The determination of how to plant and cultivate, and problems of life in the tropics were leading topics of today's discussion. The president's personal park in Alaska, and a new botanical garden and arboretum near Washington were endorsed. That was probably determined by the time of preparation of the speech. The president's confidence in the future influence of the mother was asserted by Doctor Calvin Bridges of Columbia University, W. W. Clegg of Yale and Guy P. Moore of the University of Chicago. According to their views, it was determined by the president's confidence in the future of civilization well in their hands and expressed his confidence that the scientific world would meet the task of devising institutions adapted to their objectives.

CLOSING WEEKS OF 1925 SEES BOOM IN STOCK

Post Election Advance of Unprecedented Proportions Hits New York Exchange; Railroads Take the Lead.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP)—A post-election boom of unprecedented proportions carried stock prices to the highest level in years in the closing weeks of the year.

Railroad shares were foremost in the advance, many of them touching the highest prices ever recorded. In the early part of the present century, when Harlan and Gould struggled for the control of the leading railroad transportation systems of the country, the Wall Street witness a railroad market of such breadth and volume as took place in the last two months of the year.

Big Investment An enormous investment through apparently post-up for years through the advance legislation broke forth like a flood in the few weeks following election day. It became apparent that the so-called radical bloc had lost the balance of power in Congress, the administration looked with favor upon railroad consolidations, and that the roads had been successful in increasing their operating costs. Tangible evidence of this improvement, furnished by the consolidation of the railroads, stimulated the demand which from large institutions and wealthy individuals as well as a myriad of small investors.

Professionals traders admittedly were surprised by the magnitude of the advance, as indicated by the fact that stocks in which they had built up large paper profits in the early fall were sold heavily in the few days following the election. The theory that they would be purchased later at lower levels. The advance, however, once got started, it almost immediately ran for about six weeks. The market was taken away from the professionals, who were forced to bid for stocks, several points above what they bid for in order to participate in the upward swing.

One of the curious features of the rally was the fact that it was accompanied by a relatively slight increase in brokerage houses, which was construed as an indication that the stock was being taken out of the street and put in strong cases.

INCREASE IN POPULATION OF COUNTRY RAPID

250,000,000 Persons Predicted Soon Unless Something is Done, Says Professor; Women to Prevent It.

CITIZENS, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Persons living will see a population of 250,000,000 in the United States if the present rate of increase keeps up, according to Professor A. H. Wolfe of Ohio State university, speaking here before the American Statistical association. But it will not keep up, in the professor's opinion. He is fairly certain the women themselves, the potential mothers of the future, will take measures to prevent it.

Unless increase is quickly and greatly retarded, reaching the saturation point—a matter of only a few generations at most, not thousands of years as popularly supposed, Professor Wolfe said. "In the absence of an improbable revolutionary improvement in agriculture, we shall be pointedly confronted with the choice of reducing either our birth rate or our standard of living. A very essential part of the population problem is to get the people to see that they are confronted with a condition, not a theory. It is not possible to demonstrate that this country could support 500,000,000 people by substituting wheat and giving up meat, the standard of living would continue to fall and the problem of millions of children would be worse. The only happy people would be the world's starving masses. Many of us today are victims of our unthinking American vanity of size and growth, without inquiry into the human value involved."

Professor Wolfe sees the optimists who believe that progress can work miracles. They rely on migration and invention. They see vast empty spaces, the state of Texas especially appeals to their imagination. Most of them have never been there. "What are the facts?" he asks. "The United States, limited in extent, is a land of settlement. Progress itself involves a paradox. It is inconceivable that technical advance can maintain the pace it set in what Wolfe called the wonderful century, and which Keynes thinks, may prove to have been a magnificent episode. In the main, future improvements are to be looked for in the fourth decimal place. There is a limit to the degree to which cheaply manufactured can offset increasing costs in extracting raw materials from nature's resources which are being exhausted with whirlwind rapidity."

Talking up the opposition to high birth rate, Professor Wolfe declared: "It is a fall of population theory that is unworkable. Such attitudes never sound the vital costs of a high birth rate—the costs to the women of the race. The very essence of economy is to balance the costs against the income. A valid population theory must take account of the way in which half the race, hitherto practically ignored, will calculate the costs against the satisfactions of large families."

WOMEN BARRISTERS ADDRESSED DIFFERENTLY BY MEN

LONDON, Dec. 31.—(AP)—There seems to be much uncertainty on the part of witnesses as to how they should address the women barristers who, so recently, practice in the courts. Miss Amelia Cobb, one of the foremost of English women barristers, said she was sometimes addressed as "Madam," but more often "she" and addressed as "sir" and she had even been called "my lady." One kind, motherly old lady, she added, had solved the difficulty by calling Miss Cobb "my dear."

LONDON, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The king's new year's honor list was issued Tuesday evening. It is notable, however, that in the list more than customary attention has been paid by King George V. to art, science and literature.

Chicago Authorities Probe Deeper Into Causes of Wealthy Orphan's Demise—Investigation Slows Up.

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Authorities investigating the death December 4, of William M. McClellock, 21 year old orphan-inventor of a million and a half, today arranged for a consultation late tomorrow with Dr. Ludwig Kletkon, pathologist and editor of the Journal of Infectious Diseases.

Decision of the assistant state's attorney to call Dr. Kletkon, came after it had been urged during a two and a half hours' conference by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court, at whose request Dr. Kletkon was authorized to assist the coroner's experts in examining the body.

Savage said that no evidence had been obtained upon which to base any action and that the whole inquiry, which had not developed any startling disclosures, was being dropped.

THE GUMPS - THE MORNING AFTER

INVESTIGATION OF PROHIBITION BUREAU PLANNED

Senate Committee Under Chairmanship of Couzens to Begin Inquiry Following Agreement Reached.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—Open investigation of the prohibition unit, which formed the basis for a heated disagreement between the administration and the senate at the last session, was decided upon today by the senate committee under the chairmanship of Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan.

The decision was reached after the committee had heard from both its own investigators and officials of the internal revenue bureau and the prohibition enforcement division. A definite date for beginning the hearings was not fixed, but it probably will be at a time not more than two weeks distant.

To Omit Work. Meaning, the committee's special investigators including John S. Tyler, formerly assistant prohibition director for western Pennsylvania, will continue their work in gathering facts in the prohibition division. Those will be laid before the committee at the hearings and enforcement officials then will present their side of the case.

Under present plans the committee will confine its hearings to subjects of general policy and the effect in actual operation, without underrating a drag on inquiry of special cases, such as that for instance at Yonahviken, N. J.

Criticism. At the conference today between the committee and Commissioner Blair of the internal revenue bureau, and Commissioner Haynes and other officials of the enforcement section, Earl L. Davis, counsel for the committee presented specific criticisms based upon reports of investigators who have been working in the prohibition unit and Commissioner Haynes and the others made reply.

Commissioner Haynes told the committee that much of the criticisms offered had been justified, but that criticism leading to them had been avoided. He promised that the committee would be given full co-operation in getting at all the facts as he said it had been given in the phases of the inquiry conducted up to this time.

HARVARD PRIZE PLAY COMING TO LAYERING

Someone has said that our enjoyment of a play depends upon our ability to visualize ourselves in the characters we see on the stage. If they are true people, we sit comfortably back in our orchestra chairs and live for two hours or more in their make-believe world. In the Harvard prize play of 1922, Philip Barry has written a truly of ourselves that you could do no better than name his work for us: "You and I," which comes to the Layering Friday evening, January 2.

There's Matley and his delightful wife, Nancy, whose early and very happy marriage drove the artist-husband into a business which couldn't satisfy his longing to paint. Nancy knows what he has needed and she tries for her part, and the old college alum, "Grove," who's grateful to fully how they both feel. "Grove" gave up love for a literary career, but Matley is positive that Nancy outshines any artistic fame.

The old longing for his art comes back to Matley. But a mighty surge when he finds his own and it's back to work, very boyish—turn between art and motorcycle cop pulls up along side you without marriage and marriage without a career as an architect. "Honey," the girl, who seems as capable of filling Ricky's life as Nancy has filled Matley's, has a head which sees far beyond the desire of her warm little heart and begins to open the eyes of all the others.

Here we are, You and I, facing the public together, either as Nancy and her husband or as the younger couple. It's all so real that we hear ourselves saying just what we'd like to be saying—if we had the wit which Barry tosses back and forth among his people. There are so many solutions; many a pair castles to explore. It is real life, and not a situation caused but our simple human little pathos of desire. Inevitable acts we live with these three understanding people—accompanied by Rita and G. T. Warren, who are quite as real and lovable as the immediate family. The solution which Matley and Nancy accept may not be ours, but after all it just might be the only way out—even for You and I.

When the play is over, we feel a personal debt to Mr. Barry for his sympathetic treatment of our problem, he really "holds the mirror up to nature" and there we stand entranced. You and I.

OPHELIUM. If, while you are traveling in your automobile—around 45 miles an hour—modern, very boyish—turn between art and motorcycle cop pulls up along side you and you want to avoid getting an invitation to meet the judge, see Harold Lloyd at the Orpheum today in "Hot Water." Lloyd has a new and novel method of avoiding arrest by motor car and it might be well worth your while to see his method—just in case you don't value your life, or would like to spend the rest of your days behind prison bars.

IDAHO. "The Covered Wagon" is a picture many people thought couldn't be made, and "North of 36," a new Irvin Willat production for Paramount, which opened yesterday at the Idaho theater, is its twin. The cast portraying the principal roles is in keeping with the bigness of the story. Jack Holt, Bruce Torrence, Lois Wilson and Noah Berry are featured. Other prominent names appear in support. Emerson Hugh, the author of the "Wagon," wrote the story.

Only One Right Course. Rightness consists of action what straightness does of lines, and there can no more be two kinds of right action than there can be two kinds of straight lines.—Exchange.

Unlucky Maggie. The superstition that magpies are unlucky is based on the belief that they are the only birds which do not go into the ark with Noah.

Inter-recognized the obligation of his government to the United States and declared his intention to honor the debt, were received by administration leaders with no little satisfaction. The statement that "Ambassador Herriek had transmitted M. Clementel's remarks to the secretary Hughes, however, produced only a reiteration of the department's position that the debt is not to be repaid, but to be paid in full.

Officials who took occasion to talk at length on the French debt question at the time of the publication in France of M. Clementel's balance sheet, which the French finance minister, has set before Myron T. Herriek, American ambassador, various observations on the minister's inventory of France's finances, indicating that France had no thought of repudiating her war debts but sought efficiency of treatment and a postponement of the payment of the dues plan to a settlement.

M. Clementel called on Ambassador Herriek today and the conversations between the two occupied a very considerable time. At their conclusion the American ambassador said he would forward a copy of the inventory to the state department at Washington and a transcript of the discussion on the subject.

"The prospect that the Dawes plan will be applied as a basis for a settlement of the French war debt was the subject of the conversation," Herriek said today for the United States embassy to deal directly with Gibbons and Kane.

RETIRING BOARD TO MAKE FIGHT

County Commissioners Employ Attorneys to Appeal From Decision on Salary Cut Order

Twin Falls county commissioners, whose terms of office will expire February 12, next, by unanimous vote Wednesday authorized employment of Howell and Chapman, attorneys, to perfect and prosecute to final determination an appeal to the state supreme court from a decision rendered by Judge H. F. English in district court, sustaining some and reversing other provisions of the commissioners' order of May 1924 to reduce salaries of elected county officials for the coming year.

The attorneys for this service, according to the commissioners' resolution providing for the appeal, are to be paid $2500 plus necessary expenses.

Judge English's decision and decrees, copies of which were received and placed on file in district court here Wednesday, was entered in an action instituted in district court here by O. M. Eider and others appealing on grounds of public policy from the commissioners' order reducing the salary of the county clerk.

The court held invalid provisions of the commissioners' order reducing the salary of the probate judge from $2000 to $1800 a year and reducing the salary of the county assessor from $2000 to $1800 a year and the county surveyor from $1100 to $900 a year.

Opinion for employment of the attorneys retained by the commissioners in this case was explained by the statement in the resolution to the effect that the county attorney's office would be equipped with other business requiring his attention.

SOLDIER-BONUS BILL GOES IN EFFECT TODAY

Masks, finger prints or other necessary data.
Up to 15,000 applications have been disallowed. War department bonus machinery has reached the point where it is able to forward 32,000 approved applications daily to the veterans' bureau.

Many Certified.
Major General Robert C. Davis, who as adjutant general of the army, has been charged with the administration of the bonus act insofar as it affects the war department, has certified 1,600,000 applications to the veterans' bureau for extension of the benefits to the claimants.

The war department believes it has completed more than half of the huge job imposed upon it by law, and that as a result of the experience gained no difficulty will be met in keeping the application flowing steadily through its machine to the veterans' bureau, no matter how many may be received a day. As yet General Davis has not heard from about 1,800,000 veterans as to whether they intend to apply for compensation.

1925 OUTLOOK MUCH BETTER, HOOVER SAYS

ing, but the prices of all farm products are gradually moving toward the general average of commodity prices.
While there has been a good deal of adjustment in prices of agricultural commodities during the year, the average wholesale price of all commodities has varied a few cents between the ends of the years 1922, 1923 and 1924. It would thus appear that we are tending toward the common level in prices of about 50 per cent over par, which seems to represent at least our present economic plane in prices.

Wages Stable.
The average wage in industry has been stable during the last year and remains about 100 per cent above pre-war while the cost of living has maintained at about 75 per cent over pre-war. Our labor, therefore, continues to enjoy the highest real wage in its history.

While there was some slackening of manufacturing production as a whole in the spring due in part to the uncertainties of election and in part to reduction of accumulated stocks, yet there was but little slacking at any time in consumption of major articles. The end of the year finds us with a recovered industrial production at practically the same levels as a year ago.

Foreign Trade.
Our foreign trade has shown considerable expansion during the year in exports and some decrease in imports.
The total of our exports for the year will show about $3,000,000,000. The merchandise imports will be about $1,000,000,000 in our favor. The largest gathering of the year on New Year's eve. The Blue Circle

BY Elizabeth Jordan. Copyright by The Century Co.

He looked at her almost puckered into a smile at the new expression of the face that he had taken in the first, so he had to grasp the door before that he had come from his shoulders the Atlas-like weight that had been a curse. His future for a year was assigned. He was a being without responsibility. In the environment, so isolated, yet so home-like and so peaceful, he could accept his cure. At the end of the year for the first time he told this to himself with entire conviction—he would have a woman, and one would know it.

He went down to breakfast with a vicar in his steps that was not wholly assumed. At the foot of the staircase he paused, not quite certain whether to turn into the living room or go on to the dining room. Breakfast might not be ready. He had not remembered, the night before, to ask at what hour it was served. As he hesitated, the door opened and a woman came in. "Good morning, Jenka. What's the breakfast this time?"

"Breakfast on beef, sir." "Thanks followed Jenka into the room, where a young woman in a pink kimono, which she regarded with an interest deep but unobtrusive, sat at the table. She looked at him with a smile that was almost a grin. "Good morning, Jenka. What's the breakfast this time?"

HOW THE LAMB MARKET BEHAVED IN 1924

Sheep were prime favorites in the livestock market at the close of 1924. This year, was a prosperous one for lamb producers, sheep selling highest at a wider margin of profit than other classes of livestock according to the year-end summary just completed by the Sears-Roebuck agricultural foundation.

During the summer the movement of feeder lambs to the country was far ahead of last year, although a large total was recorded for 1923. This movement diminished later and the number of lambs on feed throughout the entire country shows a decrease of less than ten per cent on a supply state for the lamb market after the first of February, shows an increase of 200,000 head over the 1923 figures.

This increase, however, will not indicate the market receipts for some time and relatively high prices are expected in volume through the year and probably for the next few years. The margin of profit in lamb production for 1924 has been high enough to attract the attention of the general public to the industry.

Twin Falls County Medical association, at a meeting held Wednesday evening in the county assessor's office and attended by 14 of its members, elected four officers and a member at large of the staff of the Twin Falls county general hospital under the standardization program adopted last week by the board of county commissioners, and authorized appointment of a committee of five members to draft a constitution and by-laws for the hospital staff organization under the standardization program adopted last week by two to one vote of members of the board of county commissioners.

Alexander Heads Staff

Dr. D. Alexander of Twin Falls, was elected by the association members at this meeting to be chairman of the hospital staff, and other vice chairmen elected were as follows: Staff chairman, Dr. Charles Wertheimer, Twin Falls; secretary, Dr. J. N. Davis, Kimberly; treasurer, Dr. G. H. Croft, Twin Falls; Dr. A. C. McKinley, Duhl, was elected member at large of the staff.

Members of the committee to draft constitution and by-laws were named by the chairman as follows: Dr. G. D. Weaver, Dr. J. H. Morgan, and Dr. J. D. Coughlin, Twin Falls; Dr. F. A. Wright, Ellet; Dr. George Jennings, Duhl.

Report as to the election of staff officers together with the report of the committee on constitution and by-laws is to be presented to the county commissioners at a regular meeting next Wednesday evening.

County commissioners, in their resolution adopting the standardization program, reserved the right to name a majority of the members of the executive committee to be formed under the standardization plan.

The committee on constitution and by-laws is expected to bring up the standardization program in the next county evening when it developed, after a group of protestants had assembled in the county commissioners' office, that the medical association had not yet elected staff officers and that the situation and by-laws as it had been requested to do by the commissioners for presentation at this meeting.

Call for this meeting was issued in the resolution adopting the standardization program.

The members expected to register for this time included Dr. Emma C. Crossland and Dr. Emma C. Sawyer, both of Twin Falls, who were present. They were assembled in the commissioners' office with Commissioner O. F. Carlson of Twin Falls, who had voted against the standardization and recorded his own protest. Both other members of the board consulted with members of the medical association prior to the meeting of that body, which will be more accessible to the stockholders than the present location.

The commissioners' meeting was thereafter declared adjourned.

Report of the past year's operations of the Mutual Building and Loan association submitted this week to the association directors by James S. Hall, manager, shows not only a 21 per cent increase during the past six months and complete restoration of all losses sustained by the association through a fallacious charge to former officials a year ago, it was announced Wednesday evening at officers of the association.

Stock of the association is again on a par and on a earning basis, it was stated.

"Our collections were never better," Mr. Hall stated. "Our loans are in the fine condition and we have had very little delinquency. Our profit and loss account shows improvement in the real estate department as against a year ago. The receipts during the past four months have shown a steady gain, indicating improved conditions among our stockholders generally.

The annual audit now in progress, will be presented to the stockholders at the annual meeting to be held on January 19, at which time there will be an election of three directors. The retiring directors are E. A. Moore, Addison F. Smith and Dr. George A. Caldwell.
