ANCIENT ARCH DISCOVERED BY U. S. EXPLORERS

Expedition From University of Michigan Makes Important
Find in Asia Minor; Spanned Roadway.

YALOVACH, Asia Minor, Oct. 4 1924

The remains of a massive triumphal arch believed to have been constructed in the early part of the first century A. D., Latin inscriptions of that century, and a head of Augustus in white marble, are among archaeological finds which have been unearthed by the University of Michigan expedition, which is excavating under the direction of Professor David M. Robinson of Johns Hopkins University on the site of Antioch in Pisidia in Asia Minor. It was this expedition which recently uncovered the foundations of a large early Christian church. The arch, which was recently discovered, spanned a road near the base of a large oval hill on which the city stood. The road, probably, connected with the highway to Lystra.

Passageway.

The arch had a single passageway, with a span of about 14 feet. The piers contained arch recesses as if for statues. They were embellished with superimposed pilasters exemplifying two varieties of the Corinthian order. These carried the main entablature of which the architecture bore an inscription in bronze letters six inches high. Only one of the letters has been found, buried in the earth where it fell, but from the holes in which the letters were fastened it will be possible to decipher the inscription. Important among other recent finds is the head of Augustus, which in respect to technical skill and expressiveness is reported to rival the best of the remarkable series of sculptured portraits of this emperor in the European galleries.

Missouri's Four and a Half Million Dollar Building Will Be Scene of Ceremony.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 4 1924

The largest crowd of distinguished Americans and native Missourians that has ever been seen at a public gathering in Missouri is expected to come here October 6 to attend the formal dedication of the new Missouri state capitol building.

Governors of eight states at least will be present to make addresses, as well as four former governors of Missouri. Parades, speeches, band concerts, gigantic historical pageant and a fireworks display on the Missouri river will make up the program.

The main feature will be the pageant. More than 1000 participants will depict the history and growth of Missouri. Each epoch will be presided over by the wife of the governor who served during the period of the new building's construction.

The new capitol was built at a cost of approximately $4,500,000, and was constructed of southwest Missouri marble and limestone. It was erected to replace the structure destroyed by fire February 5, 1911. Actual work began May 8, 1913 and ended September 8, 1921. Since that time, however, much additional work has been done.

The building covers three acres, has 300,000 feet of floor space, is five stories high and contains 8,848,814 cubic feet.

Buddhas Torn Down by Earthquake in Orient Will Be Repaired at a Big Expense; Work to Start Soon.

TOKIO, Oct. 4 (AP)—Two of the world's most famous religious images, damaged by the great earthquake of last September, are soon to be repaired. These are the Buddha which has stood in Yuzo park, Tokio, since 1695, and the Diabutsu of Kamakura, probably the most noted representation of Buddha in the world.

The earthquake rocked the Kamakura, Diabutsu, which stands 49 feet high, weighs 450 tons and was cast in 1252, from its foundations, set it nearly a foot forward and caused large cracks in its head of curly hair and its benign cheeks. The minister of education, Dr. Okada, has announced that he will spend 20,000 yen, part of a fund of 140,000 yen allotted by the diet in its special session this summer for the repair of temples and shrines, for restoring the great image and healing the cracks.

The Yuzo Buddha fared even worse than its Kamakura prototype. The force of the shock actually decapitated the image, throwing the head clear of the body. The image still stands in headless majesty. Artists of Tokio have undertaken the restoration of the Buddha, not by repairs, as first proposed, but by recasting the entire image. The cost of this work is estimated at 100,000 yen and the task will require ten months. The Yuzo Buddha stood 21 feet high.

WHISKEY SHIP OF BIG RING IS CAPTURED

Federal Prohibition Agents Believe They Have Broken Up Huge Anglo-American Banker Bootlegger Combination.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—With the capture of a raskish British steamer with 11,000 cases of whiskey aboard, prohibition officials today claimed to have caused the collapse of an Anglo-American banker-bootlegger alliance which in the past six months has flooded this part of the country with illicit liquor.

As a result of a three months' investigation, coast guardmen seized the 376 ton steamer Frederick B. and her crew of 20 men, off Monmouth Beach, N. J., in which the federal officials call the first real test of the liquor treaty with Great Britain.

Bankers Belmont and B. J. B. in Montreal and New York and distillers and shipping men in London and Halifax are said to be members of the intricate bootlegging ring which, the dry raiders said, has $10,000,000 behind its operations of a four-ship fleet.

In addition to the prize capture of the Britisher, four smaller craft—fleet motor boats that bring the liquor from the run fleet to the Long Island and New Jersey shores—were taken. The capture, which included a half hundred cases of whiskey and 15 prisoners, were made by the marine police.

One lone police boat, with lights out, got three of the little craft off the Rockaways singlehanded. The fourth was taken at Staten Island while her crew were unloading whiskey on a dock.

A novel ruse was employed by the federal agents to involve the crew of the Frederick B. in a test of the new treaty, which extends the ancient three mile limit to the distance of an hour's sailing.

After handing the vessel's master $100,000 in cash and checks to make a fat liquor purchase agreement binding agents asked for 25 "sample" cases to take ashore at once. They put the "stuff" aboard the fastest speed boat they could get and raced ashore in 42 minutes. This, assert the agents, involves in bootlegging in a violation of the Anglo-American treaty.

Their race against time completed, the agents pressed the coast guard cutter, Vesta, into the work. That formidable armed little vessel steamed alongside the whiskey laden Frederick B., placed under arrest the crew and two women found aboard, and proceeded to the ship to under-gard anchorage off the statue of liberty.

Long Drought Brings to Light
Strange and Primitive Customs of Farmers.

OSAKA, Japan, Oct. 4 (AP)—A summer of unprecedented drought has brought to light strange and primitive customs among the farmers of the countryside around Osaka.

So great has become the menace to crops that there has been supplication to the rain gods used only in the greatest emergency and resorted to only twice in the last 70 years. This is the "opening of the sacred well" in the precincts of the famous Oira shrine, near Osaka.

Seven men are chosen by lot from among the people of the village in which the shrine is located. These offer prayers for a week, living apart in the shrine precincts and purifying themselves daily by rites of ablution. Then a fence of dry grass is built around the sacred well and the opening begins. The well is buried deep in the earth. Before its stone cover can be reached three boxes, each containing a prayer in ancient Sanskrit, relics of the early days of Buddhism in Japan, have to be recovered. When the stone cover of the well is removed according to the belief, an inexhaustible flood of cold water gushes over the brim, the sky becomes overcast and rain falls heavily. How efficacious the prayers have been in this instance is not yet known.

Charles P. Larsen was elected president of the league and other officers were elected as follows:

Secretary, Phil Piz; treasurer, D. A. Salmon; directors, Roy Gault, Frank Klossner and W. T. Seilly.

GIVES EXHIBITION OF REMARKABLE SHOOTING

"Ad" Tupperwein Entertains Large Crowd With Program of Wide Variety.

An appreciative audience of several hundred persons Saturday afternoon witnessed the remarkable exhibition of shooting with shotgun rifle and revolver of "Ad" Tupperwein of San Antonio, Texas.

Mr. Tupperwein delivered a brief talk on firearms before he began to use them, which was listened to with attention. But the interest in his remarks was nothing compared to the manner in which his shooting was received. Applause was frequent and at times the crowd acted as though they knew it but didn't believe it.

Apparently it was mostly fun to the shooter. He made little effort on any of his shots. Occasionally he missed but not often. He threw five eggs into the air at once and broke them all. He shot an Indian head in a piece of tin in an incredibly short time. He fired two revolvers at once and hit both targets. He threw up and hit mauls with a .22-caliber rifle. Any kind of a target answered just so it was "hot" on big and on the move.

Mr. Tupperwein claims that anybody can do it—with practice. He added that he had been shooting for about 10 years himself, which gauged by the amount of ammunition he has used up is probably true.

GIANTS WIN FIRST GAME OF THE SERIES

but unspectacular. Then came the ninth and the Senators, breaking through the defense that had held them at bay, tied the score and threw the game into a wild, extra inning tussle.

Shower of Omissions.

Judge had started the ninth inning suspiciously by striking out when Bluge, young third baseman, brought the crowd to its feet with a single that Jackson got his glove on but could not handle. Peckinbaugh, veteran shortstop, failed with a line smash to left center and Bluge scurried over the plate with the tying run amid a wild outburst that halted the game for several minutes until the outfield could be cleared of a cushion shower.

Peckinbaugh rested on second with a prospect of scoring the winning run and when he advanced to third on Bluce's hit, the crowd called for John son as he strode to the plate, to win his own game. It was the second opportunity for a heroic batting achievement that had been opened to the great pitcher but, though he tried hard, he could not break through. This time he raised a short fly that Kelly grabbed in short centerfield. Two innings previously with men on first and second and two out, Johnson smashed a drive that seemed headed for safety in right center, but Frank Frisch, Giant captain, leaped high and brought down the ball to choke off the rally.

Loss Chance in Tenth.

Both teams lost chances to score in the tenth, Frisch getting to second for the Giants on his hit and a steal, while Harris and Rice singled in succession for the Senators, the former reaching third, only to be stranded when Goslin and Judge, the club's heavy artillery, were checked by Nehf.

The eleventh passed quickly, with neither side threatening; then came the twelfth and Johnson, just when it seemed he was growing stronger under the tensions of the struggle, wilted. Hank Gowdy, veteran catcher, started the Giants' victorious rally when he walked, Johnson hitting him in the back with the fourth ball. Nehf lifted a short fly to center which McNeely barely reached, then sagged. It went for a single but McNeely threw wild to the infield in his haste and Gowdy raced to third and Nehf to second.

Sensing that the break of the game had come, McGraw called on his reserves and sent Jack Bentley to bat for Lindstrom, young third baseman. The strategy succeeded when Bentley walked, filling the bases, and Southworth ran for him.

Momentarily the rally was checked when Frisch hit to Harris and Gowdy was forced out at the plate, but Young, who had struck out previously three times, game through with a short single to center and Nehf crossed the plate. Kelly brought in Southworth with what proved the winning run when he lifted a sacrifice fly to Goslin. Terry filled the bases again with an infield single, but Johnson forced Williams to flyout and end the rally. Johnson was withdrawn in favor of a pinch hitter, Shirley, as the Senators came out for the last time. It was a last ditch stand and the crowd was thrown into another frenzy when Jackson dropped Shirley's high fly and the runner reached second. McNeely flew out, but Harris, Washington's batting manager, punched a single to center that sent Shirley over the plate.

Rice followed with a sharp drive to left center and Harris raced to third but Rice, trying to stretch his hit, was thrown out on second.

This unexpected piece of strategy cost the Senator's chance to tie the score, for it was the second out and Harris' chances of scoring the tying run were blasted when Goslin was thrown out on a time stop and throw by Kelly, called into the infield in the closing inning. Had Rice been held to a single Harris probably would have been able to score on Goslin's blow, which came within inches of being a safe hit.

GREATER THAN "THE MIRACLE MAN"

JAPANESE PRAY TO RAIN GODS

Long Drought Brings to Light
Strange and Primitive Customs of Farmers.

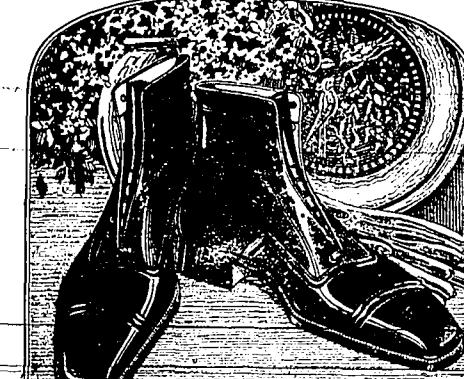

OSAKA, Japan, Oct. 4 (AP)—A summer of unprecedented drought has brought to light strange and primitive customs among the farmers of the countryside around Osaka.

So great has become the menace to crops that there has been supplication to the rain gods used only in the greatest emergency and resorted to only twice in the last 70 years. This is the "opening of the sacred well" in the precincts of the famous Oira shrine, near Osaka.

Seven men are chosen by lot from among the people of the village in which the shrine is located. These offer prayers for a week, living apart in the shrine precincts and purifying themselves daily by rites of ablution. Then a fence of dry grass is built around the sacred well and the opening begins. The well is buried deep in the earth. Before its stone cover can be reached three boxes, each containing a prayer in ancient Sanskrit, relics of the early days of Buddhism in Japan, have to be recovered. When the stone cover of the well is removed according to the belief, an inexhaustible flood of cold water gushes over the brim, the sky becomes overcast and rain falls heavily. How efficacious the prayers have been in this instance is not yet known.

TWO DISTRICTS SHARE COST OF BRIDGE REPAIR

Hillsdale and Twin Falls Highway Commissioners Enter Into Agreement for Re-flooding Hansen Span Over Snake.

Hillsdale highway district and Twin Falls highway district will co-operate in repairing the Hansen bridge spanning the Snake river canyon north of Hansen and connecting the two districts. Decision as to details of the undertaking was reached at a meeting here Saturday afternoon of the commissioners of both districts.

A joint meeting of both boards, it was decided, will be held October 18 in Twin Falls for reception of bids on the work, which will consist mainly in re-flooding of the structure. Engineers estimate that the expense involved at $2000. Hillsdale district will pay two-thirds and Twin Falls district one-third of the expense.

Hillsdale district board members who took part in the meeting here Saturday were J. H. Seelye, L. E. Pool and C. T. Hadlock.

Hansen Road Project Put Over.

The Twin Falls district Saturday postponed opening of bids on contract for improvement of two miles of road north and east of Hansen, and decided to open bids on this work at the regular meeting two weeks hence.

The road which is proposed to improve extends north one mile to the section line east of Hansen and then goes east one mile. Residents affected have contributed more than $500 toward the cost of the improvement.

Contract for 310 yards of gravel on Seebach avenue north, which is the continuation of Buchanan street in Twin Falls, was awarded by the commissioners to William Harkins, whose bid of $434 was deemed the lowest and best among three bids submitted.

Keel-Wilkinson-Strunk Lumber company was awarded the contract for a carload of bridge lumber to be delivered to the district at a cost of $900 f. o. b. Twin Falls. Four bids were received.

School District's Needs Told.

Twin Falls independent school district, represented by C. E. McClain, chairman of the board of education, and Ernest D. Bloom, superintendent of schools, conferred with the highway district board with regard to improvement of roads and its part in use of trucks by the school district in transportation of pupils.

PRIVILEGE TO ENTER AMERICA

United States Restrictive Immigration Law Is Working With a Vengeance.

HAMBURG, Oct. 4 (AP)—America's new restrictive immigration law is restricting with a vengeance, and this costs for admission to the United States are beginning to realize that a visa to enter the United States is a rare privilege and not a right, as many had previously believed.

The burden of proof is now on the applicant for admission to the United States, and consular officials sit as judges upon the fitness of the applicants and the reliability of their denials.

As only slightly more than 3000 German emigrants can be passed monthly, and this number is divided among 10 consular offices, the old days of rush and shove about in consular offices are largely over.

Compelled to Return.

One of the striking results of the new law probably will be that hundreds of foreign men who have not become citizens in America will be compelled to return to Europe if they want to rejoin their families. This because wives and children of Non-Americans in the United States are not given special treatment, and many of them will not be able to get permission to go to America for years because of the small quotas.

It is not clear whether the law was framed intentionally to produce this effect, but scores of distracted women are now bewailing the consular seeking advice about what action to take. They can only be told, if they desire a speedy reunion of their families, that their husbands had better return to Europe.

ATKINS IS ADMITTED TO BOND ON APPEAL

Man Convicted of Manslaughter in Connection With Basso's Death to Rejoin His Family.

John W. Atkins, convicted in district court here last week of voluntary manslaughter in connection with the death last June of Francisco Marguegria, Basso, from injuries alleged to have been inflicted by Atkins with a rude walking stick during a quarrel, was by Judge W. A. Babcock Saturday afternoon, admitted to liberty under $3000 bond pending the result of his appeal to the state supreme court from judgment involving sentence of imprisonment of from one to ten years in the state prison.

In support of Atkins' application for bond, affidavits were submitted, one of them signed by his wife, Mrs. Vesta Atkins, stating that she was dependent upon him for support of herself and three little children.

The application for bond was not rejected by the prosecuting attorney's office.

DEFEAT DEATH IN AUTO WRECK

Four Persons Escape With Minor Injuries When Cars Crash on Highway.

Four persons narrowly escaped serious injury or death in an automobile collision that occurred on the state highway five and one-half miles west of here at about noon today when E. E. Beaman of Duhl, driving a Studebaker car eastward toward Twin Falls, attempted to pass another car and a load of hay on the road ahead of him and crashed head-on into a Ford touring car driven westward by O. N. Barr of Duhl on its own side of the road.

Both cars were badly damaged. A babe in the arms of Mrs. Barr was thrown through the broken windshield and lodged between the fender and hood of the Ford. It required minor bruises and cuts. Other persons involved in the smashup escaped with similar injuries.

Mechanics who were called to bring in the damaged cars stated that if the driver of the lighter machine had attempted to avoid a head-on collision, the smaller car probably would have been overturned with fatal results to its occupants.

Both front wheels radius rods were broken. The lighter car while was generally battered and twisted. Front end of the frame of the heavier car was torn off, and radiator, fenders and wheels were badly damaged. Both cars were brought here to be repaired at Mr. Beaman's expense.

ROUND THE WORLD THRILLS

It was expected that the American round-the-world fliers would complete their trip successfully. Such elaborate preparations had been made to aid them, and to rescue them if anything went wrong that sometimes Americans felt as if much of the sporting quality of the venture had been lost. It develops, however, that there was considerable danger and thrill and romantic adventure in the undertaking after all.

Lieutenant Wade reports that the most interesting part of the trip to him was the crossing of the Taurus mountains in Asia Minor, where the machines had to fly single file through a narrow gorge, the wings of the planes nearly touching the sides, and with heavy clouds hanging overhead, while a rushing torrent foamed beneath them.

Lieutenants Nelson and Harding found it thrilling to see pieces of metal and piston rings fly out of the exhaust pipe when an exhaust valve broke while they were over the Hind desert, fifty-five miles from Karachi, India. In the face of such circumstances they admit they were "a little uneasy, due to the fact that the country six thousand feet below was nothing but rough, rocky desert in all directions and a forced landing on the rolling, hilly and desert-infested sands would probably wreck the plane.

In French Indo-China, while passing along the edge of a monsoon, Lieutenants Smith and Arnold found their engines stalled from fuel by the sudden appearance of smoke pouring out of their engine. While Smith was making the necessary landing, Arnold, a fire extinguisher, climbed over the side of the plane despite a heavy gale, and got down to the bottom of the engine. He had the fire out promptly upon alighting, even before Smith had climbed out of his seat. A broken part was replaced by a new one brought fifty miles overland on a donkey's back.

And so it goes, through raging blizzards, in regions of everlasting ice, over scorching deserts and across great seas. The American people are glad these men are safely back again, they are glad that Americans made the first flight circling the globe. The length of individual hops, the actual flying time, the number of gallons of oil and gasoline consumed, and all that, are important, of course. But tell us some more about the things which gave these brave adventurers an occasional "kick."

WHAT EUROPE THINKS

Americans are always interested in what Europeans think of America. Here is the report of an American professor of political science, returning home after several months abroad.

"All Europe," he says, "is interested chiefly in two things, as far as America is concerned. They are prohibition and our attitude toward the League of Nations."

"As regards the League," they would like this country to join and find it hard to understand why it refuses. That is an old story now. As regards prohibition, there is a surprise.

"The thinking people in Europe," says this observer, "especially in England, look upon our prohibition law as a great and interesting experiment. They no longer just about it, and in more than one quarter I found encouragement."

Americans, too, are not jesting about prohibition as much as they

CAPTAIN BLOOD

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini.
"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitaphone picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Blood, a young Irish physician, has taken up residence in Bridgewater, after years spent in the wars on the continent. Chance had sent him as a youth graduating from Trinity College, Dublin, to take service with the Duke, who were then at war with France. He had a predilection for the sea and served under the famous de Ruyter. The forces of the Duke of Monmouth had come to battle at Oglethorpe's Farm. Blood knew of the impending engagement between the rebels and the royalists but he had remained indifferent, although he had seen the gathering of the foolish peasantry. He went early to bed and slept through the rumbling of cannon. At dawn he was awakened by Jeremiah Pitt, a young shipmaster, who summons him to go to the aid of Lord Oglethorpe on the right bank of the river. On the bridge, as they had been riding out of Bridgewater, they had met a vanguard of fugitives from the field of battle; hoarse voices cried a warning that merciless pursuit was not the habit. But as Pitt's direction was a southward one, bringing them over nearer to Foverham's headquarters, the Bloods were presently clear of that human

CHAPTER II
KIRKE'S DRAGOONS

Oglethorpe's farm stood a mile or so to the south of Bridgewater on the right bank of the river. On the bridge, as they had been riding out of Bridgewater, they had met a vanguard of fugitives from the field of battle; hoarse voices cried a warning that merciless pursuit was not the habit. But as Pitt's direction was a southward one, bringing them over nearer to Foverham's headquarters, the Bloods were presently clear of that human

The Arrest of Peter Blood

Kerrigan and Kerrigan of the battle. In the spacious, stone-gabled hall, the doctor found Lord Oglethorpe stretched on a cane day-bed in care of Mrs. Baynes and her comely daughter. Mr. Blood knelt to his task. He was still intent upon it a half-hour later when the dragoons invaded the homestead. His lordship showed considerable alarm, and the battle-stained Jeremy Pitt stood to cover in a clothes-press. Baynes was uneasy, and his wife and daughter trembled. "Why, what's to fear?" Mr. Blood reassured them. "It's a Christian country, this, and Christian men do not make war upon the wounded, nor upon those who harbour them. And then they came rattling and clanking into the stone-flagged hall—a round dozen of jack-booted, lobster-coated troopers of the Tangles Regiment, led by a sturdy, black-browed fellow with a deal of gold lace about the breast of his coat. The Captain stamped forward to the day-bed, and scowled down upon the grey-faced soldier. "A damned rebel, and that's enough for me. Out with him my lad!" Mr. Blood got between the day-bed and the troopers. "In the name of humanity, sir!" said he, on a note of anger. "This is England, not Tangiers. The gentleman is in no more case. He may be moved without peril to his lodgings." Captain Hobart was amused. "Do you think it's to benefit his health we're taking him? There's galleys being planted along the road from Weston to Bridgewater, and he'll serve for one of them as well as another. Colonel Kirke'll learn these uncomformable fellows something they'll not forget in generations." "You're hanging men without trial?" said he, then, it's mistaken I am. We're in Tangiers, after all. It seems, where your regiment belongs." (Continued in our next issue.)

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

DUCKLINGS' PARTY

The party was being given by Mother Duck for her little ducklings and for the ducklings of her neighbors. "Am going to have a party for the children in the stream," said Mother Duck.

"Quick, quick," she said, "will you come?" And she asked every mother of every little duck if the children would be able to come to the party.

"It will be given tomorrow morning, at Bright Sunlight Time, right in the stream," she said several times. "And I want as many as possible to come."

"My dear little soft yellow-downy ducklings, will welcome all your little yellow-downy ducklings, and they will have a splendid time."

All the mothers accepted for all of the children, and indeed, the children were glad when their mothers told them of the party to be given the following morning.

So the next morning they all came, and Mother Duck welcomed them all, and so did her little ducklings.

What a huge party it was. Every one invited had come, and there had been a great many invited.

The mothers came along and greeted their ducklings, but they were not talked to her, leaving the children entirely alone. They knew how much better a time they would have this way than if the mothers stayed around while the children played.

Such games as they had! They swam down the stream and up the stream, and sometimes they went off and talked secrets to each other.

Sometimes several chatted and played together. But mostly, lots and lots of them kept together so that people passing by the stream said: "Did you ever see so many little ducklings, and aren't they cunning, so soft and yellow and pretty and just like little toy ducks?"

Some of the mothers heard the people talking, and Mother Duck said: "Aren't people funny! Because our ducklings are so perfect, they say they look like toy ducks!"

"And the other day a funny thing happened. A lady in the house down the road has a garden of which she is very fond."

"She had gone away for a few days and was going to bring back some dear guests with her."

"Before she left she said to her flowers: "Now, you are in bad as I leave. Please be out and look your best while I return!"

"She said the flowers were very obedient and good, and came out just as she had told them to do."

"But when the people saw one of the beautiful roses they said: 'They look too perfect to be real. They look as though they were artificial.'"

"Now, wasn't that absurd? For a perfect rose could not be an artificial flower."

An artificial rose can't be perfect, for it hasn't the perfection of the rose's scent—it has no scent at all. And it isn't any soft, velvet-like flower."

"And how they say the children look like toy ducks!"

"Oh, well, they are beautiful ducks, anyway. There is Mrs. Gout with her little one upon the hill yonder."

"She is devoted to her child, and the child is a dear—no, I mean it is a gem."

"All the other gouts are handsome, too, with their fine gontes of which they are so very proud."

"But nothing in the world is so cunning and so sweet as little ducks. Perfect, perfect ducks."

All the mother ducks agreed. And from that the mothers watched their ducklings as they enjoyed the beautiful party which ended up with a fine pond dinner.

Then the little ducks went back to their home stream, after giving their best quick-quick thanks to Mrs. Duck for so pleasant a morning and so delicious a dinner.

At first the selling movement which forced down the wheat market yesterday was again somewhat in evidence, but was quickly checked when signs began to appear that export demand was active. Before the day was ended it was estimated that as much as 2,000,000 bushels of wheat had been purchased for shipment to Europe. Largely as a result, the new advances in prices which were witnessed kept their hold well against reactions and the day was within half a cent of the topmost figures attained.

Reports that Japanese had bought future deliveries of wheat at Liverpool were current, and were said to explain in some degree why the Liverpool market had little or no response to yesterday's decline in America. The cold wet weather prevailing in the Canadian northwest delaying the crop movement and damaging the quality of receipts also was associated with the firmness of quotations at Liverpool. Partially offsetting this, however, was the fact that it was shown because at one time today the Liverpool-Chicago difference amounted to 2 1/2 cents, the widest spread yet this season.
--

Forecasters of a cold wave likely to work into the corn belt by tomorrow or Monday did a good deal to bring new strength to the corn market. The big discount of American oats in the Canadian was the chief factor in the oats trade.

Export sale of hard and higher prices for hogs made most of the provision list higher.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Prices continued to drift irregularly lower today when an initial flurry of selling was followed by a few minutes before the close of trading. Good buying support came into the market between the two selling movements, bringing to the fore several points of independent strength. The technical structure apparently had been improved by Friday's heavy selling which, based on political developments, resulted in the elimination of many weak speculative accounts.

JURY CONVICTS FOUR YOUTHS OF STORE ROBBERY

Verdict Returned After Brief
Deliberations Declares All Defendants Guilty of Holding Up Knull Establishment.

Roy McIntyre, 27, Bud Davis, 22, Russell Cavender, 22 and George Walters, 20, were Saturday by a jury in district court here found guilty of robbery of the general mercantile store at Knull, six miles southwest of here, from which they took $18 and a quantity of cigarettes on the night of August 11, last. The jury returned its verdict after about 20 minutes' deliberation. Judgment will be pronounced next Wednesday, Judge W. A. Babcock announced. Under Idaho law the penalty for robbery is imprisonment in the state prison for not less than five years and imprisonment may be extended to life.

The convicted men were implicated by testimony of state's witnesses in two other robberies committed on the same night, one of the Blue Lakes Boulevard grocery in Twin Falls and the other of W. P. Neale, Knull district farmer, on the highway north of Knull shortly before the Knull store robbery. They were arrested at Rogerson, 20 miles south of here, soon after the robbery of the Knull store.

Accused Men Enter Denials.

Each of the convicted men, testifying in his own defense at the trial, denied any part in the robberies, and evidence was introduced by the defense in support of their claims by McIntyre and Cavender.

Presenting Attorney J. W. Taylor, conducting the case for the state, introduced evidence that the knife and watch taken from Neale and found in the possession of the accused men when they were arrested. In refutation of defendants' claim that they had not been at Knull on the night of the robbery, the state offered evidence to show that the car in which three of the defendants admitted making the trip to Rogerson was the car used by the robbers.

Each of the defendants was identified as a participant in one or more of the three robberies.

Stories Developed Nicely.

The case was given to the jury at 3:30 o'clock, the verdict being returned within 20 minutes thereafter.

Opening and closing arguments for the state were made by Prosecuting Attorney Taylor, argument for the defense being opened by John P. Koschek and closed by W. P. Garrison.

McIntyre and Cavender, who had testified Friday in their own behalf, were followed on the witness stand Saturday by the other defendants, Davis and George Walters. Stories of both Davis and Walters dovetailed nicely with that of Cavender, who had testified that Davis and Walters called for him at his home in South Park at about 9:20 o'clock on the night of the robbery and that he had gone with them to Rogerson, where Davis and Walters had said they expected to play poker. All three denied that they had gone through Knull on that occasion.

Cavender's Parents Testify.

In support of alibi claims of McIntyre and Cavender the defense Saturday introduced testimony of several witnesses, including Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cavender, parents of one of the defendants; Mrs. Roy McIntyre, P. P. Ellsworth, Joe Garfield and Steve Willis.

In rebuttal Prosecuting Attorney offered testimony of Frank Barra, proprietor of a Spanish establishment here, in which McIntyre, Walters, Davis and Walters had met at his place on the evening of the robberies. This disputed the statements of the defendants named who had denied in testimony that they had been together that evening until after they were arrested at Rogerson.

We wish to extend our grateful thanks to our neighbors and friends and to the First Ward of the L. D. S. church for their sympathy and kindness and their beautiful floral offerings in the loss of our baby daughter, Mary Elizabeth.

MR. and MRS. JOSEPH MANIFOR.

FARMER DRAWS SENTENCE

A. D. Daylan, Dubl district farmer convicted last week in district court here of interfering with a headgate to increase illegally his own irrigation water supply, was sentenced Saturday by Judge W. A. Babcock to serve 30 days in the county jail and pay $100 fine, with the provision that Daylan should be admitted to parole and not be required to serve the jail term if the fine were paid.

H. L. Horrell of Dubl, who pleaded guilty, is charged of illegal possession of liquor, was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail and pay $200 fine, additional time to be served in jail if the fine were not paid.

Romance of Forest.

A playlet, "A Romance of the Forest," said to be based on a true story of Indian life in the Canadian north-west told to the author by a trooper of the "Royal Mounted," is to be the third episode. It includes three musical numbers.
