HUNDRED WURT IN NEW YORK SUBWAY PANIC

Trapped in Smoke Filled, Un-lighted Tube 30 Feet Under-ground. Passengers Make Frantic Rush for Exits.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Trapped in a smoke filled unlighted tube, thirty feet under ground, about 100 persons were injured in a panic which followed an electrical short circuit which set fire to all the lights when a train today. The accident occurred a block from the Grand Central terminal station just after the morning hour.

Night-eyes of the victims received treatment at first aid stations hastily improvised in nearby hotels and in hospitals. One woman suffered fractures of both legs when trampled on in a tangle of seats near entrance and emergency exits. There were hundreds of persons in the six car street train. Fifty persons were stampeded into the panic of the morning rush way through the acid smoke toward exits which were in some instances a block from the entrance of the train.

It was at first thought that two men were near death of internal injuries, but later examination showed their hurts would not be fatal.

Brass bands and brass bands were virtually all of the passengers were Bronx residents, bound for middle or lower Manhattan.

At Forty-first street there was a loud report, and a sheet of flame came from between the fifth and sixth cars, electrically had "shorted." The lights flickered and the morning Harry Post, shut off the train engine and threw on the brakes.

The sudden stop threw across to the floors. The real excitement occurred a few minutes later when Post had had his train stop at the station. Then a block when there was another flash and all the lights on the train, with the exception of a few emergency lights, went out.

Immediately the six cars became a swirling mass of shrieking humanity. Women and girls threw themselves on the car floors in hysterical attempts to get below the clouds of smoke.

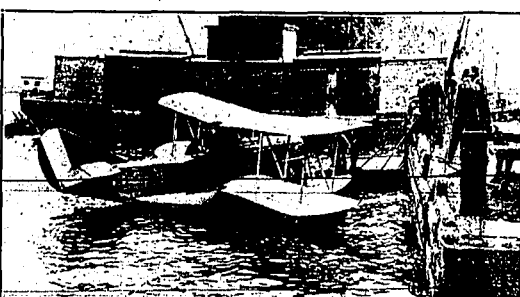

A few men tried to calm them but others lost their heads and joined the mad stampede.

Some of the women in a fight to smash windows or open emergency doors, which the train crew fought vainly to keep closed.

The girl literally died through a window.

TOPEKA, Kansas, May 19 (AP)—Oratory and then a verdict are all that remains to complete the trial of Jonathan M. Davis, on a charge of seeking a bribe for granting a parole while Governor of Kansas.

The case will go to the jury tomorrow morning and then give the prosecution and defense three hours each for arguments.

Introduction of evidence ended this afternoon. A few hours before the defense rested its case, the former governor left the witness stand after undergoing a prolonged cross examination.

Facing Prison Term

If the jury returns a verdict of guilty Davis will face a sentence of one to five years at hard labor in the state penitentiary or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed one year.

He is charged with soliciting $2,500 bribe from Walter L. Oswald, young attorney for Anthony family convicted Hush-shank banker, still in the penitentiary.

Another criminal suit pending against the former governor charges him and his son Russell, with accepting $1,250 in exchange for a parole granted Paul W. Polmann, banker convicted for forgery.

If the jury acquits the ex-governor the suit against Carl J. Peterson, bank commissioner, under Davis and named jointly on the Oswald solicitor, will be dismissed because the action alleges a conspiracy between the two former state officials.

MEELON LIKES RESULT OF RUM FLEET BLOCKADE

Secretary of Treasury Claims Outcome of Atlantic Coast Fight Against Bootleggers Will Dry Up Nation.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—The coast guard blockade against rum smuggling off New York is regarded by Secretary Mellon as having demonstrated its efficiency in checking rum running and he is convinced that continuation of the program will materially reduce the supply of illicit liquor to the country.

Private reports received by the secretary today show that a majority of the rum runners are retiring from the scene of action because of the landing of bootleggers made so difficult they cannot make sales.

Suggestions that the cutting of boats from New York would result in the landing of illicit cargoes at other points along the coast are not taken seriously by the treasury secretary. Coast guard boats have followed the departing from the New York waters and destruction of these boats is not transmitted to all state stations of the service so that their movements can be traced along the coast.

Mr. Mellon holds that destruction of rum-runners off New York was the greatest blow to the illicit liquor trade that could have been dealt by the coast guard, since proximity to the big and well organized market is necessary to the life of such trade and no other organization for distributing the liquor once landed, exists anywhere else along the Atlantic coast.

Evolution Leads to Fist Fight Between Citizens Two Towns

Dayton, Tenn., Indignant Over Publicity Neighboring City Obtained; Townsman Come to Blow.

DAYTON, Tenn., May 19 (AP)—A meeting of indignant Dayton citizens to protest against Chattanooga's obtaining any of the publicity this town enjoyed in the legal battle over constitutionality of the anti-evolution act today ended in a fist fight between a proponent and an opponent of the evolution theory.

Thurston Reed, a Dayton barber, an anti-evolutionist, circulated a statement to Dr. George Ruppel, Chattanooga evolution leader, that lower forms of life were man's forebears, as a reflection on his family and attempted on the rostrum to eliminate the physician.

Reed's remarks, condemned the reported plans of Chattanooga to have Chattanooga school teachers indicted for disseminating information about evolution contrary to the new law, instead of allowing Professor Seitz of a Dayton school to be tried in a test case.

The resolution said Dayton people might boycott Chattanooga unless efforts to change the place of the contest were dropped. Chattanooga school teachers who have been offered the honor of indictment are not enthusiastic about it, according to reports here.

The grand jury is in session at Chattanooga and is expected to issue a telegram from an actress offering the use of a trained chimpanzee to combat the law was read at the meeting.

FIRE DESTROYS CHICAGO PLANT

One Woman Killed and 50 Narrowly Escape When Flames Rage Through Factory.

CHICAGO, May 19 (AP)—One woman was injured and 50 other employees of the Liberty Fire Works company, located in Franklin park, a suburb near Chicago, escaped their lives today when the factory and a portion of the building were destroyed by a raging fire which followed a series of explosions, shattering the roof and neighboring community.

The plant, which had been destroyed by a fire which broke out in a main office building surrounded by twenty smaller buildings where the fire works were manufactured. The Liberty plant was the first to be destroyed in the explosion in one of the smaller buildings adjacent to the factory, fire started and spread quickly to the other work buildings and before fire fighting apparatus had arrived, all but two of the buildings had been destroyed. As the fire spread from building to building, additional explosions occurred, and each detonation shook the little town of Franklin park.

GOVERNMENT TO BE DETERMINED TO STAMP OUT RUM

Entire Administration from President Down Will Fight Traffic, Special Senate Committee Hears.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—With the prohibition army swinging into line, the government is already considerably advanced by the navy off the Atlantic coast, the special senate committee investigating the subject has just been informed that the administration from President Coolidge down, is determined to enforce the prohibition law to the limit.

This was disclosed today with publicity considered by the committee which sought out considerable criticism of enforcement in general on the part of committee members, who held that administration of the law had failed utterly in that it had not been directed sufficiently against main sources of supply.

Lack of Organization

Chairman Clegg said that to date there had been a lack of proper organization and the use of agents had been inefficient. Too much attention he felt, has been directed to minor police work of the states rather than to the stopping of known sources of supply which, in his opinion, lay chiefly in alcohol manufacturing and distilling plants and importing and not in law enforcement.

Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, who led the committee of the administration's intention to go the limit in enforcement, declared it was generally known that the present system of enforcement was defective in parts. He pointed out, however, that prohibition is not the industry and what it is he pointed out, he said, is that it is not wantedly violated. He predicted that if given sufficient funds it could be made effective. This would be aided particularly, he said, if the revenue department of auditing and representatives in behalf of applicants for enforcement positions should be given no question of placing the prohibition forces under civil service as a subject for debate.

Task Problematic

The "whole thing is problematical" and a tremendous task, declared Watson, said that the prohibition unit was doing the best it could to correct inefficiency and to strengthen enforcement. From the president down, the administration had determined to make unsparring efforts to enforce prohibition, he said, and would use to that end all agencies at its command.

If or its enforcement to the limit, the people do not want to stand for it," he continued, "it is for the people to say so and it can be modified."

There has been a good deal of friction between the department of justice and the prohibition unit, Chairman Watson said, he added that the committee had been recently placed in supervision of prohibition enforcement in the treasury, that three officers were appointed. The committee's investigation, he declared, had demonstrated that the enforcement problem had not been approached in the proper manner to bring about the best results.

Political Harms

Senator King, democrat, Utah, thought a lot of the trouble had come from the way the appointment of agents, and Chairman Clegg interpreted that certain changes directed upon by Commissioner Hayes, improve enforcement, had been prevented by political influence.

James J. Britt, counsel for the prohibition unit, insisted, however, that no appointments urged by congressmen had been made when it was found that they would be against public interest. He had never seen political influence play so small a part in government affairs, he said, as it did in the prohibition unit.

Secretary Andrews recently placed in supervision of prohibition enforcement in the treasury, that three officers were appointed. The committee's investigation, he declared, had demonstrated that the enforcement problem had not been approached in the proper manner to bring about the best results.

French Forces Now Ready for Trouble With Rebel Troops

Groups Now in Assigned Positions Awaiting Next Move of Riflemen Leaders; Prepare for Eventualities.

PARIS, May 19 (AP)—French forces in four groups are now in the assigned positions in Morocco and await the next move of the Riflemen leaders to prevent the Riflemen from slipping through, they will await the next move of Ahmad el-Khatib, rebel leader.

While the Riflemen received from the score of articles in northern Africa. A column of French, commanded by General Millite, has taken up a position where it can watch the movements of the Riflemen who are concentrated in the region of these hills, known as the holy city of Xauen.

Over Woods Distances

The other French troops are posted over a wide distance of 125 miles, and there necessarily are wide gaps between the groups of French troops, and infiltration and surprise attacks will be comparatively easy until they strike the territory of tribes friendly to the French.

Some of these tribes turned on the French. They are now in contact with considerable forces.

Experts on Moroccan affairs consider this defeat of Ahmad el-Khatib makes it impossible for him to carry out his plans for the time being, until he regains his fortune in a victory over the French.

Children from East Adopted in West to Work, Says Woman

Child Welfare Conference Opens in New York With Startling Charges Made by Delegates; Moore is Speaker

NEW YORK, May 19 (AP)—A conference that children from eastern foundling homes are taken in "wholesale lots" to southern and western states and legally adopted by farmers for heavy farm work, were made today by women delegates to the child welfare conference of America.

Mrs. Bennett Smith of Temple Texas, who said she was a life long friend of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson of Texas, asserts that each year many train loads of children over six years old are brought to Texas, adopted and made to do heavy work on the farms.

Mrs. D. F. Wainwright of Spokane, Wash., told the conference that very young children are taken in large groups to the northwestern farming regions, for seasonal harvesting of the best apple and onion crops.

Speaking the conference yesterday said he offered his state as a refuge for "the homeless children, concealed in the folds of the dress."

Dr. Hastings B. Hart of the Russell Sage foundation, today charged that officials in a great many foundling institutions approved of their practices. He said that "diapers of children or puppies."

"I have seen crimes committed in the placing of children in family homes," he said, "that make blood cold" he said.

INNOCENT BUG CAUSES ALARM

Horticultural Inspector Explains Presence of Insect's Egg in Orchards.

The finding of one of the few leafhopper eggs known to the fruit grower, has deposited his deep orange-colored eggs in unusual numbers in orchards of this district, causing alarm among orchard owners who are not familiar with the nature of this manifestation, according to Edgar V. Gipson, district horticultural inspector, who Tuesday issued the following statement on the subject:

Innocent Insects Cause Alarm
A number of growers over the district have become alarmed over the appearance of numerous deep orange-colored egg masses which have been found in large numbers on the branches of the trees in the orchard of the tract the last week.

They are not a new pest of any kind of the old one known as "ladybug" and are not the well known "leafhopper" insects known to the fruitgrower. The "ladybug" adults as well as the newly hatched nymphs live almost exclusively on the green and woolly aphid and other species of plant lice and when present in large enough numbers will clean up a badly infested orchard.

So beneficial are they that California garden growers have the habit of collecting certain species and placing them in the fall of the year, in cold storage and finally turned loose when the melon aphid becomes active.

The large appearance is undoubtedly one of Mother Nature's "checks" being an effort to check another heavy infestation of woolly and green aphid such as the orchards suffered from last season.
Growers will do well to give every possible protection to our "friends" the ladybug.

SHIPS THAT PASS IN THE NIGHT

JUST AFTER DINNER IS FAVORITE HOUR FOR LOS ANGELES THEFTS

LOS ANGELES, May 19 (AP)—That 8 o'clock in the evening is "burglar hour" instead of after midnight as hitherto has been the popular belief, is revealed in statistics compiled by the Los Angeles police department. From 7 to 9 p. m. more houses and more apartments were broken into and more burglaries made than in any corresponding period of all the 21 hours of the day.

Strangely, too, the report says, the two hours immediately following midnight, when persons appear to have the greatest fear of burglars are when fewer night robberies are committed.

During October, November and December last, 2300 burglaries were reported in Los Angeles at 8 p. m. when most families were eating dinner, burglarious business picked up. By 9 o'clock it was at floodtide. Then it receded slowly until 3 a. m. when those robberies began to make up for the loss of the residential districts. In the three months 90 residence robberies were reported at 8 p. m. 118 at 7, and 233 at 9. By 9 p. m. the number had dropped to 145, and at 10 when people are returning from the first movie show, the number had diminished to 50.

At 1 a. m. when practically the entire city was sleeping, only 28 burglaries were reported and at 2 a. m. only 20. Most of these were in the business district. At 3 the number, as a result of taking on stores, had increased to 75, but at 4 when the milkmen and early riers began to move about, there were only 35. Of the 212 burglaries reported at an unknown hour of the day and 609 at unknown hours of the night.

Private residences appear to yield the richest harvest. The statistics show that during the three month period 574, or a little less than one-half of the total burglaries, were committed in such places. There were 694 apartment houses and hotels, 501 in business blocks, 49 in offices, 25 in public buildings and six on vessels at anchor in the harbor. The remainder were in miscellaneous places.

The favorite mode of entrance is through the front door, the report says. That is the case in 60 per cent of the 260 houses that were entered through doors when locks were picked, while 378 occurred where persons had unfastened the left doors or windows unguarded and the burglars entered without meeting any obstacle. Two hundred and forty-six places were robbed through bolted entrance and 309 doors and windows were "jimmied."

A house is seldom robbed while its tenants are sleeping. Burglars do most of their work in the night, but at hours when families are asleep or engaged in their radio or work that they do not hear the robbers.

TWO RELATIVES ARE FOUND AS SURVIVORS MAN HELD RAUPER

Keep Out the Sun

West windows are to be avoided for the afternoon sun is too strong for plants, and it does not seem to act favorably on even the most sun-loving plants, says Nature Magazine. If a west window must be used, some sort of protection should be given the plants to reduce the amount of light and heat.

CHILD WELFARE WORK WILL BE CARRIED TO EVERY STATE IN U. S.

NEW YORK, May 19 (AP)—An organization designed to carry child welfare work into every state in the Union has been launched by the Child Welfare conference of America. The conference unanimously adopted the recommendation of a committee, headed by Lieutenant Governor Hottel of Oklahoma, that state councils on child welfare be organized with delegates to the conference as members.

The chief purpose of such councils will be to obtain mothers' and children's pension legislation and to find foster parents where possible for children now cared for in institutions. Recent disclosures in "Baby Face" in New York have shown the "horrible" evils of the mass system of handling of babies in a most appalling manner. The Hon. Dwight Chapin, of New York, authority on diseases of children, told the delegates.

More than 50 per cent of the babies under a year old in the infantariums and foundling homes of New York, state die, Dr. Chapin said.

Violence Always Error
When you have convinced-thinking men that it is right, and humane men that it is just, you will gain your cause. Men always lose half of what is gained by violence. What is gained by argument is gained forever.—Wendell Phillips.

THE VANISHING MEN

The memory of Irena, whose personality had seemed as everlasting as the stars of the firmament, had done its part. She had been a woman of great industry, before his eyes and seeking to feel by reaction the touch of her lips, to see again with all the definiteness of reality, her dark eyes and her red hair, to hear her voice, to feel the warmth of her little, flexible body, to feel the miracle by which for the first time in his life he had seen the love of womanhood had been woven into a fabric, he had realized more than when he had been with her, the stability of an affection that had come upon him with a fierce, impetuous descent.

key to Parmalee's house up the hill. He had forgotten perhaps another fact of some of his conversations. Peter now said himself, they founded bolts upon the wish to believe; it would be suggested to DeWolfe that in spite of the extravagance of the story told by Irena Seale, he might not be wrong.

CHAPTER XIII

Peter, who had presented Irena's letter to the architect of the Parmalee estate and had received a few polite references to her, had been told by many persons in the village to be a house of evil influence, had been directed up the long hill under an archway of gnarled trees and stood at last at the very gate which Irena had called the gate which had shown as he invited his imaginary persecutors to enter him.

The change in the weather brought with the sudden turning backward of a heavy black storm, had transformed misadventure into a chill, wet March. The cold, damp wind swept across the top of the hill, taking the place of a young and old man who attended the disappearance of myriads of different types who at moments were seen in the street like specters.

One of these men, Jim Hennepin, had gone to his end without fear; he had only good confidence. He had blurted that some cold promise of great advantage had come to him. At the time he left he had given, apparently without intention, a scrap of paper bearing the symbolic initials of the feathered snake—the Kuk-uk-of-god, of the Mayan civilization. According to Parmalee, who not only had been the doctor but the student of history and a collector of books bearing upon its antiquities, the appearance of this emblem suggested the southwestern United States.
