

PIONEERS MEET AT FILER FOR ANNUAL AFFAIR

300 Men and Women of Early Day Gather at Filer; Congressman Smith Delivers a Fitting Address.

against those "doctrines" opposed to the form of government, the advocates of which prefer the red flag to our stars.

"It is good to live in times like these and to participate in the grand undertakings which are marking the world better. Such occasions are not only great opportunities, but also change and progress is always desirable, active and progressive results in unity and cooperation and in a more kindly interest in the welfare of our neighbors. We can find this place more loyal than any other in the state of Idaho, and it is the result of our government's many past records of our government's achievements, and more confident that the future lies in store for us continued progress and development as a people and as a nation."

The next meeting of the association will be one year from the time of the picnic at Filer, Friday, and at that time the organization's historian will submit a narrative embodying the history of the association.

After the picnic the members will go back to the earliest record for which there is definite records.

MORTGAGE DEBT ON IDAHO FARM PROPERTY REDUCED

high facilities in the number of failures of cooperative associations, R. L. Stenger, director of markets of the department of agriculture declared in reporting that the majority of farms were marketed cooperatively in 1925, despite difficulties encountered.

Functions and activities of agencies dedicated to agricultural progress and extension have been greatly increased and a detailed discussion of individual production and marketing problems found in the various sections of the state. This discussion will be continued.

Other discussions included analysis of irrigation by W. C. Scudder, commissioner of reclamation, to the view of incorporation of irrigation and plowage organizations in Idaho, and the question of acquisition and lease has been proposed and accepted.

One of the most worthy objects of the organization, according to a statement made by Mr. Thompson, was the reduction of taxes, for which he had sought to obtain a measure for their exhibition and preservation.

Congressman Smith's address to the plenarians of the west, and in which he depicted the state of Idaho and Twin Falls county follows in full:

Historic Grounds.

We are occupying historic ground today for over the Old Oregon Trail which traverses this section of Idaho, passing thousands of hardy pioneers nearly a century ago enroute to the Pacific coast. We have just crossed the great West from the almost impregnable barrier to civilization, and those who are now reclaiming the desert wastes, bold-hearted, fearless, and tireless, are the descendants of those who, in harnessing the mighty rivers, possessed the same indomitable spirit as those courageous and valiant pioneers who in the dim distant past traveled that great thoroughfare seeking a favorable vent, and they might spend their entire lives in making homes for themselves and families.

The western country is still in its infancy. It is only a few years since the wealth in minerals, water and timber has been known. These resources only made the progressive spirit of men of brawn and industry to make these opportunities available and to demonstrate the possibilities of this region. The sparsely populated and relatively less attractive land, however, has been developed by the material resources, but they have also made great strides in civilization, and in the enactment of laws for the betterment of society and the elimination of social evils.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Thompson, whose active interest in politics has been placed on the statute books of Idaho, have laws for the uplift of the people for in defense of most of the older states. The prohibition law has been strengthened and the enforcement which is prevalent in other communities. The pioneers have always been the reformers, as the history of the human race shows, and those of the West are no exception to that rule.

At present all the states in the most recent Idaho proudly lifts her head.

She was one of the first states in the union to give women their rightful place in the affairs of the government, by placing them on our ballot with the right to be elected.

Thomson has been a leader in the movement to secure the election of state of Idaho in creating public sentiment in favor of these wise enactments, and by placing in office those who were favorable to this progressive legislation.

Progress Revealed.

Eighty million of us, the shows constant progress and in our country more than in America. We have made wonderful advancements politically, spiritually, intellectually and materially during the last ten years. We have become a self-governing people.

Legislation which is stringent as any in the nation, our anti-gangland laws which have practically eliminated this vice in Idaho, the widow's pension law, while the children to a number of us are the best fed, clothed and educated, instead of sending them to an institution, our fruit inspection laws, requiring the sprouting of fruit trees, and prohibiting the sale of the perfect fruit, among other laws.

Health laws due to the intelligent and active cooperation of the state of the state in creating public sentiment in favor of these wise enactments, and by placing in office those who were favorable to this progressive legislation.

A HERO ABROAD.

An American correspondent in Budapest writes that an American citizen, named Smith, still in his mid-twenties, has done quite to "make America popular in Hungary than any one else in history." This citizen is Jeremiah Smith of Boston, who recently returned home after strengthening up Hungary's tangled finances. It is not Mr. Smith's financial advise that commands him and his cotry to the Hungarians, so much as the way he conducted himself while handing the job.

When he arrived in Budapest a couple of years ago, a royal palace was placed at his disposal. As com-misioner-general, the correspondent explains, "the Hungarian officials believed that I put on a lot of dog."

"Much to their surprise, he refused to look at the apartment in the imposing pile on the heights of Buda.

Instead, he moved into two small rooms in the Grand Hotel Hungaria, not even the best in the capital. Then he dropped out of public view.

"For two years he worked day and night at the almost hopeless financial problem. Not once did he make a public speech or issue a statement to the public prints. When he finished his job he closed his desk, handed over his accumulated salary to the local officials and took his departure. There was no blash at making the world safe for democracy or making land across the sea.

"And that is why the name of Smith is great in Budapest."

We can't all follow Jeremiah Smith's example, exactly. Yet some useful hints may be gained from it by a lot of Americans for use in their own dealings with Europe, whether for business or pleasure.

GREAT FERTILITY.

American soil is not "playing out." Food-producing capacity is steadily increasing, not merely in total quantity but in the yield per acre.

In the last 30 years, Department of Agriculture records show that the average yield of corn per acre in this county has increased 18 per cent; of wheat 17 per cent, of oats 11 per cent and of potatoes 30 per cent. Thus while the combined acreage of these crops has increased 32 per cent, the crop tonnage has increased 72 per cent.

This is due partly to better farming methods, partly to the cultivation of better varieties and partly to improvement of the soil through scientific fertilization. There is no reason for thinking that the improvement will not continue. Our farmers are more progressive and intelligent today than ever before, and the results of wise management are sure to show in agriculture no less than in industry.
