THREE HOLD UP BANK AT EAGLE AND GET $2700

Bandits Rob Depository Near Boise and Escape in Capital Taxi; Force Cashier Into Vault at Point of Gun.

BOISE, Aug. 11 (AP)—Sheriffs of two states were tonight scouring the country for three bandits who raided the bank of Eagle this morning, took $2700 from the strong box, locked E. H. Fikkan, cashier of the bank, and his 18-year-old daughter, Margaret, in the vault and escaped in a Boise taxi-cab.

Maenville, H. F. (Hank) Endsley, taxicab man and driver of the bandit car, is held by the Ada county sheriff for investigation. He said he had been held by the robbers all night in a deserted shack and was forced to drive the car to the scene of the robbery and then "drive like hell" to a point beyond Middleton, where the holdups had taken place.

Two Do Work. Scuttling under the low plate glass windows of the bank, two of the bandits, masked with black handkerchiefs, appeared in the bank door suddenly at 9:15 this morning.

Cashier Fikkan had just opened the vault and his strong box preparatory to starting business and was at the moment sitting at his desk in front of the bank. Margaret Fikkan, his daughter and assistant, was at an adding machine back of the teller's window.

When one of the masked men, covering Fikkan with a gun, commanded him to throw up his hands, the girl ran into the open vault. The bandits crashed through the low swinging door in front of the bank's desk, covered the main room back of the girl and out of sight of the street, and ordered the girl out of the vault.

She came out but refused to put up her hands. "What one of the men was rifling the strong box and the cashier covering the man and girl, Fikkan, endeavored to get a view of the bandits' car parked in the street east of the bank building, with a driver unmasked and a crouching figure in the rear seat which he thought was a woman.

Faced to Wall. But the man with the gun, seeing the direction of his gaze, growled, "You're looking around too much," and faced him to the wall, meanwhile calling to his confederate in the vault "make it snappy."

Protests Against Negro's Candidacy Amazes President

Coolidge Not to Intervene in Colored Man's Seeking Congressional Office in N. Y.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (AP)—Replying to a letter of protest against the candidacy of a negro in New York state for congress, President Coolidge today expressed "amazement" at the suggestion that he intervene and reaffirmed his intention of administering the constitution, which, he pointed out, "guarantees equal rights to all our citizens, without discrimination on account of race or color."

CRUISER SENT TO AID PLANE

Landing of Supplies for Round the World Fliers Presents Serious Problems.

REKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 11 (AP)—Admiral Mjardur today flashed a message from his flagship, the Richmond, to the cruiser Raleigh, off the coast of Greenland to endeavor to find the Danish steamer Thorger Rask and give her all possible assistance in making her way through the ice towards Angmagssalik, to land the supplies she has on board for the American round-the-world fliers.

The order was sent by Admiral Mjardur when news reached here that the Gertrude Bank, which had been drifting about for more than a week amid ice floes and unable to reach her destination, at last had broken out of the pack, but still lay to the south of Angmagssalik.

The Iceland traveler Karl Golumundsson is also on her way to pick up the Gertrude Bank for which she has 303 tons of coal. It is thought the three vessels will meet tomorrow afternoon. The Raleigh on Sunday made her way through an ice pack, but the sea was smooth, and though the sea was smooth, a storm of fog along the east coast of Greenland prevented the two reconnaissance planes on board the cruiser from hopping off and making a survey of the coast-line in an endeavor to pick out a safe harbor for the planes.

DAVIS ATTACKS G. O. P. RULE IN HIS ACCEPTANCE

Democratic Presidential Nominee in Driving Rain Before Thousands Bitterly Denounce Administration.

GOFF PLAZA, Clarkston, W. Va., Aug. 11 (AP)—John W. Davis opened his campaign for the presidency of the United States in a veritable torrent of rain, a rain that soaked the thousands of persons who had journeyed from many cities to witness the formal ceremonies to notify the candidate of his selection as the standard bearer of the democratic party.

Undaunted by the weather, Mr. Davis stood upon the speaker's platform while a friend held an umbrella above his head and launched a bitter attack upon the republican party, declaring that it had shaken public confidence to "its very foundation." And the great throng gathered to listen to his speech, only a few of whom were able to provide a makeshift shelter from the storm with newspapers and other non-water proof materials, stayed on despite the rain. They listened to Mr. Davis denounce the republicans for having "exhibited a deeper and more wide spread corruption than any that this generation of Americans had been called upon to witness."

Confidence Needed

The supreme need of the time, said the nominee, is to bring back to the people confidence in their government. Having thus sounded the rallying cry of democracy's hosts in the battle ahead, Mr. Davis with vigor and forethought presented the program to which he pledged himself if given the mandate of the American people.

As promised the chief features of this program, an honest, impartial and just government; tax and tariff reform; farm aid; cooperation "officially" with all legitimate endeavors to lessen the prospect of war; economy in government and conservation of all the nation's natural resources and strict enforcement of the prohibition as well as other laws.

RUHR HOLDS UP LONDON PARLEY

Reparations Conference Work Meets Stumbling Block in Stand on Coal Mines.

LONDON, Aug. 11 (AP)—The reparations conference has finally shaken itself down to the basis question of the Ruhr evacuation, and the leaders are attempting in private interviews to effect a settlement of this acute political problem, which really is not on the agenda of the conference.

M. Herriot, the French premier, had a long interview today with Dr. Stresemann, the German foreign minister, Chancellor Marx and Dr. Strossmeyer, called on M. Thiébaux, the Belgian premier, and the leading German delegates also conferred with Ramsay MacDonald, the British premier.

Though M. Herriot is supposed to have returned from Paris with authority to agree to the Ruhr evacuation within 11 months, the question when evacuation will begin and the details of its execution, including the desire of the French and Belgians to keep their nationals on the railways, must be settled among the French, Belgians, English and Germans before the conference can proceed in a definite way with the program for instituting the Dawes plan.

DAMAGING ADMISSION DRAWN FROM DEFENSE IN MURDER HEARING

State Attorney in Loeb-Lepold Case Scores Important Point When Chicago Alienist Acknowledges Possibility of Built-Up Line of Evidence to Save Slayers of Franks Boy.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (AP)—The theories of the phantasy life and functional disorder of the endocrine glands built up by the defense through its fourth alienist, Dr. H. S. Hulbert of Chicago, in its plea for mitigation of punishment of the youths charged with the slaying of young Robert Franks, was attacked vigorously by the state today in the hearing before Judge John R. Caverly.

Battering away at the mass of testimony by the defense in the contention that the youths had been coerced by childish phantasies which continued to sway them as they developed into manhood, Loeb, drawing of committing the perfect crime and Leopold blantly following because of a single slave dream that had persisted for years, Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, forced from Dr. Hulbert the admission that it was possible the youths had been rehearsed by attorneys and doctors interested in building up their defense.

Question Is Debatable.

Hammering no less relentlessly, the prosecutor gained the admission that the effect on the endocrine glands on forming and fixing mentality is as yet a seriously debated question in the medical profession.

The young mental pathologist admitted that his conclusions that both Loeb and Leopold were "mentally sick" were based chiefly on statements made to him by Loeb and Leopold, and that he knew the two had lied to him in some instances, mainly through withholding information they were asked to divulge.

FOUR CAPTURED CHARGED WITH ROBBING STORES

Local Grocer Bound and Knoll Establishment Looted; Quick Work of Posse Ends Flight at Rogerson.

Charged with commission of three robberies within an hour's time, Roy McIntyre, known as "Chot", George Walters, junior; Russell Cawender and "Bud" Lewis were captured Monday night at Rogerson within a few moments after the commission of the third robbery.

Walters, Cawender and Lewis were captured, single-handed by Blair Langford, who was upon the market when they arrived in Rogerson. McIntyre got away when Langford approached and was arrested by T. T. Prator upon his arrival at Rogerson with Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Jones, in pursuit of the robbery suspects.

Records of all of the four are familiar to the sheriff's force and police, and are believed responsible for recent petty larceny as well as infraction of the liquor laws.

The series of robberies Monday night that is attributed to the four men, began at about 8 o'clock, when four masked men entered the store at the corner of Lakes grocery, 1027, Blue Lakes boulevard, and escaped in an automobile with the contents of the cash drawer, amounting to about $5, after binding the proprietor, "Bill E. Gray" and his son, leaving him lying on the floor in this store, and jerking out the telephone.

Within 30 minutes afterward word came to the sheriff's office that robbers had raided the general store at Knoll and that F. W. Neals, Knoll district farmer, had been held up and robbed of a gold watch by four masked and armed men in an automobile.

Busses Play Havoc With Railroads In Idaho, Board Hears

Opening Session of State Equalization Session Featured by Representatives of Roads Wanting Reductions.

BOISE, Aug. 11 (AP)—Jinney busses are playing havoc with the revenues of Idaho railroads, particularly the branch lines, according to pleas entered before the opening session of state equalization board meeting today by representatives of practically all railroads operating in the state.

Reports of decreased dividend payments "may" result for the moment, as well as pleas to have valuations reduced or remain as they were assessed last year. One railroad representative pleaded for a reduced valuation, so his company could at least "make" taxes and operating expenses.

The board at its opening session today heard practically all representatives of railway companies, and took up power and communication campaigns at the close of the meeting this afternoon.

If Lieutenant MacReady is not available, Doolittle will fly alone, he said.

Lieutenant Doolittle arrived here today from Dayton, Ohio, after a zigzag flight over the Grand Tetons and the Pacific northwest. He will start a non-stop flight from San Diego to Denver at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow. He will use on this flight a specially equipped De Havilland plane. For the Honolulu flight he plans to use a sister ship of the monoplane T-2 in which Lieutenants Kelly and MacReady crossed the continent from New York to San Diego in a great non-stop run in May, 1923, or a plane similar to that which is now being piloted around the world by Lieutenant Lowell H. Ancient Heathen Deity Beelzebub was a heathen deity to whom the Jews ascribed the sovereignty of the evil spirits, calling him the "prince of the devils" (Matthew XII, 24). "Beelzebub"—or more correctly Beelchub—is the name by which the god Baal was worshipped by the Ekronites. The word meant "lord of flies." It being the office of this deity to protect his worshippers from the flies and gnats with which Ekron was infested. As the Jews regarded all heathen deities as devils, the name "Beelzebub" was applied by them to the chief of the demons. Milton, however, in "Paradise Lost," makes Beelzebub second in power to Satan.—Kansas City Star.

THE GUMPS—ON THE OTHER HAND

TELLS OF NEW MANNER USED IN IRRIGATING

Full Head of Water One-Third of the Time Will Get More Results Than Small Stream Straight Through.

The flow of water in the irrigation canals which get a considerable portion of their supply from the natural flow of the streams has now reached about its lowest point, says M. R. Lewis, associate professor of agricultural engineering, University of Idaho.

This is a very good time for the water users on streams and canals where water has always been delivered on a continuous flow basis to try out the rotation method. The flow on practically all projects has been so reduced that it is impossible to carry all the water available to any canal during a small part of the time. Much better results will be attained by running a full head part of the time and allowing the canals to be dry during the interval between runs than by running a small stream all the time.

Rotation Saves Time. During this season of the year hay and grain are being harvested and any plan which will permit the irrigation to be completed in a small part of the time will make a saving in labor expense possible. By using a full head and staying right with it the irrigator will be able to cover more land with the same amount of water than by using a partial head, thus saving water. By doing all the irrigation in one or two days out of a couple of weeks, time is saved which may well be spent on some other work.

Seepage losses in canals and laterals can also be very materially reduced by this method. Whenever there is water in a ditch some of it will be seeping out through the bottom and sides. This in canals and laterals is by killing the amount of water entering most ditches. As soon as the water is out this loss must stop. If there is no flow for two-thirds of the time, nearly two-thirds of the loss is prevented.

Helps Control Moss. Where it is possible the most satisfactory method of controlling the moss loss is a very large part of the total plants by drying out. Moss will die out on a few days' exposure to the hot sun. When this has been killed in this way it can only start again from seed which is much slower than where it grows out from the roots again after being cut.

Had Odd Affliction. In "Ten Years Experience in a Sanatorium," published by the Medical Research Council, Sir St. Clair Thompson describes a case of a patient who was afflicted with an infection of the throat believed to be tuberculous. He was very husky, and was gradually losing his voice. Then the doctors noticed small black bodies under the skin of his throat. After the microscope they found a fungus called aspergillus fumigatus, and soon cured the patient. This disease is chiefly met with in birds.

African Oranges. The largest orange orchard in the world is located in South Africa. In that hot arid cultivation has reached such proportions that it is reported South Africa will have 7,000,000 boxes of oranges available for export in a few years.

Lie's Milestone. You can recognize the approach to heavy street by the little piles of discarded tires along the way.

Alleges Brothers Slew Their Parents

Arthur and Benjamin Dorschheimer, wealthy business men, are held in custody here in Gray, Pa., charged by another brother, Frank E. Dorschheimer, with the murder of their parents ten years ago. The elder Dorschheimers were found dead in their gas-filled home in Lancaster, Pa., and the deaths were ascribed to accident. Frank E. Dorschheimer now alleges his brothers confessed they turned on the gas. They indignantly deny the charges, declaring their brother was inspired by "spirits." Their sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Pennypacker of Philadelphia, is to be a witness.

QUEEN FOILED IN PICTURE TAKING

Holland Royalty Dislikes Being Photographed and Finds Lapps Also Do.

THE HAGUE, Holland, Aug. 11 (AP)—Queen Wilhelmina, her consort, Prince Henry, and the young Princess Juliana have selected a holiday resort which is somewhat out of the usual where royalty is concerned. They are spending a month in Northern Lapland, well above the Arctic Circle where they are living the simple life, making excursions on foot, visiting the Lapp reindeer camps and sleeping in tourist huts like ordinary folk.

Camera Hunting. The Queen has a mission for photography, but a violent dislike to being snaphottered herself. According to letters received here, the Queen found her dislike shared in an unexpected manner by the pictureage Lapps, nomads whose objection to being "snapped" is based on religious grounds. Every time a photo-lens leveled her camera at them they at once turned their backs and fled. The royal party will return to Holland by way of the Norwegian fjords.

Frying Pan and Fire. A man in the country, very free because there are so few to talk to, so he goes to the city, where, likely as not, there is nobody to talk to.—Excerpt.

Leading Question. A Quaker once hearing a person tell how much he felt for another, who was suffering from need, "in assistance, dryly asked him: "Friend, 'hast thou felt in thy pocket for him?"

Theatres

Three splendid acts of Vaudeville opened at the Idaho theatre last night and they are without doubt the best entertainers that have hit Twin Falls in a long time.

The hit of the bill is little Miss Shirley who has a most wonderful voice, singing her numbers in a way that shows long experience. Miss Shirley is only three years of age. She started her career five years ago in New York City singing at the hospitals to the wounded soldiers. Mrs. Shirley in a monologue is very funny and her 'bass' solos are surprisingly rendered.

The closing act, "A Good Skit" by Burnell and Burnell is a comedy skit of the race track. The regular picture program completes the show.

CITY ORDINANCE FORBIDS FUTURE POPLAR PLANTING

Council Passes Rule Preventing Further Setting Out of Two Troublesome Varieties of Trees.

Members of the city council at their regular weekly meeting Monday night passed an ordinance forbidding the future planting of poplars of two varieties in the city of Twin Falls. This ordinance, which forbids the planting of either of these two varieties of trees within 75 feet of a sewer or within 50 feet of a sidewalk was passed in order to prevent the future planting of the two varieties of trees which have caused so much trouble in the past.

The ordinance is copied after those now in effect in such cities as Spokane, Seattle, Portland, Tacoma, Boise and other cities. As passed, the ordinance will take effect on the 15th of August. Present trees will be left undisturbed until they damage sidewalks, pavements or clog sewers and then they must be cut down. Ten days' notice will be given the owner of the trees and if the tree is not destroyed in that length of time the city will be liable to the owner for not less than $1 or more than $100 or commitment until fine and costs are paid.

Some Discussion.

Prior to the passage of the ordinance which was done under suspension of the rules, several citizens told the council how they felt about the matter. J. D. Tucker, former mayor, declared that he was unalterably opposed to the cutting down of these trees and declared the "pitiable sum of $300 or $400 it cost the city as asserted by Mr. All," to clean clogged sewers was nothing compared to the value of shade trees to the city. He declared he was confident that the citizens of Twin Falls would be willing to pay $3000 a year for more rather than have the trees cut down. His stand, it was brought-out, was due to the misunderstanding that all poplar trees now standing must go.

According to Mr. Keel, poplar trees can be replaced by elm or maple trees furnished by L. E. Beckwith, free of charge. The only cost being estimated by J. A. Waters at $10 for taking out the poplars and planting the maple or elm trees. After some further discussion the ordinance was passed unanimously.

Pass Parking Rule.

Members of the city council also passed an ordinance forbidding the parking of cars in front of the Rogers and Perrine hotels in the place already designated by white lines for more than ten minutes. The ordinance was necessary said Mayor Shad Hodgins inasmuch as the lines had been ignored by certain persons residing in the city and no other rule could be taken to make these things stop. A fine of from $1 to $100 or commitment until paid was placed in the ordinance as penalty.

Bids for the disposal of city garbage were opened at the meeting. After reading the bids the city council voted to reject all bids and call for further bids to be opened at the meeting next Monday evening. Grooms and McCoy bid $325 a ton for the garbage delivered, as did J. D. Stutz. Ira McClintock, who is hauling the garbage at present made a bid of $4. A committee was named from the state department of agriculture stating that the bureau of meat inspection would be glad to co-operate with the city in the inspection of animals slaughtered in Twin Falls county.

Shark's Hide Valuable

A valuable piece of the non-wintering shark is the skin. The thin outer skin is removed by a secret process, and when dried it has a remarkable hardness, and is used by cabinet-makers for giving punch to hard woods, ivory and so on.

The inner skin is tanned so carefully that it eventually yields a water proof, non-cracking leather. Different parts of the skin give different shades of color, and the tanning process succeeds in preserving those dark greens and browns which are the most beautiful of the skin have quite a hard appearance.

ROBBERS STEAL SAFE WITH $800 INSIDE; GET AWAY IN AUTO

SALT LAKE, Aug. 11 (AP)—A safe weighing approximately 800 pounds, and containing $800 in cash and checks was stolen from the Mission Cigar store here by three robbers at an early hour yesterday morning.

Entrance was gained through a skylight on the building, and with the aid of a block and tackle, the safe was hoisted to the roof from where it was wheeled to the edge and dropped to the ground. It was then placed in a large touring car and the robbers drove away.

The persons witnessed the placing of the safe in the automobile, but thought the men were removing something from a car near the cigar store and failed to report the robbery to the police.

but said that Leopold had told him his preference of a girl victim was influenced by a phantasy in which he had visioned German soldiers attacking French girls.

Opinion Conflict.

Dr. Hulbert joined the three alienists who had preceded him in the witness box in stating that Leopold, while intellectually powerful was of an emotional age of below 12 years, but Mr. Crowe got from him the statement "Leopold has more emotion than he says exist."

Mr. Crowe asked the witness if, when Leopold was not "posing" with his supermentally on guard, he was not emotional.

"If it is possible," Dr. Hulbert replied, when the prosecutor asked him if Leopold had not been "posing" through-out the various jail examinations while portraying himself as unemotional and the ready subject of phantasies.

Dr. Hulbert added, however, that Leopold's jail posing only magnified his defects, and that he had seen readily through the dissembling.

The mental pathologist said that a physician's examination would not indicate he was mentally sick, nor that he harbored criminalistic tendencies. "Therefore, he said, he was unable to point out on various X-ray plates "one physical defect on either defendant, which accounts for his crime," as demanded by Mr. Crowe.

Glands Subject of Study.

In his attack on the functional disorders of the endocrine glands theory, Mr. Crowe asked:

"What is the function of the pineal gland?"

"It regulates the balance of the endocrine glands," answered the doctor.

"Is it not a fact that medical men know practically nothing of the function of the pineal gland?" asked the prosecutor.

"Some of them, yes," replied Dr. Hulbert.

"Is it a fact that there is some question that the pineal is a gland at all?" asked Mr. Crowe.

DANES OFFER FLIERS HELP

Government Gives Americans Permission to Establish Base on Cape Farewell.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (AP)—American Minister Prince at Copenhagen informed the state department today that the Danish government desired to give every assistance to the American army fliers who were offered and had granted permission for the establishment of an emergency air base in the vicinity of Cape Farewell. Permission also has been given for the proposed visit of Lieutenant Biswell, the flight advance officer, to Jullinshavn and Frederiksberg.

The Danish authorities pointed out, however, that navigation is extremely dangerous in the vicinity of Frederiksdal, and advised that the cruiser Milwaukee get in touch with the Danish inspection vessel, Islands Falk, which is in the vicinity of Vigtun. Necessary instructions have been given by the Danish government to the Islands Falk.

They had stopped their car and were standing near it when Mr. Langford came upon them. McIntyre was standing at some distance from the car. Langford ordered the men in the group to throw up their hands. All complied except McIntyre, who made his escape in the darkness. Langford held the three men under cover of his gun until the arrival of the deputy sheriff and posse. McIntyre was located within a block of his companions. He offered no resistance when Prater drew his gun and commanded him to stop.

Weapons of various kinds were taken from all of the members of the suspected quartet.

Suspicion turned to McIntyre and his companions when the police compared the number given by Gracey as that of the robbers' car with that borne by McIntyre's car, although there was an slight discrepancy in the two numbers.

BOISE MAN NOT IN FAVOR OF DAY

BOISE, Aug. 11 (AP)—T. L. Martin, Boise attorney, is not in sympathy with the plan proposed for "defense day," September 12, and today declined to serve as state chairman of Governor Moore's committee, Mr. Martin's letter to the Governor declining the position follows:

"Dear Governor: "I just returned last evening, having been out of the city for several days, and I learn through the Statesman and Capital News of August 8 that I have been appointed by you as chairman of the state committee on 'national defense day' to be observed September 12, 1924.

"I must decline to act as chairman of this committee for the reason that I am not in sympathy with the purposes to be accomplished by the committee as published.

"Personally, I feel it unnecessary and ill-advised to set apart one day each year to be known as 'defense day' in order to test the ability and patriotism of our citizens. This mobilization can be of no practical value, and can easily be misunderstood by other nations as a military demonstration."

Meanwhile the bandits stuffed their plunder into a sack and rushed for the door.

Toward Caldwell. The robbers scrambled into the big car. A quick order was given the driver and in a few seconds the car was moving at high speed on the pavement leading toward Star, Middleton and Caldwell.

While the bandit car was speeding toward Star and the sheriff's car was on the way from Boise, Banker Fikkan, in the sitting wagon dimly lighted by a single electric bulb, was attacking the mechanism of the lock with a screwdriver. It required only the removal of a few screws to release the catch which held the heavy system of bolts in place. This done, the banker succeeded by tugging at the bolts, in getting them out of their sockets and the door swung open into fresh air and daylight.

Breakfast Food

"Matrimonially Speaking"
By Mrs. Hugh McKay
My husband would make a fine hotel manager.
I'm so sure of this because of the thorough-going way in which he oversees everything around our house.

There's not a day that he doesn't suggest some additional straightening up in some of the rooms, or a little additional cleaning in another spot.
This front porch ought to have been swept off today—it's awfully deep in dust," is one of his favorite remarks.

He could run a hotel—all right, all right. But I wouldn't apply for the position of his hotel housekeeper.
To be sure, he's a real "house" man. What makes you go out this evening?"

It is an urgent problem to which honest citizens need to give more thought than heretofore.
Fortunately for society itself as well as for such would-be honest men as this one, there are here and there persons and organizations who do give the ex-convict a square deal and an "equal opportunity" with other men to make good.

These are hard words from the standpoint of the Klan, and they must be doubly hard to those Klan members who, interesting themselves in politics both local and national, have volunteered their support to the Wisconsin senator in his race for the Presidency.

Senator LaFollette does not go far as to say that the support of Klansmen is unwelcome but he makes it altogether plain that Klan sympathizers and Klan principles can look for little consideration at his hands.

Josselyn's Wife

Ellen hardly drew her breath. She had never had a man's confidence before.
"I gave up my painting, and I went into the firm with my father," he pursued. "A year ago, we were both in the library with her, when she, well, she just gave a sort of sigh, that was all. Her next got tired, there was no pain. And for a while we thought my father was going, too. He dropped and brooded—it was ghastly. He'd always been so young for his age. But now he seemed broken, somehow."

"Ellen went about for something to say, fearful of chilling her mother.
"Ellen seems young now," she ventured at last.
"None? Of course he does!" Gibbs assented half-angrily. "Mind you," he added, speaking fast and vigorously, "I told you, he had a perfect right to cry, but he got it out. That's his affair. But to marry this pink-checked, curly-headed, stupid clank model—if she was that! I only saw her once. She was engaged, when my father met her, to a big black-mustached fellow who had a couple of living wives. That's how she got set upon a rise of ground, and provided with wide verandas for the summer crowds; verandas deserted now under their bare awning frames.

"The meal came, hot and odorous and appetizing, and they talked while they ate. Gibbs took her on the first acquaintance with Mrs. Rose.
"Was a small kid, ten or twelve, in Rome, do you see? And she was there with her first husband, Torrey. My mother was kind to her, we were at the same hotel, and she was awfully kind to me. She had a brother with her, about my age, and we saw a good deal of each other. Later, when she was a widow, she turned up in Paris with the two children. My mother and father were staying there for a while, before leaving me there to study. And later, she came here, and married another man, a dull old fellow, and now of course she regards me as a member of her family."

"She went to school in Boston with my mother," Ellen said. "But I never saw her until a few years ago. Now that I've visited her I can see just what she needed, two hooded girls. I suppose they told you father?" Gibbs said. "I've not been home since, if I suppose he's established her there, if they got in on Wednesday, and she's prowling among my mother's books and faces and jewelry, can't I not?"

"You're quite right, my dear," he said presently, in a softened tone. "You make me feel as though I had been putting her finger right on the vital spot sometimes, and I believe my mother would agree with you!"
Ellen's happy color flooded her sensitive face.

"I've not seen my father since this thing happened, two hooded girls. I suppose they told you father?" Gibbs said. "I've not been home since, if I suppose he's established her there, if they got in on Wednesday, and she's prowling among my mother's books and faces and jewelry, can't I not?"

"The orchards have been greatly benefited from six to nine years with alfalfa, fed to the trees instead of taking it out for livestock. These orchards have also had 2000 sprayer loads of manure the last two seasons, and have yielded all at the measure Mr. Stephens could secure at a reasonable cost.

"These trees were planted in 1908 or 1912 and have made a vigorous growth for several years. The alfalfa and manure fruit bank for 1925. The very best portion of the orchard, namely, that which was irrigated the night of the worst freeze in early May, will yield over a ton per acre on single acres.

THE FORUM

COSTLY POPLARS.
Editor Twin Falls News:
Regarding the poplar trees: The council is right, and Mr. Sweeney is wrong. The poplar is a source of damage and serve absolutely no purpose that is not served equally well by other trees. Not only do they damage sewers, sidewalks and house foundations, but they absolutely ruin all lawns and flower beds, not only on the property where they are planted, but on the adjoining property also. It costs several dollars more to water the lawns with poplars in the neighborhood, and there will not be any real lawn at that.

And as to value, everyone knows that property planted to roses and other flowers with a fine lawn and a few hardwood trees, brings a better price and is easier to sell than property in a poplar-infested neighborhood. By all means cut them down; then we can have some real trees, besides flowers and lawns.

In The News of August 10 there appeared an article from the pen of my neighbor, Mr. Sweeney, and it led me to do with the recent orders of our city commissioners, that all poplar trees situated in parking along paved streets must be taken out.

Ellen hardly drew her breath. She had never had a man's confidence before.
"I gave up my painting, and I went into the firm with my father," he pursued. "A year ago, we were both in the library with her, when she, well, she just gave a sort of sigh, that was all. Her next got tired, there was no pain. And for a while we thought my father was going, too. He dropped and brooded—it was ghastly. He'd always been so young for his age. But now he seemed broken, somehow."

Ellen went about for something to say, fearful of chilling her mother.
"Ellen seems young now," she ventured at last.
"None? Of course he does!" Gibbs assented half-angrily. "Mind you," he added, speaking fast and vigorously, "I told you, he had a perfect right to cry, but he got it out. That's his affair. But to marry this pink-checked, curly-headed, stupid clank model—if she was that! I only saw her once. She was engaged, when my father met her, to a big black-mustached fellow who had a couple of living wives. That's how she got set upon a rise of ground, and provided with wide verandas for the summer crowds; verandas deserted now under their bare awning frames.

"Was a small kid, ten or twelve, in Rome, do you see? And she was there with her first husband, Torrey. My mother was kind to her, we were at the same hotel, and she was awfully kind to me. She had a brother with her, about my age, and we saw a good deal of each other. Later, when she was a widow, she turned up in Paris with the two children. My mother and father were staying there for a while, before leaving me there to study. And later, she came here, and married another man, a dull old fellow, and now of course she regards me as a member of her family."

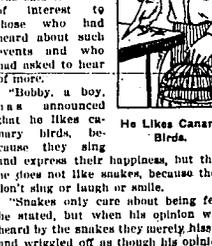

"She went to school in Boston with my mother," Ellen said. "But I never saw her until a few years ago. Now that I've visited her I can see just what she needed, two hooded girls. I suppose they told you father?" Gibbs said. "I've not been home since, if I suppose he's established her there, if they got in on Wednesday, and she's prowling among my mother's books and faces and jewelry, can't I not?"

"You're quite right, my dear," he said presently, in a softened tone. "You make me feel as though I had been putting her finger right on the vital spot sometimes, and I believe my mother would agree with you!"
Ellen's happy color flooded her sensitive face.

"I've not seen my father since this thing happened, two hooded girls. I suppose they told you father?" Gibbs said. "I've not been home since, if I suppose he's established her there, if they got in on Wednesday, and she's prowling among my mother's books and faces and jewelry, can't I not?"

the careless way she suddenly thought of inviting me to her Thanksgiving house party. I never had such a wretched, uncomfortable time in my life; perhaps it was my own fault!"
She told him all about it, incessantly, the interest in his handsome eyes. Perhaps this absurd revelation of a girl's heart was novel to a man who found the sex remarkable in all its phases, perhaps with heavy like Ellen's opposite him, and a delicious breakfast luncheon, she said equally absorbing.
Warned and contented, they went out to the car again, and again Ellen was wrapped in slugs, and disguised by the big dark glasses.

WATER DELIVERY BASIS ADVANCES TO 80 PER CENT

Twin Falls Canal Management Increases Flow Through Ditches When Natural Flow of River Drops.

Order for increase in water delivery through the Twin Falls canal system to 80 per cent until all of the storage water to the credit of the Twin Falls Canal company is exhausted was issued Monday evening, according to announcement by Burton Smith general manager. The extra water will arrive at Milling today and will be available throughout the irrigation system on the following day, Mr. Smith said.

Increase to 80 per cent delivery followed on the heels of an order issued last Friday increasing delivery from 60 to 70 per cent, and was determined upon because of unexpected increase in the natural flow of Snake river in such a manner that it was possible Monday while operating on a 60 per cent basis, to store surplus water in Lake Walcott. Natural flow of Snake river on Sunday had increased so that there was available at Millar 2350 second feet of natural flow water.

It is anticipated that storage water will be exhausted here from a possible 30 days, when it is believed the peak of principal crop requirements will have been past.

CHICKEN STEALING GETS YOUNG MEN IN TROUBLE

Sudden decision on the part of six young men and as many young women to stage a chicken roast with stolen chickens led to the arrest of all of the young men involved, five of whom remain in jail here from their arrest until Monday, when they were given a hearing before Judge C. P. Duvall in probate court. Two of the young men pleaded guilty to larceny of the two chickens mentioned in the complaint and assumed all responsibility for the affair.

E. O. Cain, residing a mile west of Dead Man's gulch, whose chickens were stolen, is desirous of prosecuting the young men, county authorities stated Monday.

The sixth youth, who was not taken into custody Saturday night, appeared at the sheriff's office Monday in response to official request. He drove the girls to their homes after the appearance of the sheriff on the scene Saturday night. It was stated.

Smelling Salts. Fainting indicates that the action of the heart has for some reason become disturbed, with the result that the blood is no longer properly and regularly pumped up to the brain. The essential feature of "smelling salts" is the ammonia—the other ingredients being added to make the effect more pleasant—and when we sniff this ammonia we irritate and stimulate a special group of nerve cells called the respiratory center—situated in the base of the brain. This center, feeling irritated, immediately sends out a message to the lungs, telling them to take in more air—to counteract the effects of the ammonia. So we are forced to breathe more deeply, and the oxygen that we thereby take in enriches the blood, restores the proper circulation to the brain, and so restores full consciousness.
