BANKERS TAKE PART IN ROAD INCREASE PLEA

Special Treatment for Railroads of Northwest Suggested to Commission by Investment Men at Hearing.

(By The Associated Press) CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Investment bankers took the lead away from rail road officials at the freight rate hearing here today.

Following Mr. Hutton today, P. P. Hoalings, general freight agent of the Santa Fe, and Vice President Stanley Johnson of the Rock Island testified.

Boundaries set by the commission in 1924, he said, were generally satisfactory to the carriers, but a demand is that various state commissions in the northwest intend to advance in this regard the application for rate-making purposes of the railroads.

Theory Born Out. This proposition is apparently born out by theory that northwest railroads are more prosperous than the northwestern roads, and that the general increase should therefore, be less in northwest territory.

(By The Associated Press) CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Senator Borah of Idaho, predicted today that the next session of congress would conduct an inquiry into aviation matters, with particular reference to the charges of Colonel Mitchell.

Senator Borah's prediction is in line with the air service might be more effective. Certainly his assertion that the present condition of American aviation is not only incompetent but actually so, will have to be looked into carefully. Otherwise, judgment will be rendered by the general public that his accusations are correct.

RODGERS TO GET A PLACE WITH BUREAU
never confronted by quiresome newspaper men. Dialogue:
"Have you there?"
"Work, they all need a shave!"
"I want that plane repaired while I'm away so I can fly to Oahu tomorrow," were among the last words of Commander Rodgers before going to sleep.
"Quantity of his determination will have to dissuade him from" comment of a brother officer.
"Rodgers pulled us through. He should receive all the credit."
There were the words of the chief of the P-N-0 No. 1, for their crew. One added:
"His mind never wavered. He would not sleep. He looked up an every minute and when we looked like we might be getting downed he would say about me he knew who had floored the fifteen days clinging to a log."
The P-N-0 No. 1, almost made a landing on the Oahu coast, but the wind carried it out again. Rodgers grimaced.
"Get it off for Kauai," he was quoted as saying.
"Get the best island anywhere." One of the men looking for a piece of lumber for Kaula for a purpose, because he had so many friends there.
Likewise, Don Johnston, Jr., commanding the submarine "H", which made the recent trip, carried off the honor medals. After the five aviation medals he had just won newspaper men found Osborn at the Naval Club station looking reading a magazine. He had just succeeded the commandant at Pearl Harbor.
"Can I proceed Pearl Harbor? I can do nothing further here."
Newspaper men were disappointed to learn that Commander Rodgers had to leave the P-N-0 No. 1 flight. The flight commander, however, promised to give a detailed statement covering the incidents of the trip, that they might have something with an official flavor.
"Equipment of the P-N-0 No. 1. Cold not include rations, the amount of rations carried through five days' growth of waters when they stepped ashore on Kauai, and declared themselves glad to get ashore." Their skins were badly sunburned by the tropical sun.
His crop of whiskers were one of Commander Rodgers first thoughts when he awakened this morning. Parading over in bed, he spotted them. Commander John Kanaka, paydient in charge, and asked him to amuse him photographers on snap pictures of the crew and himself before they shaved.
Dr. Kaufman told him: "Get back to bed. The photographers will wait."
Kauai, whose the P-N-0 No. 1 crew were picked up, was the most northerly island of the Hawaiian group and he had the honor on which Captain James Cook, the explorer, made his first landing in Hawaii, January 20, 1778.
While the crew of the P-N-0 No. 1 were lauded with medals of Honolulu, Oahu.
Among the radio messages picked up by the airplane crew were: the one giving them up as "lost"; the one giving the name of the steamer (disaster) and an address to them, telling the pilot to get on the plane's tail, but that it apparently didn't work.
"AVIATORS WITH PLANE
The airplane was able to receive, but not to send radio messages after alighting on the ground.
The airplane had some food aboard, emergency rations, but the steamer found it impossible to get the rest of the food, given for what was to have been a 24-hour journey, they consumed the first two days, but expected to have been able to have been rescued by one of the vessels searching for them.

It's gratifying just as well for the peace of mind of Benny Leonard that he decided that the announcement of his return to the world of statistics was a quite unprofitable one.

What a lonesome sort of Robinson Crusoe he'd be if he had no one to talk to. He'd be a light weight tigger and started to look around for his playmate. For the first time in years, for the first time in years, for the first time in years, never again to live in the glory of the "Chuckle" White.

In the Darks and In Between!

TRANSPORTATION companies in the national parks—Glacier, Yellowstone, Rocky Mountain—operate with railroad precision, for United States mail must go through on time! Passengers must be carried on scheduled. Freight must be hauled up all grades, under all weather conditions. Motors must be kept running smoothly with minimum repair costs.

That is why the three transportation companies operating in these three parks use Conoco Gasoline. These companies are run by business men with business methods. They buy gasoline just as they buy cars—for dependable, continuous, powerful operation at the lowest cost. Science has taught them what experience has taught so many individual motorists, that Conoco "delivers".

Not a single weak link in Conoco's power chain—hence greater economy and satisfaction.

STUDY THE POTATO MARKET

The government and several other agencies, stand ready to assist the grower of crops with all sorts of information as to crop conditions and crop prospects these days and it is to be hoped that these are given full attention by the men with crops to sell.

Of particular interest are a report of crop estimates on potatoes for the past year. In the Twin Falls country has given but small return. This year it is apparent that an altogether different story will be told. Just what price potatoes will reach The News does not pretend to say, but a very fair idea of the possibilities can be gleaned from the potato market itself and from the forecasts of conditions in the industry.

Most of the men who seek to buy potatoes on a speculative basis are well posted as to crop and market possibilities. In connection with these equities terms the seller should be equally well posted. Perhaps this is not always fully possible, but the government's constant effort to disseminate the information which will tell the seller what to expect, and the studying of these reports should be time well spent.

ONE HAPPY OUTCOME

A good many thousand people have had a sigh of relief and thanksgiving when the news was flashed over the wires that the missing airplane and its crew of five had been finally picked up.

Most people had given up hope. A majority probably accepted the situation as still another tragedy of the air service and pined on to their own affairs. The finding of the men brought little comfort for their adventure, was the signal for celebration in Honolulu, which celebrated the famous American boy-journalist.

DISCREDITING AN INDUSTRY

The hard coal industry is an important one but not industrially as important as it used to be.

There is another phase of the matter that does not seem to have been considered as it deserves by leaders in the anthracite industry. The operators and miners, jointly and separately, are not only discarding their industry by precipitating another unnecessary strike but, in doing so, are driving the public to the ready use of substitutes and so endangering their own prosperity.

The same thing is true with circulation. During the last few years Advertisers have not been satisfied to suppose they were getting a certain circulation for their money; they don't want to be merely told; they want to know.

They want the circulation measured by a standardized and unquestionable measurement.

The Audit Bureau of Circulations is the recognized authority for proving circulation. It is maintained as a co-operative organization by the advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers who realize the necessity for business-like methods in advertising.

Why do clever women marry stupid or insignificant men? ... Cleverness is a quality which is not inherited but is acquired.

Clever women and clever men are notably lacking in a discriminating eye. They have not time for those "higher" things.

Yet these unequal marriages do not always end in disaster or boredom. They can be a splendid happy and successful.
