fore-ordaining the butcher, it might well give a little thought to his side of the account.
Most prices are high all right, but not higher than they should be—and the biggest element which goes into the equation of them is the public taste for only the better cuts of meat.

A FATHERHOOD'S PROOBY
The North Carolina citizen who went to Washington the other day and proudly acknowledged himself the father of thirty-four children was received somewhat as a hero, though not quite so much of a hero as he might have been about twenty years ago, when anti-racism was our foremost national policy.

It was at this juncture that he suddenly cackled his head and let his hands drop softly to the arms of the chair. From the state outside came a faint creak, a pause and then again, step-by-step a bare or stocking foot in gradual descent.

The big man rose as modestly as he could in order to get the hat. But his bulk and his boots were not adapted to rapid movements or silent surprise. As he reached the hall he heard the patterling light of light feet and cut out into the hall as he felt the one he had seen Miss Phinney put her in—was just beyond the stairhead to the right. And her husband's head turned and faced the secret doorway of the closed door.

Williams dropped his head and trod indignantly back to the library, but the door he left the hall light on. Also he lit the library once and the loved himself the solace of a chair. "She won't try that again tonight," he said to himself and dropped into low chairs.

Then Stokes must know. They had had opportunity for private conference in that hour after the murder when the others were out of the house. She had told him of the deed and he had said, "I'll be damned if I'll let you do that!"

He thought of the night when he had given up nothing and a daylight explosion was set for the morning. He thought, however, that Miss Saunders' room, which by his orders had been locked and left untouched.

Steady as the morning sun, warm and still, it extended its welcome as it waited for her entrance. The signs of feminine occupation caught the eyes of the men and held them chilled on the threshold. A delicate perfume filled the air, the fragrance of her soap, the odor of the bath, the ghostly sweetness after the living presence had gone.

Hawson moved first, shaking off the door. He moved into the open wardrobe trunk, completely packed in the best hanger. "Going to put her costume there," he said, tending it with his index finger. He pulled out the garments and ran his eyes over them.

Stokes said, "A girl's costume hangs across the foot of the bed, beside it a cloak and a black hat with a waterily glistening brim. "These," he said, "were the clothes left out to wear."

Stokes looked at the girl's split in the gown. The gold lace split in the gown. The gold lace split in the gown. The gold lace split in the gown.

GOSTLY BLAZE IN BURLEY HOME

Early Morning Fire Causes Extensive Damage in Residence of E. Curtis Warren.

BURLEY, Jan. 25 (Special to The News).—The Burley fire department was called to the E. Curtis Warren residence on the corner of North Conant avenue and South street at about 7 o'clock this morning to combat a fire which at that time threatened the entire large structure with its valuable contents. Presently the blaze from the basement where it originated, most of the damage being confined to that portion of the home although much damage throughout the dwelling is reported to be considerable. All of the four joints under the chimney and the brickwork there were completely burned away, leaving the hardwood floor of those rooms sagging without support, while the remaining joints were damaged to such extent as to require complete replacement. It is 8000 blocks filled this morning in a single three-hour work-up with such density as to prevent workers from entering without masks. It was a shock in the morning when the flames broke from the basement and leapt from the zero weather, were permitted to return to headquarters in the fire building. The Warren family was not at home when the fire started, having gone to the city. The fire was extinguished by the next door neighbors who were awakened by the smell of the smoke coming from the chimney. Mr. Warren arrived upon the scene shortly after the fire department appeared. Mr. Warren expressed the belief that the fire was caused from electrical wiring, since the bulk of the damage was done to the chimney where most of the exposed wires were located. However, electricians say there were apparently no faulty installations, shorts or burned wires and unable to account for the starting from this source. The damage resulting is estimated by firemen at about $2500, although the loss is fully covered by insurance.

Report on Geology of Southern Idaho

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The director of the geological survey has indicated Congress the report of Dr. George B. Manford on "The Geology and Geology of Southern Idaho" has been edited and printed. The report, which is being distributed in the office, and will be printed and ready for distribution as soon as the necessary money can be procured for the numerous illustrations and maps, which may require six to nine months. The report is being published by the public printer to expedite matters in view of the value of the report.

At the time the report was submitted to the director, the geological survey has the funds available for the editing and printing of such a large and highly complex report, such as a limited extent that Congressmen Smith, who is taking an active interest in the publication of this data, was advised by the director of the survey that it would be impossible for them to even start work on the report for over a year. Congressmen Smith felt that this document was of such interest and value that it should be amended to provide for the interior department so as to make the necessary money available and the editing and printing as well, has been expedited about two years.

This report by Dr. Manford is the fruit of over ten years of intensive study and field work. It contains a wealth of information about this section of our country, which, as Dr. Manford estimates, contains over 2,500,000,000 of valuable phosphate rock. Agricultural interests the world over will find this document of value, as this is the largest concentration of phosphate rock, the basis of the superphosphate fertilizers in the world.
