Independent Presidential Candidate Faces Capacity Audience at Madison Square Garden: Applaud Remarks

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP)—Facing an audience which filled Madison Square Garden, Senator Robert M. La Follette, independent presidential candidate, began active campaigning to night with an address in which he combined a declaration of his political views with a denunciation of the two old parties.

When he appeared on the platform the candidate was given a prolonged demonstration and after he plunged into a discussion of campaign issues he was interrupted again and again by cheers and applause.

For an hour before the senator arrived at the big auditorium scene of the recent democratic national convention, speeches were delivered in quick succession by Arthur Garfield Hayes

New York; Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor; Representative LaGuardia, a New York member of the republican insurgent bloc in the house during the last session of congress; Mrs. Harriett Stanton Platchetto, daughter of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, pioneer advocate of woman suffrage; Norman Thomas, socialist candidate for governor of New York and the Rev. John Haynes

Old Parties Assailed.

They eulogized Senator LaFollette as vigorously as they assailed the candidates and policies of the republican and democratic parties.

More than half of the men and women who heard Senator LaFollette tonight paid to gain admission to the hall, those in charge of the rally estimating that the innovation "netted a house" of $12,000. The receipts went into the campaign fund.

As he started reading his prepared address slowly there was a flurry of disorder in the far side of the hall. A man who had been noisy was ejected from the hall and the audience settled back to listen in peace.

"I propose to keep in the foreground the campaign of the discussion throughout this campaign," declared the speaker. "The record of the two old parties in recent years and the policies inaugurated by them under which the railways and other corporations have made larger profits than ever before in their peaceful

Twin Springs Owners Must

Officials Have Been Looking for Them Since June.

BOISE, Sept. 18 (AP)—Paul Dawson and Jane Dawson, alias Celia Dawson, alleged proprietors of a road house jury with conspiracy to violate the Mann bet, are under arrest at Elko, Nevada, according to a telegram received today by Frank Breshears, United States marshal, from J. H. Palmer.

United States marshal at Carson City. Federal men have been hunting for the Dawsons since last June. Besides the indictment on the Mann act charge, they face charges of violation of the prohibition law.

While government officials claim that several women and girls were transported from time to time to a road house, the indictments sets forth but two alleged specific cases, that Edna Belknap and Beebe Lewis. The girls, the indictment charges, were transported from Twin Falls across the Nevada line to Twin Springs and then lived at a road house.

WOMEN DEMAND VEIL REMOVAL IN HOLY LAND

Arab Feminists Launch Campaign for Greater Freedom; Also Want to Take Part in Politics.

JERUSALEM, Sept. 18 (AP)—The stubborn conservatism of the Mohammedan custom with regard to the social isolation of the women in Palestine may soon give way before the movement launched by Arab feminists for the removal of the veil. The Holy Land, backward in many respects, is behind such Moslem countries as Turkey and Egypt in breaking the shackles holding women in seclusion.

The movement for the enfranchisement of Moslem women in Palestine is of recent origin and is traceable to the influx of people from the west, especially Jewish immigrants coming to settle in their national home.

As the first step towards their emancipation the women demand ecclesiastical sanction for the removal of the dark veil from their faces. If such flying in the face of age-long custom does not win official approval, some of the leading Arab women of Palestine are determined to do what their Moslem sisters did in Turkey, where the veil has been entirely cast off, or at least entirely cast off, or at least in Egypt, where only a light transparent veil is still worn, extending from below the nose.

The ban on the public appearance of women has retarded the development of Arab drama, and it is the hope of feminists that the admittance of Moslem women to the theatrical stage will follow the removal of the veil.

World Center Politics. Arab women of Palestine are keen not only on social emancipation but on participation in politics. "Take us out of our insulting seclusion and remove from our faces the offensive black cloth, give us our opportunity as free members of a free people, granting us the right to fight with you for our national ideals," says in part an appeal appearing recently in an Arab language newspaper in Haifa. "Then we shall in gratitude sacrifice our jewels, delivering up our gold and precious stones for the establishment of the Arab National bank."

AT THE IDAHO.

Belated volcano. The hill country of Arizona is said to be full of them, but never until recently during the filming of the Paramount production of "The Call of the Canyon," which opens a one day return run at the Idaho theater tomorrow, did the occasion arise for utilizing these craters for prizefight rings.

Betting Machine

The "Parimutuel" or "totalizer" is a betting machine fitted with a number of receptacles. The hacker places his stake in the receptacle appropriated to the horse he favors, and at the end of the race the supporters of the successful horse divide up all the money staked on the different horses, less 10 per cent, which goes to the owner of the machine.

International Exchange. "Hello, old man; you look worried. What's on your mind?"

"I shipped a hule of cigar coupons to a money broker in Moscow. I heard they were going over there as currency. So I told him to get me the best exchange he could and take a fair profit for himself."

"Get any returns?"

"Yes, he just sent me a package of Confederate notes."

EXECUTED FOR PLOTTING AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT

Premier Danzai of Mongolia Loses Life at Hands of Mongol Soviet Following Charges of Treason.

PEKING, Sept. 18 (AP)—Further details of the killing of Premier Danzai of Mongolia by order of the Mongol soviet are contained in a dispatch received here today by the Peking-Tientsin Times from Urga, principal Mongolian city.

Danzai, according to the dispatch, was arrested August 28, and after a trial on a charge of plotting against the Urga government, was shot, along with several minor officials of his regime.

Circumstances under which a dozen foreigners, including Americans remain in Urga, were not indicated in the dispatch, but it is generally believed here that previous advices that the foreigners were not being permitted to leave the city are correct. Recent telegrams from Urga do not mention the foreigners.

All Help Unfortunate

A singular custom prevails among the Turians or Kurds. If a man loses his cattle or other property he pours a little brown sugar into a piece of colored cloth, ties it up, and carries one such parcel to each of his friends and acquaintances. In turn he is presented, according to circumstance, with a cow or sheep or a sum of money.

URGE IRISH TO STAY AT HOME

Renewed Emigration to America Alarms: Dublin Press; Many Applications.

DUBLIN, Sept. 18 (AP)—There are urgent appeals in the Dublin press against the renewal of emigration to America. The independent says: "We were frequently assured in the past that had Ireland control of her own affairs emigration would cease. But though the British have departed the country is still being drained of its young men and women."

In the past two months the American consul has received 8000 applications for emigration visas and the Free State quota soon will be exhausted. The applicants are mostly from the country districts.

Seek Career.

Judge Cohan of New York, who has lately been in Ireland, has advised young Irish men and women to seek a career in their own country rather than to go to the United States or Canada.

It is pointed out that large numbers of skilled British artisans, failing to get employment in America, are returning to Great Britain in a steady stream, and that the prospects for Irish unskilled laborers are extremely unfavorable.

CORNER STONE IS LAID AT SCHOOL

Idaho Masons Have Charge of Ceremony at New Science Building.

MOSCOW, Sept. 18 — Ceremonies Wednesday in connection with laying of the cornerstone of the new science hall at the University of Idaho might be considered as constituting an historical program called "The Realization of Thirty Years," for it was 30 years ago that Judge I. C. Hattabaugh, of Lewiston, as president of the board of regents, said, in his annual report to Governor W. J. McConnell that an appropriation was made for the new building of sufficient size to accommodate the rapidly expanding science department was an "immediate necessity."

Participating in the ceremonies were faculty members, students and the grand lodge of Idaho Masons, who came in a body from Lewiston, where the annual state convention is being held. Following a program in the university auditorium, the audience adjourned to the new science building and President A. H. Upham formally requested Victor Peterson of Grangeville, grand master, to take charge of the cornerstone laying.

First Speaker.

W. J. McConnell, governor at the time Mr. Hattabaugh made his appeal for a science building, was the first speaker. His subject was "The Inception of the Idea," and he told of the various efforts to displace the institution and establish smaller schools in other parts of the state. A. H. Conner, attorney general of Idaho, represented the state, Governor Charles C. Moore being unable to attend and his theme was "The Realization of the Idea." Mr. Conner told of the legislative situation at the time the appropriation was made for the new building.

STUDENT URGED TO FORGET IDEAS

Graduate Must Discard Belief That He Can Conquer the World Offhand.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18 (AP)—The idea that young college graduates expect to step forth, diplomas in hand, and conquer the world, or at least become masters of industry and finance within a few months' time, is being dispelled by the Carnegie Institute of Technology, John T. Morris, director of the college of industries declared today. Even the college graduate should get his "white collar job" by traveling the "overall route" Mr. Morris believes, and various branches of industry are co-operating to the extent of hiring the youthful technicians, putting them into a pair of overalls and sending them into the dirt and grease of the shops before they are permitted to take a hand in the problems of management in the clean atmosphere of the swivel chairs and glass covered desks. Industrial heads also are providing special equipment and suggesting curriculum improvements.

Steps to incorporate a more practical system of industrial education in the college of industries were taken several years ago, but it has been only in the past few years that industrial corporations have shown any great interest in the developments. Soon after the first graduates of the new system had taken their first jobs, however, executives in big plants began to take notice and report from the institute said the willingness of these graduates to

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—Recent statements that the very substantial rise in the price of wheat is due to artificial causes was declared by Secretary Hoover today to have no foundation in fact.

"Two things have underlain this advance," the secretary said in a formal statement.

"First, there are three hundred million bushels less of wheat in the world from this crop than that of last year. Second, the increased stability given to Europe by the recent settlement brought about through activities of the administration have increased the buying power and outlook for consumption."

"The practical effect of all this is shown by the fact that our exports of 35,000,000 bushels in the last six weeks shows substantial increase over last year. There is every reason to believe that these exports will be maintained."

"Prices would probably have gone to higher levels had it not been that the farmer has crowded the market by sending in over 110,000,000 bushels of this crop against 88,000,000 bushels for the same period last year. This is no doubt due to his necessities, but it has probably brought about lower prices than would otherwise have been the case."

LA FOLLETTE GIVEN A GREAT OVATION

use of farm lands, and farm products has exceeded forty billions of dollars.

Shall Not Avoid Issues.

"The leaders of both old parties naturally desire to escape discussion of the shameful acts which have produced such results as these. I do not intend that they shall avoid these issues."

Senator La Follette discussed the record of the Harding-Coolidge administration, the acts of which he contended "must be judged as a whole," and declared that President Coolidge "knew every act and policy of the last administration because he was a participant in their formulation." He referred to John W. Davis as a "certain distinguished lawyer now running for president, who is going to get the people to forget his former clients," "who blocked" efforts of the public to bring about reductions in telephone rates in New York.

Declaring that "parties and candidates should be judged on their records and not on pre-election promises," the Wisconsin senator continued:

"The best that the republican party, for example, can offer with its present candidate, is four years more of misgovernment and more of the same kind during the last four years—the same control by powerful private interests, the same cynical bestowal of special privilege to the favored few, the same shameful betrayal of the public trust."

Procedure Extraordinary.

"By an extraordinary procedure adopted at the beginning of President Harding's administration, the vice president was made a member of the president's cabinet, so that he might not only be fully informed of every policy and action, but so that he might also give his counsel and advice. He sat with the cabinet while it discussed, according to the testimony of those who were present, the transfer of Teapot Dome and other naval oil reserves from the navy department to the interior department, so that the corrupt lease of those great properties might be made. He knew every act and policy of the cabinet while it discussed, because he was a participant in their formulation."

"But even if the then vice president was not a member of the cabinet, participated in the making of policies, it would have made little difference. All that was necessary in Washington was to call the four members of the possession of fairly good hearing, to gain the knowledge that a monstrous orgy of corruption was taking place."

Not of Corruption.

"A man might have been blind, a man might have been dumb, but if he still retained his sense of hearing, he would have learned from trustworthy sources that the department of justice was not of corruption, that the department of the interior and Secretary Fall was bartering away the nation's resources and that almost every department was honeycombed with corruption. It was heard in the corridors of the capitol, in committee rooms, in banks and in business houses. There was no escape. It was everywhere."

"I had no private sources of information. When I exposed the corrupt leasing of Teapot Dome and forced the senate by a unanimous vote to order an investigation. I merely dared to charge openly what every member of the senate knew. I was able in that speech to reveal substantially every important fact regarding the corrupt leasing of the oil reserves, except the corrupt consideration received by Fall from his oil leaseholder. I did not know that $100,000 in cash had been brought from New York to Washington and delivered in a black bag to Albert B. Falls. But the other important facts including the great trust made by the insiders in the stock market, was laid before the senate and the nation. There sat the vice president within 50 feet of me as I spoke, hearing every word of an indictment that forced even the old guard of the senate to consent to an investigation."

CROPS MATURING EARLIER, REPORT

Week Ending Tuesday Was Delightful and Good Growing Weather, Says Summary.

Fall crops are maturing considerably earlier than usual this year, according to the weekly weather and crop summary of Clinton E. Norquist, in charge of the weather bureau office at Boise. The summary for the week ending Tuesday follows:

Southwest Idaho.
Delightful autumn weather prevailed throughout the week. Temperatures fell a little below normal early in the week, but after that the weather was quite warm. No rain occurred. Fall crops, both field and truck, are maturing considerably earlier than usual. Seasonable farm work, except plowing and seeding, which are delayed by lack of moisture, made rapid progress. The third cutting of alfalfa is being secured in excellent condition in the districts where water has been available for late irrigation; in less favored sections, meadows are being pastured. The bulk of the prairie crop has been gathered. Apples are taking on color rapidly and the early varieties will soon be ready for market. Corn is being cut for silage with fairly satisfactory yields. Bean harvest is about completed in the Twin Falls section and threshing has begun with good light.

Southeast Idaho.
Light showers the first of the week were followed by light to killing frosts the middle of the week. No serious damage resulted from the frosts. Harvesting and threshing are about finished in the earlier sections and this work is progressing rapidly in the later sections. The northern counties are busy with the second cutting of alfalfa, while in the southern counties the third cutting has begun. Alfalfa seed is being harvested in Oneida and Bingham counties. Fall wheat is being planted and is benefited by the showers. Potato digging has begun generally except in some of the higher sections. Beets are doing well except where damaged by blight and insect pests. Bingham county corn is maturing.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH IT?
A speaker at a Twin Falls banquet
some five days ago told his audience of a dairy cow which in point of milk production led the world, and then asked his hearers if they had ever heard of the animal or could tell him the name of the State in which it was bred.

To men present were aware of the fact that the cow came from Meriden, Idaho.

The speaker's point was, simply, that had the State of California been the highbrow rather than the State of Idaho, the world would have been aware of the fact.

California would have taken advantage of the advertising possibilities.
To Idaho it is a matter of almost complete indifference.

Spokane speaking. California wins and Idaho loses. There is nothing new in the situation. Apparently it has always been that way.

It is the same with communities as with the State as a whole. Within a few miles of Twin Falls the biggest single piece of development in the history of this section since the water was first turned upon the land, is going steadily forward, yet the new railroad outfit to the coast, which comes as a result of the efforts of over ten years, is no longer a topic of conversation on out streets.

What's the matter with us?
It couldn't be that way in California.

SWIMMING GIRLS.
A queer epidemic broke out over the country during the summer, particularly infecting automobiles. The symptoms were colored pictures of swimming girls posted on the windshields and windows.

The first examples were striking and,
in a way, commendable, since they served to brighten up dull streams of traffic. But soon the thing became a pest. Thousands of motorists—probably millions of them—seemed to feel that they were doing something very dislike and smart when they decorated their cars with diving girls in one-piece suits. The thing grew until the drivers could hardly see out and others could hardly see in, on account of the glare being so cluttered with diving girls. Many a wreck resulted from this cause, and from the additional fact that drivers and pedestrians were too often lured into staring at the fair ladies when they should have been watching where they were going.

So the inevitable happens. The police, in city after city, have been obliged to order all the pictures stripped off the automobile windows, in order to restore clear vision.

It might be that society as a whole would have clearer vision if the same policy were extended to cover other epi-demies of some mad art.

THE CODE OF THE FLAG
There has been a good deal of complaint from various quarters in recent weeks because the Flag of the United States has been displayed in many places on several occasions in ways violating the code of the Flag.

The code was adopted on June 11, 1923, at a meeting comprising delegates from sixty eight patriotic organizations and the United States army and navy.
It was felt that the display of the national colors should be uniform and dignified and that the best way to achieve this was to write a specific code and then train the citizens of the country to observe it. The training process is not yet complete.

The code has been printed in many newspapers in part or wholly, and local posts of the American Legion have made announcements concerning it. In 10-days have appeared. Still the shame exists.

This should not be a matter for utter discouragement, however. It may require continued publicity over a number of years before the public become fully aware of its duty in this matter.
But a few simple points, ought to be hammered in first of all.

One is that the Flag should never be used as drapery. It is not a table cover or a curtain to be hung up over a background against which to hang pictures.

Very few private citizens have an occasion to raise or lower the Flag or to carry it in parade, but many of them do hang the Flag out on holidays or for other special occasions. Many churches and schools use the Flag when having special exercises, or keep it always in view. All of these individuals and groups can easily find out exactly how they should display the Flag, and it is up to them to do so.

Breakfast Food "Matrimonially Speaking"

By MRS. HUGH MCKAY

My husband would wear his straw hat all Christmas, if I didn't stop him.

At the end of the season doesn't mean thing to him. He says that the last part of September is generally better than the first part of June—so why not wear a straw hat, both times?

He says that he can't be bothered by a lot of foolish dates when a man should put on a certain kind of hat
and take off and put on another.

I greatly admire his independent spirit, but I can't say as much for the spirit that he persists in wearing that's been standing in the fields
throughout two or three hard winters.

It's been raining on it. It's been rolled down the street by the wind. It's been nicked and chipped until its brain looks like a circular saw.

But still he wears it, and none of my words have effect. The only thing left for me to do is to get up early one morning—and burn it!

that I drink too much coffee.

DEFENSE SCORES IN SECOND DAY OF JURKO TRIAL

Witnesses Testify That Murdered Man Displayed Gun and Made Remarks Shortly Before Killing.

Testimony tending to show that John Jurko, on trial in the district court on charges of first degree murder, shot and killed A. B. Vandemark in self defense to keep from being killed himself, was offered by the defense at the Jurko trial, Thursday, the second day of the trial. Several witnesses were called to the stand during the day who testified that Vandemark had displayed a gun in a local pool hall and invited one of their number to go with him to Jurko's and he would show them "those yellow Jews."

The defense placed on the stand Thursday the defendant and his wife, both of whom testified that Vandemark had shown Mrs. Jurko improper attentions and that the shooting occurred after Mrs. Jurko had told her husband that Vandemark was annoying her and had urged her to leave her husband and go away with him.

Jurko Testifies.

Jurko, who was placed on the stand Thursday morning, declared that he did not remember anything after going to the card room with his wife to obtain an apology from Vandemark and to warn him to stay away from Mrs. Jurko. Noting Vandemark in a game of cards there, of warning him and of Vandemark getting to his feet and making a threatening motion at him, following which he fired.

Mrs. Jurko corroborated the testimony of her husband as to improper attentions made by Vandemark. She testified that while her husband was out of town, Vandemark had knocked on the door of her room one night at 11 o'clock and at that time urged her to leave her husband and go away with him. Later, she said, when they had moved from over the card room to a residence Vandemark again came to the house and urged her to go with him. These facts, she said, had not revealed to her husband until the day of the shooting.

During the afternoon session several witnesses were called to the stand by the prosecution to testify that the pool hall had been before the shooting occurred. Percy E. Alfred of Murphy's, a clear, stout man, of Vandemark's entrance into the pool hall one evening at about 9 o'clock, evidently under the influence of liquor. He invited one of the men standing near by whom he knew to go down with him to see Jurko, with whom he said he had been having trouble. Alfred testified that Vandemark called Jurko crooked, using a great deal of profanity.

Following this he pulled from his pocket a gun and placed it on the counter with further remarks about Jurko. He was ordered to put the gun up and let the cigar store. This was also testified to by other witnesses.

Martin Strandy, barber, was called to the stand and told of remarks that Vandemark had made in the pool hall in which Strandy worked, and in which Jurko had also worked. He declared that Vandemark said Mrs. Jurko was a "yellow-bellied Jew" and that for Jurko, whom he characterized as crooked and no good.

Following the testimony of further defense witnesses Dr. Wilson was called to the stand and testified that he had examined the body of Jurko. He stated then offered in rebuttal the testimony of J. J. Gorman, Twin Falls, easily known who told the stand and told of being called to the pool hall where he found Vandemark, who was still alive but who died in a few minutes. He told of wounds on the hands of Vandemark. He also testified to examining the clothing on the body and said that he could not find a gun.

Deputy Sheriff Porter was then called and testified a statement made by Jurko when he was brought up at the courthouse. This statement was to the

NOW AN INMATE of the County General Hospital, suffering with pneumonia. He is probably the oldest living Shoshone Indian.

After that Jurko had declared he went to the card room to make Vandemark apologize and to warn him to leave his wife alone, Jurko in the statement. Deputy Sheriff Porter said, declared that night that Vandemark had gone to the bar, picked up a glass and drank it at him. He warned him if he did this again he would never throw another glass and when Vandemark started to throw another glass he had fired.

Sheriff M. E. Finch was called following Deputy Sheriff Porter and also told of statement made by Jurko when he gave himself up.

The prosecuting attorney, J. W. Taylor, told the court Thursday afternoon that he expected the hearing would be completed today.

Speculation was rife on the streets Thursday night as to what effect the testimony of the defense Thursday would have on the jury. Many were of the belief that the jury would be unable to agree on the guilt or innocence of the defendant while others were of the opinion that a fewer charge than first degree murder would be brought in. According to attorneys, the jury can find Jurko guilty of first degree, second degree murder, or manslaughter. They say there are five verdicts that might be returned.

The court room Thursday was crowded and during most of the day all seats were taken. Much more interest was shown in the trial the second day of testimony than on the first day.

Rock Creek Jim, Suffering From Pneumonia, Believed Well Over One Hundred Years of Age.

WITH the snows of a hundred winters on his head, his gaunt and weatherbeaten form racked and weakened by disease that he struggles to ignore, "Rock Creek Jim," only surviving patriarch among Shoshone Indians, once numerous in this region and a familiar figure in the days when white settlers first took up their abode in southern Idaho, is a patient in the county general hospital here, making a fight for life that is marked by the stoicism of his race.

Suffering from a malady that racks his frame with occasional fits of painful coughing and too weak to lift his head, Rock Creek Jim was brought to the hospital last Friday from his home on the ranch on Salivation creek, over the upper end of the Roseworth project reservoir, where he has lived with his daughter, Maggie, since he left Rock Creek, about 20 years ago. During the long hours that he lies in the clean, white-sheeted hospital cot, Rock Creek Jim indicates not by words but by his actions, his appreciation of hospital care and surroundings. Frequently, when he believes himself unobserved, he presses his hands over the white sheet and coverlet. He has confided in no one in this regard, but his action speaks for itself. He has never before occupied such a bed.

Questions: Hospital Cots. Long practice of thrift and native honesty impelled the aged Indian one day following his arrival at the hospital to protest against what he assumed to be exorbitant charges that he would be called upon to pay for hospital attention and to confide to a visiting friend that he would immediately return to his own dwelling rather than pay such charges. It had not occurred to him to seek to evade payment, reasoned by his visitor as to his score satisfaction and equanimity apparently retorted to the venerable redman.

Communicative only in conversation with trusted friends of long standing, little has been learned by hospital attendants of Rock Creek Jim's history, but it has remained for pioneer settlers, who were his friends and confidants, a half century ago when he came to Rock Creek to make his home there for 20 years, to tell his story as they know it.

No Record of Age. There is no record of Rock Creek Jim's age. His own version is: "Maybe one hundred snows—maybe more."

A member of a band of Shoshone Indians, living in northern Nevada, Rock Creek Jim came to the village of Rock Creek in 1888 on his way north, presumably to the original home of the Shoshones in northern Montana. Surrounded by Rock Creek were to his living and he established his home several miles above the settlement near the Crockett ranch. At about that time there were five families of Shoshone Indians residing in the vicinity of Rock Creek. Their principal occupation and means of livelihood was hunting, tanning buckskin and making buckskin gloves.

John P. Hansen, now deputy county recorder, was in those days the proprietor of a general store at Rock Creek, and to him the Indians brought most of their buckskin gloves for sale. The gloves then made by the Indians were not the elaborately beaded articles that their people still make and sell today, but were plain durable gloves that met the requirements of work on the range. The prevailing price, Mr. Hansen recalled, was $1.00 a pair. The Indians of Rock Creek during a single year were accustomed to make and bring into the Rock Creek store about 300 to 500 pairs of buckskin gloves.

Insists on Silver Dollars.

They demanded their pay in silver dollars, one silver dollar for one pair of gloves, and the silver dollar was the unit of their purchasing.

On one occasion, Mr. Hansen stated, Rock Creek Jim was employed for a time by Robert Rogerson and received in payment for his services a check for some $22. Doubtless he brought the check in to the Rock Creek store and seemed convinced of its value only when he received in silver dollars the amount for which it was drawn.

Rock Creek Jim and members of his family were welcome guests in the home of Rock Creek's pioneer settlers. Never was there any question as to their integrity, and never were their needs allowed to go unfulfilled.

Tenacious memory of the aged Indian was demonstrated one day following his arrival at the hospital here. Over a gap of more than 25 years Rock Creek Jim raised his eyes one evening to look into the face of John P. Hansen standing at his bedside in the position of the Indian salute.

"Why, hello, John," he exclaimed delightedly.

Judge Lawrence Hansen required no introduction.

"Hello, Hansen," was the Indian's salutation.

Recalls Ancient History.

C. S. Walgamott, third member of the group of pioneers who visited the stricken Indian on this occasion, was introduced as Charley. Closely regarding his visitor for a moment the venerable redman declared, "Your name Charley Walgamott. You work for Strickland."

He referred to Herman Strickland, pioneer settler and cattleman of the vicinity of what is now Artesian.

Rock Creek Jim is intensely proud of his connection with the Shoshone tribe and its traditions. Regarded as a branch of the Blackfeet tribe of Montana, the Shoshones deem themselves far superior to the Blackfeet, and nothing so stirs their indignation as being confused with the Bannocks of eastern Idaho.

Rock Creek Jim has survived two wives. His family so far as is known, consists of his daughter, Maggie, who was a little girl in Rock Creek, and a son, Dick, a few years younger.
