CROP SURPLUS GET ATTENTION

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine Calls Conference on Situation; First of Series of Relief Parleys.

(By the Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The administration decided today to call in expert advice on the surplus crop problem.
Secretary Jardine issued calls for conference at the department of agriculture January 12 and 13 of all officers of agriculture publications and farm leaders. These meetings are expected to be held next month to discuss the question of farm relief and of bringing out ideas on what to do with the surplus.
Secretary Jardine also called to support the recent meeting of congressmen and bankers in the governor's office in the state capital at Boise. The hope is to establish a permanent committee to study the surplus problem and to make recommendations to the legislature.
Secretary Jardine has invited to Washington conference former Governor, Lawrence of Illinois, who recently announced a program for the solution of farm difficulties. San Francisco, recently elected president of the American farm bureau, also has been invited. TWO TEAMS TO MEET IN GAME AT PASADENA Clash Between Washington and Alabama University Football Elevens to be Exciting Affair, Belief.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 31 (AP)—Pasadena's football game in the Rose Bowl today, University of Alabama versus University of Washington, is just as much a guessing game as it was when first acquired, with reports odds slightly favoring the Hoosiers. The strenuous northwesterners arrived today, having been in constant contact with the south-southerners. After having looked at each other and heard each other, the Hoosiers are here, believing, that the game will be exciting. It is an "all out" proposition, anyway, you can bet on it. The crimson, white, and blue of the Hoosiers, or that of the purple, maroon, and white of the Alabamians, are expected to be a sight to see. The game is expected to be a close one, with the Hoosiers having the edge. The game is expected to be a close one, with the Hoosiers having the edge. SYMPHONIC JAZZ
NOTHING BUT A
FAD CLAIM MADE

No Originality In Newest Music, Says Member of New York Philharmonic Orchestra in Interview.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31. (AP)—Symphonic jazz which now is fighting for foothold in the highest of American musical circles, is nothing but a fad, without any symptoms of originality, and is doomed to the oblivion that comes to all passing fancies.

So believes L. F. Manly, who once played under Richard Wagner, the great composer, and for forty-six consecutive years has been a member of the New York Philharmonic orchestra. "Jazz, symphony!" he laughed. "Why, jazz is just a rhythmic affair. Rhythm has always been here. There is no originality about symphonic jazz. It is taken from other compositions."

Need Luck. "If one is to compose one must have original ideas. This jazz fad now is just to give our American composers a chance. But it will not last. If America is to produce a great composer, its artists will have to get away from jazz."

With these observations and a map of the fingers, Manly dismissed the subject. "What was jazz to a man who had studied under Gustav Mahler and Anton Bruckner and played not only under Wagner and Brahms, but most of the world's other great conductors during the past half century?"

"It was back in 1874, in Vienna, that I was at a box office in Wagner's orchestra," Manly said. "His was the first time I saw him. He was a little known then and his conducting was unusually intense as he strove to improve his interpretations."

Plays in Orchestra. A year or so later, Manly came to the country and he is a specialist on evidence that in 1877 he played in the Philharmonic orchestra, then conducted by Leopold Damrosch, father of Walter Damrosch, conductor of the New York Symphony orchestra, who recently introduced "Gershwin's jazz concerto" in 1925.

Theodore Thomas, whom some credit with having done more for orchestra music in North America than any other conductor, was head of the Philharmonic orchestra in 1880, where Manly became a regular member.

In those days, the orchestra was organized on a cooperative basis by the members, with a board of directors that handled its financial affairs. Manly became a director during his first year and still is a member of the board.

"It was a hard struggle, but we were glad of the opportunity for our making," he said. "At first, we had to find the season with funds to divide among the members. The conductors then virtually wrote on the same basis as the members, but Thomas gave up his share of the receipts several times for the piece and he was not the only conductor to do this."

Most of the musicians then played in other organizations and on odd occasions in order to earn enough to live. Now the society is a membership organization, and the players are paid salaries. This remuneration is much better, Manly said, and players now give their entire time to the society.

INDIANS LEARN
WHITE CUSTOMSNorth Dakota's Last Frontier
Fading With New Generation of First Americans.

BISMARCK, N. D., Dec. 31. (AP)—North Dakota's last frontier is fading as the new generation of native Indians is taught the white man's ways. Through the Indian girls in the government school here, of which Clark H. Dickinson is the superintendent, the Indian family is being assimilated.

Substantial houses already have been built for the Indian people on the reservation. A knowledge of sanitation is being taught the Indian people by Miss Dickinson.

At the school, where 125 girls are taught English and American arts in addition to subjects ordinarily in the grade school curriculum, special emphasis is laid on those things which the white Indian girls must know about their living.

Old Indians Obsolete. "It is hard to induce the old-time Indian to accept the white man's ways," Dickinson declared. "Some of them continue the practice after they have returned to their own people."

He said the white man's ways for the Indian people are the only way to adopt the modern life and to follow the line of least resistance. But by continuing to train, we will change them.

"The Indian has come a long way. In the past, he was a nomadic life. The civilization in which he had always lived was obliterated and he had to learn to live in the ways of an Indian civilization. I am sure that the new brother will eventually find his place in the white man's world and that he will take time."

CHRISTMAS DAY SCENES IN THE CITY OF TWIN FALLS

VIEWS taken on the streets on the afternoon of Christmas Day when the unusually mild weather lent an air of late Spring to a period usually the coldest of the winter.

Flowing in full swing on the day before and the day following Christmas with an occasional man in the field on the holiday, children rode ponies, roller skated, played marbles, mumblepeg and football and the little girls wheeled doll carriages in the bright sunshine, clad in a manner but slightly different from the toga of Summer.

Former Senator M. J. Sweetley staged his annual "twentieth anniversary" one-man Christmas day fashion parade, clad in palm beach suit and straw hat, while in another picture may be seen a Twin Falls business man in his shirt-sleeves, engaged in posting a letter. The group of children at marbles was snapped in front of the new Park Hotel, while the carefree crowd of youngsters in another group was caught as its members were entering the Elks' Lodge building to participate in the Christmas Tree hogging, an annual feature of the activities of the local lodge. The football group was snapped in the City Park.

It really wasn't Winter at all, but it was a first-class Christmas just the same.

EXPERIENCES OF

Eating Monkey Meat and Helping Native Girls Bob Their Hair Only Two of Many Incidents of Expedition.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31.—The monkey meat and helping the native girls to bob their hair were only two of the "minor incidents" of the expedition into the jungles of Bolivia from which Oscar de Lima Mayor of New York, Mrs. McGraw and Miss O'Ford have just returned.

Miss Ford, after arriving at her home here, said of encounters with savage tribes, dodging man-eating crocodiles as well as snakes and tarantulas, shooting treacherous rapids on rafts, and shooting out tarantulas. The expedition was not in search of beauty and adventure.

"You see," Miss Ford explained, "they told us that the valley of the Beni river was very beautiful. In a way it was disappointing. The trip was harder than we had anticipated and the gorgeous scenery they described for the most part had no bloom. They grow in profusion about the river banks and you have to go far into the jungle to get the flow."

The adventures started from La Paz, the Bolivian capital, and crossed the Andes on mules. Indian guides collected their rifles down the Beni river, carrying them safely through precipitous rapids with whirlpools of hot bottom. Guns and machetes were too abundant for comfort.

"They kept up good teamwork," Miss Ford remarked. "The guide passed up the river, and the natives appeared. The insects were large and their bite is very painful. While navigating the Beni, we had a dangerous canoe trip out of provisions, the 15 days which they had expected to pass in the jungle having extended to three weeks."

"For days," Miss Ford said, "we had to eat brown sugar—they call them—and on little eggs. These eggs are like hen's eggs, only a little better. You boil them or make an omelet. Then the rice gave out and the Indians cooked us monkey meat, a quite nice treat. It tasted like rabbit and they grill it over the fire. There were crocodiles in the river of course and they were man-eaters. When I shot mine there were four in sight at once."

From then on, the trip was a series of dangers but they did not trouble us in some of the Indian villages nearer the Beni river. The natives were friendly. But they did not like to see white women before our eyes."

BLUE CLOTH MAY
SUPPLANT O. D.Sudden Demand for Putting
Two Million Soldiers in Field
Would Force Change.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—A careful survey of American resources for the production of cloth indicates that it is necessary to put a force of two million men into the field in order to supply the needs of the war. It would have to fight in their shirt tails.

By the "appealing possibility" of the industrial mobilization of the national defense planning committee, it is estimated that it would be entirely possible to completely outfit two million men in a matter of a few days, provided blue cloth instead of khaki was used.

Not Enough in the Field. The trouble with the khaki outfit is that not enough cloth of that color is in ordinary civilian use. There are ample stocks of blue and gray, but wool and cotton fabric. The result has been the working out of a plan to produce a new type of outfit for a mobilization to be directed by the government. The plan would be to produce a new type of outfit for a mobilization to be directed by the government.

BOARD OF PARDONS
REFUSES TO ACT IN APPEAL OF SLAYER

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 31. (AP)—The state board of pardons today declined to take action on the petition for a stay of execution by William Lawrence, murderer, condemned to hang January 4, for the slaying of Haze Burchy, Phoenix policeman. The board's action follows an announcement that the United States supreme court would act Monday on Lawrence's appeal for a writ of certiorari.

Observers point out that if the supreme court grants the writ, the case will be removed from the jurisdiction of the state board, and if it is not granted, it was stated that a petition for the commutation of Lawrence's sentence to life imprisonment would be filed with the board.

Agriculture on Large Scale;
Big Changes Made.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 31. (AP)—The Turkish republic is going in for agriculture on a scale the like of which the country previously has never witnessed.

Recognizing the principle that there can be no enduring prosperity in a land of oppressed and unimproved people, the government has made a number of changes ameliorating conditions under which the peasants live.

The feudal system, which obtained during the rule of the sultans, has been abolished. The overlords, who claimed vast stretches of land and used the peasants as serfs, have been expropriated or killed and the land divided among the people. With the departure of the sultan, the tax on the peasants which took one-fourth of their profits.

Not of Experts. To create a body of expert managers the department of agriculture has established thirteen agricultural schools for which there were 2,000 applicants this year, and also is sending students to farm colleges in Europe and America.

Two Hundred and Forty Seven Acres-Adjoining Moscow Experiment Farm and 80 at Aberdeen. Acquired.

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Dec. 31. The addition of 247 acres of adjoining land and the purchase of 80 acres at Aberdeen, for the use of the college of agriculture, was officially announced today from the University of Idaho.

Expansion of the university farm was approved at a recent meeting of the board of trustees. The purchase of the land was necessary for the purpose of the University of Idaho which had been established in 1909 with the amount increasing annually with each year, but the University of Idaho had not been able to acquire the land for the purpose of the college of agriculture. The purchase of the land was approved at a recent meeting of the board of trustees.

WHEAT CROP OF 1925 SHOWS
LOWEST AVERAGE SINCE 1904

The 1925 wheat market has been one of the most difficult for the growers of both winter and spring wheat, states the Bureau of Agricultural Production. Owing to unfavorable weather conditions and the late start of the season, the crop is estimated to be the lowest since 1904. The total crop production in 1925 is estimated to be 1,000,000 bushels, compared with 1,500,000 bushels in 1904.
