G. O. P. LEADERS DENOUNCED BY SENATOR LADD

Sharp Arraignment of Republicans Responsible for Reading Out Four Progressives Made by North Dakota Man

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—A sharp arraignment of the present leadership of the republican party was made in the senate today by Senator Ladd, republican North Dakota in a carefully prepared address dealing with the action of the republican conference in reading himself, Senators Lu Follette, Wisconsin; Frazier, North Dakota, and Brookhart, Iowa, out of the party caucus.

Asserting that the caucus had not yet been run down on this act of the notorious conference, Senator Ladd charged that "the camp followers of the old republican party have become the vanguard of the new republican party" leading it backward and downward from the heights where Lincoln left it when he fell.

Drunk With Power

Drunk with power and forgetting its traditions, he said, the republican party has proceeded to surrender the nation's money functions "to financial buccaniers" and to surrender its taxing power to "tariff magicians," he contended its natural resources and public lands, made ventures in imperialism for the sole benefit of "patrian straws," and transformed the government of the "people, by the people, for the people" into a government of the masses by the masses.

"If it be a republican," he added, "I am to accept and ratify, defend and promote a political policy or party that exists in the accomplishment of these results—without protest—without exhausting my ability to correct these fatal errors of the past and prevent their repetition in the future, then I can not qualify."

Working Majority

"If the election of a republican as president with a reliable working majority in congress means nothing more than an extension for four years of an unmitigated disaster to the American people, then I cannot be a republican."

"In the transfer of billions of capital values from the farms and producers of America to the swollen fortunes of monopoly within three weeks time, it is indeed... the party of Lincoln doomed."

The senator said he was proud of

Reclamation Group Far From Solution on Needs of West

Fact Finding Commission at Denver Meeting Tells Representatives of Difficulties Encountered

DENVER, Jan. 6 (AP)—The fact finding commission named to make a survey of the needs of farmers and water users and others affected by the new reclamation act is far from reaching a solution, Thomas E. Campbell, former governor of Idaho and president of the commission, declared today at a conference of representatives of western states with official representatives of the reclamation bureau.

"We have a long road to travel," said Mr. Campbell, "before we are able to give the relief needed by the farmers. During the next few months we will have to face any difficulty in the reclamation act and remedy it accordingly," he said.

Feature Held Unfair

Some features of the new act were regarded as unfair but the majority of the 160 representatives of the conference expressed themselves as anxious to take over operation of the provisions provided in the law. The sections of the act providing that construction cost of entire projects be paid by annual installments regardless of the possibility that some of the land might be worthless was regarded as unfair. The government will make a survey of existing laws in western states affected by the reclamation act and determine if the laws of the various states conform with the provisions of the act was taken under

COMMISSION WORKING ON WAYS OF HELPING THE CATTLE INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—The president's agricultural commission, continued its concentration today on the endeavor to devise legislative assistance for the livestock industry.

In a Cooper, commissioner of the Federal Reserve bank, who headed a group of farm-bank presidents that conferred with the commission yesterday, was elected with the members most of the day. Chairman Robert D. Carter has announced that any proposals for financing the cattlemen would be drawn to meet the approval of the bankers, but no member of the commission would say tonight what courses are being considered.

John M. Sparks, president of the Fort Worth Cattle Loan company, appeared before the commission for a short time, and other cattle loan bankers and cattlemen of long experience are expected to be invited to appear.

STONE PREPARES TO LEAVE DESK

Idaho Judge Figures Prominently as Suggested Successor for Attorney General

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—Attorney General Stone began a farewell drive today in an effort to leave his department of justice desk clear of all questions that possibly can be decided before he takes up his new post as a member of the supreme court.

It is Mr. Stone's hope that he can clean up all appointments now pending except, perhaps, the two vacancies in the office of assistant attorney general.

With respect to these posts, he plans to talk over the situation with the president, but it is understood he will consider nominees for them only after the specific request of the president.

White House Silent

The White House remained silent today respecting a possible successor for Mr. Stone, but numerous names were mentioned in unofficial discussion about the impending vacancy. The name of Charles B. Warren, former justice ambassador to Japan, Judge Frank Strickland of Idaho; Silas Strawn of Chicago, and Judge Arthur Hays of

ALLIED ACTION IN COLOGNE IS PROTEST BASIS

Decision to Keep Army of Occupation at Bridgehead Held Treaty Breach by Germany in Note.

BERLIN, Jan. 6 (AP)—Germany's initial reply to the council of ambassadors regarding the Cologne occupation was handed to the allied ambassadors here this evening.

The text will probably be made public Thursday, but it is believed the note characterizes the extension of the occupation beyond January 10 as a fundamental breach of the treaty of Versailles. It is also understood that the reply rejects the right of the entente to postpone its evacuation of the bridgehead on the ground of the allied defaults by Germany cited in the ambassadors' preliminary note of January 6.

Treaty Violation

The Berlin government's answer, which was drafted at today's cabinet meeting, is considered a formal protest against violation of a treaty principle by the allies. Specific discussion of the alleged defaults mentioned in the allied note will be deferred until Germany has received the ambassadors' supplementary note.

The grounds on which the continuation of the Cologne occupation are based are branded as flimsy by the German newspapers, which continue to designate the accusations of the allies as being intended primarily for foreign consumption.

Press Comment

"The bogey of 150,000 German uniformed policemen will probably result in a demand that only within the next few weeks will be restored."

observes the Boersen Zeitung, which also widens the charge that the German staff had been restored.

The recent slump in the German loan market is viewed by the Times of London as a direct result of the actions of the allies.

The London newspaper says that the general situation in the London market now is quite the general and that there is no concrete

Strict Economy Urged by Governor in His Message to Eighteenth Legislature

CHICAGO GUNMEN ARE SOUGHT IN COLORADO

CASTLE ROCK, Colo., Jan. 6 (AP)—At an early hour tonight no word had been received from Sheriff McKissick of Douglas county, who left at noon today for the Jarr county country, where he expected to serve warrants on Louis (Diamond Jack) Atterio, and Frank Gussenberg, pals of the late Dan O'Hannigan, Chicago gangster, wanted in Chicago for robbery and assault to murder.

FARM RELIEF BILLS OPPOSED

Chicago Man at Co-operative Marketing Meet Urges Inves-tigation of Tobacco Concerns

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—Investigation of the big tobacco trust organizations by the Federal Trade commission, was urged by Aaron Sapin, of Chicago, in an address today on legislative and governmental aspects of the co-operative marketing problem before the national council of farmers' co-operative marketing organizations.

The speaker, who asserted how he holds the administrative support of the government, rather than more law. He expressed opposition to the Norris-Sinclair, McNary-Haugen, Curtis-Aswell and Capper-Williams farm relief bills, and suggested a "Moore doctrine in economics" as well as politics.

The big tobacco organizations have long been boycotting the co-operative associations.

Most of today's sessions of the convention was taken up with discussion of technical phases of the movement.

Theodore Price of New York, editor of the Economic and Financial Review, established of "house organs" for the separate commodity groups and urged standardization of cotton and use of accountants to aid former members.

FINANCE PARLEY TO OPEN TODAY IN FRENCH CITY

Twelve Nations Represented at Conference on Affairs Growing Out of Peace Meeting Six Years Ago.

PARIS, Jan. 6 (AP)—Delegations from 12 of the allied and associated nations are in Paris tonight preparing to begin tomorrow some of the heavy discussions that have grown out of the peace conference which began here about six years ago.

Frank H. Kellogg, American ambassador to Great Britain, who with Ambassador Herrick and James A. Logan, Jr., United States observer on the reparations commission, constitutes the American delegate to the conference, arrived here late today.

He spent the evening in conference with Mr. Logan and the two got in-hand the threads of many intricate and complicated problems the finance ministers and experts must settle. Mr. Kellogg will confer with Ambassador Herrick and Mr. Logan tomorrow morning before the conference meets in the clock room at the foreign office.

British Chancellor

Winston Churchill, the British chancellor of the exchequer was another arrival. He spent the evening conferring with the Marquis of Grouchy, the British ambassador to France and tomorrow morning will take up with Mr. Clemenceau, the French finance minister, the troublesome question of war debts.

The French offered Mr. Churchill's proposal, there will thus probably be eliminated one of the questions which, although excluded from the full sessions of the conference, might delay its work if discussed on the side. Some of the delegates, however, appear pessimistic as to the possibility of settling reparations problems if the question of debts remains in suspense; consequently they look for at least a partial agreement between France and Great Britain in that connection.

Debtors Remain Quiet

The allied debtors, apart from France and Italy, are holding their tongues. Premier Mussolini of Italy is understood to have instructed his delegates to avoid any mention of the subject. The Belgians are adopting a waiting attitude and the Jug-Slav and Rumanian delegates are reticent.

Wheat Prices Not Fixed by Exchange Officials Declare

Charges of Failing to Enforce Grain Futures Act Denied by Agricultural Department in Statement

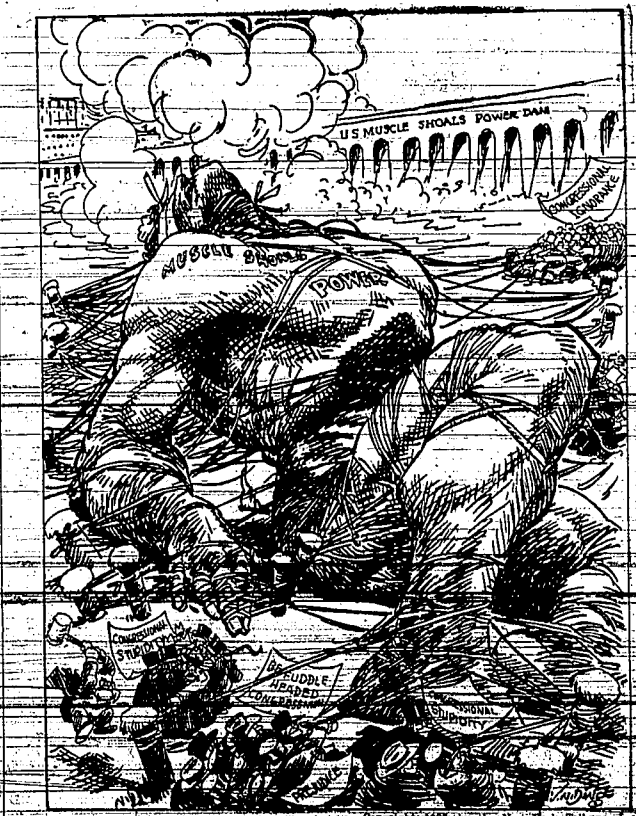

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—The department of agriculture answering charges of failure to enforce the grain futures act declared its willingness today to proceed in the public interest upon receipt of any evidence warranting investigation, but asserted it was not aware that the price of wheat, as alleged, had been driven up by private speculation.

In an official statement the department said charges that grain exchanges were responsible for the high price of wheat "must necessarily be based upon a misunderstanding of the actual facts." The source of the charges was not mentioned.

Once in Many Years

The prevailing wheat price in this country was attributed to the present situation and a combination of circumstances "that is unlikely to occur on the average of more than once in many years." The department said that the situation of continued high prices in future years.

What the World Is Doing

As Seen by Popular Mechanics Magazine

Power of Sea Tides Harnessed to Yield Electric Current

Dreams of engineers to harness the energy of the tides for electric power are being realized in the construction of the first big hydroelectric plant to be operated by the tide and fall of the tides at West Mersea, Essex, England. The unit is so arranged that at high water, a tidal basin is filled and driven by the water flows out during low tide. The turbines power and also pump water into an upper basin for use at high tide so that the operation of the generators is practically continuous.

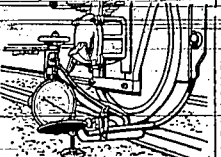

Coaster Chair Steered with Feet Is Safe and Easily Carried

Said to be more easily operated and safer than an ordinary sled, a coaster on which the rider sits upright and which he steers wholly with his feet has been devised. It is strongly constructed of hardwood, shod with steel and braced with iron. The usual style has only one runner but two are furnished in those made for smaller children.

Scales under Freight-Car Wheels Give Weight of Shipment

Eliminating the time and expense required in hauling flat cars to a rail and electric plant to be operated by the tide and fall of the tides at West Mersea, Essex, England. The unit is so arranged that at high water, a tidal basin is filled and driven by the water flows out during low tide. The turbines power and also pump water into an upper basin for use at high tide so that the operation of the generators is practically continuous.

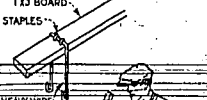

quickly by multiplying by four the result shown under one truck. The scale is used also for weighing locomotives and is of special service in making quick estimates to see if there has been loss by theft during the shipment.

Artificial Teeth Made of Steel

Teeth made from ganneled steel have been added to the products of the Krupp plants at Essen. The metal is from the same mixture formerly used to make German cannon. Eight dentists have been employed in the department at the start, and Krupp hope to expand it later.

Stretching Poultry Wire

Stretching poultry wire on frames is a difficult task if attempted with the finger. The work is made easier by a device which can be made in a few moments and will save much time and work and prevent sore fingers. A 3-ft. length of 1 by 3-in. board, a piece of No. 9 iron wire and two small staples are the only materials required. Form a hook on each end of the wire and then bend the wire around the 3-in. side of the board, about 4 in. from the end, lacking it in place with the staples. After the wire is laced to one side of the frame, the stretch is used to pull it tight. This is done by

Thawing Water Pipes

After several fruitless attempts had been made to thaw out a frozen water pipe by pouring hot water on it, the use of a steam boiler was resorted to. The water pipe extended into the floor and into the ground, and there was a space around the pipe to a depth of about 5 ft. About a peck of lime was thrown into this space. After a small portion of water was added the heat from the lime was so great that the water in the pipe was running two minutes later.

(A piece of sheepskin with the raw wool on it, keeps the glass clear of frost and dew, catching the hooks in the selvage of the wire and, raising the short end of the board against the outside of the frame pulling back on the long end.

AT THE IDAHO

Theodore Roberts has created another sensation in the Twin Falls. In the William de Milla production for Paramount, "Locked Doors," which marks Roberts' return to the screen after a year's absence, the veteran actor gives a portrayal of an old miser who is so miserly that he is almost insensitive to give him a "pat" part. When Clara Robinson wrote "Locked Doors," she had Roberts in mind for the role. The fact that Roberts was to make his return to the screen in a Paramount production was an additional incentive to give him a "pat" part. According to all accounts, Roberts has made the new role as distinctive as any he has yet portrayed on the screen, but underneath it is much of the irritability of the lion glances and the quaint mannerisms of the former success. Mr. Reid, the part Roberts plays in "Locked Doors" has been called the younger brother of "Grumpy." The Betty Compau, Kathryn Williams, Theodore von Eltz and Robert Edwards are featured with Roberts in the picture which opens a three day run tomorrow at the Idaho theater. Sets Doomed of Elephant. Unless the human race leaves the earth, another species, the proboscidean, will become extinct. In two centuries when the last solitary elephant dies in the utmost retreat of Africa, or perhaps in the Bronx zoo, the world will be a different place. The adventurer, Invader, elephant tamer, has been here for years. So in this our largest quadrupled will not have room enough to live free from disease and death in his doom, according to Carl Ethun Aldley, who is supposed to know more about the moorish of proboscideans than anyone else. Natural Pipe Line. While some workmen in Bath, Maine, were quarrying stone they uncovered a deposit of about thirty feet of water conduit about three feet wide and two feet high. The conduit was in a solid ledge and it is of uniform diameter its full length, 200 feet. The four sides are deeply grooved, showing that at some time water ran through it at great pressure. It is one of the few of nature's pipe lines that have been exposed—Scientific American. Disputed Honor. Some authorities give credit to the U. S. Vincennes as sailing first. ROMANIA ASKED FOR PLANS ON REPAYING DEBT

United States Minister Reminds Foreign Nation of War Loan Yet Unpaid; Wants Information.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 6 (AP)—Among the several matters which Minister Jay, since his recent return to Bucharest, has taken up with the Rumanian foreign office has been the war debt of the Rumanian government to the government of the United States. Acting under instructions received from the department of state, Mr. Jay is understood to have pointed out that the time has arrived for Rumania, if not to conclude a definite funding arrangement at least to submit a plan to the United States government fully supplied with all the necessary data so that an agreement can be reached as to the proper amount of the debt. The Rumanian government sent such a commission to the United States about two years ago, but its records were in such a confused and incomplete condition that it was quite impossible to arrive at even an approximate basis of understanding. It is believed that a preliminary plan has been drawn up and that a better equipped commission will leave Bucharest for Washington early in 1925 with the hope of arriving at a complete understanding. In this connection it is pertinent to set down a statement made a few days ago by Vincent Brittain, chief of the finance section of the Rumanian government, in an interview with the Associated Press. Asked what arrangements the Rumanian government might have under consideration in regard to its war debt, the minister replied that Rumania could not even think of making budget provision for interest on the war debt until it had a plan in the matter of repayment. 'We are being asked to conclude arrangements for it without a definite plan,' Mr. Brittain added. 'And the reparations commission has not yet even decided upon amounts due us from Austria and Hungary.'

Mountains Furnish Wealth

The steep, hoary mountains of the western states, with snow-capped peaks, furnish the raw material for the paper maker's most valuable product. But the economic value of these mountains are numerous. First, they are the source of the water which flows down the slopes to the valleys, and from there to the sea. Second, they furnish the timber which is used for the manufacture of paper. Third, they furnish the water power which is used for the generation of electricity. Fourth, they furnish the minerals which are used in the manufacture of paper. Fifth, they furnish the recreation which is enjoyed by the people of the West.

BOY EMPEROR GLAD TO QUIT

Hsuan Tung Has No Desire to Re-enter Forbidden City; Palace Was a Cage.

PEKING, Jan. 6 (AP)—Hsuan Tung, the boy emperor of China, has no desire to re-enter the Forbidden City from which he recently was removed and he now considers his former home a "cage" which would restrict his desired activities. He said recently he would not avail himself of the withdrawal by Tuan Chi-wei and Mian-shan Chang, Premier of the cabinet, of the restrictions imposed upon him by General Feng Yu-shiang, whereby he was forced to leave the palace. The boy emperor declared he had no desire to re-enter the city of the Imperial City because he disliked the imperial system which it would be necessary to maintain there. Instead he looked forward with great delight to a future life of freedom. He proposed, he added, to visit his ancestors' tombs in Manchuria as soon as possible, after which he hoped to see something of the world.

Later it was explained in its formation and chemical constitution.

RARE COLLECTION OF REMBRANDTS TO BE AUCTIONEED

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP)—A valuable collection of some 350 Rembrandt etchings, which had been hidden from the art public in an English country square's private library for nearly a century, has been brought forward for public sale in the near future. There is said to be no doubt about the genuineness of the etchings and no one ventures an opinion as to their probable value. The forthcoming sale, it is declared, is without precedent in living memory. The collection was formed early in the nineteenth century by Edward Rogers, a Middlesex magistrate, a member of a family which dates back to Queen Elizabeth's reign.

The plot of ground, comprising about two acres, is now owned by an absentee park-architectural engineer, but all these gaudy trappings will be removed and open air restaurant pavilions installed, where meals will be served at the rate of one-third of about 40 cents, including a bottle of wine.

CHICAGO JUDGE WANTS INQUIRY

Chief Justice Olson Not Satisfied With Result of McClintock Inquest, Tells Officials.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court, who caused the questioning of William D. Shepherd, foster father of William Nelson McClintock, "millionaire orphan," regarding the young man's death a month ago, today started office at the highest in the city.

After a long examination of the body of Dr. Oscar Olson, his brother, who died three years ago, Judge Olson said that he now believed that the death of his brother, a friend of the McClintock family, had been designed by some one. He said that he had not taken action before because he had not previously learned that Mrs. Shepherd was alone with his brother a short time before his death.

Request in Writing.

A deputy coroner, claiming the inquest said that Judge Olson's request would not be met until he had made it in writing and had set forth his reasons for suspicion. Judge Olson then charged that the state's attorney's office and the coroner had not made a complete investigation of young McClintock's death. He had not been waiting "two weeks" a joke. "He asked that the inquest be continued for two or three months for further investigation and it was finally continued until January 26, when it was announced any witnesses that anyone wished to subpoena will be heard."

McClintock, 21 years old, died December 4, at the Shepherd home, with Mrs. Tanbelle Pope, his fiancée, waiting to marry him. The doctor's certificate gave the cause of death as typhoid fever and McClintock's will, drawn when he became of age last spring, left his entire estate to Shepherd with the exception of an $5000 annuity to Miss Pope.

Not Natural Death.

Two weeks after the death Judge Olson asked that an investigation be made expressing the opinion that McClintock had not died a natural death. The body was exhumed but an examination by coroner's chemists showed that death was caused by typhoid in the opinion of the officials. Judge Olson had expressed a theory that McClintock may have been fed solid food or that typhoid germs may have been injected into his body.

Mr. Shepherd, who was residing with Mrs. Shepherd, the co-guardian of the boy, at Albuquerque, N. M., returned here for the investigation, but considered that the report of coroner's chemists had vindicated him and before returning to Albuquerque a few days ago, issued a statement demanding an explanation from Judge Olson as to why the investigation was started.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 6.—William D. Shepherd, "right brained" as the "ravings of a disordered mind," insinuations made by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Chicago municipal court that Shepherd might have been involved in the death of Olson's brother, Dr. Oscar Olson, who died three years ago.

Shepherd, who is the foster father of William N. McClintock, "millionaire orphan," into whose death an investigation has been conducted in Chicago, characterized as a "fit" the

The friendship of Senator LaFollette, who was the Republican candidate for president and of the other senators read out of the party councils.

Senator Edge Replies.

Replying, Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, who launched the movement which led to the conference action, said the test of party loyalty was the support of the party candidate for president. This led to a more or less general discussion, with the democrats crowding over to the republican side of the chamber the better to hear the discussion.

Senator Norris, Nebraska, one of the insurgent leaders, referring to the affirmative action would be necessary to get the senators back into the fold of the Republican party.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, demanded to know if Senator Ladd had not already returned to the republican fold by his attendance at the senate conference which undertook tooust him.

"No, he has not," replied Senator Edge. "In regard to the test of loyalty, it seems to me one must at least follow the creed and viewpoint adopted by the national convention. These senators certainly did not."

"What is the test?" demanded Senator Borah. "We have an example here of several senators voting against the nominal leader of the party if not the actual leader."

The reference was to the overriding of the president's veto of the postal pay bill. The senator replied that Senator Ladd had not supported on the stump the candidacy of a "man who if he had been elected would have destroyed the republican party."

"Well, what's the use of supporting a candidate to get him elected, if you are going to defeat him after you get him in?" retorted Senator Borah, amid laughter from crowded galleries.

Crowded from all sides, Senator Edge said the republicans would welcome Ladd back into the party if a section of his address relative to the return of Roosevelt to the party was an indication of "your plans to march in the future."

Mrs. A. Wilton Peck entertained 25 Twin Falls on Tuesday, Jan. 6, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Wilson to celebrate the birthday of her little daughter Priscilla, and son, Hubert. One birthday coming on January 3, and one on the tenth of the same month, it was made a joint affair. The refreshment table was lovely with a centerpiece of red carnations and there were two beautiful birthday cakes, one of which was decorated with two green marigolds, shading cunning kowpie dolls, and having three green candles. The other was trimmed with red New Year's bells and adorned with six red candles. Placed around the centerpiece were Japanese style attached alternately to red and green ribbons leading to the sides of the table. The children drew these and found inside the red a clever favor. There were also hats in a variety of colors which they wore during the afternoon. Mrs. W. P. Haney assisted Mrs. Peck in entertaining the children with stories and games.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Magel celebrated their golden wedding and their anniversary on Tuesday, January 6, with a charming dinner for the members of their family at their home on Eighth

The general meeting of the Twentieth Century club was held Tuesday afternoon at Justus' Inn. The usual order of business was first on the program with the president, Mrs. P. W. McRobert, in the chair. At this time the club voted to sponsor "The Portland Mansfield Dancers," a very high class entertainment which is to be here at a future date. The program for the afternoon was under the able leadership of Mrs. A. L. Houghton, the subject being "A Day With Our Homestead." Mrs. J. L. Houghton spoke on the "Characteristics of American Humor." Miss Adda

Thompson gave a fine talk on George Ade, with whom she is personally acquainted, and Mrs. J. W. Chapman spoke on Mark Twain. Other numbers were an especially interesting talk on "Hoyt" by Scout Director P. Douglas Hively, Miss LoStelle Brackeridge sang two delightful selections and Mrs. Dorothy Burger gave a charming reading and responded to an encore. There was an exceptionally good attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Flechter were hosts at a delightful dinner Monday evening complimentary to Gus Wilder and M. Telesius, cello and clarinet players with the orchestra playing for the "Ten Commandments." Mr. Flechter and the honored guests are subscribers in the long been members of the Portland Symphony club several years ago. The BLUE GIRL BY Elizabeth Jordan. Illustration of a woman in a blue dress. Copyright by The Century Co.

Chapter VI. It seemed to Renshaw that he had been waiting in Penock's office since the beginning of time. In reality he had been there less than half an hour...

"Why, there's Mr. Renshaw—and he appears to be asleep!" He sprang to his feet, snatching off his hat as he did so. Verity Campbell and Madame Hiveseloff had stopped before him. For a moment the wave of summation that called Verity's attention shut out any appreciation of their presence or their manner. They must be half frantic. They must be blaspheming his word as a blundering ass...

"No," he said confusedly, "I wasn't asleep. I was trying to—" He broke off and turned directly to Madame Hiveseloff. "I'm wretched about this thing," he said with an actual break in his voice. "What can I say?"

"The eyes of both women were on him as he spoke, and now, with time for clearing his throat, he realized neither pair held the expression he had looked for. The eyes of Verity revealed her customary indifference. Verity slightly tinged with criticism. Madame Hiveseloff, calm and collected, first, was softened into pity as she took in the young man's haggard aspect.

cully in keeping to the road. Suddenly Renshaw leaned forward and addressed the girl. "Miss Campbell," he said—

"Verity looked startled. In her absorption it was clear that she had not observed the join or the driver's request. Her attention was so absorbed that she was looking at her hand.

"No, you're not much more than half-way. Add it's knowing hard, and the new man doesn't keep the road. There's no more to be said between her and Verity. Renshaw's voice grew more incisive. "I really think you'd better let me drive," he finished.

"For a few seconds Verity was at a loss to know what to do. She recalled the situation. Her words recalled the situation. Her words recalled the situation. Her words recalled the situation.

"Oh, all right," he said grumpily. "I was just trying to feel about it. I was just trying to feel about it. I was just trying to feel about it."

"The limousine stopped with a jerk. Renshaw leaped from his place and got out. He was back of the car. Opening the door and leaning out to discover what had happened, Verity caught his words. "They were a trifle hurried. He had prepared for a few seconds, but he was not prepared for the vigorous protesting against the capture.

"Good, now," said Renshaw. "This is getting annoying, you know. You're a little better on that mad than I thought. It was a very good idea."

"I'm not going to save my new dress too long," she others might do. "The children will see to that. And that's the way I like it."

"That's only fair," said the calendar on the right wall. "What you say is so true. But how much pressure we give the children. How they do love to tear up when the end of the month comes."

"No, but I have a choice," she said. "I can't have a choice. I can't have a choice. I can't have a choice."

"Every month we're refreshed up and given a new dress," said the calendar on the left wall.

"Of course," said the calendar on the left wall, "there are some of the family who change their dresses each day."

"But to be a monthly calendar is more fun. "You're more fun," said the calendar on the right wall.

"The children take turns tearing off the old month's dress so that the new month's dress can be seen," said the calendar on the left wall.

"They never seem to forget their dresses, do they?" asked the calendar on the right wall.

"Sometimes the day changes. Sometimes the month ends on the thirtieth day and sometimes on the thirty-first. And February doesn't wear his costume as long as the other months do."

"But February doesn't mind, for February has a special time of his own. "Every so often he celebrates Leap Year. Then he has an extra day, and so twenty-nine days must pass before he sees the light of the usual number of twenty-eight."

"But I love to see my new fresh dress each month. All through the month I hang on the wall just as you do, and I am looked at again and again. "They will suddenly seem to notice me at times, too. Often I've heard some one say, in quite a loud voice, 'How nice the calendar, nice!'"

HOW THEY DO IT IN CALIFORNIA

Idaho people who are in the habit of spending a part of the year in California will find food for reflection in the new tax laws of that state, adopted by popular referendum last November and which will be officially enacted by the California Legislature during the present session.

California is not easy in her mind over the new program. The referendum went through by a heavy vote but in the meantime her people have had time to think about the matter.

The world will not come to an end and when the petroleum pools play out. There will remain vast stores of oil locked up in the oil shale deposits of the country. But it will cost more to produce that supply.

It will be interesting to watch the operation of California's new tax law. When it gets fully under way California will probably be the highest taxing State in the entire Union.

THE GOVERNED

It is the way of life that many of us are compelled to pay high prices for necessities which we do not want in the least and with which we think we could very well do without, and would much prefer not to have. One of the things for which we pay dearly is government.

A committee of the California Bond Issue association has completed a long and exhaustive study of the subject of taxation. It presents its report to the board of directors this month.

A WASTEFUL INDUSTRY

Secretary of the Interior, says, "And large coal fields are drilled, the petroleum supply of the United States will be gone in twelve years."

He points out the lavish production of the present, more than a million barrels a day, and the irresponsible, unregulated competition that causes this drain. "Whenever a new field is brought in, the owners race to drill it up."

Are You Fat?

Thousands of doctors who regard people who are slender as fortunate. The advice of doctors who recommend diet and exercise. These little fat pills are sold in the name of medicine.

Many ancient sages think that only abstinance from drinking and smoking, keep the youthful vigor occasionally an expert of equal longevity takes issue with them. There was still living—long ago—a woman known to be one hundred and twenty years old who had been a devotee of the corns for 60 years.

But I don't understand," he stammered. "We ourselves do not understand. I can tell you only what has happened. When Mr. Atkins telephoned, we were told that he had been in the car. I was," she stopped as if almost overcome by the memory of what that moment had quickly—"I was in despair," she went on quickly.

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickly by applying Menth-A-Skin. The simple cream to dry tight up and away, declares a noted skin specialist. Nothing has ever been found to take the place of Menth-A-Skin. It is harmless and inexpensive. It is the only remedy for a small skin ailment. It is the only remedy for a small skin ailment.
