces in the Moscow district increased forty-five per cent in the first six months of this year. Many of the applicants had been married only from three days to three months.

So we find that there is one country,
at least, which can beat America in the divorce game. Perhaps it is unwise to give publicity to such facts.
They may reconcile a lot of Americans to Sovietism.

Breakfast Food

"Matrimonially Speaking"

By Mrs. WUGH MCKAY

My Husband Brings Home Things to Surprise Me With at Dinner.
What really happens, I'm afraid, is that he sees something in some delicious or bakery window, that tickles
his appetite, and he goes to buy it.
But even so, I'd appreciate his interest in our table, if only he wouldn't appear with his provisions at the last minute.

There's not much point in having him bring home a dozen rolls when I've just baked some at home.

I can't cheer much over the custom he so proudly introduces when I have one of my own ready for dinner.

Life has unusually had back in this respect. It seems to have an almost unerring instinct for picking out something that will exactly double up with what I'm planning to have for the evening meal.

Nobody could accuse him of not being a good provider, but he certainly is a poor guesser!

Paid for Two

her grandmother to church one Sun-

The old lady was about to contribute also when Edna leaned over and said
in an audible whisper: "Never mind, grandma, I paid for two."

tion that there would be food soon!
"Sneak, sneak," said Master Pink
Fig. "I am ready for the banquet."
Master Pink Fig. had been saying over and over to himself that he would keep that good banquet in his own little mind and not utter a grunt or a squeal about it.
"Grunt, grunt," said Master Pink Fig's mother, "I must see that I get a good meal today and that Master Pink Fig and his wife do not hear of the excitement."
Of course she had not meant to give away what had been in her thoughts!
"Grunt, grunt," said Sir Percival
Pork, "there will be fine eats today."
Now, he had not meant to say this at all, nor had he meant to say anything so ordinary as "eats." That was no word for a Sir Percival to use.
But in his excitement he had forgotten the nicest words to use and he had spoken when he had not meant to speak at all.
"Perhaps that was why he spoke as he did!"
"Grunt, grunt, squeal, squeal," said
Miss Ham. "I must hurry to the banquet. Those other pigs will be there first if I don't!"
And then she twisted her little tail with annoyance for neither had she meant to say a word about it!

PIGS' PARTY

"Grunt, grunt," said Grandfather Porky Pig, "there is going to be a party."

He had not meant to tell the others,
but so great had been his excitement
that he had not been able to keep it to himself.

"Grunt, grunt," said Pinky Pig,
"there is going to be a party."

Now Pinky Pig had known about the party too, and he, too, had not meant to say anything about it.

"I Am Always Ready," he had exclaimed, but the excitement had been too much for him to keep it to himself.

"Sneak, sneak," said Pinky Pig's mother, "there is to be a party today!"

Now, if you will believe it, Pinky Pig's mother had not meant to tell the news, either.

"Sneak, sneak," said Mrs. Pinky
Fig, "there is to be a feast!"

Mrs. Pinky Fig had meant to keep this to herself too!

"Grunt, grunt," said "Sammy Sausage," "there will be extra food today!"

Sammy Sausage could have given himself a good scolding for saying this. He had meant to keep it a secret!

"Grunt, grunt," said Brother Bacon.
"I can hardly wait to begin the big meal!"

Nor had Brother Bacon meant to say anything about it!

"Sneak, sneak," said Sir Benjamin Bacon. "I am always ready in my splendid way for a little extra repast!"

Sir Benjamin had decided he would not speak of this at all!

"Grunt, grunt," said Mrs. Pink Fig.
"I can hardly wait to get my snout
into the food."

WM. MacLEOD RAINE

Both of the lovers knew how to walk. Lady Farquhar, watching them, thought she had never seen as fine a pair of untamed human beings. In his step was the free swing of the hillman, and the young woman breasted the slope lightly as a faun.

The Englishman chuckled. "You're beaten, El. The highwayman wins."

"Nonsense," she retorted sharply,
but with anxiety manifest in her frown.

"Fact, just the same. He's coming to tell us he means to take our little girl to his robber den."

"I believe you're actually let him,"
she said scornfully.

"Even you can't stop him. It's written in the books. Not sure I'd interfere if I could. For a middle-aged pharisee with the goat I'm incredibly romantic. It's the child's one great change for happiness. But I wish to the deuce he wasn't a highwayman!"

"He should be shot," she said. "I can prevent it," Lady Farquhar insisted stanchly.

"I member a girl who sacrificed herself for a fine lieutenant without a whiff of call his own," he soliloquized aloud. "Would have him, and did, by the death made him Lord Farquhar later, but she married the penniless subaltern."

"I've always been glad I did," she squeezed his arm firmly. "But this is different, James."

Kilmeny and Moysa stopped. The young man doffed his gray felt hat and bowed.

"Mornin', Lady Farquhar—Lord Far-quhar. We've come to ask your permission for our marriage."

"Mornin', rebekah. Fancy I'll have to refuse it," cut back Farquhar, eyes twinkling. "For this bold directness please send me a note to go to prison with me, Moysa, when he is convicted of highwaying," she asked pleasantly.

Moysa told in three sentences of what her lover had done. The Englishman wrung Kilmeny's hand cordially.

"By Jove, you reform thoroughly
when you go about it. Don't think I'd have enjoyed writing that check for Miss Joyce. Leaves you straggled, does it?"

"Dead broke," came the very cheerful reply.

"But of course Moysa has some money," said Lady Farquhar quietly.
The westerner winced. "With she hadn't. It's the only thing I have to forgive her."

Farquhar lifted his eyebrows. "Di-
he remonstrated."

His wife came to time with a frank apology. "That was downright nasty of me, Mr. Kilmeny. I withdrew it.
None the less, I think Moysa would be throwing herself away. Do you realize what you are proposing. She's been used to a life of ease since she was born. Have you the means to supply her needs? Or are you considering a Phyllis and Corydon idyll
in a cottage?"

"It will have to be something of that sort at first. I've told her all this too, Lady Farquhar. One must be practical."

"What does that matter if we love
each other?" Moysa asked.

"You'll find it matters a good deal,"
said Lady Jim dryly. "When poverty comes in love is likely to wink out any day. Of course I realize that yours is of a quality quite unusual. It always is, my dear. Your lover has thought that since time began."

"We'll have to take our fighting chance of that," Jack replied.

"Moysa, her eyes shining, nodded agreement. No great gain can be won without risk. She knew there was a chance that she might not find happiness in her love. But where it called her she must follow—she knew that certainly, to joy and to sorrow, the fuller experiences that must come to every woman who fulfills her destiny."

The memories of both Moysa and Lord Farquhar went back as it were in a bound, to a certain night some months before, when Farquhar, as Moysa's guardian, had talked to the girl seriously on the subject of her apparently growing regard for the romantic "highwayman," Jack Kilmeny.

—It was a still night, save only for the rushing waters of the river. The lamps of the sky had all been lit and were gliding coolly millions of miles away. The shadowed moonlight in the tapers offered a stage set to lower degrees.

The thoughts of the girl had drifted to speculation about the transplanted countryman of hers whose personality had come to interest her so greatly.

He had challenged her, trust in him
and she had responded with a pledge and an arm opened to let her hand pass between the shadowed moonlight and the stars.

"May I stroll out this dance with you, Miss Dwight?" Lord Farquhar asked formally, dropping into step with her.
Moysa and her guardian were kind-ered spirits. They never needed to explain themselves to each other. Both knew how to be unobtrusive.

"If you're not afraid of a scandal at being alone with me so far from a chaperon," the girl answered lightly.

He burst into a sigh. "I'm only afraid there won't be any. It's the penalty of age, my dear. I can claim all sorts of privileges without making Verinder jealous."

"Oh, Verinder," she scoffed.

"Should I have said Kilmeny?" he asked.

"I'll tell you a secret, guardy," whispered Moysa gaily. "You're a hundred years younger than either of them."

"I wish my glass told me so."
"Verinder," said Moysa in the heart. Mr. Verinder has never been young and Captain Kilmeny has forgotten how to be."

"I fancy Ned would be willing to learn how again if he had the proper teacher."

She gave him a small little squeeze.
"Haven't you got a little more to inquire?"

"Oh, I see—you in loco-parentis duty."

"Exactly. So it isn't going to be Ned?"

She looked across the turbid moonlit river before she answered. "I don't think so."

"Nor Verinder?"

"Goodness, no!" A little ripple of laughter flowed from her lips before she added: "He's changed his mind.
He's Joyce he wants now."

"Joyce? A dear from the case?" "Hm! Sure you didn't change
it for him?"

A dimple flashed into her cheeks. "I may have loved a little, but not half as much as Joyce."

"That young woman is a born flirt."
Lord Farquhar announced, his heart and the lovely face of his face in the sudden glow of the lighted match.

"Upon my word, I saw her making eyes at your highwayman the night
we met him here."

There was a woman's smile before she answered. "Anybody could see that he was interested in her."

"It doesn't matter to me who interests him, but I can't have any of my wards being so romantic over a Dick Turpin," he replied lightly.

She was leaning in the shadow, so that he could not see the eye sweep into her cheeks.

"The devil is going to disappoint
you. He's not a highwayman at all."

"Did he tell you so?"

"No. But I know it."

"Looks to me as if he might make a good one. The fellow is cool as a cucumber and afraid of nothing on two legs or four."

"You forget he is India's cousin."

"No, I'm remembering that. His father had a devil of a temper and his mother was as wild as an unbroken colt when I met her."

"The present times, were they?"

He gave her his frank smile. "You like this young man, Moysa?"

"Yes. Why shouldn't I?"

"Why not—if you don't like him too well?"

"So that's why you came out here-saw by Lady Farquhar a good deal and I thought you had come because you like to be with me."

"Come, let us reason together," he invited cheerfully. "We'll sit on the end of the wharf and dangle our legs
while your guardian finishes his cigar and smokes his pipe by you."

Lord Farquhar seemed in no hurry to begin, nor did Moysa attempt to hasten him. His cigar glowed and ashed and glowed again before he spoke.

"Odd how things work out, my dear.
There across the river are two men who would like to marry you. Both are good men, one a lawyer and the other a big of a bouncer perhaps, but neither is as safe a fellow as any girl could look for—not brilliant, but no fool either, and as steady as a clock."

"A breath of wind lifted the edge of her white skirt. She followed the suggestion, instinctively tucked it safely
under her bare knee, and murmured:
"Captain Kilmeny is his own certificate of merit. Any praise is surplusage."

He shrugged. "That's the perversity of it. You see all his merits and they don't touch you."

With a vicious little turn that was very charming, she turned merely upon him. "Are you by any chance proposing to him, Lord Farquhar?"

"Hm! He proposed for himself!"
her guardian asked bluntly.

"I believe he has."

"And you—didn't see it?"

"I couldn't."

"Borry!" He looked at the tip of his cigar and brushed away the ash.
"Because he's a no end good sort."

DISTRICT WILL PUT BOND ISSUE UP TO EXPERTS

Seeks Attorneys' Opinion Before Offering $2,700,000 Securities; Shepherd to Help Select Plan for Dam

The American Falls reservoir district's $2,700,000 bond issue, proceedings in regard to which were recently received final approval of Idaho's supreme court, will be submitted to Wood and Oakley, head attorneys of Chicago, for an opinion before the issue is offered for sale. It was decided by the district's directors at a special meeting here Monday.

In line with this decision, the district board authorized J. R. Butwell, legal representative of the district, to go to Chicago to confer with the bond attorneys in this regard. Directors believe that this procedure will facilitate the sale of the bonds, which were voted in May, last year, to cover cost of participation by the district in the construction of the American Falls reservoir and purchase of rights to water to be stored in it. Judge Butwell expects to leave for Chicago the last of this week after obtaining certification of the supreme court's decision and completing other work in connection with the submission of the issue for the specialists' opinion.

Shepherd to Choose Plan

P. E. Shepherd of Jerome, president of the district board, will attend a meeting in Denver Thursday of a committee of which he is a member that has been appointed by the secretary of the interior to examine and recommend for adoption the plan for the dam to be built at American Falls. It was announced at the directors' meeting here Monday. Engineers have drafted several plans for various types of dam to be built at American Falls, and from these plans the committee will make its selection.

The directors, at their meeting here Monday also discussed the district's budget for the coming fiscal year beginning November 1, next. Statement of the committee in charge of the general department of the district's work and estimate of expenditures for the remainder of the current year was laid before the directors by Assistant Secretary E. B. Johnson. Final action on the budget for the coming year is expected to be accomplished at a meeting to be held August 10.

All members of the district board were present at Monday's meeting. They are R. E. Shepherd, Jerome; W. F. Alworth, Filer; W. Spencer, Kimberly; J. H. Barker, Hild; H. K. Wiley, St. George; A. F. McClelland, Wendell; and F. E. Sayre, Bliss.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT WOULD TRAIN FOR WORK

E. D. Bloom Asks Kiwanians' Support in Inculcating Need for Toll in Minds of Boys and Girls

Desire to instill in the minds of boys and girls the idea that it is "an honor to work" was expressed by Ernest D. Bloom, superintendent of Twin Falls schools, in a talk before members of the Kiwanis club at a regular meeting Monday.
