SENATORS PLAY HIDE AND SEEK ON BRIDGE BILL

More-Than-Half-Dozen-Senators Refuse to Enter Chamber When Clause Taxing Indians is Brought Up.

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—With more than half a dozen senators holding the Indians hostage in their doors, the Senate was unable tonight to obtain a quorum necessary to decide whether the Navajo Indians should be taxed for the construction of a bridge over the Colorado River which would connect the two states.

Bound up in this question is the fate of the $425,000,000 deficiency bill, offering emergency relief to a suffering country, which is still suffering heavily from the winter.

Bill-Call-Ordered.

The bill, still slowed 17 for taxation of Indians, 12 against, with three senators paired and unable to vote. This left one short of a quorum. Another senator, who had been paired with the same 12, voted. Thus the names of the abstainers were called.

Papers were sent scurrying about "looking for absent members, from the floor to the cloak room, all compartments, all back rooms, through the glass panel doors."

Under the usual procedure, the arguments and debate would have been directed at the Indians, but a number of senators, both and anti-Indian, were present. There was a hush and then rapidly reported on the testimony bill, moved an adjournment and tomorrow, which was voted unanimously.

BUT TWO Items Left.

Except for the items for the two bridges, one over the Colorado river between Arizona and Utah, and the other, New Mexico, the preference bill had been completely withdrawn. In the day before, however, it had approved a cost estimate report on the measure, and comparatively smooth sailing had been expected for final action. It was the first of annual supply bills to receive action.

Senator Burton—democrat—New Mexico, who had the plans of leaders of his party, told him he had no objection to the bridges. He declared a question of right and justice was involved. He was joined by Senators Cameron, Johnson, and Lenroot and LaFollette, Wisconsin, republicans.

TAX LINES ARE FILED.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Feb. 25.—Two-line bills, one for soldiers' pay, the other for pensioners, were filed in federal court today.

Love Message With Star's Name Signed Called a Huge Joke

Telegram Containing Affectionate Phrases Not From Marjorie Rambeau; Finance Says So Sent It.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25. (AP)—William Manton, today described as a "huge joke," in a telegram containing affectionate phrases, alleged to have been sent to him by Marjorie Rambeau, the New York newspaper reporter, Mrs. Manton's divorcee, and Mrs. Rambeau's finance, Albert Edward Austin, an actor, refuted the sex mess.

Mrs. Rambeau, who took the play last night, was asked later today if she vehemently denied allegations of impropriety with Manton.

Manton testified that he had been employed by Miss Rambeau as an extra, and that he helped her read the portions of speeches improving her while she was learning a part for a new play.

Rehearsing Play.

He said he had been in work in was available at any time, having never been called at 10 a. m. He testified that they were rehearsing a new play on the night of August 20, when he was engaged by Miss Rambeau to do what he did.

The reason which Mrs. Manton stated in her petition caused her first to be suspicious of her husband was quoted as follows:

"Darling I love you and nothing can ever change that, but I am afraid you will be disappointed in me."

Humorous Message.

A son of Manton's, sent the telegram to Manton as a "humorous message" on the occasion of the opening of her show, in which Manton had a small part.

While other public officials, particularly the press, were laughing at the note, so far as the public knew, the actress.

The alleged objectionable content is supposed to have been incident to his station at Leavenworth, Kansas, between January 1 and March 25, while the girl was employed there.

In statements preliminary to her hearing, Miss Swallow said that she had known Captain Clappitt for many years, and that she had been a good friend of his.

She testified she declined on her bed

Mexican Divorce Law Attacks Americans; Three Welcome Plan

First Bury of Women After Freedom Pass Through Two State of Sonora.

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 25. (AP)—The first day of divorce seekers to invade Sonora, Mexico, since its female law became effective, spent last night in Tucson, and left this morning for Hermosillo, where the divorce law will probably remain dead.

Three women, of striking appearance and dressed in the height of fashion, were charged with the first divorces. Arthur del Toro, the "wealthy society lawyer," they appeared on the hotel register as "Arthur del Toro and wife."

Del Toro, who is taking the vanguard of divorce-seekers to Hermosillo, claimed parenthood for the newly-passed law that makes unnecessary the establishment of a separate divorce. The divorce, he said, is sought.

Del Toro is a "wealthy land owner of Mexico and legal expert," and maintains residence in both Mexico and New York.

STATE RESTS IN BLASPHEMY CASE

Prosecution Submits Its Evidence in Trial of Editor Under 229 Year Old State Law.

HICKOKTON, Mass., Feb. 25. (AP)—The state today concluded presentation of its evidence in its effort to convict Anthony Rizzo, 60, of Boston, of blasphemy under a statute 229 years old.

"Tomorrow Harry Hoffmann, attorney for the young communist editor, of Brooklyn, will start enlisting his friends to help him defend Rizzo," said the defense attorney.

The unanticipated showing of Del Rizzo, received trumpery near Omaha, Iowa, several weeks ago, when Rizzo was killed with a .22 caliber gun, has complicated the case.

BAZAR AND ROUGÉ EQUALITY.

Professor Ira H. Cobb of the University of California was seriously annoyed by cords in his classes which freshened up their countenances during lectures. Finally, it became easier and interrupted himself to express his opinion of students who made their toilets in the classroom. He even went so far as to say that, if the interests of equal rights for both sexes, he saw no more reason why women should be permitted to do this than the men.

The next day, to illustrate the professor's point, two young men bought their shaving equipment to class and as soon as the lecture started they proceeded to shave faces and hands completely.

The professor, however, did not plaud the act, while the boys, according to one report, actually blushed.

The heroes were presented "A" cards for the term and the general hope seemed to be that the lesson would long live in the hearts where it was needed.

We wonder.

VIOLINS FOR FIREMEN.

Music may put out flame. This is nothing new to scientists. Extinguishing a small gas flame in a glass tube with a musical tone adjusted to the flame has long been a familiar experiment in physical laboratories. But it certainly did amaze the fire fighters in a New York engine house the other day when a volunteer soldier from California put out a gas flame two feet high by running a sort of violin bow across an aluminum tuning fork.

Firemen in the future, says this scientific flame fighter, will be put out by his method. Firemen will change configurations with more sound effects, and do it without leaving the fire headquarters.

There may be potentialities in sound.

We have all read in the Bible how the walls of fortified cities fell down when the Israelites blew their horns.

Elijah declared a few years ago that he could start a skyscraper by disturbing a little electric buzzar, to well, settling his note of obligation to that of the building. Well, he was found to care old buildings as well as extinguish fires.

SOIL WEATHER.

Meteorologists continue studying the sun. That, they conclude, is where our weather comes from, and they have got far enough along to believe that some degree of foreknowledge may be obtained by sun observations.

This is very irregular. Weather, as any old-fashioned almanac will tell you, comes from the moon, controlled by the moon's phases. But, the sun prophets insist that lower weather forecasts are purely guessy. Even if there is any weather influence in that quarter, the moon gets it from the sun, so why not get back to the first source?

The sun is the great fire that warms our little earth, the great dragon that creates all our misery. One way or another speaking, may be merely a reflection of its weather.

Great storms sweep over the sun. They rage in a fury atmospheric, which astronomers call "photopshere," or "light sphere." These cyclic storms make great "spots" visible against the earth, each spot being apparently the vortex of a storm.

An ordinary spot is a mere speck on the sun's surface, light and heat emanations are reduced. So the more spots, the greater the reduction in heat.

Over the sun there are many such spots, the result of which is a reduction in the amount of heat and light reaching the earth.

For years at a time, so the more we learn about the sun, the more we shall know what kind of weather to expect.

Reports of the Smithsonian Institution hold that it will soon be possible to forecast the weather several days or even weeks ahead. That is all good news to a race which, with all its progress, is still amazingly dependent on the weather.

The yellow glow played over the Irishman's long face. His lips were drawn back in a smile, but had been a smile; a smile that had faded, and again a pale beat in his cord throat. His eyes crunched beside him, clutching his limp hands and crumpling a medley of dearmenards in English, Irish and Spanish. Murray, opposite her, thrust exploring fingers into the bosom of her father's shirt. A startled look appeared in the great-uncle's face, preserved their immobility.

"It's useless to cry to him, lass," he said gently. "He'll not answer, you see."

"But he will!" she protested. "Sure, you must—soon! Do you think what is wrong with him? It may be a sum of brandy would bring him round."

His great-uncle reached across and pinched from her grasp the hand she had been rubbing.

"Come," he said, rising. "We'll take him to Peter to carry him to his berth, shall we?"

"But—but we must bring him to me, an' kindly."

She stood up hurriedly.

"Don't bring him to me! But why?"

"Save his heart—he longer breaths."

"But he's great—Quick! Catch her, Robert."

She lay like a tired child in my arms.

"Dead!" she murmured faintly.

"It cannot be dead!" I exclaimed. "There's not a wond on him."

"Neen," said Peter.

He picked up the lamp from where I had dropped it on the deck and directed the light upon the upper part of Colleen O'Donnell's head. A man's body lay there, motionless.

"He was brought here yesterday," explained Peter.

"A grazeshot," pronounced Peter.

"Her cannonball came hot, Jim."

"But the skin is not even broken."

"I object."

"Jim, but don't matter!"

"The Walrus is dead."

"It cannot strike down all men, the one most essential to my schemes. I could—Well, no matter! We must triumph over the unexpected."

"The chasm all great heroes must cross to win the final victory."

I found myself instinctively holding him to his attitude.

"What have you done with Colleen?"

"I'm afraid I've killed her."

"I'll return him to his sisters."

"We will give him decent burial when we return to the island... And perhaps some day we can come for him in state with a squadron of king's ships and bear his body to a grave in the sea where he was born free."

Morna clung to my arms.

"And he is really dead? And unbreathin'?"

"Yes, yes," he murmured half to himself.

"What? What could have done surely I can die. Our friends in Avalon will help. And, Robert?"

"I'll return to me."

"I'm afraid you are destined to die."

"I'm afraid you are destined to die."

"I'll return to me."

SEE PROSPECT IN TRUCK LINE TO CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles Men Investigating Feasibility of Project for Interchange of Products of Two States.

Opportunity for profitable employment of a motor truck has suggested itself to two citizens of Los Angeles who are owners of a truck and who have applied to Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce for information on which to base their conclusions as to the feasibility of the project.

The American purpose is the project is deemed feasible, to make a round trip each week between Los Angeles and Twin Falls. On trips from Los Angeles the truck would carry California fruits, grapes, vegetables and other products which are in northern climate. It would be loaded on return trips to Los Angeles with Idaho apples, potatoes, prunes, honey and other products for which there is ready and profitable market in California.

One of the truck owners would establish residence in Twin Falls to dispose of California products brought here by truck and to procure loads of Idaho products for the return trip.

the institution. More money, Mrs. Morse declared, was not the main desire of the library, but larger quarters were imperative. In the event that it is impossible to secure these, Mrs. Morse advised that she favored closing the library.

Some interesting figures were given by way of indication of the place occupied by the library in the community and the magnitude of the work it seeks to perform. Twin Falls, also measured, with a population of approximately 8000, had 6100 volumes in its library while Pocatello, with a population of 28,500, had 15,000 volumes; and Idaho Falls, with a population of 15,000, had 8440 volumes on its library shelves, and an annual circulation of 66,235. Twin Falls, with a population of approximately 8000, had the same in Idaho Falls, with a population of 15,000, had 6359 volumes in its library while Pocatello, with a population of 28,500, had an annual circulation of 72,295; thus leaving beyond a doubt that the people of Twin Falls and the surrounding area were readers and booklovers and that the new building will be used to the best of its possible ability.

Asher B. Wilson, president of the chamber of commerce, detailed an imaginary trip to California and recommended that the library should be built there. It was his opinion that it was hoped to make real by way of celebration of the opening of the road. Mr. Wilson declared a knowledge of the California market was necessary for the success of the trip.

Upon the "no-thanks" basis, there was sufficient justification for the trip. He stated that on Monday next committee would begin an active campaign in efforts to make the money available to make the trip. The committee agreed to make the trip so that arrangements for the special train could be made with as little delay as possible.

Upon Twin Falls, J. B. Wilson, president of Pocatello outlined a plan whereby organized baseball might be brought to Twin Falls through the entry of this city into a class A league consisting of Twin Falls, Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Salt Lake, Ogden and Logan. Mr. Brady's remarks were listened to with close interest.

Ed L. Larson, head of the county department of agriculture, pointed out an interesting study of the dangerous possibilities of noxious weeds in the farm lands of the county and explained the difficulties attendant upon the work of eradicating these. He declared that in his opinion the eradication of the weed problem rested with the man on the farm. He advocated strict action to provide for the eradication of weeds and declared that in this was the best explanation of the distribution of the weed throughout the country not only within this county but Amendment of the present lease law so as to allow a workable basis for development against the permit and all situations, it was strongly urged. He closed with a description of the plans of the bureau and the work it sought to perform in Twin Falls.

At the conclusion of the trip, it is planned to make a round trip between Los Angeles and Twin Falls. On trips from Los Angeles the truck would carry California fruits, grapes, vegetables and other products which are in northern climate. It would be loaded on return trips to Los Angeles with Idaho apples, potatoes, prunes, honey and other products for which there is ready and profitable market in California.

One of the truck owners would establish residence in Twin Falls to dispose of California products brought here by truck and to procure loads of Idaho products for the return trip.

the institution. More money, Mrs. Morse declared, was not the main desire of the library, but larger quarters were imperative. In the event that it is impossible to secure these, Mrs. Morse advised that she favored closing the library.

Some interesting figures were given by way of indication of the place occupied by the library in the community and the magnitude of the work it seeks to perform. Twin Falls, also measured, with a population of approximately 8000, had 6100 volumes in its library while Pocatello, with a population of 28,500, had 15,000 volumes; and Idaho Falls, with a population of 15,000, had 8440 volumes on its library shelves, and an annual circulation of 66,235.

Twin Falls, with a population of approximately 8000, had the same in Idaho Falls, with a population of 15,000, had 6359 volumes in its library while Pocatello, with a population of 28,500, had an annual circulation of 72,295; thus leaving beyond a doubt that the people of Twin Falls and the surrounding area were readers and booklovers and that the new building will be used to the best of its possible ability.

Asher B. Wilson, president of the chamber of commerce, detailed an imaginary trip to California and recommended that the library should be built there. It was his opinion that it was hoped to make real by way of celebration of the opening of the road. Mr. Wilson declared a knowledge of the California market was necessary for the success of the trip.

Upon the "no-thanks" basis, there was sufficient justification for the trip. He stated that on Monday next committee would begin an active campaign in efforts to make the money available to make the trip. The committee agreed to make the trip so that arrangements for the special train could be made with as little delay as possible.

Upon Twin Falls, J. B. Wilson, president of Pocatello outlined a plan whereby organized baseball might be brought to Twin Falls through the entry of this city into a class A league consisting of Twin Falls, Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Salt Lake, Ogden and Logan. Mr. Brady's remarks were listened to with close interest.

Ed L. Larson, head of the county department of agriculture, pointed out an interesting study of the dangerous possibilities of noxious weeds in the farm lands of the county and explained the difficulties attendant upon the work of eradicating these. He declared that in his opinion the eradication of the weed problem rested with the man on the farm. He advocated strict action to provide for the eradication of weeds and declared that in this was the best explanation of the distribution of the weed throughout the country not only within this county but in the entire state, with the exception of the desert areas.

South Central District Basket Ball Tournament Will be Held at Buhl; Twin Falls Has Place.

That ten teams will participate in the south central district basket ball tournament is the announcement of the district board of control. The teams from C, D, E, F, G of the south central Idaho basketball league presented at a meeting of several interested citizens in Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce offices Thursday evening by Mr. Frank J. Bennett, and J. E. Hall, officials of Pocatello and E. G. Bennett of Twin Falls, representing the Pocatello and Idaho Falls clubs for which franchises in the league already have been secured.

Under discussion reached during discussions on the best method of means of obtaining the franchises for Twin Falls to complete organization of the six-team league, invitation was extended to Mr. Brady to present the suitable held for audience and was invited to meet him by Mr. Bennett, who, after hearing the plan, said "I think the Pocatello and Idaho Falls clubs for which franchises in the league already have been secured."

The trophy cups are being displayed in Buhl this week. There are over cup offered, championship cup for both boys and girls and novelty cup for both boys and girls in addition to the American Legion post of Buhl is offering a scholarship cup to the boys' team displaying the best sportsmanship during the meet. Death Plunge

This game will not affect the standing of either team in the west, for the Wildcats have already earned the right of control determined that Buhl should play. However the Wildcats have not been defeated by a team in this district and are knowing to have a strong record. The team has been less fortunate in the number of wins, but have a fighting aggregation and are going to try to upset "Pete's" string of victories. It will be interesting to see the start and last delegation of Buhl fans will be.

RUPERT, Feb. 25.—(Special to The News)—A classic in basket ball will be staged here tomorrow night when the fast Paul quintet tangles with the Rupert five. Paul received his first conference defeat last week at the hands of Durley and Buhl, but defeated Durley so that any hope at least favors the local quintet to win. Paul, however, defeated the Rupert team earlier in the season and as a result the two teams are both equal to take part in the district meet at Buhl next week. This will be a hard battle. The local team has shown a steady improvement all season and has two fine players in Higgins and Higginson, while the team, while holding down the center berth and Higgins at guard. Both these men are players of experience and have made records for themselves this season.

ALBION, Feb. 25.—(Special to The News)—Albion Normal basket ball team will meet the Link's Business college team here tomorrow night in a meeting that is likely to prove interesting. Albion has all the odds in their favor for the College of Idaho quintet trimmed the Link's team some time ago and Albion has defeated the Link's team. The Link's team is making a tour of the south central district and have been winning from some good teams on the trip. Ralph Love, former Eiler high school player, is playing for the Link's team. A tie-up between the two teams is expected.

FILER, Feb. 25.—(Special to The News)—The Filer Wildcats are ready for the last conference meet of the basket ball season when they meet the Buhl quintet here tomorrow night.
