SNOW AND SLEET HITS NEW YORK

One Man Dead, Eighteen Injured as Result of Storms in Northeastern U. S.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—A violent snow and sleet storm which hit New York city was the second big one of the season, today tossed a mantle over the northeastern section of the United States and then raged seaward.

One man, blinded by the blizzard, walked into a trolley car and was killed. Eighteen persons were injured in a collision of open air elevated trains in uptown Manhattan.

Traffic Tied Up. There was no reported loss of life out of town and little property damage, but the storm threatened cities with paralysis of transit facilities.

Many citizens of Buffalo were compelled to walk instead of trolley, to business and the commissioner of public works asked $75,000 for snow removal.

SENATORS PUSH PARIS MEETING INQUIRY PLANS

Irreconcilables to Widen Scope of Investigation Into Agreement Reached at Reparations Conference; Coolidge Firm.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—The administration reiterated its support of the Paris reparations agreement today while senators irreconcilables were broadening out their plans for a thorough examination of the settlement and the circumstances surrounding it.

A White House announcement not only affirmed President Coolidge's confidence that nothing had taken place in Paris to involve the United States in the affairs of Europe but added that reports to the contrary could be dismissed as unimportant gossip.

Should the Johnson resolution in its expanded form eventually receive the approval of the senate itself, it would provide a vehicle for a direct exchange of opinions between the administration and opposition senators and in the belief of some leaders might nullify the busy days of the abort session of congress with a forensic battle of unusual proportions.

Determination Apparent. The determination of the president to stand by his guns became fully apparent today when it was revealed that he regarded the statement issued yesterday by Secretary Hughes, denying categorically that the United States

Federal Judge. Judge P. S. Dietrich of the United States district court for Idaho, presided and explained the conditions that brought about passage of the amendment by congress.

SUPPORT GIVEN GOODING'S BILL

Intermediate Rate Association Head Tells Committee Why Measure Should Pass.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—W. S. McCarthy of Salt Lake, Utah, president of the Intermediate Rate association, testified today before the house commerce committee in support of the Gooding bill to prevent railroads from charging higher rates for short hauls than for long hauls over the same route.

Every two years, he added, the railroads make application to the commission to authorize this change and the same fight has to be made in opposition. Enactment of the bill, he asserted would not alter the existing rate structure nor harm any interests concerned.

TROTZKY OUSTED BY COMMUNISTS FOR DISLOYALTY

Soviet War Minister Dismissed by Central Executive Committee; Russians Remain Indifferent.

MOSCOW, Jan. 20 (AP)—The announcement of Leon Trotsky's dismissal as soviet war minister by the central executive committee of the communist party was received today by the public with complete calm and apparent indifference.

At the committee's sessions all the charges against Trotsky were restated in a lengthy document which resembled an indictment. This document asserted that the war minister's activities against the communist party had encouraged the bourgeois countries abroad to believe the bolshevik regime was in danger of falling to pieces.

The written statement of the party's case set forth all the disagreements between the war minister and the communist party, beginning with the Brest-Litovsk treaty of 1918, and declares that the war chief continuously expressed views against the party.

The punishment meted out by the committee is a striking illustration of the inflexible discipline which prevails in the communist party.

Where the Talkways Meet

Many Thousands of Dollars worth of switchboards and other central office equipment have been added to the telephone plant in this state every month for the past five years.

That's just the INSIDE installation. It doesn't include pole lines, cables and all the buildings that are being erected and added to from month to month. Just the exchange equipment.

On a railway journey from Pocatello to Boise, you see the locomotive, the tracks and yards, the cars and stations and bridges. But to talk from Pocatello to Boise you see only the telephone instrument before you, great exchange buildings—hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of switchboards, intermediate and terminal frames, batteries and power plants—the intricate and highly sensitive mechanisms which make Long Distance communication a valuable service for every citizen.

OYSTER GROWERS PROTECT CROPS

Wild Duck and Birds Raise Havoc With Beds of Bivalves; Use Boat to Scare Them.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 20 (AP)—Confronted with the devastation of their oyster beds by the predatory activities of coots and bluebill ducks, and being prevented by law from roosting the invaders by the ordinary shotgun process, members of the Olympia oyster growers' association have determined on a novel campaign of "bright flashes" Monday.

To protect their bivalves, according to E. M. Stech, secretary of the organization. With the reported approval of state fish and game officials, a speedy launch has been equipped with a gun which discharges a blue carbide flame into the air at regular intervals. The boat carries also a mortar which discharges smoke and incendiary bombs, hurling the projectiles into the air a distance of 150 yards. This permits reaching out over the exposed beds when the tide is too low to approach the feeding birds.

This craft will cruise about the beds, belching its flames and hurling the deathless projectiles in hopes that the thousands of predatory birds which feed upon the oysters may be routed without depleting the game supply, or running counter to the federal game law provisions.

Permanent roads are a good investment and an expense.

An Extra Gasoline Tax of from 6 to 20 Cents Per Gallon

Your gasoline bills run into real money.

But, have you ever stopped to figure how much of this is in the form of an incredibly high gasoline tax?

Let's see what happens when you leave the Concrete Highway and take to a gravel or a dirt road.

Conclusive tests have proved that a gallon of gasoline will carry you only two thirds as far on a gravel road as on a Concrete Road. On a dirt road a gallon of gasoline will carry you only half as far as on Concrete.

With gasoline at twenty cents a gallon, you would thus pay a gasoline tax of more than 6 cents per gallon on the gravel road and 20 cents a gallon on the dirt road.

These are figures you can't get away from. You can prove them yourself.

And remember that every time you travel on either a dirt or a gravel road you also increase wear and tear on tires and run up your general repair bills.

Why continue to pay these high taxes and get nothing in return but the discomfort and inconvenience of unpaved roads and streets?

Let your local officials know you want an adequate system of Concrete Roads and Streets. They are just as willing to build them as you are anxious to get them.

But they must have your support.

TO PROTECT TRADE MARK

Well Known Cereal Company Secures Decision of Interest to Manufacturers and Retailers of Food Products.

An interesting decision has just been rendered by the commissioner of patents in the favor of the I-O Cereal company, incorporated at Buffalo, N. Y., which is making every effort to prevent infringement of its trade marks.

The decision referred to involved the trade mark "I-O" which the company has, for nearly half a century, used on its products, including I-O oats.

New York corporation claimed the trade mark "Hofood," and used it on several cereal products. The I-O Cereal company contended the use of this trade mark by the competitor as infringing on its long established and long used mark "I-O-O" and after contesting the matter in the United States patent office for a period of some two years, the decision referred to above has just been published.

FILER WILDCATS WIN FAST GAME; SCORE 12 TO 13

Meteors Unable to Cope With Basket Shooting of Visitors in Basketball Contest; Girls Also Defeated.

The basket ball teams of the high school took their game of the double header Tuesday night from the Twin Falls team on the local high school floor. The Filer boys won their game by a score of 12 to 13, while the girls took their game by the count of 12 to 2. The boys' contest was not at all as close as it appeared to be at the time of the contest. The Wildcats led throughout the game. The attendance was probably the largest that ever has been accommodated on the home court, and Referee Austin was compelled to stop the game several times and ask the crowd to become quiet in order that whistle could be heard. The Filer boys succeeded in taking the game mainly through ability to drop in long shots, as the defense offered by the Meteors was almost unbreakable.

Win With Ease The Filer girls won their share of the double header with apparent ease and the type of defense displayed proved perfect as the two points made by the local girls were free throws made by Vera Wynn. Pauline Brickley, the Wildcat guard, was the only player who was largely responsible for the victory of her team. The defeat of the local girls was due to the inability to get possession of the ball and to the failure to ring baskets when the opportunity arose.

The Filer boys started the game with a rush, sweeping up and down the floor only to be turned back by Edison Shim, captain of the Meteors. Filer drew first blood when Patten converted a free throw. This point was followed by several field goals which gave the Wildcats a good start. However, Twin Falls soon started a rampage which netted them several points. The Filer combination of Adkins and Shinn was then brought into action and Filer again was in the front, Adkins making several nice shots from the side lines which brought the game to its feet. Shinn, with the aid of some good passing on the part of his teammates, threw in a basket which gave Filer its biggest lead of the game, 12 to 6.

Breaks Against Team The Twin Falls squad started off with the break against them, and seemed unable to catch up. This was partly due to the failure of the locals to make their long shots which won the Paul game for them. With the ever-increasing lead of the Filer squad getting bigger and the game further out of their reach, the Meteors started a rally. In the middle of the second half, with the score 12-4 against them, Mastino's men got into action, and Kelly, Weaver and Navia gathered in six points between them. With victory apparently in sight the final whistle blew, cutting off the locals' hope for a win.

- Twin Falls (12) Lineup: Filer (13) Martin, F., Adkins, Weaver, F., Shinn, Kelly, G., Dehl, Navin, G., Patten, Timm, G., Grim. Substitutes: Twin Falls, none. Filer, none. Referee—Austin. EDEN TEAM DEFEATED BY JEROME SCHOOL IN FAST BASKETBALL GAME

EDEN, Jan. 20.—(Special to The News)—The Eden rural high school boys' basket ball team was defeated here Monday evening by the fast high school basket ball team from Jerome by the score of 38 to 11 in a game that was featured with short and snappy passes that rattled basket after basket for the visiting quintet.

The girls' team of the local high, however, averaged the defeat of the boys' game by taking the Jerome girls into camp by a score of 28 to 20 in a game regarded as the fastest girls' game ever played on the local floor. Both games were decidedly rough and it was necessary to carry three players from the floor who were injured. Eugene Nims, starting center for Jerome, was kept on the bench because of a severe bruise on his head which she fell against the side wall. Eugene Nims, left forward for the Jerome boys, received a sprain to his left ankle that will prevent him from participating in any games for the remainder of the season. Chester Callahan of the local team was the third victim. He sustained injuries when he collided with an opposing player. The Jerome boys presented a team well balanced and with Emmott, Lawrence, and L. Nims, they worked a scoring combination that was impossible to keep from the local quintet, who were kept almost entirely on the defensive throughout the game.

The Eden high school teams are scheduled to meet the Kimberly team on the local floor next Friday night, January 23. The Eden Athletic association will give a benefit dance following the games Friday evening which are to start promptly at 7:30.

Sufficient Troops at Shanghai to Prevent Depredations by Defeated Chinese Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—A dispatch to the navy department today said senior naval officers at Shanghai considered the number of troops there sufficient to keep the defeated Chinese forces out of the foreign concessions in the city.

The line for protection of the foreign settlements, established during the disturbances in Shanghai last fall, will be reoccupied, the message added, and "such forceful measures as the occasion requires" will be used.

Summarizing the situation in the vicinity of the city, the message said the Shanghai-Nankai railroad had been out several times and rolling stock damaged and that uncertainty prevailed at Nanking where small British and Japanese landing parties were ashore. The United States ship Pigeon was alongside the Standard Oil company concession with a landing force in readiness.

DRY AMENDMENT BILL IN UTAH PROPOSES TO ADD TO COURT POWERS

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 20 (AP)—Amendment to the state prohibition laws today when a bill was introduced into the senate under which the law would be altered so that police court judges would be empowered to handle "light violators" and the municipal courts would benefit from the full fee revenue.

The measure, as introduced, would extend to the municipal governments the right to enact prohibition ordinances.

After passage of the prohibition laws, municipal governments of the state undertook to pass ordinances and impose punishments, but an appeal from this procedure led to a higher court ruling that the legislature had not empowered cities so to act and thereafter the city courts could not enforce prohibition cases, which, under the statutes come under the state courts.

Asked what he would do if the conference by a majority vote approved the American plan to "revise" the work of the first opium conference, Viscount Cecil answered that international practice required unanimity in conferences of this kind. Certainly, he added, any power placed in the minority could not be forced to continue their participation in a conference he would withdraw if Great Britain found herself in the minority camp when a vote was taken.

SALMON CANAL VOTE ATTACKED

Protesting Stockholders Seek Removal of M. Brookman and G. M. Hall as Directors.

Validity of the election of Murray Brookman and G. M. Hall as directors of the Salmon River Canal company at an annual meeting of the company's stockholders held January 12, last, at Hollister, was attacked in a suit filed in district court here Tuesday by Stefan Bos and 14 other stockholders. Illegal voting of 1,519 shares that nullified affected the result of the election was alleged. Request was made for declaration by the court that the election of Brookman and Hall was null and void and that Ross A. Carter and J. H. Trendelenburg be declared elected in their stead.

A temporary restraining order issued in the case to prevent Brookman and Hall from acting as directors was served at a meeting of the directors held here Tuesday for organization following the election. At this meeting, prior to the service of the restraining order, Hall was elected president of the canal board. Hearing on the temporary order is to be held January 27, next, before Judge T. Bailey Lee, in district court at Durley.

Lets Questioned Votes.

The petition filed by the protesting stockholders lists a number of stockholders whose shares are alleged to have been cancelled without their order and new shares aggregating 2165 issued in the name of Murray Brookman, which shares are alleged to have been voted at the stockholders' meeting by Ralph Smith for Brookman. Voting of 7656 shares alleged to have been held in the name of the Salmon River Land and Water company; Peoples Savings and Trust company of Pittsburgh; and A. C. Robinson of Pittsburgh, trustee, also is alleged to have been illegal.

Count by the tellers at the stockholders' meeting showed the vote on candidates for directors, three of whom were to be elected, as follows: Murray Brookman, 37,057; L. E. Joslyn, 36,284; J. H. Trendelenburg, 2988.

The petition was filed by Attorney T. K. Hackman of this city. Defendants named are the Salmon River Canal company, Murray Brookman and G. M. Hall.

Protesting stockholders in addition to Stefan Bos are E. E. Babcock, J. A. Gertler, G. A. Salter, R. Glavin, E. H. Loney, Beryl Kunkel, C. L. Kunkel, Ed. Paetzer, G. L. Peters, D. D. Kunkel, Peter Christensen, C. L. McFarland, Ross A. Carter, C. W. Strickling.

of his outspoken declarations in favor of reforms in the party. The government's political masters, however, hesitated to remove the thorn because of Trotsky's popularity in the army and among certain sections of the Russian masses.

But the sharp attacks which the irreproachable army had launched in his recent book against the course of conduct of Lenin, Zinovieff and other powerful political figures during and after the revolution, gave the controlling leaders of the communist party their opportunity of silencing him and stripping him of his power as war minister.

The soviet leaders now express the belief that it is likely Trotsky will, of his own volition, seek the less turbulent atmosphere of southern Russia where he can "meditate further, and not only on his book, 'The Lessons of 1917,' but upon the lessons of 1925."

The Blue Circle

By ELIZABETH JORDAN (Copyright 1925 by The Century Co.)

"He's John R. Hamilton," he added earnestly. "I suppose the 'R' stands for Reynolds, though he never used the name until he went to the sanatorium and dropped the Hamilton."

"I'm afraid," murmured Renahaw, "you are repeating me." "She's not," said the girl, looking at him with a steady light through a fog.

"Good Lord! Of course it was the Adelic tragedy that knocked him out. Didn't he and his mother and sister and little niece drift around in a lifeboat all night, after their ship was wrecked?"

"He met some woman," entered the secret, and went to Germany to meet up with the subject matter on one of his shore leaves. It seems that the fellow had remained upon the surface, laughing at the passengers in the lifeboats.

"They would," Morris spoke with rare humility. "It's amazing that he has come through."

"His father was an old friend of mine," Stanley went on. "So I did what I could for the son. I promised him he'd be added to the list."

"You did think it is safe," Morris spoke with obvious regard. "With two nurses in the house and the patient getting on so well, I really have no excuse for staying longer—and I'm glad to get home."

"Better make it twice a day, for a week or two. Look in early every morning and late every afternoon—around ten time," he added without any further comment.

"When the doctor was over, Morris looked at the table with a contented air and held it open for him. That, returning to the table, he took a cigarette from the box Jenks offered him, lit it at the flame the attentive servant also provided, and leaned back in his chair, watching the girl as she came in twenty feet and sat down. "But the two servants resented his presence he was quite aware. He drank his coffee, sipped cordial with calm and collected composure."

"I have not had a chance to take you for—for the way you acted yesterday," she said in a low tone. "You were wonderful, I shall never forget it."

"I'm afraid," murmured Renahaw, "you are repeating me." "She's not," said the girl, looking at him with a steady light through a fog.

"I should think of doing," he hesitated a moment. "And I haven't forgotten your grandfather's instructions to me."

"You don't think that meant anything new? You didn't think so at the time." "Perhaps not," he conceded. "But there's a man in my room now—my eyes open. I never don't let's talk about that thing, then."

"I don't dislike you so much," "I don't dislike you," she sobberly assured him. "Possibly I did. Yes, I think I did. But that seems long ago—so much has happened since."

"When you tell me the truth about something?" He spoke almost under his breath. "I can't."

"He laughed out, joyfully. The sound gave her a queer little thrill. She had not known he could laugh like that. "What's that?" she asked, "and I will tell you. I saw that you despised me, and I resented it, as any man would resent such an affront to himself; well, let us say my self-respect."

"You didn't exactly amount to that." "What it did amount to," he persisted, "was that you thought I was about one-tenth of a man—that I had no backbone, that I was a coward, and that I was a coward without excuse, without respect."

"You are making it entirely too strong," she protested warmly. "I had thought all those things. I should have known better. I'm sorry that I was so wrong. I'm sorry that I was so wrong. I'm sorry that I was so wrong."

as wonderful," she tested. "Probably almost any other man would have done that. I should never forget this hour with you before the fire."

"I'm afraid," murmured Renahaw, "you are repeating me." "She's not," said the girl, looking at him with a steady light through a fog.

"I should think of doing," he hesitated a moment. "And I haven't forgotten your grandfather's instructions to me."

time had passed since they had been out-of-doors. And then, one morning, very early it began to rain.

"But the members of the family were all sound asleep. How could they sleep through so beautiful a rain!" At last they woke up and looking out they saw the rain coming steadily down.

"It was a warm rain, hot and at once the two little plants were put out upon the porch. All day long they were there, and the green freshness came back to them again, and they looked spruced up once more and happy and very much refreshed.

"The rain has stopped." Then the plants stayed out for a little while in the sunshine until it had cleared off quite cold so soon they were brought in again.
