

TROOPS MOVING TO BATTLEFIELD NEAR SHANGHAI

Ruler of East China Provinces Throws Up Defense Works in Effort to Stop Advancing Cantonese Forces.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 18, 1926.—Troops of Marshal Sun Chuan Fang have thrown up defense works 20 miles north of the railroads to meet the forces of Hsin Chia, who are reported to have started 3,000 strong toward this city. Hsin Chia was reported Saturday to have defeated the Cantonese at Chingting, Chekiang, probably of which he is governing, and successfully ousted the advance of his troops and it is not known when they will strike.

Sun Chuan Fang, ruler of five provinces of eastern China, was said today to be at Nanking, Kiangsu province, its capital. As many well informed observers believe he may come to Shanghai shortly to direct operations against his troops. The leader will concern himself at present to retain control of Chekiang and Kiangsu provinces, abandoning for a time the campaign to expel the Canton government armies from his Kiangsu province.

Chiang's Moved Voted.

Intrigue and mystery, as usual in Chinese politics, are used in Chiang Kai Shek and the negotiations by military leaders who have partitioned China among themselves. Unconfirmed reports have been circulated that troops from Manchuria have been despatched to Hsiangtan, Hunan, to support Chiang's efforts at present to retain control of Chekiang and Kiangsu provinces, abandoning for a time the campaign to expel the Canton government armies from his Kiangsu province.

Queen enjoys first day on American soil

From windows of New York crowded with thousands of Americans, Queen Marie, riding in the first car of the procession, waved and smiled, and the serried rows of humanity were inarticulate—they exhibited more enthusiasm than admiration.

At the entrance moved into City Hall plaza the first volume of cheering was heard. Related walemen scurried to watch the queen enter City Hall for the official reception by the mayor. After the formal greetings, all traffic had been stopped for many surrounding blocks. Photographers dashed recklessly about, "snapping" the queen.

Queen Marie, decked with lace and lanning, Queen Marie, Princess Anna and Prince Nicholas were taken into the governor's room, where Mayor Walker gave the city's welcome. Related walemen, under chief, on behalf of six million people, I welcome you most heartily to the gateway of America." He told Queen Marie that her fame had preceded her and that she, part and parcel, of the queen, had struck a responsive chord in America, where there were thousands of good Russian citizens.

Queen Voices Pleasure

Queen Marie responded: "I really do not know with what words I can thank you all for this wonderful reception. It has been for many years my great dream to visit

Queen Wears Burgundy and Linens; Not Traditional Purple and Ermine

NEW YORK, Oct. 18, 1926.—The crowd who expected to see a gaudy purple and ermine when Marie of Roumania arrived today, found her gowned instead in burgundy and linens and the regal garments had diminished from the original 100 yards of fabric to 70 yards, though fashion on a 12-lb. basis.

Queen Marie was not elaborately dressed as she entered the city, but her face was imperious. The velvet robe was simple, a wide sash, outlined in a ruff of black fox fur, fell within about 12 inches of the floor. A close fitting bodice of gold fabric with small trim of brown georgette with a glycerine or starch finish over the tight car covered the famous titian hair.

Queen Marie's attire, however, was not up to par in every regard. It seems incredible. I saw in all forms a real pleasure at seeing me, and I can assure you my pleasure, at being among you is as great as yours.

Queen Marie's speech was incomprehensible, though carefully prepared for her. "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung, a scroll and a medal of New York was presented. After the queen had spoken, women employees of City hall stood to sit upon the impromptu throne.

As the royal caravan emerged from City hall, the crowd outside found its full voice and uttered an ovation.

IMPUGN MOTIVES OF QUEEN MARIE'S VISIT

NEW YORK, Oct. 18, 1926.—Speakers at a meeting held under the auspices of the International Labor Defense today charged that Queen Marie of Roumania, the Queen of Romania, was using her country to obtain money to aid Russia in completing formidable dominions over Hungary, and the smaller Balkan states, thus affording another outlet for gain an opportunity over British competitors in the south Russian fields.

The meeting was held after Queen Marie had left the city.

Speaking for the American socialist candidate for Congress, New York, John J. Safford, said his organization had planned to give the queen a hearty ovation.

A resolution was adopted condemning the queen for representing herself as a government which persecuted workmen and peasants and "encouraging the United States government for sending her to this country."

John J. Safford, socialist candidate for Congress, New York, in a statement entitled city, state and national officials for their "idle rest" in graveling before the queen of the most corruptly governed country in Europe."

Prince Andrew of Russia, nephew of the late czar, had painting as a hobby, and in his English exile has it used as a means of supplementing slender income.

DRY LEADERS ARE IN CAMPAIGN INVESTIGATION

city candidates and the financing that has been done to date. This may lead to the summoning of a number of other witnesses. Remaining in inquiry house after a recess of only a few months, the investigation in the person of Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, has now stopped to look into an inquiry into the political situation in Indiana, where there have been charges of graft. Regarding the Senate, United States senator, Senator Reed stated that he had decided whether he would go into that subject.

Missouri senator and Missouri the principal feature of the day, and the former was questioned somewhat sharply by Reed as to Anti-Saloon League endorsement of the Frank L. Smith candidacy in view of the revelations made by Senator Reed, and the long spent on behalf of that candidate in the primary and that half of this time came from officials of public

Buya Explain Policy

Condemning the expenditure of such sums for political purposes, Safford said his organization realized the inability of supporting an independent candidate.

"So that you would support a man who has raised a corruption fund so great as to shock your conscience, you that you agreed with you on the prohibition question?" Senator Reed asked.

"No; that is not a fair statement," said Safford. "We did not create the situation. The public created it. We reach into this situation and take the best we can out of it."

Safford testified that when the Rev. O'Brien Gist approached him on the subject of the queen, he was asked if he thought the state Anti-Saloon League supported Colonel A. V. Smith, attorney for Lake county, explaining that influences were at work to get Frank L. Smith to withdraw.

He said he had no objection to the queen's visit.

Investigate Ferguson In Probe of Texas Road Commission

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 18, 1926.—A legislative investigation committee here today dug deep into alleged irregularities in the awarding of contracts by the highway commission and brought forth accusations against the governor's husband, former Governor James Ferguson.

Alleged offers on the part of Ferguson to obtain road contracts from the commission for a money consideration were among the charges made by Rep. J. D. Winder, road contractor of Terrell, in attacking the highway situation which for many months has agitated the state and which led to the nomination of Attorney General Dan Moody for the office.

Chief testimony linking Ferguson with alleged irregularities was given by J. D. Winder, road contractor of Terrell, Texas, who said the governor's husband had referred to him five construction contracts. An individual, Winder said, would pay him $7,500, which was about 10 per cent of the contract price.

Winder stated Ferguson stipulated that the money should be in five, and two dollar bills.

When Winder talked to Ferguson about the contracts in the five counties he said Ferguson told him he had bid low.

"Winder, you've bid too high," the witness quoted Ferguson as saying.

"I want you to cut your bid 20 per cent and re-submit a new bid. You want the people to have a saving in the cost of the roads with the expenditures of the last commission."

GIRL FIGURES IN WOMAN'S STORY

Dead Attorney's Stenographer Tells of Conferences With Accused Evangelist.

LAW ANGELS. Oct. 18, 1926.—The state of alleged plots and counterplots, innuendo and contradictions, thickened today as Judge Samuel H. Idaho opened his fourth week of pre-trial hearing of Alvin Karpis, McMurphy, and others, accused of charges of conspiracy to defraud justice.

Suffering from an abscessed knee, the religious leader of Angelus Temple arrived yesterday in his wheelchair, dressed in a long robe, with an umbrella. Beside her sat another mother, Miss Minnie Kennedy, also a deaf-mute, while close by was Mrs. Lorraine Wisconsin Shaff, third woman charged with having started Karpis and McMurphy on their career of crime.

Kenneth H. Orton, former Angelus temple radio operator, another accused, is a fugitive of justice.

Beside him sat his wife, the stenographer, a stenographer and confidante of the Mr. McKinley, blind attorney of Long Beach, who, before he was killed, when his automobile turned over on him recently, had announced he had nothing to offer for the prosecution.

Mr. Orton, however, has declared himself innocent.

Anti-Saloon League State Superintendent Speaks Here on Prohibition Issues.

Members of the organizations of the Anti-Saloon League joined in a mass meeting Sunday evening in the Methodist Episcopal church here, at which Charles Barlow, Idaho superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, discussed prohibition and the object of the Anti-Saloon League in the state.

Adoption of the eighteenth amendment, he declared, was "the greatest religious, moral and economic achievement in recorded history."

"Breaking the back of organized vice," he said, "was the first amendment ever forced on the people; he declared it was the first amendment written into the constitution after the states were elected by the respective delegations of the people, and the measure was adopted by representatives who were elected upon that issue."

He further asserted that the cost of enforcement in every state in the union is paid by those who violate the law, and that money is collected in the form of fines and penalties and is expended for its enforcement.

Taking the floor again, he said, "If we have more cities, the girl said she replied, to which Mrs. Kennedy retorted:

"We have more cities. The seats in Senate, Members of Congress we were holding for you." (Mrs. McMurphy) have been sold and we have to pay the debts $100 a day."

Call for Read Map.

At another conference, a real map book of the country around McKinley's possession, came up. Mrs. Kennedy mentioned it as showing the route the alleged kidnappers traveled to her daughter. Miss Morris, who had come home last night with Mrs. Kennedy, testified, insisted that one could not produce.

In this connection, Mrs. McMurphy, according to the witness, said:

"I would like to know what they had in the route we traveled and I want signed certificates from these men to corroborate the story, to convince the world. My people have no time, but I am going to do what I can to give something to do that."

The Colorado river ferry at Rhyolite, California, was introduced by Mrs. McMurphy who asserted, the witness said, that a crossing could be made save in Arizona without passing into another state.

Developments outside of court ended in a threat by Mrs. Viria Kimball of Oakfield, to sue Mrs. McMurphy on a charge of libel.

VIRGINIA GIRL HELD FOR SHOOTING COLORED BOY

RHODE ISLAND. Oct. 18, 1926.—Black Wino, 15-year-old boy held without bond to a grand jury today on a charge of murder in connection with the shooting of Blackie Logan, 2-year-old negro boy, on October 14.

Witnesses testified at a preliminary hearing that the girl shot the boy with a pistol and then dragged him across the room, where she bound him under a tree. She was then said to have flourished the pistol in the dying boy's face and with an oath threatened to shoot again if he attempted to move.

A plot of insanity probably will be entered for the youthful defendant.

asserted, "would mean the conversion of every soft drink parlor, pool hall, cigar store, drug store, butcher shop, grocery store, and any place where liquor is sold to the old and young, with the same freedom from restraint as chewing gum and soft drinks now are."

He continued that many young people are carrying gum, but, as he said, "it was a great concession on the part of the liquor interests to admit that instead of the young carrying it in their pockets, it had been relegated to the same class as chewing gum and had to be carried in hip pockets."

Mr. Haffke was introduced by Dr. G. C. Murphy, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. G. C. Purvis of the Christian church pronounced the invocation and benediction.

Mr. Haffke addressed a meeting

Sunday morning in the Presbyterian church, and spoke Monday at a high school assembly.

GOVERNMENT BY DEFAULT.

One of the excuses sometimes made by men, often uttered by women, for not voting is that they really did not know anything about any of the candidates, or the issues, and so they felt they could not conscientiously cast a ballot.

This is no excuse at all. It is the voter's business to inform himself about men and issues,

If he does not approve any of the candidates, no matter, One will be elected. One must be better than another in at least some small way.

Every expression of public opinion counts. If the voter votes for only one man, only one issue, if an election is expressing something of his own adding to public opinion.

The only thing candidates are informed of is voters. The only way to get good candidates is for good voters to keep on voting for the best in sight.

The real basis of the town is the military voter, with his ordinary duty. If he wants a clean and orderly community in which to live and rear his children, he can get it by voting for it. If he does not exercise his right to speak on the side of order and decency, he has to take what he gets.

Too much government in this country is government by default.

And another thing: The last day to register is only a short distance ahead and the man or woman who does not register cannot vote. He doesn't make any difference how often he or she may have registered for former elections. This time a new law has made necessary a new registration.

The last day to register for the election of November second is on Saturday, October twenty-third.

AGE-AND-LABOR

A fifty-five-year-old laborer in Jackson, Mich., coming into possession of an inheritance of $75,000, took half a day off to celebrate his good fortune with his wife and daughter, and then went back to work at his waterworks job. That will be his only celebration, he says. He intends to keep right on working. He "wouldn't be happy any other way."

Many will applaud that resolution, but are they necessarily right? Sixty-three, after all, is very old—of course.

That laborer may be good for another decade or two of daily toil. But he has worked steadily for 50 years at ready. Shouldn't half a century of labor for one's daily bread be enough in this age for any man or woman, even at least for anyone not compelled to labor more?

If the man in this case can't really be "happy" without the old grind, that in itself is unfortunate. It doesn't necessarily mean caginess, to serve society. It probably means that long toil has "deadened" his capacity for recreation, that he is too bogged down by adapting himself to new and interesting forms of activity, that his imagination is dead, that he lacks creative ability.

There are thousands of business and professional men as well as laboring men who put their stamp on society and it is a pitiful state to see. Future generations may know better, looking ahead and preparing mentally and financially to get the most out of "that last of life, for which the tide was made." That will make many envied indeed.

Formerly they would have come to America; now the quota system keeps them out, and those that stay, well, those that stay, well, those that stay, and it is a pitiful state to see.

Italian emigrants may know better, looking ahead and preparing, mentally and financially, to get the most out of "that last of life, for which the tide was made." That will make many envied indeed.

ITALIAN EXILES

What little gain of population France has is mostly Italian. Of 207,000 Italians who emigrated last year 174,000 went to France.

Formerly they would have come to America; now the quota system keeps them out, and those that stay, well, those that stay, well, those that stay, and it is a pitiful state to see.

Italian exiles

tributing to the prosperity of France. Mussolini rages at it. He wants those Italians to stay at home and work for "the new Italy." But they cross the border because they cannot endure Italian tyranny. It is Mussolini who drives them out. Having democratic principles, they seek freedom in exile, like the Germans who came to America in the middle of the last century.

Many settlers farther to more distant lands. More would go if they could get away. They are patriots who want to see Italy made great, but they believe that Italians who nequissime in the Fascist regime are paying for great a price for greatness. And that no greatness can fail on the will of one venture.

That laborer may be good for another decade or two of daily toil. But he has worked steadily for 50 years at ready. Shouldn't half a century of labor for one's daily bread be enough in this age for any man or woman, even at least for anyone not compelled to labor more?

If the man in this case can't really be "happy" without the old grind, that in itself is unfortunate. It doesn't necessarily mean caginess, to serve society. It probably means that long toil has "deadened" his capacity for recreation, that he is too bogged down by adapting himself to new and interesting forms of activity, that his imagination is dead, that he lacks creative ability.

GOVERNMENT BY DEFAULT.

One of the excuses sometimes made by men, often uttered by women, for not voting is that they really did not know anything about any of the candidates, or the issues, and so they felt they could not conscientiously cast a ballot.

This is no excuse at all. It is the voter's business to inform himself

about men and issues,

If he does not approve any of the candidates, no matter, One will be elected. One must be better than another in at least some small way.

Every expression of public opinion counts. If the voter votes for only one man, only one issue, if an election is expressing something of his own adding to public opinion.

The only thing candidates are informed of is voters. The only way to get good candidates is for good voters to keep on voting for the best in sight.

The real basis of the town is the military voter, with his ordinary duty. If he wants a clean and orderly community in which to live and rear his children, he can get it by voting for it. If he does not exercise his right to speak on the side of order and decency, he has to take what he gets.

Too much government in this country is government by default.

And another thing: The last day to register is only a short distance ahead and the man or woman who does not register cannot vote. He doesn't make any difference how often he or she may have registered for former elections. This time a new law has made necessary a new registration.

The last day to register for the election of November second is on Saturday, October twenty-third.

SMOKERS BEST WORKERS INVESTIGATOR ASSERTS

BALTIMORE, Oct. 18 (AP)—The man who smokes is likely to be a dependable and steady worker—more dependable, perhaps, than the nonsmoker—experiments conducted by Dr. Knight Gladwin, professor of experimental physiology at Johns Hopkins University, have tended to show.

So far as women is concerned "as scientific investigations have been made, there is no medical bearing on the question," Dr. Gladwin says. "In persons who say that woman cannot smoke as man does without injury speak without evidence in support of their say."

Experiments on the effect of smoking on man, not yet completed, and not finally conclusive, were undertaken to learn whether smoking interferes with fine coordination.

"There has been no evidence to far that it does interfere," Dr. Gladwin says.

On the contrary, such evidence as we have found tends to support the belief that the man who smokes will be a more steady and dependable worker. Tobacco is a sedative. The man who smokes is more likely to go along in a crowd with even predilection, amount and quality than is the man who does not.

"Smoking does increase the blood slightly, but it does not tell us of a man's ability to do his job. The effect of tobacco on the body is not much greater than that produced by the job,"

SCOUT COUNCIL BEGINS PLANS FOR NEXT YEAR

Roy W. Gardner to Head Committee Appointed to Raise 1927 Budget; Boys to Aid During Clean Up Week.

Boys scouts of Twin Falls will have charge of the "Clean Up" week, planned and organized by Mayor Ed Hamak, appointed and interested by members of the local scout council, assembled at their regular monthly meeting last night at Tom's Cafe, 11th and Main Streets. The council, consisting of 33 members, planned to make a special effort to bring the work of the boy scouts to the public's attention.

Ed Hamak outlined the plans for observation of "Clean Up" week, which begins here October 25 and continues for six days. The mayor's plan provides that the boy scouts shall take charge of the work of the organization for members of the organization two years ago, when each boy will be assigned to a certain small locality within the city, and visit it at the beginning of each month, to determine of his section what should be done by them in the way of burning weeds and leaves and removing rubbish. Shortly before the close of the campaign, on the night of October 25, the boys will inspect every locality, and in case any sections have not been carried out by property owners, will appeal to them to cooperate in making "Clean Up" week a complete success in this city.

Reasons Given

The last week in October has been set aside by the Twin Falls Boy Scouts of America, Leonidas and Mayes Ashton, "First, because of the fact that leaves and rubbish are a fire hazard; secondly, because if they are left, they become a nuisance; thirdly, because in the ground, in spring, they become a pest; fourthly, because they are a hindrance; and, fifthly, the last week in October has been chosen because the work will be finished six months earlier than it has been in previous years, and the same result will have been accomplished."

Twin Falls Fire department and the street department will take charge of vacant lots, and the city will start immediately to clear them of weeds and brush, the mayor announced.

I. H. Masters, in a short address, urged the members of the council to make every effort to push sound work along, and said that he would urge the directors to let every feasible method and encouragement to the filling of the ranks of the various troops, and, in some instances, entirely dependent.

A announcement was made at the close of the session by H. E. Barter, scout commissioner, that a meeting of scout leaders and their helpers will be held at 12 o'clock at Tom's Cafe, at which time important matters will be brought to their attention.

Barbers present at the luncheon, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Ashton were: Frank Wright, W. A. Thompson, Gruen, Arrington, H. E. Barber, W. E. Bitter, E. D. Blome, Roy W. Gardner, J. E. Kresser, W. L. Nixon, Felt, Phastor, W. M. Scott, and I. H. Masters, and W. T. Schellier.
