Democrats Against Establishing Dangerous Precedent.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29 (AP)—From their sides, the tangled chain of Illinois junior senators was heaved back in for the critical, painful, today.

Simultaneously with the removal of the flood sufferers from their waterlogged homes, relief agencies began functioning. The county charities commission, equipped with applications for food and clothing today appeared for $100,000 additional relief funds.

Edward B. McCook, governor of Illinois and a democrat, cautioned members of his party in the senate that if they voted not to ratify Frank L. WILBUR TURNS DOWN REQUEST OF COMMITTEE

Secretary of Navy Flatly Refuses to Submit Copy of Gleeves Report to House Members; Willing to Testify.

(By the Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—Secretary Wilbur today flatly turned down a request by members of the house naval committee for a copy, to be kept in confidence, of the report on possible dangers to the Pacific ocean area, made several years ago by Admiral Gleeves while in command of the Atlantic fleet.

Representative McCall of Oklahoma, democratic member, said Chairman Butler of this committee had requested that the report of the committee be kept in confidence. Mr. McCall said that he had written to the secretary of the navy, and that the secretary had refused to submit the report, but was willing to testify.

During the trial defense counsel attacked the report as one of the reasons for the sinking of the USS Arizona. The report, however, was not a confidential document, and the secretary of the navy was not bound to keep it confidential.

McCall, however, intimated the navy department was unwilling to give the public the report, and that it was not a confidential document.

Advices Do Not Coincide
"It was advised some time ago," the navy said, "by a high ranking officer in the navy that there was a report of the sinking of the USS Arizona."

It was said in his opinion the "Japanese navy" is now not forth to promote a new naval ship building program.

It will be remembered that this report, he continued, "has been made by the navy department, and that the department could not afford to allow any member of congress to see these reports."

CHARACTERIZES VOLSTEAD LAW AS SUPREME DECEIT

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 29. (AP)—The indignation of the eighteenth amendment law "of the United States" is the people's supreme deception. For the black of the University of Iowa today told the American Political Science association, one of eight allied organizations in convention here.

In their attempt to create morality by law and to change the age old appetite of a virile race by constitutional mandate, they not only have prostituted the true purpose of a constitution but also have violated every great principle that stands in the way of tyrannical procedure. Hills of right, federal and state, are being sacrificed by the gross advocates of law.

Reach Accord on Water Allotment To Basin States

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29. (AP)—Charles P. Squire, of Nevada, chairman of the tri-state conference on the Colorado river problem, announced here today that delegates from Nevada, Arizona, and California had reached an agreement on the question of allotment of water to the lower basin states, after proposed development of the international stream.

The agreement is tentative in the degree that it is dependent on an agreement on water revenue problems, Squire said, which will be taken up for discussion tomorrow.

The conference was adjourned after the morning session when the agreement was reached for the tri-state water allotment of the agreement.

The water agreement was arrived at, Squire said, "through mutual concessions by Nevada, Arizona and California. It is felt by most of the members of the commission that it is fair and will fully meet the needs of all three states. However, no member of the Arizona commission is in accord with the agreement, but it is hoped that they may be induced to yield to the majority."

Charges Against Mrs. McPherson May Be Dropped

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29. (AP)—Dismissal of conspiracy charges against Mrs. M. McPherson, former radio engineer, Kenneth O. Orniston, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and Mrs. Lorraine Williams-Schiffel, is imminent, District Attorney Geo. Keyes announced tonight on the eve of a new grand jury investigation into the "California conspiracy" disappearance.

Keyes declared the charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice and suborn perjury probably would be dropped due to the "collapse of the testimony of the principal witness," Mrs. Williams. This witness, who has confessed perjury in the "California X" case, in the case, the district attorney tonight characterized as a "turncoat" and "perjurer," saying she had told a "different story every day."

"The McPherson case is in such a muddled state that a conviction is almost impossible and the charges probably will be withdrawn," Keyes said. He was unable to say when such a decision would be taken. Roland Rich Woolley, formerly the personal attorney of Mrs. McPherson, and Mrs. Williams will be taken before the grand jury tomorrow, the press editor said.

COMING EVENTS
 As the coming season of the Idaho Legislature draws near, many minds begin to dwell upon the possibilities of a long session.

A crop of new laws is possible, too, are increased or new appropriations. It is generally recognized that some thing must be done with the State Penitentiary. This institution has been patched up year by year for a long time past, while the prison population has been steadily increasing.

Just about the same situation exists with respect to a number of other State institutions such as the home for defective children at Nampa and the State School for the Blind at Boise. It is perhaps time that attention of a major kind were given them.

In the matter of new laws, it is inevitable that a fresh batch be provided, if only for the reason that the delegates will consider their primary duty as legislators. It is perhaps unfortunate that this view of the functions of a Legislature has taken so firm a hold upon the public mind.

The educational interests of the State will of course be well represented. Huge sums will be asked for in the full knowledge that they will not be granted. But a thoroughly active and carefully selected lobby will be on hand during most of the session and no pains will be spared to make sure of the cause of education obtaining its full share.

Perhaps there is less demand for new laws than need to be the case. Apparently the idea is gaining ground that a multiplicity of statutes is not a major contribution to the cause of either law enforcement or justice. Few laws, but these well enforced, seems to be coming to be a thing of government. Laws purely for the regulation of personal conduct have almost reached the height of their popularity. The more of conflicting statutes upon the subject of morals and customs, the better.

Probably there will be less of this during the forthcoming session.

A WASHINGTON TRIAL

The most remarkable thing about the Hohy trial in a Washington court on conspiracy charges was not the verdict of acquittal itself, but the manner in which that verdict was reached by the jury.

All the restraint and decorum of the courtroom vanished. Lawyers, witnesses and spectators alike were overcome and overwhelmed the two defendants with congratulations. There was a chorus of "Thank God!" from the men. There was jubilation among the "political generation." It was a joyous and triumphant occasion.

tion of the country or some other city. It conflicts with the verdict reached in the U. S. District Court in Los Angeles, Washington, Feb. 19, in a way, a blow by themselves. A group of carders from the various churches under direction of Harry W. Buhl sang carols at the school Christmas scene, many of the spectators joining in.

Margaret Turnbull.

Lucy Rangely listened, gravely sympathetic. Her quick, cold eyes noted that Mrs. Johnson had lost none of her charm for him, and that she was very well indeed. The iron he was making was simply correct. In fact, there was every chance of the lady experiencing a boom. He was in possession of facts that made this almost a sure thing, but he did not tell her so. It suited his purpose that she should be sure of her own position. He should not be in a position to know that financially she was quite secure.

He agreed with her that it would be better to go ahead with the girl. It is to be noted that even with this fact and the fact that Mrs. Johnson had been staying in the town Dorothy Solley had visited from, he asked no questions concerning his son. He could and did, by the mere summing of a private secretary, secure for Mrs. Johnson admission on a steamer.

"When do you wish to sail?" Rangely asked.

"Tomorrow," said Mrs. Johnson coolly. "Somehow she did not like his smiling certainty any better this time than she had the last. It would be better to escape before he brought the history of his early career to bear upon her. In her present financial condition it might be difficult to hold him off successfully. Flight, now, might be as useful in her case as in Mary's."

Mrs. Johnson left, with the money and the steamer reservations. At the last moment Mrs. Rangely told her that she might want to see him after school hours. She kept a boarding house. It had only one relative in the world, who, by Uncle Michael, was her mother's brother, and he was an old man, almost 80, and ever so crabbed an old man as ever drew breath. He was supposed to be in Pennsylvania somewhere, working in the fruit business, when my people died. But that didn't count, and Mrs. Bradley took the money and ran.

Mrs. Bradley died, and her sister came and took the house and ran it as a boarding house. I was a little bit of a trouble maker, and I was a little bit of a trouble maker, and I was a little bit of a trouble maker.

It could not be possible that her wonderful Mary had any real feeling about the grocer's clerk. If she had, she would have been a different person. But she would be a different person. But she would be a different person.

She was only when they were dressed for dinner, and their guests had been announced, that Polly ventured to tell the girl the bad news was Saturday.

ADDITIONAL MARKETS

STOCK MARKET RECOVERS FROM EARLY SETBACK

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form today, recovering sharply during the afternoon after a period of weakness. In the absence of any news developments to explain the sudden turning of prices, the market was inclined to regard the recent reaction as a technical one designed to attract foreign investment.

Speculators for the decline found plenty of ammunition for their attacks in the day's trading, particularly the decline in foreign railroads for the week ended December 18, compared with the corresponding week last year, the falling off in steel production reported by the weekly trade review and the publication of a bullish market forecast by a large investment firm, not a member of the New York stock exchange.

The recovery in prices was led by standard industrials, such as United States Steel common, General Motors, Chrysler, American International and Hudson, all of which closed one to two points net higher. The strong buying support forthcoming for the latter three was particularly noticeable in the case of the latter two, the belief that the reinvestment demand will act as a bullish influence.
