Difficulties Encountered in First Bids for Building Dam to be Threshed Out in Conference.

BOISE, Nov. 24 (AP)—Difficulties encountered when the first set of bids for the construction of the American Falls reservoir dam were opened October 20, will be adjusted at a conference in Denver, December 1, when Dr. Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation, his engineers, W. G. Swendsen, Idaho commissioner of reclamation, and R. E. Shepherd of Jerome, meet and arrange for a new call for bids.

Announcement of the conference was made today by Mr. Swendsen upon receipt of a telegram from Dr. Mead. Idaho officials and officers of the American Falls reservoir district, represented by Mr. Shepherd, are extremely anxious to get work started on the dam in the hope that some storage water may be caught for the 1925 irrigation season and the rejection of all bids by the government on the advice of the reclamation engineers has not met with approval.

Proposal Made.
Nor has the proposal of the reclamation engineers that a contract be let for the base of the dam alone and then another contract for the superstructure met with any more approval from the state.

In fact, ever since the proposal of the reclamation engineers was made the wires between Boise, Washington and Denver have been kept hot with protests on such a program.

In an interview for the Statesman today, Mr. Swendsen said concerning the Denver conference: "What the state needs is a reservoir at the earliest possible date and at the least cost consistent with good workmanship. It is hoped, therefore, that we can at this conference devise a means of cutting red tape and getting down to work."

Idaho officials believe that the new call for bids should provide for a dam, (Continued on Page 5, Col. 1.)

to Foreign Nation
Is Oversubscribed

French Offering on Monday
Brings Three to Four Times the $100,000,000 Asked for in America.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—The $100,000,000 loan to the republic of France, offered here today through J. P. Morgan Co., was from three to four times oversubscribed, bankers estimated tonight.

Wide distribution of the issue was assured by the response of investors from all parts of the country. Subscription books were held open for 45 minutes to receive the flow of buying orders, most of which were said to represent purchases for investment rather than for speculation.

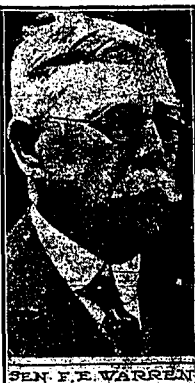

The French loan, which replaces a series of revolving credits originally granted to stabilize the franc, represents the third largest foreign financing operation of the year. A Japanese loan of $150,000,000 was sold here last February and the $110,000,000 share of the $200,000,000 German loan was floated last month.

The new 7 per cent French bonds commanded a premium in initial dealings on the New York stock exchange, selling almost a point above the offering price of 94. The wide interest in the offering led to renewed accumulation of French municipal and other European bonds and was credited with diverting some of Wall street's attention from stock market where it has been centered almost exclusively since the election.

CHAPLIN DECLINES TO TALK OF WEDDING PLAN

NOGALES, Ariz., Nov. 24 (AP)—Charles Chaplin, enroute to Guaymas, Mexico, today declined either to affirm or deny the current rumor that he would marry Lita Grey, his leading lady.

Beyond the statement that he was going to Guaymas "to take a few pictures" and that he did not care to discuss matters of personal interest, the comedian was uncommunicative. Miss Grey preceded Chaplin to Guaymas last week.

GIVES UP SENIORITY
RIGHT

U. S. SENATOR FRANCES E. WARREN of Wyoming has withdrawn from the race as republican floor leader in favor of Senator Curtis of Kansas, who Monday was virtually chosen as floor leader to take the place left vacant by the death of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who died recently.

Senator Warren of Wyoming

Withdraws From Race in Favor of Curtis; Gives Up Seniority Rights.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Senator Curtis of Kansas, virtually was agreed upon today by majority leaders of the senate to succeed Senator Lodge as republican floor leader.

The key to the whole leadership situation has been held by Senator Warren of Wyoming, who was in line for the leadership under the seniority rule which has never been violated by the republican party. He withdrew his name from the list of candidates today, however, although all factions of his party were willing to accept him as a leader.

In withdrawing, Senator Warren took occasion to endorse Senator Curtis for the post. It also was reported in senate circles that Senator Wendell of New York and Senator Watson of Indiana, whose names had been mentioned as candidates, were prepared to withdraw in favor of the Kansas man, who would leave the field clear for his selection at the republican conference next Friday. Senator Warren said the only reason he had given any consideration to the leadership was for the sake of party harmony.

BOISE PHYSICIAN IS
WITNESS FOR WATKINS
IN CHARGE OF MURDER

BOISE, Nov. 24 (AP)—Nick Watkins, former Union Pacific brakeman on trial in district court before Judge Dana E. Brinck, on a charge of murder had a "maniacal outbreak" when he shot Dave Jennings at the Union Pacific station the morning of August 26, last, according to testimony given this afternoon by Dr. John Beck, Boise physician and surgeon, called by the defense.

He made this statement on cross-examination in answering a question whether it was customary to inquire into the history and antecedents of a person charged with insanity. He said he would like to know the history of a person in the case where the insanity was "permanent"; but, in a "case like this," he declared, he doubted if past history would "cut any figure." Other physicians called were Dr. George Callister, Dr. Chesney L. Dutton and Dr. James L. Stewart, who all testified that at the time of the shooting Watkins, in their opinion, was insane. The defense rested its case at 4:50 o'clock Monday afternoon. The state will put on rebuttal witnesses tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

VETERANS HEAD
GOES ON TRIAL
FOR CONSPIRACY

Harding's Sister One of Chief

Witnesses Against Colonel

Forbes and St. Louis Man;

Two Charges.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (AP)—The name of Mrs. Heber Votaw of Washington, sister of the late President Harding, was disclosed as one of the chief witnesses in the government's case against Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former head of the veterans' bureau, and J. W. Thompson, contractor of St. Louis and Chicago, when the trial opened in federal court here today. Mrs. Votaw, during Forbes' administration, was connected with the veterans' bureau in rehabilitation work.

Counsel for the defendants obtained a ruling which allowed them to examine the list of three secret government witnesses. Defense counsel also succeeded in separating the trial of the two charges in the indictment, the government then announcing intention to proceed with trial of the charge of defrauding the United States government. The other count charged conspiracy to bribe a federal officer in the awarding of contracts for government hospitals while Forbes was head of the veterans' bureau.

Select Jury.

These two motions disposed of, John W. H. Crim, special assistant attorney general, proceeded with selection of a jury and tentatively accepted the list of 12 veniremen, tendering them to the defense. Court adjourned with the defense was examining the first prospective juror.

Defense counsel fought strenuously the government motion to consolidate the two counts in the indictment, "the Loughlin asserting that the defense had a long list of witnesses who could be summoned from the Pacific coast to testify in the hearing of the bribery charge."

Mr. Crim declared the government's case combined the two charges in the same testimony to be produced at the trial but the defense won the judge overruling the plea of Mr. Crim and Ralph P. Potter, also assistant attorney general.

Chicago Underworld Laughs At Effort of Police to Clean Up

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (AP)—Major criminal depredations continued in Chicago today as State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe announced that he would and "all violations and wipe this county and city clean." He made his statement before opening a grand jury joint inquiry into the murder of Eddie Tavel, Chicago roadhouse owner, yesterday and the slaying of Dion O'Bannon, florist gunman, two weeks ago.

Three holdups which netted criminals $10,700 and a $50,000 jewelry store robbery was the day's total. That the O'Bannon killing "would be subjected to inquiry by the grand jury at the same time as the Tavel murder was indicated when William F. Schoenfeld, O'Bannon's partner in the florist business, and several children who saw the flight of the murderer, appeared before the jury when the Tavel witnesses were examined.

Assistant State's Attorney Joseph Hubens and Chief of Detectives Wm. Schoemaker today questioned 30 persons in an effort to obtain evidence to be used in seeking the indictment of Louis Alterio, henchman of O'Bannon, in connection with the shooting to death of John Phillips, a gangster. Results of the inquiry were not divulged.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24 (AP)—Further violence loomed today in the water war between the city of Los Angeles and Owens valley ranchers in the opinion of at least one valley spokesman.

According to a statement by J. A. Graves, president of the Los Angeles clearing house association, a representative rancher predicted to him that unless the association acted to end the controversy which has been disputed for nearly 20 years, the Los Angeles aqueduct would be "blown off the hillsides of Inyo county."

GRAIN RATE HEARING
AT BOISE POSTPONED;
TO BE HELD IN MARCH

BOISE, Nov. 24 (AP)—Hearing on the application of the public utility commission for reduced grain rates from southern Idaho points to Portland, has been postponed until some time in March, it was announced at the office of the commission today. The hearing was to have been held today before an examiner of the interstate commerce commission in Boise. The commission has asked to have the hearing some time in March.

The Idaho commission, which initiated the action with the federal regulatory body, contends that rates on railroad loads of grain from southern Idaho points to Portland are too high and preclude the possibility of Idaho grain growers shipping their products to eastern markets by water.

NEW EGYPTIAN
CABINET HEAD
TAKES OFFICE

Zagloul, Former Premier, Re-

signs and Tense Situation

Over Killing of Sirdar Is Somewhat Eased.

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 24 (AP)—A new government headed by Zikar Pasha, president of the senate, has taken control in Egypt. Zagloul Pasha, having complied with the British demands as far as he deemed expedient—an apology, the payment of indemnity and a promise to punish the assassin of Sir Lee Stack, sirdar of the Egyptian army—withdrew from the premiership and his resignation was immediately accepted by King Fuad.

Premier Zikar Pasha also takes the office of foreign minister. It is known whether Ahmed Zulfikar Pasha, minister at Rome, to whom the portfolio has been offered, will accept.

Other Members.
Other members of the new cabinet as officially announced are:

Communications, Nebel Agurbi Motte; education, justice, Kasaba Pasha; war, General Sadak Yehia Pasha; public works, Osman Muharara Bey; agriculture, Mohammed Said Abu Ali Pasha; public foundations, Mohammed Sidky Pasha.

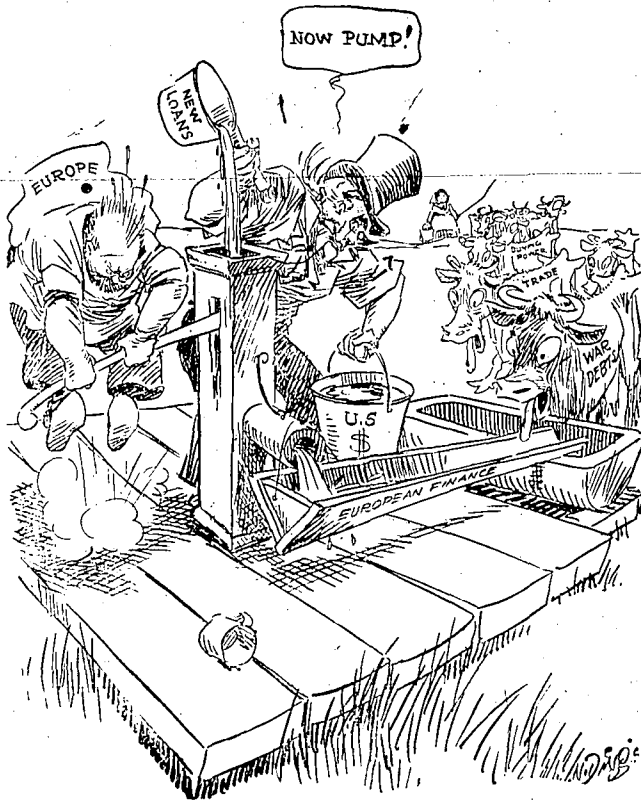

On the assembling of the chamber this evening the former premier, Zagloul Pasha, received an ovation; he announced that he had tendered his resignation on receipt of Viscount Allenby's note on November 22, but the king asked him to reconsider his decision.

Mr. Pasha was notified today of the seizure of the customs by the British he informed the king that he would do everything for his except remain in power. The ministry, he said, had endeavored to deal with the critical situation arising in the deplorable circumstances. He would probably be exposed to dangers which could be avoided by the cabinet's resignation.

Would Remain Calm.
Zagloul exhorted the nation to preserve the utmost calm in these anxious times and promised to support the new government.

Opposition speakers attacked Zagloul accusing him of weakness and failure to protect the country's dignity against Great Britain's onslaught.

PRIMING IT OUGHT TO START SOMETHING

Mrs. Harding Laid to Rest in Marion
Tomb Near Husband

Hundreds Pay Last Tribute to Wife of Twenty-Ninth President at Funeral.

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 24 (AP)—Under a leaden-November sky, Florence Harding was laid to rest in Marion cemetery today beside the mortal remains of her husband whom she helped raise from country editor to the presidency of the United States.

Grouped around the gray vault with heads bowed to the chill wind that carried a flurry of snowflakes, hundreds paid a last tribute to the widow of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth chief executive of the nation.

Inside the vault the relatives and the few friends who were with her in her last days listened to the brief services that preceded the final commitment of her body to its last resting place.

The casket, a veritable mass of flowers, was carried into the narrow room. The Rev. Jesse Swank, pastor of Epworth Methodist Episcopal church, read the regular burial service of his church. The Rev. George M. Landis, who had been President Harding's pastor, pronounced the benediction and hardly had his words ceased when softly on the air swelled the refrain of "The End of a Perfect Day," from two score male throats.

The brazen tones of bugles sounding tap rang through and as the final note ended the vault doors were gently closed and the silent crowd turned away.

The funeral services, which were held at Epworth church were equally simple. There the Rev. Mr. Swank delivered a short sermon and prayer was said by Dr. Landis.

Mrs. Harding's body will rest beside that of her husband in the rear vault at the cemetery until the proposed Harding memorial, which will be erected on a high bit of ground outside the city limits, is completed when both will be moved there.

All morning, until the doors were closed at noon, hundreds passed before Mrs. Harding's casket in the Longacre home near Epworth church. Fully 12,000 persons viewed the body, it was estimated by Mr. Longshore.

INTEREST IN STOCKS STILL RUNNING HIGH

New York Exchange Enters Fourth Consecutive Week of "Bull" Movement; Shares Reach Total of 2,014,300.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—Public interest in today's stock market which marked the beginning of the fourth consecutive week of the "bull" movement, continued unabated despite the counter attraction provided by the public offering of the $100,000,000 French government loan which was heavily oversubscribed and immediately commanded a premium when listed for trading on the New York stock exchange on a "when issued" basis.

Speculators for the advance continued in control of the price movement in the stock market but they encountered stiff resistance because of the heavy volume of profit taking by professional traders who buy stocks "for a turn," and aggressive bear selling of some of the popular industrial and railroad issues. Total sales were 2,014,300 shares, making it the tenth time since election day that the 2,000,000 share market has been crossed.

Hears of Money Made.
Wall street heard more stories about "killings" in the market, the latest being that of a prominent motion picture actress who bought 400 shares of American Can before election and sold out at 151 last week, clearing up $50,000.

In an effort to catch up with the tremendous volume of work arising out of the long succession of 2,000,000 share days, several of the large commission houses asked their clerks to work Saturday afternoon and part of Sunday. Extra pay was provided in practically all cases, a few had even the option of a special Thanksgiving bonus of one week's salary.

Extensive reinvestment of paper profits converted into cash is reported by many brokers, explaining in part the record of heavy turnovers and the frequent shifting of speculative interest from one group to another. Floor traders who attempt to catch swings by jumping in and out of stocks several times a day also have added heavily to recent business.

HANSEN

HANSEN—The Hansen Community church will give Gooding college a chicken shower next Saturday. Those coming to town are asked to bring a young chicken between the ages of one month and two years. They will be transported to Gooding so the students and faculty will have one good square meal on Hansen. A few old roosters will spur the dinner up a bit.

The college students gave a much appreciated program to an audience that taxed the capacity of the Hansen church on Sunday morning. Vocal solos were given by Merle Lettner, Harold Roberts and Ethel Wright, each of which proved particularly pleasing and reflected the training of the performers as well as the splendid training which is one of the most outstanding features of the college. Harold Roberts gave a splendid talk on "The Needs of the College" and appealed to the audience for its financial support and its prayers.

Services at the church were not held Sunday evening on account of the death of O. D. Rills.

The Worth Wagon girls will hold a novelty bazaar, candy and cookie sale at the bank building beginning at 11 o'clock Saturday. There will be on display a nice line of hand-decorated articles suitable for Christmas gifts. The proceeds will go to help the community program.

An all evening's program of music will be given at the church on next Sunday evening. The numbers will be furnished largely by the orchestra, but also will include some vocal solos and a male quartet.

Mrs. Ralph Bean has been confined to her home the past three days with an attack of rheumatism.

The following program was given at the high school Tuesday afternoon in observance of Education Week:

Song, "Keep on the Sunny Side"; "Revolutionists, Communists and Patriots, a Menace to Life, Liberty and Pursuit of Happiness," by Harry Pryor; "The Dictionary is a Beacon Light to Understanding," by Edith Ward; "Star Spangled Banner," by the school; "Education," by Harold Koenig; "Physical Education Desirable for All," by William Howard; "The Woman with a Soul Full of Music," by Harry Mattiatie; "The Red Flag Means Death, Destruction, Anarchy and Dictatorship," by Jessie Martin; Talk, "The American Flag," by Herman McFarland; debate, "Resolved: That Theodore Roosevelt Did More for the World as a Private Citizen Than He Did as President," judges were Medsker Blodgett and Bellwood and Harry Pryor, and the question was decided in favor of the affirmative.

The pupils of the seventh and eighth grades gave an hour's program on Friday afternoon. Roll call was responded to by a verse about education. The pupils put on a 15-minute physical training drill which was followed by appropriate songs and readings. The program was concluded by a debate on the question, "Resolved: That the United States Has the Best Educational System of Any Nation in the World." The affirmative side was supported by Louise Cowan, Maudie Laycock and Frances Goodman; the negative by Lenora Ponsuvald, Alice Rambo and Mary Cowan. The affirmative side was the winner. The girls served refreshments to the visitors and other teachers immediately after the program.

Under the advice of Tam Blodgett's physician the revival meetings which were to have begun on December 1 have been indefinitely postponed.

OCEAN USED AS RAIN INDICATOR

California Man Believes Temperature of Water Governs Amount of Precipitation.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 24 (AP)—There is a direct relation between the temperature of the ocean and the seasonal rainfall in the same region, according to George F. McEwen, of the Biological Institute at La Jolla, Cal., who has reached this conclusion after extended research.

Using this theory Mr. McEwen has predicted that the rainfall in San Diego and vicinity this year would be five inches more than the average for the last eight years. According to the hypothesis, low summer temperatures in the ocean mean increased rainfall in the winter, and higher temperatures indicate less precipitation.

"The moisture of the air over the North Pacific ocean," explained Mr. McEwen, "is continually replenished by evaporation from the ocean surface. The amount of water vapor available for precipitation upon the land is proportional to the mass of air flowing in from the ocean."

Late Summer.

"It has long been known that a high pressure area over the North Pacific centered 1000 miles or more west of San Luis Obispo, reaches its maximum intensity in late summer and diminishes in late February, when in some years it disappears entirely, and again increases to a summer maximum. Therefore a summer in which the ocean 'high' is relatively great should be followed by a relatively great transfer of air landward during the winter or rainy season. Numerous barometric observations over the ocean, suitably distributed in space and time, would serve to determine the amount of air forming the Pacific 'high.' Foreknowledge of the amount of air available for transfer landward would indicate in advance whether to expect a wet or dry season."

Mr. McEwen said his observations had indicated that a change in ocean temperature of one degree Fahrenheit corresponded, on the average, to a difference of two inches in rain over the coastal region of southern California.

But It Had to Be Wound.

A typical, expected, absent-minded savant from an eastern university was a member of a geological survey party in Arizona. One morning he found that his watch was at a dead stop and would not respond to shaking, rapping gently on the test plate or any other stimulus. It was a fine chronometer movement, and the party was dependent on it for some of its observations, so they sent the old professor and a keeper thirty miles by wagon to a little town where there was a watchmaker. The watchmaker screwed the usual little talk-back into his eye, glanced open the case, explored the works with his nutpick, closed the case, twisted the stem and handed it back, remarking very gently: "That's a fine movement—one of the best I've seen. But you'll have to wind it."

Science Says Glands Are Responsible for Health and Strength

Activity of certain glands is responsible for the strength, courage, fighting power and nerve force of men, is the latest opinion of science. Berman has gone so far as to analyze and classify the various types of ring favorites and famous fighters of his day, and shows that such men as George Dixon, Nat Salm, Jack Dempsey and Napoleon were possessed of unusually active glands.

It is the function of the glands to pour into the blood their vitalizing secretions which stimulate vitality and energizing force.

Glaxogen, the new scientific tonic, prepared in tablet form provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment.

FORMER NOBLES ARMY SERVANTS

Red Army of Russia Will Not Permit "Bourgeoisie" to Become Soldiers.

MOSCOW, Nov. 24 (AP)—Soviet Russia makes no secret of the fact that the Red army is a "class" army. That is, it consists entirely of men from the ranks of the proletariat. Members of the so-called "bourgeoisie" and of the old aristocracy are excluded as officers or soldiers from the army. Trotsky, the Red war minister, says such persons must be regarded as hostile to the proletarian dictatorship and cannot be trusted with arms.

The services of such men, however, are not permitted to go wholly unused. It has been decreed that they shall serve in what the bolsheviks term "auxiliary labor group," in the army. This means that they must serve the Red army soldiers. They keep the barracks clean, attend the horses, repair roads, supervise army messes and do other menial tasks which are considered beneath the "dignity" of a real bolshevik soldier.

The "labor groups" now include many former princes, counts, generals, colonels, nobles and others of the old imperial regime.

Hunter Protected by Armored Suit Tells of Battle with Wolves

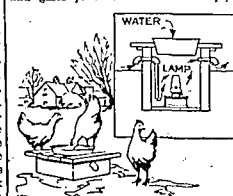

Details of one of the strangest experiments in the history of animal hunting are related by Stanley Clarkson, of St. Paul, Minn., who spent a winter in the "Canadian wilderness seeking 'hand to hand' combats with hungry timber wolves. Dressed in an armor made of heavy leather studded with 1,200 needle-sharp steel spikes, he invited attacks from wolf packs while armed only with a short double-bladed axe and a hunting knife.

Although handicapped by an exceptionally open winter and an unusually large number of wild rabbits, which kept the wolves from suffering from hunger, he killed a number of the beasts with his axe. During a snowstorm on Sheep Rock Lake, north of Atkinson, he was set upon by five timber wolves. He killed two of them and wounded a third. The wolves seized the hunter's arms and legs in their jaws, but could not do him injury because of the protruding spikiness of the armored suit, which is made of specially tanned thick cowhide that will turn water and will not harden from rain or snow. There also is a helmet and heavy wire mask that can be raised to protect the face.

Non-Freezing Water Dish for the Poultry

A non-freezing water dish for the poultry is a necessity in late fall and winter, and it is a very simple matter to make one. As shown in the drawing, a pit is dug in the ground or poultry-house floor, to a depth sufficient to accommodate the lamp it is intended to use, and lined with concrete, the concrete extending upward to a height of about 10 in. above the ground. Through one wall, a pipe fitted with two elbows and a long nipple is placed, while the opposite wall carries a short pipe that merely extends outside, although it may be fitted with an elbow with the outlet turned down. The outside elbows prevent dirt from being scratched into the pit. Over the opening is placed a tight-fitting wooden cover, in which a hole is cut to fit the drinking pan snugly. The heating element is an old incandescent lamp. A very small flame will keep the water warm even in zero weather. Fresh air follows the long pipe to the bottom of the pit and the hot air and gases pass out of the short pipe.

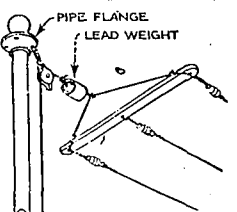

There is room enough on the platform for a number of fowls, but, because of the height of the pan above the floor, no litter can be tossed into the water.

From an 8-ounce package of Sudan grass seed sent to this country from Khartoum in 1909, what is now a $10,000,000 forage crop has been produced in the West.

Aerial Kinks

It is often quite a problem how to attach a pulley to the top of the aerial mast properly, especially if it is made of pipe. An excellent method of doing this is shown in the illustration. The end of the pipe is threaded and a floor flange with a hole drilled through it is screwed on; it is then an easy matter to attach the pulley. Another trouble frequently experienced is that the brake where it is tied to the rope or the rope itself breaks near this point, and both aerial and rope then come down, making it necessary to "shim" the pulley to thread the rope through the pulley again. To prevent this trouble a small piece of pipe or other metal weight should be tied to the end of the rope, as shown, so that the rope cannot slip through the pulley but can be lowered and then tied to the brake again.

Remedy for Overheating Bearings

Persistent overheating of bearings that are in constant duty may be overcome by applying a paste of flour of sulphur mixed with lubricating oil. This permits the use of an oil cup. The mixture will also be found useful on heavy-duty bearings in car rolls and similar machine parts.

Oil the rocker arms on overhead-valve motors at least every two days. This takes only a moment and prevents wear.

COMMERCIAL USE OF ZEPPELIN TO BE GIVEN A TRIAL

German Engineers Arrive in America to Build Huge Dirigibles; Passenger and Mail Service Plan.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—Karl Arnstein, designer of the ZB-3, arrived on the George Washington today with a staff of 12 engineers. They will go at once to Akron, Ohio, to begin construction of the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation, huge commercial dirigibles for passenger and mail service, domestic and trans-Atlantic.

"I am certain that the lighter than air craft industry of the world will be centered in America," said Dr. Arnstein. "You have here all the best conditions for dirigible manufacture—capital, engineering talent and a favorable public spirit. I hope to make America my home forever."

Sees Great Future.
For ten years his was the business of designing the succession of war and peace Zeppelins turned loose upon the air at Friedrichshagen, on Lake Constance and of accompanying them on trial flights. He designed the ill-fated, French record breaker, Dixmude, the model of the American Shenandoah, and the newest record holder, ZB-3. With the Friedrichshagen works about to be dismantled in accordance with the Versailles treaty, he comes here as the technical brains of an industry being transferred to America for perpetuation.

Dream of Nobles.
"It is wonderful that America gives us this opportunity to continue developing the Zeppelin type airship," he said. "My only regret is that Count Zeppelin was not alive to see the realization of his dream—the flight of one of his dirigibles across the Atlantic as accomplished by the ZB-3."

"The future of it is filled with important possibilities. I say that I am not a dreamer, but I say also that we probably will begin at once to design at Akron an airship of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity which will fly from Spain to South America, thus crossing the Atlantic at its widest reach."

"Regular trans-Atlantic air service between America and Europe seems assured. We do not venture to say how large dirigibles may be built."

AMERICAN FALLS DAM OFFICIALS TO DENVER

base and superstructure; and that the question of whether the full sized dam or a smaller one should be erected on the base should be left to the discretion of the government. Concerning such an arrangement, Mr. Swendsen says: "There is sufficient money from government appropriations and contributions from subdivided districts to build the base sufficiently large to accommodate the high structure and to erect thereon the low dam providing 1,040,000 acre feet storage capacity. This quantity will meet immediate need of the state and it is hoped, therefore, that the new proposal or request for bids will meet this condition."

Highly Important.
"The commencement of work at this time is highly important in order that earliest benefits from the reservoir may be obtained. Interest on funds which are being distributed have already reached in $400 a day. It is important, therefore, that some benefit be derived from this investment as quickly as possible. The commencement of work at this time would also afford much needed relief to citizens of Idaho who are seeking employment and would go a long way toward relieving the existing distressed financial condition in southeastern Idaho."

OXFORD UNIVERSITY DEBATING TEAM TO MEET IDAHO SCHOOL

BOISE, Nov. 24 (AP)—Oxford university debating team, now touring the United States, may appear against the University of Idaho debaters here December 16. The Oxford team, which will appear against the Washington State college team this winter, is now in Chicago.

The Englishmen, in accepting the challenge wired by Hugh McKee, University of Idaho debate manager, offered to debate any subject the Idaho squad might choose. Mr. McKee has suggested the league or nations as an interesting topic. He suggested also that Idaho be allowed to argue the affirmative side of the question.

Other than the acceptance of Idaho's offer, nothing definite has been decided. Steps will be taken immediately to obtain an auditorium large enough to accommodate the large crowd of persons who will attend the debate, should it be arranged. The high school auditorium has been suggested as the most likely place.

BANQUET CLOSES CLEANERS' MEET

Idaho Laundry Owners Choose
G. E. Sandholtz of Twin Falls
President for Coming Year.

Southern Idaho Laundry Owners' association members at Buhl Saturday evening concluded three days' sessions of a semi-annual session with a banquet served in the Methodist church by women of the Methodist Ladies Aid society, followed by a dance.

George E. Sandholtz of Twin Falls, who last year served as secretary and treasurer, was elected president of the association to succeed Ross Cady of Boise. Other officers were elected as follows: Vice president, Harry Allen, Boise; secretary and treasurer, Walker Davis, Blakely; sergeant at arms, Ed Barnard, St. Anthony.

Sessions of the meeting that were occupied by general discussions of laundrymen's problems and business methods were interspersed with hunting excursions and many pleasures were bagged by visiting laundry owners. Sessions were attended by about 50 persons, representing the industry throughout the state, and including laundry owners from Washington, Oregon, California and Utah. The laundrymen were welcomed to Buhl in an address of welcome by G. A. Divich.

The next meeting of the association is to be a joint session with the Utah Laundry Owners' association to be held next June at Ogden.

Will Unveil "Shot of Destiny"

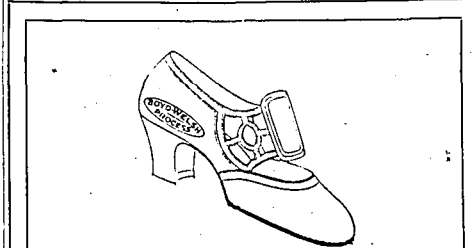

THIS PAINTING, "The Shot of Destiny," the work of David Cunningham Lithgow, is soon to be unveiled in the Essex county courthouse, in Elizabeth, N. J. The painting portrays the beginning of the brief battle of Samuel de Champlain and his Huron Indian allies with a war party of Iroquois. It shows the explorer firing the shot which was destined to exert an influence to which historians believe all subsequent events in American colonial history may be traced.

THE OPIUM CONFERENCE

The international opium conference at Geneva came near breaking up in a row. England and Japan combatted about the profits of their opium trade, while talking of honor. China injected a note of common justice, which powers financially interested pronounced absurd. It was that nations trafficking in opium in China should spend their profits in helping the Chinese opium addicts.

Then came America, with a program and an ideal. The ideal is the ridding of the world of the narcotic curse. The program is to establish an international board of control to find how much opium the various eastern countries need at present for smoking and stop the supply progressively over a period of ten years, to prohibit the manufacture and distribution of heroin, the opium product most widely used in the United States, and to cut down opium production as rapidly as possible, until only enough is produced for medical needs.

With such a policy established, the opium crusade might get somewhere.

UNDER-SEA PICTURES

The new, an American painter observes, covers two-thirds of the earth, and the land is but a pretty thin crust treated by landscape painters. So why not give a little attention to the sea? Not the surface—which has lent itself already to millions of machine views—which are mere variations of landscapes—but the depths of the sea, heretofore ignored.

No Mr. Z. H. Pritchard, the artist in question, goes down to the bottom of the sea and paints what he sees there, with water around and above to furnish the "atmosphere" and fishes swimming overhead. He solves the mechanical problem by wearing a diving helmet and using waterproof canvas and brushes soaked in oil and weighted with lead. He finds that he can work comfortably at a depth of about forty feet, and can see as far as three hundred feet in clear water.

The results are remarkable. The painter is able to present a new world, suggesting Jules Verne's descriptions, based on a personal observation of submarine forms and colors, rich with life that is strange to mankind. His example will doubtless find many followers.

THIS FLAT SPHERE

Willam Glen Voliva, overcoer of Zion, Illinois, is not at all impressed by the alleged flight of the American aviators "around the world." All they did, he maintains, was to fly in a circle around the so-called North Pole, which might be regarded as the center of this flat earth.

He refers his critics to the statements of a certain Professor R. A. Gregory, whom he quotes as saying: "Circumnavigation in an easterly or westerly direction does not prove the earth to be globular. It has been pointed out that circumnavigation would be possible on a flat surface with the high magnetic pole at its center."

High School Notes

Members of Twin Falls' undefeated football squad were the guests of the day at an appreciation assembly held in the high school Monday morning. Superintendent E. D. Bloom praised the team for the record it has made for the Twin Falls high school and for the city by the clean manner in which the members conduct themselves on the field. Miss Fisher expressed her appreciation for what has been accomplished by the team and pledged it the support of the school and the faculty in the coming contest with Nampa. Coach Plummer told the pupils that if the team fails to return with the championship of the state in its possession it would not be because the players had failed to give all that was in their power to give.

Shakespeare as an Actor

In the list of the principal actors of Shakespeare's plays, prefixed to the folio, the first collection of his plays, published in 1623, the name of the famous dramatist is placed first. He was an actor by profession, but the extent to which he played in his own productions is not clear. He is said to have impersonated Adam in "As You Like It" and "the ghost" in "Hamlet."

"SINNERS IN HEAVEN"
by Clive Arden

"There's generally an opening in a briar reef opposite a fresh-water river," Croft observed.
"Why?" she inquired, without any interest. "The fact of anything, however, was better than the silence which encouraged thought."
"It's supposed that the sediment it contains injures the reef-building polyps, preventing their working properly. The polyps can't live and below certain depths—about twenty fathoms or so. Awfully interesting, isn't it? Don't you think so?"

She confessed entire ignorance on the subject. This little digression, however, had served its purpose for them both. Drawing her arm free, she proposed bathing their faces in the cool stream. Relieved by this, she became aware of their bedraggled state, of the discomfort of wet clinging garments, and of Croft's ineffectual efforts to staunch the wound on his hand.
Shyly she went to him where he knelt upon the bank.
"Let me do that. Shall I?" she asked.
"Don't you mind blood?"
"Of course not!" she answered indignantly.

He handed her the blood-stained wet handkerchief without a word, inclining his head toward her. In a few minutes he rose to his feet, all traces of blood washed away, his head lowered, modestly with her own handkerchief twisted in his hair.
"I'm going up that hill, to view the land," he said, with abrupt decision, proceeding toward it as if oblivious of her presence.
"I'm coming too," she exclaimed, hastening after him. "I'm not going to be left alone down here. There may be alligators and things!"
He gave an impatient smile. "Come along, then. I'll help you up."
"Oh, no, thanks! I can manage quite well," she replied rather coldly, amused by his tone and manner.
He said no more, but began to climb the rugged rock-strewn hillside with the agility of a mountain goat.
Barbara struggled after him, slipping, bruising herself, panting for breath. The shock had left her weak and unsteady. She sank upon the ground, drawing long sobbing breaths. Croft, without a backward glance, was disappearing among the larger boulders at the summit. Fearful of being left, she rose again and scrambled on. Heraching head throbbed with aching pain, her vision blurred, she stumbled over a half-concealed rock, she fell prone upon the ground. . . .

There she lay, conscious of a terrible silence. No other sentient being seemed to move within a world so full of awful loneliness. She lay there, alone, in the heart of a vast, unexplored land. A great wave of fear, grief, loss, homesickness, wild—almost childlike—longing for Hugh, swept her away. For the first time since the horror began, she found relief in tears. She lay there, alone, in the heart of a vast, unexplored land. A great wave of fear, grief, loss, homesickness, wild—almost childlike—longing for Hugh, swept her away. A great wave of fear, grief, loss, homesickness, wild—almost childlike—longing for Hugh, swept her away. For the first time since the horror began, she found relief in tears.

From the top of the hill Croft scanned what was visible of the land along the north, east and west coasts. This was, he concluded, an island of volcanic origin, with the exceptionally high peaks of the mountainous island, sometimes at a considerable distance from, and sometimes fairly near, the shore. He surveyed the view critically, a purpose forming in his mind. The gradient inland culminated in a short, fairly steep rise to a grove of ocean palms, where a small clearing was visible, covered with little groups of something—possibly caves or rocks. Nowhere did there appear to be a sign of human life.

It would be easy, he saw, to reach the possible cave by following the peak of high ground to the island from the top of his hill. Turning seaward, he shaded his eyes with his hands and scanned the horizon. No indication of life was visible. No smoke, no mast, no sail.
He swept the small island with another keen critical glance. From his hill, he saw the South Pacific—in which ocean, somewhere, this island must lie—he guessed it to be of little or no use for trade, either in copra or other exports. In spite of its patches of luxuriant verdure. Therefore, probably, it was never visited by the out-lying world. Unless there were habitations in the south it was undoubtedly uninhabited—possibly unknown.

For some moments he stood motionless, feeling these probabilities. Then, with a grim face, he turned in search of his companion.
Barbara, who had been buried in her thoughts, did not hear his voice. He was with a start of surprise that she found herself suddenly lifted bodily, as if she were but a featherweight. Feeling again very small and ashamed, she would have struggled free, but his gentle hands held her so firmly that she could not do so.

"Keep still! It's a rough climb. He spoke abruptly, over his way in moments of stress. The tears of weakness rose again in her eyes. She closed them, but too late to hide what she felt. He would despise. She turned her face away, but his wet shoulder, and he strode along in silence. Stray rocks lay about the ridge; small shrubs, interspersed with ferns and club mosses, made progress difficult, but he never paused until they were among the tall trees of the palm grove. Then he set the girl upon her feet.

"Where are we going?" she asked.
"Listen!" he commanded, without answering her question.
From near at hand came the noise of rushing water. He turned farther inland, and tall avenues of bamboo, toward the sound. Barbara closely following. Presently a pleasant exclamation escaped his lips, and he halted.
From the high ground the river tumbled down, a sheer waterfall of dancing crystals splashing from great heights high up among the forest trees to smaller ones on the lower level; thence hurrying and gurgling over little rocks, which encircled small pools of translucent green, into a clear, softly flowing stream some six feet deep. This after a time appeared to be a quagmire, the water disappearing between rustling walls of bamboo canes toward the cove where it joined the lagoon. From the nature of this deeper stretch of water and the comparative clearing of undergrowth on the banks, Croft judged it to be partly the work of man's hand, not entirely the result of nature. But he forbore to suggest this to the girl.

Croft led the way back to the grove, then on to the clearing beyond. Suddenly Barbara stood still, with a little cry.
"What's that?"
He stopped, looking aside in the direction indicated. Stooping swiftly, he lifted a queer bleached object and examined it closely. She drew near, glancing curiously at the hideous thing. "It's a skull," he said.
"Yes," he replied, "and—of the negro type!"
She looked up, startled. Until then it had not occurred to her to wonder concerning the island. The past with its tragedy had expunged all else from her mind.
He continued to examine the skull, with puzzled brows.
"There are some curious holes which I cannot understand," he said. "They might have been caused by bullets. But it is doubtful if natives would possess bullets here."
"Do you think there are any here now—any natives?"
He met the eyes raised in trepidation to his own. "I can't tell, yet. But they are friendly enough to white people." Throwing away the skull, he went on toward the open space.

The apparent caves proved to be moss-covered ridges of bamboo huts. Many had fallen into ruin, some were on the ground; of others, bits of all remained standing, guarding like sentinels the broken portions resting wearily against their base. Lying about, half-hidden in undergrowth, were odd bits of awful looking things made of wood or rough kind of pottery, the large shells, rude cups fashioned from coconut shell, broken spears.

The scene was desolate, giving the impression of Death, of the relentless hand of Time sweeping away to extinction all that once had seemed strong and full of life.

"It's quite possible," he said, "that the whole colony which lived here has died out. Populations dwindle very much in the Pacific islands."

She gave a little shudder.
"It's horrible here—I don't know why! Let's go down to the shore. There seems to be no hut standing down there." She pointed toward a small, sheltered structure half-way down the lower slope, sheltered beneath the hill which they had climbed. Croft hurried in its direction.

It consisted of one small room. The bamboo walls were intact, but the thatch forming the roof showed large rents; on the ground within, and musty, dead leaves were scattered utensils similar to those which they had already seen.

Croft looked around critically, then at the girl, who had followed him, then out through the opening seaward.
"We can make this sufficiently habitable to carry on with," he observed.
His words went out into silence. They brought instantly a vivid realization of the south it was so vividly the future. A new fear shot up, clutching her heart with a horrible, clammy hand. She looked with sudden dread at her companion's profile; and something about his tense lips seemed to confirm the fearful forecast. The faint color revived in her cheeks by exercise ebbed away, leaving her white. She clenched her teeth and her hands; then, with an effort, put her dread to the test.

"We—shall soon be rescued? Ships are certain to—call here? It will only mean a few hours—or days?"
The moment which Croft had dreaded, yet known to be inevitable, was at hand; and he felt the utter inadequacy of his sex in dealing with delicate situations.

From his prolonged silence Barbara guessed the truth of his convictions; words were unnecessary. She clasped her hands, her face being a little meaning very like some dumb animal revealing its death-wound.

Croft turned quickly. He looked down at the quivering, girlish form, meeting the frightened eyes turned to him, trusting in his judgment and resource. And then, as he was about to say that, in his ghastly predicament, her very life lay in his hands. He leaned forward and took her clasped hands in both of his.

"Don't give up hope," he said earnestly. "It's very doubtful if ships call, but they may pass this way. We will do all we can."

"THEY" SAY

"There is one thing I cannot understand," said Billie Browne.
"I'd like to find out about it, too," he added.
"So, in Brownland told Billie to ask Mother Nature about it, which he did at once, after having told the other Brownies what it was that was puzzling him.
"You see, Mother Nature," he explained, "I wonder about it. I often hear people speak of what other people have said, and yet they don't mention any names—nor do they seem to speak of these others as if they were very real."
"They are always saying, 'they say that it is not the thing to wear long sleeves on a dress that should have short sleeves.'"
"Yes, and all sorts of speeches like that."

"Oh yes," said Mother Nature, "I know the ones you mean, but they're not members of my family."
"I will see what I can do about it, though. I think perhaps if you want to see the Dream King he might send you in the right direction."
"Try him, and if you have no luck come back again and I'll have something else thought up by that time."
So Billie Browne went to see the Dream King who was sitting on his favorite Sleepy Cloud armchair.

And the Dream King told Billie where he could find some of these strange creatures known as "they."
Billie followed the Dream King's directions and he went along a long, long winding road. It was a very long distance away. Billie really became quite tired out going so far and he wished he had brought along his airplane with him.
He had had no idea it would be so far.

And then at last he saw many mysterious looking creatures. None of them could be seen very clearly. In the first place they all wore veils over their faces so you could not see them very clearly—and these veils were of different colors.
You couldn't quite make out who was who in this way. But they all seemed to have heard that Billie was coming for they gathered about him and said:

"Hello, Billie. Now when you go back along your friends you can just tell them that they say it has come to a pretty pass, the way the children of this day and age are acting. We are 'they,' you know."
"Of course the children of this day and age aren't a scrap worse—they're better if the truth were really known to us, but it would never do to say such a thing."

"That's why we wear these veils. Croft really would not be seen."
"We make no more speeches, but we're not seen and so we don't get into any trouble—and then it is very, very hard to really find us."
"You were allowed special permission to come here. Hardly any one sees it here."
"We say all sorts of things. Some of us are busy saying just what styles there'll be and others of us are talking about people and saying mean, ugly things."

"Then we go about with our slenderness costumes and when the things into people's ears and they come out saying that they say so and so."
"If you really want to know something, Billie Browne, we have no use for these people who will talk like that. They are just as cowardly as we are—shielding themselves but saying mean things."
"Yes, we're not at all proud of them. But we must get back to work now. Excuse us, Billie Browne."

"Some of them are just as cowardly as we are—shielding themselves but saying mean things."
"Yes, we're not at all proud of them. But we must get back to work now. Excuse us, Billie Browne."

"They really admired him for it but of course they wouldn't talk to him any more when he wouldn't help them. And he saw them all wandering around, with their colored veils and their shadowy costumes and they were whispering all sorts of little mean things into his ear."

Horses Were Dressed

We were visiting at Uncle's farm. The day we were returning I saw Uncle John lead the harness horse out of the barn and over to the buggy shed.

He called excitedly to her brother, "Come, Jim, and climb into the buggy quick. Uncle John has the horses dressed already."

WHEAT ADVANCES IN PRICE AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (AP)—Largely on account of a decided falling off in the United States visible supply total, the first decrease shown in four months, wheat today scored a substantial upward turn in price with May delivery 17c higher than yesterday's closing. The highest previous quotations this season. The wheat market closed firm at 1-1/4 to 2-1/2 cent gain, December $1.55-3-4 to 1-5/8-7/8, and May $1.63-1/2 to 1-6/8-5/8. Corn finished at 3-8c decline to 1-4c advance, oats 1-8 to 1-2c up and provisions unchanged to 2-5c higher.

Even before it was assured that the visible supply of wheat in the United States has begun to shrink, the wheat market here had a noticeable upward swing. This circumstance was due to sharper higher quotations at Liverpool, described more or less to militant steps which the British government is taking in Egypt. The fact that world shipments of wheat last week were smaller than had been expected also was a strengthening influence.

Buying on a big scale developed in the wheat market and despite heavy selling to realize profits the greater part of the price gains were held at the market. Meanwhile export business was said to be of good volume and the December delivery, although falling to attain new high prices, seemed far stronger than either May or July. Unfavorable crop news from Argentina and Australia has attracted more notice and gave impetus to the buying.

The weathering likely to facilitate the marketing of new crop kept the corn market easy despite assertions that in the last 26 years May corn has invariably sold higher after November.

Oats followed wheat, rather than corn.

Scarcity of offerings did much to lift the provision market.

stubbornly contesting the advance fifty stocks, 15 of them minor railroad shares, attained new peak prices for the year. Total sales crossed the 2,000,000 share mark for the tenth time since election day.

Strongly active activity of the St. Paul issues, apparently based on the belief that the road will have little difficulty in arranging its heavy refunding program next year, featured the trading in railroad shares. St. Paul preferred advanced more than two points to a new 1924 top at 22 1/4 and the common touched a new maximum at 18 3/4 but both forfeited a substantial part of their gains in the later trading. Buying of these issues also was stimulated by the road's advance payment of an installment of $505,000 to the government which was not due until January 15.

MEETING FAVORS RELIGIOUS STUDY

Speaker Explains Plan for Release of Pupils From School for Instruction in Bible.

Legislation to be proposed to the coming session of the Idaho legislature providing for "release time" from public schools for religious instruction, as explained by Dr. Thomas S. Young of New York, member of the national committee for religious education, was introduced by unanimous vote of about 200 persons at a meeting Monday evening in the Parish hall here. Various denominations were represented and educators and members of Twin Falls community delegation to the legislature attended the meeting.

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. A. G. Pearson of the Presbyterian church. Dr. A. L. Black of Boise, an officer of the state organization of the Baptist church, offered prayer at the opening of the meeting, and Dr. H. G. Humphrey of the Methodist church pronounced the benediction.

Unites Denominations.

Dr. Young spoke also Monday afternoon before an audience in the Parish hall. He declared that the proposed plan for extending religious instruction is supported by leaders of all church denominations and many educators, and that there is little opposition, most objections arising out of ignorance of the plan.

Under the plan as proposed in the bill to be submitted to the legislature school children would be released from public schools for one hour or more each week on request of their parents or guardians for the purpose of receiving religious instruction. Approval of public school authorities of the course of study and personnel of instructors would be required to put the plan into execution. Neither public school funds nor buildings would be used for the purpose of giving religious instruction under this plan and public school teachers would not be permitted to serve as religious instructors.

Dr. Young is making a speaking tour of Idaho under auspices of the Idaho council of religious education, a unit of the international council of religious education which is an interdenominational organization.

How It Feels to Be Up In An Airplane

Editor's Note—The following account is from the pen of a Twin Falls youngster of 11 years, following his first flight in an airplane yesterday. The extent of the boy's observation during his brief ride constitutes the chief point of interest.

When you go up in an airplane for the first time it feels as though you are in an elevator. When you "take off" it is as though you are riding along a rough road and suddenly strike pavement as the plane takes the air. If you do not look down you can not tell the plane is moving unless the aviator dips. This will take your breath away for an instant. The first time he banks it feels as though you were sitting on a board with one end on a log and the other on the ground.

I occupied a seat with a girl I did not know. From a good height, cars looked about an inch wide and two inches long. The streets looked about like white ribbons stretched all over the city. The trees seem about four inches high and a quarter of an inch around. We flew over the high school which looked like a baby's block with several projections on to the top and a head on it. The Washington school resembled a carpenter's square with one end too long. One field we saw was a big patch of dirt with ribbons on all sides. When we started down the pilot "hooped-the-loop," "nose dived" and "starch-hopped."

When you go up you are not strapped in. This is not necessary because you are like water in a pail. When you whirl the pail around fast the water does not fall out. It is the same way with you. When the plane strikes the earth, it bounces it in the air again a few times then settles down and rolls a few hundred yards. The aviator can not turn the plane around alone when it is on the ground. The planes take off in about a hundred yards.

There were no air currents where we were and I felt no rush of air though we were about 2000 feet up. It was not much colder than on the ground. The airplane instrument board is not much different from that of a car. It has on one side an oil gauge and an altitude gauge. On the other side it has a clock and a gauge that tells the revolutions per minute of the propeller. To the center of the floor there is a stick with a rubber handle grip. This is called a joy stick or a broomstick. With this the aviator controls the wings and part of the tail. Farther forward towards the front seat where the passengers all sit there is a foot lever with which the pilot controls the other part of the tail. The instruments are all numbered, like this:

- 1 stands for revolutions per minute;
- 2 stands for clock; 3 stands for altitude gauge; 4 stands for the oil gauge; 5 stands for ignition; 6 stands for gas; 7 stands for choke.

In the forward cockpit there is room for three persons but the aviator only carries two at a time. There are about 450 wires between the wings. The airplane that is here now has an engine of 180 horsepower and a wingspread of almost 50 feet. It belongs to the Thompson's Rocky Mountain Flying Circus.
