OSLO, June 18 (AP)—The entire Roald Amundsen North Pole expedition arrived safely in Spitzbergen in one plane, June 17. The party did not return to King's bay by plane, but was picked up by a fishing boat and conveyed there.

Body to Madison Without objection, the body will be taken tomorrow to the senator's home at Madison for burial. No services will be held here, but on invitation of those who stood shoulder to shoulder with him in his battles in Wisconsin, he will lie in state in the capitol here Sunday and funeral services will be held Monday at that building, where he once presided as governor.

Wife grieves the news, and the whole troop felt something ought to be done about the late senator's home, which is attached to the service troop. "Bill's" family, 12 young men of the troop, is gathered at the head of the procession, followed by the kitchen force, chief cook George W. Harris, Cook Louis W. Greenhouse and Mess Sergeant T. E. Collins. The band began to play, bugles struck out notes and a service troop was temporarily dismissed, and the line of march down officers' row was lined by the kitchen force. The funeral procession went to the kitchen of Company C 20th Infantry, winners yesterday of the "cleanest mess" award from the kitchen, placed in the name of the mascot, and the procession triumphantly went back to its own quarters, where the card was tacked up.

Conditions Improved "If the farm work which was done in 1924 had been performed in the manner which was the rule in 1920, thirty million workers would have been required to do it. Actually the work was done by about ten million last year was done by about ten million workers who employed, he said, one half million workers who employed close to fifty million primary power units at a cost of approximately $2,000,000,000.

Stewart said his intention was to show Fainman's testimony was too ludicrous for belief. Stewart's cross-examination aimed the spectators and Judge Lynch summed extra ballads to prove order. Stewart hounded Fainman a paragraph advertising the Fainman school, which occupies an old brick building. "I am sorry an hour Stewart went slowly through the book's, finding on each page something he poked fun at, with reluctant mezzimotto to the courtroom."

Confident of Rating W. L. Connally of Chicago, vice-president of the Mammoth Oil company, arriving here today, without knowing the date of the decision would be forthcoming tomorrow. He expressed confidence that the ruling would go against the Mammoth Oil company.

Will Increase Output "Failure to reach an agreement in Peking will increase the output of the anti-foreign demonstrations, aimed chiefly against the British and Japanese are continuing in Shanghai and other ports throughout the country. At Chung King, 200 miles up the Yangtze river from Hankow, British subjects were attacked and the British consul was forced to take refuge in a temple.

WORD REACHES NEW YORK NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—The North American Newspaper Alliance announced today that Roald Amundsen, the explorer, has returned to Spitzbergen in the Arctic ship, the Gjøa, with six members of his party. The expedition had returned safely to Spitzbergen.

Leaves Many Friends "He has left behind him a great number of friends who will, I know, do everything in their power to comfort him in his hour, but his long experience tells me that nothing that mortals can do will be of very much benefit to you. I trust that you, as the years go by, find an increasing satisfaction in the long list of honors that were conferred upon Senator La Follette by his country."

Placard will be awarded again tomorrow, and if lost by service troop, it will be replaced by the kitchen force. The body will be taken to the cemetery at 10 o'clock tomorrow for a military funeral, including a service by the service troop. COOL WEATHER FEATURES WEEK

Apples, Beets and Grain Crops Thrive; Beans Need More Warmth; Cutting Alfalfa.

Weather conditions in the Twin Falls area during the week ending last Thursday are summarized in a report to the United States weather bureau office at Boise and published in a summary of weather and crop conditions in Idaho for that week, as follows: A cool week with light frost, but no damage; cutting alfalfa; beans all planted and coming up well but not doing much more than sprouting; alfalfa growing rapidly; second cover sprouts almost everywhere; wheat and barley excellent; beets doing fine.

Build reported: Cool weather continued most of the week, but during this week; wheat heading out; practically all crops planted. Barley reported: Cool all week; warmer weather needed for all crops; beans 9th and 10th. First crop alfalfa being cut; early grass in alfalfa; beets and potatoes good condition; beans being planted.

Throughout southwest Idaho, the summary stated, cool, cloudy weather with deficient sunshine characterized the week in most sections. Except for heavy rain in the vicinity of Twin Falls Sunday night, there was but little rain. Conditions were favorable for grain, alfalfa, peas, beans and beets, but not for other crops, which are practically not advanced. Having no rain, alfalfa and other crops are under moderate conditions.

Out with little damage. Coward garden truck damaged in some places by frost. Fruit and berries are in excellent shape. After dinner they all drove to Salmon dam. Mrs. R. E. SUBSCRIBE FOR THE NEWS Truth About "Dry Rot" In its investigations of decay in wood, the United States forest products laboratory has found that "dry rot" is popularly understood to be decay in comparatively dry places and in this sense the term may apply to all kinds of decay in wood. Though the different rot fungi may require various degrees of moisture, absolute dryness prevents their growth in completely as too much wet. What is specifically known as dry rot is produced by Merulius lacrymans, and this fungus infects timber in a minimum of dampness. When well advanced, the infection causes the wood to become brown or yellowish, shrink, and filled with cracks running crosswise and lengthwise. It is with white masses of fungus showing in the cracks. The dry rot fungus chiefly attacks coniferous or soft woods, but is very destructive of timbers in buildings and logs in use in the United States, Canada and Europe.

IN FLORIDA: Florida, at the present time, has the call. From all over the country men and women are flocking into the state in a frantic effort to get their full share of the benefits of the night work.

Magazine articles and newspaper stories tell the tale. The fact is so well established occasionally in Twin Falls which tend to confirm the usual tales of the editors. It's a great day for Florida.

There is no question but what Florida is now on the crest of the wave of business development.

and to some extent of America. The two greatest land bonuses of the past thirty or forty years are these which took place at Winnipeg, Manitoba, and San Diego, California.

It has never been any other way. Towns, cities and States progress by a series of forward and backward movements in values and only by a survey of a period of years can the definite advances be checked.

Many people will make a lot of money in Florida now, and a lot more will lose corresponding amounts. Much of the profits will go into further speculation and eventually be changed from a profit into a loss.

Economically, a boom is to be feared as much as a depression. It is a fact that a boom is not a permanent thing.

There will be profits, of course, and some of these will be permanent. Florida may not actually emerge poor from this boom, but the fever of speculation takes hold quickly and very often indeed a legitimate field of investment is transformed overnight into a mere "hot" speculative gamble and values are shot skyward, for no reasons having anything to do with intrinsic worth but merely as a result of a carefully fostered and nurtured spirit of financial hot which has its origin in the very same causes which often bring about a financial depression.

ditly to main murder, is the sport of the hour. This era of today, in America has its counterpart in the era at Rome just before it fell to chaos and destruction, and in Florida just before it yielded to revolution and anarchy.

Can conditions be so dreadful as this? Or has a brilliant lawyer been lured into a one-sided statement of the case?

All the things he is so worried about are here—in tendencies. Also there are found here, spread through these United States, other tendencies of a very different character—namely, kind, unhampered, intelligence, conscientiousness, unselfish devotion—unspurring volume and force, when you are back for them.

And which, of tendencies will dominate the other? We'll bet on the good one.

DEAR BEER: Premier Ferguson of Ontario recently issued a warning to farmers selling the new four and four-and-a-half cent beer.

It was not long before Bud Tarko appeared.

"Not guilty, your honor," came the voice of the tall, bedraggled young man, and with that he went forward.

"If you please, your honor, Mr. Tarko's attorney in the way here from Chicago," he announced, "is simply as a citizen, I would like to ask permission of the court to have this case set for at least a month from today, as Mr. Tarko's attorney will have to familiarize himself with all the details."

The district attorney nodded.

"It's agreeable with me, your honor," the date of trial was set. Bart again faced the court.

"I am ready, your honor, to furnish a cash bond."

Fifteen minutes later, the disheveled Tarko huddled him, Bart again was on the road to Hellena. A mile and he reached his companion.

"Had I come to let you out of the discovery well, I want you to visit very camp and outfit and find every American Legion man in the old district. What's more, I want you to argue with that man until he gives you his solemn promise to meet at the alkali flat, just west of town, at nine o'clock tonight. Do you get me?"

"Do I? It's memorized. Whim! I tell you is doing."

"Action—and plenty of it." Accordingly Bart let Tarko off at the old fields and went on. At the entrance to the "discovery" street he leaped over the wheel suddenly at the sight of a crowd on the corner. A second more and he had averted the machine to the curb, shut off the engine and was rushing forward. He had heard the jerking tones of a man—then the frightened cry of a girl—the voice of Anita Franniston.

In a doorway loomed "Burt" Franniston, plainly drunk, white, at the curb. Anita was struggling vainly

"What is it? Speak it up, son!" "It's a party!" the features of Bart Rogers were beaming.

"I give you these checks! Tell me where I can get that machine! I want to get on the road and start thinking over the details!"

CHAPTER VIII A Fight An hour later Bart was in Manhattan, ten at ten o'clock he caught the hunk and got the money; then he walked into the courtroom and waited for his deputy to be brought forward for pleading.

"It was not long before Bud Tarko appeared.

In a doorway loomed "Burt" Franniston, plainly drunk, white, at the curb. Anita was struggling vainly to evade the charges of a man—the gambler. He had not been dry before. He too was drunk—almost as drunk as the shouting, roaring "Bull," who edged him from the doorway.

"Bull" Franniston, waving forward now, his right hand flailing in the direction of a hip pocket.

"Bart!" It was a screaming voice from one side where Old Jim was scrambling forward. "Bart! Look out! He's got a gun!"

But half-way to his pocket Franniston's hand halted, and he whirled in frenzied fashion as the thin, suddenly superebon Old Jim lunged toward him, with both thin hands, grasping his heavy wrist.

"Let go of that gun!" It was "Bull" Franniston, waving forward now, his right hand flailing in the direction of a hip pocket.

the corner on the beginning of a circuitous journey to the home of the mayor. A half-block and he was distanced the few persons who had sought to pursue. A few moments more and he swerved into the Jordan driveway. Then, with Anita, struggling grimly for self-possession, and the chattering Jim beside him, he faced Mayor Jordan.

"Can't take no more on you, Mr. Jordan," he began, "but—"

"Come in!" The gentile old official had thrown wide the door. "Who's that?" Oh—his expression changed. "Miss Franniston?"

"Yes, I'll explain to you later," Bart answered. "In the meanwhile, could you allow me to have a room where Miss Franniston and Old Jim could sort of sit down and compose themselves?"

"Surest thing," Tom Jordan asked no more questions, but simply led the way to the top of the stairs, where his wife awaited him. "There's been some more trouble, Mary," he announced quietly. "Take care of these folks, will you?"

Then he turned with Bart to the living room, where Rogers gave his account, and told the story of the building. The mayor's face lost its gentility.

"That looks bad," he responded grimly. "I wonder if you'd mind attending a meeting with me about nine o'clock?"

"Tonight? Where?"

"Out on the alkali flat. Some of the men who are working around here and who belong to the American Legion are going to get together for a few minutes. Will you be there? I'll need you."

"Meet me here at 8:30." It was said quietly and tersely. "If I am a few minutes late, don't worry. I'll be here."

Still with the grin on his features Tom Jordan went out the door, while Bart Rogers looked after him in almost worshipful fashion. For Bart had learned that one thing he had feared was untrue. Old Tom Jordan had a gentle face. He had a soft, easy manner. He had a penchant for following the easiest way. But now, Bart saw, when Tom Jordan came to the barrier, he could prove himself a thoroughbred.

He stretched himself on the lounge. "It's just going to be a bit of a nap," he said to himself. "Only a few minutes—"

VICO MOTOR OIL

asks no Favors,

but it grants a lot

Give Vico any test you want—make the conditions as severe as you can—and it will come through on top. It doesn't ask any special favors—

For instance—it gives your motor the chance to do its best by keeping it clean—free from carbon—and cool. When the going is unusually hard and the metal expands under the heat, Vico sticks to the job. Its ability to adhere to hot metal and to not break down under heat, protects the bearing surfaces and prolongs the life of your car.

Yet Vico costs no more than other oils, in spite of its superior qualities. Ask your dealer for Vico.

STORAGE-WATER RISING FAST AT JACKSON LAKE

Reserve Supply for Twin Falls Canal Company Now Nearly Three Times Total Available Last Year.

Out of more than 80,000 acre feet of water now in storage in Jackson Lake reservoir, the directors of the Snake river, north 20,000 acre feet held in the Twin Falls and North Side channels, according to reports received by Barton Smith, general manager for the Twin Falls canal company. Approximately 10,000 acre feet of the present available storage is held for the Twin Falls company.

This amount, which is increasing daily, is about nearly three times the amount of storage water there available last year when the Twin Falls canal company's share in Jackson Lake storage was only 10,000 acre feet.

It is confidently expected that Jackson Lake storage will be up to capacity within the next two weeks. Inflow into the reservoir during the week just ended was 100,000 acre feet, according to reports of the bureau of reclamation at Burley, was 45,000 acre feet. There was held in storage in the reservoir at that time a total of 77,500 acre feet against a total of only 17,500 acre feet of water in the corresponding date of last year.

VETERAN WILL JOIN PLUMBERS

A. W. Murray, Twin Falls, One of Organizers of National Association, to Attend Meeting.

A special train that left Chicago last evening carrying officials and delegates to the forty-third annual convention of the National Association of Master Plumbers of the United States at Portland, June 22-25, will stop at Minidoka Saturday morning to take on board Alex W. Murray of Twin Falls, former Twin Falls city plumber and sanitary inspector and now proprietor of the Hygeia Plumbing and Heating shop of this city. Mr. Murray has been invited by P. J. Dowling of Spokane, a former junior associate in Chicago, to meet him in Portland during the convention, where, also he expects to meet many other men with whom he was formerly associated in the work of the national organization.

One of Organizers

Mr. Murray was one of the delegates of the Chicago Master Plumbers' association to the first convention of the national association which was held in St. Paul, June 22-25, 1906, and was a member of the committee which drafted the association's constitution and by-laws. He also was elected a member of the national executive committee at the second national convention that was held in Baltimore, June 22-24, 1914. Outstanding topics for discussion at the Portland convention include questions of standardization, national plumbing code, quantity survey plans, apprenticeship and education, most modern developments in plumbing, heating and ventilating equipment and supplies. To meet Peter M. Mann of Chicago, who with his brother James H. Mann, owns the Filer Falls orchards, Twin Falls, has been designated as one of the directors of transportation for the special train which will leave for Portland Saturday. Mr. Murray will be on board to welcome Mr. Murray at Minidoka next Saturday.
