Plans Made for Strong Fight in Forthcoming Biennial Legislative Session; Cites Case of 11-Year-Old Bride.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., July 30 (AP)—The clubwomen of Florida plan to make a strong fight at the forthcoming biennial legislative session in April and May, 1925, to have the marriage laws of the state amended, setting a limit upon the marriageable age of girls.

The matter was a subject of great interest at Tampa recently when a girl bride was brought before the county probate officer. It was discovered that the child's parents were dead and that she had been left in the care of her aged grandmother.

The woman in her comment, the only legal requirement to the child's marriage to a man 34 years of age. The union resulted in grief to the young wife. Now the club women, backed by judges, probate officers, and others, plan a fight to bring about enactment of laws designed to prevent a recurrence of such tragedies.

Judges Hopless "As it is present, the county judges are hopless," declared Mrs. Ames Norris, Tampa clubwoman, in making it known that her organization would carry the fight against the legislature.

University President Says Extension Bureau Aiding Farmers in State Greatly

MOSCOW, July 30—Two facts concerning agricultural conditions in southern Idaho, as seen by Dr. K. H. Upham of the University of Idaho who returned recently from an extended tour of the southern part of the state, were outstanding. They were, first, that good farming, intensive cultivation and business-like action in nearly every instance is producing profitable crops; and second, that never before has the extension service of the university, working through county agents, been of such value to farmers, or has there been a time when farmers realized to what an extent the extension service can aid in direct cooperation with local farmers.

"It is in periods of difficult situations that people seek experienced aid, and that has proven true this year when, with water shortage endangering nearly every crop, south Idaho farmers turned to university extension workers for assistance," Dr. Upham said. "I received many compliments concerning the work of the department, and especially did I hear praises for the work being done to relieve the water shortage situation in some sections where feed will be short and where butting dairy cattle might prove economically disastrous. In such cases extension workers have taken the responsibility of selling at reasonable prices such cattle in districts where local conditions are normal this year, rendering a valuable service to both parties of the transaction."

New Mexico Boats Four Stages of Civilization

Four stages of civilization have existed in New Mexico. The present American back of the Spanish, which came with the Spaniards in 1540. When they came they found the civilization of the Pueblo Indian, with at least seventy villages, cultivated fields and extensive irrigation. Co-existent with them were a prehistoric race, living in well-built dwellings with houses of stone, some of them four stories high, and they were cultivating irrigated fields. Their ditches and irrigated works were as well laid out as if run by modern engineers. They have entirely disappeared and we know only that they were here for an unknown period, beginning at least 1,000 years ago.

All that remains are the mighty ruins, some are in cities down on the plains and others are cliff dwellings, where houses are built on the cliffs, and some were cave dwellings. One building at Pueblo Bonito, which is one of the earliest apartment houses, had four stories and covered a greater area than the capitol at Washington. Today, remarks Adventure magazine, the traveler can see at one time the masonry of the pueblo dwellers, the Spanish occupation and the present Anglo-American development.

Care of Ferns

To keep ferns in a healthy and growing condition, to prevent and to kill insects and diseases, a proper course of attention should be carefully maintained at all times. Excess in moisture, heat, or dryness should never be allowed. In potting ferns after they pass the 4-inch pots, a potting stick should always be used, as the potter's level will not firm them with his fingers, and it secures evenness in potting. Ferns should be potted tight, especially old plants. They should be shifted into larger pots whenever necessary. Once a day to often enough to water a fern.

South American Languages. Spanish is spoken in all South American countries except Brazil, so it may be said to be more widely spoken than Portuguese, the tongue of the Brazilians. Brazil, however, has a population equal to that of the rest of the continent and Portuguese is spoken by as many South Americans as Spanish is.

Why Blinks Had to Reach Home on Schedule Time

Promptly as the office clock struck five Blinks with unusual rapidity prepared to start for home.

As he hustled into his overcoat and made for the door his desk man raised a surprised head. "What?" he said, "in a hurry again tonight? It's six nights now you've rushed home like this and haven't waited for a soda at the old stand. I'm beginning to think I've offended you, or something like that."

"No," Blinks laughed. "You haven't hurt my sensitive soul, but the fact is this, we've got a cook up at the house now, and while the missus didn't mind my rolling in late the cook won't stay unless I arrive every evening on time."

Sailor's Snug Harbor. Sailor's Snug Harbor, the home for old and disabled seamen, was planned by Capt. Thomas Randall and founded by his son, Robert Richard Randall. He bequeathed his farm known as Snug Harbor, lying just south of Union square, Manhattan, for the purpose. The will was prepared by Alexander Hamilton and Daniel D. Thompson, and Gov. De Witt Clinton helped to secure the charter. The home was founded in 1811, though the corner stone was not laid until 1831; the first building was opened in 1838.

TO THE VOTES OF TWIN FALLS COUNTY.

In announcing my candidacy for the nomination for the office of county treasurer on the republican ticket I stand on my record as a resident and citizen of this county for the last 20 years, during all of which time I have been a taxpayer. Your consideration of my name at the primaries would be appreciated. E. B. WILLIAMS.

Schooner on Iceberg

A steamer was rounding Cape Horn recently when the captain saw a gigantic iceberg floating in the water, and on it was a large three-masted schooner with its boats still in position, but apparently no one was on board. It was impossible to get near enough to it to see its name, and what had happened to its crew remains a mystery.

Changes In Business Policy

Many and far-reaching changes are today taking place in the policies upon which business is conducted. Most of the policies that have been in force for the past twenty-five years were based on the cardinal fact of a steadily rising market. Fluctuations were accepted as incidental and temporary; but the assurance of a general average tendency upward was the basis of every attitude that became formulated into a policy.

Recent changes in business policy—changes coming about with the past year or more—are based on the final acceptance of the fact that we have entered a period of a non-rising—in all likelihood a falling—market. So long as it was possible to assume that the new price levels represented but a temporary depression the old policies were bravely and tenaciously adhered to; but when it became clear that in all human probability the market would continue downward, then an adjustment of basic policies became imperative.

Chief among the policies that have necessarily been changed are those that relate to the creation of Demand.

Under the old policies a certain Demand was inevitable, and came to be accepted as a matter of course. It was the cardinal policy of almost every producer and distributor to attempt to capture a generous share of the existing Demand. Not a great deal of thought was given to creating Demand itself.

But now that the great Demand has relaxed until there is not enough to give everybody a liberal share, it has brought business to the imperative consideration of two things: One is how to get a full share of the Demand by taking it away from others by force of competition. The other is how to create more Demand, so there will be enough for all.

The great and imperative necessity of stimulating and creating Demand for the products of industry has at last given Advertising a position of importance in business policies far in excess of any that it has ever known.
