CROWDS ATTEND SECOND DAY OF COUNTY'S FAIR

Favorable Weather Draws Thousands to See Exhibits and Witness Program of Races; Big Success.

With most favorable weather and with a throng of people moving slowly through exhibits, the gathering today at the fairgrounds was a most successful one. The fairgrounds were filled with the expanded grandstand that accommodates 4000 persons and extending over into the bleachers to witness the program of special events and entertainment. The Twin Falls county's ninth annual fair at Elmer, struck its full stride on its second day.

Wednesday, and established another success to the long train of successes in the institution's history.

Judging of livestock entries was completed Wednesday and judges in farm products, horticulture, and other departments were pushing their work to completion in order that fairgoers viewing the exhibits today may be advised through the agency of well-colored bits of ribbon as to the awards in all departments.

Parade Today.

Parade of the exhibited livestock in front of the grandstand at the opening of the racing and fair entertainment program at 1 o'clock this afternoon is to be an outstanding feature of the fair today.

From every viewpoint, according to common consent, the fair this year is to be one of the most enjoyable and beneficial as well as successful in the annals of Twin Falls county's fair.

Exhibits generally are extensive and well-sorted. Special effort has been put forth to gather together a display of farm products, fruits and vegetables that will forever ally any impression as to disaster as an inescapable consequence of water shortage, and the result gives splendid justification of the effort and its purpose. Growing enthusiasm over the possibilities of the season and the fair is evident. Producers are certain to result from inspection of these exhibits which are grouped in the big agricultural hall in which a gorgeous display of flowers serves as a magnificent centerpiece.

Women's Department.

Emphasis also has been laid this year on the departments of special interest to women and ladies, both of needlework and kitchen products have rewarded effort put forth in this direction. The women's building is one of the principal centers of interest on the fair grounds.

Another greatly expanded fair attraction is the baby table conducted under direction of the state department of public health, by a score of doctors of this and adjoining counties and as (Continued on Page 6, Col. 4)

Injunction Sought to Prevent Woman Governor in Texas

Dickson of San Antonio Files Suit Urging That Name of Mrs. Ferguson Be Kept Off the Ballot.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 10 (AP)—An injunction suit to prevent Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson from becoming governor of Texas was filed here today in the fifty-third district court by Charles M. Dickson of San Antonio. The suit is directed against the county judge, the county clerk and the sheriff of every county in Texas and seeks to prevent Mrs. Ferguson's name going on the ballot.

Dickson's petition, which was filed by I. W. Stephens, Fort Worth attorney for Dickson, alleges that James E. Ferguson, who is declared from holding office, is the real candidate in the name of his wife and that if her name is not kept off the ballot, Ferguson will be elected governor. The petition also seeks to prevent the filing of the name of Mrs. Ferguson on the ballot.

Another proposition presented by the petition is that at common law which was adopted in Texas in 1840, a woman, especially a married woman, was ineligible to hold any executive or judicial office and that no such right has been conferred by statute or the constitution. The constitution, by use of the masculine gender, it is contended, and by making the governor a member of the militia, thereby excludes a woman from holding office of governor or the governor is a member of the militia, which is declared to be composed of "able-bodied male citizens," above a certain age.

Glacier on Mount Shasta Dislodged Starts on Journey

Huge Mass Awo-Inspiring Sight as It Starts Down Mountain Outting Path Through Trees.

YREKA, Cal., Sept. 10 (AP)—The Mount Shasta glacier, dislodged by the long continued drought and warm weather, has slipped from its ancient resting place on the north side of the mountain and is moving down the slope at a rate of five miles an hour, snapping off big trees in its path and thrusting immense boulders before it.

The movement began a short time after dawn and at noon the huge mass of ice was well within the timber line. Huge blocks of ice are arising as the moraines of the glacier are being broken up by its movement and these clouds are forming one big cloud over the head of the moving mass.

NINE CITIZENS OF TWIN FALLS ARE INDICTED

Grand Jury in Session at Boise Returns True Bills Against Large Number in Deliberations Wednesday.

BOISE, Sept. 10 (AP)—The United States grand jury returned 13 indictments today, making a record for one day's work. With the five returned Monday, when the grand jury went into session, the total of 18 up to today established the highest number considered by a grand jury in Boise in many years. E. G. Davis, United States district attorney, said the grand jury would have to continue in session tomorrow, but he hoped all business would be finished tonight. The court was able to take a recess this afternoon, as most of the civil actions have been cleared up. Jury cases are scheduled to start next week.

More indictments will be returned tomorrow, the district attorney's office said, but would not indicate the number expected. Seven indictments were reported to the court at noon today, and six at 5 o'clock in the evening.

Iverson Brothers.

It is charged against Oscar, Dan and Thomas Iverson, Twin Falls, that in 1921 false statements were made to the war finance corporation regarding the financial standing of Iverson brothers. The suit is for $100,000. The statement was made, according to the government, for the purpose of obtaining a loan of $10,000. This case is a re-indictment, as it was presented by the district attorney's office at the last grand jury.

Thomas Martin and Ira Cowan, Shoshone, Lincoln county, are indicted on a charge of having had in their possession shoes alleged to have been stolen from a freight car on the Union Pacific at Shoshone last June. The shoes are said to have been part of a shipment from Endicott, N. Y., to a Boise shoe firm.

White Slavery.

Metimer King faces an indictment charging violation of the Mann act. The bill alleges that King had transported Bertha A. King from Portland to Boise.

Christopher O. Dice, postmaster at Glenn Ferry, is indicted on charges of embezzling postal funds in December, 1923. One count alleges embezzlement of $200, and a second count $57.31. Dice entered a plea of guilty later in the afternoon and bond was fixed at $5000 for his appearance December 10 to receive judgment.

Twin Springs Trio.

Paul Dawson, Jane Dawson, alias Olla Dawson, and Sumner I. Brownell, all of Twin Falls, are indicted on charges of conspiracy to possess and sell liquor in violation of the prohibition act. Brownell was arrested in Boise Tuesday night, while the others were arrested in the hold in the Idaho county jail. The Dawsons are in Nevada, and a warrant will be served on them there, according to the United States marshal's office.

The Weaver rooms, Twin Falls, and a road house at Twin Springs, Nevada, are the places alleged to be the hold in the where liquor was sold. At the road house, the indictment says, the Dawsons had 93 gallons of moonshine whiskey, and 149 bottles of "homebrew." The indictment contains 12 counts.

Josh Berton, postmaster at Milner, Twin Falls county, is charged with embezzling $432.02 of postal funds. Elizabeth F. Wheat, postmistress at Roseberry, Valley county, is indicted on a charge of embezzling from the post office.

CHINESE FORCES PREPARING FOR MORE FIGHTING

Generals of Opposing Provinces Welcome Rain That Enables Them to Bring Up Reinforcements Near Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 10 (AP)—The wet weather which has been interfering with the fighting between the Chekiang and Kiangsu armies west of this city for the past two days has afforded a welcome opportunity for the generals commanding the opposing forces to prepare for renewed operations when the ground dries sufficiently to enable them to move troops into the battle line.

Chekiang, which was on the offensive when the rain intervened, claims to have made a considerable advance along the Shanghai-Nanking railway, and also in the Tai lake district north of it, where one of Lu Hsiang-shang's armies is advancing northward toward the railway and the town of Changchow, where it would cut the Kiangsu line of communications. To offset this move it is reported that General Feng Yu-hsiang, the Chinese general who commands the Kiangsu army at Peking, and is one of Mr. Peking's chief lieutenants, is moving troops through Nanking to the support of Kiangsu.

Lull Still Holds.

Along the Yangtze river, where fighting has been intense and continuous until the rain put a stop to it, there is still a lull. The country here is largely marshland and is almost impassable after heavy rains such as have prevailed for the past 48 hours.

General Chang Tso-lin, the young son of Manchuria, is reported to be moving his troops southward from Mukden for an attack on Shan-hai-kuan, the gateway to Peking, along the Mukden-Peking railway, which there skirts the coast. This part of the country was recently under water as the result of the recent flood, which did "some" damage throughout China. It was anticipated therefore that Chang would try conclusions with his old enemy Wu Pei-fu by the more westerly Joliet route from the north to the capital of the central government.

Many Bond Aids.

There is still talk of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, the southern leader, sending an army north from Canton to help his ally the tuchan of Chekiang. The latter, with his private army of 10,000 men, being attacked and an enemy army under General Sun Chuan-fang from Pao Chow, Fukien in his own province at Chuehchow threatening to move northward, will welcome any assistance Chang and Sun can send him.

In the opinion of many here the recent movement of troops supports the view recently expressed that the attack on Shanghai was part of Wu Pei-fu's plan to secure the unification of China. With Chekiang in his possession he believes he would have practically the whole of central China under control. With this accomplished he would be in a position to present a united front to Chang Tso-lin in the north, leaving sufficient troops in the south to hold Sun Yat-sen.

BRITAIN WOULD ENFORCE PEACE

Tells League Assembly Arbitration by Force if Necessary Is Best Method.

GENEVA, Sept. 10 (AP)—Great Britain stands by the league covenant which provides for military and naval assistance by the members of the league. This declaration was made tonight by Lord Parmoor, representing the British government, after the disarmament commission debate on arbitration, security and disarmament.

In a statement to representatives of the league, Lord Parmoor affirmed that Great Britain meant what she said through the lips of her prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, she declared her readiness to submit all disputes to arbitration. He added that the words "all disputes" included those usually characterized as "questions affecting vital interests and national honor."

Lord Parmoor qualified his statement, however, by remarking that the terms "vital interests" and "national honor" were exceedingly vague, but went on to say that a way must be found to handle every possible cause of conflicts between nations.

Detectives Search For Clues in Gem Theft of $250,000

International Insurance Agent Puts Agent to Work in Attempt to Find Stolen Jewels.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—The J. B. Cadden home at Sand Point, L. I., from which jewels valued at $250,000 today were reported to have been stolen a week ago, tonight was a hunting ground for detectives representing an international insurance agency that had underwritten the value of the missing valuables.

The major portion of the loss was reported to have been borne by Mrs. Cadden, but Lady Cadden and Mr. Richard Norton, close friends of the Prince of Wales, and guests of the Caddens during his visit to Long Island, also lost many valuable articles.

CONTESTS SHOW IN PRIMARIES OF SEVERAL STATES

Speaker Gillett Has Lead Over Opponent for Senate; Couzens Has Majority in Michigan; Governorships Sought.

BOSTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Speaker Frederick Gillett of the national house of representatives, whose candidacy for the republican nomination for United States senator was supported by Chairman William M. Butler of the republican national committee and by Governor Cox, had a plurality of 51,600 over his nearest opponent, Louis A. Coolidge, treasurer of the United Shoe Machinery company, when tabulation of the vote cast in yesterday's primaries in Massachusetts was virtually completed late today.

Mr. Gillett will be opposed in the November election by Mark H. Ladd, a senator from New Hampshire, who is opposed for the democratic nomination.

FILES UP GOOD LEAD.

DETROIT, Sept. 10 (AP)—Senator James Couzens continued to pile up a good lead over his republican opponent, the republican senatorial nomination, additional returns were tabulated from Tuesday's state-wide primary.

Trailing Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle on the face of the returns from Detroit, where he was the leading figure when figures became available from Wayne county, Detroit, his greatest stronghold. With returns in hand from 2287 out of 2765 precincts in the state, Senator Couzens had a lead of 52,400. The figures include the vote in 465 out of 541 precincts in Wayne county, where the count was delayed by the unusually long ballot.

HARTLEY IN WASHINGTON.

SEATTLE, Sept. 10 (AP)—Returns that had come in tonight showed that in Washington's biennial primary election 208,564 voters cast their ballots in the republican primary for governor. Three nominees for governor. Of this total 102,757 were republican; 14,000 democratic, and 1747 farmer-labor. There are 2453 precincts.

The leaders in the race for governor were Donald Rolan H. Hartley of the republican party; Mayor Ben P. Hill of Walla Walla in the democratic party, and J. R. Oman of Tacoma, in the farmer-labor party.

K. K. K. CANDIDATE.

DENVER, Sept. 10 (AP)—Judge Charles J. Morley of Denver, supported by the K. K. K. for republican gubernatorial nomination, tonight continued to add slowly to his lead over Lieutenant Governor Robert F. Rockwell of Poudre in the face of returns from yesterday's primary election. Tabulations from 1290 of the state's 1493 precincts gave Morley 52,721, Rockwell 47,754, and Couzens 6223.

Rice W. Meena, another Klan candidate, continued to pile up his lead for the republican short term United States senatorial nomination. Returns from 1288 precincts gave Meena 44,429, Waterman 35,847 and Moynihan 22,960.

Slayers' Youth Saves Them From Gallows For Murdering Boy

Nathan Leopold Jr., 19, and Richard Loeb, 18, Sons of Chicago Millionaires, Must Spend Rest of Lives in Penitentiary; 99 Years Also Imposed for Kidnaping by Judge Caverly.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (AP)—Youth alone saved Nathan Leopold Jr., 19, and Richard Loeb, 18, from death on the gallows for the kidnaping murder last May of 14-year-old Robert Frank.

Judge John R. Caverly, retiring chief justice of the criminal court of Cook county, sentenced the two young intellectuals to life imprisonment on the murder charges and to terms of 99 years for the kidnaping.

KILLERS JOVIAL OVER PROSPECT OF PRISON LIFE

Joke and Laugh Over Thought of Spending Remaining Years Inside Stone Walls of Illinois Penitentiary.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (AP)—Nathan Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb, their future plotted in drab cells at the Illinois state penitentiary, passed what probably marked their last day in the Cook county jail here in a mood akin to jovial.

Awaiting final preparations of papers which would formally establish them as "lepers" and under a decision hoping against pardon or parole—the two youths were able to joke and laugh over the prospects of their new predicament.

Jokes With Guard.

"I don't see how we can serve 99 years and live at the same time," Leopold remarked to his guard.

"We are in from now on, so it doesn't make any difference when you take us down," Richard told an attendant of the sheriff's office, who visited his cell to confirm details of personal history for commitment papers.

Judge Caverly, freed from the burden which has been his since July 21, sat passively over the papers carried to his hotel last night for signature. They remained until only the preparation of the formal history of the case by State Attorney Robert E. Crowe, before the automobile journey to Joliet, some 10 miles south, began.

Leopold's Father Talks.

Nathan Leopold, senior, aged and grizzled parent, will have his namesake and heir, now in his time.

"Surely, sure," he replied in broken voice, when asked if he would be satisfied to have his son remain in the penitentiary for life.

"There is but little to say," said Jacob Loeb, uncle of Richard. "We have been spared the extreme penalty, but what have these two families to look forward to?"

State's Attorney Crowe indicated that all arrangements to move the boys to Joliet tonight had been completed, but asserted the transfer was within the jurisdiction of Sheriff Peter Hoff.

Enjoy Feast.

The boys, meanwhile at the jail in which they had passed 112 days, received a sumptuous repast of a trial day—except in the matter of diet in which they appeared on a final banquet against an unheeded future. Chocolate eclairs, three-kind steaks, numerous side dishes and plentiful helpings of choice desserts were demanded by the boys, who they returned to their cells. They tackled them with gusto, eating light-heartedly.

TO GET PRISON TREATMENT.

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 10 (AP)—Nathan P. Leopold and Richard Loeb, will receive exactly the same treatment accorded any other prisoners in the state prison here, Warden John L. Whitman said tonight after plans for "treating" the youths were completed.

"The boys will be in side-door or back way entrance for Loeb and Leopold," the warden said. "They will enter the front door the same as any other prisoner, passing through the corridor and then into the guard hall. Here they will find they are under prison discipline."

NOMINATIONS CONCEDED.

PHOENIX, Arizona, Sept. 10 (AP)—Dwight B. Heard, republican of Phoenix, and Governor George W. P. Hunt, democrat, will be opponents in Arizona in the general election for governor on November 4.

IDAHO WEATHER.

Thursday: Fair.

IDAHO SUFFERS HUGE FIRE LOSS DURING SEASON

Damage Estimated at $4,250,000 in Forests of Oregon, Washington, Montana, California and Idaho.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The National Lumbermen's association today estimates forest fire loss this season in California, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho at $4,250,000. Of this $3,000,000 represented loss to standing timber in the national forests and parks; $500,000 damage to privately owned standing timber and an equal sum to logs and logging equipment, while $250,000 was in losses to settlers and miscellaneous community property.

Incidental fires, forest visitors, lightning and industrial operations in clearing land were given as the chief causes of the forest fires, with very few "attributable to logging operations."

"Saying 'recreation in woodlands' costs the government and timber owners some ranging 'from several million dollars in a fortunate year to as much as $25,000,000,' the association's statement suggested that 'perhaps it comes at too high a price,' and called attention to 'the question of increasing restrictive policy of forests areas which will greatly increase public utilization of forests, public and private, for recreational purposes.'"

Idaho Prune Crop Has Been Injured by Warm Weather

Examination on Eve of Harvesting Bumper Crop Shows Growers Will Suffer Heavy Losses.

BOISE, Sept. 9 (AP)—On the eve of the harvesting of a profitable prune crop in Idaho, it has been discovered that extreme weather conditions during the summer have played foul with the fruit, and many growers will lose large portions of their crop, it was announced by M. L. Dean, director of plant industry. The trouble has just come to light, Mr. Dean says, and is of such nature as to cause those prunes attacked to be practically worthless as far as marketing is concerned.

The trouble, according to Mr. Dean, appears to be the shortage of water and the extremely hot weather which also came in spells since the latter part of June. The director has taken the matter up with a federal fruit disease specialist at Washington, D. C., who reports that Idaho's prunes this year are affected with the same trouble that he observed in the Willamette valley, Oregon, and Clarke county, Washington, some years ago.

DR. WHITE WINS PRAISE IN WORK

Former Twin Falls Man Now Head of Minnesota Sanitarium, Aids Institution.

Under the administration of Dr. John E. White, former resident of Twin Falls, the Sand Beach, Minnesota, sanitarium, according to the Detroit Record, "for the first time since its construction in 1910 has reached a high state of efficiency, due to the fact that the equipment is now complete in every detail and the further fact that a superintendent has been secured whose ability, because of experience and training, has reached a stage of 'normality.'"

Dr. John E. White, the present executive head of the sanitarium, recently came here from Sulphur, Oklahoma, where he has been engaged in similar work. The record article continues. Both the doctor and his wife are what is known as "T. B. Immunes"; that is, persons who have had tuberculosis and later became entirely cured from the disease.

Dr. White has been engaged in tubercular work for approximately 32 years. He was the designer of the world-famous Modern Woodman sanitarium at Colorado Springs; and this design, in a general way, has been used for practically all similar sanitariums throughout the United States. He has an equally able assistant in the person of Mrs. White, who aids in the general management.

The doctor has visited almost every sanitarium of any magnitude in America and in discussing with him the advantages of the climate—if any, he made this cryptic remark: "It is not so important where you live, as how you live." He then followed with this equally significant statement: "My conception of the primary purpose of all tubercular propaganda and work is to try and teach people how to avoid sickness from this cause, instead of advising them how they may die easy."

In discussing with the doctor as to future plans he told us that he felt that the building plan was now complete and required no further extension, and that he intended to concentrate on utilizing the building capacity to the present structure and its equipment.

The capacity of the Sand Beach sanitarium is 42 patients, but this could be increased eight, making a total of 50. But a fraction of this number are now enrolled and in consequence the per capita cost at the institution is the highest of any joint hospital in the state; this being due to the fact that the overhead or operating expense is almost the same, whether the patients number four or 40. The per capita cost in the past has exceeded $4 daily, but Dr. White hopes to reduce this to about $2.50, which is said to be the average of many such hospitals.

GIANTS SMOTHER BOSTON 22 TO 1

League Leaders Take Double Header From Cellular Champs as Brooklyn Wins.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—The New York Giants gained a half game on Brooklyn here today by defeating Boston 22 to 1, and 8 to 0, while Brooklyn was winning one from Philadelphia.

In the first game New York gave Boston the worst defeat of the National League season. The Giants cracked out 27 hits for 45 bases. Pritch hit six hits in succession, including a home run, but missed trying Wilbert Robinson's record of 1894, by being thrown out on a bunt in his last time up.

New York scored freely in the second game and knocked Genswiler out in the fifth. Manager Bussert of Boston returned to his lineup, the first time he has played since an operation for appendicitis forced his retirement in the early summer.

First game—R. H. E.
Boston..... 1 6 2
New York..... 22 1 0
Batteries—Covey, McNamara and Gibson; Calkins; V. Barnes, Hunter, Zinger and Gowdy, Hartley.

Second game—R. H. E.

REDS WIN BY HITTING.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (AP)—Cincinnati hammered the offerings of Jacobs and Keen in the first inning and piled up enough runs to defeat Chicago, six to three, in the final game of the series. Pete Donohue pitched a steady game, the Cubs being able to bunt hits in only one inning.

The score: R. H. E.
Cincinnati..... 6 11 2
Chicago..... 3 8 2
Batteries—Donohue and Wingo; Jacobs, Keen, Blake, Wheeler and O'Farrell.

ROBINS WIN FROM PHILLIES.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 10 (AP)—Brooklyn won the first of the two-day series with the Phillies today, 5 to 1. Ehrhardt pitched his fifth straight victory. One of the five hits off him was Wright's home run in the fourth inning. When clinched the game when he hit his thirteenth home run of the season off Betts in the fourth inning after J. Mitchell had walked.

The score: R. H. E.
Philadelphia..... 1 5 0
Brooklyn..... 5 1 0

PIRATES BEAT ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates made their final appearance of the 1924 season here today, defeating the Cardinals 3 to 1. A trio of runs in the seventh inning decided the game in favor of the visitors, who departed with one victory and two defeats in the final series of the season here. The veteran, "Babe" Adams, hurled a creditable game, holding the Cardinals to five hits. The six outfielders were credited with 20 put-outs.

The score: R. H. E.

Final Spurt for Championship Is Hotly Contested

Season Closes With Narrow Gap Between Top Teams of Both Leagues.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Giants smothered Boston twice today, gained a half game on both Brooklyn and Pittsburgh as each of the latter won and now lead the Robins by one contest and the Pirates by three and one-half.

Washington split even with the Athletics but retained the one and one-half contest lead over the Yankees whose game at Boston was postponed by rain. Detroit, after winning seven straight, succumbed to Chicago and is five games back of first place.

The Giants have 16 games to play and Brooklyn 14. Both teams finish at home. The Pirates, with 20 to play, conclude on the road. Washington has 17 and the Yankees 18 remaining, all away. Detroit has 18 at home.

SENATORS SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER

Washington Divides Game With Philadelphia and Chicago Wins From Detroit.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10 (AP)—The best Washington could do in the double bill with Philadelphia today was to split it even by taking the second game, 6 to 5, after dropping the first 2 to 1. The Senators found Gray a puzzle in the opening contest and the Texas beetle Zachary in a close and interesting pitching duel. All the Senator runs except one in the second game, were made off Heinemann and behind Meeker's masterful relief hurling the Athletics whittled down the visitors' lead until Mogridge was relieved in the ninth inning with the winning runs on base. Marberry retired the locals before they could send the tying run over.

First game—R. H. E.
Washington..... 1 6 0
Philadelphia..... 2 10 1

Second game—R. H. E.

Philadelphia..... 5 13 1
Batteries—Mogridge, Marberry and Ruel; Heinemann, Meeker and Perkins.

TOBES CAN'T STOP CHICAGO.

DETROIT, Sept. 10 (AP)—Five pitchers were unable to stop Chicago in the later innings today and Detroit's winning streak was broken when the visitors won, 12 to 8. Detroit piled up a three run lead in the first four innings and tied the score in the fifth after Chicago had counted five runs but Chicago got four more runs in the sixth and three in the seventh.

The score: R. H. E.
Chicago..... 12 10 1
Detroit..... 8 11 2
Batteries—Thornton and Crouse; W. Collins, Wells, Daus, Stoner and Bassler.

Governor Endorses Defense Day Test

Urging upon each and all of Idaho's citizens "the duty to inform himself on his country's plan for national defense and to express his willingness to cooperate in her defense should an emergency arise," Governor O. C. Moore has issued the following proclamation with respect to observance in Idaho of National Defense Test day next Friday:

Whereas, the president of the United States, under the authority given and the duty imposed upon him by our national constitution and the provisions of the national defense act of 1920, has designated Friday, September 12, 1924, the sixth anniversary of the battle of St. Michel and the date set for the retirement of General John J. Pershing from the active service of his country, as National Defense Test day, and

Whereas, under the national defense act the defense of our country is in the hands of her citizens, and the purpose of Defense Test day is to afford an opportunity for all citizens to familiarize themselves with the present plan of national defense and to realize their individual and collective responsibility and duty to their country in peace as well as in times of emergency, and to reaffirm their allegiance to the constitution and laws of the United States and to express their willingness to defend their priceless heritage of American liberty should its existence ever be threatened, and

Whereas, the spirit and purpose of this day are in entire accord and harmony with all intelligent plans and projects for world peace, and the support of all citizens of our present defense program will diminish the need for large permanent military and naval establishments, and

Whereas, nothing in the plan for the observance of this day can be justly termed militaristic or mistaken as a hostile gesture against any nation, for the underlying tradition and policy of our country is one of non-aggression, and the national defense act and this day, carrying out this tradition and policy, contemplate only the defense of our liberties and institutions against any who might seek to destroy them, either from within or from without, and

Whereas, the president has called upon the nation, through the governors of the several states, to arrange suitable patriotic observances for this day, and

Whereas, committees have been appointed in all of the several communities of this state to arrange and prepare for such observances:

Now, therefore, I, Charles O. Moore, governor of the state of Idaho, do hereby most earnestly request each and every citizen of this state to aid, assist and co-operate with the county and state committees in carrying out the plans and programs which have been prepared for this day, and urge upon every citizen the duty to inform himself on his country's plan for national defense and to express his willingness to cooperate in her defense should an emergency arise.

This day is not declared a legal holiday and the plans for its observance as outlined by the state committees are not intended to conflict with the regular course of business and industry and are in every case dependent upon local conditions and the needs of each community. It is desired that on this day there be a general display of the national flag on all public and private buildings and residences and that the given place of prominence always due this emblem in whatever parades or processions may be conducted.

May this, our state of Idaho, by the loyal and thorough co-operation of all of her citizens, demonstrate to our country that ours is a commonwealth ever desirous of peace, and that when ever any enemy may threaten our free institutions, the citizens of this state will be ready, as ever before, to defend in peace as in war the principles of American government for which our forefathers lived and died.

to say in either case?" asked the judge.
"No, your honor," responded Benjamin Bachrach for the defense.

Then the judge began to read. He had finished about four sentences when the clicking of newspaper cameras disturbed him.

"I'll wait for you fellows," he said, turning the photographers who were massed on his right where their instruments would cover the judge.

Shows Effects of Strain.
Judge Caverly plainly showed the effects of the weeks of strain both in his features and in his voice. The latter was high pitched and the delivery jerky, in contrast with the low, even tones in which he had conducted the proceedings throughout the six weeks of the hearing previously to August 29.

He roared with great rapidity, too, and rushed to his conclusion without ordering the defendants to stand to receive the sentences.

When the formal language of the sentence brought him to the point where he read directly to "you, Nathan Leopold Jr., and again to you, Richard Loeb," there was only the briefest possible glance by the judge in the direction of the youths.

The boys listened intently. Leopold's "poker face" lacked its customary high coloring but his facial muscles were under perfect control. Loeb's lower jaw hung a bit loosely as he went with parted lips, drinking in every word of the court's findings.

Judge Caverly's first definite conclusion was that the pleas of guilty did not make a special case in favor of the defendants.

Least Resistance.
"It would have been the path of least resistance to impose the extreme penalty of the law. In choosing imprisonment, instead of death, the court is moved chiefly by the consideration of the age of the defendants, boys of 18 and 19 years."

Youth was in the ascendant now and the defense attorneys' faces showed an ever-lightening dawn, while the prosecutors in turn became grave as the import of the words struck home.

The boys themselves remained at rigid attention. Loeb looked and felt as a person who had been mauled by a gorilla.

The latter's aged father raised streaming eyes to the bench and his older son, Foreman Leopold, who has supported the stricken father by word and presence throughout the ordeal, squared his athletic shoulders in relief.

Allen Leach, brother of "Dickie," and their uncle, Jacob Loeb, former president of the Chicago Board of education, shifted to more upright positions.

There followed words of counsel to the public, the court asking that the people generally "consider that the prolonged suffering of years of confinement" would be "the severest form of expiation to youths of the type they are," reared in homes of luxury, successful in school and unquestioned in their goings and comings by indulgent parents.

Again the court digressed as a few sentences of the state department of public welfare not to parole the offenders.

Formal Sentencing.
"To such a policy the court urges them strictly to adhere," he said. There remained only the formal words of the actual sentencing, delivered without break in the rapid-fire words from the bench.

Jailers fairly hustled Leopold and many or more volunteer trained nurses. Two daily scores of babies and children of school age, and many other amusements that are made not with a view to designation of perfect babies, but of detecting and remedying physical defects that hamper and retard the full tramline of development.

During the four days of the fair 534 babies registered for the clinic and as many others as possible will receive the benefit of this examination. The number registered for the clinic this year is more than twice as great as that of last year.

Good Entertainment.
Clean, wholesome amusement that is expected in connection with the fair is in no way lacking, and appreciation on the part of fairgoers of this feature is attested by throngs surrounding the booths from which operators of wheels of fortune, keno and the submersible wheel spin their game ball forth, as well as about the ferris wheel and merry-go-round, soft drinks and sandwich stands.

Entertainment numbers offered by Oriental novelty and juggling acts, the quartet of colored men composing the Sunset Tour and the Twin Falls band came in for high praise on all hands.

Hospitality on the part of members of the various women's clubs of the county, alternately taking charge of rest room supervision and musical program, is a feature of the fair that enhances its claim for consideration on the score that it provides a common meeting place for the people of the county for at least one time in the year.

Bural Club of Filer.
The Bural Club of Filer, assisted by the Twentieth Century club music department, will furnish hostesses and entertainment today, following the women of Hamsan, Kimberly and Castelford who had charge of entertainment of guests Wednesday. Special attention is extended to elderly visitors at the fair to avail themselves of the hospitality thus extended.

Of interest particularly to women is Loeb in company. Nathan had no chance to pause before his counsel, but a jam in an aisle permitted Loeb to fondle Clarence Darrow's arm momentarily.

"Everybody out," called a bailiff, but his admonition was not heeded. Attorneys broke through cordons of newspaper interviewers. Allen Loeb hurried to a telephone to send the news to Charles Leach, Mich., where Richard's father and mother are both ill, and other members of the families passed rapidly along the corridors, or through waiting elevators, and hurried to their automobiles.

Judge Caverly chatted with a few friends in his chambers but refused to receive interviewers. After about three quarters of an hour, he slipped away through the jury room and left the building so quickly that his going was not noticed by people on the street.

My Beauty
Is all due to beauty helps

By Edna Wallace Hopper
I was a plain girl with little distinction. I made myself a famous beauty. Now, after 35 years as a beauty star, I remain a beauty still. The thousands who see me daily on the stage know that I look 19.

When I was a girl my mother took me on a world search for the supreme beauty helps. These helps made me a beauty. Since then I have kept in touch with every new discovery. I have made many trips to France. So what I was and what I am are due to scientific help.

Many women have convinced me that I should share these helps with others. Millions of girls and women want what I have gained. So I have combined all the helps I have discovered in four preparations, with 52 ingredients. And I have arranged so that my "beauty" and "beauty" counter offer them to all who wish.

One is a liquid cleanser which I call my Facial Youth. Lucie Lantelme, the famous Parisian beauty, first told me what it did. Now great beauty experts the world over are advising this formula. No other cleanser which man has discovered does what this cleanser does.

My Facial Youth contains no animal, no vegetable fat. It can not in any way assimilate with the skin. It simply cleans to the papillae, then departs. All the grime, dead skin and clogging matter comes out with it.

That is the first beauty essential—an utterly clean skin. But I never forget what a clean skin meant until I found this Facial Youth.

Now Edna Wallace Hopper's Facial Youth is supplied by all druggists and local counters. The cost is 75c.

Write me for my Beauty Book and I'll send it something else to please you. Edna Wallace Hopper, 356 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

THE LOEB-LEOPOLD CASE.
Opinion will always differ as to the wisdom, the justice, of the decision of Judge Caverly in the case of the two young Chicago murderers, Loeb and Leopold.
There are so many different angles
from which the matter may be viewed.
To begin with, more and more generally, the belief is gaining ground that capital punishment is not established as the best method of punishment in the case of first degree murder. Capital punishment in hygone ages has always partaken more of the nature of a spectacle than a punishment. The law itself in the past was administered largely from the standpoint of revenge rather than punishment. Of later years, too, comes the element of the extent of the crime as differentiated between crime against society and crime against the person in the case of murder. This particular theory of justice goes directly against the still older theory of the seriousness of human life. In fact the two ideas are directly opposed.
The latter would regard all murders
as being exactly in the same class as far as the results to society are concerned; the former would set up the usefulness to society of the victim, and upon that basis view the question of the extent to which society was injured by the crime and the consequent extent of the punishment which should be imposed.
The question of the sanity or insane of a murderer can be made a defense for every murder ever committed, and as a rule just as many advertisers may be found to testify for one side as for the other. Prosecutors Crawley, however, asked mainly for punishment rather than justice. He demanded the extreme penalty largely in an apparent spirit of revenge. It is easy to imagine a trained jurist readily seeing this in the words of the prosecutor over and over again.
The main question was not as to whether the two youths should be hanged or not hanged, but as to the best and most humane manner in which society might be forever protected against the two.
Those who are not opposed to the whole proposition of capital puni-ment and who honestly believe that no more diabolical, vicious and cold blooded murder was ever committed than that of which the two are guilty,
will not be satisfied with the sentence imposed.

But that other and perhaps larger element would settle the matter on the basis of a broader outlook. There have been no delays in the meeting out of justice; punishment, swift and impalpable has followed upon the heels of the crime. In all human likelihood these two men will be behind prison walls, and who shall say that their punishment will not have been greater than the more extreme application of the law? As far as the protection of society is concerned there is no difference.
So much for the decision itself.
But with respect to the effect of the decision it were perhaps better that the sentence should have been death.
All over the United States fresh assurance is given to potential murderers that, after all, there is no great danger of anybody being hanged for murder.
Every element which makes for capital crime of the character intended by the law to be punishable by death is present in this particular crime. Careful planning and premeditation were obvious. A weighing of chances and a minute study of the subject are shown.

Breakfast Food

"Matrimonially Speaking"
By Mrs. HUGH MCKAY

My husband is afraid I'm going to wear out my good clothes.
He's generous enough about buying them for me, but he certainly hates
to see me take them out of my closet
and put them on.
"I thought that dress would last you for years," he says anxiously. "And here you're wearing it every time you go out of the house—it'll be in the rag bag by Christmas!"
"Seems to me you're giving that new hat an awful run," he observes slyly. "I haven't seen you with another one since you got it."
This is the kind of conversation I have to listen to every time I put on any good clothes. I wouldn't feel dressed up if I didn't hear it.
Hugh appears to think that a woman should feel about her clothes as a good deal as a stamp collector does about his specimens—they're fine to look at,
but they're not to be used at all.
Every time he buys me anything, I knew he secretly hopes that I won't need any new clothes for years to come. Who does he think I am, anyway—the Goddess of Liberty?
Tomorrow: My wife entertains me by describing her friends' new clothes.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

DANGER AND SAFETY

Nick and Nancy had been talking about it for a long time.
Somehow or other, when evening
had come, and Daddy had told them
his story, they had forgotten to ask the question they had been meaning to ask for some time.
"But this evening they asked it at once."
"Daddy," said Nancy, "something has been bickering us. We want to ask you about it."
"Yes," chimed in Nick, "we have been meaning to ask you this for ages."
"Well, then, would better hear what it is without any delay," said Daddy.
"So we can see if we can answer it."
It is always a very nervous moment when a question is forthcoming for fear it can't be answered, but if it can't we all do all we can to find out the answer.
Nick and Nancy smiled. Daddy did seem to be able to understand a very great deal, but they loved it because he didn't mind saying that he didn't quite understand about something himself and would have to look it up with them.
"Well, what is the question?" Daddy
asked.
"We wanted to know," Nick said,
"how it is birds can sit along the wires of trolley cars, and upon telegraph wires which would be dangerous for us to touch."
"They sit along them in rows and they don't seem to be hurt—yet the wires are supposed to be so dangerous, and if messages were being sent along there would be electric currents
which would kill them."
"Get it?" exclaimed Daddy. "I know
the answer to that one."
"As a matter of fact I have been meaning to tell you about this for some time, too, just as you have been meaning to ask me about it."
"You see, I heard that a few letters had been received at different times asking just how that could be.
It seems to be something to puzzle
many people, and I really don't wonder."
Which messages are being sent there is an electric current through the wires
which is strong and dangerous enough to kill people, should they get up and touch these wires.
"Of course people never do that, for anyone knows it is always the wisest thing to keep away from unfamiliar wires."
"But the electric current is strong enough to do harm if the people went in search of harm."
"Yet we see many birds, smaller by far than people, and their little bodies seem quite safe, and we notice them
flying away afterward."
"It is because they are on the wires,
and no part of them is on the ground."
"If they were touching the poles or the earth at the same time they would be killed."
"In order to do this the current must go along through the body of the bird or of a human being to the ground. That is the connection there must be to have harm come from the electrical current."
"The connection with the ground need not be direct. If a person were upon a pole and the pole was in the ground and then touched the wire, the danger would be just as great, as there would be that ground connection."
"If a person could perch upon wires
as birds do there would be no danger.
But if they should touch anything that in any way went near the ground,
there would be danger."
"But birds sit upon the wires and there is no ground connection whatever, and so they are safe."
"Well," said Nick, "I'm glad to know the reason why at last."
"And so am I," said Nancy. "You've no idea how this has puzzled us."

"I've got them. Her mother and father will be there, and Aunt Elsie.
That's all."
"But Joe—so quickly?" Ellen asked.
"After all, perhaps it's the wisest thing," she conceded. "I'll try tomorrow to get someone else for Tommy."
"I was going to speak to you about that, Sis. Why can't we talk Tommy? You'll have your hands full."
She turned deathly white, and leaned back in her chair with closed eyes.
"I don't mean that," he exclaimed,
quickly. "All pull yourself together,
dear old girl!"
Ellen nervous, got to her feet; she began to walk about the room, wringling her hands, and pressing her locked fingers against her lips like a person in pain.
"I know what you've all been waiting for—those days," she said, in her whisper of anguish. "I've seen it in George's face—I know why you want to take Tommy away from it all! I know that Gibbs has expected it, and he's been waiting for three days
now. Joe, we're not for hours, with my heart in it—no saying a word."
She came back to the fireplace, Joe had been too, and was watching her with a glassed-off look. She laid her hands on his shoulders, and looked up at him with her eyes.
"Joe," she faltered, almost inaudi-bly. "I've seen it at night, packing my trunk—and there's nobody else! But,
Joe, if he'll do it—I'll be his father,
in that case, I mean, of course."
"Look here, Ellen," Joe said bluntly. "I'm surprised at you. Gibbs is going to depend on you now as he never did in his life before, and here
you are skipping your means, living awake nights, and getting hysterical!
My dear Sis, you'd do him much more harm than good this way."
"Yes, I know," Ellen said quickly.
"But, Joe, she added, "keep thinking that Ryan will ask me—ask me outright what I think, and what can I say? I can't!"
"If you were talking to Ellen," he interposed firmly. "First thing—never will ask you what you think. He'll simply ask you what you did or said,
or heard said; he may not put you on the stand at all. Now just calm-down. Take things easy. And you or I, or any of us, never address the kid—we both do. And he'll be out of the way of the whole thing. Got me?"
"I get you," she smiled, a little silly, as she returned his kiss. "And you may be married tonight!"
"Why?"
"It seems so strange, Joe. She went with him to the door of her room. 'Not what I thought my little brother's wedding day would be!' she said."
"Nor I," he answered gravely. She thought he looked at her as he walked away, and turned at the stair-head to wave his hand to her.
A few minutes later Gibbs came up,
and Ellen lighted the flame under the spirit-lamp, and made him fresh tea.
He looked tired and ill, but he smiled at her gratefully as she gave him the smoking cup.
There was a knock at the door, but he did not seem to hear it. He had dropped his handsome head against the chair-back, and closed his dark, shadow-rimmed eyes. "It will seem good to get out of this, and get the little scent again, and go off out of the range of newspapers and cameras, won't it?" he asked. "I was thinking
we might take the roadster and go South—Florida, maybe, or Atlanta." Ellen's color rushed up, the vision of escape from all this horror had not been so strong. The open road again, Gibbs and Tommy, meals here
and there and everywhere.
Another knock at the door. Gibbs heard this one, and turned questioning eyes toward it.
"Stay where you are," Ellen commanded. She went to the door. Gibbs heard one whispered word of protest and horror, and got to his feet, the color draining from his face. He saw George's grave face, and another face or two in the background. In the foreground, their eyes sweeping the room quickly, were two blue-coated officers.

CHAPTER XV

The trial of Thomas Gibbs Josselyn
for the murder of his father was naturally the journalistic highlight of the day. The social standing of the family, the mystery surrounding the murder, the old relationship of the man and the two women, all these things were incalculably valuable to city editors everywhere.
Presently the will of the murdered man was read, and it caused the astonishment. After the bequests to servants and charities, and the gifts to old friends, the widow was to have the new year allowance payable unless she remarried, throughout her life.
besides her country home at Wheatley Hill, and all it contained. To the son certain books and specified silver and jewels were bequeathed, and a moderate sum was to be held in trust for the maintenance of the household.
All the rest went to the daughter-in-law. More than that, should Lillian remarry, she was to be given a lump sum, the remainder of her fortune to revert to Ellen. Ellen heard it all vaguely; she was not thinking of money in these days. She did not read the papers that circulated between the two cities that old Thomas Josselyn had trusted her above his wife or his son.
The trial was set for the first week of the new year, and to Gibbs and to Ellen as well, much as she had dreaded it, it came as a relief. She had visited him every day, in his cell at the Minocqua Jail, and what those visits
had cost her, only Ellen knew.
Every day she must nerve herself
afresh to enter into the stale, cold air, and must pass the clanking doors and the watching eyes. She must nerve herself afresh for the sight of him, thin, despondent, disheveled. She must breathe the suffocating morning atmosphere that surrounds the offenders, the human who is felt by other humans to be dangerous. She must talk to him, and yet not talk of the hideous cloud that pressed so close over him, and the hideous weight on his heart that made them both afraid they would go mad.
She kept him supplied with books,
and sometimes him read aloud to her. George was often with him,
full of confidence and courage.
Empty as they were, those hours at the jail were Ellen's life. Otherwise

Empty as They Were, Those Hours at the Jail Were Ellen's Life.

Empty as They Were, Those Hours at the Jail Were Ellen's Life.

she was hardly conscious that she lived at all. She sat by the fire with her aunt, in the evening, talking with the busy, kindly woman and the old captive, but not knowing what she said. She wrote her nightly letter to Joe or Lizzie, with a scrawled kiss for the boy, and went early to bed. She rose early, and joined the old people at breakfast. Then she aired her room, and made her bed, and by that time the little classed car was at the door, with Tommy at the wheel. Clow-dy yelled, although she was really indifferent to starting eyes and snapping cameras, she slipped into the car and was on her way to Gibbs.
Sometimes alone, or with George,
she lunched in the neighborhood of the Jail, and went back to it immediately.
Always she saw her husband twice a day, and was back in Port Washington in time to fold the paper to the old captain before dinner.
Mary Cutter, the doctor's lovely daughter-in-law, had taken it upon herself to comfort Ellen, and during these terrible days she had never failed her. And when the trial began she was always at Ellen's side. George called at the Main street house on the first morning, and Mary met them at the courthouse.
Ellen had never been in a courtroom before, but she had to breathe
"That's the jury-box—that's the witness stand," even with her first quick glance.
George came in, talking in an under-tone with his associate. He nodded reassuringly to Ellen. When he went away she wrote her nightly letter to one of the doctors behind the judge's bench, she saw Ryan come in.
He had the air of a man who had breakfasted well, and who was full of confidence. Ellen felt a wave of sheer lunatic shock her. How free he was;
how he walked, ready for the day's work! And Gibbs—Gibbs would come in between two guards.
"This is merely the panning of the jury," George had told them; "it may take several days. It's a long, stupid business."
With a great stirring and morning in the room, Gibbs came in, with a court officer. He was pale, but seemed neither self-conscious nor nervous, as he came quickly to stand at the end of one of the tables. Then he saw Ellen, who was only ten feet away,
and who sent him a brave smile.
Ellen's heart was torn within her, Gibbs, with that little new drop to his broad shoulders, a spectacle for this staring roomful!

Miss Myrl Skinner went to Twin Falls on Sunday to remain indefinitely.
The many friends and acquaintances
of Mrs. Walter Fremont of Levan, Utah, were shocked and grieved to learn of her death. Mrs. Fremont spent several months in this vicinity two years ago when her brother, Harvey Mingren, lived here. She leaves two children, a daughter and an infant son.

BOTHWELL CHOSEN NEW BAR ASSOCIATION HEAD

Former District Judge Becomes President of Organization of Lawyers of County; Judge Babcock Tells of Trip

James R. Bothwell of Twin Falls, former judge of the district court in this district, was elected president of the Twin Falls County Bar association to succeed former Judge E. A. Walters at a meeting of the association held Wednesday afternoon in the district court room here and attended by practically all of the attorneys of the county.

A. R. Hicks, former prosecuting attorney, was elected vice president, and J. Paul Thomas, secretary of the association.

An interesting feature of the occasion was furnished by remarks by Judge William A. Babcock, senior judge of the eleventh judicial district, relative to the trip to Europe from which he has recently returned. Judge Babcock reviewed at some length the discussions of a meeting of the American Bar association in London, and told of entertainment for the 1500 American barristers in London attending the meeting.

Several members of the association were called upon by the newly elected president for suggestions as to increasing value and usefulness of the organization and responses in some instances were furnished by reminiscences.

Judge Walters, retiring executive of the association, presided at the meeting until after the new officers were elected and Judge Bothwell was inducted into office as president.

READY FOR PART IN DEFENSE DAY

National Guard and American Legion Posts. Lend Active Support to Plans for Day.

National guard units, American Legion posts and other organizations that will participate actively in exercises incident to observance here of National Defense Test day next Friday, are putting finishing touches on their plans for the occasion.

Company C, 200th Infantry, Twin Falls unit of the Idaho national guard, together with company D, Buhl unit, and the hospital unit at Kimberly, which will present drills and a battalion parade early Friday afternoon on the county fair grounds at Filer, besides taking part in local exercises in the home town of each unit, have launched campaigns for recruits to serve for the one day only to fill the organizations to war strength. These one-day recruits will not be required to take part in the public demonstrations to be presented by the units of which they become members for a day, and no obligation for future military service is involved.

Exercises at Park.

The Twin Falls unit, before participating in the drill and parade at Filer, will take part in brief exercises to be held in the afternoon at Twin Falls city park where it will present a brief exhibition drill preceding an address along patriotic lines to be delivered by Representative Addison T. Smith, who will be introduced by Captain E. M. Sweeley. The national guard company will assemble at its armory and march to the park.

Veterans to Take Part.

Call for American Legion members to take part actively in Defense Test day exercises here has been sent out by Sidney H. Graves, commander of the Twin Falls post, American Legion. The legion commander asserted that the day, which is to be a test of the national defense act sponsored by General John J. Pershing, commander of the American veterans overseas, and endorsed by both national and state organizations of the

There lived a thrifty baker
Who thought his wealth would grow.
If he could make a doughnut
And hold out half the dough.
His plan was very simple
To reach a rich man's goal,
He'd make the circle thinner
And just enlarge the hole.
He started in to make them,
But very soon he found
It took more dough than ever
The hole to reach around.
He fretted, fumed and worried,
And worked both night and day;
But, as the holes grew larger,
He lost his mind, they say.
This story points a moral
That bakers all should know—
Don't try to make a doughnut
With half enough of dough.

The brim turned down all around. Single center crease. A protection against wind and sun.

The brim turned up all around. Side dents. A style that bears a dressy appearance.

The brim turned up all around with a full sweeping curve. Single center crease. No side dents.

The brim of welt edge and turned down only in front. A new idea that is popular for lounge dress.
