NAVY AVIATOR HAS MAN-SIZE JOB, ASSERTED

Commandant Tells of Wide Range of Knowledge Airmen Must Have as Compared with Army Filers.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7 (AP)—Up in the air in the navy is a man's sized job, it is declared by Captain Thomas T. Craven, U. S. N., commandant of the North Island naval air station in San Diego, in a recent address before the Los Angeles sector, Association of the Army of the United States. "The difference between the operations of the land and sea services in the air were vividly described in the light of the expert knowledge required of a naval flier to meet the great number of peculiar problems not faced by shore aviators."

After having passed the physical and expert qualifications for a flier the naval aviator must become a proficient radio operator, 29 words a minute sending and receiving. Then he must be a nautical navigator, an expert in gas explosives, and understand the theory of operations of battleships, destroyers and submarines, for when he leaves his ship station his station also moves away, and he not only must know how to find it, but must appreciate its movements so not to injure it.

Small Landing Field.

Communication by radio is established between naval airplanes and all types of naval craft, even submarines operating under the surface of the sea. Naval airplanes are launched from submarines, from battleships, from destroyers, and from airplane carriers, on whose decks airplanes also may alight, but with a 60 foot runway instead of a large field to land upon.

An important factor in airplane operations at sea is the smoke screen, and a thorough knowledge of the science relating to this is essential. Furthermore, the navy flier must understand gas bombs, the Navy using bombs of sufficient phosphorus content, when exploded over a battleship to annihilate the whole crew. The planes also discharge torpedoes.

Another problem in operation, Captain Craven said, is the destructive effect of salt air on airplanes and their material, this not only requiring great care and attention to the condition of the planes, but the development of collapsible craft that may be taken down and stowed away below decks and protected from the elements.

Important Flights By U. S. Airmen to Be Made Is Report

Non-Stop Flight From San Francisco to Hawaii Contemplated—Says Flier.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 7.—According to information brought to Rockwell field here by Captain Lowell H. Smith, who commanded the American globe-circling squadron of army planes, two important flights may be undertaken by the United States military airman in the present year.

One flight, now being considered, is a non-stop flight from San Francisco to Hawaii. Lieutenant H. Doolittle has applied for permission to make that flight. The other opportunity is around Cape Horn, starting at Balboa, western entrance of the Panama canal and ending at Cristobal, the eastern terminus.

REINDEER DIE IN MICHIGAN

Experiments Conducted in Northern Peninsula Prove Unsuccessful With Animals.

LANSING, Jan. 7 (AP)—Experiments conducted by the state department of conservation apparently have demonstrated that reindeer will not thrive in the northern peninsula of Michigan. About two years ago 60 reindeer were imported and placed on a game farm. It was the hope of sportsmen that they would find the cold stretches of the Lake Superior region to their liking and that the northern woods soon would be thickly populated with the Arctic animals. Federal and state agencies had announced that a mossy growth prevalent in the upper peninsula was ideal food for reindeer. The herd at first increased to more than 70. Then they started to die off and only a few were left.

Scientists have attributed the high mortality rate to a species of pneumonia brought on by the climate and to a lack of time in the food.

"Wave" Ruined

A party of Boardman (Ind.) motorists ran their car over the edge of a cliff, narrowly escaping death. Lady Duncan, sitting in the back seat, complained to rescuers that the accident had "spoiled her permanent wave."

Errors Increase in Summer

Clerical errors are likely to spring increase markedly in summer, decrease in the fall and again mount in the winter, according to tests made in business offices by a noted psychologist.

Seems to Be Human Fallacy

"It's queer," said Carlo Ebo, "how much more apt we are to brag about winning a little on a horse race instead of 'bust' errors twice as much fun a day's work."

You can buy no tea this side of the China Sea to compare with it in flavor

Nature has denied you the really glorious flavors of tea as they are known in the Orient. Somewhere in crossing the Blue Pacific they have disappeared. Importers of tea have tried in vain, for three hundred years, to correct this fault.

But at last the riddle is solved—solved by modern science. In a peculiar fashion the finer flavors of tea disappear and reappear again like a fleeting will-o'-the-wisp under the effect of moisture or heat. Moisture steals the flavors. Toasting restores them.

Schilling teas are "twice toasted"—once in the Eastern tea gardens, and once again in America. Then while still HOT they are safely sealed for you in vacuum tins.

Only Schilling teas are "twice toasted." Only Schilling teas are sealed HOT in vacuum tins to preserve for you those choice flavors—exactly as they left Calcutta or Yokohama—flavors that will be retained for all time—never again to be lost before you may enjoy them.

This new scientific process is a secret process—a closely guarded secret—patented and exclusively Schilling.

There are four famous blends from the four corners of the East: Green (Japan), Black (Orange Pekoe), Oolong and English Breakfast.

[Best of all—they cost no more than they did before.]

JOURNALISM IN U. S. PRAISED

English News Agency Pays Warm Tribute to Methods of Teaching in America.

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Sir Roderick M. Jones, chairman of Reuters, the British news agency, in a recent letter to the Spectator, urging support of the journalism courses of the University of London, pays a warm tribute to the educational standards of American journalists.

"During each of my visits to the United States," says Sir Roderick, who recently visited America on a tour around the world, "I have been impressed by the high education standard of young American journalists. They are recruited, in increasing numbers from the several universities which devote themselves, in part, to the training of men for newspaper work. "The fruitful experience of these institutions justifies the progressive and enlightened journalism policy of the University of London which, over here, has been the pioneer in this as in many other educational activities."

CATTLE INQUIRY WILL BE PUSHED

President's Agricultural Commission to Concentrate on Relief for Industry.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Decision to concentrate for the present on the livestock situation and to prepare by the end of the week its recommendations for relief measures was reached today by the president's agricultural commission.

Chairman Robert D. Carey, in announcing the decision, said rapid progress was being made and that the commission expected to have its course shaped up by the end of the week. The next three days will be devoted to executive sessions with bankers and others concerned with the livestock business. "When it has decided upon relief steps for this industry, the commission will hear agriculturists and cooperative marketing representatives. Tentative plans for a conference to-morrow or Friday with leaders of the national council of former cooperative marketing associations, which is in session here, may be changed, Chairman Carey said, to speed up the livestock program."

ORPHAN. Mae Murray believes in doing things differently. She designs her own clothes, creates all her dances, and, with the aid of her director husband, Herbert Z. Leonard, selects her own stories. RUSSIAN NONSENSE. "In Russia," writes an American enthusiast, "blazes a star. It seems to be shining of its own lambent life, casting over the world an eternal and unchangeable radiance. You can name it as you will, but it will cause no change in your life."

A normal night is rather unobtrusive of such an outburst. Anyone might suppose, from this lyric strain, that Russia had been liberated by the revolution and was a free democracy, going forward herself and holding up a torch to enlighten the world as the American colonies did in 1776.

Instead, as well-informed people know, Russia has merely substituted one tyranny for another, a bolshevik ruling in the name of industrial workers instead of the bossism of the old czar, a ruthless minority whose very name, "bolshevik," or "majority," is a joke.

Justly and the well-known people, merely stand for it because, in the mixture, contrary to the intention of the bolsheviks, they have not possession of their land and industry. They have counter-revolution they might lose it.

JUMPING ONTO JINGOS. An interesting and wholesome change has come over the American-Japanese situation. A little while ago it seemed that the leading American occupation was jumping onto the Japanese and the leading Japanese occupation was jumping onto the Americans.

That is a just judgment on the jingos, and a wholesome one. The real responsibility for war goes back to unity to the fair patriots who, perhaps with the best intentions in the world, but with a lamentable lack of common sense and charity, seized upon a situation.

Jingoes are found in places of power and responsibility and are scattered inconspicuously through the whole body of citizenship. All of them do harm by going about "overlarding" with a ship on their shoulders and bitter words in their mouths.

Cause of Writer's Cramp. Writer's cramp has been defined as an occupational neurosis. It is a disease which does too much writing, especially with the hand too tightly contracted, is liable. A person with the trouble has no control over the muscles of the hand, and the fingers, although often painful, operations are performed without difficulty.

Stagnance in Perfumes. After the banishment of Napoleon came, the perfume industry was struggling to get its feet under its own feet. It was a struggle to get its feet under its own feet.

Making Up the Mind. Obscure is weakened by ignoring that the demands upon it might have been avoided. There is strength and success in learning to make up the mind that it will stay made.

The BLUE CIRCLE

BY Elizabeth Jordan. COPYRIGHT BY THE CENTURY CO.

The fellow started, but his movements were not swift enough to satisfy the exacting observer. The latter gave an order, and made a movement as if to follow him, and the man broke his legs. For a minute or two Renshaw watched him, all the running form was lost to view.

Chapter VII

The secretary dressed for dinner that night with his mind on several new problems. The first of which was the problem of the black leather case. Looked at from every possible angle, he could not wholly solve it, though he was rapidly evolving a working theory.

He recalled his vagabond thoughts which had been interrupted by the upright in his chair. Without analyzing his reasons, he felt that speculation as to the possible lovers of the foreigner was, in a way, pardonable. Certainly he had indulged in it, though the score of recall he now felt.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale. BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER. PARTY COOKING.

"Well, here I am," said the dour. "Great things are about to happen."

"What?" said the sugar. "I'm down here on the table and my tin has just been refilled so that they evidently want plenty of me."

"I'm here," said the butter, "and the home-made cooking for the party was all what delicious was so nice. Nut bread."

"What are the eggs and all the bits and pieces being put out and ground and the green is slowly warming and the mixing bowl is being used."

"The mixing bowl is coming now! Ah, this is fun. Lots of cooking. The bread is being made. The various things from the various tins on the bread kitchen shelf were being mixed together, all sorts of goodies were being made."

"The butter was brought forth and a fruit cake was made. Doughnuts and rollers were made; too, and how quickly they browned as they cooked in the water, fat doughnut swimming in the pot on the stove."

"The nut bread mixture was being lifted a bit in a warm spot up before it went into the beautiful warm oven."

"Then it would come out and it would smell so deliciously and it would taste so deliciously. Everyone would speak of it as it was eaten. It was very popular."

"Oh, the biscuits and the doughnuts and the nut bread and the fruit cake and the rollers and the others were highly excited as they helped prepare themselves for the coming feast."

"They enjoyed it all. They enjoyed it when they were being mixed together. They liked the friendly way in which they all blended together in the big yellow bowl."

"They enjoyed it when they were lifted and cut into handsome, neat little shapes."

"They enjoyed it as they cooked and felt their own warm, fresh, luscious fragrance rising and spreading through the kitchen and even out into the rest of the house."

"They enjoyed it as they waited to cool and as they were carried by different members of the family. And they enjoyed it, too, when their odd pieces had been sampled and pronounced good by those who had sampled them."

"Then came the party—the party for which they had been made. And as they were eaten they heard the compliments. 'My dear, what delicious nut bread. How good it is.'"

"And such doughnuts. You must tell me how you make them. Miss are you so good? I don't know. Fruit cake is so rich but yours seems done to disagree with me."

"They're simply delicious." "Such compliments." "The other part of the last piece were gathered together after the party was over; and divided and sent to other with some home-made jelly with a beautiful whipped cream on the top, to a few friends who had not been able to come to the party."

Weight and Age. Dorothy stood outside a small store holding on to the buggy in which lay her baby sister. A passerby stopped and asked, "Is this your little sister? How old is she and how much does she weigh?" "Well, she is ten months, but her pound age is sixteen," was the child's reply.

Mrs. A.
