New Mark Set for Attendance Thursday, Officials Claim; Buhl Day, Sees Many From West End City Present.

Fair of Twin Falls county's tenth annual fair combined with most favorable weather conditions to bring to the fairgrounds at Buhl a throng of fair-visitors that, according to officials, set a new attendance mark for the institution.

That was the case at the fair, Buhl business houses closed during the afternoon and Buhl's citizens thronging to the fairgrounds were joined by the citizens of towns and communities around it. A country of fair-visitors Thursday afternoon that rural homes of this region were deserted and that all of the farmers who were not engaged in "trekking" were "at" their farms.

Not only was parking space for automobiles at a premium inside the fairground gates, but streets and avenues immediately hereof were jammed with parked cars of fair visitors.

Not an accident or other untoward event occurred to mar the day. The fair was held on the fairgrounds on the evening of the 10th and the 11th, but their attendance at the fair today was largely exceeded Thursday's record figures, since experience in the past has shown invariably hereof that the largest crowds assemble on the fairgrounds on the closing day of the exhibition.

Judging of practically all exhibits was completed Thursday and judges' awards, indicated by cards of blue or red or white, were displayed on their winning entries in all departments, this continuing to the close and interest of the exhibition and coming many interesting exhibits and fair visitors with regard to respective merits of livestock articles or animals.

Honored livestock on exhibit at the fair have in fact a large number of animals being paraded before the grandstands on the opening evening of the afternoon's program, and stallions, rattle, haws, swine and sheep were quartered over crowded throughout the day with throngs of visitors.

In the event of a fair visitor and four lambs born February 12 last and comprising the only quarter cow recorded by the American Hampshire association was exhibited. Cards bearing the names and sires of the sires of the animals of dairy cattle.

DAUGHTER OF DENVER JUDGE WHO COMMITTED SUICIDE WANTS PROBE

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 10 (AP)—Miss Elizabeth Graham, 19-year-old daughter of former Judge Royal R. Graham, whose body was found in a gas filled room at the family home yesterday, asked today that an autopsy be performed on her father's body.

Although Governor George Eastwick pronounced it a case of suicide, the daughter today declared she did not believe her father ended his life. She wrote a letter found today, written to her mother in Chicago by her father the night before he was found dead, did not indicate that he had contemplated suicide.

Graham gained national prominence last fall by his contest with Judge J. H. Bradley for the office of mayor of the Denver juvenile court. He was declared defeated, however, after a majority of about 100 votes.

G. W. RICE TELLS RAILROAD BOARD OF WRECK CAUSE

Farmer and Orchardist Informs Group of Grading Road Which Left Dirt on Track, Causing Derailment.

George W. Rice, Twin Falls orchardist and farmer, appeared Thursday before an Oregon Short Line board of inquiry to inform the board of the responsibility for the wrecking near here Wednesday afternoon of the Twin Falls-Pocatello branch locomotive which resulted in the death of E. L. Thompson, engineer.

Rice stated that the dirt on the crossing at the time of the wrecking was from a road which had been graded by the Twin Falls highway district, after highway district officials had stated that they had made no provision for the dirt.

Manifestly outraged by the serious results of the accident for which he believed himself responsible, Mr. Rice stated that he had been wrecked by accumulation of a little earth on the crossing had never entered his mind.

Hugh Hutchings, who escaped without injury, told the board that in his opinion the dirt on the crossing had been dumped by the highway district.

WESTERN RAILS TELL WHY THEY NEED INCREASE

Principal Items in Hoch-Smith Resolution Have Already Received Preferential Treatment, Says President.

(By The Associated Press) CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (AP)—Western railroad shippers and the United States are already receiving "preferential treatment" by the western railroads, and will continue to receive it if the proposed five per cent freight rate increase is granted.

"Hereafter," he said, "in the case of transportation and unless rates can be made on a reasonable basis will promote freedom of movement."

"The lowest rate," he said, "is the one that will promote the most movement of goods and people."

"From these figures, it is evident that the principal items in the Hoch-Smith resolution have already received preferential treatment."

GOVERNMENT REPORT HAS BAD EFFECT ON THE FUTURES MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (AP)—The government report regarding the wheat crop, estimating 7 billion bushels, had a bad effect on the futures market today.

Despite the weakness in the futures market, wheat prices were firm, and the selling pressure in wheat, ending the May delivery to a low mark of 84 1/2c, a decline of 1/2c from the previous day's close.

Officials deny race charges

Army and Navy Services Did Not Force 'Citilians' Out of Competition, Claim.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Army and navy air service officials denied today charges made in New York by Colonel Harold E. Hartney, vice president of the general aviation service, that they forced the elimination of civilian craft from the air.

The charges were discussed at a conference in the office of Major General Sigmund M. Bunker Rice, chief of the army air service, which are and navy air officials and representatives of the national aeronautic association, the governing body of all official air contests in this country, participated.

The question over the two races was to have arisen, in the opinion of air service officials, from charges brought about through articles from civilians several years ago, when the air race was open to all contestants.

The two races in question this year, the Liberty engine builder's trophy and the "Liberty" trophy, were held as "military only" by the aeronautic association and aircraft officials of the two military branches said today that no protest had been or would be made if civilian planes were entered.

Two persons were injured.

Commander Rodgers and 4 of Crew Found Alive on PN-9 No. 1 by U. S. Submarine Near Islands

LACK OF FUEL FORCED PLANE FROM THE SKY

Radio Message of Rodgers to Governor of Hawaii Ten Days Late in Fulfillment; Flight Started August 31.

(By The Associated Press) SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10 (AP)—"Will see you tomorrow." These Commander John Rodgers of the PN-9 No. 1 and her sister seaplane, PN-9 No. 3, left San Paulo bay, an arm of San Francisco bay, Monday afternoon, August 31, expecting to make the flight to Pearl Harbor, island of Oahu, in about 20 hours.

The number three plane traveled about 200 miles, when motor trouble forced her down. She was towed in by one of the alpha patrol planes, which were flying along the entire route to the island of Oahu, the first land in the "Hawaii" path.

Commander Rodgers and his ship crew, at the half-way point, the U. S. S. Langley, it was noted that they had missed the course. A little further on a windstorm was encountered, holding the big ship back. Then rain, finally only a few hours out of Pearl Harbor, but off her course, and her position doubtful, failure of gasoline supply left her stranded. Alternatively, she had deserted the air for the water.

The project was far from alluring. Last month radio messages showed the U. S. S. Arcostock and the U. S. S. Tangier, the two military "airships," hidden somewhere behind the curtain of rain. The ocean was land in this rough sea without any power, was miles out of any military message received from the plane.

The air conditioners' messages from the seaplane "reared" after a danger signal.

News of Rescue Is Joyfully Received in Official Circles

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—News of the rescue of the crew of the PN-9 No. 1 brought the joy and delight of officials in Washington, where, except for a few days, had been virtually abandoned that they would be found.

"We are delighted," said Secretary Willbur, when informed by the Associated Press that Commander Rodgers and his crew had been found. "We are very happy that the men are safe."

GEYS LEGION BACKING

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 10 (AP)—Lining up of American Legion local units in support of the search for the missing plane was announced today by the Geyser Legion, which has been backing the search for the missing plane.

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Possibility of a four-fold investigation of charges made by Colonel Mitchell last week against the air police and administrators of both the army and navy air services, was announced today by Acting Secretary Dwight P. Davis of the war department.

Mr. Davis was of the opinion that inquiry, whether conducted by civilian or congress, should be directed against the two departments, but also into the wider question of the air service's maintenance of a full inquiry by a qualified disinterested agency.

Outline Issues

The acting secretary was reported as regarding the Mitchell statement as raising four separate issues.

UNDER SEA BOAT IS HEADING FOR PORT WITH PLANE

Position Where Crew of Five Was Picked Up Is Given as 64 Miles West of Oahu and Honolulu City.

(By The Associated Press) HONOLULU, Sept. 10 (AP)—Commander John Rodgers, commander of the missing naval seaplane PN-9 No. 1, and his crew of four men, were found alive today 15 miles east of Kauai, by the submarine B-4.

The island of Kauai is 64 miles west by northwest of the island of Oahu. Oahu, of which Honolulu is the principal city, was the destination of the big seaplane in its flight across the waters of the Pacific.

The plane was sighted floating shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon in the vicinity of the destroyers coming in from the fleet.

The submarine was commanded by Lieutenant Osterlin, who upon taking off Rodgers and his crew immediately notified naval authorities, saying the plane was in tow and would arrive in Pearl Harbor tonight.

Wool Growers Seek Laws for Leasing of Forest Ranges

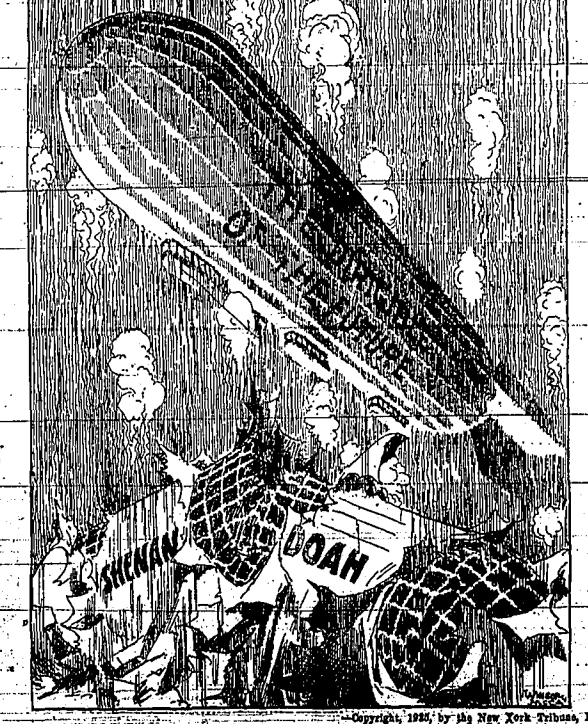

Oregon Association Condemns Hatchford Report on Valuation; Wants Definite Action Taken by Congress.

PENDLETON, Ore., Sept. 10 (AP)—The Oregon Wool Growers' association today submitted to the federal land valuation committee, at a hearing here, resolutions condemning the Hatchford report on range valuation and recommending that congress enact laws requiring the leasing of range lands to wool growers.

The hearing was presided over by Senator Robert N. Steiwer, of Oregon, chairman of the committee. Witnesses called this morning were Fred W. Falconer, president of the Oregon Wool Growers' association, and Max Hoke, secretary.

While they testified that they believed that the "Hatchford" report was a "land grab" by the administration of the forests for their own use, they also declared their opposition to exercising of arbitrary power by the service and the lack of legal right for the wool growers to be given the right to lease the land.

USE OF GYPSUM RECOMMENDED FOR FERTILIZER

Experiments Over Period of Years Show Good Results Obtained in Many Different Classes of Crops.

The use of gypsum as a fertilizing agent is apparently attracting more and more attention among agricultural authorities, and some experimental work has been obtained in the Twin Falls country as a result of experiments which have been under way for some time.

Adopt soil fertility is of course the most sought after thing on a farm, and the soil in these sections where treatment is required on the land gypsum has supplied one of the best methods in the interests of a better understanding of gypsum in its relation to crops and soil production, the following article has been prepared.

Drainage and artificial cropping without adequate fertilization will show that the soil will not support a necessary amount for production. Drainage alone causes a loss of fifty pounds of sulphur trioxide per acre yearly while groves of mixed hard woods in the case of alfalfa and the legume crops will approach and in the case of alfalfa even exceed this.

For permanent and increased production of farm crops, such a system of fertilization must be inaugurated that will supply the soil from time to time not only the "element" but also the generally necessary, namely, nitrogen and phosphorus, but also a sufficient quantity of sulphur to keep the land sustained regardless of cropping and drainage, and gypsum will do this. All of the most important benefits derived from the acid phosphates can be secured by using gypsum and at a saving of fifty per cent.

Value of Sulphur.

Sulphur is necessary to all plants, but its greatest value is in the production of legumes, especially alfalfa, clover, beans, peas, potatoes, cabbage, onions, garlic and radishes.

Gypsum has been used along the line of the Bonanza for the fertilization of clover, but the earliest records we have of the use of gypsum was in Southern Germany at which time 200 pounds to the acre was recommended and was found to furnish about 100 pounds of clover, wheat, rye, oats and corn recognizable. As early as 1771, it was discovered that as straw, becoming dead, it is good for the first of these gypsum being applied liberally at a dry time, resulted, after the first rain, in an almost marvellous growth and good harvest.

In early American history, George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Robert Livingston, Edward Ruffin, Judge Dixon of Philadelphia and John Johnson of Virginia were the first to mention gypsum as a fertilizer. Some of their findings recorded in books are as follows:

Helps Retain Moisture.

Gypsum treated fields will retain moisture in the dry season when there is no wind-swept appearance of it where the soil is so hard and the vegetation of gypsum is a fertilizer. Some of their findings recorded in books are as follows:

Helps Retain Moisture.

Gypsum treated fields will retain moisture in the dry season when there is no wind-swept appearance of it where the soil is so hard and the vegetation of gypsum is a fertilizer. Some of their findings recorded in books are as follows:

These findings are strikingly in line with recent reports from the Oregon experiment station. The United States department of agriculture the Washington experiment station, and the Utah experiment station.

After application of gypsum in Oregon, crops of alfalfa were increased from 200 to 400 per cent and Oregon soils are very similar to Idaho soils.

Nitrogen is one of the most important and certainly the most expensive form of plant food to purchase in chemical form, and of all the substances which are available, gypsum is the most effective for increasing nitrogen in the soil through bacterial activity.

Plenty of Potash.

There are enormous stores of potash present in most American soils, especially in the West, and it is not only available, but also in such abundance in the layer from 12 to 20 inches deep that in the six or seven inches nearest the surface. If this potash is made available and gypsum will do this, the supply is sufficient for 1000 years.

Gypsum also liberates iron, and this is in itself the most important and gives the soil more life. In tough soils it has the opposite effect and breaks up such soils into finer particles.

Gypsum further increases the plant content in legume hay in alfalfa, clover and white clover and the feeding value of these hay is therefore greatly increased. The best system of alfalfa after gypsum application, is from two to three times as large as that of unfertilized plants and the value of hay is increased 25 per cent.

After application of gypsum the soil is rendered better physically and better water absorption and retention are possible. The most system of alfalfa after gypsum application, is from two to three times as large as that of unfertilized plants and the value of hay is increased 25 per cent.

University Bulletin.

A recent bulletin published by the University of Idaho recommends the use of gypsum for crop and alkali lands. Some experiments by the U. S. department of agriculture demonstrated the efficiency of gypsum in counteracting the effects of the so-called black alkali.

SOCIAL CENTER AT FAIR IS POPULAR INSTITUTION

Twin Falls county fair visitors at Pocatello this week, growing weary after viewing the wealth of exhibits in all departments, are availing themselves of the amusement offered on the race track and find rest on shady lawns of the fairgrounds if they want to, but it isn't necessary since the opening this week of the social center by the women's club of the county.

The social center, as most fair visitors know, is housed in the building that accommodated the women's departments before the removal of the new building for the women's department at the fair this year.

It has been furnished with view both to the comfort and appeal to the artistic sense of visitors. An attractive display of school work occupies one corner. In another corner is a miniature specimen of the landscape gardener's art. A booth where jewelry and wraps may be checked for a nominal fee and a phonograph are on hand to furnish music that is to be heard almost constantly.

Women of the Twentieth Century club have prepared a punch bowl and in every way the social center is successfully fulfilling its purpose of fair visitors and proving one of the most valuable features of the fair.
