Leningrad Tarnished Reminder of Old Brilliance As Capital

Leningrad—the St. Petersburg of Czarist days, has been rebuilt and pictured by Walter C. Whiffen after an absence of ten years...

WALTER C. WHIFFEN

LEMINGRAD—This city, beloved capital of Peter the Great and his "Windows looking toward Europe," better known as Leningrad or St. Petersburg, seen after ten years by one who knew it at the peak of its glory...

Conspicuously it is the same; the contour and design are there, but there is a difference in the much activity in the streets and even signs of moderate prosperity...

The show windows are full of merchandise. Some of the displays are as attractive as of old, but there is a larger showing of more utilitarian merchandise—food, fruit and meat shops which used to be relegated to side streets where rents were lower.

Formerly there was scarcely a time in the year when some portion of the city was closed to the public. It is common today that foreign contractors had repeatedly offered to repair the whole boulevard with durable and guaranteed paving for the cost of the repairs for a given period.

There is little evidence of the former merchandising and shipping that kept Leningrad in touch with the world...

On a side of the square in front of St. Isaac's Cathedral, and facing the former German Embassy, wrecked by Russian rioters at the beginning of the world war, the Hotel Astoria, once a rendezvous at the hour for fashionable women, foreign and Russian, has been converted into living quarters for Soviet employees and their families.

At the far end of the Nevsky is the Winter Palace of the czars, built by the Empress Elizabeth about 1750 at a cost of ten million rubles at a time when one could not pay for mittens.

The front of the palace is still protected by rifle and machine gun bullets of revolutionary days. The paint is peeling off, the gates are cragged with rust, and the windows are dilapidated and decay. The exception is the tower of the clock tower.

ROVE SUBTERRANEAN BARGE CANALS LARGEST IN WORLD

Marseille, France Has a New Wonder of the World; Ships Sail Through Mountain; Many Visit Place Each Year.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(AP)—Marseille, France, is a new wonder of the world. President Doumergue recently sailed from Marseille to a break in the mountain. He looked in and out of the black hole saw a point of light. He sailed on a flowing river into the dark cavern, 50 feet high and 70 feet wide.

Why did Marseille spend $40,000,000 on work resulting in the tunnel? For the reason that the canal connects Marseille with the waters of the Rhone, Belgium and Germany. France's traffic and commerce one year—totalled 247,257,000 tons, which is one and a half times as great as the tonnage of all the United States.

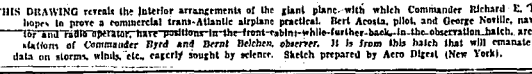

With her natural geographic advantages refined and improved by the new lowlands, Marseille becomes a natural port for much of France's stupendous water-borne traffic because the city lies near the mouth of the Rhone. Although the Rhone runs so swiftly that it prevents greater obstacles for boat traffic than the slow stream of the eastern France, still it flows reasonably good route to Lyon, the city of France, Canals along the Saone river, which branches north from the Rhone at Lyon, open large routes to Paris and to the Rhine.

Barge are built for quiet waters, their masts have looked with alarm into the prospect of taking them through the Mediterranean waves from Marseille 25 miles to the mouth of the Rhone. The new canal after permitting barges to pass through the Rhone, admits them to the "Etang de Berre" and hence to a canal which traverses the Rhone at the famous old Roman town of Arles 40 miles to the north.

Marseille seems to need no canal for the increase of its prosperity. In France it is second only to Paris in population and a very close second to London. The "Buckle of the World," port links North Africa, the Near East and the Far East to North Europe. The whole traffic hauled between the Rhone mouth and the North Sea goes by the name of Isthmus of Europe and the completion of the Rove tunnel that built the Panama City of that but by isthmus.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE HEARS PROPOSAL OF COLONEL LINDBERGH

Chief Executive Disposed to Consider Establishment of Sea Landing Places as Proposition of International Scope.

By The Associated Press RAPID CITY, S. D., July 1.—Establishers of landing places and balloons in the sea to aid trans-Atlantic flights have been proposed by Colonel Lindbergh, pioneer New York to Paris flier, to President Coolidge, who is disposed to consider this an international proposition.

Shows Considerable Interest Showing considerable interest in the new accomplishment of America's aviators in recent weeks, the president received today that the proposal for sea landing places had been placed before him by Lindbergh, and while the government has taken no action there are indications that Mr. Coolidge would take to proposal for international negotiations in this regard.

The record of the nation's fliers in recent years was pointed out at the summer White House reception, and the president's knowledge was being gained which should prove of undoubted benefit to the science of flying and navigation.

Health Former Eligible The flight of Commander Byrd over the North pole, as well as the flight of the military aviators, and the other recent trans-oceanic and the Hawaiian expedition, were recalled today by the president. No plans are being made to receive any of the more recent heroes of the nation by Mr. Coolidge here.

Responsibility for the three gallant men will be placed on the executive office here today, with Mrs. Coolidge, the president delved into a review of business conditions of the nation which he considers very satisfactory. While he believes conditions may not be as good as any one would desire, Mr. Coolidge is satisfied by government reports on business.

Employment Plentiful The labor department has reported conditions plentiful and the postoffice department has shown increases in the rate of stamps. It was declared that prices of farm products were going up, particularly cotton, corn and wheat. While hog prices were not so high it was said quotations on cattle were generally satisfactory and higher than in recent years.

Moreover, Mr. Coolidge is informed that the price of railroads is satisfactory. Freight is continuing. Railroad earnings may not be so high but he thinks this can be attributed to greater water traffic and commerce, which he is approving. This gives them greater buying power and thereby puts more money in circulation.

COMMANDER BYRD TELLS OF EXPERIENCE ON TRIP (Continued From Page One) stead of getting on with the flight. "Of course, that was a terrible experience. Imagine not seeing anything at all for 10 hours!" "We were unable to take our departure from St. Johns, as we could not be re-foundland at all because of the fog with which the whole country was covered."

"After 10 hours of that we managed by very good luck to locate ourselves on the coast of it, and reached the French coast at Plinister. I don't know exactly what time it was, for I've lost my watch and most of my records, but it was before sundown and we had made very good speed."

"In Fox Early in Day We first got in the boat about four o'clock, Wednesday afternoon. New York daylight saving time and continued in it until a o'clock yesterday morning."

"At Plinister, we set our course for Paris. Not long after we left Plinister darkness fell. Naturally, we then followed the compass course, having used it satisfactorily for 1000 miles."

"Every few minutes there was rain or fog. By then we had only enough gasoline to keep going until daylight. We would have to land with it pitch dark if we could not reach Paris early."

"We set another course for Paris, but the effort was ended by low clouds and rain. We may have been over the Paris. We searched for the city for hours."

"Search for Hours "If it had been clear there would have been nothing to it; we should have seen the lights."

"For hours we searched for a landing place and watched our gas getting into consumption, of course getting nearer all the time to the moment when we would have to give up."

"It was too dark to tell the nature of the ground on which to land. A slight roughness of the ground would have meant tragedy. I felt most keenly the due to prostrations but some from drowning. Temperatures in Ohio today ranged from 92 to 95.

Thousands spent the day and last night in the lake and park. Crowds in the downtown area were sharply reduced and the pedestrian traffic was devoid of its usual hot season.

The heat was continued unbroken throughout the middle west and districts adjacent to the south and north, but there was a cool high area over-spreading the northeast and considerable falls in temperatures had been noted.

The expert opinion was that tomorrow's hottest should be about 100 degrees, with Sunday even cooler.

Theatricals

SILENT RIDER ACTING COMEDY A fast moving story with action, thrills and romance, is the Union Pacific production "The Silent Rider" which opened yesterday at the Idaho theatre.

The one and only Hot Gibson is starred in "The Silent Rider," an adaptation from Katherine Rewlin Burdett's best seller "The Red Heated Husband" and is ably supported by a featured cast of Western players.

The picture starts with a young girl appearing at the bar, a handsome man to assist in the feeding of a score of rough but good hearted cowboys. Hook, as one of the cowboys is immediately smitten with the mysterious stranger, but is unable to follow the mystery surrounding her.

Dianthe McHaffey, who is fast coming into her own as a picture lumina, plays the part of the girl, while a featured cast of western players are included.

While he believes conditions may not be as good as any one would desire, Mr. Coolidge is satisfied by government reports on business.

Moreover, Mr. Coolidge is informed that the price of railroads is satisfactory. Freight is continuing. Railroad earnings may not be so high but he thinks this can be attributed to greater water traffic and commerce, which he is approving. This gives them greater buying power and thereby puts more money in circulation.

COMMANDER BYRD TELLS OF EXPERIENCE ON TRIP (Continued From Page One) stead of getting on with the flight. "Of course, that was a terrible experience. Imagine not seeing anything at all for 10 hours!"

"We were unable to take our departure from St. Johns, as we could not be re-foundland at all because of the fog with which the whole country was covered."

"After 10 hours of that we managed by very good luck to locate ourselves on the coast of it, and reached the French coast at Plinister. I don't know exactly what time it was, for I've lost my watch and most of my records, but it was before sundown and we had made very good speed."

"In Fox Early in Day We first got in the boat about four o'clock, Wednesday afternoon. New York daylight saving time and continued in it until a o'clock yesterday morning."

"At Plinister, we set our course for Paris. Not long after we left Plinister darkness fell. Naturally, we then followed the compass course, having used it satisfactorily for 1000 miles."

"Every few minutes there was rain or fog. By then we had only enough gasoline to keep going until daylight. We would have to land with it pitch dark if we could not reach Paris early."

"We set another course for Paris, but the effort was ended by low clouds and rain. We may have been over the Paris. We searched for the city for hours."

estimates predicted $200,000,000. During the business year ended last midnight, total ordinary receipts of the federal government amounted to $1,129,284,441, and expenditures charged against such receipts was $1,493,284,519.

Large Public Debt The public debt at the close of business yesterday totaled $18,511,500,000, having been reduced during the year by $1,171,203,381, the second largest scaling down of the debt in one year on record.

Here, then, half of the surplus for the last fiscal year, treasury officials said, was due on receipts on account of deposits of capital assets back-tax receipts in excess of refunds and other factors which are reported as of a fast disappearing and non-recurring character.

Old Nation Incorporated If a city is large enough to drink below the surface it will go all the way down. There is nothing to the notion that the pressure of the water will keep it from going up and keep it suspended part way down.

Lakes' Declining Value The Department of Agriculture says that large bodies of water, such as lakes, serve as a protection to farms against damage by autumn frosts. This is due to the light stored in the water during the summer. In the spring such bodies of water tend to retard the growth of plants and thus safeguard them against late frosts.

TOWNSHIP LIMITATION ISSUE BEFORE MEET

Information Indicates That English Will Likely Request Figures Higher Than American's

GRAND RAPIDS, July 1 (AP)—The question of the total tonnage of grain to be shipped from the English port of London to the United States is the subject of a meeting to be held here today. All information indicates that Great Britain will probably request figures to be much higher than the existing tonnage and to such an extent that the maximum tonnage exceeded by the American that it may be exceedingly difficult for Hugh S. Gibson and his confederates to reach the British proposition.

Reason for Stand It is understood that Great Britain is maintaining its demand for high tonnage because of its confidence in the protection of the dollar as well as the fact that British trade with the United States is increasing.

Part of the British may ask the United States to maintain as much as 500,000 tons in excess. Both the American and Japanese delegations are understood to favor placing the total tonnage as low as possible.

Japan Discouraged Meanwhile it is understood the Japanese are somewhat discouraged by the fact that the American public opinion to their projected attack on the question of "cattle raisers" and their probable support of the British plan to insist on the "stray" connection at Wells, gas and within the scope of the inquiry, they urged reduction of freight rates would solve the financial problems of cattle raisers. EXHAUSTED GASOLINE SENDS PLANE DOWN (Continued From Page One) that tradition of their calling made several trips to the plane to obtain their most important equipment, personal effects, sack of mail and some of their precious records although most valuable scientific data was lost to Commander Byrd's great disappointment.

They waited on the shore for two weary hours until they succeeded in locating in touch with fishermen who took them to nearby fishermen's houses. Mer and the home of the acting mayor, where they found food and much needed sleep.

Plane Taken From Sea Today the great plane that had crashed there as well as drizzled from the sea by fishermen and naval men from the port of Cherbourg under the direction of two of the crew of the Anzures. The engine was dismantled and carefully gone over, while every piece of equipment that could be saved was saved.

Commander Byrd was hopeful that the plane could be completely restored to use. Tonight the American army men are the heroes of all France and most near to the little coastal town of Ver-sur-Mer to which they brought the first breath of fame since a Spanish galleon, a remnant of the great armada that once plied the sea toward England crashed on the rocks there in 1558.

Commander Byrd and his three companions have joined Charles A. Lindbergh in his flight in the hearts of the French people. The courage with which they faced the stupendous odds against them, the skill that carried them through one of the worst nightmares that aviation history knows and the splendid fight for life that they put up in a howling storm while all France by hidden beneath their feet caught Gull's imagination just as did the "Gull" itself.

Buffalo trails FOR miles they stretched across the prairie marked, beaten hard as rock through the centuries by the hoofs of buffalo on their way to the salt licks. WHEN the railways came, and the engineers were confronted with the great bastion of the Rocky Mountains, these buffalo trails assumed a new significance. It was found that they always followed the easiest gradients, that they penetrated the mountains fastnesses by the most direct and practical route. BUFFALO trails became one of the greatest assets of the early railway builders. Time, money, energy, were conserved; a vast amount of fruitless pioneering and surveying was eliminated, by trusting to the infallible instinct which had led the herds along these obscure and little-known ways. ADVERTISING, like these old buffalo trails, provides a clear and unmistakable path among the perplexities of modern buying. It points the way to the goal of safety and sound value; it avoids the pitfalls of unknown and unreliable goods. COURT DECLINES TO SET ASIDE CONTRACT FOR LIBRARY LEASE

Judge H. A. Baker Rules Lodge Membership Does Not Prevent Member Dealing as City Officer With Fraternal Order.

The fact that a majority of the members of a municipal board are members of the lodge is not sufficient to invalidate a lease contract made by the board with the lodge, according to a decision rendered by Judge Hugh A. Baker of Butte in district court here Friday.

The opinion affirms a contract for lease of the city-owned public library in the Elks building. The lease was attacked in court by C. A. Burnett, Twain Falls chapter, on the grounds of alleged inability of the city officials to make a contract with the lodge of which they were members. The city of Twin Falls and the Elks lodge were named as defendants, and members of the library board were permitted to intervene.

No pecuniary interest.

Judge Baker held that "there is no pecuniary interest in the case of the city officers either direct or indirect, present or prospective."

He ruled that "the interest on the part of the officers of the defendant city in the defendant lodge is not sufficient to render the contract voidable."

Questions raised in this case, Judge Baker said in his opinion, were "the same as those which were raised in the case of the respective parties concerning the lease of the city-owned public library to find any direct authority in the case."

Four of the five members of the city council, it was admitted, are members of the Elks lodge, and three of them are holders of the lodge's bonds. Three out of the five members of the library board, Burnett contended, were members of the Elks lodge and the other two were wives of Elks. It was stipulated during proceedings that the three members of the library board had taken their oaths from the lodge, and only one of them was the wife of a lodge member.

Story of transaction.

The lease contract was approved by the city council last April 24. Subsequently the council confessed error in this action and asserted that the library board was qualified to make the contract.

Under terms of the contract the library will occupy the entire east-end portion of the second floor of the Elks building, which has been vacated after the Elks club and lodge members have moved out of the building and lighting furnished will be $1500 a year.

The library's lease quarters that it now occupies on Shoshone street north expired Friday.

It is the test of Judge Baker's opinion in the case.

"We may, I think, agree with the plaintiff that the facts that the negotiations leading up to the execution of the contract complained of were conducted by and the assignment of lease was to the library board, but the lease was not made directly with the city or any department thereof, and that the city officers terminated their membership in the defendant lodge are wholly immaterial and do not render the contract void if otherwise valid."

"Take counsel for the respective parties. I have been unable to find any direct authority in the case. There is here no pecuniary interest on the part of the city officers either direct or indirect, present or prospective, in all cases I have read of to which my attention has been directed the interest deemed sufficient to render void a lease was a pecuniary interest, either direct or indirect. There was always present in the case of the defendant city either in public or private, or in the

PLEADS GUILTY TO SHEEP THEFT CHARGE

Paul McBride, One of Three Men Accused of Grand Larceny, Confesses to Offense.

Paul McBride, before Judge Hugh A. Baker of Butte in district court here Friday, entered a plea of guilty to grand larceny charge in connection with alleged theft of 29 sheep from the W. H. McGee livestock company in the vicinity of the Hansen bridge last November. Judgment will be pronounced next Friday. Judge Baker said that McBride was one of three men arrested and accused of the theft. The others are Walter L. Todd, awaiting trial at Jerome, and Otto Arrington, held to answer in district court here.

McBride was charged with having driven across Hansen bridge from field in Jerome county into Twin Falls county where they were loaded on a truck and carried to Castleton.

hope of continued employment or increased wage as employee. If interested persons are alleged to have been any interest which might create a preference or a desire that a particular action be taken. It is difficult to see where the rule might end or to what it might lead. There must be a line somewhere and I have concluded that the legislature meant that the interest sufficient to avoid a contract must be pecuniary, either direct or indirect, present or prospective. If the term "interest" is as comprehensive as the plaintiff contends, the nepotism act becomes wholly unnecessary. The concern an officer has in the welfare of his relatives would be an "interest" usually more direct than the interest of the officers of the city in the defendant lodge yet the legislature deemed it necessary to enact a special act dealing with the appointments of relatives.

"The conclusion will be that the interest on the part of the officers of the defendant city in the defendant lodge is not sufficient to render the contract voidable.

"Counsel for defendants will prepare, submit to opposing counsel and forward for signature findings of fact, conclusions and decree. Plaintiff's complaint will be dismissed and decree will be entered in favor of the defendants."

SPLIT CONTRACT FOR CITY'S FUEL SUPPLY

Councilmen Divide Award for 100-Tons-of-Coal Among Dealers Submitting Bids.

Twin Falls city council in adjourned session last evening, awarded to each of seven Twin Falls coal dealers who submitted uniform bids, for the city's winter fuel supply, a contract to furnish 15 tons of coal.

Each coal dealer had submitted his bid on the basis of furnishing the coal supply of about 100 tons.

In making a uniform price, the coal dealers followed out a policy that was inaugurated some weeks ago when the city commissioners called for bids and that was used again a little later when the school board called for coal.

The school board has twice received all bids and has awarded the contract.

Restricts Roller Skating

Under suspension of the rules restricting roller skating, the council at this session adopted an ordinance closing the "business district to roller skating. The district thus closed extends from Third street north to Third avenue south, and on Main avenue from Third street west to Third street east. Enforcement of the regulation was requested by a number of business men and business houses in a petition submitted to the council at its meeting last Monday evening.

The ordinance session was held with special emphasis on approving salaries and other current bills against the city.

Proposed new schedule of water rates again was discussed at some length, but no decision was reached.

The council approved the bonds filed by one city officer who entered on his duties Friday. They were C. M. Bell, assistant city treasurer, city treasurer, and H. D. Read, police magistrate.
